No one will wish to miss the able sermons and Bible instruction given by Brother Lindsay. Come one and all. M. A WOODWARD,
Conference Sec.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 10-19, and the Annual Conference from August 19-23. When answering questions of lesson 8, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

S. J. LINDSAY.

We wish all persons to whom we have loaned books from our library would kindly return what they have in their possession. Some have been out a long time, and we want all sent home as soon as possible, please.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Indiana Bible School.

The Indiana Bible School will convene this year at Plymouth, Indiana, June 15. This will be the day following the June Conference at Antioch. So those coming can come in time for the Conference and stay over the following week. Last year the attendance was about double the previous year, and we hope to have a like increase or more this year. Work is being planned that will be both interesting and instructive to those in attendance. Those coming please notify Mrs Phebe Willey, Plymouth, so that lodging places may be secured.

LYDIA RALSBACK, Sec.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of the brethren have statistics, facts or figures, showing the good that conferences have accomplished, I would be glad to have you communicate with me at Woodstock Va. I would like to secure a copy of same. Perhaps Brothers Lindsay, Allard, Winn, Wagoner, Brother and Sister Woodward, Brother Crozier or Sister Emma Juckman and others who have been active in Conference work can help me out. Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

GEORGE NEILL.

Indiana Botetourt, Greeting:

Brother Neill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us make a stand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind this promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 515 S. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

EVELYN K. HANSON.

To the brethren and sisters of the states of Virginia and Maryland, and isolated ones in the east and south:

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. 7:6, 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 204 2 W. Carolina Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 336 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room & dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but cannot remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, express money order, or express order. NOT personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Currency sent together and unchecked. Money sent in any other way is entirely done at your risk and is at the option of the dishonest clerk always. Money sent in registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always remit with money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you write your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending us wills always give the exact name in which it was previously been sent, and state in your letter it is unacknowledged, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper was sent to Mrs. Jones Williams, and her husband George, sent the money order in his own name and neglected to say for us to send the paper to Mrs. [illegible] reason to suppose that Susan [illegible] she did not say she [illegible] and send him the paper. See the point? Save delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both have succeeded. So stupid as to everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering back numbers, else order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends months and time and labor on an important subject and when it is ready packs it in an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on a postage stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his [illegible] then neglected three important points so that not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on it a return address. A trial to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Paradise.

Is it a dream, to be dispelled at last,
That when the time of waiting here is past,
And all the arrows of the foe are spent,
The Lord returns to meet the raptured saint?
O, dream delicious! can it be no more?
That pictures vision of the very Land,
And wafts the fragrance of its fields of lilies
Across the desert of our cold like this!
Ecstatic dream, that pays to mortal eye
A passing glimpse of the bridge of skies,
And rolls across the [illegible] that cut the night
Its song of hope, that it will soon be light!
Transporting dream, that lifts the soul above
To wide, bright regions of eternal love,
O, dream divine! then art the voice of God;
By thee attuned, I seek His great abode!
But where, O dream—thou best not told me where—
Lies this bright land of rest from toil and care?
Where is the shore celestial, on whose shores
No thunder peals, no surging tempest roars?
Where the resplendent firmament, that bears
No rack of grief, no sound of falling tears?
Where may the pilgrim's drooping eye behold
The crystal river, with its sands of gold:
The living waters, on whose banks of green
The Tree of Life with mellow fruit is seen?
The gates of pearl, the throne of dazzling light
And the immortal worshippers in white?
Where the choirs of angels, and the place
Where Emmanuel men behold their Saviour's face?
Where the vast immensity, untrod
By mortal thought, yields the Infinite God?
To questions such as these, the answer given
Is clearly this: To be with Christ in heaven.
His presence makes the glory and the home,
And all exertion calls unto Him "Come!"
For Paradise is no distant sphere;
The Second Adam makes His Eden here!

God's Love.

"For God so loved the world that he sent his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." Jno iii 16.

The above passage reveals God's love for man. Unlike man's limited love, it reaches out to, and comprehends the world as the object to be the recipient of the divine love and favor. The statement that "he so loved the world," in the language that includes, within its scope, both the animate and inanimate creation. We find in Rom viii 20, that the creature was made subject to vanity. The apostle Paul here refers to the transgression of God's law by our first parents in the garden where they had been placed. They by violating the divine command given them while in their sinless condition, made themselves subject to vanity. Bringing, not only upon themselves sorrow, pain and death, but these direful consequences were inflicted upon all of their posterity, which condition it is needless to say still exists. The word of inspiration teaches very plainly, that the earth also was a recipient of the divine chastisement inflicted upon the original transgressors. The language used by the Almighty in addressing Adam when he pronounced the penalty upon him, saying, "Cursed is the ground for thy sake. Thorns and thistles shall it bring forth to thee," shows very forcibly that the earth was also involved in the divine sentence pronounced upon man in the garden. Thus both the animate and inanimate creation has been defiled and disfigured by sin and its baneful and demoralizing effects, since Adam's fall down to the present time. Hence we can see the necessity of the restoration or the "restitution of all things" under the curse or sentence pronounced upon it back to its original condition of perfection, beauty and purity, before God can again look upon it, and call it good. This is just what God's plan, as revealed in his Word, contemplates. Not the lifting up of "mansions in the skies," as is popularly believed in, but the removing of ignorance, wickedness, sin and its defilements from the earth, wherein finally, after it is purified the righteous or redeemed shall dwell. When we ponder upon the magnitude of the work and the energy and power required in the undertaking of such a universal crusade against sin and all manner of wickedness in order to overcome the works of Satan, remove the curse and usher in a righteous government. It is then that we realize that this transforming power must come from a supernatural source. Those belonging to the true faith understand that the restitution of all things is to be wrought or accomplished through Christ, who is called the "beginning of the creation of God." God love for the world was so great that he sent his Son to ransom from its sin-cursed condition. His work of regeneration has already begun in those who are of his Church, namely the Church of God, or those who are called according to his plans and purposes. God's regenerative power during his present epoch, of favor and love is being exhibited through those who shall finally constitute the Christ Body, as a disciplinary, refining and constructive principle, which if followed will ultimately constitute them inheritors of eternal salvation. This transforming power which is being manifested during this age, is inherent in the "gospel of the kingdom." Paul calls it "the gospel of Christ," which "is the power of God unto salvation." Rom i 16. "The power of God unto salvation," will be exercised only in behalf of him, who heartily believes in the gospel of the kingdom, accepts it, repents, and is then baptized into Christ. It is through this process that we are brought into a covenant relationship to God, and by being baptized into the Abrahamic seed we thus become heirs to the things which Christ is an heir too, through the promises made to him. All who are looking forward to the fulfillment of God's promises to Abraham and his seed, realize that until that consummation takes place we are heirs only. That before that event transpires in God's own time and way, the law of regeneration or the law of the Spirit of Life shall have so left its impress and effect upon our minds and characters as to work out a complete change both morally and mentally in our lives, qualifying us for the greater change from the natural to the spiritual at the first resurrection. When we are raised spiritual beings no more to turn to corruption the new creation shall have been wrought out in us, making us perfect and completely equipping us for the reign of Christ which immediately follows. The restitution is accomplished through Christ, who is called The First and The Last, The Alpha and Omega, an appellation referring to the prominent position God has given him in the redemptive work of his plan of salvation, from its inception by a belief in the Gospel, until we stand complete and perfect upon the Spiritual plane of his creation.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAY 6, 1908. NUMBER 17.

Yours, in the Blessed Hope.
G. W. WOODMAN.

The Great Commission.

In this "age of doubt" and theological revolution, when the flames of analytical investigation are consuming the accumulated dross of centuries; when dogmas and creeds, for ages considered as indestructible as granite are melting like snow under the burning rays of advancing truth; when foundation principles having withstood the ravages of time, are crumbling to dust before the billows of "reason" and "evidence" hurled against them by "Higher Critics" and modern infidels, it is time for the friends of revealed truth and those that "follow after righteousness" to awake, shake off their lethargy and indifference, clothe themselves in the whole armor of God, and grasping the shield of faith and the sword of the Spirit, enter the lists in defense of the throne and standard of their King!

"In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,"—

we soon discover that we not only have one recognized foe to meet and to conquer, but traitors and spies, disguised in "the stolen livery of heaven," skulking within our lines and seeking to give help to Satan's forces by pointing out the weaker places in our defences.. These enemies within our borders are the ones the most to be feared and the ones the most difficult to overcome; for, while they come to us in sheep's apparel, inwardly they are ravening wolves.

Then, there are men and women, earnest and conscientious in their convictions, who really love the King and desire to serve him, and number themselves among his most devoted adherents, who, through a mistaken sense of duty, and possible failure to consider the consequences of their acts, point to the rust on the sword borne by themselves and their fellow soldiers, and, gloomily shaking their heads declare that because the keen bright blade has become slightly corroded from contact with human hands the weapon is not to be wholly relied upon at all times, and even him it has in the stress of battle it may break.

By these depressing suggestions many a promising young soldier who might otherwise have enlisted and bravely and successfully fought "the battle of the Lord," has turned back discouraged, or still worse, has been driven into the ranks of the enemy!

The shame of it all lies in the fact that the war that caused the greatest trouble is frequently so insignificant that it would pass entirely unnoticed was it not pointed out and magnified by its discoverer, and generally the defect, or alledged defect, is acknowledged even by its discoverers to be so unimportant that it cannot possibly affect the final outcome of the conflict in one way or the other.

At the beginning of the civil war the real issue between the north and the south lay in what was known as "The Question of State's Rights." At the commencement of the struggle the north was a unit in the belief that the doctrine of "State's Rights" was absolutely unconstitutional, and that its supporters must be put down with an iron hand. This unity of opinion, however, did not extend to the question of slavery; for at that time many men, even in the northern army, believed that if the south desired to hold slaves they had every right to do so. Now suppose, that instead of unanimously marching to the front and executing every effort to overthrow the rebellion, the northern states had spent half of their time, money and energy in contending among themselves as to the merits or demerits of human slavery, how long would it have been before the stars and stripes again floated peacefully over the sunkissed hills of "Dixie?"

Let us, therefore, not spend our time and substance in "vain jangling" over questions not essential to salvation, and which minister not to the "godly edifying which is in faith." The world is rapidly nearing the final consummation of human authority in the earth. The rumble of the approaching storm of divine wrath already reverberates in the distance. The time is short. Our duty now is to warn men everywhere to "flee from the wrath to come," to preach "the gospel of the kingdom of God," to try and induce them to come to Christ that they may have life!

Two thousand years ago the Captain of our salvation delivered to his followers the "great commission," containing the only orders they were to receive until he returned to claim his throne. Impressive, indeed, were the circumstances under which this most important command was given. But a few days had elapsed since his ignominious death upon the cross. His three days of silence in the tomb, that season of inexpressible anguish for his disciples, and his glorious and triumphant resurrection from the dead. In compliance with instructions received prior to his crucifixion the faithful eleven assembled on the "mountain where Jesus had appointed them.....and Jesus came and spake unto them saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen."—Matt. xxviii. 18-20.

Thus was the "Great Commission" given, and the gates of the world thrown open for the advancement of Truth, and Righteousness, and Love! Never since the gospel was preached to Abraham (Gal. iii. 8,) had the glad tidings of human redemption been sent to the Gentile nations of the world. But now the joyful message was to be carried by faithful witnesses over the mountains, valleys and plains, and across the rolling billows of the deep to the heathen lands beyond the sea. For this gospel of the kingdom must be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations ere the end shall come. Onward! forever onward! to the uttermost parts of the earth, until from every clime a hundred thousand voices breathe the prayer "Thy Kingdom Come!"

The Master said in substance—"Go ye, therefore,—you cannot fail,—for all power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.....and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the age." No longer confine your message to "the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. x. 5 7;) but bring to every sorrowing sin-sick heart your words of hope, and love, and life. Tell them of him who gave his life upon the cross for their transgressions. (1 Cor. xv. 3.) Tell them of his resurrection. (1 Cor. xv. 4.) Tell them of his nail pierced hands out-stretched to save. (Matt. xi. 28-30; Rev. iii. 20-21.) Tell them of his soon return to raise the sleeping saints to immortality. (1 Cor. xv. 20-23; 1 Thess. iv. 16 18.) Tell them of his coming kingdom of glory, peace and truth,—(the kingdom that shall never pass away. (Isa. ix. 6 7; xi. 1-5. Dan. vii. 13-14; Matt. x. 7.) "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."—He was speaking to the apostles. Whatsoever he had commanded them to observe and teach they were to carry to the world as their message. No authority was given them to add to, omit from, or in any way change in the slightest degree the instructions they had received from him. It was not what Moses had commanded, or what God had commanded through him; nor yet what the prophets had said, or even what Jesus had told some one else to observe; but only the things he had commissioned the apostles to teach, had they the authority to preach to the world. And what had he commanded them? To observe the philosophy and vain reasoning of men? To enter the arena of politics and try to reform the governments of the world? Had he instructed them to seek for "new truth" to darken and obscure the blessed hope? Had he required them to establish his genealogy, and by this means prove to the world his right to the throne of his father David,—a right which his followers have always acknowledged? Had he told them to observe and teach the law as delivered to Moses? No! But he had commissioned them (Mark xvi. 15-16) "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." He had taught them (Matt. x. 7)—"As ye go preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand!" He had told them (John xiii. 3, 4,) "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another."

O that the trumpet might send forth no uncertain sound! That the "heralds of the kingdom" would cling close to the text of the "Great Commission," and "preach the Word"—the blessed Word of the kingdom and coming King; for it is only by faith in "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," and obedience to that faith that we may be saved.

Dear Restitution:

On Easter Sunday, April 19, 1908, the Church of God at Guthrie Grove, South Carolina, enjoyed one of the grandest meetings ever held in the state. The Program for the day was as follows:

Song Service at ten o'clock A. M. by the Singing Class, led by Prof. P. A. Guthrie, after which five minutes was given for recreation.

At eleven o'clock we again came together for preaching and for one hour we listened to a noble sermon by Brother John Anderson, his subject being The Resurrection of Christ. After this one hour was given, and everybody was invited to spread dinner together which they did, upon a long table prepared by the brethren for the occasion. The table was laden with almost every good thing necessary for the nourishment of our mortal bodies. The writer has never enjoyed a more beautiful scene than that, when the table was spread, I looked around it and saw there in the circle a goodly number of the true Church of God. It reminded me of the time when our Savior, with us, shall eat and drink together in the kingdom of our Father.

After dinner the congregation was again called together by a song, after which we were entertained with a beautiful Easter recitation by Sister Sarah Durham. This was followed by a very able sermon by her father, Brother Newton Durham and concluded by the Pastor, E. M. Anderson. We then partook of the Lord's Supper and sung a hymn and went out.

The only thing that darkened the enjoyment of myself for the day was the absence of my father and mother who were not permitted to be present on account of the ill health of my mother who has been sick for the past five months. I want every child of God to join with me in prayer to our heavenly Father, who is our only help in time of need, that he may in accordance to his will restore my dear mother to health again. Oh that the time may come when all troubles shall cease and there shall be no more sickness and death for the former things have passed away.

Your Sister, in hope of eternal life.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the Gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, the regulation of the conveyance of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Dear Restitution:

We wish to announce that on Sunday afternoon, April 19th, 1908, that those of the faith of faithful Abraham at Antioch, Illinois, were made to rejoice in the fact that Mrs. Cable of Chana, Illinois, made an open confession of her faith in the promises of God, by putting on Christ by baptism, being "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God who hath raised him from the dead."

Sister Cable was brought to a knowledge of the truth through the instruction of Brother R. G. Huggins, who also assisted her in putting on the all-saving name of Christ, "For as many of you as have been baptised into Christ have put on Christ."

May the grace and favor of God, and of our Lord Jesus Christ, abide with her in all her trials and temptations is our prayer.

Your Brother, in hope of a resurrection from the dead.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,
W. H. WILSON.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAY 6, 1908

LAST week we were informed that Sister Foore had died on Sunday before, but have no particulars. She was the mother of Bro. L. E. Conner's first wife.

BROTHER J. H. Willey returned and preached for the Plymouth Church on April 26. He reports that on April 19 he visited the Church at Oregon, Illinois, and spoke for them twice to good audiences. He enjoyed his stay with the friends there very much.

A LETTER dated April 24, from Sister Matilda Woodbury, at Springfield Ohio, gives the good news that Bro. O. C. Robison was holding meetings there, and that on Sunday following three were to be immersed. We rejoice with the Springfield brethren, and pray that these new babes in the Christ may be kept by the Father in the right way. And may Brother Robison, seeing thus some manifest results of labor, be thereby greatly encouraged to work on with renewed energy.

IT will be remembered by all who have been interested in reading the reports made of late by both Brother W. L. Skeels and Brother W. H. Wilson, that they mention the kindness and generosity of Sister G. Rohrback, of Stillwater, Okla. While they give this Sister praise for her efforts to provide a place for holding meetings and for providing entertainment for them, she in turn wishes to extend thanks to others who assisted her in various ways. To certain Christian Advents who opened their homes, to J. W. Butler for cash contribution, to J. S. Riley minister of the Methodist Church for opening his Church for the meetings, and all others who assisted in any way toward making the meeting pleasant and profitable.

Editor Restitution:

I sincerely thank the dear one or ones for sending me THE RESTITUTION [illegible]. I should love to renew my subscription, but I am old, and very feeble and poor, and it takes all I have to get medicine.

May God bless all the Household of Faith is ever the prayer of

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, MAY 17.
JESUS BETRAYED AND DENIED. JOHN XVIII. 1-27.

Golden Text.—"Jesus said unto them, The Son of Man shall be betrayed into the hands of men." Matt. xvii. 22.

This is not a review, but it is well worth our while to remind ourselves of the import of the last few lessons. For instance, "Humility." Real humility is a rare thing among men of whatever class or profession.

There are few things more plainly taught in both the Old and New Testaments, than that the "Heavenly Home" of the saints will be on the earth.

And there are few things more plainly written than that the "Mission of the Holy Spirit" was to witness to the truth of the gospel as preached by the apostles.

We have discovered, in the lessons of the past that the apostles did not all write notes of the same events, but all write freely of Jesus being betrayed and denied.

We may read of many cases of cowardly, cruel betrayal, but among all there is none just like the betrayal of Jesus.

From the standpoint of Jesus we cannot say that he was betrayed, because he knew that Judas was scheming to betray him.

To his disciples he said, "Ye know that after two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of Man is will [illegible] to be crucified.

At the passover supper he said, "Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." Matt. xxiv. 22.

Jesus said, "Verily I say unto you, One of you which eateth with me shall betray me." Mark xiv. 18.

Again we read, "Behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table. But woe unto that man by whom he is betrayed." Luke xxii. 21, 22.

We see from these records that Jesus was not like others that have been betrayed. He was not surprised nor taken unawares. This does not in the least excuse Judas. He was the meanest of all betrayers.

Referring to Matt. xxvi. 24, 25, we read, "It had been good for that man if he had not been born."

Then Judas—with what seems like child-like innocence—asked, Master is it I?

From all the circumstances previous to the betrayal, one might be led to wonder why Judas did not forego his purpose, knowing as he did that his Master knew of his treachery. It is the observation of observers that when a man goes wrong "religiously"—When they turn away their ears from the truth, 2 Tim. iv. 4, it is next to an impossibility to induce them to reconsider and repent.

God the Father knew that his Son would be betrayed, and moved David, by the Holy Spirit, 2 Peter i. 21, to prophecy. "Let Satan—the adversary—stand at his right hand—let his days be few, and another take his office." Psa. cix. 1-20. It was this prophecy the apostles referred to when they cast lots for one to take the place of Judas among them. Acts i. 15-26.

In connection with the betrayal and other events we read "All this was done that the Scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled," Matt. xxvi. 56.

From what is written let us not conclude that Judas—or some one—HAD to betray Jesus. He was naturally bad, but no man ever had a better opportunity to reform than he. Jude informs us that some turn away from the grace—favor—of God. Jude 4, and Paul tells us that such are fit only for destruction, Rom. ix. 22.

Moral cowardice is not a part of the make-up of every man, but every man is liable to have an attack of it, a lapse as it were. This was the case with the apostle Peter when he denied all connection with, or knowledge of his Lord and Master Jesus Christ. He loved his Lord, and his Lord knew it, John xxi. 15-17. Paul says, Charity—Love—never faileth, 1 Cor. xiii. 8. This is true, absolutely true in the case of God and Jesus Christ. It was true also in the case of Peter, as far as could be true of a man. The love of Peter did not utterly fail when he denied the Master. It was a slight break in his life of affectionate devotion to his Lord.

The story of the denial in the lesson is that Peter followed Jesus to the door of the palace of Caiphas the high priest. The apostle John was inside, and through his influence Peter was allowed—by the girl doorkeeper—to come in. The imagination or still better, the recollection of those who have been really over-awed by unusual surroundings will help such to understand Peter's state of mind when the young woman doorkeeper asked him, "Art not thou also one of this man's disciples?" Had he been outside his answer would not the least likely have been a denial, but the over-powering impression on the simple honest-hearted Galilean fisherman by the great hall, the so-called place of justice and judgment, seemed—for the time being—to completely frighten him, and he denied his Lord. Satan was trying to sift him, Luke xxii. 31. At his third denial his Lord turned and looked at him. That look brought him to himself, he went out and wept bitterly. Luke xxii. 61, 62.

If we have in any way denied our Lord Jesus, let us confess our sin. He is faithful and just, and will forgive us, 1 John i. 9, as he forgave Peter.

Next Lesson, Jesus' death and burial. John xix. 17-42.

Report of Meeting.

At Stillwater my meetings were continued four nights at the little hall that Sister Rohrback has seated at her own expense in her home in this city. If you think of or repeat this name in connection with field work pronounce the name Roe-haw. It is a German name and you need a pronouncing directory. I find by years of experience that strangers will mispronounce a name that should be called by the form of the orthographic and by observation that as are [illegible] hopelessly stalled with names like Sister Rohrback's.

What I wish to say about this zealous action of this lady away in this new country, "away" whether you of the east, or we of the Pacific think of the locality. The hall has been freely offered to all "soul-sleepers." It was our first meeting-place, but as it stands some distance from the clump of orthodox church buildings and had been used by the different Advent persuasions that have visited this town, it had not become a popular resort for the multitude, either the religious or irreligious. So one of the most singular events happened in my evangelistic work. I changed to a church building. The Methodist minister South invited me to hold my meetings in his church. Our hall was large for our little audience, but the church would surely bring a good hearing.

I began my work in the new house by speaking from 1 Cor. xii. 13. When I speak from a text this is my favorite, because it brings to my hearers the leading principles of Christianity. The attendance was good, and the attention perfect at this meeting. I was hopeful! This was on Sunday evening. I gave four discourses on "The Truth of the Bible," during the week. On Friday night I closed abruptly.

The minister had received a telegram that his father was dying; the members of his church were not at the meeting, and though about sixteen that do not belong to the Methodist church were present, I did not think I had authority to continue in the absence of the minister, or assume right.

I am now at Brother Dellenbaugh's home, near Avery, Oklahoma. Meetings are announced to begin here Friday night, April 24th.

From here I expect to go on to Texas on my homeward journey.

W. L. SKEELS.

Dear Restitution:

To those of like precious faith these greetings are sent. It was our good pleasure to close a very interesting and profitable meeting with the ecclesia at Springfield, Ohio, April 26. We left them rejoicing over the addition of these worthy ones. It gives me great pleasure to introduce to the readers of THE RESTITUTION the following sisters, viz: Jessie Figh, Jessie Kauffman and Ora Beck. Sister Figh is a sister in the flesh of Sisters Woodbury and Kauffman, and Miller. Sister Jessie Kauffman is a daughter of Brother and Sister Kauffman. Sister Beck is a daughter of Brother and Sister Beck, also a sister of Brother David and Frank Beck, and Sisters Staley and Poole.

We spoke on first day morning on the Trial of our Faith. Our subject was well fitted to the occasion and all enjoyed it. Our purpose was to show them that our heavenly Father tried all who came to him. "That the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory, at the appearing of Jesus Christ." 1 Peter i. 7.

This meeting will be numbered by all as the best for many years. The brothers and sisters of the ecclesia are greatly strengthened and will now renew their vigor. May they continue to walk worthy of the vocation wherewith they are called.

My prayer is that our sisters may make their calling and election sure.

Your brother in hope of eternal life.

D. U. ROBISON.

Report of Labor.

Brother Underwood,

We wish to say through THE RESTITUTION, that Brother W. L. Skeels, of Portland, Oregon, is here holding a series of meetings. He is awakening up a fine interest. It is a place where the orthodox could not get a hearing and if they did the order was so bad that you could not hear what the speaker said. Now, under Brother Skeel's preaching you can almost hear a pin drop. He makes it so plain that little children can understand him. He has had a large attendance all through the meeting, and it is still increasing. Some are coming ten miles although the roads are muddy and the nights are dark. They respect him so well that they place bouquets on the stand, until he has hardly room to lay his Bible. He thanked them for this respect and said it made him think of the time when the desert will blossom like the rose.

One of my neighbors said he did not intend to take any part in the meeting although he came and he and his wife have attended every night, and have had Brother Skeels [illegible] long with them part of the time. Please send them

After meeting is out they all try to see who can get to him first to shake hands, and invite him home with them. He is a man that loves little children and when we see them marching up the aisle with a beautiful bouquet it makes me think of Jesus' language which Brother Skeels has used in his discourse "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

The people have learned that Brother Skeels is preaching the same good news and glad tidings of the kingdom, that Brother Oliver has proclaimed at this place. We can see them coming from all directions, some are waiting for the doors to be opened for preaching.

What the results will be we cannot tell; but the outlook is good. Brother Skeels is very much encouraged in the meeting and his health is improving. Avery is wakening up and wants him to hold a meeting there if arrangements can be made.

Your brother, in hope.

J. M. DEFFENBAUGH.

Quiet Force.

All great forces work quietly. The light, the frost, gravitation, electricity—the greatest natural powers—all work silently. Great effects, great revolutions, follow the action of these forces; but they act noisily. So it is in spiritual things. God's Holy Spirit works silently—nothing works so powerfully. It is the still voice. It is this voice, outward by the ear of sense, that wakes the sleeping soul and calls the dead man to life.

Look at the sun, the moon, the stars consider with what amazing velocity they move, and behold their calmness. Great men are the calmest men. Bustle is not power. Noise is not true energy. The deepest thoughts, and those that move us to the greatest deeds, come in the quietness of our chambers. Thunder may frighten, but the lightning kills. Great revivals of religion are calm. It is awful to see a great congregation in tears, and so silently that you hear only an occasional sob and the clock ticking on the wall. The hardest hearted are still there; where there is confusion and noise, they only laugh and look. "Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord."

How to be Happy.

"Sometimes since," says Dr. Payson, in a letter to a young minister, "I took up a little work purporting to be the lives of sundry characters, as related by themselves. Two of these characters agreed in remarking that they were never happy until they ceased striving to be great men. This remark struck me, as you know the most simple remarks will strike us when heaven pleases. It occured to me at once that the most of my sufferings and sorrows were occasioned by an unwillingness to be nothing, which I am, and by consequent struggles to be something. I saw if I would but cease struggling, and consent to be any thing or nothing, just as God pleases, I might be happy. You will think it strange that I mention this as a new discovery. In one sense it was not new; I had known it for years. But I now saw it in a new light. My heart saw it and consented to it; and I am comparatively happy. My dear brother, if you can give up all desire to be great, and feel heartily willing to be nothing, you will be happy, too."

A Christian for the sweet fruits he bears to God and men, is compared to the vine. Now, as the most generous vine, if it be not pruned, runs into many superfluous stems, and grows at last weak and fruitless, so doth the best man. If he be not cut short of his desires, and pruned with afflictions. If it be painful to bleed, it is worse to wither. Let me be pruned that I may grow, rather than be cut up to burn.

BROTHER, If you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Announcement.

The Twenty-first Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug 22 to 30. Programme later.

EVA L. STEARNS, Sec.

The 50th Annual Conference of the Church of God in Michigan, will be held in Dutton, beginning Tuesday evening, June 2, as voted at the fall conference. A lecture Tuesday evening, Wednesday and Thursday Bible lessons, with Brother Lindsay, of Oregon, Illinois as teacher.

The Conference meeting proper will open as usual Thursday evening, continuing over the next Sunday, with an hour each afternoon for Bible study.

This is the 60th Annual Conference in Michigan, and arrangements are being made to make this gathering very instructive and beneficial. It is greatly desired that every pioneer in the gospel of the kingdom will make an effort to be present and enjoy the sessions which will be set apart especially for them. If there are any brethren in Ohio, Indiana, or elsewhere who was in or know any thing of the '43 and '44 movement, we especially desire their presence or a paper prepared by them. Who does not wish to be present at this gathering and enjoy this religious feast. Remember friends, we are not making this extra effort because the people of Dutton alone need this spiritual uplift, but for the general good and advancement of Christ's cause, not only in Michigan, but in sister states. To this end we hope there may be a general rally to the standard of truth. We would like to have representatives from every state in the union and Canada. They will be received with a hearty welcome. If there should happen to be so many present that improvised floor beds become a necessity—why, the more the merrier. You will enjoy the good gospel truths better the next morning.

We are expecting F. L. Austin, of Fonthill, Canada, as one of the speakers, and we hope other able brothers and sisters will come, determined to give much good, as well as receive much. The board and lodging will be free.

Brother D. Paine, of Mendon, is the Chairman of Committees; six others to fill different committees to be chosen by him. We trust these committees are hard at work, for there is certainly no time to be lost now in preparation. Will these committees, especially the one to arrange program for meetings, please correspond with me, as it will be necessary to announce it a little later in THE RESTITUTION.

No one will wish to miss the able sermons and Bible instruction given by Brother Lindsay. Come one and all.

M. A. WOODWARD,
Conference Sec.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 10-19, and the Annual Conference from August 19-28. When answering questions of lesson 6, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

S. J. LINDSAY.

The yearly meeting of the Church at Fonthill, Ontario, will (D V) begin on May 22, and continue over the following Sunday. The principal speakers will be Brother Austin of Fonthill, and Brother Huggins of Oregon, Ill. An invitation is given to all who may desire to be with us on that occasion. We expect an enjoyable meeting. For further information apply to me at Fonthill, Ont. Box 195.

P. H. BOUK.

To the Household of Faith in Virginia and other Eastern States: The brethren in the Shenandoah Valley of of Virginia have taken the necessary steps toward the organization of a Conference to be held some time during the latter part of August. It is especially desired that we make this Conference a season of rejoicing in the Lord, and thereby strengthen our faith, and spread the good news of the gospel to others.

Furthermore, we are deeply interested in any isolated brother or sister. We want to hear from you, and if it be possible induce you to attend; so write to S. K. Boyer Pelton, Va. or to me at Dillbeck, Va.

VIRGINIA RITENOUR.

The Annual Meeting and Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, will be held at Old Antioch, Marshall Co. commencing Friday, June 12, and continuing over the following Sunday. A competent programme committee is appointed to arrange a programme which will be announced in due time. Shall we all commence now to so arrange our business affairs so we may not miss this meeting. Brethren we anticipate a good meeting. Come all who can and meet with us. Come in the Spirit of the Master, and we shall be blessed.

Remember our Bible School which will begin Monday morning following the close of the Conference. All who can are especially invited to come to the conference and stay with us during this feast of Bible love. Brother Lindsay and other teachers are expected to be with us.

J. H. WILLEY,
Pres. Ind. Conference.

Indiana Bible School.

The Indiana Bible School will convene this year at Plymouth, Indiana, June 15. This will be the day following the June Conference at Antioch. So those coming can come in time for the Conference and stay over the following week. Last year the attendance was about double the previous year, and we hope to have a like increase or more this year. Work is being planned that will be both interesting and instructive to those in attendance. Those coming please notify Mrs Phebe Willey, Plymouth, so that lodging places may be secured.

LYDIA RAILSBACK, Sec.

P. S. The design of those having in hand the entertainment of those who attend, is to provide lodging and the meals free to all. A fund to meet all necessary expenses has already been started, and contributions will be received according to the will of interested friends of the cause.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

If any of the brethren have statistics, facts or figures, showing the good that conference have accomplished, I would be glad to have you communicate with me at Woodstock Va. I would like to secure a copy of same. Perhaps Brothers Lindsay, Allard, Wilcox, Wagoner, Brotherand Sister Woodward, Brother Crozier or Sister Emma Jackman and others who have been active in Conference work can help me out. Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

GEORGE NEAL.

To the Household in Texas,

I shall soon be in Texas. If there are others in Texas and Louisiana who desire me to hold meetings in their neighborhood, they can arrange for the same by addressing a letter to my home address immediately. Write to 420 N. Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois, and my family will forward them to me.

Yours in the Blessed Hope,
W. H. WILSON.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O. Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

AN EXPOSITION OF ISA. VII 14 16.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, Oregon, Ill, designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay 5cts, for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. On such terms every brother and sister in the United States and Canada should read it. Send as above.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The copy for this part of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of Oregon, Illinois. He will edit this section, and all who wish to communicate with him, please address as above, and save delay.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

A Smile.

They might not need me,
Yet they might;
I'll let my heart be
Just in sight.

A smile so small
As mine might be Precisely their Necessity.

—Emily Dickenson.

How Readest Thou? Luke x 26.

'Fix one thing, friend, to read the Bible through,
Another thing to read to learn and do;
'Fix one thing, too, to read it with delight,
And quite another thing to read it right.

Some read it with design to learn to read,
But to the subject pay but little heed;
Some read it as their duty, once a week,
But no instruction from the Bible seek.

Some read to bring themselves into repute,
By showing others how they can dispute;
Whilst others read because their neighbors do,
To see how long 'twill take to read it through.

Some read the blessed Book, they don't know why;
It somehow happens in the way to lie;
Whilst others read it with uncommon care,
But all to find some contradiction there.

One reads with father's specs upon his head,
And sees the thing just as his father did;
Another reads through Campbell or through Scott,
And thinks it means exactly what they thought.

Some read to prove a preadopted creed,
Thus understand but little what they read;
And every passage of the book they bend
To make it suit this important end.
Some people read us—have often thought
To teach the Book, instead of being taught.

When you hear a man praising himself, depend on it he is doing it because no one else will.

SON.—Father, what is the difference between a skeptic and "higher critic?"

FATHER.—A skeptic, my son, is an unbeliever out of the church, and a "higher critic" is an unbeliever in the church.

Not long since we were greatly surprised to hear a friend remark that the world is getting better. In justice to him, however, it is but right to explain that he is very old and feeble, in fact a "shut in," and that he has not been out in the world for many years.

A little error mixed with truth is like a little poison in good food. The food looks nice to the eye, and is palatable to the taste, but it will kill you if you eat it. The pabulum of truth to be wholesome and life-giving must be entirely separate from error.

The last Quarterly Meeting of the Illinois Conference for this year will be held with the Antioch Church, near Chana, Saturday evening, May 16th. All intending visitors are requested to write Brother Jos. H. Williams, at Ashton, Illinois, and he will make all necessary arrangements for your care and comfort during the meeting.

The brethren in Oregon, Ill. had the pleasure of hearing Brother J. H. Willey preach two sermons on Easter Sunday. Bro. Willey was in our city on business, but made it a point to remain with us and preach on the First Day. The Lord bless our brother in his ministry. Come and see us again, Bro. Willey.

In Tom Paine's time the church believed and taught that every word in the Bible was true. Since his day it has been proven false in its cosmogony, false in its astronomy, false in its chronology, false in its history, and so far as the Old Testament is concerned, false in almost everything.—Lecture on Tom Paine by R. G. Ingersoll.

To these eloquent but lying charges against the Bible the "higher critic" shouts a hearty "Amen."

Easter Sunday was our regular appointment at Antioch Church, near Chana, Ill. Mrs. Mary Jane Cable, mother of Sister Melissa Drummond, formerly a Methodist, confessed her belief in the first principles of the gospel, and was clothed in the righteousness of God, as provided in Christ, through baptism into his death and name. All of our brethren were glad to extend to Sister Cable the right hand of fellowship, but her daughter, Sister Drummond, was a trifle happier than the rest of us, if that were possible.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Dear Brother:

We would like for you to preach the funeral of Sister Richard Appleyard, who died today, and whose funeral service will be held at Northfield at one o'clock Sunday. Telephone or wire immediately to W. J. Ellis, 1200 Washington Blvd. Chicago.

GERTRUDE ELLIS.

We are sorry that your letter did not reach us in time for us to attend and preach Sister Appleyard's funeral. But ye make mention of you in our prayers. The Lord bless and sustain the bereaved hearts of her kindred and brethren.—ED.

Brother Huggins.

In the name of the Foothill Church I hereby invite you to be with us May 22 24 next, to take an active part in the speaking at our May meeting. An early reply is desired. Please name subjects.

In behalf of the Church,

F. L. ADKINS.

It is not usual for us to make long preaching tours, but in this instance we have accepted the invitation of our Canadian brethren, and the Lord willing, we will have the pleasure of forming their acquaintance. May God bless and direct according to his own will.—ED.

Brother Huggins:

It has been so long since I have written to you that you may think I have forgotten you are on earth. This is not the case, however, but for a number of weeks I have been very busy getting our new Church building finished, furnished, etc., so that I have taken very little time for anything else. We dedicated our new building March 29th, and we are now getting settled and adjusting ourselves to the new conditions. We have a neat and comfortable house of worship, with nice auditorium for preaching services, and basement with Sunday school room, etc. It will be known as the "105th Street Church of God," and is located at corner of 105th St. and Columbia Ave, Cleveland, Ohio. I trust we may be able to build up a nice little congregation in this apparently good field.

L. E. CONNER.

Brother Huggins:

It is unprofitable to spend time in writing, in printing, and in reading matters of opinion apart from the recorded testimony of Holy Scriptures. Opinions or "views" about this or that are only sources of controversy and contention, frequently ending in envy and incessant wrangling.

"The Birth of the Spirit," Word and Work, vol. 2, No. 12, serves to illustrate my meaning about speculative "views." A few words from Scripture near the close of Brother Corbaley's letter on the next page, is of more value to the student of Scripture than any amount of mere human reasoning and indiscriminate quotations from Scripture, having no reference to the point under consideration. I quote from his letter: "What was the mystery which Paul would reveal? Was it not, 'We shall not all sleep'—something given as an exception to the general rule laid down by Moses and all the prophets?" Better still if the brother had continued to emphasize the immediate succeeding context, giving the disjunctive "but" its full force, thus, "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." Our various opinions about this statement leaves the statement itself unchallenged. It matters little to the believer what I may think about this or that. We have something believable, reliable, trustworthy, and formed by Paul "The testimony of God," 1 Cor. ii. 1. He did not come with what his "views" were, but he came with a message from God, and demonstrated as such by manifestations of spirit power, verses 4, 5. But I must close for the present. I remain as ever in the hope of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. Redeemer and Advocate.

C. W. TOMKINS.

Brother Huggins:

I am sending you copies of ——— in which you will be interested, especially the marked paragraph relative to your reply to a question. Keep the good work going; and may your strength be as your day. While others are busy "sifting out the error," occupied with endless genealogies and strivings "about the law," busy with "foolish and unlearned questions, whereof comes strife," "the man of God" will eat the bread and drink the water of the Word, not despising the blood, for by it his past life of sin is washed clean, Rom. v. 10; Eph. v. 26.

Fraternally yours,

JOS. WILLIAMS.

Brother Huggins:

We were glad to hear that you were well. We are still in the faith, and are stronger in it even than when you were here. If we never meet again in this life, we hope to see you with all the redeemed in the coming kingdom. We would like to hear you tell the glad news once more. The truth is unpopular among Adventists as well as in other creeds. We are hungry for a good paper to read. How is THE RESTITUTION?

Brother and Sister
J. C. WIGGINS.

Our former home was in Eldorado, Illinois, and Brother and Sister Wiggins were among the few Adventists there who came out for the truth under our ministry. The Lord bless and keep them in the name of Christ. We will send you a sample copy of THE RESTITUTION, and you can decide for yourself as to the merits of our paper, Brother Wiggins.—ED.

Christ's Coming in Flesh.

Please give me your exposition of 2 John vii. Does it refer to the first or second coming of Christ. See the Diaglott.—Ed. O. J. Allard.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

For the words, "are entered into the world," the oldest MSS. including the Vatican, read, "Went forth into the world." "They went out from us," writes John in his first epistle, ii 19, and then gives this reason for their segregation. "They were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us; but they went out, that they might be made manifest that they are not all of us." They are called "deceivers" and "antichrist" because they transgressed "the doctrine of Christ." 2 John ix. The Greek word translated "transgresseth" in verse 9, literally means to "go beyond." Their transgression took the form of being wise above what is written; and they not only "went forth" from the faithful brethren, but they "went beyond" the "doctrine of Christ" which he had revealed from the Father during his personal ministry in the days of his flesh. In fact they denied that he had come in the flesh at all. This was one prominent plank in their platform or creed. The word "come" in verse 7, is "coming" in the Greek. To deny Christ's coming in the flesh logically denied God's manifestation in his person; and to deny that God was manifested "in the flesh" (1 Tim. iii 16) in the person of his Son, denied the "doctrine of Christ" in one of its most clearly revealed and important features. The Greek present participle implies both the first and second coming of our Lord. He is called emphatically the "Coming One" in the Greek (see the Greek Testament and Diaglott in Matt. xi 3; Heb. x 37). Those who deny the incarnation of God in Christ at his first coming, and his personal coming again, as do the Russellites, are more than "deceivers;" they are Antichrist.

Faith in the Messiah of Jesus.

"Our salvation hinges on faith—faith in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. Why God requires faith rather than works alone I do not know." These words, or at least their substance, occurred in a Scriptural and forceful discourse delivered last summer by Brother A. J. Eychaner while engaged in evangelistic work in Iowa. A careful study of the Bible reveals the fact that the speaker's statement is undeniably true—our salvation depends on a belief in the promises of God.

At this time when higher criticism, human-paternityism, Universalism, Sabbatarianism, and many other "isms" are occupying the minds of Bible students and investigators, frequently to the exclusion of more important matters of faith and Christian conduct, the question to which those who "seek for glory, honor and immortality" should direct their careful attention should no longer be "What must I do"—but "What must I believe in order to be saved."

We agree that "without faith it is impossible to please God." In other words we cannot be saved without faith; for it is plainly said, "By faith are ye saved."

No one will dispute Paul's definition that "faith is the substance of things hoped for; the evidence of things not seen." Therefore our eternal salvation depends on belief in the promises of God unsupported by visible evidence. We must believe without knowing.

This being true must we not accept the Messiahship of Jesus—his right to David's throne on the basis of faith and not knowledge? If we knew that Jesus was the son of David would it require any faith for us to believe in his right to occupy that throne? Let us again insist that salvation comes by faith, not by knowledge. He is he that believeth, not "he that knoweth" that shall be saved.

At the baptism of Jesus and also at his transfiguration on the Mount there came a voice from heaven saying, "This is thy beloved Son." Let us have faith. Let us believe God's Word, and not try to prove, by human genealogical records, that Jehovah uttered a falsehood by twice declaring Jesus to be his Son, before the latter's resurrection! When we seek to prove God's Word is true we only prove that we possess but little faith, in fact that we are inclined to doubt his veracity.

We must conclude that if Jesus came into being by the natural process of generation no faith is required to induce us to acknowledge his Messiahship, for knowledge precludes faith.

O. ELMER MASON.

The Church of God has the authority to receive and dismiss members from its fellowship, Matt. xviii 17; and it is necessary for peace and salvation that it use this authority. 1 Cor. v 9-13; 2 Cor. vi 14-18; vii 1; Gal. v 9-12; Eph. v 11; 2 Thes. iii 6; 14.

Any congregation, therefore, that does not cleanse itself from fellowship with the unworthy is an enemy of God, and the faithful are warned to come out of it, Rev. xviii 4; Acts xix 9; 2 Cor. vi 17.

A true congregation of God is composed of saints of Jesus Christ (1 Cor. i 2), who walk in the light as God is in the light (1 Jno. i 7), who continues steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine (Acts ii 42; Rom. xvi 17; 2 Jno. x 11), and who speak the same thing, having no divisions among them, united in the same mind and the same judgment. 1 Cor. i 10; Phil. i 27; ii 2, 3. It is the pillar and stay of the truth (1 Tim. iii 15); it teaches the "way of truth" (2 Pet. ii 2), hence it is opposed to, and is opposed by, the sects of perdition. 2 Pet. ii 1-3.

Gold Dust.

Earnest work for Christ is the best means of spiritual culture.

When a man tries to hide his religion, he is wasting time covering up an invisibility.

He who has God's work to do, needs to live in the light of God's companionship.—Horibus.

If we would reap life everlasting in the age to come, we must sow to the Spirit and manifest its fruit now.

True religion is no Sunday dress; God expects us to wear it every day of the week and especially in business transactions.

A preached gospel by men whose life is such as to destroy all confidence in them, is like tendering water in a defiled cup; it disgusts, rather than pleases.

Get to the root of things. The gold mines of Scripture are not the top soil, you must open a shaft. The precious diamonds of experience are not picked up in the roadway, their secret places are far down. Get down into the vitality, the divinity of the Word of God and seek to possess with it all the inward work of the blessed spirit.

Hiding in Christ.

It is said that the deeper waters of the great ocean are never moved by storm or tempest. Though the outer surface may be in the wildest commotion while the terrible storm is raging, yet the deep waters never feel the least thrill of the stormy scene above them. Eternal calm holds them in its strong arms and they rest as peacefully upon their coral bed and long seaweed as though no fierce tempest were beating upon their outer surface.

This is a fitting emblem of what our spiritual lives should be. While our outer life must feel the lashings of sorrow and misfortune, the great silent depths should never be moved by these "light afflictions" which work out everlasting glory. These are golden milestones all along the Christian journey, and if we are guided by these, we shall soon gain the quiet place where we can say: "None of these things move me."

And if we cling to our hiding-place we are forever beyond the reach of danger. Upon Alpine heights there is a sweet little flower which clings so tenaciously to the crevices of the strong rocks, that it blooms on regardless of the fierce, wild storms which sweep over the grim old mountains. After the tempest passes by it is sweeter and lovlier than ever and one would never guess it had felt the breath of the hurricane's power upon its face of sweetness. The secret is, it is shielded by the everlasting rocks—something stronger than itself.

Thus is the life hidden with God and safe in eternal arms; for nothing can ever tear it from its secure hiding-place.

Oh, blessed faith that holds the soul hidden away from the power of this world! Let us in life's blessed morning seek for this dear hiding-place. Then shall we be safe forever while pleased in infinite arms.—Unknown.

Smokers and Voters.

Each year the people of the United States smoke nearly 8,000,000,000 cigars, cheroots, stogies and all tobacco cigarettes, 3,500,000,000 cigarettes with paper wrappers, and consume 3,000,000,000 pounds of smoking and chewing tobacco and snuff. Every day we smoke 22,000,000 cigars and 10,000,000 cigarettes, and either smoke or chew 500 tons of tobacco, all of which costs $500,000. Every minute of the 16 hours a day that we are awake we make ourselves poorer by $600—for 23,000 cigars, 10,000 cigarettes and a half a ton of plug and fine cut. It is estimated that there are 18,000,000 devotees of the weed, or about as many smokers as voters. This estimate is based on the assumption that one person in each six of our population is a puffer of smoke.—Ogle County Republican.

The First Use of Firearms.

The use of firearms in battle must, necessarily, date from that of gunpowder. Although there is but little doubt that a compound of nitre, charcoal, and sulphur was well known to the Chinese as early as the ninth century as an explosive agent, and had been heard of in Europe about the time of the first crusade, it does not appear from history that it was well known in Europe until introduced by Roger Bacon in the twelfth century. It is alleged that firearms, in the shape of cannon, were first employed by Edward III., King of England, in 1327, in his campaign against the Scots. The first well-authenticated use of cannon in battle was by Edward III., in the battle of Cressy, A. D. 1346.

3 Tell the meaning of "offended."
4 What dangers would the disciples be exposed to?
5 Could people persecute others, and think they were doing God service?
6 What was it Jesus told his disciples that caused sorrow?
7 What had Jesus promised them? John xiv 16
8 Why was it expedient that he go away?
9 What does comforting mean?
10 Who is the Comforter?
11 When was this promise fulfilled? Acts ii 4
12 Why would the Comforter not come till Jesus went away?
13 What is the meaning of the world?
14 Webster says "reprove" means to refute, contradict, to blame, or to censure, etc. Is this the meaning of the word here?
15 The Diaglott and Syriac both say "convict." Is this a better word?
16 If the Holy Spirit was to reprove or convict the world of sin, etc. has it accomplished this?
17 Why did Jesus not tell all the disciples ought to know?
18 What does "guide you into all truth" mean?
19 If an instructor guides or leads his pupil to see the truth, does this imply more than merely telling him the truth?
20 What things to come, or coming things, does the Holy Spirit show?
21 What was the mission of the Holy Spirit? John xiv 15 to 17, 26
22 What did the Holy Spirit enable those who received it to do? Acts ii 4 vi 5 to 8, viii 5 to 7
23 What was the object of these demonstrations of power? Mark xvi 15 to 20
24 Do we get the idea from all this that the mission of the Holy Spirit was to confirm, to establish, give assurance of, to render certain, to verify the truthfulness of what these men preached?
25 What were the persons who were possessed of the Holy Spirit told to go and preach?
26 Did they do as they were told?
27 Did the Holy Spirit accomplish the mission for which it was given?
28 Have these persons who were given the Holy Spirit left any record of their words and deeds?
29 Are these records of their words and deeds sufficient for us?
30 Do we need any other guiding or leading to enable us to understand, believe and obey. If that is necessary for us?
31 Are any persons now possessed of the Holy Spirit so that they can do as the apostles did?
32 If any one should claim to have the Holy Spirit now, would we have a right to expect them to be able to do as the apostles did?
33 How can the Holy Spirit guide us now?
34 Are you following the Holy Spirit's guidance in ways of truth?

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian. Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 386 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money over paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a slight stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points: he did not enclose it in an official envelope, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

God is Love.

Why comes this fragrance on the summer breeze,
The blended tribute of ten thousand flowers,
To me, a frequent wanderer 'mid the trees
That form these gay, though solitary bowers?
One answer is resound, beneath, above:
The echo of the voice, that God is Love!

Why bursts such melody from tree and bush,
The overflowing of each songster's heart,
So filling mine, that it can scarcely hush,
Awhile to listen, but would take its part?
'Tis but one song I hear wherever I rove,
Though countless be the notes, that God is Love!

Why leaps the streamlet down the mountain's side,
Hastening so swiftly to the vale beneath,
To cheer the Shepherd's thirsty flock, or glide
Where the hot sun has left a faded wreath;
Or, rippling, aid the music of the grove?
Its own glad voice replies, that God is Love!

In starry heavens, at the midnight hour,
In ever-varying tones at morning's dawn,
In the fair bow athwart the falling shower,
In forest, river, lake rock, hill, and lawn,
One truth is written: all conspire to prove,
What grace of old revealed—that God is Love!

Communicated.

Was Paul Consistent?

Infidels say he was not; that he was a regular time-server; anything to suit those to whom he preached; that he was vacillating and unsettled in mind; that to the Jews he became a Jew; to them that were under the law, as under the law, that he might gain them that were under the law; to them that were without law, as without law that he might gain them that were without law; to the weak he became weak that he might gain the weak; that he was made all things to all men that he might save some; that he circumcised Timothy but did not circumcise Titus, though urged to do so by some of the members of the church at Jerusalem. These statements of the Apostle's conduct are construed to mean inconsistency. This surely is a false judgment concerning the great Apostle to the Gentiles who affirms that he was "set for the defense of the gospel," and who was so particular touching its integrity that he said, "Let him be accursed who perverts or preaches another gospel," and who, when his life work was done, and a martyr's death immediately before him said, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I kept or guarded the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day." 2 Tim iv 7, 8. "To the Jews he became as a Jew that I might gain the Jews." This does not mean that he adopted everything essential to Judaism; only things indifferent, conformity to which would in nowise compromise any principle of the gospel. Paul was accused of preaching circumcision as a condition of justification. To which he replies, "Why do I yet suffer persecution? (of the Jews) then is the offence of the cross ceased." Gal v 11. The charge no doubt was based upon the fact that when he chose Timothy as traveling companion, and fellow-laborer in the gospel, he circumcised him "because of the Jews in those quarters." He refutes the charge of preaching it, and the case of Timothy is the only one on record where he practiced what he did not preach. If it be said that even in this case there was danger of serious consequences to follow; that doubt might be thrown on the freedom of the gospel; that it might be construed into favoring the Judaizing party in the churches, it is enough to reply that indifferent actions become right or wrong according to our knowledge of the probable results; and that Paul was a better judge of the results of Timothy's circumcision than we can possibly be at this distant day. Are we concerned about the effects likely to have been produced on the mind of Timothy himself? There was no risk, at least, lest he should think that circumcision was necessary to justification and salvation, for he was already publicly recognized as a Christian before he was circumcised, and as a companion, disciple and minister of Paul, there was no danger, we would suppose, of him becoming a Judaizing teacher, mixing law and gospel. As for the moral results in the minds of the other Lycaonian Christians it might be well to remember that Paul was carrying with him and publishing the decree of the apostles and elders, announcing to the Gentiles that they were not to be burdened with the yoke of the law, which the Jews were not able to bear.

Luke notices this circumstance in the very next verse to that recording the circumcision of Timothy as it to call our attention to the close connection of the two facts. It seems, indeed, that the very best course was pursued, which a divinely enlightened prudence could suggest. Paul carried with him the letter of the apostles and elders, enjoining that no Gentile Christian should be enslaved to the law. He circumcised Timothy that no Jewish Christian might have his prejudices shocked. In pursuing the course he did, no principle of the gospel was compromised; by it he gained some Jews by the proclamation of the gospel, without being guilty of the charge of preaching circumcision. With him circumcision was nothing and uncircumcision was nothing. The former had no bearing on the question of justification, consequently the salvation of Gentile believers was not imperiled by the latter condition. Purification of the heart by faith in, and obedience to the gospel was everything and all important. No indifferent prejudice was over [illegible] roughly by the apostle.

Another thing to be noti[illegible] connection is that, Tim[illegible] Jew by birth on his mot[illegible] father being a Greci[illegible] ion had for some [illegible] ed although he h[illegible] in the Scriptures [illegible] and grandmoth[illegible] in Paul's da[illegible] circumcisio[illegible] vigorously [illegible] mitting to [illegible] exhorted and argued with [illegible] daizing teachers, to whom [illegible] ently alludes in terms of [illegible] nation. The church at Rome, and [illegible] to Galatia, and others as well were in danger of having their faith subverted by these teachers who insisted that disciples brought in from the Gentiles must be circumcised in order to justification and salvation. This was a constant source of worry to the apostle. Now if the circumcision of Timothy served to conciliate Jewish Christians and thus was [illegible] as means of gaining some from the ranks of unbelieving Jews, why did not Paul circumcise Titus, who accompanied him as a fellow laborer to Jerusalem, on his visit mentioned in his Galatian letter, second chapter? Here, it is said, Paul's course in refusing to Titus what was afterwards granted to Timothy, was inconsistent. Paul was here to report his labors in the gospel among the Gentiles and brought with him an example in the person of Titus, a Greek. The apostles and elders endorsed the independent course pursued by Paul and Barnabas among the Gentiles, and to the discussion that followed, Paul's report, it was decided unanimously by the apostles and elders with the assent of the common membership that those from among the Gentiles, who had turned to God should not be troubled with the yoke of bondage. The sentence of the Conference was embodied in a circular letter to be borne by men of the Jerusalem church together with Paul and Barnabas, Judas and Silas, to the Gentile Christians in Antioch, Syria and Cilicia. So the question of imposing circumcision on Gentile believers was settled by the proper authority. At that Conference there were some false brethren [illegible] privily brought in to spy out the liberty of Paul and his fellow-laborers, that they might bring them into bondage. Paul might have circumcised Titus, and thereby conciliated those Pharisaic Christians, but the consequences would have been serious indeed. Those false brethren thought that Paul through fear of the apostles and elders at Jerusalem would circumcise Titus. Had he done so they would have regarded the act as proof that the great Apostle to the Gentiles deemed it necessary to justification, and thus, backed by apostolic authority they would have gone among Gentile Christian churches and imposed upon them the yoke of the law. The thing in this case was not a matter of indifference. An important principle was involved, justification by faith. It was very different case from that of Timothy, which resulted in gain to the Christian cause. Paul would not do what would thwart his own purpose in visiting Jerusalem, and laying before the apostles and elders his independent course among the Gentiles, with a view to getting the endorsement of the said apostles and elders—and which he did get.

Having shown the consistent action of Paul in [illegible] circumcision, his consistency in the other statements in reference to his conformity to those without the written law, and to the weak and of being "made all things to all men," it logically follows that he was always consistent and whatever he did in conformity with prevailing custom of Judaism or Gentilism he never compromised a single principle of the gospel, for his conformity was with a view to "saving some" and "[illegible] gospel's sake," as he states [illegible] 19-23.

[illegible] a lesson to be drawn from [illegible] tle did in things indifferent applicable to us. What [illegible] under certain circumstances things indifferent, which would compromise [illegible] gospel, but result [illegible] by means of the [illegible] There are those [illegible] ing not enjoined [illegible] or for which [illegible] cripture precedent [illegible] iced; so on [illegible] practice of [illegible] hes under [illegible] inference, the object of which is to spread the gospel by a union of effort, and thereby accomplish what could not be accomplished by a church acting separately, instead of in concert with several churches; though by so doing no principle of the gospel is compromised, but the cause of truth advanced. Some think it decidedly unscriptural, and even subversive of the truth for a church to set about systematically to learn how much each member can pay toward hiring a preacher for a specified time; the latter setting his salary at a moderate living amount. Such a preacher is called, by way of contempt, a hireling, who cares more for filthy lucre than for the cause of the truth. Now I would ask what principle of the gospel is subverted by this agreement or contract between the minister, and the church to which he devotes his time and talent? Without the stipulated amount the preacher must, in order to support himself and family, engage in some secular work or business, and thus be debarred entirely from preaching or be limited to an occasional sermon at most. Hired at a living rate, per agreement he could do good, and advance the cause and save souls. Now suppose the apostolic church did not contract to pay the ministers certain amount, it paid those who labored in word and doctrine some how. The church paid under inspired injunction. The laborer was thought worthy of his hire. If the preacher spent his whole time in the work, the churches paid him for the work done. If they failed to do this, and were able to do it, they robbed him to the extent of what they came short of meeting his needs, and so robbed God under the gospel as Israel did under the law in withholding tithes. Malachi iii 8. If "the primitive preeminence of the gospel had no voice in the matter of how much they ought to receive for their labors, and the preacher of today does have as much to say in the matter of his pay as do those who pay him, then there is just that much difference between the primitive church and the church of today. This difference is not much. I think the apostle, who said the laborer is worthy of his hire, would, if here today, say that does not matter: the laborer is worthy of his hire. Is it under the pro[illegible]gather to set a moderate value on his labor? Can he exercise no such right without incurring divine displeasure? If we say he cannot then we must concede his right to leave the field of gospel labor, if not supported and engaged in secular labor in order to provide for self and family, and not be counted worse than an infidel; and as having denied the faith. This right he will exercise though some stingy old fellow, with his thousands, will say he ought to preach for his railroad fare, meals and lodging. God has obligated some men to preach, and it is just as true he has obligated some men to pay the preacher.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, MAY 24.

JESUS' DEATH AND BURIAL. JOHN XIX 17-24.

Golden Text. Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures. 1 Cor xv 3.

After Jesus had been betrayed by Judas Iscariot, and denied by Peter, he was put through a shameful ordeal—called a trial—by the high priest, chief priests and scribes, then given into the hands of the Romans to be crucified.

There was nothing peculiar in his being crucified, and expiring, but there were other things took place at his death that were more than remarkable.

From the sixth hour—noon—there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour—3 P. M. And, behold the vail of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent. And the graves were opened, and many of the saints arose AFTER his resurrection, and went into the Holy City and appeared unto many." Matt. xxvii. 45-54.

What was the object and value of his death?

"He gave himself a ransom for all," 1 Tim. ii. 6. To be testified—shown, proved—in due time. This is certainly a most wonderful statement.

"Death passed upon all." Rom. v, 12, and no man, however good, or pious, or righteous, up to the time of Christ, had ever been able to offer a ransom for himself, not even for himself, "because ALL have sinned, and come short of the glory of God." Rom. iii. 23. Jesus Christ knew no sin. 1 Peter ii. 22. So when he died and rose again, he had acquired the right to ransom all. Some men and women, more controlled by kindness of heart than by reason, have strained and entranced over the word ALL, but the value of the word is found in the fact that the power of ransom includes all the justified, from Abel—four thousand years before Christ, down to the present time and beyond. Truly the effect of Jesus' death was and is marvellous, and cannot be half told in a Sunday School Lesson.

Referring to the Golden Text, that "Christ died for us," there are thousands upon thousands ready to firmly and warmly assert that Christ died, and just as ready to strongly insist that he went to Paradise and took the thief with him. The one statement positively denies the other, and yet, these thousands manage to convince themselves that they believe both.

Every spiritually-minded, honest-hearted believer has full faith in the fact that Christ died for us. Not because we were real good, better than most people, O no, there are none good, no not one. No boasting allowed. Rom. i. 28. All have sinned.

Another grand effect of the death of Jesus was to reconcile ALL the world to God. 1 Cor. v. 19.

Up to this time—the death of Jesus—there was only one nation with whom God made a covenant, the Israelites. The law given on Mount Sinai was a wall, as it were—to include the Israelites, as a nation, and exclude the Gentiles, as a nation, or nations. The death of Christ broke down this "Middle wall of partition," Eph. ii. 14-16, and put Jew and Gentile on an equal footing before God.

Paul writing to the saints in Galatia says, "The law was our schoolmaster until Christ." Faith—in the gospel—then took place. Gal. iii. 23-29. But although "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life," John iii. 16, very, very few—compared to the many—have taken advantage of the benefits of the death of Jesus, not even many of those who say, Lord, Lord.

Jesus died as King of the Jews, and King of the Jews he is and will be, as well as King over all the earth. Zech. xiv. 9.

He was buried by Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus, both members of the Jewish Sanhedrin that condemned Jesus.

Joseph, the lesson says, was afraid of the Jews. He got over that fear, for he would not consent—with the council, to the death of Jesus. Luke xxiii. 50-53. The two men, by taking the burial of Jesus in their own hands openly declared that they believed on him. The Jews had threatened to expel those who did. John ix. 22. What happened to Joseph and Nicodemus is not known.

Next Lesson, Jesus Risen from the Dead. John xx. 1-18.

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAY 13, 1908.

We give all space to others this week, as the demand is so great for room.

The Chicago daily papers state that Brother Samuel G. Fahrney died at the home of Brother R. W. Thompson Austin Station Chicago, on May 9. The funeral was held on Sunday, and the burial was to be at Ottumwa, Iowa, Brother Fahrney's old home. We shall likely have an extended obituary for next issue. The Editor has known Brother Fahrney since boyhood days, and held him in the highest respect as a friend and Brother. He has been sorely afflicted for some years, but his suffering is now over, and he sleeps, waiting in the silence of the tomb till the gathering angel calls him forth to new life and vigor, where no sorrow ever comes. Lord hasten the day, is our prayer.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 53

And still they come—crowding upon us for a place in our memories—these stalwart soldiers of the cross—dear co-laborers with Auntie Willard, and with Jesus, in pressing forward with their legions against the mighty hosts of error. "And they shall walk with me in white, for they are worthy."

Brother D. T. Halstead was born in Huron County, Ohio, May 23, 1826, 17 years later than was my father and Brother Hugh Barnhill, the latter being born in March 1809, and the former in June of the same year.

Brother Halstead came with his parents to Laporte County, Indiana, when he was eight years of age, or in 1834, two years before father settled on Eel River in Whitley County, and fourteen years after Brother Barnhill came to Marion County. In 1853,—when 27 years of age, he began learning the truth, and in that and the following year, came to a full knowledge of what constitutes the faith of the gospel, and this, with but little opportunity for hearing gospel preaching. I think his parents belonged to the Old Ironside Baptist Church, but whether Brother Halstead had united with that church or not, I cannot say. But however this may be, he had found but "blind leaders," and in endeavoring to follow them had "fallen into the ditch" of scepticism, "being unable to see anything but apparent contradictions in the Scriptures." But being induced to subscribe for "The Millennial Harbinger," edited at the time by Joseph Marsh, Rochester, New York, and D. T. Taylor's "Reign of Christ on the Earth," and also another work entitled "Bible vs Tradition" having fallen into his hands, he was soon able to see that the Bible was "all right." But to "The Millennial Harbinger" "more than all else, was he indebted" in the providence of God "for his rescue." It threw the bright sunlight of truth on the mists of heathenism that had obscured the pages of the Holy Book, and swiftly they faded away. The awful dogma of eternal suffering, was not there. The Calvinistic creed could not be found. God was a real, personal Being, like ourselves, and not an incomprehensible thing, "without body or parts." The dear Savior, was as distinct and separate from the Father in his individual personality as is an earthly son from an earthly parent. Man was not a dual being—a man, within a man; the latter possessed of absolute deathlessness; but a wholly mortal creature, totally unable to save himself from death. In Christ alone was there hope of a future life. We were not airy nothings, whereof "a million could dance on the point of a cambric needle!" to be saved or lost eternally, by virtue of our natural immortality, but personal beings—"living souls,"—to whom, if in Christ, immortality would be bestowed at the resurrection, and if not, to whom the second death would be the penalty for our sins.

This earth, and not a spot "beyond the bounds of time and space," would be our home. It had been deeded to the faithful Abraham, and it was ours by virtue of that deed; the title having been vested in Christ, who is coming soon to "take unto himself his great power and reign." There was consideration in the Book, "When the mists had cleared away."

Brother Halstead is a man a little above medium height, with kindly eyes, pleasant features and courteous ways. As a speaker, he is impressive, solemn, appealing. He does not "handle the Word of God deceitfully," merely to uphold some man-made theory, but takes it as it is written, and uses it as "the power of God," whereby men are to be saved. To him there is no more holy thing on earth, than that same sacred Book, and to treat it lightly, to add to, to take from, or to explain away any portion thereof, he considers as an act of impious rebellion against "the High and Holy One, who inhabiteth eternity," and that, whoever he be that does it, will bring the righteous wrath of God upon himself and will perish.

In 1852,—the same year in which he moved to Rensselaer,—Brother D. T. Halstead preached his first sermon, stepping out to face the public in his own home-town, and going from thence to other points as called by the Master. It was in this same year remember, that Brother J. F. Wagoner, became a herald of the truth,—Brother Hatch in 1863, J. L. Wince in 1856, Brother Hugh Barnhill, 1847-48, Brother S. G. Clark, 1844, and father in 1841.

And now, as the dates of our first conference as given to me from memory by Mr. Wince, have not proven to be exact, I shall be obliged to re-write that part of my story in order to get the 1862 Cicero Conference, which Brother Halstead attended, in its proper place. And that my readers may understand the position of the places where the meetings were held, I will say that Fairfield, in Howard County is only three or four miles from Little Wild Cat, and that Little Wild Cat, and Windfall are not the same place, though conferences held anywhere in the vicinity of the two latter were called by the name of either, just as it happened. Brother S. V. Plummer says "there were two conferences held near Fairfield, one of which was in 1859. Now if the 1862 Annual Conference was at Cicero, 1859 is the date of the second Fairfield Conference, which was the first Conference that Mr. Wince attended after coming into the faith. He went to this meeting in a little spring-wagon, in company with Brother Wm T. Guffin, and Brother and Sister Samuel Andrews. It was held about the middle of August, and the weather, going and returning was delightful.

The ministers, in attendance, were Joseph Marsh, Jacob Shaffer (who sang "We are passing away to the great Judgment Day,") Henry Logan, E. C. Andrus, David Shanklin and Elijah Flamilton, the latter from Warren County. The War being now on and the war-spirit running high in political circles, and Brother Shanklin and Brother Fleming being much imbued with this spirit they took exceptions to the remarks of E. C. Andrus in a discourse, claiming war to be anti-Christian."

"They accused him of disloyalty to the government and sought to have the conference endorse their position, but indirectly, by connecting it with a pending matter before the conference with which this latter was altogether irrelevant. Hence after permitting remarks pro and con thereupon, sufficient to see the purpose of the matter which in its progress was rapidly engendering anything but a Christian feeling," Brother Halstead "immediately ruled all further remarks along that line as out of order. This ruling was not submitted to with good grace, yet rigidly adhered to by the chair, whereupon the affair closed with an earnest appeal from Brother Shanklin.—Mr. Chairman, if you will allow me now, to talk five minutes more, I will never ask to talk again." "But the Chair was unyielding" and as the conference closed, this episode bringing out in strong light Brother Halstead's rare talents as a controlling officer, even over turbulent elements, and also recalling Brother Harding's experience at Hammonton, N. J., when the Willards forgot to set the stars and stripes floating over the school house where he preached

AUNTIE WINCE.

Notes by the Way.

Leaving Attica, Kansas, I took the train for Sharon, Kansas, and was met at the train by Bro. Grant Randolph. He then conveyed me to his home some nine miles distant, near to Nashville, Kan. On arriving there, I was heartily welcomed by Sister Randolph. They have a family of three children, two boys, the third child being a little girl of about three and a half years old.

A few months ago, a serious accident happened to her. Her father was using his mower, cutting down green cane, to cure as hay feed. The child being nervous, and quick, jumped in among the cane, within reach of the long sickle, which cut clear through the bone of one of her legs, and nearly severed the other. She was eleven weeks in the hospital. She can now skip about as lively as ever. The meetings were not largely attended, but nevertheless there was some interest. Many questions were asked for information, by those who were interested. Good results often happen where the congregations were small.

Bro. and Sister Randolph are in earnest in the good work.

O, watchman on the mountain height,
Proclaim the coming day;
Behold the spires of golden fire
Point upward far away.

When the time came to leave, Bro. Randolph conveyed me to Nashville, where I made a start for Carnegie, Oklahoma. Changed cars at Anthony, Kan., where I had to wait all day for railroad connection. Left Anthony, at about 6:30 P. M., for El Reno, Oklahoma. Arrived at about one o'clock, A. M. Took bus for a hotel. At about eight o'clock, in the morning, I took the Magoun Branch of the Rock Island, for Carnegie, Okla. Arrived at about 12:30 P. M. Took dinner with Sister Dorsey and husband, and her father, Bro. Morrow. At about six o'clock, P. M., Willie Chandler, (son of Sister Chandler and husband,) came for me, to take me to their home, near Boise, Okla., some seven miles distant. Meetings were started in this neighborhood. The meetings were well attended all the way through, sometimes to overflowing.

decived this people and Jerusalem, saying ye shall have peace; whereas the sword reached unto the soul." Did the swords of these men pierce through their bodies until it punctured their souls?

This pastor said, man was made a "living soul," but beasts were not, and that this drew a line of distinction between the beasts and man.

See Gen i 30, "And to every beast of the earth, fowl of the air, and to everything that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life (Margin, Heb living soul) I have given every green herb for meat."

See Rev xvi 3, "And the second angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and it became as the blood of a dead man; and every living soul died in the sea."

It was also asserted that hell was a locality in which souls were eternally tormented.

How can hell have a preexistence, when the Bible speaks of both traveling and floating hells? We have an account of a traveling hell in Rev vi 8, "And I looked, and behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death, and hell followed with him."

As to the floating hell, we have the case of a runaway preacher, who almost experienced its torments. He did not want to fill an appointment which God made for him at Nineveh, and in place of that he found a ship that was going to Tarshish, so he paid his fare to go to Tarshish. On the way a great storm arose. The sailors came to the conclusion that this runaway preacher was the cause of the storm, and so the sailors threw him overboard. In Jonah i 17, we read, "The Lord prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah, and Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights." Chap ii 1, 2: "Then Jonah prayed unto the Lord his God out of the fish's belly, and said, I cried by reason of mine affliction unto the Lord, and he heard me; out of the HELL I CRY OF HELL cried I, and thou heardst my voice." Jonah found this hunting hell a very uncomfortable place. I preached one discourse on The Birth of the Spirit, showing that people are not born of the Spirit.

In order to show that they are born of the Spirit now, the pastor quoted 1 John iii 9, "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him; and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." Why cannot he sin? Ans. "Because he is born of God." If this be the case, it will be necessary in order to prove that a person is "born of God," to demonstrate and prove to us that the person claiming to be "born of God," "cannot sin." If this be a test act to who are born of God, how many can you find?

This "out-post" work is a glorious work, but it requires more privation and personal sacrifices than any branch of the evangelical work. I have now been away from home more than four months on this trip. Feeling weary in body, I shall have to return home for a rest of two months. While at home, I can respond to special calls in the surrounding States.

Remember the new Missouri Conference. Let members residing in Missouri send their names and addresses to Miss Sadie Morse, Valles Mines, Mo., no matter whether you can attend or not, we want to communicate with you.

I wish that all who pledged themselves to take The Student's Text Book when printed, would respond as soon as possible.

Speak Gently.

"Speak gently; it is better far
To rule by love than fear;
Speak gently; let no harsh word mar
The good thou mayest do here.

Speak gently to the little child;
Its love be sure to gain,
Teach it in accents soft and mild;
It may not long remain.

Speak gently to the young of one:
Grieve not the care-worn heart;
Whose sands of life are nearly run,
Let such in peace depart.

Speak kindly to the poor;
Let no harsh tone be heard;
They have enough they must endure,
Without an unkind word.

Speak gently; 'tis a little thing
Dropped in the heart's deep well;
The good, the joy that it may bring,
Eternity shall tell."

Egotism is nothing pretending to be something.

Hag. i. 1 has all the letters of the alphabet except q.

The middle verse in the English Bible is Psalm cxviii. 8.

Let another man praise thee, not thine own mouth; a stranger, not thine own lips. Prov. xxvii. 2.

When a son of God marries a child of the devil, he is sure to have trouble with his father-in-law.

Through Sister Hallie Bentley, of Abilene, Texas, we learn of the serious illness of her mother, Sister Minerva Gibbs. Let the faithful everywhere remember our sister in their prayers.

We often hear of religious waves; but this figure of speech is false if understood of Bible religion. A "wave" soon passes by; it recedes to the same level as before. Genuine religion is not like a wave of water; it is like a ground swell.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

Last night I preached on Eccl xii. 7 and tried to make prominent two points: 1st If the spirit is the real man—his thinking part—then it must have been with God before man possessed it; for it "returns" to God. Can any one remember anything that happened when their spirit was with God the first time? If not, when did the spirit man begin to think? 2d None are so radical as to believe that a man can go to heaven without dying. As the devil has the power of death, Heb ii 14, the devil must be the best friend we have! Death is his "power." It is, therefore, by the exercise of his power that enables us to get to glory! This made some in the audience hat their eyes like an owl in the noonday sun. I some times wonder if it is right for us to attack error in such a radical way. If you know of a smooth way to present the truth so that fastidious people will not get offended, please give us the receipt in the paper.

In THE RESTITUTION of April 15th, there is a little article on eating with an unruly brother, signed A Brother. Write a short article on that subject. I am convinced that as a body we will have to declare ourselves for and enforce some kind of a discipline. God bless you in the work.

Your co-laborer.

O. J. ALLARD.

It is a minister's duty to speak God's word boldly, and to dispute, persuade, expound and contend for the gospel, Acts xix 8, 9; xxviii 23, 31; Jude 3. In doing this, however, he must "be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient, in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves." 2 Tim ii 24 25. Some people will "turn away their ears from the truth" 2 Tim iv 4, no matter how beautifully and pleasantly it may be presented. A man of God is bent on doing the "work of an evangelist" verse 5, and he is in duty bound to "preach the word" verse 2, under all circumstances and under all conditions. Reasonable people are not usually offended by an argument however strongly it may be presented, if it is stated along the lines of rhetoric. Every minister should have a good rhetoric, and he should study it constantly. It will teach him how to win people while he convinces them.

Perhaps it is not necessary to write now on the subject of discipline as a temperately written and commendable article on that subject appeared in THE RESTITUTION last week under the title "The Church of God."

SPOTS.

The judgment day will disclose ... the world the rottenness, the ... play and professional scoundrelism ... both preacher and members, who have "stolen the livery of heaven to serve the devil in." Few keep themselves "unspotted from the world." There is but little difference between the church and world only perhaps in out-breaking oaths, swinish drunkenness, or in some of the more tabooed sins. Christians (so-called) can vote and associate with the vilest of scoundrels during a political campaign, some preachers even can make speeches for candidates, and associate with the devil's own—aye, and become candidates themselves, and resort to all the trickery of political scoundrelism in order to be elected to an office under the devil's government.

Disciples are commanded to come out from the world, and have "no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness," and yet, in politics, in social life, in everything, everywhere, preachers, lay members and all, are scrambling for office, spurring themselves all over to be recognized in some worldly institution, some club or society, in some aristocratic phase of life. They will do anything to be recognized as part of the upper crust of society, to be feted, fawned upon by a worldly, rotten brotherhood. You can do more for the cause of morals, they tell us, and more good to the cause of respectability, to reform drunkards, to aid widows and orphans, by joining some worldly society, than by working through the divinely formulated plan—the gospel and the church, and working with God's approbation and supporting grace, depending humbly upon Christ for success in every "good word and work." Cannot the preacher, must he not in the church, thunder in the ears of the church and world, the damnation of the drunkard? Is not "temperance" one of the fruits of the spirit? Ought we take the fruit of heaven, of God, of the Holy Spirit, and give it to the world?

"But," says one, "the preacher cannot do the same amount of good for the cause of temperance without joining a temperance organization." The idea is preposterous, untrue, and lessens the redeeming power and glory of Christ, and gives these to a man-made institution. It is a device of sin and a disgrace to God to admit such a thing. Did Paul have to go outside the church, join a temperance organization, sign a temperance pledge, to make Felix tremble when he reasoned before him "of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come?" The preacher in the church has God authority for his work, the grace of Christ for his aid, the hope of immortality and eternal life for his incentive, and the threat of the extinction of his being, "the damnation of hell," as a warning against disobedience. What higher motive, what more potent threat, has the world to offer? The temperance of the New Testament is as much higher than that of the world, as heaven is higher than hell, as God is higher than man, and as eternal life is higher than the few fleeting moments of earthly life.—J. Malone.

The Christian Virtues—Brotherly Kindness.

In your Godliness supply brotherly kindness. 2 Peter i. 3. Or in other words "in your piety supply love of the brethren." In support of the words of the Apostle Peter I can do no better than call your attention to those of the Savior, John xiii. 34 35. "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another, as I have loved you that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye love one to another." And ... more text in confirmation ... teaching. 1 John v. 20, ... say, I love God, and hateth ... he is a liar, for he that ... brother whom he hath ... he love God whom he ... ...stood the Word of the Kingdom here until Sunday evening April 5th, preaching sixteen discourses. The attendance and attention was all we could ask, and we feel sure of a considerable increase at this point. We were entertained very sumptuously by the brethren and especially at the home of Brother Isaac Fish. We wish to say that Brother and Sister Fish have a family they may well be proud of. Their three oldest daughters have all been obedient to the faith; and we often thought while at their home, What a fine thing to bring up our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. We enjoyed our stay in their home very much.

On Monday, April 6, we drove to Colfax, Iowa, seven miles from Brother Isaac Fish's, where Brother Zimri Stevens had made arrangements for us to begin a series of meetings in the Christian Church. Brother Marsh filled the town Tuesday, but on account of a rain setting in about 1:00 P. M. which continued until after dark we had no services, but expect to begin work tonight, God willing.

Brethren pray for the success of the work. We have received $33.00 from the brethren and have paid out almost $150 for expenses.

Practical Points.

Man's extremity is often God's opportunity.

A questionable amusement should be given the benefit of the doubt, and passed by.

It is a blessed privelege to be permitted to follow in the footsteps of Jesus and his apostles.

There must be a steady pressure against existing conditions to overcome the adversary.

A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesseth, Luke xii 15.

Break your alabaster box of ointment before it is too late. Pour on the oil of gladness. You can cheer some lonely heart or lighten a heavy burden. It may add stars to your crown.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying in other words, that he is wiser today than he was yesterday. —Pope.

"The heart of a true Christian is like the still water in the lagoon. Outside the waves may dash and roar, but all is peace within."

Time to every man and nation
Comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of truth with falsehood,
For the good or evil side;
Some great cause, God's new Messiah
Offering each the bloom or blight,
Parts the goats upon the left hand,
And the sheep upon the right,
And the choice goes by forever
'Twixt that darkness and that light.

VERONICA INNERNON.

Obituary.

Elizabeth Clay Renner was born and lived all her life in Carroll County, Ill. She was born Jan. 6, 1852, and died of paralysis May 5, 1908. She was the wife of Brother Samuel I. Renner, who died Oct. 10, 1895. She was the mother of nine children, most of them in the truth, and now mourn her death in hope. She had been identified with the Church of God for about 15 years.

At the request of Brother and Sister George Renner, we attended and preached the funeral at Plum River Church, May 7th. There was down pour of rain all day, but neighbors and brethren braved the storm to pay their last respects to our Sister. The church was full, many standing during the sad services. We spoke about God's ancient promises, and how Sister Renner's faith was built upon them, and how they involved our living again in the coming Kingdom. May the sweet doctrine of resurrection, and the blessed delights to follow it, sustain and comfort our deceased Sister's children, and keep them all through their present bereavement, and uphold them unto the end.

Cyrus Townsend Brady, the eminent author and clergyman, told at a dinner in Toledo a story about charity. "A millionaire," said Mr. Brady, "lay dying. He had lived a life of which as he now looked back on it he felt none too proud. To the minister at his bedside he muttered weakly: 'If I leave $400,000 or so to the church, will my salvation be assured?' The Minister answered cautiously: 'I wouldn't like to be positive, but it's well worth trying.'"

Evangelist Report.

Our last report closed with the Springfield, Ohio, outlook, December 3, 1907. From there we were called to Troy, Ohio. Sister Eldredge had secured a church belonging to the Dunkard people, in which we were given freedom to speak the words of sound doctrine. This meeting lasted two weeks.

We were ably assisted by Mrs. Robinson. Our audiences were not what we desired, but those who came proved themselves attentive listeners. A minister of the Dunkard church attended our meeting and expressed himself well pleased with subjects discussed.

While there were none who accepted the truth some seemed much interested and promised to search to see if the things spoken were true or not.

We were cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Daily, members of the Christian Church. They are very nice people and we would be pleased to teach them the gospel of the kingdom of God.

While there were no visible fruits of this meeting we trust that the good seed fell in good ground.

After closing this meeting we were conveyed to the home of Brother and Sister Westfall, six miles northeast of Troy where we remained two weeks. We spoke in a school house to small but attentive audiences. Brother and Sister Westfall are earnest workers in the vineyard of our Lord. Their voices are heard in defense of the truth. They keep a good supply of tracts on hand to distribute.

From here we went to Dayton, O., expecting to hold a meeting. We were unable to secure a place in which to speak. While here we were cared for by Sister Luella Stolth.

From here we went to Springfield, and spoke for the ecclesia on the first day. We had made previous arrangements to visit North Lewisburg, thirty miles north of Springfield, where there are a few brothers and sisters. We went to the home of Brother and Sister Frank Bales. We spoke three times in this town, remaining over the first day and broke bread with them. These brothers and sisters ought to set their house in order so that they may be ready when the Lord returns. They need oil in their lamps. We were very cordially received and kindly cared for while here and pray that our visit may do them good.

We next went to Bellefountaine, where we met Sister Venable, the wid-

...to our home in ... Ohio, having been absent from home three months. We very much ... in all our meetings by Bro. Robison.

After remaining at home a few weeks we were called to serve the Cleveland church. We made seven visits there, speaking each first day, morning and evening.

Arrangements were then made to visit our daughter near Mt. Vernon, Ohio. We spoke several times in her house. Some good seed was sown which we hope will bring forth fruit for the kingdom. Mrs. Robison returned home and I continued my journey into the western part of the state and spoke for the church at Brush Creek.

This completes eight months of labor. The results have not been what we had hoped for, but we will leave them with our heavenly Father.

During this time we have delivered sixty discourses and traveled about fifteen hundred miles.

The above is submitted as the second report as State Evangelist of Ohio.

Report of Meetings.

Having accompanied S. J. Lindsay to Southern Illinois in his work with the brethren in Clark and Brown Counties, I desire to say much good is being done, and could our brethren in Northern Illinois see the efforts being put forth, they would double their free will offerings I know.

At one point in Brown County near Camden, two years ago there were three in this faith, and today they number twenty-seven, of most faithful brethren and sisters, being organized into a working body, by the help of Brother Lindsay. I hope in a year or two they will be not only self-supporting, but help to spread the good news in other parts of the state.

Dear ones of like precious faith, do not permit the treasury to go empty for so faithful work.

J. M. CLOTFELTY.

Dear Institution:

Sunday May 3rd closed an eight day meeting at Camden, Illinois, by Brother S. J. Lindsay. The attendance was good though the weather was disagreeable most of the time. On Sunday Mrs. Burbie Shupeman and Miss Alcinda Potts put on the burying name by being buried in baptism. Our class now numbers twenty-seven. Brother Lindsay spoke of this being his fifth visit to this place in the past two years, also that some one had become obedient to the faith each time. We are always glad to have Brother Lindsay with us to teach the good word, that we may grow stronger in faith. We also appreciated Brother Clotfelty's visit very much when he accompanied him.

HETTIE CHAPMAN, Sec.

Brother S. J. Lindsay writes that he expected to be at Roll, Indiana, on May 10, and with the Church in Warren County the fourth Sunday in May.

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

The Twenty-first Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug 22 to 30. Programme later.

EVA L. STEARNS, Sec.

The 50th Annual Conference of the Church of God in Michigan, will be held in Dutton, beginning Tuesday evening, June 2, as voted at the fall conference. A lecture Tuesday evening, Wednesday and Thursday Bible lessons, with Brother Lindsay, of Oregon, Illinois as teacher.

The Conference meeting proper will open as usual Thursday evening, continuing over the next Sunday, with an hour each afternoon for Bible study.

This is the 50th Annual Conference in Michigan, and arrangements are being made to make this gathering very instructive and beneficial. It is greatly desired that every pioneer in the gospel of the kingdom will make an effort to be present and enjoy the sessions which will be set apart especially for them. If there are any brethren in Ohio, Indiana, or elsewhere who was in or know any thing of the '43 and '44 movement, we especially desire their presence or a paper prepared by them. Who does not wish to be present at this gathering and enjoy this religious feast. Remember friends, we are not making this extra effort because the people of Dutton alone need this spiritual uplift, but for the general good and advancement of Christ's cause, not only in Michigan, but in sister states. To this end we hope there may be a general rally to the standard of truth. We would like to have representatives from every state in the union and Canada. They will be received with a hearty welcome. If there should happen to be so many present that improvised floor beds become a necessity—why, the more the merrier. You will enjoy the good gospel truths better the next morning.

We are expecting F. L. Austin, of Fonthill, Canada, as one of the speakers, and we hope other able brothers and sisters will come, determined to give much good, as well as receive much. The board and lodging will be free.

Brother D. Paine, of Meadon, is the Chairman of Committees; six others to fill different committees to be chosen by him. We trust these committees are hard at work, for there is certainly no time to be lost now in preparation. Will these committees, especially the one to arrange program for meetings, please correspond with me, as it will be necessary to announce it a little later in THE RESTITUTION.

No one will wish to miss the able sermons and Bible instruction given by Brother Lindsay. Come one and all.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast our devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing the should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postal money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of the ways named, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is usually abstracted and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and after it is ready packs up an envelope that has to be "plastered" to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Because I Live, Ye Shall Live.

John xiv. 19.

"Because I live, ye too shall live"
These are our Savior's words.
What more can my Christian need?
For He Himself our cause will plead.

Eternal Life! Yes, that's the gift
These precious words contain:
No doubt should ever cross our mind,
That we this life shall find.

Because I live, yes, that's enough;
A promise so divine
Should every thought of fear remove
And kindle every hope and love.

Eternal Life! There's none but Thee
This honor can bestow;
It passeth understanding deep
For that is Thine alone to keep.

Because I live! We'll hold to this,
For we are bold we are
By Him whose word can never fail,
That now and ever must prevail.

Eternal life will soon be ours;
For in His Word He said,
The dead in Christ shall first arise
To meet their Savior in the skies.

Then, Lord, 'tis in Thee alone
That all our hopes rested rest;
We'll trust Thee now, and see Thee soon,
And then Thy life shall be our boon.

Substance of a Discourse.

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." John i 1.

In order to a correct understanding of the significance of the words in this text, the first, and all important thing is to definitely determine, from the testimony given, The beginning here spoken of, the beginning of what? is being spoken of, and therefore when it was? Is the beginning here spoken of, the beginning of all existing things, and that have heretofore existed? The "eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God" exists, 1 Tim i 17, of whom we can have no conception as to beginning, but as first cause, all else has a beginning. Shall we therefore say it refers to the beginning of the material universe, when, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth" and the earth was without form and void" (Gen i 1, 2), Before it was formed for habitation, before he had created man to inhabit it? If so, then it would follow that the Word, (Logos, word spoken) was then God, pre-existent, as a Son, co-eternal with his Father, and yet, "was made flesh,"—was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death. Is such a co-eternal, personal relation of Father and Son a possibility? To say nothing of the many plain statements of Scripture that would be contradicted thereby. You may answer that Jesus said, I and my Father are one, Jno x 30. But he also testifies in what sense they are one, Praying for the disciples whom the Father had given him, saying, Holy Father, keep through thine own name, those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are. Jno xvii 11. If those disciples and Jesus were not one person, neither is Jesus and his Father one person, because the oneness of each was the same as the other. Through the Word given him by the Father, he became one with the Father in mind, purpose and spirit. He said (v 14) "I have given them thy Word." Hence they in like manner became one with him.

In Jno xv 27, Jesus said to his chosen disciples, Ye also shall bear witness because ye have been with me from the beginning. If the beginning here is the same as in Gen i 1, then those disciples also for the same reason, pre-existed, before God formed man, thereby making what is written as to the first man being of the earth earthy (Gen ii 7 and 1 Cor xv 47) utterly false. In the beginning—at the beginning—from the beginning, are phrases used many times in the Bible. To apply such to the same beginning, of the same thing, at the same time, would make the Scriptures a confused mass of contradictions, as all can readily see. Therefore all should see the indispensable necessity of determining what beginning, or beginning of what, is being talked about.

The four narrators—Matthew—Mark—Luke and John, all speak of the beginning, of that which they are unitedly testifying about. By paying heed thereunto, we cannot fail in correctly determining the what, and when? of the beginning of which they bear harmonious witness.

John commences by saying, In the beginning was the Word—the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, as the only begotten of the Father. Jno i 1 and 14. Matthew tells how the Word was made flesh, commencing his narrative by saying, The Book of the generation (commencement—beginning) of Jesus the Christ, the Son of David, the Son of Abraham." 11. Then, tracing the genealogical line back to Mary of whom was born Jesus (verse 16), then says (verse 22, 23). Now all was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord, by the Prophet saying, Behold a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and his name shall be called Emmanuel, which being interpreted is God with us. Thus the Word of the Father sent, and spoken by the angel to Mary became flesh. Thus also, was he the begotten Son of God, and thus also the (Logos) Word spoken was God (mighty One), in undeveloped germ, (Word) as the mighty oak is contained in the germ of the acorn that develops into the tree. This child, thus begotten, inherited the name of his Father—God. Heb i 4. Also in verse 8, 9 in verification of this the prophecy, in Psa xiv 6, 7 is quoted and applied to this Son, saying, "But unto the Son he saith, Thy throne O God, is forever, and ever; a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness and hated iniquity: therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with oil of gladness above thy fellows." This name, thus he inherited (God) is not exclusively applied to the eternal one, but sometimes to the angels (elohim) and other mighty ones. But there is another name that is exclusive, designating only the eternal One, which name was never applied to, nor claimed by the Son, viz: Jehovah. Never used in the plural—applicable alone to the Most High, as written (Psa lxxxiii 18), Whose name alone—(none other entitled thereto) is Jehovah, the Most High over all the earth. Having shown conclusively from the testimony of John and Matthew, that the beginning of Jesus Christ, and the things inhering in him was the beginning referred to by them, and how the Word was made flesh, and how the Word was God, thereby showing the complete harmony of the Scriptures relating thereto, and thus refuting them of teaching the many mystical absurdities, imputed to them, from the quite popular misconception of what beginning, and when it was, that was being talked about, The other narrators—Mark and Luke are explicit, fully corroborating the testimony of John and Matthew, as to what beginning. Mark commences by saying, The beginning of the gospel (good news) of Jesus Christ, the Son of God" (Mark i 1) and Luke, commences by stating, For as much as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things most surely believed among us, even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eye witnesses, and ministers of the Word. It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding from the very first (the beginning) to write unto thee.....that thou mightest know the certainty of those things.....(Luke i 1-4). In doing which, he testifies that God sent the angel Gabriel to the Virgin Mary, saying Fear not Mary; for thou hast found favor with God, and, behold, thou shalt conceive .....and bring forth a Son and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Verses 26-35. Thus, the beginning of the child Jesus is established, and God's purpose, through him as the seed of David, and of Abraham, clearly alluded to, as more fully unfolded, by the Prophets of old, the Son, and the apostles, thereby giving us a foundation for intelligent faith in Christ, which cannot be shaken when fully comprehended. But time forbids further continuation of the subject at this time, but if permitted will conclude the subject by another discourse on next Sunday.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, MAY 31.

JESUS RISEN FROM THE DEAD. JOHN XX. 1-18.

Golden Text. "I am he that liveth, and was dead, and, behold, I am alive forevermore." Rev. i. 18

The story in the lesson shows that none of the followers of Jesus thought of him rising from the dead. Mary Magdalene said some one, or they—had taken him away. Peter and John thought so too. On seeing the empty tomb they went to their homes. Mary remained weeping. She saw the angels. Then Jesus made himself known to her, and asked her not to stay by him, but haste and tell his disciples.

Several times Jesus told his disciples that certain things could be done and would be done "After I am risen again." Matt. xxvi. 32. "Tell no man till the Son of Man be risen from the dead. And they wondered what he meant." Mark ix. 9, 10. That he could, and did raise others from the dead they knew; but that he would rise himself never entered their minds.

The resurrection of Jesus has been doubted, contested and denied ever since the angel of the Lord said "He is risen, as he said." Matt. xxvii. 2-7.

To the great majority of "religious" people the raising of Jesus from the dead is of no vital importance, believing, as they do, in the old tradition of going "to heaven when they die, to those who die as the thief on the cross "This corruptible must put on incorruption" 1 Cor. xv. 53, a resurrection is the sine and only source of eternal life, concerning those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. "These all died in faith," Heb. xi. 13. All from Abel to Moses, also judges, kings, and prophets died in faith of a resurrection.

To those who truly believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, it is a great joy to read "Because I live ye shall live also." John xiv. 19. And again, "This is the Father's will that of all he hath given me, I should lose nothing; but should raise it up again at the last day." John vi. 39, 40.

Jesus had preached the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, and taught his disciples to preach it. Luke viii. 1. Because of this and many other things he did, they thought he might have redeemed Israel—restored the kingdom, Luke xxiv. 25. When he was put to death, their hope died. His first appearance among them with many proofs of his resurrection did not restore their hope of the kingdom. A number of them—not knowing what else to do—went fishing. John xx. 26-31; xxi. 1-14.

He was seen of them forty days, during which he further instructed them concerning the kingdom of God. This fully assured them that he would restore the kingdom to Israel. The question was now WHEN. He said, "It is not for you to know the time," Acts i. 1-8. "The gospel of the kingdom must first be preached to all nations." Matt. xxiv. 14.

We saw by last lesson that the death of Jesus brought great favor from God to all the world, but sad to state the world has, up to date, clung to their false doctrines, completely failing to take advantage of the boon offered by God, and secured to them by the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Some years after Jesus was raised from the dead, Peter writing to the elect said, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to his abundant mercy hath begotten AGAIN us a living hope—or hope of life—by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." 1 Peter i. 1-3.

The preaching of the resurrection of Jesus was a vital doctrine. Paul, in 1 Cor. xv. proves that the value of the faith of every son and daughter of the Lord Almighty, 2 Cor. vi. 18, depended, and does depend on the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. "If Christ be not risen, our preaching is vain, and your faith is vain"—useless, "and those that are fallen asleep in Christ are perished"—never to rise again.

The apostle shows that there are abundant proofs of the resurrection of Christ. He was seen of the twelve apostles, then by more than five hundred brethren at once, and Paul himself saw him. Yet, there was some in the church at Corinth that said there is no resurrection of the dead. 1 Cor. xv. 1-18.

The story in the lesson shows that none of the followers of Jesus thought of him rising from the dead. Mary Magdalene said some one, or they—had taken him away. Peter and John thought so too. On seeing the empty tomb they went to their homes. Mary remained weeping. She saw the angels. QUESTIONS.

1 Is Christ's second coming to be literal or spiritual? Give reasons for your answer.

2 Does his coming mean death? Insert "death" in the passages which speak of his coming and see how it will apply.

3 Notice in your study that Christ's bride is caught up to meet him in the air, 1 Thes iv 17, and again that his saints shall come with him, 1 Thes iii 13. So there are two stages of this second coming. Call the first the "Rapture" which means to be caught away; and the second the "Revelation" meaning appearing or shining forth. With this thought in mind study the various texts on this subject and determine whether they refer to the Rapture or the Revelation.

4 What will occur on the earth between the Rapture and the Revelation. Dan xii 1 Matt xxiv 21.

5 How much time will elapse between the Rapture and the Revelation?

6 What will happen when Jesus comes with his saints? Texts? Is this coming a thing to be dreaded? What mistaken ideas have many people who do dread it?

7 What signs have we that this coming is near at hand?

8 What signs of his coming have already been fulfilled? What one is now being fulfilled? Matt xxi 29-30. Explain the budding of the fig-tree.

9 Will the world see Christ at the Rapture, or will this be known only to the bride?

Dear Bereans:

This last topic, "Jesus is Coming," —the very Key-note of our hope—is such a great big subject that I could not possibly outline it for two weeks work. Let me suggest that you spend the rest of the Berean year working on this grand theme. Use your concordances and marginal Bibles and trace out carefully all ideas suggested in the outline. Those of you who have the little book "Jesus is Coming" will find it very helpful.

Our Corresponding Secretary reports that many of you are sending her excellent work. May God bless your efforts.

The time for the Bible Schools is near at hand. Please come. We need you and want you. You will have a good time, and a profitable one. Come and make plans for another year's work.

Yours, in the Master's service,

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John P. Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one [illegible] the

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAY 20, 1908.

MANUSCRIPTS will begiven attention as fast as possible.

BROTHER J. L. Wince spoke for the Plymouth Church last Sunday, both morning and evening. In the morning the discourse was concerning the mission and work of the Holy Spirit, and in the evening the Unpardonable Sin. Both sermons were instructive and edifying.

THE announcement of the Indiana Bible School is attracting attention, and several have signified their intention to attend. Let all come who can as room will be provided for all, and the more attending the better the results will be. Brother Lindsay will be the main instructor, and this insures interest all the time.

ATTENTION is called to the fact that we have said nothingabout the death of Prof. C. A. L. Totten, which occurred April 12. One reason why it was not mentioned was that there was an uncertainty about the reports at the time. After the fact of his death was learned the exact datewas not known by us. Most of our readers know of the work done by Prof Totten, and how he freely used all his means and strength in publishing his ideas of truth.

SISTER Woodward writes sending some additional information about the Michigan Conference which will be given next week. She wants all to bring their Bibles, and may who have copies of the Jubilee Harp bring that sure. Then attention is called to the trains. Get to Grand Rapids Union Station in time to take the 4 o'clock train for Dutton on the Michigan Central, as the 5 o'clock train does not stop at Dutton, and the next train is 11:30 at night. The friends at ton are anxious to have a good dance, and a good meeting, and t they will realizeall they hope eading THE RESTITUTION one of irst articles I hunt up is "The y of a Happy Christian Life." I mpliment the management of the valued RESTITUTION, for ability and success, in being able to give us readers, such a variety of interesting letters, and articles, I and others would be pleased if Sister "Aunty Wince" should be able to give us a sketch of the life and work of Bro. Richard Corbaley, now deceased, who did such successful work on the Pacific coast. It would be read with great interest on the coast. These reflections have called up the "heading" of this article, and the following facts: At an early period of the organization of the Northwest Conference Bro. Richard Corbaley came from eastern Washington and attended our Conference and assisted me for a period of time in evangelistic work. I shall never forget the candid, dignified manner in which he would present his Bible thoughts. One sentence became engraven in my memory: "We only can tell what the Bible teaches by what it says." I presume I have repeated that same sentence to hundreds of people. I could not originate a more expressive way of interesting the mind in what the Bible teaches in so many words.

It was of him that I learned this style of argument, Ez ii 27, I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more until he comes whose right it is, and I will give it him. "The throne of Israel would be overturned until—now "until" is a bridging word that would reach from the time of the overturning to the time that Christ shall receive the throneand kingdom." This argument made in such cool dignified way that the unreasonable had to follow the reasoning, and the mind that was informed in the use of the bridging word would of its own accord think of and apply theargument the bridging-word argument to Rom xi 25, Blindness in part has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. Jesus words, Luke xxi 25, And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. Still watch "the bridging word, "Acts ii 34, ... said to my Lord, Sit thou ... foes thy footstool. When the bridging-word is crossed he will be here and his foes will be made his footstool. Think of the conclusive argument and inevitable conclusion as well as the Elder who knew so well how to give it.

W. L. SKEELS.

Dear Restitution:

Will you please be so kind as to send me a copy of No. 12 and 13 of RESTITUTION, as I was away from home at the time those copies came attending Conference at Waterville, Wash., and in some manner I have been unable to find them since I have returned. I miss them so much and will thank you very much for the trouble in advance. As I am isolated from my dear church at Cashmere, Wash., and have a great deal to contend against, as I am the only one in our family that has the one faith. We have an only child, a daughter, married and living in Seattle, Wash. I wish to make a few remarks that I deem not out of place. As I see so many good letters in THE RESTITUTION by different members, and seeing their names so often makes me think that we are all one family in Christ Jesus. Quite a number of years ago I heard Elder Richard Corbaley preach two sermons at Mission, Wash., now Cashmere. The first I had ever heard of the Church of God. Of course I did not take to his views very kindly, as I had been brought up in the German Lutheran church, and thoroughly instructed in the catechism, and as I supposed knew quite a bit of Bible by learning so much catechism. At that time it seemed to me that Elder Corbaley was preaching very much false doctrine, according to my view of knowing the teachings of the Bible, or as I had been taught, so I mustered up courage to go to my neighbor Mr. Brakey, where this preacher wasstopping during the meeting, and givehim some pointers on baptism, especially infant baptism. Well, hekoon wound me up in good shape, but I was in no mood to learn the doctrine he held, as I supposed, blind as I was, that I was right my way. But I remembered a few things he said, and one of them was, Where can you show me in the Bible that infant baptism takes the place of circumcision. Well, I had always been taught that from the Lutheran pulpit and of course I was sure it must be in the Bible, but when I began to search I found it wasnot there, also many other pulpit phrases. This shows how people are being duped. Some years later I was finally persuaded that I was in the wrong, and being invited by Bro. A. S. Mills' family at Wenatchee to come and hear the sermons preached as they were having protracted meetings, which I did. Elder N. D. Titchenal being the preacher. Also by this time being more ready and willing in mind to receive the truth, it came to me so forcibly I could not resist unless I became an open rebel before God. I was satisfied it was God's truth that he preached, and after hearing seven discourses, I at once accepted it as my hope and salvation for this life and the life to come, and before I returned home from those meetings I was baptized into Christ by Elder N. D. Titchenal on the 31st of Jan., 1905, in the beautiful Columbia River, at Wenatchee, being carried to and from the river in Elder Wm. Mills carriage. I don't think any one was ever more happy than I was in the days that followed. When I returned to my home at Cashmere I felt the need of spiritual food, to continue the growing that had been started. I at once made arrangements to have Bro. Titchenal and his good noble wife, and as many members as could come from his Wenatchee congregation come and hold a series of meetings, which lasted two weeks. At this time there were no new converts made, and I began to think the meetings and sermons had not been fully understood or appreciated by those who had attended them, but suppose I was too anxious. But I for one did not feel like giving up the fight for the truth, as there were several families there that belonged to thefaith throughout the neighborhood so we suggested to organize a Sunday school, which we did at the close of the meetings, Mar. 1905, with Bro. Fred Patterson as superintendent, myself assistant superintendent, Sister Ethel Nichols, secretary, and Sister Maude Patterson, treasurer, and all concerned felt that the good work had begun in a small way, and each one went on their way rejoicing. We held Sunday School in different halls and in a tent part of the summer time. Then in July, 1905, we held a Conference meeting of central Washington, at our town, and at that time arrangements were made and free will offerings were given to buy a church lot, which was done at the close of Conference, the lot costing $225.00, which was paid in cash and a balance left to our credit. Then after this a subscription was raised to build the church, which was done after the manner of God's plan, which is free will offerings. Elder Wm. Mills, at Wenatchee, having one list and myself the other one. We soon had several hundred dollars in our treasury, and in a year and a half from that time the church was built, but in the meantime other sects scoffed at us and tried to laugh us to scorn, saying, That little congregation can't ever build a church, because they do not know how to raise any money, no shows or fairs or socials, but alas! they do not know God's ways, for our God is rich in all things, and we trusted in him and he helped us, and weare neither aliens nor beggars. That church was built by faith in God and prayer, and free will offerings. Oh, then we were all so happy and thankful, knowing assuredly that God had answered our prayers, and crowned our efforts with loving kindness and tender mercies.

The church was organized at my home the winter of 1905, by Brother Titchenal, and we had preaching once a month. The officers were, Elder Bro. Fred Patterson, Deacon, Bro. Louis Titchenal, Trustees, Bros. Patterson, Titchenal, Nichols, Alexander and Sister Mary Titchenal, the preacher's mother, Secretary, Sister Cora Titchenal, Deaconess, and Treasurer, Sister T. R. Freer. We were a happy little band, and harmony and good will ever prevailing, and from the very first baptisms and additions to the church, and five have been baptised this year by Elder A. L. Corbaley, and others are yet pending baptism. Oh! it is a blessed work and a great blessing to those who know what they believe, and can give an intelligent answer of the hope they have, it is worth more to me than all else in this world. I was elected Superintendent of the Sunday School after the first year of its organization and served until we moved to this place last February, except the winter of 1906, when we lived in Seattle, Wash. I felt so lost and alone without my dear church and Sunday school. Please pray for me that I may be able to remain faithful to the end of my life. If you have any helps or literature for isolated members please remember me, as I am nearly 100 miles from any of our churches, but I cannot give up, the harvest is great and the laborers few. I am at present distributing some tracts and telling the glad tidings to all who have an ear to hear of the grand and glorious kingdom soon to come. I will be forty-five years old the 26th of this month, have been an invalid more or less for twenty years, my health at present is not good, suffering from heart and kidney trouble and nervousness. I am striving to walk in the straight and narrow way, for I know the dear Lord will not forsake his saints if we hold on to him and try to do our Father's will, but so few are willing to bear the good news in these last days, that it is like plucking the brand from the burning, those that turn from the evils of the world. I will also mention this, I heard Bro. and Sister Woodward preach when they were at Cashmere, formerly called Mission, but that was before I had accepted the truth. I can remember Brother Woodward saying he did not want to go to heaven if he had to go throughout a Methodist hell to get there. I thought that was pretty rough language, but I did not understand what he meant at that time. Bro. and Sister Wm. Mills are very dear good people, and I am ever thankful to them for helping me to find the truth as contained in the Bible, hoping they may have many stars in their crown and God's blessings for every effort in this life and the life to come.

I rejoice to say the congregation at Cashmere is doing well. They have a grand young people's society in the church, and they conduct their meetings every Sunday evening, and every one so far from the least to the greatest that has been asked to lead has done so without being asked to be excused, is not that a grand record and some are very young. I can but bless God for such works as these. My prayer for them is that they may ever continue in the way they have begun and God will wonderfully bless them. Preaching services are conducted every two weeks by Bro. N. D. Tuchenal and Bro. W. Perrine, from Malaga, Wash., alternately. There are a few scattered members here, I have been trying to gather them together and have a Bible ... for my efforts have failed, hoping God willing to have better success in the near future, as I do not wish to become a stumbling block to any one, but to let my light shine. Brethren, pray for us in this work, God will hear and answer prayer, that we might be strengthened in the faith and be prepared for the life to come, where there will be no more parting, nor tears, nor sorrow, nor sickness. Let us ever be watching and waiting for our coming King, that we may have an abundant entrance into the holy city when he comes. This letter is quite lengthy, but hope you will excuse me for taking up so much of your valuable time to read it, hoping to meet you all some day face to face.

I remain your grateful sister in the one faith.

LYDIA H. PIPER.

Brother Underwood,

Inclosed please find money to pay my subscription on THE RESTITUTION. I certainly cannot do without the dear old paper. It is a valuable help to any one that will read it.

Yours, in the Blessed Hope.

M. F. SMITH.

Dear Restitution:

Kindly renew subscription to THE RESTITUTION for another year. Mother says, "It is the most welcome visitor that calls at our home, and she would not want to do without it." This is expert testimony, for mother has been a believer in, and teacher of, "The Faith" for over fifty-five years.

May your influence grow and extend. Sincerely,

ALEX. B. DONALDSON.

Dear Restitution:

Inclosed please find money for renewal to our paper, am sorry that I could not send it sooner.

I, for one, want to be a follower of my blessed Savior till he comes, that I may receive eternal life; for it says in Rom. vi. 23, "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Let us be faithful.

Our hearts are sad and lonely
We are clinging for a home,
Where sorrow ne'er is known.
There friends we hope to meet,
When Gentile times are o'er.
'Tis then we hope to meet you
Where death is never more.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

NINA J. VENABLE.

Editor Restitution:

As my time is over due I will send money for another year.

Dear brothers and sisters scattered abroad, Greeting. I am glad to hear through our beloved paper the love and respect for the glad tiding of the gospel. I am one of the isolated ones. I have no one to exchange or converse with on the hope of the gospel.

A thought on the parables of our Savior. I find that the apostle did not try to give any explanation of any of the parables, so I think we have no right to pin to any of them, that the Savior did not explain to the disciples we find that without a parable he spoke not unto the people. The parable of Luke xvi. is one not explained, also the kingdom within you is another. Undoubtedly some of the pharisees and sadducees will be in the kingdom. Our Savior said they should see Abraham and Isaac in the kingdom. I think we have no right to try to explain any of the parables that the Savior did not enlighten them on.

Your brother, waiting for the coming of our Lord and Savior.

DAVID RENNER.

Dear Restitution:

I enclose $1.50 Post Office Order to renew our subscription to THE RESTITUTION for another year. We would not like to do without the dear old paper. I am so glad that there are some that are childlike enough to cling to God's Word and believe that he sent his Son into the world to save sinners.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

MRS. CARRIE E. HILSABECK.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Poore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Gentleness.

The power of gentleness is one of the unmeasured forces of human life. "A soft answer" will pierce deeper than a "two-edged sword." It is more natural, under provocation, to use the latter; but the use of the former is in imitation of him, who "when he was reviled, reviled not again." Gentleness gives a man power with his fellowmen. It increases the love of his friends and disarms the anger of his enemies. He who would serve his generation well, must possess it. It is to be learned in the school of Christ, whois our pattern in this as in every grace. "Thy gentleness hath made me great."

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Obituary.

Our beloved brother, Samuel D. Fahrney fell asleep in the Lord on Saturday, May 9th, at 10 o'clock at home of Brother and Sister Thompson in Austin, Chicago, Illinois.

Brother Fahrney was born in Washington County, Maryland, December 21st 1842. He was a son of David and Barbara Fahrney. When he was fourteen years old the family moved to Ogle County, Illinois. In 1872 he was married to Sister Elizabeth Boyes at Geneva, Illinois. The fruit of this union was two children, Florence K. Fahrney and Charles E. Fahrney, both of whom survive him.

In 1876 Brother and Sister Fahrney moved to Pittsview, Iowa, where Sister Fahrney died May 3rd, 1879, after a brief but happy married life. In 1898 Brother Fahrney moved to Chicago, where he remained until the day of his death.

Brother Fahrney was baptized into the all-saving name of our Lord Jesus Christ on Saturday, September 9th, 1865, and has since remained a consistent Christian. When he came to Chicago, he united with the church in that city and was an active member of the congregation, serving for several years as one of the Presiding Elders. He was also a member of the Board of management of the Illinois State Conference of Churchesin Christ Jesus for nine years, until his failing health compelled him to relinquish active business and church work.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of the brethren have statistics, facts or figures, showing the good that conferences have accomplished, I would be glad to have you communicate with me at Woodstock Va. I would like to secure a copy of same. Perhaps Brethren Lindsey, Allard, Wince, Wagoner, Brother and Sister Woodward, Brother Crozier or Sister Emma Jackman and others who have been active in Conference work can help me out. Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

GEORGE NEILL.

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

EBENEZER—1 Samuel vii 12.

"As Ye Would."

If I should see
A brother languishing in sore distress,
And should turn and leave him comfortless,
When I might be
A messenger of hope and happiness—
How could I ask to have what I desired
In my own hour of bitterness supplied?

If I might share
A brother's load along the dusty way,
And I should turn and walk alone that day—
How could I dare,
When in the evening watch I knelt to pray,
To ask for help to bear my pain and loss,
If I had heeded not my brother's cross?

If I might sing
A little song to cheer a fainting heart,
And I should send my lips and sit apart,
When I might bring
A bit of sunshine for life's ache and smart—
How could I hope to have my grief relieved,
If I kept silent when my brother grieved?

And so I know
That day is lost wherein I fail to lend
A helping hand to some way-erring friend.
But if I show
A burden lightened by the cheer I lend,
Then do I hold the gold-en hours well spent,
And lay me down in sweet content.

CREED.

"I do not like The Restitution, it has a creed in the northeast corner." These words were recently penned by a brother in a letter to us. His statement caused me to ask, Is it criminal to have a creed? Is the little word "creed" dangerous? What does it mean? It is from the Latin credo, is found at the beginning of the Apostles' Creed, and means "I believe." "A definite summary of what is believed" says Webster; "a brief exposition of important points, as in religion, science, politics, etc. especially a summary of Christian belief, a religious symbol; as the Apostolic Creed."

After all the word is harmless. It just means you believe something, and that you are able and willing to give "a definite summary" of your faith. Even politicians have platforms which contain "a brief exposition of the important points" for which they stand committed and pledged. And so it is with science and religion. The same man does not live who has no creed. Faith is the assent of the mind to "a definite summary of what is believed." Belief is not an invention of men; it is the constant and essential act of the human mind. The mind must believe something. Even the skeptic has his creed. The man who does not believe in religious creeds, believes in something. Our brother who objects to the creed in "the northeast corner" of The Restitution, has a creed in the southwest corner of Something, Somewhere. To say you have no creed is to say you have no belief, and to unconsciously confess you are an unbeliever.

We remember once when the Christian Disciples were holding a revival meeting in our home town, that the minister denounced creeds in very intemperate language. This sect is very bitter against creeds. He preached one day on them, and represented that they were very dangerous, unscriptural, etc., and yet during his sermon he said "I believe" twelve times. He not only said he believed twelve times, but he gave us "a definite summary" of what he believed on faith, confession, repentance, and he did not forget to bring in baptism good and strong.

Now "a brief exposition of important points" in one's faith is just as much a creed if spoken as if written. The Campbellites are the worst creed-bound sect in all Christendom, yet they have no written creed. I asked this minister if it was really true that his church had no creed—no belief? Are there no doctrines which you require people to believe? Nothing essential—not a thing? "Our church has no creed," was his reply. Only yesterday three sinners applied to you for baptism, and you asked them "Do you believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God?" They said Yes. Suppose they had said No, would you have baptized them? "To be sure No," he answered; "we do require belief in Christ's Sonship; the whole gospel is wrapped up in that." Never mind what is "wrapped up;" look at what is on the outside. You do have a creed. "Call it what you must," said the preacher, "it is only a little one."

The last statement made by the Campbellite preacher brings to my mind a story which I here insert for illustrative purposes: A nice family once engaged a girl to keep house for them, with the understanding that she was a pure, good girl. After a while the mistress of the home learned that she was a bad character, and the mother of an illegitimate child. "Is it true" she asked the girl "that you are the mother of an illegitimate child?" "Yes, I am" replied the girl "but it is only a little one!"

So it is with creeds—some people wax warm in denouncing them, but when you run them down you find they have a creed themselves, though it may be a little one.

Infant Sprinkling Proved by Inferences.

A Methodist Bible Class had one member who doubted the truth of sprinkling infants. He became interested in the subject, and became so doubtful of its being Scriptural, he came to be known and was usually spoken of as "the doubter." One day a happy thought struck the teacher, "We will," said he to his class, "just fix the doubter's doubts. Next meeting I require every one in the class to bring with them a text of Scripture to prove that it is Scriptural to sprinkle infants. Our brother's doubts will be dispelled when he looks at the evidence all in a pile."

The class convened at the usual hour, and the teacher began to call on the pupils for their texts. The first one read, "Suffer little children and forbid them not, to come unto me." Matt. xix. 14. "It is not direct proof," said the pupil, "that Christ baptized the children that were brought to him, but we infer that he did." "But," interrupted the doubter, "Jesus baptized not, but his disciples," John iv. 2, and so if the people wanted their children baptized, they took them to the wrong person." The teacher then cleared up his throat and muttered, "The point is only an inference; we pass on to stronger and clearer proof; next." The second pupil read: "And when she was baptized, and her household—and her household—and her—" Acts xvi. 15, "While the text does not have a direct bearing on the question," commented the scholar, "yet it is easy to see that as her household was baptized, it is probable that her household embraced infants. We infer that it did." "But," broke out the doubter again, "the household might have been descriptive of the children after they had become grown men and women. I infer that this is the case. Or we might infer that Lydia was an old maid, and that her household embraced the agents who were selling her purple in Thyatira. See verse 14." So the class went on inferring and guessing until it came the doubter's time to read, and when the teacher asked him if he had a text to read, he surprised them all by saying he had, and their surprise increased into amazement when he read, "And Balaam rose up in the morning, and saddled his ass." Numbers xxii. 21. After blushing and coughing the teacher said in a kind of confused way: "Why, that verse has nothing to do with the subject; do you think it does?" to which query the doubter replied: "It does not approach the question directly, but we are able to build several inferences on it. 1. The first one may be stated in this form: Most men marry; therefore it is a possible inference that Balaam was a married man. 2. As a rule people are blessed with offspring in the married state; therefore it is a probable inference that Balaam had children. 3. And finally it is a likely inference that when the text says, "Balaam rose up in the morning," it means that the children were preparing themselves for Sunday School; and that Balaam "saddled his ass" to take them there to have them sprinkled."

An Old Skeptical Chaff Exposed Again.

In a paper published at Atchinson, Kansas, March 1, 1906, we note the following statement made in the interest of the Josephite fraternity by a writer whose name, charity forbids us to mention.

"The council of Nice, A. D. 325, made the first canon of the New Book. This council was called by Constantine, and strongly influenced by Eusebius. The historian Pappus says of this council, "Having put all the gospels and epistles together under the communion table, they besought the Lord that the inspired writings might get up on the table, while the spurious ones remained under it; and when the council was called next morning they found that it had happened accordingly!"

The reader will recognize in this quaint paragraph this old exposed story invented and told years ago by infidels to discredit the authenticity of the New Testament. Though this old musty skeptical tale has been exposed a hundred times, our writer does not seem to know it. He thinks to steal a march on the uninformed; he tries to peddle as his own goods the absurd arguments of progressive skeptic. John Pappus, professor at Munster, who died about 1010, is the "historian" he gives in proof of his statement that the council of Nice made the New Testament canon. Pappus discovered the story as told by our writer in an old Greek manuscript called "Synodikon". In it occurrences are related which happened as late as 877, about five hundred years after the Council of Nice was held!

When the writer says, "The Council of Nice, A. D. 325, made the first canon of the New Book," he makes a statement that is positively untrue. "I have on one of my library shelves," writes H. L. Hastings, "between twenty or thirty volumes, containing about twelve thousand pages of the writings of different Christian authors who wrote BEFORE A. D. 325, when the council of Nice was held. Many of these books are full of Scripture. Those writers had the same books which we have, they quoted from the same gospels and epistles from which we quote. Origen, who wrote a hundred years before the council of Nice, quotes 5,745 passages from all the books of the New Testament; Tertullian, A. D. 200, makes more than 3,000 quotations from the New Testament books; Clement, A. D. 194, quotes 380 passages; Irenaeus, A. D. 175, quotes 707 passages; Polycarp, who was martyred A. D. 166, after having served Christ eighty-six years, in a single epistle quoted 86 passages; Justin Martyr, A. D. 140, also quotes from the New Testament to any nothing of heathen and infidel writers,—and now infidels talk about the council of Nice getting up the New Testament. You might as well talk about the town council getting up the Revised Statutes of the state or nation, because they happen to say they accepted or received them. The council of Nice did nothing of the kind. The books of the New Testament were received from the apostles who wrote them, and were carefully preserved, and publicly read in the churches of Christ long before the Council of Nice was held." Inspiration of the Bible, page 11.

"This Generation."

Jesus Christ, after having proclaimed the ruin of Jerusalem and of the Temple, speaks of his second coming, and the signs which were to precede it; but those who believed the moment was near, deceived themselves—as to the sense of two words, an error which still subsists in our versions of the gospel according to Mat xxiv 29 34. In verse 29 we read "Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened," etc. The Greek word for "immediately" signifies "all at once, suddenly," not immediately; so that it signifies only the sudden appearance of the signs which Jesus announces, not the shortness of the interval which was to separate them from the "days of tribulation," which he was speaking of.

Verse 34 is this—"This generation shall not pass till all these things shall be fulfilled." The Greek words here rendered "this generation" mean the race, the filiation of my disciples; that is, he speaks of a class of men, not of a generation. The true sense then may be stated, in truth I tell you that this race of men, of which you are the commencement, shall not pass away till this shall take place; that is to say, the succession of Christians shall not cease till his coming. See Commentary of M. Paulus on the New Testament pp 435 6.—M. Guizot.

I and My.

Mr. I, and My, his companion, are very important personages, very prominent individuals. If there is any thing great, good, or smart, accomplished, Mr. I has done it. If there is anything valuable, anything worth having, My claims it immediately. I is the smartest preacher, the best farmer, the most benevolent person, the shrewdest financier, the bravest soldier, in short, the big man in everything. If he should die, wisdom would come to an end.

But, soberly, how often we are disgusted by hearing persons praise themselves, and what they have done. No one likes to hear this in another. We all think the most of a modest, unassuming man, one who lets others praise him, instead of doing it himself. Those who have any merit find enough persons to praise them; those who have none, have to blow their own trumpet. Beware of the man who praises himself, and tells of his wonderful and noble deeds.—M.

Prophetic Parables.

The parables of Matthew xiii. are seven in number. There is a significance in the number seven; it is a symbol of completeness—the whole. These parables not only teach practical lessons, but are prophetic, and in a measure dispensational, covering the period from which Christ began to sow the gospel seed to the harvest time at the "end of the world."

The first describes the sowing time when Christ himself and his disciples scattered the good seed, to-wit, the "Word of the kingdom."

The second describes the second stage of the sowing time when the children of the kingdom themselves are scattered (verse 38). This period began when persecution scattered the Church (see Acts viii 4), and continued to the time of Constantine. The sowing of the tares in the field began after the churches were well established and some began to apostatize and teach false doctrines (see instances and warnings in the letters of the Apostle Paul and others).

Under the third parable, Mustard is an evil weed when found growing among the wheat. The plant sprang up quickly and grew to great proportions, and was the roosting place for many foul birds. It is a very appropriate symbol of the union of Church and State, which is responsible for most of the crimes against true Christianity. A union first effected during the reign of Constantine the Great, and which is only now being effectually dissolved.

The fourth parable has reference to the corruption of the true faith of which Christ and his Apostles gave many timely warnings. Leaven is a symbol of corruption, "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees" says Christ; "a little leaven, leaveneth the whole lump," says the Apostle Paul, speaking of the results of false teaching. The woman in the parable stands for "Mystery, Babylon" (Rev xvii). The mother of all the corrupt doctrines and practices in Christianity. The three measures of meal which she leavened with her corrupt teaching, stands for three great divisions of the Christian world as we find it today; the Roman Catholic, Greek Catholic and Protestant; all of which have drawn their creeds and fundamentals from the teachings of the older mother.

The treasure hid in the field, the field being the world, stands for Israel, God's "peculiar treasure"; the prophets abundantly foretell the restoration of Israel to their own land and to the favor of God in the latter days.

The Pearl of great price is the true Church for which Christ gave all that he had, his own life. It is a pearl bought with a great price, redeemed by his blood to eternal life and glory to be bestowed at his coming.

The seventh parable is another picture of the great judgment scene depicted in Matthew xxv., a scene that will be enacted after Christ has come in his glory and is seated upon the throne of his glory.

The Holy Spirit.

"Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that the Lord he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath; there is none else." In the light of the above testimony, found in Deut iv 39, we find that there is but one God, therefore in our study of the Holy Spirit it must be considered a power, not a person. God plainly says that there is no God beside him, so we must not consider the Holy Spirit a person or God to be worshiped.

In our study of the Word we find that the Holy Spirit is under the control of, hence subordinate to God, for in John xiv 16, Christ promised his disciples to pray the Father that he might send them another Comforter, and in John xv 26 we find this Comforter defined as the "Spirit of truth proceeding from the Father." The Holy Spirit is a manifestation of God's power, giving those who receive it power to perform miracles.

In Joel ii. 28 we find the Spirit likened to the former rain and the latter rain. The former rain was moderately given, being typical of what is to come. The Holy Spirit is a power of the world to come, (Heb vi 4-5) and what was given in the past was only the first fruits of the Spirit, Rom viii 23. It was a power possessed only by "some" of God's people in connection with their work as prophets or teachers. The gifts of the Holy Spirit have not been possessed since the time of the apostles.

The Spirit was given to guide us in the way of truth. When given to those of apostolic times it conferred power to speak with other tongues, to cleanse the lepers, to raise the dead, to make the lame walk, the blind to see, and many other miracles. The Holy Spirit was given to the apostles, who were ignorant men, to prepare them for their work in Christ's name. Through it they were given power to preach the gospel in the tongues of men and confirm the word by signs.

"For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." 2 Peter i 21. "But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you; but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him." 1 John ii 27. In the study of the above references we find that through the Holy Spirit only truth was spoken and the words spoken by those moved by the Spirit are the means whereby men are to be saved.

In Eph iii 16, Paul says that it is through the Spirit that the Holy Scriptures were written, and it is those writings (not the gifts of the Spirit), that are essential for our salvation. The only purpose in giving the Holy Spirit was to confirm the words spoken by the prophets and teachers and make believers out of unbelievers. Nowhere do we find that men were made better by the gifts of the Spirit, but it is through the gospel preached by the apostles and confirmed by those gifts that we obtain salvation.

One of the 105 counties which the state of Kansas has within its domains, at least fifty have no paupers. One half the county poor farms are empty, save for the keeper, who draws his salary and waits for patronage. Some of the sociological students, who add to their philosophy the economics of living, declare that the poor house will soon be an extinct institution in Kansas.

The Conference meeting proper will open as usual Thursday evening, continuing over the next Sunday, with an hour each afternoon for Bible study.

If there are any brethren in Ohio, Indiana, or elsewhere who was in or know any thing of the '43 and '44 movement, we especially desire their presence or a paper prepared by them. Who does not wish to be present at this gathering and enjoy this religious feast. Remember friends, we are not making this extra effort because the people of Dutton alone need this spiritual uplift, but for the general good and advancement of Christ's cause, not only in Michigan, but in sister states. To this end we hope there may be a general rally to the standard of truth. We would like to have representatives from every state in the union and Canada. They will be received with a hearty welcome. If there should happen to be so many present that improvised floor beds become a necessity—why, the more the merrier. You will enjoy the good gospel truths better the next morning.

We are expecting F. L. Austin, of Fonthill, Canada, as one of the speakers, and we hope other able brothers and sisters will come, determined to give much good, as well as receive much. The board and lodging will be free.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Poore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Poore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of these small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's precepts? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with His glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it forever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss, [illegible] Money even paper money sometimes detected and is at the mercy of the post office clerks. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

When sending your money order and you want it drawn in the name of "The Restitution [illegible] and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Examine and see that the post master has written "Ind." not Pa. or Ohio.

If you wish your address changed give both the old and new address.

In renewing renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state whether you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mr. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is not the wife—he did not say his wife—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both George offended. So stupid as we certainly know, Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the best issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a book is advertised as supplied only by the author send to him—please not to us.

The Sabbath.

Is its observance binding on Gentile believers? Sabbatarians as a matter of course answer in the affirmative; and that obedience to the fourth commandment is vital to the Christian religion; that it is an important part of the New Covenant, and must be observed, or eternal life be forfeited. This is their view of the matter as I have it from their own lips and literature. It is strange that a command fundamental to the new covenant as is thought by Sabbatarians, is not enjoined as obligatory upon Gentile believers, not once. This omission on the part of the apostles, and especially of Paul, cannot be accounted for except on the ground that the Sabbath is no part of the new covenant. The apostles were, by divine appointment, ministers of this covenant, whose mission it was to preach the gospel and enforce its commands. Proof of this, "Who made us able ministers of the new covenant, not of the letter, but of the spirit; for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." 2 Cor iii 6. Paul here affirms for himself and fellow apostles that he and they are ministers of the new covenant and denies that he and they are ministers of the letter or law, or that engraven on stones. In ministering where did the apostles write what was designed to give life, instead of killing as did that engraven on stones? In the third verse he answers this question under figure of speech, "Ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ, ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God: not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart. This is easy enough to be understood. God through the Holy Spirit gave the terms of the new covenant to the apostles and they preached these terms of pardon and peace, and with the heart or mind men and women believed the gospel: therefore the apostle says of the gospel that it is ministered or written by us. What was written, or in other words preached, did not embrace the Sabbath: that was left out according to the plain teaching of this chapter. Where is the record that the apostles preached the fourth command; that they ministered or wrote it in human hearts? There is abundant history of what they preached among the Gentiles, under the great commission which enjoined the preaching of the gospel to every creature. Much of this history is found in the Acts of the Apostles and frequent mention made of what they preached, in the epistles to the churches. If salvation depends on the observance of the Sabbath then the apostles, guided by the Holy Spirit, would have preached it without fail, and would not have left the matter to be inferred by infallible and uninspired men. If it is so important, as is claimed, that our salvation is imperiled by non-observance of the fourth commandment, what is there in all reason to save Paul from the charge of lying when he stated as he did at Miletus to the elders of the church of Ephesus, "I have shunned nothing that was profitable, but have showed you, and have taught publicly and from house to house, testifying both to Jews and Greeks repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ" (Acts xx 20, 21), and (verses 26, 27), "Wherefore I take you to record this day that I am pure from the blood of all, for I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God." We are obliged to take these statements as the truth in regard to his own preaching, and again raise the question, where did he preach the binding obligation of the fourth command? It will not do to say he preached it, but inspiration failed to record the fact. This would be nothing but a guess, or an assumption: and yet the advocates of the theory in dispute ask us to believe that the practice of the early church, both Jews and Gentiles, was the observance of the 7th day until the pope or bishop of Rome changed the day. But how will this claim for the custom of the early church harmonize with what Paul says concerning Sabbath observance? He wrote thirteen epistles, embracing one hundred chapters. I will now quote the only passage where the apostle uses the word Sabbath, "Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink or in respect of a holy day, or of the new moon, or of the Sabbath days: which are a shadow of things to come; but the body is of Christ." Col ii 16, 17. This is A. V. version of the passage. I will give McNight's rendering, Wherefore let no man judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of a festival, or of a new moon, or of Sabbaths; which are a shadow of things to come." How does this sound along side of Sabbath keeping? There is no agreement between the two. Can any one in his soberseuses believe that Paul would have written as this passage reads, if he had been enjoining upon the churches the observance of the seventh day? No modern Sabbath keeper would so write without following these words with a lengthy explanation to show that Sabbaths here does not mean the weekly Sabbaths (?).

Fifteen or twenty years ago I was present and heard a preacher attempt to explain this passage so as to set aside weekly Sabbaths. The speaker wrote on the blackboard four different kinds of Sabbaths as found in the law of Moses as he termed it, but omitted the weekly Sabbath found in the ten commandments, the law of God, so called by him, then pointing to what he had written, said "here are enough Sabbaths to meet and exhaust Paul's language without including the seventh day Sabbath." This was an ingenious device to exclude from the passage any reference to the weekly Sabbath. Now if the weekly Sabbaths are not referred to by Paul in this passage, then in all his thirteen letters he never so much as once named the weekly Sabbath, in his instructions to believers; so there is not a shadow of it by name left in all his writings. Leaving out or omitting to name the Sabbath of the 4th command is not the style of Sabbatarian literature today. I have never stopped to count the number of times the word Sabbath occurs in a single paper issued from their press at headquarters. One of our preachers, now dead, picked up one of these papers and counted thirty-eight occurrences of the Word. I believe that Paul in the passage refers to the weekly Sabbath, but not to enjoin its observance, but the very opposite. Now if our neglect to keep the Sabbath is a criminal neglect, and meeting on the first day of the week to worship in memory of Christ's resurrection, "the mark of the beast," we are doubly guilty. But the charge of violating the law of God and submitting to be branded with the mark of the beast, does not affright us: and in as much as we find Paul on our side, and no hint of the binding force of the fourth commandment in the new covenant we will continue to indulge the satisfying hope of the gospel, believing in justification by faith, without the deeds of the law. Anyone, however skilled in the art of reasoning, can show that the Sabbath law is a part of the new covenant; until this is shown we will keep the Pope's day (?) Sunday, the day the ancient pagans worshiped the sun; and do this because our Lord rose from the dead on that day of the week in fulfilment of the type, the first fruits of the harvest waved before the Lord on the morrow after the Sabbath; do this because apostolic disciples met to memorialize the death of Christ, and thence forward a long and unbroken line of believers kept up the practice of meeting on the first day. The pope of Rome did not change the day of worship from the seventh to the first, and the early Christians did not regard the sanctity of the seventh as belonging to the first; so hedged it not about with the restrictions of the law. The simple statement of Luke is that "Upon the first day of the week when the disciples came together to break bread Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow." Acts xx 7. A specific part of the service was the observance of the communion.

There is no mention in the inspired history of the practice of the apostolic churches that they observed the communion on the seventh day. If the observance of the first day of the week as a day of worship after the example of the church of ante-pupal times places on us, who are now living, the mark of the beast, exposing us to the wrath of God, what shall we say of those early Christians, including Paul, who set us the example? I would think the mark would be on them for keeping Sunday as well as on latter day believers, although the pope of Rome was not on the scene. Paul saw the man of sin in the distance and described him in his 2 Thessalonian letter 2 chapter, and had also portrayed him to the church previously by word of mouth, far more plainly than it was prudent to write in a letter, which would fall into the hands of the enemies of the church, and thus make the lives of Christians all the more insecure, at times when persecution was raging.

Now after all the talk on the other side about bearing and wearing the mark of the beast by Sunday keeping there is more than the probability of a mistake as to what "the mark" is. Proof that Sunday observance is the thing the Apocalyptic prophet meant is asked for. Who can give it? It is not very difficult to identify the beast by the inspired description, but when it comes to the matter of designating "the mark" there is a good deal of guessing done, for the mark is not described, only as to where it is placed —on the forehead and in the hand.

WITNESSES.

A Christian, a witness! How is a Christian a witness? In the first place a witness is one who testifies or gives evidence. Then a Christian is one who testifies or gives evidence of Christ, of his teachings and his character. A Christian gives evidence of Christ's teachings by first searching diligently through his Word, and then giving others the benefit of his study, by first discovering the wonders and beauties hidden in the Bible, and then helping others to explore them. But I consider the Christian a more important witness of Christ's character. He can be a witness of that by studying the life and precepts of our Savior contained in his Word, and then trying as far as weak humanity with God's help is able, to fashion his character according to the perfect One.

In the 2nd chapter of I Peter, we find a few verses, which are an excellent guide to the Christian who sincerely desires to be a witness of Christ's character, "For even hereunto were ye called, because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example that ye should follow his steps: who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth. Who when he was reviled, reviled not again; who when he suffered, he threatened not, but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously."

Let us each, dear Bereans, study our characters, and try to mould them according to Christ's, so that all men may know that we have been with Jesus and learned of him.

MARY A. GEHR.

FAITH WITHOUT WORKS IS DEAD. JAMES II 20.

Faith cometh not by hearing. Rom x 17. It is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Heb xi 1.

Paul says we are saved through faith, and through faith we inherit the promises. By faith the elders obtained a good report, but we will see later if they obtained it by faith alone. If a brother or sister be naked and destitute of daily food and you say unto them, "Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled, notwithstanding you give them not that which is needful to the body, what doth it profit? Even so, faith if it hath not works is dead, being alone."

Let us remember that faith alone will not save us. It may seem at times that there is little we can do but do not despair we all have at least one talent with which to work. We cannot all preach but drop a word here and there, do a kind deed and we shall have our reward. Abraham was justified by works when he offered his only son, Isaac upon the altar. Abel was justified by works when he offered a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts; and by it, he being dead is yet spoken of.

Likewise the harlot Rahab was justified by works when she had received the messengers and sent them out another way. Many other examples could be given, but this is sufficient.

Faith and works bring to the believer pardon, peace with God, rest, hope, joy, oneness with Christ, victory through Christ, heirship and eternal life—that is, all things. As the body is dead without the breath, so is faith dead without works.

MABEL DRUMMOND.

NEAR COMING OF THE LORD.

The coming of our Lord is near at hand. Believing this what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, 2 Pet iii 11, 12. Surely in view of the coming judgment—judgment that "shall begin at the house of God" and which will deal first with his professed followers—we ought to be holy; ought to be cleansed from worldliness, separated from the ungodly, be pure and fully yielded to God.

What manner of persons ought we to be in conversation? Should we be silent on these subjects, these great truths which have been given to us regarding the coming of our blessed Master? We should make frequent mention of his great name, and tell to all what a Savior we have found. Our lips should be used to lead others, first to accept Christ as our Savior and then to serve him as their King. We ought at all times to be expectant and on the lookout for every indication of his approach; and being expectant, it naturally follows that we should be prepared for that appearing; watchful, longing and ready that we may not miss the joy of his coming, and be forever with him in his kingdom.

Dear Bereans, we that have the blessed hope, let us strive to have our robes spotless and white, and let us be active and untiring in our efforts, because very soon "the night cometh when no man can work," and any day, any hour, our Lord may be here and our opportunities be past. Shall not this thought aid us to renewed endeavor to witness for him while it is yet day, redeeming the time because the days are evil and because the time is short.

Hoping that we may each and every one of us be ready at his coming, I am your sister in Christ looking for his near coming.

LILLIAN MAY FILSON.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,
W. H. WILSON.

Indiana Bereans, Greeting:

Brother Neill's resignation has made me your President. I wish to express to you my willingness to help you in any way that I can.

Let me urge you to continue your study and the holding of regular meetings. Great good has already been accomplished, and we must not let this work retard. Let us understand and be about our Father's business, ever keeping in mind his promise to the Little Flock.

Address me at 515 E. Pennsylvania Ave. South Bend, Ind.

May God bless and prosper your meetings.

EVELYN K. HANSON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of the brethren have statistics, facts or figures, showing the good that conferences have accomplished, I would be glad to have you communicate with me at Woodstock Va. I would like to secure a copy of same. Perhaps Brothers Lindsay, Allard, Wince, Wagoner, Brother and Sister Woodward, Brother Crozier or Sister Emma Jackman and others who have been active in Conference work can help me out. Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, accompanied by the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

LET all the Indiana Churches see to it that they are represented at the Antioch meeting, and send all you can—especially the young, to the Bible school. It is sure to be of lasting benefit.

THE Northwest Conference to be at Felida, Wash, in June, was announced last week. Their new building will be ready to dedicate at that time. They should have a good attendance, and we trust the friends will make it a success every way possible.

ANNOUNCEMENTS made for the Ohio Conference to be held in Salem, in the month of August. Having attended Conference at Salem we can personally testify that there are no better or warmer hearted brethren anywhere within our acquaintance, and we can therefore earnestly pray that the Lord will bless every effort of our Ohio brethren.

NEXT week is the time for the meeting in Michigan, and we would certainly enjoy being there. As this is impossible we send our very best wishes, and hope they will have good weather, that a goodly number will attend, that the speakers and teachers will have clear minds and understanding and be able to show forth the Word of Life to others. May harmony and good fellowship prevail, and no fault finding or back biting have a place on the programme; but may love—a true brotherly love, rule each heart, and then we feel certain God's blessing will be on the meeting.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 54.

I am putting the early conferences together, as I now have them, for the conveniences of those who may wish to preserve the history for future reference. Am sorry to be obliged to revise the account, but it is only in this way that the truth of all past records have been brought out, saving only those of course, which were inspired by God himself.

I have given you the Story of the 1862 conference in nearly the exact words of Brother Halstead.

The two June Conferences on Brother Wm. T. Guffin's farm, near Claysville, in Huntington County, were held in 1861, and 1862, and at the latter, John L. Wince was formally set apart as a minister of the gospel.

In August, 1863, the Annual Conference was held on Turkey Creek, on the farm of Brother S. V. Plummer, one mile and three quarters north of Windfall, Tipton County. Brother Halstead thinks he attended this meeting but his name does not appear in the records as given in "The Harbinger," Volume 35, Page 278. The Report there given is as follows, as copied and forwarded to me by Sister Mary Kauffman, of Springfield, Ohio.

"The Indiana Christian Conference, assembled near Windfall, Indiana, August 13, 1863, at 4 o'clock P. M. Elder J. M. Stephenson delivered the opening address, from Romans i. 15, 16, showing in a very concise manner that there is but 'one gospel, one faith, one Lord, one baptism.' H. Byrne was chosen chairman and Jonah Pierce, secretary.

The following committee of arrangements was appointed:—P. Plummer, J. A. Erringer and J. T. Prime. All the visiting brethren were invited to participate in the deliberations of the conference. Those who spoke the Word to the large assemblage of people at the different sessions of the conference were, Elders J. M. Stephenson, R. V. Lyon, T. G. Newman, Joseph Marsh, George W. Green, George Moyer, Jacob Shaffer and Richard Corbaley," and in addition to these Brother S. V. Plummer gives the names of J. F. Wagoner, D. T. Halstead, J. S. Hatch, Nathan Hornaday, J. F. White and W. P. Shockey.

"The speakers,"—continues the Report "presented a harmonious and unbroken chain of God's truth to the vast concourse of attentive listeners. An impetus was given to the cause of truth in that vicinity, dispelling prejudice to a considerable extent. Seven confessed their faith in the gospel of the kingdom and put on Christ by immersion, among these, being Dr. Wm. P. Shockey, of Windfall, Indiana," (the baptism of Brother Shockey, at this conference, helping Mr. Wince in fixing the date of the last conference which he attended near Windfall, at 1864, instead of at an earlier period.)

"Nineteen churches were represented by delegates. Twenty-seven ministers belonged to the conference. The churches were requested to send delegates to next conference—one for each church of ten members, and one for every additional ten members. E. C. Andrus was selected for State Evangelist—$400.00 being pledged for his support, $60,00 of which was paid down and put into the hands of Henry Hildebrand, as treasurer. The moderator,—H. Byrne, being sick, Isaiah Hornaday was appointed moderator, pro tem. on Sunday morning, and presided the remainder of the conference. Sunday 3:30 P. M. a large number met around the Lord's Table and partook of the Sacred Emblems of his broken body and shed blood.

The conference adjourned on Monday noon to meet the next year four miles west of Sharpsville, in Tipton County, Indiana, at 4 P. M. on Thursday before the third Sunday in August, 1864.

The June conference for 1863, was at the Pisgah meeting-house, Marshall County, Indiana. S. A. Chaplin, Wm. T. Guffin, Samuel Andrews, N. Beesek, Joseph Messamore, Henry Logan, Jacob Shaffer, H. Barnhill, Richard Corbaley, and E. C. Andrus were present with Brother Corbaley in the choir. Three were immersed. It was a good time and one long to be remembered. E. C. Andrus, Secretary.

August 1864, the Indiana conference of the Church of God was held near Sharpsville as per appointment, the place of meeting being about thirteen miles northwest of Windfall, and about twenty northwest of Cicero. It was this conference which Mr. Wince attended in company with his sister, Miss Carolina Wince, a Miss Hannah Kauffman, Brother and Sister Andrews, and Brother Wm. T. Guffin,—instead of the one held in 1862, which Brother Halstead has described. The conveyance used was Brother Guffin's open lumber wagon.

The ministers present were those given in the March 4, 1908 number of THE RESTITUTION as having been present at a conference held in 1861. They were Wm. G. Proctor, the presiding officer, Dr. Field, Geo. W. Green, David Shanklin, Nathan and Isaiah Hornaday, Wm. P. Shockey, Elder Shortridge, Thomas G. Newman (Editor of The Harbinger) Jacob Blain, of Buffalo, New York, Samuel Andrews, Wm. T. Guffin, Henry Logan, Dr. White of Tipton County, and John L. Wince. It was at this meeting that the woods were full, and that lights were hung in the trees at night. It was also at this date that the somewhat amusing tobacco-episode occurred. W. P. Shockey, Thomas G. Newman, Nathan Hornaday, Dr. Field, George W. Green, Henry Logan and Wm. G. Proctor, were the speakers.

Skipping the years 1865, 1866, and 1867, of which I have no record as to conferences, I come to August 1868, when another conference was held at Cicero, Hamilton County, Indiana, beginning on Thursday, the 13th, and continuing over Sunday, as reported by the secretary, Brother D. T. Halstead, pages 428, 429, Vol. I, of "The Herald of The Coming Kingdom," Edited by Thomas Wilson and George Moyer.

But, though no notice of the meeting was published in "The Herald," and no visiting brethren were present from other states, "the meeting increased in interest from the beginning to the close and it was the universal expression, so far as heard that it was the best meeting the participants had attended for years. All seemed united in love and nothing transpired to mar the feelings or to engender strife and confusion in any way. A large concourse of people were present Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, to whom the Word containing the promises made of God unto the fathers, the glories of that golden age when God's will shall be done in earth as it is done in heaven, together with the apostolic instruction, how aliens can become fellow-heirs, was from time to time presented in a clear, tangible and very comprehensive manner, by brethren W. S. Winslow, J. S. Hatch, L. Hicklin (who was related to Brother Stephenson,) Isaiah Hornaday and D. T. Halstead. The time intervening between the lectures for benefit of the uninstructed was spent together in a social manner, in devotional exercises, exhorting one another and in the investigation of the Word as to what manner of persons we should be. The question as to what is fully comprehended by coming out from the world, not being conformed to the world, keeping unspotted from the world, elicited much interest, the investigation of which was participated in by many. All seemed to solemnly appreciate the necessity of a higher and more uncompromising life in all godliness in order to be made meet for the coming kingdom.

It was appointed by the unanimous desire of all present, that the brethren meet again at the same place on Thursday before the third Sunday in August, 1869, the Sunday evening before the closing discourse, the emblems of the Savior's broken body and shed blood were partaken of by his waiting ones, with the sincere desire for his speedy return, etc." D. T. Halstead, Secretary.

Presumably the brethren met at Cicero again in August, 1869, and this was in all probability the conference which Sister Julia Harsch of South Bend, attended, but the date of which she could not remember. She was a young girl then, living at Plymouth, and her name at that time was Julia Thompson. She went in company with Brother Hugh Barnhill, Sister Sarah Barnhill, and their two daughters—Jennie and Nannie. She says Brother Halstead was there and she thinks that Brother William Hornaday and Brother Arthur Legge were also there.

June 11, 1870, there was a quarterly conference held at Antioch, and another in October of the same year, at the latter of which Brother and Sister Mansfield, Dr. Field and Wm. Rimes were present.

June 10-11, 1871, Brother Joseph Marsh was present at the Antioch Conference.

June 6 8, 1873, Conference at Antioch. S. G. Clark, D. T. Halstead, Wm. Henry Wilson, Jacob Shaffer, and S. A. Chaplin, were the preachers, father's text being Rev. xvi. 17.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY JUNE 7.

JESUS APPEARS TO HIS DISCIPLES. JOHN xx 19-31.

Golden Text. Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God. John xx 28.

The betrayal, the death, the resurrection and appearance of Jesus is very much of one story.

Lesson text. The next day at evening, the first day of the week—now called Sunday. The same day he arose, the same day he had appeared to Mary Magdalene and others.

It may be well to note here that there has been much unnecessary argument about the day of the crucifixion of Jesus. According to Matthew Jesus himself said, The Son of Man shall be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. Matt xii 40. He arose before day light Sunday morning, count back three days and three nights, and we have the exact time—the eleven—disciples were together, shut in for fear of the Jews. From what we learn of the general effect—on the religious authorities—of the teaching and work of Jesus, it must have been very aggravating to them to find, or know, of a number of people meeting in the name of Jesus Christ.

He stood in their midst. This proved what he told Nicodemus. That those born of the Spirit could come and go, and no man could tell where such came from nor where went to. John iii 8. Jesus the first born of the Spirit, Col i 18, appeared among them, though doors were shut. This shows how far apart, and how very great a difference there is between the natural and spiritual.

Observe the difference in the four accounts of the appearance of Jesus to his disciples. The eleven went to a mountain in Galilee, where Jesus had appointed, Matt xxviii 16, before his death. Matt xxvi 32.

Afterward he appeared to the eleven as they sat at meat. Mark xvi 14.

As they spoke Jesus himself stood in the midst of them and said, Peace be unto you.

But they were terrified—and supposed they saw a spirit. Luke xxiv 36, 37.

After eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them; then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, peace be unto you, lesson verse 26.

It has been asserted by unreasonable fault-finders, that if the Holy Spirit had moved the apostles, they would all have written the same things. Those who have in mind the lesson on "The mission of the Holy Spirit" will remember that the Spirit was not to dictate or compel the apostles like machines, but just to remind them of things that Jesus said and did. John xiv. 26. They recorded what they thought best.

How true it is that the natural man—the unbelievers—receiveth not the things of the Spirit. 1 Cor ii 14. Many books have been written speculating—guessing—whether Jesus assumed different bodies, as he appeared to the disciples at various times, or if he made his disciples see different. The spiritually minded have no trouble on such matters, they accept what is written, believing that the Lord Jesus had all power in heaven and earth. Matt xxviii 18. He could appear, and did appear when, where and as he chose.

He appeared to the two Marys, and to the eleven. Matthew xxviii 9, 10, 16.

To Mary Magdalene. Mark xvi 9.

To two disciples. Luke xxiv 13-31.

To ten disciples, then to the eleven. John xx 19-29.

To the eleven on Mt Olivet. Acts i 1-12.

To Stephen. Acts vii 55.

To Saul. Acts ix 4, 5.

To five hundred brethren at once. 1 Cor xv 6.

It will be noticed that Jesus never appeared to any except believers after his resurrection.

Let us briefly consider what he did. According to the lesson he showed them his hands and his side. He said peace be unto you. He breathed on them, and said, Receive ye the Holy Spirit,—he did not breathe on them the breath of life. That belongs to the flesh. That which is born of the Spirit IS Spirit. John iii 6. He gave them power to forgive sins, but we do not read of any one of them saying, "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee." Luke v 20.

Thomas was thoroughly convinced. Blessed are they that believe and have not seen. These few words have been a tower of strength, and complete consolation to the faithful who have not seen.

Next lesson, The Risen Christ by the Sea of Galilee. John xxi 1-25.

Conference Report.

The Illinois Quarterly Conference was held at Antioch church on Saturday and Sunday, May 16 and 17. It was an enjoyable meeting in spite of the hail storm which prevented the Saturday evening preaching service.

Good reports from our two evangelists showed the work of God to be moving on in this field. Final plans were made for our Annual Conference and Bible school, and committees were appointed to carry out preparations for another of those good meetings at our old stone Church in Oregon. Bible school will be held August 10-16, and the Annual Conference will be from Aug 19 23.

The programme gives promise of good things in store, and will appear in due time in this paper. Begin now to plan to be present, and bring as many strangers as possible.

Announcement.

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conference at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing; for we shall reap if we faint not.

Further particulars later.

Obituary.

Frederick Flint, son of James and Mary Flint, was born in Jordan Tp., Warren Co, Indiana, Oct. 12, 1890. His whole life was spent on the farm where he was born. In early life he met with an accident which made him a cripple for the rest of his life, but he bore his misfortune with the greatest fortitude, and was most patient even when suffering intensely. He had an ambition to get an education, but his physical condition was such that he could attend school only a part of the time, and his desire was realized only in part. The last few months of his life were months of more than usual discomfort and suffering, yet he bore it all with patience until he was released from these temporal ills, May 19, 1908, at the early age of 17 yrs, 7 mo, and 8 days. He was a dutiful son, a kind and loving brother. He will be sadly missed by his mother, brother and two sisters, his schoolmates, and all who knew him, but his patience, and his cheerful disposition will always be an example worthy of imitation by every one."

Upon arriving at Sloan, Ind., May 19, to begin a series of meetings, I found awaiting a summons to give comfort and consolation to this sadly bereaved family. The above testimony was given me, and the attendance, the floral tributes, and the sympathetic tears at the funeral bore witness to its truthfulness. May God give consolation and assurance to Sister Flint and the members of her family. Brethren, remember her in your prayers.

Dear Restitution:

In reading I learn that the Helping Fund is getting low, so I send with my subscription a little help, as the Lord has blessed me with health in my declining years. I will be 76 years old June 8.

How I should love to meet with the Plymouth brethren. Have been in the faith since '53—was baptized at Old Huron at the first Conference.

SIS. E. C. BYRNE.

[We assure our good Sister that at any time she can come and visit in these parts a cordial welcome will be given her, and we pray that the kind Father in heaven will bless and keep her to the perfect day.—ED.]

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

Evolution's Darker Side.

Distinctly does my mind recall
The day I evolved
As this so-called terrestrial ball
From realms preinstituted.
I seemed to know upon that day
That I, alas, was fated
To wander my eternal way
Absurdly antedated.

No sooner had my opened eyes
Observed my new surroundings
Than I was furred, to my surprise,
To swallow strange compoundings.
In no remembered clime or state
In ages prehistoric,
Was ever it my awful fate
To taste of paregoric.

When bobbing softly in the brine
Or wiggling through earth's strata,
No giant killer tale of mine,
Nor Humpty Dumpty data;
And when I sprang from tree to tree
Or sang with birdlike chirrup,
I knew no taste of catnip tea
And none of soothing syrup.

So now, as I remarked before,
I saw my sad position
My age a million years or more,
Yet dabbled on a cushion
In vain I howled with lusty throat;
In angry protestation—
They simply put me in a boat
And rocked like all creation.

They washed me off with slippery suds
And gave my back a chalking,
Then swaddled in abnormal duds
The parts put on for walking.
And no interpreter I'd heard
In monkey land or other,
Could fathom by a single word
The gibberish of my mother.

Of course I quarled right and hit.
As soon as I was able,
Why I of feathers was bereft
And why we used a table,
I even asked my latest kin
To give some explanation
Why tooth and claw should be drawn in
When battling with a ration.

And now I do my level best
To fill the bill suggested;
I'm acting exactly like the rest
With human forms invested.
But, sotto voce, I would add
I wish I'd left creation
Before I got—and got it bad—
This lad—domestication.

If you are an "epistle of Christ (2 Cor iii. 3) known and read of all men" (v. 2), the world will know that you are a Christian without you telling them in every testimony meeting. Only write your "epistle" plainly enough by works of righteousness, and "all men" will then read and believe it.

A Pantheist minister met Dr. Emmons one day, says an exchange, and abruptly asked: "Mr. Emmons, how old are you?" Sixty, sir, and how old are you? "As old as the creation," was the answer, in a triumphant tone. "Then you are the same age with Adam and Eve?" "Certainly, I was in the garden when they were." "I have always heard that there was a third person in the garden with them," replied the Doctor with great calmness, "but I never knew before it was you."

Editor's Canadian Tour.

The last Quarterly Meeting of the Illinois Conference for this year was held at Antioch church, May 17th. There were visitors there representing several churches, namely, Sisters Drew, Kerr, Thacker and Filson of Dixon; Brother J. M Glotfelty Lanark; Brother and Sister Smith, Oregon, and Brother James W. Wilson, President of the Conference. Brother Lindsay also was there, the second time he has been able to attend a Quarterly meeting this year. Though we are co-workers in the same State, we seldom hold meetings together or hear each other preach. Our brother gave a good sermon on the Word—always an interesting subject.

On Monday morning, May 18th, we both journeyed to Chicago. Brother Lindsay piloted me through the bustle of the "Windy City." He did not leave me till, father-like, he had seen that I had found my depot, and had tickets in my pockets for Cleveland, O. He then bid me good by, and went to his work in Warren Co. Ind.

On arriving at Cleveland May 19th, we hurried to the home of Brother L. E. Conner, with whom we made our home while in the city.

Brother Conner had been invited to attend the funeral services of the "Rt. Rev." i. F. Horstman, Catholic Bishop of Cleveland. The ceremonies of the funeral lasted four hours. Two arch-bishops and twelve bishops officiated at the alter, and three hundred priests sang the office of the dead and the mass of requiem. Only invited guests were allowed to attend the funeral, but hundreds of people gathered on the streets near the church, many of them getting on the tops of buildings several stories high.

While Brother Conner was in the church, Sister Conner showed me many of the important and beautiful places of business in the city. Assuming that Bishop Horstman's funeral would last only one hour, we returned to near the church door to see the funeral march, and to get Brother's Conner's company. We stood there part of the time patiently and part of the time impatiently, just an hour and ten minutes. Without debate we decided to "move on," and to leave Brother Conner among the Catholics.

When he did get in our company again, Brother Conner gave us a very interesting rehearsal of what was the most aristocratic and elaborate Catholic funeral ever held in Cleveland.

The 20th was spent in visiting Sister McLaughlan, and other members of the church, and the church itself, a new building just dedicated in March. It cost seven thousand dollars in round numbers. Brother Conner has been instrumental in doing much good as pastor in Cleveland, and from indications we think he has a fertile field for his pastorate.

The Rich Man and Lazarus.

A good friend sends us a few thoughts on the Rich Man and Lazarus with the request that we write an exposition of the parable, and either corroborate or criticise his views as expressed in his article. We frankly confess we cannot approve the way our brethren usually expound this parable. In our debates with representatives of Christendom we are always fairly beaten when we contest this battle-field with them. We invariably get worsted in the argument. In "Conditional Immortality," a debate between Miles Grant and Harry Long, any unbiased reader cannot help seeing that Mr. Grant was fairly beaten by Mr. Long in his arguments on this parable. On page 127 Mr. Grant makes this remarkable admission, "This is the only passage in the Bible that teaches consciousness between death and the resurrection." Most people are satisfied to believe a doctrine even if there is but one text that "teaches" it. We can only hang our head in shame when the truth is so clumsily presented that its enemies can defeat it. We are sure it is not because we are wrong on the principles of Bible teaching; rather it is because we are wrong in our interpretation of the parable. Let me state a few inconsistencies that to my mind explains why we cannot satisfactorily expound the parable to our orthodox friends:

1. Sometimes we tell them that it is in the Gemara Babyloniacum, and that Christ got it from that work. Dear brother, the Gemara or Talmud of the Jews was written after the time of Christ! And how preposterous to talk about Christ, "the light of the world," going to the Jews and heathens to get instruction and light!

2. The hours of argument we spend in trying to convince them that it is a parable is wasted effort. It makes not an iota of difference whether it is a parable or not; its teachings are precisely the same. To talk like it was a parable and for this reason is likely not true, does the truth no credit.

3. When we say that the Rich Man represents the Jewish nation, we are then committed to the thought that the Rich Man (as a nation) is followed by consciousness of "torment" and "evil things" in the death state. Death for a nation means exactly the same as death for an individual. A nation should be as unconscious in death as an individual. To say that "this is the only passage in the Bible that teaches consciousness between death and the resurrection," as Miles Grant does, is a poor way to convince a man that the dead are unconscious. To say the Rich Man "died as a nation", does not help matters one bit. Whether interpreted individually or nationally, all the twistings and turnings of exegetical skill still leaves the man or nation conscious after death.

4. We preach that Gehenna, not hades, is the place of punishment. Yet when we attempt an exposition of this parable we say that the Rich Man (Jewish nation) not only "died" in A. D. 70, but he has been suffering "evil things" (and him dead, mind you!) "in hell" (hades) ever since he died!

5. When weary (not Lazarus represents the Gentiles, we are face to face with a cold fact, namely, that the death of Lazarus means the death of the Gentiles "as a nation"! Inform us, please, when did that happen? If the death of Lazarus means "a death to sin", as we sometimes say, then as Lazarus represents the Gentile nation, we would have to believe that the Gentile nation "died to sin" to the same extent and scope that the Jewish nation or Rich Man died in sin. Here is another empty basket turned bottom upward.

6. After saying that Lazarus represents the Gentiles, we go on with our interpretation of the parable till we get to the 21 verse. "And the dogs came and licked his sores". Forgetting that we had just said that Lazarus represents the Gentiles, we now say that the "dogs" represent the Gentiles! For the dogs to lick the sores on Lazarus would be equivalent to saying that the Gentiles licked the Gentiles, that is, they loved themselves!

We could state other serious objections to the interpretation of Dives and Lazarus which is now in vogue among us as a people; but perhaps enough have been stated to show that something is wrong. We are not fame like this as other strongholds of the enemy. Like our readers, the editor is a student of God's Word. Who will clear up the dark spots in this parable and give us a soul-satisfying explanation of it?

The Most of an Opportunity.

One girl said to another, "It's queer you should take so much pains to oblige a stranger. You're not likely to see her again." And the other replied, "That's just why. As long as this is my only chance, I want to make the most of it." That is something worth thinking about. If a life comes into contact with ours just for once, let us be sure it gets something helpful to carry away with it.—Hayr World.

How a Long Sermon Ended.

The tedious preacher had a three-hour sermon prepared on the subject, The Major and the Minor Prophets. He talked Firstly, for an hour and a half on the major prophets. His audience began to get tired. He then spoke Secondly, for an hour and a half on the minor prophets. His congregation now were very nervous. "And finally" said the preacher "what place shall we give Malachi?" "Malachi can have my place," shouted an old sinner in a back seat, "I'm going home!"

Why Do You Swear?

"It chills my heart to hear the blest Supreme,
Rudely appealed to on each trifling theme:
Maintain your rank, vulgarity despise;
To swear is neither brave, polite nor wise.
You would not swear upon a bed of death.
Reflect—your Maker now could stop your breath."

Brother Huggins:

I always read your editorial column in THE RESTITUTION with interest. All the readers of the paper suffered great loss in the death of our beloved brother, M. Joblin. I once had a long, and pleasant, and profitable correspondence with him. With best wishes and fraternal greeting, I remain in the One Hope.

C. W. TOMKINS.

Brother Huggins:

Brother Neill will begin a series of meetings here tomorrow, to continue a week or more. His wife and family are with him. I have read your pamphlet An Exposition of Isaiah vii. 14, 15, 16. It is a splendidly written argument. May God bless your work.

Yours in the Lord.

Christian Virtues—Charity.

"In your love of the brethren supply Charity." 2d Peter i. 7.

Charity, from the Latin "Charitas," means love, benevolence, good will. What a fitting and harmonious finish to this "Building" "framed together" "for an habitation of God through the spirit." Eph. ii. 21, 22.

Faith, the foundation; virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, the framework; godliness brotherly kindness, the roof; love, the finish and decoration, interior and exterior.

Permit me to give you Robert Young's rendering of verses 5, 6, 7, "But also for this very thing, having brought in along side all diligence, supply also in your faith the pleasingness, and in the pleasingness the knowledge, and in the knowledge the inward strength, and in the inward strength, the endurance, (fit-remaining under,) and in the endurance the reverence, and in the reverence the brotherly friendship, and in the brotherly friendship the love."

The design of the writer of this series of articles has been to elaborate upon the statements in the first essay, that a life practical in word and deed, and in accordance with the commands and precepts given by Jesus and the apostles gave an command that we cannot comply with. That it is not, I can or can not, but I will or will not. Of course it is impossible to examine the conduct of each individual from breakfast till bedtime, but it is the mind that controls the body. What has been written is for our admonition, 1 Cor. x. 11. We are to give attention to reading, 1 Tim. iv. 13, that the "inward man" might be renewed day by day. 2 Cor. iv. 16.

I am perfectly satisfied that a constant searching of the Scriptures, John v. 39, and a communion with God, Eph. vi. 18, will bring about the transformation desired by the apostle Peter, and we will be fruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ, 2 Peter i. 8.

In conclusion, let us pray that the love of God may be "shed abroad in our hearts." Rom. v. 5. Let the love of Christ constrain us, 2 Cor. v. 14, to love God, 1 John iv. 19, to love one another, 1 John iv. 7, and to love our enemies, Matt. v. 44. Let nothing separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. Rom. viii. 39.

GEO. NEILL.

Right Use of Money—Mental and Spiritual Wealth.

The possession and use of money concerns not only so called rich Christians, but all Christians. All Christians are stewards of time, talents, influence, property, yea, all we have and are; and we, and all we have, are to be used according to the will and for the glory of the Divine Owner. Our blessed Lord told his disciples not to lay up treasure upon the earth, but in heaven, because the heart is where the treasure is. And the Holy Spirit, by James, speaks in burning words to such as hoard money instead of using it wisely: "Your gold and your silver are rusted, and their rust shall be for a testimony against you, and shall eat your flesh as fire."

The squandering of another's property against the will of the owner, or the hoarding up of property intended by the owner to be used for the benefit of others, incurs tremendous responsibility, and deprives the steward of untold blessing. It is indeed blessed to receive, and no one can give until he has received; but, on Divine authority, "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

"It came to pass" is a frequent expression in God's Word. This, of course, commonly refers to some historic event. But, by application, it is capable of a wider meaning—it came in order to pass. Our moments, hours, days, years, come in order to pass; yea, we ourselves came into this world not to stay, but to pass through it and out of it. All material, mental and spiritual wealth, comes to pass. Material wealth—money—comes to bless the receiver and those dependent upon him, to the utmost extent of its power to bless, which is great, but limited, then the blessing can only be increased by passing on the rest for the benefit of others.

It is the same with mental wealth. It comes to pass. The receiver is greatly blessed in storing the mind with useful knowledge, but the blessing is increased largely by giving out in conversation, in letters, in lectures, in books. Indeed, by giving out mental stores we make those stores more permanently our own—for what we keep to ourselves we lose, but what we give away we really keep.

It is the same with spiritual wealth—it come to pass. If others are not benefited by our spiritual wealth, we shall soon have little or none left. It is only by giving out to others that we can keep that which we have, but by giving out—passing on—we increase the wealth we have and augment the blessedness we already possess.—J. Wilkinson.

Bible Money Terms.

The money mentioned in the Bible would possess the following equivalents today, says the Chicago Examiner: A shekel of silver, 32 cents, a shekel of gold, $10; a talent of silver, $2,000; a talent of gold, $200,000; a piece of silver or penny, 17 cents; a gerah, 3 cents; a farthing, 1 cent; a mite, less than a farthing.

There is but one county without railroad connection in the State of Colorado. Heretofore it has been considered quite a distinction not to be outside the railroad belt, and Grand, Rio Blanco, Baca and Routt counties were in the list of exclusives; but one after the other has been annexed, so to speak, to the outside world, Routt being the latest, until now little Baca county, away down in the southeast corner of the state, is left to enjoy the honor all by itself. In 1888 there wasn't a foot of railroad track in the then territory.

The Object of Jesus' Death.

In the Sunday school lesson of May 24, we find this question, "What was the object of Jesus' death, and why was it necessary?" The object in view was the delivering of the human race from the condition in which it was placed by the disobedience of Adam—its head. On account of disobedience man was debarred from access to the tree of life; and being made of the —mortal—death was the natural consequence, with all its train of suffering and woe. And as man lost happiness and life by the disobedience of the first Adam; so also by the obedience of the second Adam, he gains access to the tree of life. Therefore it is written, "As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive." But in order to obtain this favor for the human race, it was necessary for Jesus to render perfect, full and complete obedience to the divine law. God did not require his death as a penalty for man's sins; nor as our substitute, for in either case the law would then have held him in death forever. His whole life and death was a sacrifice to the righteous will of his Father; and that for a grand and noble purpose—the redemption of our race from the penalty of sin. Christ's life and death was a rare sacrifice; like the passover lamb—"without blemish;" holy, harmless, undefiled,—separate from sinners. Who can estimate the value of the sacrifice offered to the Creator by our Lord on behalf of the human race? All the gold of the earth, and the cattle of a thousand hills, would be but light if placed in a balance against the obedience and righteousness of our Redeemer.

Anticipating his righteous obedience it is written, "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither will thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. Thou wilt show me the path of life." Psa xvi 10. The justice of God was engaged to raise him from the dead. And anticipating this on the part of his Father, he says to his disciples, "Because I live, ye shall live also." Jno xiv 19. Therefore it is on account of his righteousness and obedience,—unto death that we receive the forgiveness of sins. And all the glorious promises contained in the book we call the Bible. This spotless offering of the holy One, inclined on our behalf the favor of God, and made it possible for God to be just, and the justifier of him that believeth in Jesus.

After all this let us not forget that it is written, "By grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God."

Report of Labor.

When I had finished my work in Stillwater, Sister Rohrback urged me to stop at Avery on my way through Oklahoma and go out two and one-half miles and visit Bro. and Sister Deffenbaugh, but I told her with more firmness than politeness, "No, I will not. I can't afford to use the little money that I have in traveling over the United States to visit brethren with whom I have no acquaintance, but will have to use it to get to places where they arrange meetings." I am not inclined to be controled by "impressions," but when I reached the station the "impression" increased that if I should stop at Avery; might hold meetings without previous planning. I stopped. Bro. Deffenbaugh took hold of the work with Christian zeal. A nice congregation gathered April 24th. Although the people are so busy plowing the ground and planting corn and cotton, that it is a task to get out nights, after their weary days, they have continued to come and the spirits of an unprofitable servant is revived. Last night I had reached talk No. 14 away in the center of Oklahoma. Meetings had progressed a week and Sister Beard responded to the call to obedience. She had said before these meetings that if she ever should have opportunity to be immersed by a minister that preached what she believed that she would be obedient. Here was her opportunity, she did not hesitate but came with first call. Yesterday my weary heart felt so tired that I dreaded the prospect that I am seeking all meetings that of walking into the cold water to bury the "dead to sin" and give the only likeness of a colder grave and brighter resurrection. I was revived from my mood by learning that Bro. Oliver will come here from his regular appointment near Arkansas City. This is so good! He and I had such a pleasant time at the new church on the Kansas and Oklahoma line. I want him here to help in telling the good news and to baptize believers.

Word came to me yesterday that the people want meetings in Avery as soon as I can complete this agreeable rural work. So I do not know how long I may remain with the Avery work.

LATER.

I closed my work Sunday evening till Thursday evening, when I expect Bro. Oliver here to assist and attend to the baptizing. Arrangements are made to begin meetings at the Methodist church in Avery the following week.

The 50th Annual Conference of the Church of God in Michigan, will be held in Dutton, beginning Tuesday evening, June 2, as voted at the fall conference. A lecture Tuesday evening, Wednesday and Thursday Bible lessons, with Brother Lindsay, of Oregon, Illinois as teacher.

The Conference meeting proper will open as usual Thursday evening, continuing over the next Sunday, with an hour each afternoon for Bible study.

This is the 50th Annual Conference in Michigan, and arrangements are being made to make this gathering very instructive and beneficial. It is greatly desired that every pioneer in the gospel of the kingdom will make an effort to be present and enjoy the sessions which will be set apart especially for them. If there are any brethren in Ohio, Indiana, or elsewhere who was in or know any thing of the '43 and '44 movement, we especially desire their presence or a paper prepared by them. Who does not wish to be present at this gathering and enjoy this religious feast. Remember friends, we are not making this extra effort because the people of Dutton alone need this spiritual uplift, but for the general good and advancement of Christ's cause, not only in Michigan, but in sister states. To this end we hope there may be a general rally to the standard of truth. We would like to have representatives from every state in the union and Canada. They will be received with a hearty welcome. If there should happen to be so many present that improvised floor beds become a necessity—why, the more the merrier. You will enjoy the good gospel truths better the next morning.

We are expecting F. L. Austin, of Fonthill, Canada, as one of the speakers, and we hope other able brothers and sisters will come, determined to give much good, as well as receive much. The board and lodging will be free.

Brother D. Paine, of Meadon, is the Chairman of Committees: six others to fill different committees to be chosen by him. We trust these committees are hard at work, for there is certainly no time to be lost now in preparation. Will these committees—especially the one to arrange programs for meetings, please correspond with me, as it will be necessary to announce it a little later in THE RESTITUTION.

Those coming to this meeting will have to reach Grand Rapids Union Station in time to take the Michigan Central train at 4 o'clock, as the one at 5 is a flyer and does not stop at Dutton. The next train will leave Grand Rapids at 11:30 p m.

No one will wish to miss the able sermons and Bible instruction given by Brother Lindsay. Come one and all.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. ch. 13, "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pre-Eminent Great Price, which was much better.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, sent a money order in his own name and said it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when he's ready picks up an envelope that has addresses it, puts so[illegible] in the box. He [illegible] work, [illegible] points—he did [illegible] sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Give to the Winds thy Fears.

Give to the winds thy fears;
Hope, and be undismayed;
God hears thy sighs and counts thy tears:
God shall lift up thy head.
Through waves, and clouds, and storms,
He gently clears thy way;
Wait thou his time, so shall this night
Soon end in joyous day.

Still heavy is thy heart?
Still sink thy spirits down?
Cast off the weight, let fear depart,
Bid every care be gone.
What though thou rulest not?
Yet heaven, and earth, and hell
Proclaim, God sitteth on the throne.
And ruleth all things well!

Leave to his sovereign sway
To choose and to command;
So shalt thou, wondering, own his way,
How wise, how strong his hand!
Far, far above thy thought
His counsel shall appear,
When fully he the work hath wrought
That caused the needless fear.

Preach the Gospel.

"The things concerning the name of Jesus Christ." Acts viii 12 "And when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." Philip was carrying out the command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel—he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved * * * The 5th verse tells us that he "went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them" with the result that they believed and were baptized.

This makes it clear that to preach Christ is to preach the gospel which Christ commanded them, and in doing this preaching we see by the 12th verse that they set forth two or rather a double subject with evidence from the Scriptures on each part.

1 There was the testimony of the Scriptures concerning the kingdom of God and the testimony concerning the Messiah or Anointed for whom the people of Israel had long been looking: but to this the apostles added their own personal testimony that Jesus was the one the Scriptures had long foretold, as told by their prophets from Moses down to Malachi. Moses had said, The Lord will raise up a prophet from among your brethren like unto me" (a leader, a lawgiver, a mediator and intercessor).

Haggai refers to him as the Desire of all nations.

Isaiah as Emmanuel, Prince of Peace, Root of Jesse.

Zechariah as The King.

Job and Isaiah, The Redeemer.

Malachi as Sun of Righteousness, Messenger of covenant.

These titles which were divinely inspired are intimately connected with the gospel of the kingdom, for they will meet their fulfillment in the kingdom, but they are not the name of Jesus. They have their place in the things concerning the kingdom of God—the first of the two separate lines of facts—separate yet joined and built together into one consistent whole in the gospel. Yet it is possible to believe one-half of the subject matter of the gospel and reject the other. And, alas for truth, many thousands do just that very thing. The Jews read the Scriptures and looked for a king to come and set up the kingdom in power and glory surpassing that which they had in the days of David and Solomon. But when God sent Him whose right it was, they could not see in him the One the Prophets had foretold, and so they said, We will not have this man to reign over us.

Now we look around us and see thousands of intelligent people reading the Scriptures quite as zealously as the Jews did 1900 years ago, and who see things concerning the name of Jesus, but who are utterly blind when it comes to seeing the things concerning the kingdom. Both parts of this gospel must be preached and be believed. Neither half of it will constitute a saving power—the gospel of Christ of which Paul said he was not ashamed. Rom i 16.

The promise of a kingdom begins with a promise of the land or territory in which it was to be established. This foundation promise is found in Gen xiii 14, 15, where we read, "the Lord said unto Abram after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes and look from the place where thou art, north, south, east, and west for the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever." And in the 15th chapter we also read, In the same day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates. This is a far greater territory than the children of Israel ever occupied under the covenant of the law of Moses, which was made 430 years afterward.

In Gen xlix Jacob (or Israel as he was called) the father of the 12 patriarchs calls these sons to his presence to give them his last words before he dies. By a spirit of prophesy given him, he foretells their several positions and inheritances—outlining the future of their children, the twelve tribes—telling them of things which shall befall them in their latter days.

Now in this blessing of his sons, we find that Judah has great pre-eminence and favor—being given power and authority under the emblem of a lion, and the words are spoken which make Judah the beginning of the royal house—saying, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a law-giver from between his feet, until Shiloh come, and unto him shall the gathering of the people be."

Long years elapsed before there was any king of Israel or royal family, but this word of Jacob was confirmed when God sent Samuel to anoint a king who should be the head of a kingly line over Israel, for it was to Bethlehem, in the land of Judah that he was sent; and there he anointed David, a descendant of Judah, king of Israel. This kingly line was established forever for we read in the 89th Psalm 3, 4, "I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, Thy seed will I establish forever and build thy throne to all generations." This is again also positively confirmed as referring to Jesus by the words of the angel Gabriel, as recorded in 1 chapter of Luke, saying to Mary, He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

Beyond all question these words voice the hope and expectation of the faithful of that generation, for we read of Zacharias being filled with the Holy Spirit and prophesying, said, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people, and hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David, as he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began. Luke i 67-69. And in agreement with this we find the apostle Peter speaking of David and Jesus—showing that David also promised of the resurrection of Christ when he made an oath that he would raise up Christ to sit on his (David's) throne. And this Jesus hath God raised up whereof we are all witnesses, therefore, let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ. Acts ii 36.

But now, God having invited Jesus to heaven, as Peter quotes from the 110 Psalm, until his enemies are made his footstool. We see why the royal throne of David was not, and still is not set up. The King (Jesus) has taken that journey to a "far country" according to the parable told, leaving his goods in his servants, trusting until he shall return clothed with royal power and glory, with honor and majesty, and retinue of holy angels with him.

In Acts iii we again read the words of Peter to the Jews who had not accepted the Lord or the miracles of Jesus as proof of his kingly rights as Son of David and Abraham's seed and heir according to the promise. You remember that in Ezek [illegible] 27, the prophet declares that [illegible] of God to temporarily overt[illegible] throne and kingdom "until [illegible] right it is." Now Peter [illegible] Acts, The God of Abraham [illegible] and Jacob, the [illegible] hath glorified his Son Jesus [illegible] have delivered up and denied him in the presence of Pilate (they said, We will have no king but Cæsar), when he (Pilate) was determined to let him go. But ye denied the holy One and Just, and desired a murderer to be released unto you, and killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses. And his name, through faith in his name, hath made this man strong.

On the memorable walk to Emmaus, Jesus had said to the down-hearted disciples, Oh fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken, and beginning at Moses and all the Prophets he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself. Luke xxiv 25.

Further on we read how he opened their understandings, that they might understand the Scriptures. And he said unto them Thus it is written and thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day; and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witnesses of these things. Luke xxiv 45-48.

In Acts i 3, we read that Jesus showed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God."

The purpose of all the great care to instruct the disciples what to preach can be for [illegible] less than that it was necessary for those who were to be saved by hearing and believing their words to know them. Is it any less so now? Will anything else but the things Jesus said to preach have the power to save? In John xx 31 we read that these things are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God: and that believing ye might have life through his name.

In 1st chapter of Heb we learn that God, who in times past spake unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things. Being made so much better than the angels as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they. And Phil ii 9 also, Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him and given him a name which is above every name. That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven and things in earth and things under the earth. And when Paul was taken to Rome as a prisoner who had appealed to Cæsar, his first concern was to get a hearing with the Jews who knew the Scriptures. We read in Acts xxviii 23, And when they appointed him a day, there came many unto his lodgings, to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses and the Prophets, from morning till evening.

The name Jesus in Greek form of Joshua (Jehovah is salvation). Peter being filled with the Holy Spirit said the Jewish rulers and elders of Israel, "that by the name of Jesus Christ (the Anointed) whom they had crucified and whom God had raised from the dead, the miraculous healing had been done. This, said he, is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner. Neither is there salvation in any other (Name) (why?) For there is no other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. Jesus—Joshua—for he shall save his people from sin 1, Thou is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ (the Anointed) Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

Gal iii 26, For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.

Rom vi 4, Therefore we are buried with him [illegible] into death; that [illegible] Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life—not in spirit in them.

2 Cor v 14 17, For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead; and that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him who died for them and rose again.

Prov xxv 25, As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country. Isn't it a message of refreshing as cold waters—isn't it a message from "the far country" where our King has gone?

Notes by the Way.

While at Carnegie, Oklahoma, I experienced the kind hospitality of Sister Dorsey and husband, and also her father, Brother H. Morrow.

This place is about one thousand miles to the southwest of Chicago. It is the home of the Apache and Kiowa tribes of the American Indians. As a boy, no story fascinated me so much as an Indian story. I wondered if I should ever be permitted to meet some of the full-blooded descendants of the red men who roamed the prairies and forests of this great country prior to its invasion by the white man. I have had my desire gratified. I have visited their camp, and witnessed their customs, religious and otherwise.

The Indian can never be brought to conform himself to the customs and life of the white man. They love the out-door life. If they had houses they would not live in them. There is no place like home to him, and that home is his wigwam, and his easy chair the ground. He is a child of nature and will always remain such. They love bright colors, and delight in adorning his person with them, sometimes to the extent which makes him appear quite comical.

From Carnegie, I took my journey homeward, for a brief rest, having been four months on a conservative trip. At 8:30 A. M. I took the train on the Magnum Branch of the Rock Island R. R. for Oklahoma City, passing through the early historic places of Anadarko, Fort Cobb, and Chickasha. Having some little time to wait at Oklahoma City, where I made a change of cars for the Frisco Road, by appointment, Sister Hannah Butler met me at the depot. I certainly enjoyed a brief visit with this earnest Sister. It always seems to me that there is a friendship and kinship between those who are of the Faith, which does not exist with those of other faiths.

As you are aware, Oklahoma has a State Constitutional prohibition of the liquor traffic. It seemed strange to me, as I passed through that State visiting her towns, cities, and villages, not to see the usual saloons. Across the street from the Frisco depot at Oklahoma City, I saw a large sign over a building "Wholesale Liquor Dealers." The liquor was a thing of the past, the building was now occupied by a large clothing firm, where the poor drunkard on account of saving the money usually spent for intoxicating drink, could exchange his rags for good clothing, and feel like a respectable man once more. What a blessing it is to any State to get rid of the blighting curse of intemperance. I traveled considerably over the State and never saw a single intoxicated person. The cities and towns bear an air of prosperity and respectability, that can never exist where the saloon dominates the community. If Oklahoma maintains the principle she has started with, there is a great future in prospect for that State.

The time having arrived for the departure of the train, I bid good-bye to Sister Butler, and started for St. Louis, at about 1:30 P. M. and arriving at St. Louis at noon the next day. Brother Jeffrey, of Murfreesboro, was at the depot to meet me. The occasion of his being in St. Louis was to attend the funeral of Brother Dodge, who had fallen asleep in Jesus. I had met Brother Dodge during the series of meetings which I had previously held in St. Louis. He was baptized in England, by the Christadelphians. He loved the one, true faith and hope of the gospel, and held to it unceasingly until the day he fell asleep in Jesus.

I was truly glad to meet our Brother Jeffreys. We went to dinner together, after which, for about two hours we had a pleasant visit conversing on those topics which lie nearest every true believer's heart.

The time having arrived for his train to depart, we bid each other good bye.

Sometime after his departure Sister Logan, of the Hygeneic Home, came to see me. She is another believer, whose whole heart is centered in the Blessed Hope. She is constantly looking day by day for the coming of the King in his glory. I have become pretty well acquainted with her during the series of meetings which I held in the home. She remained and visited with me until about 7:30 P. M.

Our conversation naturally drifted along the line of the great salvation. It seems as natural for believers to do so as it is for water to run down hill. The theme of the Lord's coming is the topic of topics which delights believer's heart, and they can heartily respond to the poet, when he says:

"The Lord is coming! let this be
The herald note of jubilee,—
And when we meet, and when we part,
The salutation from the heart."

For hours our conversation drifted along this line, and it was to us a feast of fat things. How sweet is true heart communion, over things divine.

"Mid scenes of confusion and creature complaints,
How sweet to my soul is communion with saints.
To feast at the banquet of mercy there's room,
And feel in the presence of Jesus at home."

This continued until 7:30 P. M. when our young Brother Butterfield, of St. Louis, informed that I was at the Union Depot, came to see me. Soon after this, Sister Logan went home, and Brother Butterfield remained, and saw me on the train for my home in Chicago, Illinois, which left at nine o'clock, P. M.

I was pleased to meet this young brother. He was baptized about two years ago, near Fredericktown, Missouri. He says that he will surely be at the Iowa Missouri Conference, which will meet either the last of August, or first of September. I would suggest to the Committee of Arrangements, that the first week in September will be the least likely to conflict with other conferences.

Having bid good by to Brother Butterfield, the train moved forward, and I arrived in Chicago at seven o'clock, in the morning.

I was pleased to find my family as well as they were. While I was away from home they were all seriously sick at the same time with the grip, and had to have the aid of a physician. The sisters in Chicago were very kind in ministering to their necessities.

I am now at home for a rest, but can respond to calls in the surrounding states.

I wish to call attention to a notice in another part of THE RESTITUTION, entitled, "To Hell, and Back Again." I should be pleased to have an immediate response.

"I long dearest Lord, to thy beauties to shine,
So long as an exile, in sorrow to pine,
And in thy dear image, arise o'er the tomb,
With glorified millions to praise forever more."

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

In Oklahoma.

Our meeting near Avery progressed with some interest at the school house two miles from Avery. Bro. S. C. Oliver arrived from Attica, Kan. May 12 during a few evenings of rest that we were giving the people in anticipation of his assistance and so we opened the meetings together. During these meetings Bro. Oliver spoke thirteen times and I gave eighteen talks. Only one (Mrs. Bird) answered the call to obedience. This is a comparatively slow work but is not discouraging.

We begin meetings in Avery at the Methodist church this 19th of May.

Our progress over the road to Portland, Oregon, is likely to be slow if meetings on the way continue as the one just closed. We cannot estimate the good that may be accomplished by the seed sown till it has time to germinate and bring forth its results. We were entertained with true hospitality by Bro. and Sister Deffenbaugh and the entire neighborhood. Their attention and kindness was health inspiring. This and change of climate and the care of Providence give us assurance that the work of his servant is not yet to end.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Then a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, the prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 3, 1908

IT is reported that an ocean liner, with 1600 passengers, from Antwerp to New York, was wrecked during a fog in the North Sea and all lost.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

BROTHERS Allard and Marsh have opened their Iowa tent work, beginning at Hudson on May 29. A good start is made in spite of unfavorable weather. These brethren are both faithful workers, and we pray that the Father will be with them by his gracious Spirit, that they may be enabled to so present the Word that a few more may be gathered out before it is too late.

THERE is considerable questioning as to how far the powers will allow Japan to go in the administration of affairs in Manchuria. It was the supposed intention to give over control to China, but Russia leans on in the north, and Japan to the south. The railroads and all business in general is so manipulated that other nations are being squeezed out, and there is much speculation as to how much they will stand before some one will rebel at the high handed outrages now being practiced.

A MAN has now appeared in Chicago claiming to be the real genuine John Alexander Dowie, that the other one who died some months ago was his brother Herman, and took his name and prerogatives by fraud—was an imposter. He has set up in the real simon-pure healing business, donned cassock and surplice, and awaits the coming of the "faithful." For his door-keeper he has secured the service of "Father" Francis Schlatter, who flourished in the west as a "divine healer" about ten or twelve years ago. Will this new "Leader" get any followers? Sure he will—they all do.

IT seems to be the fad now for combinations, and President Fallieres of France has just made a visit to King Edward of England. This friendly act has given rise to much talk of an Anglo-French pact, and while it is not claimed that a full alliance is contemplated, yet there is no hesitation in saying that the present understanding has all the values of an alliance without its embarrassing features. It was thought not long ago that Germany and France would probably unite on a more perfect understanding, it being pointed out that on account of the weakness of the British army any pact with England would have little value: but the navy of Great Britain must have turned the scales. Germany is now alarmed for the value of the triple alliance, owing to the well known friendly feeling of Italy for England and France. It is now stated that King Edward has announced his intention to visit St. Petersburg. This is looked upon as sure to result in an understanding that will unite England, France and Russia, and German papers profess to see in this combination a menace to the peace of the world, as it will decidedly unbalance the powers of all Europe. On the other hand it is argued that the peace of the world is assured by such an entente, as it but serves to check the aggressive policy of the German Emperor. As France wishes to be free in her administration of affairs in North Africa, any thing that will check German interference is welcome to her just now. It seems as if matters were playing into her hands at present. It is an interesting study to any one to watch the movements of the nations, and should be doubly so to the child of God, as it is certain that the Father's hand is controlling in national affairs, and when his time is ripe he will send his Son to take the reins and subject all to his sway. We pray for that event to soon come. Meanwhile we watch with intense interest what is passing into history each day. We make no predictions as to the movements, but note them, and see how they are so surely working toward the ultimate outcome. Great events are just ahead so be on the look out.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 14.

THE RISEN CHRIST BY THE SEA OF GALILEE. JOHN XXI 1-25.

Golden text. Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world. Matt xxviii 20.

After Jesus had appeared among his disciples in the room where they had shut themselves in. After he had convinced Thomas that he was risen indeed. And after many other signs of his actual resurrection he appeared again to his disciples—seven of them—at the Sea of Galilee, Sea of Tiberias, Sea of Gennesaret, Sea of Cinnereth, sometimes called the Lake.

Jesus had—at the beginning of his ministry—called together the twelve disciples. Matt x 2-4. Recalled them to be fishers of men. Mark i 17. He went through every city and village with them, teaching them how to preach the glad tidings of the kingdom of God. Luke viii 1. Teaching them how to be fishers of men. He said, The gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations. Matt xxiv 14. He told them they would be brought before the council, be beaten, also be brought before rulers and kings for his sake.

But the gospel must be preached to all nations, Mark xiii 9-10. From these and many other expressions and instructions from their Master, they knew that he had called them to a life work. That from now on, as long as they lived—or were allowed to live—their business was to preach and demonstrate the gospel, for which they would be killed. John xvi 2.

When Jesus was put to death, the disciples concluded that that was the the last of him. He had twice appeared to them, and they knew he had risen from the dead, but they did not resume their fishing for men, they turned to their old work, they toiled all night, the morning found them coming ashore with empty net and boats. Jesus appeared to them for the third time standing on the shore. He did not allow them to know him. He must have been to them as any stranger watching them coming in. His question was common at fishing ports. The reading is, "Children—or Sirs—have you any meat?" We would say, "What luck?" or some such question. Any reader who has fished, or lived among fishers knows that there is nothing unusual about a poor catch, or an empty boat.

Jesus said, "Cast the net on the right side of the ship." It is certainly surprising that they did it. Any such request or command from a stranger would be most likely to provoke anger or contempt from seven tired men experienced fishers, and the boat in shallow water. it must have been something in the voice and influence of Jesus entirely different from an ordinary stranger. They did as he said and caught more fish than they could fairly manage. From the story we know that if Jesus had not been there the nets would have been broken, and they would have lost much. This was not the first time Jesus had helped them in the same way. Luke v 4-9.

This wonderful catch revealed the stranger. John said to Peter, "It is the Lord." He saw them land their net with one hundred and fifty-three great fish, then invited them all to the excellent breakfast he had provided and cooked for them. Still more, he served them till they were fully satisfied. This was another kindly manifestation of his love for his chosen ones, John vi 70. Jesus Christ, like his Father showed his great love for his own far more by works than by words. In modern "religious" works—books—there is much insipid talk about the love of God and Christ. It becomes common-place and tiresome, entirely unlike the Scriptures. Peter three times denied Jesus, here he three times says he loves him, and he did. Three times he is told to "Feed my sheep" this also he did. Jesus forewarned him that he would—for his loyalty and obedience—be put to death and thus glorify God. The faithful now are in no danger of a violent death, or even punishment, but in great danger from the very opposite. Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees.

At the Breaking of Bread.

"Not to abide his wrath, but to obtain salvation hath God appointed us through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us that whether we wake or sleep we should live together with him." 1 Thes. v. 9-10.

God's great salvation is enshrined in Jesus Christ our Lord. to know him is eternal life. He it is who hath abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. He became the willing sacrifice, having paid the price, that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a people for his own possession, for it pleased the Father that in him "the Son should all followers dwell, being the appointed heir of all things. Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that sleep. This is the Father's will that of all which he has given me I should lose nothing but should raise it up at the last day. He that believeth on me though he were dead, yet shall he live again. What a strong encouragement for us who have fled for refuge to lay hold of the hope set before us, which we have as an anchor of the soul, a hope both sure and steadfast, the hope that we shall live again; for the Lord is coming with the trump of God, and the dead shall be raised and the living changed, so, whether we wake or sleep, we are the Lord's. And now we wait, and Paul says, Hasting unto and earnestly desiring the day of the Lord, for unto those who look for him will he appear the second time without sin unto salvation. We have become heirs of it, but we must hold fast to the end. Peter says, Receiving the end of your faith, even your salvation. Work out your salvation with fear and trembling, for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. By this we see salvation entire and complete will not be fully realized until the resurrection of the saints at the coming of the Lord.

My prayer is, that that day will soon come, that we might be saved from the pangs of death.

Bible School.

I will say to those who purpose to attend our June Bible School, that the history of creation and the fall of man will be briefly reviewed. You are therefore requested to re-read with care the first three chapters of Genesis. This review will be followed by a lesson on the nature of man, as being appropriate to what is said concerning his creation and fall. We will then take up the Old Testament lessons as outlined, beginning with the flood as the third great fact.

The New Testament lessons, entitled Cases of Conversion, will also be reviewed briefly as far as we examined them last June. This review will be followed by lessons on other cases bearing with the conversion of Cornelius, his household and friends. Re-read what was gone over and give several readings to the new lessons.

JOHN L. WINCE.

Dear Restitution:

Brother S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Ill. held a series of meetings at the Church of God in Warren Co. Indiana beginning Tuesday evening May 19, and closing Sunday the 24th. The meetings were a success; large crowds attending, both from town and country. The sermons were all instructive, and the best of attention was given. The good seed was sown, and on Saturday evening two young ladies made a new start in life, offering themselves for baptism. They were Mrs. Florence Thompson and Miss Goldie McNaffey. They were baptized at the Jordan Creek, one-half mile north of Pence.

Obituary.

Agnes Madeline Robb was born in Marshalltown, Iowa, Sept. 2, 1900, and died of whooping cough and convulsions Monday, May 18, 1908, aged 18 months and 16 days.

Agnes was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robb. The latter has for a number of years been an earnest, sincere believer in "the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ," and is truly bringing her little ones up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." May the divine blessing rest upon Sister Robb and her bereaved household. The writer spoke words of hope and comfort founded on the promises of God.

Salvation. No. 1.

A LIVING QUESTION.

Ever since the fall of our first parents salvation has been a theme of vital interest to man. Angels have not been indifferent to the condition into which sin plunged the human family; and as moral beings they have felt a deep concern in the recovery of man from his defilement by sin. There is a beautiful passage in 1 Peter i on which I have often meditated. The subject of discourse here is man's salvation. Verse 9 reads, "Receiving the end of your faith the salvation of your souls. Concerning which salvation the prophets have enquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you; searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them, did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow. Unto whom it was revealed that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things, which are now reported unto you by them that preached the gospel unto you by the Holy Spirit sent down from heaven: which things angels desire to look into." Here is one brief sentence showing the deep concern of these heavenly beings in the plan of salvation, as if their hearts were burdened with man's sad condition, and that they would willingly help him to rise to a higher plane of life. Jesus speaks of joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth: language implying that they share in the joy of God over one sinner drawn to him by his constraining love.

A passage in the Hebrew letter shows the active part these celestial beings took in the operation of the great plan. The language is in the form of a question, but one that affirms: Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister or to do service for them who shall be heirs of salvation? Heb i 14. If angels were moved to compassion and sped on errands of mercy to our world what should it behoove man to do for himself; fallen and undone as he is: the creature in sorest need? If his case is such as to excite the pity of superior beings, and enlist the love of God and his Son, surely the sinner should choose without delay the priceless boon of eternal life. It is appropriate here to quote that most touching of all texts, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John iii 16 One would think that so touching an appeal made by God whose displeasure had been incurred by repeated and aggravating sins, would move the hardest heart to sorrow and repentance. Yet against the power of this appeal made through God's only begotten Son, the great majority of those with the Bible in hand make no effort to learn the way of salvation, and conform to the requirements of the gospel. They waste their fleeting lives in sin and folly and go down into death with the certain prospect of the judgment and the doom of the second death. My sinner friend who reads these words will you continue in the company of unbelievers who tread the broad way to destruction, or will you choose the narrow way that leads unto everlasting life? The latter is in easy reach. You are invited, lovingly solicited, and urged by the power of every motive to lay hold of the hope set before you in the gospel. You cannot afford to lose eternal life. The loss is too great. The voice of heavenly love is falling on your ears. Will you suffer it to touch your heart? Turn ye, turn ye, for why will ye die? God says, "I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth." Ezek xviii 31, 32. "He is longsuffering to usward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." 2 Pet iii 9. "He has commanded all men every where to repent; because he hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men in that he hath raised him from the dead." Acts xvii 30, 31. It is a fearful thing to do, disobey a command of the Almighty; yet the great majority of men and women dare to do it; many of them seemingly as indifferent to the doom awaiting them as the dumb animal is of the fate awaiting it at the hand of the butcher. How strange that rational responsible creatures should shut out from their minds the thought of their final destiny. Says Paul, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." Heb x 31. This statement follows immediately the words, "Vengeance belongeth unto me and I will recompense saith the Lord." How is it possible for men to persuade themselves that God does not mean much by his words of doom? He is faithful to his own promises and so will he stand to his own threatenings. The command to repent is backed by the awful fact of a righteous judgment that will fix forever the destiny of men and women, and this judgment is assured by the fact that God raised his Son from the dead. How searching is Paul's question, And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them that do such things and doest the same thou shalt escape the judgment of God? The like deeds in the lives of Jew and Gentile if unrepented of are worthy of the same doom.

I quote another question equally searching, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" Heb ii 3. The impossibility of escape is emphasized by the fact of the certain infliction of punishment on the transgressors of the law. If every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward how shall we escape: The law was spoken by angels. It is a covenant inferior to the new covenant, yet every violation of its provisions was followed by punishment; this being true, how can any one hope to escape the threatened penalty under the new covenant which is superior. Neglect to heed the gracious call of the gospel will surely incur God's displeasure, and provoke his righteous indignation. The call of the gospel is the call of love. "God is love," says John. This is the underlying principle of the gospel and is its constraining power. "The love of Christ constraineth us, says Paul, 2 Cor v 14. God loved us before we loved him.

The sinner prefers to be drawn instead of being driven, so the gospel makes its appeal to the human heart: it searches for the tender cords in man's nature. Howard the great philanthropist who devoted his whole life to the work of improving both the physical and moral condition of criminals incarcerated in the prisons of Europe, found that there was a tender spot in the heart of the most hardened and abandoned wretches, and that to his appeals there came a response. Home, mother, and childhood's innocency alluded to by the kindly hearted Howard touched a spot that crime could not harden.

Man is a sinner in the sight of God; a transgressor of his holy law., Paul says, "I had not known sin except through the law; for I had not known lust except the law had said 'Thou shalt not covet.'" Rom. vii. 7. Sin is no trifling matter. "The carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither can be." Rom. viii. 7. Sin is so grave a matter that the apostle says. "If ye live after the flesh ye shall die." Unpardoned, and unreconciled to God, man is in a sad and hopeless condition. Death is his unavoidable doom. He is shut up to this by a law that knows no mercy. So his sorest need is pardon, granted by the great and good Being he has so repeatedly offended. He must be made conscious of the fact that guilt has been removed. Thank God for extension of mercy on conditions plainly made known and within the measure of man's ability to perform.

Say to the brethren of the Church of God scattered, that our annual meeting at and near Bosworth, Mo. will be held at the Brown School house two and one-half miles north of Bosworth, meeting to begin on Saturday June 20th, and continue over Sunday, and longer if necessary.

The programme will be, the Gospel of the kingdom of God." On Sunday at 11:00 a m the sermon will be by the writer, the text being that by the angels to the shepherds—Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. Luke ii 10.

At noon a basket dinner. Let all home folks bring baskets well filled with some thing to feed the outer man, and to feed brethren and friends from a distance. Let any who expect to attend write to Elbert Murray, at Bosworth, Mo. All are invited, so let us have at least one more good meeting at Bosworth.

My preaching days are nearly over, and I soon will have to do my preaching by writing. Come let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching.

19 What does John say about the things Jesus did in the presence of his disciples?
20 What was the purpose of John's writing?

THOUGHTS ON THE LESSON.

The resurrection of Jesus is assurance of more glorious things to come

Jesus does not reprove for doubts, so much as he gives stronger reasons for faith in him.

The way to get rid of doubt is to come nearer to Jesus—get better acquainted with him.

If doubts are fostered and cherished they soon grow into doubts of God, and then love and faith are dead. In Mark xi 22, Jesus says "Have faith in God."

The truest [illegible] that [illegible] clearly proven [illegible] hold fast that which is good. 1 Thes v 21.

By neglecting to meet with the disciples on the First Day, Thomas had a whole week of perplexing doubt and misgivings—altogether a wretched experience. It could have been avoided had the sentiment of Paul been in his heart. "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is." Heb x 25.

When we want to extinguish a fire we scatter the coals and each [illegible] surrounded by air soon cools off and dies out. A number of disciples keeping apart—not meeting to stimulate and encourage and give life, soon are cooled off—soon die spiritually. The flame of love is quenched by the chill atmosphere—no warmth, no life. "Let us not forsake our meetings, as is the custom of some; but entreat ye one another; and the more, as ye see the day draw near."—Syriac.

AN EXPOSITION of ISA. VII 14-16.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, Oregon, Ill, designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay 5cts. for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scriptural teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

EBENEZER—1 Samuel vii 12.

Secret of a Happy Day.

Just to let thy Father do
What He will;
Just to know that He is true,
And be still.
Just to follow hour by hour
As he leadeth;
Just to trust Him, this is all;
Then the day will surely be
Peaceful whatsoe'r befall,
Bright and blessed calm and free.

Just to trust, and yet to ask Guidance still;
Take the training or the task
As he will.
Just to take loss or gain,
As he sends it;
Just to take the joy or pain,
As he lends it.
He who formed thee for his praise
Will not miss the gracious aim;
So today and all the days,
Shall be moulded for the same.

Just to leave in his dear hand
Little things,
All we cannot understand,
All that stings.
Just to let him take the care
Sorely pressing,
Finding all we let him bear
Changed to blessing.
This is still and yet the way
Marked by him who loves thee best;
Secret of a happy day,
Secret of his promised rest.

The Egotist.

We often meet him, and we cordially dislike him. He is sharper than anybody else, and he excels the world in executive ability. You may preach, but he preaches better; you may do your work well, but he does his better; every where and at all times he is in the lead. Equally he is a great debater: this art is his specialty. He always "beats the other fellow." And not satisfied with the other fellow's defeat and his own triumph, he likes to keep his victory before the people. He keeps ringing in the ears of his listeners the contest, the battle; and then the climax must not be omitted—he brags. He must tell this to draw attention to himself. We wish we could so effectually expose egotism that our readers would become disgusted with it, and abhor it as a sin of the first magnitude. In an effort to do better per- ding report ns an exam- quently met among our brethren.

I once met a preacher in debate. He was a great debater, an adept at the art, but he did not know me. He asked, How could John on the isle of Patmos see redeemed souls, and hear them sing, if souls are not immortal and do not go to heaven at death? I just read to him from the first chapter of Revelation that the things seen by John in vision were to come to pass "hereafter." So John did not see any thing in his visions but things future from his day. This explanation took the preacher by surprise; it silenced him. He did not know what to say. You see he did not know any thing about the Bible, and when he struck me he soon got tangled up. I was too sharp for him. Perhaps he had debated before and defeated his opponents, but this was his first time to meet me. I have debated all my life, but I now can hardly get an opponent to meet me—they all know me and they are afraid of me. I replied to every point the preacher made in his speech; I never omitted one. The people looked at me; they were amazed. I held them spell-bound all the time I was speaking. I concluded my speech, I dismissed the meeting, I was tired, and I sat down in the pulpit. The preacher was thunder-struck, and coming to me he said, "My! you are a powerful speaker; you know the Bible by memory." And just then a lady came from the audience, and taking me by the hand said, "I must not leave till I tell you what a wonderful sermon you gave us; it was grand." Euphonic words, and I did appreciate them. Even members of my opponent's church said I beat him. Of course he fought hard, but it was no use—I beat him.

Perhaps every word of this report is true, but by reporting it in an egotistical style, the reader becomes disgusted and learns to hate the egotist. And what is worse, such egotistical "droppings of the sanctuary" violates some of the plainest commandments in the Bible. Prov xxi 4; xxvii 2; Acts v 36; viii 9; xx 30.

Dear brethren, let us avoid egotism, and copy the humility of Daniel, Dan ii 30, Joseph, Gen xli 16, Peter, Acts iii 12, 13, Paul, 2 Cor iii 5; Eph iii 8, and our dear Master, Pattern, and Example, the Lord Jesus Christ.—John xiv 10.

Our Earthly House.

2 Cor v 1-10.

Brother Huggins:

You will think you have an article for publication when you get this letter. I do not want to take too much of your time which I know is fully occupied, but I want you to help me a little on 2 Cor v 1-10. Some of our brethren understand that the "earthly house" is the present order of things or the governments of the world; that the "house from heaven" with which we are to be clothed, is the Kingdom of God; and that the body spoken of in the 6th and 8th verses refers to the Body of Christ or his chosen. I cannot read this interpretation into the 6th and 8th verses and get harmony out of them, for the reason that the chosen ones are to be united with the Lord at his coming. How could Paul, whose love for the brethren was so great, say he would rather be absent from the body of Christ when present with the Lord? We are told that we cannot groan in our mortal bodies; that this favors immortal souls. But Rom vi 23 reads, "We groan within ourselves." Verse 22 refers to the present order of things, but verse 23 to "we ourselves." I see no violation of language in saying, "I groan within myself;" do you? John xi 33 says Jesus groaned within himself and was troubled.

Surely Peter must mean his own mortal body when he says, "This my tabernacle," 2 Peter i 13, 15, referring to his death as the Lord had shown him. John xxi 18, 19. I think Paul means the same thing in 2 Tim iv 6; Phil i 21, 23 and 2 Cor v 1-10. In 2 Cor iv 6, 7, knowledge is said to be in "earthen vessels," and in the 16th verse we read, "Though our outward man perish (is decaying, mortal, R V), yet the inward man (the mind, Rom vii 22, 23, the "hidden one of the heart,' 1 Pet iii 3) is renewed by his spirit." To say the subject is now changed, and make verse 18 apply to governments, etc., seems to me too radical a change to accept.

Kindly help me a little on this Scripture. You make things so plain. May God bless you and give you a long life to labor for him.

Your sister in Christ,
LUELLA SMITH.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

We are impressed by reading Sister Smith's well written letter that she does not need any "help" from us in the way of comments on her epistle. However, we will say this much. When Paul speaks of our "earthly house", he certainly means our natural bodies. Our bodies were "formed of the dust of the ground" (Gen ii 7); they are "of the earth, earthy," 1 Cor xv 47. As merely "houses of clay" (Job iv 19) they are "temporal" (2 Cor iv 18); and perhaps this fact is what lead the apostle to speak of them as a "tabernacle" or tent that is soon taken down or "dissolved." Unlike the natural body, the spiritual body obtained at the resurrection by the righteous, will be a "quickening spirit" like the Lord's present body of glory. 1 Cor xv 45; Phil iii 21. It appears to us that Paul in 2 Cor v is drawing a contrast between the present natural body under the similitude of a "tabernacle" soon to be "dissolved" in death, and the spiritual body which will be deathless and glorious and "eternal in the (new) heavens". The first body is natural, the second one is spiritual. 1 Cor xv 44. The first is temporal; the second is eternal. 2 Cor iv 18. The mortal body becomes immortal by a change wrought upon it by divine energy, "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye." In this way "mortality is swallowed up of life". 2 Cor v 4. When the mortal body is "swallowed up of life", we will be "absent from the body" (the mortal one), and "present with the Lord" in an immortal body. This is why the apostle was "willing" for the change. To represent him as saying, "Whilst we were at home in the Body of Christ, we are absent from the Body of Christ, and to be present with the Lord," is to give an explanation of his words out of harmony with his love of Christ, his brethren, and his daily prayer to dwell with the pure of all ages in the kingdom of God.

Editor's Canadian Tour.

On May 21st we continued our journey for Canada, going from Cleveland to Buffalo on the "City of Erie," the fastest boat on the Great Lakes. We went from Buffalo to Fonthill, Ont., on the trolley. Many people in the United States think of Canada as a big iceberg, but a visit to Ontario in May will remove that false impression. The weather was superbue, the numerous fruit trees all abloom, and scenting the air with the sweetest fragrance. Lake Ontario on the north, and Lake Superior on the south, [We feel certain that Bro. Huggins made a mistake as Superior is far away. It is probably Lake Erie.—ED.] Ontario peninsula is 25 miles wide and 40 miles long. The trolley runs in about the middle of this body of land, and the elevation gradually increases as you get nearer Fonthill, about fourteen miles west of Niagara Falls, N.Y. On reaching Fonthill, a beautiful village among the hills, you can go to the government Observatory, built on the highest point in Ontario, and see both lakes plainly. Near by is an 800 acre nursery—the largest nursery in Canada.

During our stay in Fonthill, we made our home with Brother P. E. Austin, pastor of the Church of God. His home was my home without any stiffness of formality or reservation. We did not have time to visit among the brethren, but made time for short calls on Brother Plain and son Wilburn, Brothers Beal and Bolton. We became well enough acquainted with the brethren at Fonthill, also the visitors, to fall in love with them—especially the children, may the Lord bless them.

The weather during the conference was splendid, the visitors were numerous, and the meetings good. Visiting brethren were in attendance from Solton, Hamilton, Toronto, Syracuse, Niagara Falls and Buffalo.

Brother Austin has been pastor of the Fonthill Church for four years. We heard him preach two strong sermons, very upbuilding to their influence. He has a very energetic, wide-awake church, as the reader can realize when we say that they have purchased a lot in the central part of Fonthill, have $1400 raised for a new church building, which they aim to have completed by next Christmas at a cost of $2000.

"One Body."

Every time we partake of the memorials of the broken body and shed blood of our Lord we are reminded by the broken bread that though we are "many members" and scattered far and wide yet we are "one body." 1 Cor x 17; xii 20. There could be no more beautiful and fitting symbol of this truth than the one selected by the Spirit and discoursed of by Paul in 1 Cor xii—the human body. An ocean-vision of blood rivers carries the life-giving fluid to all parts of the natural body (Lev xvii 11), so the water of life, which is the spirit-word, believed and assimilated to the mind receives to each member of the body of Christ. John iv 14; vi 63. The nerves also from one center reach to all parts of the body in pain or disease, causing other parts of the body to suffer in sympathy. So in the Christ body, even those who have never seen each other sympathize with one another in pain or trouble. 1 Cor xii 25-26.

The natural body is bound together by cords and muscles. So encircling the "one body" and binding all together is the golden band of love, "the bond of perfectness" (Col iii 14), without which all other virtues "profiteth nothing." 1 Cor xiii 1, 2, 3. As bread eaten, digested and assimilated forms bone, flesh and muscle, so to believe the word concerning him who gave his flesh for the life of all, assimilating it to our life and character, makes us "of his flesh and his bones," builds up a "new man" "renewed in knowledge after him that created him." John vi 51, 57; iii 16; Rom viii 10, 13 14; Eph v 30; Col iii 10.

In the natural body the movements of the limbs are directed by the head. Members of the body of Christ must also be controlled by their head—Christ. Eph iv 15 16; Col i 18; 1 Pet xi 21; John xiii 15. We learn from Matt xxv 40 45; 1 Cor viii 11-12, that the members of this body will be judged according to the way they have treated one another. And that to offend or injure even one of the weakest of his brethren is the same as to offend Christ. So we can see it is of the greatest importance that we search the Scripture to find out what our duties are to each other, and when we have found out, do them. Our first and greatest duty, and the one which includes all others, is love. Jesus said, John xiii 35, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love one to another." This is the badge that was to distinguish his brethren from all other bodies of people. "By this we know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren." John iii 14. "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law." Rom xiii 10. If one loves his brother he needs no law to compel him to do what is just and right by him, but will freely and gladly do all in his power for the good and happiness of that brother. How to love we are taught by 1 Pet i 22; 1 John iii 18: "With a pure heart fervently. Not in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth."—Anna Byrnes.

The Seven Signs.

The number seven is often used in the Bible as a symbol signifying completion, or a whole made up of seven parts. Thus, seven days complete a week, God completed creation and rested in seven days. Seven is appropriate for this purpose, because seven circles of equal size placed together form another circle. With no other number but seven or the multiple of seven can this result be attained.

When asked by his disciples, "What shall be the sign of thy coming and the end of the world." (Matt. xxiv. 3,) Christ gave them seven signs, each having reference to a period of time and to conspicuous events each succeeding the other, but altogether covering the intervening time until he comes and the kingdom of God is established. Each of these periods, and the events taking place within them, are pictured in greater detail in the symbols shown in the opening of the Seven Seals and under the Seven Trumpets of the Revelation.

The First Sign, is "Wars and Rumors of Wars" (Matt. xxiv. 6,) but not of such a nature as to afflict the church; as the Master says: "See that ye be not troubled," nor are they signs of the end; as he further says: "the end is not yet." This sign also corresponds to the events depicted in the opening of the first seal. Both find their counterpart in the period and events between the time when John wrote the Revelation and the accession of the Roman Emperor Commodus, covering the successive reigns of the Emperors Nerva, Trajan, Adrian, and the Antonines. A period remarkable for successful foreign wars, which Christians would hear about and hear rumors of, but which would give them no trouble. A period also remarkable for internal peace and prosperity.

The Second Sign, forbodes trouble. "Nation shall rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines, pestilences and earthquakes," says the Master, not marking the end but the "beginning of sorrows." The Second Sign is duplicated in the pictures, unfolded by the breaking of the second, third and fourth seals. (Rev. vi. 4 9.)

The Second Seal reveals a red horse and a great sword, any symbol of bloody civil war "peace taken from the earth" "that they should kill one another." This is followed by a black horse, a sign of sorrow and misery accompanied by a symbol of scarcity and famine, followed in turn by a pale horse with Hades following, on its back a gaunt rider, who has power to "kill with the sword, with hunger (famine) and with death (pestilence,) one-fourth of the people of the earth.

These pictures find their counterpart in that calamitous period and series of most tragic events which began during the reign of Commodus, in the year of 192 and extended to the year 284—92 years, during which was experienced the most prolonged, bloody and disastrous civil war history reveals, or humanity has experienced. The Great Roman Empire was split into fragments, each contending against the other. So intense was the strife, that during that period fifty-nine emperors and pretenders successively hurled each other from the throne, only two of whom died a natural death. This period terminated with a still more terrible disaster in the form of famine and pestilence. The most disastrous the world has known, well represented by the pale horse and its rider. "We might suspect," says the historian Gibbon, in speaking of that great calamity, "that war, pestilence and famine consumed in a few years a majority of the human species." "All these are the beginning of sorrows," says the Master.

The Third Sign, foretells more trouble and greater sorrows for Christians. "Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted and shall kill you, and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake," (Matt. xxiv. 9.) The Fifth Seal reveals the same event. Both are fulfilled in that terrible persecution which occurred under the Roman Emperor Diocletian and his associates, a period known in history as the "Era of Martyrs." There had been local persecutions before and many prominent church leaders had suffered martyrdom. Under this, the greatest of all persecutions prior to that time, both the civil and military arms of the empire were employed in an effort to stamp out and totally annihilate Christianity. Millions were imprisoned, suffered martyrdom or were compelled to flee the empire.

The Fourth Sign, "Then," says Jesus, "shall many be offended and shall kill one another, and shall hate one another." (Matt. xxiv. 10.) This foreshadows trouble of a different kind. It foretells apostacy. Trouble within instead of from without.

Immediately following the "Era of Martyrs" one of the greatest and most far-reaching revolutions known in history, occurred in the Roman Empire. It is depicted by the mighty earthquake revealed by the sixth seal, a revolution which united Constantine, the Great, on the throne and converted the Roman Empire from Pagan to Christian.

The Seventh Seal, among other things, reveals a picture of an angel standing before the altar of incense in the temple. He does a remarkable thing—taking the censer, he fills it with coals of fire from the altar and dashes them, as it were, among the assembled worshipers, whereupon, there are "voices and thunderings, and lightnings and an earthquake," plainly signifying that the church at that period would be rent by discord, that there would be a stormy time and a revolution, within the church itself.

Both the fourth sign and this remarkable symbol were fulfilled during the later years of the reign of Constantine and under his immediate successors, when the church was rent by the fierce tritheism and other controversies. "In the course of a few years" Bilhon says, "eighteen different models of religion were established," and he further speaks of "the flames of religious discord," "the bonds of civil society were torn asunder by the fury of religious factions," "the flames of the Arian controversy consumed the vitals of the empire," etc. Showing how fitting are the words of Jesus, and appropriate the symbol of the Revelation, as applied to that period and its events.

J. W. WILSON.

The True Christ.

1. The person of Christ is no mystery to those who know the Truth; and to know who he is, the Scriptures declare to be an essential to salvation. John xvii. 3; Matt. vi. 13-15; Jude 3; 2 Cor. xi. 3, 4, 13-15; John iv. 1-3, 15; v. 5; 2 John iii. 7-11.

2. Christ is called by various titles in the Old and New Testament Scriptures, such as Lamb, Worm, Lion, Root, Branch, Vine, Tree, Lily, Rose, Seed, Israel, Levi, David, Angel, Man, God, Jehovah, Everlasting Father, Ward, Light, Life, Way, Truth, Mediator, Shepherd, Bishop, Savior, Lord, Master, Priest, King, etc., etc., but these represent his offices and works, not his person. For instance, he is not personally a lamb, nor a worm, nor a vine, nor David, nor an angel, nor the Everlasting Father, nor the Word, nor the Way; but he is the Lamb because he is the antitype of the lamb that was slain for sin; he is a worm because he was despised and rejected of men.

He is the Vine because we must be joined to him to have life and fruit; he is David because he is the great King whom God has raised up for his people; he is the angel because he is the Messenger of God to men; he is Everlasting Father because he stands in the office of the Everlasting Father by which we may be begotten from above; he is the Word because he was begotten direct of the power and wisdom and love that made all things, and because in him dwelt this Word for the enlightenment and salvation of men; and he is the Way because in his teachings, example, sufferings, death and resurrection he has revealed the truth and grace by which alone we may come to God.

Not having the illumination of the Spirit of Truth to understand these things, the sects of men have tangled themselves up in fables and mysteries concerning Christ, and so have lost the saving knowledge and placed themselves under the leaven of antichrist. Some of these false teachers have Michael the Archangel for a christ; some have the first being God made for a christ; some have the second person of a triune god for a christ, some have a Christ that has no soul, but a human being and the other the infinite God, united in some mysterious way; some have a christ who was no person at all, but a mere form in which the infinite God manifests himself, etc., etc., christs without number, and the imaginations of men bereft of the Truth are always making new ones. —E. D. Gifford.

Australia's largest cattle herd is that running on the Victoria river station, Northern Territory, 320 miles south of Port Darwin. It numbers 60,000 head.

New York City gets a portion of its milk supply from as far as four hundred miles distant, and the product of 85,000 farms is drawn on to meet its daily wants.

The first dress silk that came to Kansas came with the "mid" from Boston during the dry summer of 1860. Some rich man in the east contributed it, having outgrown it, and a farmer named Pinwell, in Kaploma township, in this county, plowed corn in it all summer.—Atchison Globe.

In 1852 two rabbits were imported into Australia from England. These arrivals in that continent now number billions, and are a great pest. Five rabbits eat as much grass as one sheep. From 1878 to 1883 the Australian government paid out $5,888,015 as bounty for the noxious animals, at the rate of 25 cents each, and from 1883 to 1886 $2,200,000 for the same purpose. For some years the rabbits died by millions owing to the drought, but since 1904, with the rainy seasons increasing, they have again come into notice and bid fair to become as great pests as in the past.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John G Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

J. J. CADY, Sec'y.

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conference at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing; for we shall reap if we faint not.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of the brethren have statistics, facts or figures, showing the good that conferences have accomplished, I would be glad to have you communicate with me at Woodstock Va. I would like to secure a copy of same. Perhaps Brothers Lindsay, Allard, Wince, Wagoner, Brother and Sister Woodward, Brother Coster or Sister Emma Jackman and others who have been active in Conference work can help me out. Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money [illegible] easily detected and is at the owner's risk. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind, not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has handed alms to prudence his whole [illegible] often neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

REST.

He sees when their footsteps falter, and their hearts grow weak and faint;
He marks when their strength is failing, and listens to each complaint:
He bids them rest for a season, for the pathway has grown too steep
And, folded in fair, green pastures,
He giveth his loved ones sleep.

Like weary and worn out children that sigh
for the daylight's close,
He knows that they all are longing for home
and its sweet repose:
So he calls them in from their labors, ere the shadows around them creep,
And, silently watching o'er them,
He giveth his loved ones sleep.

He giveth it, oh, so gently, as a mother will hush to rest
The babe that she softly pillows so tenderly on her breast.
Forgotten are now the trials and sorrows
that made them weep,
For, with many a soothing promise,
He giveth his loved ones sleep.

He giveth it. Friends the tempest can never
This home bestow;
But he touches the drooping eyelids, and placid
the features grow:
Their foes may gather about them, and furies
may round them sweep
But, guarding them safe from danger,
He giveth his loved ones sleep.

All dread of the distant future, all fears that oppress today,
Like mists that clear in the sunlight, have noiselessly passed away.
No call nor clamor can rouse them from slumbers so pure and deep,
For only He whose can reach them
Who giveth his loved ones sleep.

Weep not that their toils are over; weep not that their race is run;
God grant we may rest as calmly when our work like their's is done!
Till then we would yield with gladness our treasure to him to keep,
And rest in the sweet assurance—
He giveth his loved ones sleep.

Looking Toward the Light.

I asked the roses, as they grew
Richer and lovelier in their hue,
What made their tints so rich and bright
They answered—"Looking toward the light"
Ah, secret dear, said heart of mine,
God meant my life to be like thine—
Radiant with heavenly beauty bright,
By simply looking toward the Light.

PARDON ON CONDITIONS.

Man needs to be pardoned. Who has the right to lay down the conditions or terms? Reasonably every one who knows himself to be a sinner ought to say, God alone has this right. Whatever he dictates, I will humbly and gratefully accept. Yet strange as it may seem all men are not willing that God should exercise this right. The moralist expects justification and salvation on the ground of his upright course of conduct, which course steadily pursued for a whole lifetime has called forth the admiration and approval of his fellows. He complacently compares his life with that of his neighbor, who makes a profession of Christianity, and in his own estimation he is quite as good, and in some cases he feels satisfied that he is better than those with whom he compares himself. Then there is the wretched specimen of a Christian the hypocrite, in comparison with whom the moralist feels himself on safe ground. Know this thou vain man, thou hast measured thyself by a human standard: God's standard is very different. Weighed in God's balance you will be found wanting. You are without the wedding garment which is the righteousness of the gospel, righteousness by faith. The moral man is self-condemned. Put these questions to him, Are you a Christian? No, I make no such pretension. Are you a believer of the gospel? I really do not know what constitutes the gospel. Do you co-operate with the Church of God in its work of promulgating the truth? No, except to throw a little money into the contribution box if I should, out of curiosity, to be at meeting. And yet you, some how or other expect to be saved? I think I stand about as good a show as some who make the Christian profession. Possibly. Are you sure that your honesty, integrity, temperate habits, benevolence, control of temper, and your many noble qualities of mind and heart, independent of belief of the gospel and obedience to its positive commands, will give you admittance into God's kingdom? Your good moral character would highly adorn the Christian profession. Why not turn Christian. The cause of truth is in need of your example, your moral force, and your intellectual endowments. You are daily robbing God of what belongs to him, the service of your life. You are deceiving yourself and imperilling your salvation, and in a measure that of others. You cannot afford to let life's opportunities all pass. The proffered boon of eternal life is of priceless worth. The strict observance of the law, or moral code apart from the gospel, can not justify. "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified in the sight of God." Rom iii 20. "Now we know that what things soever the law saith it saith to them who are under the law, that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God." This text excludes all boasting, and silences the assertions of self-righteousness. The law of God stops the mouth and places man in the attitude of a prisoner at the bar, and at the mercy of the Judge. The only thing to do is to plead guilty and sue for mercy. At this point comes in the blessed statement, "Being justified by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus." Rom iii 24. Justified freely. The sinner has not put God in debt by a long list of good works. It was God's love that prompted him to justify the sinful on easy conditions. It is a matter of love and mercy. There is nothing in the creature for God to admire and look down on complacently. So let no one boast of his good works. The apostle raises the question, "Where is boasting?" and answers, "It is excluded." By what law? of works? Nay, but by the law of faith. Rom iii 27. The man who depends upon his good works without faith in the gospel is disposed to boast, while the believer however weak and imperfect may be accepted on the ground of his humility, and dependence on God for all that he is and hopes to be. He realizes that he is an unprofitable servant. The truth that God justifies the guilty is what touches the heart of one feeling the burden of sin; and in return for such unmerited love and condescension, he loves God and surrenders himself to his service. Henceforth he is not his own for he was bought with a price; therefore he glorifies God in his body. He loves God because God loves him.

TWO SIDES TO THE QUESTION OF SALVATION.

The human and Divine. Man must do what God requires of him. God will do for man what he cannot do for himself. The work of saving man is a co-partnership of the most exalted kind. Man is lovingly invited to enter it by the Sovereign Proprietor of the universe. He comes in bankrupt by sin, but is made an honorable partner with a prospect of large dividends. It is true he brings into the business as an investment his talents, his energy of body and mind and his moral influence. The sum of these is small compared with what God and his Son have thrown into the business. Under another figure he is a member of a family, the household of faith; is an heir of God, a joint heir with Jesus Christ. He is now addressed as "no more a stranger and foreigner, but a fellowcitizen with the saints, and of the household of God." Eph ii 19.

How can the alien and foreigner come into such high and holy relationship as is here shown? Something is required of him, some action in order to become a child of God. Faith ranks first in order. Without this there can be no approach to God. Says Paul, in his letter to the Hebrews, Without faith it is impossible to please him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is rewarder of them that diligently seek him. Heb xi 6. Faith is a foundation principle in the Christian system. God not only demands faith in his existence, but faith in the gospel, whatever this embraces. He requires the hearty assent of the mind to the truth of the gospel.

In the 11th chapter of Hebrews we find a definition of faith with examples illustrating its power in notable persons. I give the Diaglott rendering by Wilson. "Faith is a basis of things hoped for, a conviction of things unseen." In the roll of ancient worthies here given not one doubted or wavered, though asked to believe promises, the fulfilment of which, from a human standpoint, seemed improbable, if not impossible; promises relating to the far distant future. They all died in faith.

JOHN L. WINCH.

Reputation and Character.

Do not become alarmed over injury of character, through unjust attacks on your reputation. Reputation is of the world, character is of Christ. Character is "the new man in Christ," the inner man.

Reputation may be ruined by the false act of another—maybap a loved one. You may give your reputation even to save a loved one. "Be of good cheer!" Christ gave reputation and life for us. Many prove unworthy of the sacrifice. He that could have called for twelve legions of angels "made himself of no reputation." His reputation will be recognized after while, "when every knee shall bow, and every tongue shall confess."

Paul places an estimate on his loss of reputation, "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ.....for whom I have suffered the loss of all things." But character was every thing to the one that desired "if by any means to attain unto the resurrection of the dead." A character formed and tested through the faith of Christ the righteousness which is of God by faith.

Loss of a good reputation is laudable, but reputation is wholly human, while character is of divine origin and must. Reputation is watched and lauded by men, and measured by their standard. But character is moulded in, and after the image of Christ. My reputation is worth more than my purse, but my character is more valuable than my life.

I would give my reputation to protect and save my loved ones—my children but I would not give my character to save ALL, even my unpardonable life included in the bargain. We may lose our reputation equally as dearly as the most ambitious, and reach a place where, together with the body, it may be laid on the altar a living sacrifice. Do not receive it from the altar. Men and devils will only sneer. Even good men may not appreciate the sacrifice. But God and angels will understand it now, and hereafter. Though home and friends may seem lost in the sacrifice. They are not. They shall be added. There are times when you can wait and trust.

Reputation is the passing ray of light through the rifted clouds; character the constant light of a cloudless day. Reputation is represented by the beautiful flecks of the rising or the setting sun, character by the "Sun of righteousness that shall arise with healing in his wings."

Reputation may be the filthy rags of self-righteousness; character is the "fine linen, clean and white, for the fine linen is the righteousness of the saints" to be worn in its spotless purity in this life, and that which is to come.

If friends distrust, or forsake you today for doing right, as you have learned right, wait for the morrow. If the morrow does not right the wrong, that you have taken so frequently to your Father, still wait. If all good men should not know and uphold your reputation from unjust [illegible] your elder Brother (friends that will never forsake) know all about it, and deliverance will come in due time.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 21.

REVIEW.

Golden Text. These things are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his name. John xx 31.

Very few people believe that Jesus is the Christ. Some believe that he is "very God" therefore cannot believe that he is the Son of God. Thousands upon thousands believe they have a "never dying soul" and of course cannot believe they have life through him.

Lesson 1 Jesus, the good Shepherd. John x 1-18. What did he do for his sheep? He gave his life for them. Jno x 11.

Who are his sheep? Abraham's seed. Gal iii 29. Heirs of the kingdom. Jas ii 5. The Church of God. 1 Tim iii 15. Christ loved the Church and gave himself for it. Eph v 25.

Lesson 2 The Raising of Lazarus. John xi 32-44. Where was Lazarus? In the grave. John xi 17. By what means or power did Jesus raise him? By the Spirit of God. Matt xii 28. Did Lazarus tell a wonderful story about his death? No. Why not? because the dead know not anything. Eccl ix 5.

Lesson 3 Jesus anointed at Bethany. John xii 1-11. What is anointing? Putting oil or ointment on any part of the body. James v 14. How was Jesus anointed? Mary put ointment on his feet. John xii 3. What did Jesus say to her? Thy sins are forgiven. Luke vii 48.

Lesson 4 Jesus teaches humility. John xiii 1-20. Why did Jesus teach humility? Because his disciples disputed among themselves which should be the greatest. Mark ix 34. He that humbleth himself shall be exalted. Matt xxiii 12. Such are the greatest heroes on earth. Prov xvi 32. Humility is the hardest lesson to learn, the greatest, the noblest.

Lesson 5 Our heavenly home. Jno iv 1-14. Has God offered, or promised any one a home, a heavenly home? No. There remaineth a REST to the people of God. Heb iv 9. The faithful shall dwell with me. Psa ci 6. Where? The Lord hath chosen Zion for his habitation. Psa cxxxii 13, 14.

Lesson 6 The mission of the Holy Spirit. John xvi 4-15. Was the mission or work of the Holy Spirit to produce hysterics, trances, to make people roll on the floor, or to convert people? No. When the apostles and some disciples preached the gospel of the kingdom the Holy Spirit testified by signs and wonders that they spoke the truth that saves. Heb ii 4; Acts viii 7.

Lesson 7 Jesus betrayed and denied. John xviii 1-27. What is betraying? Judas said, I will deliver him unto you. Matt xxvi 15.

Peter said, I know not this man of whom ye speak, Mark xiv 71. Peter repented, was forgiven, and taught others the way of life.

Lesson 8 Jesus' death and burial. John xix 17-42. Who did Jesus die for? Christ died for the ungodly. Rom v 8. But except the ungodly repent they shall perish. Luke xiii 3. Those who believe and are baptized shall be saved. Mark xvi 16, 16.

Jesus was buried—laid in a tomb—by Joseph of Aramathea and Nicodemus. John xix 38-42.

Lesson 9 Jesus risen from the dead. John xx 1-18. Who raised Jesus? The Jesus hath God raised up. Acts ii 32. What for? For our—believers—justification. Rom v 25. To come again and sit on David's throne. Luke i 32; Acts ii 29, 30. And bless all the nations. Gal iii 8-14.

Lesson 10 Jesus appears to his disciples. John xx 19-31. Did his disciples expect to see him again? No. They did not believe Mary saying she had seen Jesus. They did not believe the other two. Mark xvi 11-13. They [illegible] believed with great joy. Luke xxiv 46-53.

Lesson 11 The risen Christ by the Sea of Galilee. John xxi 1-25. What did Christ do at the Sea of Galilee? He made a fire, made breakfast for his tired and hungry disciples that had been fishing and caught nothing. What else did he do?

A review is for the purpose of fixing in the mind, the important points of the past lessons. The questions on each lesson should be few, but the answers well brought out and understood. In this review the questions are asked and answers given to help the busy Sunday school teacher, and those who are not familiar with the Bible.

Next lesson Temperance. Eph v 6-20.

Editor Restitution:

Say to the brethren of the Church of God scattered, that our annual meeting at and near Bosworth, Mo. will be held at the Brown School house two and one-half miles north of Bosworth, meeting to begin on Saturday June 20th, and continue over Sunday, and longer if necessary.

The programme will be the Gospel of the kingdom of God. On Sunday at 11:00 a m the sermon will be by the writer, the text being that by the angels to the shepherds—Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. Luke ii 10.

At noon a basket dinner. Let all home folks bring baskets well filled with some thing to feed the outer man, and to feed brethren and friends from a distance. Let any who expect to attend write to Elbert Murray, at Bosworth, Mo. All are invited, so let us have at least one more good meeting at Bosworth.

My preaching days are nearly over, and I soon will have to do my preaching by writing. Come let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching.

By order of the Church.

JOHN FOORE.

Subscribe for THE RESTITUTION to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Bible School.

I will say to those who purpose to attend our June Bible School, that the history of creation and the fall of man will be briefly reviewed. You are therefore requested to re-read with care the first three chapters of Genesis. This review will be followed by a lesson on the nature of man, as being appropriate to what is said concerning his creation and fall. We will then take up the Old Testament lessons as outlined, beginning with the flood as the third great fact.

The New Testament lessons, entitled Cases of Conversion, will also be reviewed briefly as far as we examined them last June. This review will be followed by [illegible] beginning with the conversion of Cornelius, his household and friends. Re-read what was gone over and give several readings to the new lessons.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John D Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Work of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out during the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

AN EXPOSITION of Isa. ch 14-18.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, Oregon, Ill, designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. On such terms every brother and sister in the United States and Canada should read it. Send as above.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleading and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

WE hope to have a report of the Michigan meeting for next week. Bro. and Sister Woodward are to be with us at Antioch if all goes well.

BRETHREN and Sisters, a number of our friends have not yet renewed subscriptions for the year. Will all such try and remember us very soon. We thank you for the favor.

THIS is the week for our meeting at Antioch, and we hurry our paper out so as to arrange work and be able to attend. We have reason to believe a good number will be present.

BROTHER A. L. WARE called Monday morning on his way home from North Salem Church, where he preached last Sunday. He reports that he had the pleasure of immersing Glen Logan, son of Brother Hugh Logan, and Earl Logan, son of Brother Marshall Logan. It rejoices the heart to hear of these brave young men stepping out in the light of the world, and accepting service with our King. May they be faithful obedient soldiers, and at the end wear crowns in the kingdom of God.

WE learn from the Messenger of the death on May 9th of Brother Matthew M. Strang, at his home in Glasgow, Scotland, aged 69 years. He was a writer and speaker of good ability, and was highly esteemed among the brethren in Britain. He was for eight years Editor of the Messenger, and has written a number of pamphlets and tracts. Brother H. G. Mitchell closes his remarks on his life and his death, in these words—"Matthew W. Strang is now a happy and fragrant memory to us, but his good words and works follow him, to be remembered by Him with whom his life is hid, when he shall stand again among the ransomed of the Lord."

A LITTLE thing from our point of view may make a great change in its unfolding. Emile Zola, the author, will be remembered as the man who took up the fight for Dreyfus at his trial in France some years ago, and won the fight. He died in 1902, and his friends finally got a vote through the chamber and senate to have his bones buried in the Pantheon by the side of other illustrious dead. There was opposition to this. However, it was done on June 4, and just at the close of the ceremonies, a man named Gregori fired two shots at Dreyfus, who was in company with the President and others of high rank. He was not killed, and will recover from his wounds, but it shows the feeling that exists, and how easily the people are inflamed and wrought up. A royalist plot is feared, and anti-Semitic feeling is bitter.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 55.

Brother D. T. Halstead has quite a distinct recollection of one later conference held at "Old Union" near Indianapolis, the date of which he cannot give, but which,—if it was as he thinks, just the year before one held at Cicero, was in 1867. Brother Halstead was chairman. It was after J. K. Speer had made such sad havoc with the "North Liberty" and "Old Union" churches. He was present and also Dr. Reeve from Ohio, together endeavoring to swing the conference into line with their Christadelphian idea. J. M. Stephenson was also present; he and Dr. Reeve about the same temperament, equally hot headed coming in conflict on the stand, each having to be called to order several times, made it embarrassing for Brother Halstead. "This Conference cast a dark shadow over the cause in Indiana for a time." So our early churches had "troubles of their own," as well as we. They had troubles, even in apostolic days, and I suppose will keep on having them until Jesus comes. Men will not "keep the unity of the faith in the bonds of peace." There is so much more glory, they seem to think, in propounding some new theory of their own, and in getting others to follow them, than there is in standing unmovable to the end. They never stop to think of the harm they may do; the faith they may overthrow, of a dear Savior grieved, and of lost ones prevented from coming into the fold. A careless investigation of some new theory, leads them astray; they will not, like Professor Totten, re-investigate, and so, churches are torn to pieces, and the cause of Truth set back for years.

Brother Halstead was selected as State Evangelist at a conference held at Rensselaer, in August, 1871, and served about two years, to the best of his recollection, and was re elected at another conference at the same place in August, 1873, serving about the same length of time as near as I can find out from reports given in THE RESTITUTION, or until March 1875. From the first of September, 1873, to August 20, 1874, he labored in the Counties of Jasper, Newton, Warren, Fountain, Clinton, Tipton, Noble, Blackford, Delaware and Jay, during which time 45 were added to the different churches, all of whom "were intelligently brought unto Christ by a hearty belief in and obedience to the truth, continuing steadfast therein, while a number of others were restored to a renewal of Christian life and godliness. Four new organizations were formed. Two others (who from internal troubles had pretty much gone down) were re-organized into life. As a general thing, he found an ear to the truth, and many who gave evidence of a desire to learn" what they must do to be saved. The congregations at that time were generally "in a more healthy state than formerly—less schisms—more unity of spirit and brotherly kindness prevailing." The churches did well by Brother Halstead financially in the counties of Jasper, Warren, Tipton, Fountain, Clinton and Marshall, that subscribed in Blackford County going to Brother Wm. Hornaday, where Brother Halstead also "devoted a large proportion of time, believing that by so doing, he could the better serve the cause of Christ, as he would be developing the truth where it would tend to pecuniarily liberate and sustain Brother Hornaday, so that at the same time could go forth and do battle in the great cause of truth." Of the first two years of Brother Halstead's evangelistic work, I have no report, but the later report, tells the story of his efficiency as a bond-servant of the Lord Jesus.

Brother Wm. H. Hornaday, died at Hartford, Indiana, Nov. 24, 1874, only three months from the time Brother Halstead was talking of how much he had been helping him, so he could go out and preach the truth too. He was only in his 33rd year.

Brother Halstead accompanied him from the place of his death, to Windfall, Tipton County, where he had formerly resided. He was "in the prime of life, full of ambition and zeal in the cause of Christ for which he had sacrificed everything. He died poor in this world, but rich in faith.....He was a noble, generous soul, beloved by all who knew him. He practiced what he preached." "He was the life of the meetings" said Brother Jonah Pierce, and "O what an example he set in overcoming evil." He had a sweet voice in song and in preaching, but it will be heard no more till Jesus comes. February 28, 1875, Brother Halstead preached a memorial discourse at Windfall, on the death of Brother Hornaday, Sister Elizabeth Legg, mother of Arthur Legg, and Sister Ruth Hendrickson, both the latter, aged persons and devoted servants of the Lord Jesus. Shortly afterward he went to Grant County, and there baptized a Baptist minister named F. Roberts, whom we in this country know as a seventh day man, he having preached at Inwood and other points in Marshall County. I think he now lives in Grant County.

May, 1875, Brother Halstead held a discussion at Dundee, in Blackford County with a Dr. Edmonson of the M. E. Church, a mild dispositioned man. Of course the subject matter of the debate was on the points of difference between us, and "Immaterialism got its death blow" as it has many times before and since. I wish it would stay dead.

I have no account of Brother Halstead's labors while he was living in Missouri and Dakota, but of course he was busy. June 28, 1882, I find him at Millwood, in Kosciusko County, Indiana, holding a series of meetings, and in August of the same year at a Conference at Rensselaer, Jasper County, Indiana, where about fifty visitors were present from abroad—H. V. Reed, S. A. Chaplin, Charles Gardner, Wm. Wilson and Ralph Carter, were the preachers and Brother Alfred Thompson the Chairman.

Sometime during 1884, Brother Halstead visited the little band of brethren at Millerton, Kansas, and greatly cheered their hearts. In 1881 June 28 to July 2 inclusive, I find him at Shoals, Martin County, Indiana, holding meetings that were well attended,—"the whole community being intensely interested to hear the glad tiding, coming out nights a distance of three and four miles around—this largely due to the zeal, intelligent faith, and consistent, devoted life of the members,—eighteen in all,—commencing first with Brother and Sister Stewart from Kansas and going on through the wise labors of Brother Levi Skeels, Brother J. S. Hatch and Brother Foore."

Brother Halstead, is not idle even now when well through his 82nd year. He has surely fought the good fight and has kept the faith! What a grand thing to say of any man, that he has kept the faith,—has held it fast, that no man might take his crown. He was acquainted with most of our pioneer preachers, numbering between twenty and thirty, and says it was a pleasure to know them and to hear them,—without schism,—with no endeavor to become bell-sheep, all disciples (learners) alike, earnestly contending for the faith. They were not in it for the bread and butter, but impelled to the work by a sincere love of the truth." More than half of those dear workers "have laid the weapons of their warfare aside," and are resting until Jesus comes. We hope he will come before the few who remain, pass away.

Brother Halstead has been a noble worker; we do not want him to pass under the power of death. Our young preachers would do well to heed the lessons Brother Halstead has learned in a whole life time—that "the race is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong." "Great haste makes waste." "Take time to prove all things holding fast that which is good." "Be sure you are right then go ahead, turning neither to the right nor to the left but keeping in the middle of the road, thus being sure that it is the light and truth that is leading in the way that leadeth unto life."

AUNTIE WISE.

Substance of Discourse. No. 2.

The beginning of which we have been speaking John i 1, is not only the bringing into the world this wonderful child of prophetic promise, as a personality by means of the Logos [illegible] in the foundation—the beginning of a new creation—new order of things—new dispensation—new heavens and earth—the world to come, according to promise wherein dwelleth righteousness, as written in the Prophetic Word. Psa cii 25, 26; Heb i 10, "And thou Lord in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thine hands .....and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed." This dispensation is laying the foundation—the preparing the material for use in the next,—the new world—the new heavens and earth. As in the ages—dispensations in the past, each succeeding one was but the laying the foundation for the more fully developed work of the next, as purposed in God's great plan of redemption. The Law Dispensation—was the sure foundation work of bringing into the world in due time, the promised seed of Abraham and David "born under the law." Born of a woman, the literal descendant of Abraham, to whom the covenant was made as to the seed which should bless all nations. The law was added (to the covenant) because of transgressions till the seed should come to whom the promise was made," (Gal iii 19) thereby keeping them separated from other nations, that through the genealogical record, the promised seed might be determined. Thus under the law was the sure foundation work of bringing into the world the true child, by means of the Word spoken to Mary becoming flesh. Embodied in this Word of God (as the germ) spoken by the angel to Mary, was not only the personality of the child, according to the purpose of the Father, but also the purpose of God, through this Son, as spoken to Mary by the angel saying, "Thou shalt conceive and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus, he shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever (to the ages, Diaglott) and of his kingdom there shall be no end" Luke i 31-33) all this was embodied in the germ—the work spoken, to be fully developed in dispensational order of time. How absurd to try to crowd it all into one dispensation for fulfilment, the King de facto, with all power to put down all enemies, crucified and put to death!

Instead of which let us note the harmonious agreement of the Scriptures, when we pay heed to the dispensational order in the accomplishment of the things promised. In the beginning was the Word, all these things were embodied in that Word, the same as the mighty oak is contained in the acorn—the germ to be developed in due process of time. First in order in the beginning. The Word was made flesh—the child born—(the seed of the woman, who was of the stock of Israel, and of the seed of David), "and dwell among us.....full of grace and truth." Thus fulfilling the commencement of the things promised of the Prophets concerning the child, as declared by Paul in Rom i 4, "Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of God, (which he had promised afore by his prophets in the holy Scriptures) concerning his Son Jesus Christ our Lord, who was made of the Seed of David according to the flesh, and declared (Gr. determined) to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness by the resurrection from the dead:" while yet in the flesh, after being anointed with Holy Spirit, (Acts x 38) previous to his death and resurrection. He began the work, which he came into the world to accomplish, and what was it? Jno xvii 37. Jesus when being tried before Pilate on the charge of claiming to be King of the Jews, in answer to the question, Art thou the King of Jews? answered.....My kingdom is not of this world, else would my servants fight that I should not be delivered up to the Jews, but now is my kingdom not from hence, (from this time onward) (Pilate seeing from his answer that he claimed kingship at some time,) therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? to which Jesus replied, Thou sayest that I am a king, To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world that I should bear witness unto the truth. Hence, after John (the fore runner) was put in prison, "Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God (Mark i 14) "And it came to pass.....that he went throughout every city and village preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God (Luke viii 1). He was not then performing the function of [illegible] for he was the Christ or anointed to be King of Israel he was publishing the truth, that people might believe on him as the Christ promised in the Scriptures by the Prophets of God. This was the work of the present dispensation. The foundation work, calling out a people, through faith in Jesus as the Anointed Son of God,—the legal heir to the throne and kingdom of David, who, per consequence, of implicit faith and obedience to him should form character fitted for the inheritance, and share in the royalty. In that coming age of glory, when he "shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Matt xxv 31. After his first coming the dispensation of the Mosaic law ceased, having accomplished its mission when the Seed came, since which the Book of Jewish genealogy was no longer extended. A new dispensation began—that of the gospel, being still continued—which is laying or completing the foundation work before the setting up of the kingdom, of which work all power is given into the hands of his Anointed Son, as he said to his disciples while yet with them, "All power is given unto me in heaven and earth, go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them".....Matt xxxviii 18, 19. Hence says John i 3, "All things were made by him and without him was not any thing made that was made." All things under the new dispensation were done by him, by his authority, none other save through him having any power or authority in this foundation work of the gospel. He alone was the tried stone, the precious stone laid in Zion for a foundation. Isa xxviii 16. Said Paul, other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus the Christ," (the Anointed Son of God). 1 Cor iii 11. He said to the disciples, whom do men say that I the Son of Man am? Some say thou art John the Baptist, some Elias—or Jeremias—or one of the Prophets. But whom say ye that I am? Peter answers, Thou art Christ (the Anointed) Son of God. Jesus said to him, Blessed art thou Simon, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven.....and upon this Rock—(Word of revelation) foundation stone I will build my church, and the gates of hell (Hades—the grave) shall not prevail against it." Matt xvi 13-18. Jesus in the commencement of his preaching said, "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him to a wise man that built his house upon a rock—(stone foundation) and the rain descended,—the floods came and the wind blew and beat upon that house, and it fell not; for it was founded on rock. Matt vii. The kingdom is not yet, but the work of laying the foundation is still on.

Let us be sure we are being builded on the only true and sure foundation—the Anointed Son of God, who in due time will bring in the kingdom, and reign until the last enemy is destroyed which is death itself, and then deliver up the kingdom to God who put all things under his feet.....that God may be all in all." 1 Cor xv. But these things will all be accomplished not all in the present age, but in the times appointed. In conclusion let us illustrate the progressive work of this wonderful child to be developed in times appointed, by reference to what the Prophet Isaiah says of the child—all parties are agreed that the child referred to was Jesus—born of Mary. "For unto us a child is born—(of Mary through the Word spoken) unto us a son is given—God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son (to die on the cross) that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The government shall be upon his shoulder. He became Lord (governor) was made head over all things to the church which is his body (Eph i 22, 23) and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God. They said, "Never man spake as this Man." Jno vii 46. He counseled that men be controlled in all things by the mighty power of love, even to loving your enemies and doing good to them that hate you," Matt v 44. Mighty God—made better than the angels, as he by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they—mighty God, as a Son he inherited the name of his Father "Mighty One." Heb i 4. Yet the one name Je Ho-Vah, which is above all others, was never given to, nor claimed by the Son, as written, "That men may know that thou whose name alone is Je-Ho-Vah art the Most High over all the earth." Psa lxxxiii 18. Hence the Son declared "My Father is greater than I."—John xiv 28. Yet the prophecy declares his name shall be called "The everlasting Father." Therefore many, with apparent reason conclude he was the eternal JeHoVah himself, thus bringing the Scriptures into contradiction one with another. How was he then to be called the everlasting Father, and when to be so-called? and why? He was not so-called when made flesh, nor while continuing such. He was the first raised from the dead by the Spirit to live forever more (Rev i 18) "the first born of the Spirit from the dead." Col i 18 That which is born of the Spirit is Spirit, (Jno iii 6) no longer flesh and blood nature, because flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom" (1 Cor xv 50) of which he was heir. "As the Father hath life (eternal) in himself, so hath he given the Son to have life (eternal) in himself." Jno vi 26. "And hast given him power over all flesh that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him." Jno xvii 2. Therefore he becomes in due time the second Adam. The first Adam was of the earth, earthy—the progenitor—forefather, of an earthy, mortal race, like himself. The second Adam is the Lord from heaven.....a quickening Spirit. 1 Cor xv 44 47.

He quickens—makes alive, at the last trump, ver 52, those that are his, changing them from mortal to immortal life, thus forming a new—immortal race, of which he is the progenitor—Father. Not like the fatherhood of the first Adam, to finally terminate. But as he, and his, then have, as a race, life immortal, his Fatherhood of such a race will never terminate. Hence he will then be the "Everlasting Father." Also he will then be the "Prince of Peace," for of the increase (product) of his government and peace there shall be no end upon the throne of David and his kingdom, to order and establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."

Every Bible student at once must see that to undertake to crowd into one dispensation, all that is stated in these two verses, Isa ix 6, 7, can only result in confusion and contradiction of Scripture statements. But when viewed according to God's purpose of the ages, becomes intelligible, and entirely harmonious.

D. T. HALSTEAD.

Working in Oklahoma.

I began my meetings in Avery, Oklahoma, May 19th, and closed Sunday night the 24th.

The extremely stormy weather, consisting of heavy rains and the alarm from reported cyclones in other parts of the State made it a very unfavorable time for meetings. In addition as hindrance to success, the farmers in the region of this village had become anxious to complete their spring work of planting corn and cotton. After all the attendance was good under the adverse conditions. I felt that it would be a mistake to continue and dismissed a fairly good audience after four meetings. This was after my meetings in Brother Deffenbaugh's neighborhood near Avery; under his management the meetings were transferred to the village.

It takes about all the courage an old veteran can muster to go into a strange place, where there is not a soul that believes nor cares a penny for the things that we value more than all earthly things. This was my experience during my last week here in the central region of Uncle Sam's newest State. I soon had a comfortable room and meals with Mr. Rice, Post Master, and leading merchant. After a few nights, by request of the local Methodist minister, Mr. Henry, I transferred my stopping place to his residence, where I received a hospitable welcome during my stay in the place.

On Sunday night I bid my congregation good bye under the expressed hope that I should be able to visit Avery again at some future time, when my meetings would not be broken by excessive rains, as at this time.

As this was the first that our faith was ever proclaimed in this place I did not expect additions as an immediate result; but feel confident that a friendly feeling was created in the minds of a number of the people.

During my stay in this region I for the first time in my life went with others into a cyclone cave for protection from an anticipated "twister" but luckily it did not materialize. At the present time the railway is cut on both sides of Avery by washed out bridges and fills so that mail is cut off and we are cut in; but I am among friends and will have an enforced rest of a few days. I cannot say, till mail can come through, whether I will have more work in Oklahoma, some places to visit in Texas, or whether Arizona will be my next for a short time. I hope I may reach the Conference meeting at Felida, Washington, June 26-28, but I am many miles from my base of work and think there is good talent and zeal that will be there with the purpose of keeping the banner of truth and justice afloat in the northwest.

W. L. SKEELS.

LATER.

It is June 5th and I am in Wichita, Kansas again. As you may be already informed, I closed my meetings both near and in Avery, Oklahoma, on account of the excessive rains. The railroad was cut at different points, Oklahoma was in a quiver from reported and anticipated cyclones. I determined to go to Arkansas City and communicate with the outside world. I telegraphed, and the answer indicated that it would be better for my health and work to continue in the southwest at present.

Although I abandoned my trip to Ohio and Kentucky, to return to the northwest, I have placed myself so completely under the control of providence, and under providence to the brethren, that I submit without a murmur to the order of work. So any of the beloved brethren of the northwest that do not see me at the Conference on the 26-28, will understand. To the brethren in Oklahoma, and outside of that state, I will say, I believe that active work is of advantage to my heart ailment. I want work—unhampered work. State lines do not determine the bounds of soul-saving, or value.

I expect to be in the company of the liberal brethren of Arizona again, but time must be used in so large a field. You will as freely give the time, that the selfish might demand, as you gave your money to help this work. I may not try to do any evangelistic work in Arizona during the excessive heat of summer, but will regard it a desire and pleasure to hold myself in readiness for your cause whenever I continue able to carry the armor.

Any wishing meetings address me at Wichita, Kan.

W. L. SKEELS.

We need what is due us on subscriptions and trust all who know themselves to be in arrears will remember us. We appreciate the favor.

The copy for this part of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Higgins, of Oregon, Illinois. He will edit this section, and all who wish to communicate with him, please address as above, and save delay.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

'Twas Ever Thus.

Smile, and the world smiles with you,
Knock, and you go alone;
For the cheerful grin
Will let you in
Where the kicker is never known.

Growl, and the way looks dreary,
Laugh, and the path is bright;
For a welcome smile
Brings sunshine, while
A frown shuts out the light.

Sing, and the world's harmonious,
Grumble, and things go wrong,
And all the time
You are out of rhyme
With the busy bustling throng.

Kick, and there's trouble brewing,
Whistle, and life is gay;
And the world's in tune
Like a day in June
And the clouds all melt away.

The New Covenant.

What law governs the new man: or in other words, What covenant are believers under? Certainly not the new covenant, for that is to be made with the house of Israel and the house of Judah when they are restored. Jer. xxxi 31.

O. J. ALLARD.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The "new man" is a New Testament term which is applied to the "old man" after he has been transformed by the gospel. He is then called a "new man" because he has been made over by the divine energy of the gospel, and has been renewed in heart and spirit. Ezek xxxvi 26. After this work of transformation has been wrought upon him, he walks in God's statutes and keeps his judgments, Verse 27. With God's law written in his heart or "inward parts," "not with ink, but with the spirit of the living God", he is positively in the New Covenant. 2 Cor iii 3, 6; Jer xxxi 31; Heb x 15-22. If he is not subject to the laws of the new covenant, to what laws is he amenable? A "better covenant" with "better promises" (Heb viii 6), inspiring us with a better hope than the first covenant could give, has been brought in, and it is "by the which we draw nigh to God." Heb vii 19. This is the Will by which we are sanctified through the offering of Jesus in his sacrificial death. Heb x 10. How could this will sanctify believers if they are not in it? Christ is the "Mediator of the New Testament", and as testator of that will, it was "by means of death" as a "necessity" that he ratified it in his death. Heb ix 15, 16. "A Testament is of force", the apostle affirms, "after men are dead" Verse 17. Christ's shed blood is positively "the blood of the new covenant" (Matt xxvi 26); and it was "through the blood" of this covenant that God raised him to life again. Heb xiii 20. If the new covenant which Christ died to ratify over 1908 years ago has not been brought into force yet, and will not be till he restores Israel, we are plunged headlong into a whirlpool of difficulties and absurdities from which we are helpless to extricate ourselves. Christ is called "the mediator of the new covenant". Is he a mediator now, or must we wait till he makes the new covenant with Israel at his coming before we are blessed with mediatorship functions? "By means of death" as testator of the new will, he brought it into "force".

"A testament is of force after men are dead," says Paul. Then how can we account for the fact that Christ died 1908 years ago, and yet the covenant is not to be in force till his second coming? If the covenant is brought into force then for the first time, and if it is "by means of death", as Paul is bold to say, how are we to dodge the ugly and untrue thought that Christ as testator of the Will will have to die at his second advent to bring it into force!

We avoid all these inexplicable difficulties when we get our mind clearly impressed with the fact that the New Covenant is the Abrahamic covenant, and that the Abrahamic covenant is the gospel. Jer xxxi 31 teaches that the new covenant is to be made with the house of Israel and the house of Judah at a particular time—when they are restored at the Lord's coming. The covenant will not be made with them until then. The house of Israel and the house of Judah are still in captivity. But the covenant promised to them was made in the death of Jesus. It is also made in the adoption of every believer till he comes, and is only another aspect of the fulfillment of the Word and oath God made to Abraham. Jesus is on the right hand of the Father awaiting the fulfilment of the covenant, till his enemies are made his footstool. Strangers and aliens are being brought into covenant relationship in the divine order; first the taking out from the nations a people for his name; then the restoration of Israel, culminating in the blessing of all families of the earth in Abraham and his seed. Thus the fulfilment of the Abrahamic covenant and the fulfilment of the promised new covenant in Jer xxxi 31 are one and the same thing.

Editor's Canadian Tour.

Conference over, we returned to Niagara Falls in company with Sister Lent and others whose names we cannot now remember. "Welcome" was written on the walls of Sister Lent's home, so we remained in the city a day. We had never seen the Falls, and Br. Lent, a brother in the faith, put himself at our service if we wanted to see the "sights." We decided to make the sight-seeing trip, and securing bicycles we went down the Channel on the American side to Lewiston; then we went over to the Canada side, and visited the Brock Monument, Devil's Hole, Whirlpool Rapids, and the Falls themselves. From the Canadian side one can see the whole sweep of both Falls at once; at the left the American Fall, with its width of 1060 feet; then Goat Island with its 1300 feet more, and on the right the Horseshoe, with a curve of 3010 feet: in all a total width of a full mile. Wonderful are thy works, O Lord. Beautiful and interesting indeed, but we cannot tarry here longer now. We have too much work at our finger's end to stay longer with our dear people in Niagara. "Good by" again. Thank the Lord, there will be no good byes in the kingdom of God.

On the morning of May 27 we waked up in Cleveland, Ohio. Our steamer was landing, and as we looked at the crowd on the wharf we espied Brother Tomlinson. He said to me, "Come into my house, and abide there," Acts xvi 15. And he constrained us. He not only entertained us at his home, but he also drove us through the beautiful parks of the city. We are also under a debt of gratitude to Brother Sanford for showing us some of the wonders of Cleveland, a city of half a million. Cleveland is located on the southern shore of Lake Erie, at the mouth of the Cuyahoga river. It was founded in 1796 by General Moses Cleveland. Today it has 14 magnificent parks, spread over 1500 acres of land, with their beautiful natural scenery, threaded by thirty miles of splendid boulevards. About 5000 manufacturing establishments are located in the city, producing over 125000 different kinds of articles. Iron and steel interests are important, and the petroleum refineries are the largest in the world. A new Government building is now being built on the Public Square, which will cost, when completed $3000000. Cleveland also has 100 benevolent institutions and 300 churches.

Our people have a Church on Woodland ave. the "Church of the Blessed Hope." Our highly esteemed and greatly beloved brother Joblin, was pastor of this church for about twenty years. We were privileged to spend May 30th with them. There was a large gathering of brethren in the morning to celebrate the Lord's Supper. We tried to speak, but the brethren there have been fed on such rich food by Brother Joblin, that we felt incompetent to edify them by any words of exhortation we might speak. Accustomed to hear his scholarly and elegant manuscripts read, we were fearful of offending their refined taste by rough-and-ready extemporaneous speaking. Anyway, we had a glad time in the Lord. My stay in the city was one grand, sweet song. Bro. Goss, the presiding brother for the day, was under the painful necessity of announcing the unexpected death of brother Hillier. Our Brother's sudden death cast a dark cloud over a bright day. His obituary and concluding remarks on our tour, next week.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins.

Can you come and hold a meeting for the Church of God, at Holt, Ind., any time in the future? If so, let me know.

J. T. BROTHERTON.

We can give you a meeting July 1 to 8, if that date suits you. Let me know immediately, as my appointments are made a month ahead.

Brother Huggins:

My wife read in THE RESTITUTION that you were coming to Salem. We are sorry you could not spare the time to come. Very sorry to hear of the death of Brother Hillier. He was a quiet, unassuming man. We sincerely hope he died the death of the righteous. I presume you enjoyed your visit in Cleveland, and I am almost certain the Church enjoyed your company and your work. Will be much pleased to hear from you any time.

P. NEILL.

Books, Papers, MSS Etc.

Several manuscripts from Brother Tomlinson. Present Truth for May with marked article, Consolidation Announcement. It seem that Present Truth and Christian Inquirer have united. The Bible Advocate for June 2, with a good article on the Authenticity of the Scriptures. Some manuscripts and questions for "Ebenezer" have been lost owing to the confusion resulting from our absence from home. Will correspondents please note this, and if they want their articles to appear in this paper, please rewrite them.

Prayer.

Prayer which is acceptable must be sincere and offered in faith. "All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, ye shall receive," Matt. xxi. 22: Mark xi. 24-26, reads "Therefore I say unto you, Whatsoever, ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye shall receive them and ye shall have them." Therefore, it is plainly seen that mere repetition of words will profit nothing, but we must pray believing our prayers will be answered, and at the same time forgiving, if we have ought against any.

Whatever we ask of the Father, we should ask it in the name of Christ. Christ said to his disciples, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name he will give it you. Hitherto have you asked nothing in my name; ask and ye shall receive, that your joy might be full."

Paul in his epistle to the Colossians said: "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of Christ, giving thanks to the God and Father by him."

I do not think ones posture in praying makes a great deal of difference. One can pray as well standing or sitting, as kneeling. The kneeling posture or bowing of the head shows humility. We read that Christ knelt at times and again that he fell prostrate.

I think that most prayer should be secret. Christ is our example and we read that he went apart from his disciples to pray. We are told that when we pray we should not be as hypocrites, who love to stand in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, where they may be seen of men, but we should enter into our closet, and when we have shut the door pray to the Father in secret, and he hearing us in secret shall reward us openly.

We are not to use vain repetitions as the heathen and think we shall be heard for our much speaking; for God knows what we need before we ask.

When we pray we should forgive men their trespasses, for if we do not God will not forgive us. Matt. vi.

We should confess our faults one to another.

The effectual prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

Brethren, let us pray with the understanding and without ceasing until the Lord comes.

A Receipt for Preaching.

In THE RESTITUTION of May 18th, an esteemed brother asks for a receipt to present the truth to "fastidious people so as not to offend them?"

I am not quite certain that the one offered to the brother, in reply to his request, will have the desired effect.

If a "good rhetoric" will answer the purpose, I would advise the brother to purchase one, but not to "study it constantly" because that would leave no time to study the Bible; but if a good rhetoric will teach him how to "win people while he convinces them," he should try it by all means. Jesus did not possess the art rhetorical of "winning while he convinced," nor did the prophets before him. They usually suffered defamation, persecution, and sometimes imprisonment, for uttering what convinced but did not win.

There may be some fascination in the art of presenting truth, but its edge is so sharp that in cutting its way to the heart, it must offend the fastidious "natural man who receiveth not the things of the spirit of God; for they are foolishness to him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." 1 Cor. ii. 14. The miracles of Jesus were not wrought out along the line of "rhetoric," for they convinced, but did not win.

Jesus says "the world hateth me, because I testify of it that the works thereof are evil," and the blood of the martyrs of Jesus testify along the high-way of ages, that "fastidious people" are always offended, when the truth is presented to them. Paul offers a pretty good receipt, in 1 Cor. ii. 4, in these words: "And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the spirit, and of power, that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." Paul did not preach the wisdom taught in the schools of his time, but the "hidden wisdom which God had ordained before the world unto our glory."

It was the wisdom which none of the princes of this world knew, and it revealed things that the wisdom of this world did not, and cannot know. To them, whose faith stands not in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God, it reveals a glimpse of the glory to come, which down to that time, "Eye had not seen, nor ear heard; neither had entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." This, "the gospel has revealed to us, by his spirit, and we have received it, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God."

Paul says we speak these things "not in the words which man's wisdom teaches, but which the Holy Ghost teaches" comparing spiritual things with spiritual. Jesus commanded his disciples "to go, and as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand."

They did not stop to consult the rules of logic which men have made, not to please the ear of fastidious listeners, by the music of speech, but delivered the message in their own way, "and their sound went into all the earth, and their voices to the ends of the world." The Divine Teacher had told them, as they sowed the seed of the Word, that some would fall by the wayside, some in stony places, some among thorns and thistles, and some in good ground, and that while the fowls would devour that by the wayside, and satan snatch it from the hearts of others, that in the good ground would produce thirty, sixty, and a hundred fold. We should take no thought as to what the effect of our work shall be, our kind Father will look after that. Paul plants, Apollos waters, but God gives the increase. The gospel is not new, and never has been taught in the schools of this world, nor can it be preached by rules written out by the school men of this world. Paul affirms this in his scathing words to the Galatians; "For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ," "but I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me, is not after men, for I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it but by revelation of Christ." Gal. i. 10-12.

There is but one gospel, and it is not sugar-coated, but "sharper than a two-edged sword," cutting its way to the heart, and into the heart. When it cuts its way into the heart, Acts ii. 37, they cried out "men and brethren, what shall we do?" and when they were cut to the heart, Acts v. 33, "they took counsel to slay them" and "gnashed on them with their teeth." Acts vii. 54.

The gospel is a message of life, "because the world by wisdom, knew not God," "it pleased him by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe it." It is God's method of saving men. All his power unto salvation, is extended through the gospel, and the very best evidence that the gospel is being preached, is, that it offends some. When a minister pleases men, there is danger that he is not the servant of Christ. It is impossible to please a man and convince him of sin at the same time.

I am of the opinion that no such receipt as that asked for, by our worthy brother can be found.

28 What was really meant?
29 What does vs 25 say about what Jesus did?

THOUGHTS ON THIS LESSON.

In the final direction of Jesus to Peter—"follow thou me"—the "thou" is emphatic. It does not concern you what disposition is to be made of the other. I use him as I wish to carry on my work. The thing for you to do now that I have forgiven you of your baseness to me in the hour of my trial; now that on account of your repentance I have restored you to your former position; the thing for you is to do your own work. Do just what I have asked you to do. You have declared your affectionate love for me—prove it. You will suffer toil, hardship, privation, and for my sake even your life will be taken. Bear it all for me, and if I choose to make for John an easier lot, what is that to thee? Let not jealousy come into the heart.

"If I will that he tarry till I come" shows that Jesus has in his hands the disposition of our lives even.

The story that went out that Jesus had said John should not die, shows how easy it is for a false construction to be put upon words. We note the words of a speaker or writer, and unless we endeavor to give the meaning he had when uttering them, we shall fail to adequately express his ideas. Too often we distort an author's meaning by a too strict adherence to the "letter" of what was said, when we should endeavor to get at the "spirit" that prompted it.

Again, often when a false report is given of what one has said, we repent that false report, forgetting that it is our duty to verify the statement. The reputation of many a man and brother has been laid low by believing a false report of what he has done and said, without having taken the least pains to find out the "other side" of the matter.

We slander another when we utter a false tale or report of him; we injure and defame him. Prov. x. 18 says "He that hideth hatred with lying lips, and he that uttereth a slander, is a fool."

To utter a true statement concerning the acts or words of another is not slander. To utter a false statement of another is slander. To slander another is a crime, and by the Word of God any one so doing is branded a fool—foolish person.

We can avoid being "fools" by uttering only what we are sure are true reports. The lesson to be taught and learned is—Be sure you are right, and have not been misinformed, and then be sure the one giving the testimony is unbiased and unprejudiced—because the biased and prejudiced person's testimony will be like that person.

Never repeat anything derogatory of another—at least not until you are in possession of two sides of the case, and not then till you have sought diligently for a possible third side.

Dear Restitution:

The Church of God met the fourth Sunday in May, and listened to a good sermon by Brother A. V. Durham, from Rom i 16, For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, which was enjoyed by every one present.

The congregation then gathered at the water, and Brother Oliver Williamson was baptized into Christ by Brother Durham.

The Church also met at Brother Williamson's at Polzer on May 30th, and listened to an excellent sermon by Brother J. H. Anderson, on the subject of the Rich man and Lazarus.

There were several new hearers, and all seemed interested. The sermon was fine, and to the point, and I hope that it may be as good seed sown in good ground and bring forth fruit in due season.

Your Sister in the faith.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 3502 Woodland ave, Cleveland Ohio

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. B. WILSON.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy the business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conference at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing: for we shall reap if we faint not.

Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 386 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is swift, detected and is at the owner's risk. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. No stupid it is—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the latest issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has neglected one of the cardinal requisites, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

A Place of Safety.

They say there is a hollow, safe and still,
A point of coolness and repose,
Within the centre of a flame, where life might dwell
Enharmed and unconsumed, as in a luminous shell,
Which the bright walls of fire enclose
In heavenly sequestration; barrier that no foe
Could pass at will.

There is a point of rest
At the great centre of the cyclone's force,
A silence at its secret source—
A little child might slumber undisturbed,
Without the ruffle on one hair curl,
In that strange central calm amid the mighty whirl.

So, in the centre of these thoughts of God,
Cyclone of power, consuming glory fire—
As we lie by-rapped
Upon our faces, and are lifted higher
By his great gentleness, and carried higher
Than curve-cheeked angels, till we stand
Even in the hollow of His hand—
Nay, more! we lean upon his breast—
There, there we find a point of perfect rest,
And glorious safety.

Salvation. No. 3.

THE GOSPEL.

Both justification and salvation are suspended upon belief of the gospel. It was the means used to bring men into harmony with God's purposes, to make them godlike in character and fit them for God's eternal kingdom. Says Paul, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Greek. Rom i 16. It has for its end the salvation of men. Could there be any thing brought to the ears of men that could sound more sweetly. It ought to be eagerly listened to, and laid hold of as drowning men would seize the rope thrown for their rescue. No higher mission could fall to the lot of any man than the proclamation of God's message of love and mercy to a race undone by sin. It is no wonder that Paul wrote he was not ashamed of it. This meant a great deal in his case when suffering and martyrdom lay before him. "Always delivered unto death" as he recorded of himself and fellow apostles. Men of less faith and boldness of spirit would have shrunk appalled by the dangers and difficulties confronting them. Isaish pronounces a eulogy on these and all other evangels of peace and pardon. "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth." Isa lii 7. In the light of this Scripture the gospel is good tidings; it declares peace and salvation and the reign of Zion's God, or the kingdom as described in other prophecies.

THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST, THE POWER OF GOD.

It is a moral power, making its appeal to the human heart and mind through what it offers of things good and desirable. Man needs something that is not his by nature and inheritance. He is not in possession of it by birth nor can he buy it with money nor render an equivalent for it in good works. He is a sinner and needs pardon. This is a matter of mercy and grace on God's part. However rich none can redeem his brother, or give to God a ransom for him. Psa xlix 7. No man can remove from his mind the feeling of guilt. He is an enemy to God and must become his friend. "Being in time past alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblamable, and unreprovable in his sight. Col i 21, 22. The text tells how man became an enemy—by wicked works. 2 How he is reconciled through the death of God's Son. The second proposition of all the divine and good means that Christ died in order that reconciliation might be brought about by faith and obedience on the part of man. I know that some teach that all men were reconciled to God at the moment that Christ expired on the cross. This is not proven and is contrary to the teaching of the Scriptures and the facts in the case. This view is simply absurd. Christ's death was one means to the end; there is another means to the same end on the human side.

Proof: "All things are of God who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation. The "us" of the text refers to believers, especially the apostles and others who preached the Word. The last sentence in verse 19 makes the matter still plainer. "Hath committed unto us the Word of reconciliation." 2 Cor v 18, 19. This Word is the gospel which was ministered, served or preached in order to reconciliation or atonement. It was made known for the obedience of faith among all nations. Rom xvi 25, 26. Not one soul would be reconciled to God without belief of and obedience to the gospel. It is through the gospel that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, as says Paul. It is only to the extent that the gospel is believed and obeyed that the world is reconciled to God.

Man needs life. The present life is so brief and fleeting; swifter than a weaver's shuttle and like the "vapor or mist of the morning that appeareth for a little time then vanisheth away." James iv 14. If the life we now have should be ever so long, and yet not endless, its duration would not meet man's need, nor satisfy his craving. Death would still be the grim specter on the horizon of his being, to which he would be obliged to yield some day. The gospel offers him an infinitely better boon, endless life to be enjoyed under conditions that exceed the power of language to portray. My dear friend still out of Christ and without hope, would you like to enjoy such a life? You can secure it on terms quite within the measure of your ability to perform. God, from the depths of his great love invites you to accept the offer. You cannot afford to treat his offer with cool indifference. He is faithful to perform all his promises. He was never known to fail in all the history of the past.

"In hope of eternal life which God that cannot lie promised before the world began." Tit i 2. The life is manifest in God's perspective in love and mercy to promise it, and man's privilege to hope for it. The text teaches by implication that man is not immortal by virtue of his descent from Adam, the father of the human race. The sad fact is that Adam brought death into our world. By one man sin entered in the world and death by sin." Rom v 12. And again, "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. Death came by the first man, but life by the second man, the Lord from heaven." See 1 Cor xv 21. Those who claim that man has an immortal soul, dishonor the Lord Jesus and contradict the plain statements of Revelation. No one can harmonize the popular view of man's nature with the 15th chapter of 1 Cor. The resurrection is emptied of all meaning by this view. I will quote Rom ii 6, 7. Who will render to every man according to his deeds, to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life.' Both incorruptibility of nature and eternal life are plainly conditional according to this text; and no eternal life is a part of the gospel to be preached to the sinner for his acceptance by faith. Eternal life and salvation are treated in the Scriptures are intimately related. So in II. judgment of Murdock he claims to render "life" where other translators render "salvation."

Teacher. Our Lesson for to-night will be in answer to the following inquiry:

PAUL'S DESIRE TO DEPART AND BE WITH CHRIST

Mr. W. H. Wilson, Dear Brother:

I am writing you for information. In Paul's letter to the Philippians, i, 23, he says, "For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is far better." Common Version.

In the Standard Edition, 1901, American, the above passage reads, "But I am in a strait between the two, having the desire to depart and be with Christ; for it is very far better."

"The New Testament in Modern English, by Ferrar Fenton, gives the passage thus: "Now I am possessed by the two, having the desire to be freed and to be with Christ, by far the better."

Now, Brother Wilson, I don't believe Paul meant to convey the idea of dying and going to heaven before the time of the first resurrection, although this passage is quoted to prove that theory. What I want to know, is the best translation from the Greek text, then perhaps I can give to others a more satisfactory explanation as to what Paul did mean. Jesus Christ being High Priest, Paul knew he could not be admitted into heaven while the high priest was performing his office work. I recollect many years ago, some brother gave a rendering by which he made Paul say in English, "Having a desire for the returning and being with Christ," etc. This looks very consistent, and would correspond with Paul's teaching about the second coming of the Lord and the resurrection, etc. Will the Greek Text admit of such a rendering?

H. B. LATHROP.

Teacher. The question as to what Paul really meant, is both a proper and also an important enquiry. The common thought and explanation, that is usually given is that at death an immortal soul departs from the body, and takes its journey to be with the Lord. Now the point for our investigation will be, could the common opinion have been the thought existent in Paul's mind, when he expressed the desire under investigation? What is your conviction?

Edit. That could not possibly have been his thought.

Q. Why not?

A. Because it would make him contradict his own writings.

Q. How so?

A. Because he says that the Lord Jesus the Christ, is the only one of all the earth's inhabitants, that has as yet become immortal. Now, if his statement is true, he could not have believed that either himself, or any one else, had an immortal soul that could depart and be with Christ at death.

Q. If he really did limit the possession of immortality to only one person, your reasoning must be correct. Please give proof for your assertion?

A. See 1 Tim. vi. 15, 16: "Which in his times he shall show, who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality."

Q. Will God always confine that gift to Christ?

A. No, sir; he has made the Christ the only channel through which others can become immortal.

Q. Please submit the evidence?

A. See Rom. vi. 23, "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Q. When will others get it?

A. Speaking of the resurrection, he says, in 1 Cor. xv. 51-54, "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the last tramp; (not before) for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we (the living) shall be changed. For this corruptible (the dead) must put on incorruption, and this mortal (the living) must put on immortality."

Q. Then no one gets immortality, or incorruption (which is the same thing), one resting in the dead, and the mortal—the living) until the resurrection. Is that correct?

A. It is even so.

Q. Then if no one can have immortality prior to the resurrection, and the resurrection is still an event to take place, then Paul did not have it, neither has any other person an immortal soul to depart and be with Christ at death. Is not that correct?

A. We can come to no other conclusion.

Q. Where is the Lord?

A. In heaven.

Q. Then if a person departs at death to be with the Lord, where does he go to?

A. If the Lord is in heaven, he must go to heaven.

Q. Did the Lord say anything about others either going or not going to heaven?

A. He did.

Q. What did he say?

A. See John xiii. 33. Speaking to his disciples, he said, "Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and as I said unto the Jews, whither I go ye cannot come; so now I say to you."

Q. Then if the Lord is in heaven, and he said they could not go where he was going, then neither Paul nor any other disciple could depart and be with Christ in heaven, at death, or any other time, could he?

A. No, sir, they could not, and the Lord's words hold true. "Whither I go, ye cannot come."

Q. Did the Lord say whether any one has ever ascended up to heaven, or not?

A. He did.

Q. What did he say?

A. See John iii. 13, "No man hath ascended up to heaven."

Q. Then the thought of any one departing from earth to heaven, where the Lord is, is adverse to Scripture teaching is it not?

A. It certainly is.

Teacher. Then we must seek some other meaning to Paul's words about departing and being with Christ, shall we not?

Ed. Yes, sir; because we find the common view to be contrary to Christ's teaching.

Q. Well, what is the Greek for the word translated "depart?"

A. "Analusai."

Q. What does it mean?

A. Parkhurst says: "It signifies in the New Testament to return or depart."

Q. Give a Scripture quotation where the Greek word "analusai" means "to return?"

A. See Luke xii. 36, "Be like unto men who wait for their Lord when he shall return (analusai) from the wedding."

Q. What is the present attitude of all true gospel believers?

A. Waiting for the return (analusai) of the Lord from heaven, and not for us to depart from earth to heaven.

Q. In other translations render the word "analusai" by the word "return?"

A. Yes, sir; they do.

Q. Please give one.

A. We have the "Diaglott," which gives it as follows: "I am hard pressed by two things,—I have an earnest desire for the returning (analusai—the act of returning) and being with Christ, since it is very much to be preferred."

Q. Preferred to what?

A. To a choice between death or the full mortal life. Then we will depart from the present groaning condition of things literally.

Q. Who will experience this glad departure?

A. Those who yield a hearty obedience to the glorious gospel of the kingdom, and continue first in the faith, and refuse all solicitations from the apostacy to compromise the same and shall cut loose from every worldly abomination.

Q. Please give the study of scholars, with regard to the use of the word "analusai," in the text we are now examining?

A. I will quote as follows: "There is a feature which the Common Version ignores, the infinitive analusai is preceded by the article to. The significance of the word will be perceived in the light of the following rule of Greek grammar. The infinitive with the article, is in all cases equivalent to a substantive, as ton logo the act of speaking. Hence, to analusai—literally the return—is the act of returning, and should distinctly be the returning. In addition to the verb return there is the verb to be, this is also in the infinitive, and preceded by the article, it therefore, ought to be understood as a substantive—the being. Both phrases are preceded by the preposition sin, (for) from which it allows that Paul's desire was for the returning and the being with Christ. The verse translated in strict accordance with the original, would stand as follows: 'For I am straitened by the two, having the earnest desire for the returning and the being with Christ, far better by much."

Teacher. For a fuller and more complete exposition of this text, see Lesson V, page 52, of "Fine Woods Bible Class."

It is now time to adjourn.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 28.

TEMPERANCE. EPH V 6-20.

Golden Text. Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the Spirit. Eph v 18.

To get a fair understanding of this lesson let us fix in mind that this is the latter part of the letter written by the apostle Paul to the saints in Ephesus, and other faithful brethren. He reminds them that they trusted in Christ after they heard the Word of truth, the gospel, and were sealed with the Holy Spirit's promise. Eph i, 1, 13. Before that they were dead—to God and Christ—in trespasses and sins. Were without Christ, had no promise from God, and no hope. Eph ii 1, 12. But now since they had believed and obeyed the gospel a revelation was made to them—through Paul—that had not been made known in the past ages, that they, the Gentiles, should be fellow heirs in the body of Christ. If Christ dwelt in their hearts by love. Eph iii 6, 17. And now being no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints. Eph ii 19, 20. And that through Jesus Christ having so highly honored them, they should prove their gratitude and love towards God by their every day conduct. Be men and women in Christ, and not act like children—of the world—as they did before. Be kind and tender hearted, forgiving one another, as God for Christ's sake had forgiven them. Eph iv 1, 24, 25.

Therefore walk in love, as Christ loved them, not using a mess of foolish talk, that would lose them out of the kingdom of God. Eph v 1-5.

This brings us to the lesson text. The Apostle Paul has no fun to them the actual facts concerning salvation in the kingdom of God, and how to conduct themselves in order to be saved, and his earnest exhortation is not to let any man—no matter who—deceive them, leading them astray by promising or preaching some other way of salvation. Another gospel that is not another. Gal i 6, 7.

There are today thousands that listen to some gifted orator, holding them spell bound, and working on their emotions until they cannot control themselves. By standing up or falling down, and various other signs they profess to be converted, and by the speaker and others are declared to be saved, and on their way to heaven. Is it any wonder that Paul says: "Let no man deceive you with vain words"? For because of these things—false teachings—comes the wrath of God on the leaders and the led.

He warns the saints and faithful brethren to take no part in such things. They belong to those who love darkness rather than the light of truth.

Then he calls to awake—do not be drowsy, be alive unto God: Eph v 11. So as to redeem—make the most of the time—before they believe—be diligent, "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. Rom xii 11.

Temperance. Every reasonable man and woman, and many unreasonable know what temperance means, also know how to be temperate. Knowledge is power, and when properly used is powerful. Temperance demands self restraint, self denial, not only with regard to strong drink, but includes every other excess. People can, and do, talk, laugh, sing, dance, dress, play, work and eat, also pray and preach intemperately. Was it necessary for Paul to write to the saints, Be not drunk with wine? Did they not know that no drunkard can enter the kingdom of God? 1 Cor vi 10. Those who really compose the Church of God, the body of Christ, knew that "wine was a mocker," They were filled with the Spirit. But there were always "Some among them," 1 Cor xv 12, that required a written law, which they continually tried to avoid, as some do now. No law abiding man will object to the temperance movement, so actively pushed at the present time. But does it require a temperance lecturer to convince even the drunkard that drunkenness is a shame, a disgrace? No, indeed. The drunkard knows that he is a blot, that his appearance and actions are a crime against manhood. Drunkards and drinkers glory in their shame.

Let us not forget the tobacco intemperance—or temperate use, or any use. The habit is filthy and unmanly. Because great numbers, and many of good character use it does not alter the fact that it is a childish habit. The best and manly men do not use tobacco nor get drunk with wine. The new man in Christ Jesus will not.

Next lesson, Israel asks for a King. 1 Sam viii.

P. NEILL.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The Restitution advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief in the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 17, 1908.

BRETHREN and Sisters, a number of our friends have not yet renewed subscriptions for the year. Will all such try and remember us very soon. We thank you for the favor

SISTER C. H. Wallace is going to spend the summer at Los Angeles, Cal. and wishes to greet those of the faith in that city. Please drop her a line or call on her at 126 E 6th St. and get acquainted.

WE were pleased to have our new Brother Pressley, of Dutton, Michigan visit us. He is one of three old soldiers that were baptized at the Michigan Conference, and we were so glad to see him that we have extended an invitation to him to come again.

SISTER Jones Milleback wishes us to say that Brother Lindsay stopped while on his way from attending the Michigan Conference to the Indiana meeting and preached three sermons for the South Bend Church. While there he encouraged Sister Rentha Cuffel, and so one more dear one is added to the little company of God's children at South Bend. Our prayer is that she will be faithful the little time that remains for it at last receive a crown when Jesus comes.

THERE is a busy week with us. The meeting at old Antioch was well attended by more than the usual number of brethren and sisters being there on Friday and Sunday, while the Sunday crowd was a large one ever. All were pleased to see Bro. R. S. Dwiggins of Ontario, Cal. once more. He is some older than when last with us, his voice has the same old ring, and we were glad to see him. Brother Baldwin came from St. Petersburg, Fla. to be at the Antioch meeting again, and it looked good to see him once more, though there was the tinge of sadness when we remembered that his dear wife was not there, but sleeps in southern soil, awaiting the angel call to a new unending life. The [illegible] will give a report of the [illegible] but we must say from personal mentioning the pleasure we had in visiting with the faithful [illegible] from Chicago. Brother Ashbaker and daughter, Bro. Thompson and wife, and Brothers T. H. Wilson and Alexander. May the Lord bless them. We hope this will not be their last meeting with us. Come again, and bring others.

THE Bible School at Plymouth is being well attended and bids fair to be of profit to all. The best laid plans however are often disarranged. When we arrived home from Antioch on Sunday night there was a telegram calling Brother Lindsay to preach at the funeral of a Sister at Marshall, Illinois, and the programme had to be changed, as he could not get back until Wednesday to take his part of the work. To assist in this emergency Brother Woodward remained and preached to the people on Monday evening. This made it impossible for him to reach his home before twelve o'clock at night, but he said he would gladly suffer the personal inconvenience, if he could thereby do good, so all feel indeed grateful to our aged brother for so doing. There are many hearts in Plymouth with tender spots for Brother Woodward, and we are always glad to greet him. We were disappointed that the labor of the Michigan Conference left Sister Woodward in such a condition that she feared to attempt the trip to our state, however we trust through the providence of God she may be with us again next month.

Conference Report.

Another effort for the advancement of God's truth we believe will be registered by him who "never slumbers or sleeps," but who always keeps correct account of his family and their work for him. "Success" must be the word written for this our 50th Conference Anniversary of the "Church of God" in Michigan.

Bro. Lindsay was present on time and gave a good sermon on the subject, "The worth of God's Word." The Bible school opened Wednesday morning with a splendid attendance. As Bro. Lindsay expressed it, a very bright intelligent class of people from 12 to 84 years of age. It was encouraging to see the earnest study of each, especially the class of young ladies, and we believe through these earnest studies one at least of them was made to see her need of Christ, all were instructed and greatly benefitted. Each train brought re-inforcements until the attendance became larger than we have had the pleasure of seeing for many years. A large tent for serving meals was pitched near the church, where all meals were served, except breakfast, during the entire week. Sunday for dinner the tables were set for 91, which means nearly all of that number were from other localities.

Bro. F. L. Austin reached here Wednesday in time for his work in the evening.

The programme was carried out almost entirely as given in THE RESTITUTION. We feel that the Bible school and the financial plan as prepared by the committee, (which was adopted, and of which each member of the body will receive a copy later) was a good step in advance. So much interest was manifested in the Bible school work that many urged the plan of holding it a week or ten days next year, (D. V.) The meeting was well attended by many dear faithful ones, and yet all were not here we had hoped to see. God knows if some of them might have been here to throw their influence on the side of truth, but were not enough interested to come. He also knows all about those whose heartsoded out for the sweet companionship of those whom they desired to meet once more in Conference worship, but chose to remain at home for the sake of others too aged or ill to come, and great will be their reward. Again we looked in vain for dear familiar faces never more to meet with us, for they have finished their course, and are awaiting the welcome into the kingdom, and still with these thoughts of sadness we rejoiced for we were encouraged by the results of this gathering. Sunday P. M. after Bro. Woodward's sermon on the kingdom, Bro. F. V. Blakely of Grand Rapids, made public avowal of his life consecration by being ordained to the ministry. Bro. Lindsay offered the prayer of consecration, after which Bro. H. W. Woodward gave him the exhortation and charge.

Bro. Blakely is a young man (married) with a good education and ability for doing good in the Master's cause. May he be kept humble, devoted, earnest, studious helper in this great work. No one can teach unless willing to be taught. No one is fit or able to mold other minds until they are willing and do have their own wills controlled and molded by divine power. So our prayer for our brother is, Take and mold me as thou wilt in love, patience and humility, and an ever increasing love for God's truths. We were further made to rejoice when after this meeting we saw Bro. Woodward buried seven willing, intelligent believers into the Christ, all realizing their needs of a safe and right adoption into the family of God. Now if ye be Christ's then are you Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. Gal iii 29.

The ministers present were O. R. L. Crozier, B. W. Woodward and M. A. Woodward, F. L. Austin, Sister L. Perkins F. V. Blakely and S. J. Lindsay. Meeting closed Sunday evening with the right hand of fellowship, communion and a sermon from F. L. Austin. May the power of the blessed gospel keep us all faithful to the end of life is the prayer of your servant.

A Letter.

Written to the teacher of the Bible Class at Tabernacle Christian church, Fort Worth, Texas.

Friend Ingle:

I certainly enjoyed your exposition of the logical proofs of Jesus' death and resurrection. It was remarkably conclusive and convincing. Jesus died and rose again. However your statement that in reality there was no death of the real ego, the inner being; but a continuous conscious life, was a discordant note. The whole Scripture, from Genesis to Revelation, is only amplification of Paul's summary, (Rom vi 23). "The wages of sin is DEATH; but the GIFT of God is eternal life THROUGH Jesus Christ our Lord."

The question is not, "If a man die shall he continue to live;" but "If a man die shall he live AGAIN"? For those who shall have died before Jesus comes and sends his messengers to assemble his chosen ones, (Mark xiii 26, 29) future life is predicated on resurrection. Paul said that those who taught that the resurrection had passed over turned the true faith. A continuity of life is taught in the Bible in one passage, Gen iii 4. Jesus referred to that teaching in anything but confirmatory language. Jno viii 44. According to your own statement, you have made wonderful progress towards the one true faith; and, like Apollos, have become mighty in the Scriptures; and now I desire to emulate Aquila and Priscilla. Acts xviii 26.

The true doctrine is, By sin came DEATH—death in the ordinary meaning of the word; by the righteousness of Jesus the Christ came the possibility of LIFE to those who believe in him. If the sons of Adam possess inherent inmortality, impolitely termed the immortality of the soul, then the sacrifice of Christ was of no necessity, for we already possess that which he, through the gospel proposes to give, namely life. If we are "good," God will not condemn the good to endless misery, hence we would be "saved," i. e. enjoy eternal happiness without the "blood" and without the "faith"; and all of those spoken of in Heb xi, would not be waiting "for us," (verse 40), but would have been made "perfect" long before those inspired words were penned. But the subject is too vast for a letter. I inclose leaflets on the subject. If you are inclined to take up study of this vital doctrine, I will be glad to furnish you Scripture helps. Prove all things, hold fast to that which is good. And no doctrine, however self gratifying, is good that is not true.

Sincerely your friend.

Report of Labor.

On April 22, 1908, we, wife, children and I, left Woodstock, Va., for the home of Sister Cook, of Boutonville, Va., there we stayed for three days and were royally entertained. Three meetings were held at her house and so well did Sister Cook do her part that a goodly company of neighbors gathered in each evening. Saturday morning, the 25th, we were conveyed to the home of Sister Julia Updike, seven miles distant, by her husband. Sister Cook is also a sister in the flesh to Sister Cook. We stayed with Sister Updike all night and for the benefit of her aged mother, held a service in the evening in the parlor which quite a few of the neighbors attended. Sunday morning we were driven another two miles to the church, where morning service was held. The house was filled to overflowing. This little house, located in among the Blue Ridge mountains was dedicated several years ago to the service of God, by Bro. Samuel Wilson of Jersey City.

The following week was spent with Brother and Sister Ashby Updike. We can hardly say too much for this God fearing couple and their three girls, who showed us every attention. During the day we visited the neighbors and each night held a meeting.

Saturday morning Bro. and Sister Ashby Updike drove us eleven miles to Front Royal where we took the train for Waterlick. Here we were met by Bro. Samuel Boyer, who drove us nine miles to his home. We were to have had meetings every night of the following week, but therein interfered somewhat with our plans. We did the best we could, however, and only missed two meetings entirely, the others being attended by small but interested audiences. On May 13th after a three day rest we began a series of eleven meetings at Slate Hill, another point near Bro. Samuel Boyer's. During most of this series we stayed with Sister Virginia Ritenour. We must not fail to commend her hospitality and also of her entire family, father, mother and two brothers. We must also mention the kindness of Bro. Samuel Boyer and family, and Bro. David Boyer and family. Again rain interfered and cut down the attendance several nights, but gratifying to say, it only served to stimulate the real interested ones. On Saturday May 23, Sister Virginia Ritenour took us in the surrey, over the Massenutten mountain, 12 miles to our home.

We were gone one month, held 27 meetings, visited the brethren and got acquainted with the people at four localities and had the pleasure of baptizing one young man, brother Chas. Funk. We still have some special meetings in the near future which will also be reported.

Sincerely.

GEORGE NEILL.

To obey is better than sacrifice.

Is the World Growing Worse?

Brother George Neill asks: "Tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better." There are no such facts because the world is growing better and will continue to improve materially, morally and intellectually until the Lord comes. This is what the Prophets teach and is in accord with experience.

Indeed, the wide spread diffusion of light, shining from God's Word—the Bible—now translated into over four hundred languages, every known tongue, and its influence in the betterment of human affairs, is one of the most conspicuous signs of the nearness of the coming of the Son of Man.

To reach correct conclusions on this question, compare conditions as they now exist with conditions as they existed immediately prior to the French Revolution, also two or three hundred years ago when the Reformation, growing out of the battle for religious liberty and a free open Bible was on. In those days it was a crime, punishable with imprisonment and death, to own, read or believe the sacred volume. At that time tens of thousands of the world's best and brightest were put to sword, stake and faggot for no other crime than teaching and believing God's Word. Or, making comparison with conditions as they existed in the dark ages when the Roman Catholic and Greek churches, Mohammedanism and Paganism the beasts, false prophets and dragons of false religion, priestly craft and graft dominated the world. Study history, mark time with progress and you will agree with us that we are in the dawn immediately preceding the coming of the Son of Righteousness.

Evangelistic.

I am in receipt of a letter from by son Raphael Ekels, advising me to return to the northwest without delay. Whether his letter was prompted by uneasiness concerning my health, or by a desire to improve my financial condition by relinquishing a timber claim in my favor, my judgement prompts me to take the most direct route to Portland, Oregon, on June 1, 1908.

Other considerations have influenced the decision homeward. As harvest is right at hand successful work in Kansas, Oklahoma or Texas is almost out of the question, and the heat of the summer in Arizona would be likely to handicap work among those dear brethren who realized last winter that I was a sick man, and showed their love by destituted liberality. If the brethren of the northwest carry out the plan attempted at last conference, that of reducing the size of the conference by cutting off the southwest, and I can be of any benefit to the brethren of Arizona and the adjacent country, I shall feel as I felt when in Oregon, that a soul saved in the southwest is of as great value as one rescued in the northwest. There is no limit to God's love, and there should be no limit to the zeal of those who love God except our poor finite strength.

There should be a systematic, organized work done in every part of the United States. Those that really believe that the time is near and sure when we must account for the use of our talents, will be diligent in considering their responsibility and accountability as servants. The brethren of Arizona are blessed with a fair land, a healthy climate and liberal souls, and I believe that with the suggestion they will consider the advisability and duty of organizing the southwest with Arizona as the central work, and such territory as lies west, east, north and south as co-workers in this work. I found in my evangelistic work just finished that it is favorably considered. If those who favor it will agitate it through THE RESTITUTION, you have a field where fruitful harvest may be gathered, if proper zeal is used. Impressions of truth were stamped on the minds of many that are not likely to be effaced.

REVIEW.—LESSON 1 COR. XV. 1-20.

Golden Text—These things are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name. John xx 31.

The reason why a review is given in place of another lesson, is that the main teachings of the quarter may be gone over briefly, and so fixed on the mind. 10 Jesus died for you and I.
11 He now lives, and will give us life.
12 The conditions is that I love him, and work for him now.

Dear Restitution:

We had an overflow of good things Sunday. Bro. and Sister Tomlinson, and Bro. and Sister Moore from Cleveland were with us. Bro. Tomlinson occupied the morning speaking in his earnest way on the ever interesting subject, "Salvation." Bro. Moore conducted the table service in his quiet impressive manner, making most appropriate remarks. Sister Baker read Titus ii., after which a number of the members gave short talks, to the edifying of all present. Bro. Baldwin spoke in the evening to a most attentive audience, topic, "The Apostles' Doctrine." We all much enjoyed the proceedings of the whole day.

P. NEILL.

Dear Restitution:

As the time has arrived for me to renew my subscription, please find money order for $1.50. I am glad I can renew, for the paper has been a great help in the study of the Book. It helped me to win two faithful helpers to the truth, and now we have a Bible reading once in two weeks that is quite interesting to some others as well as ourselves. Hope the faithful few will pray with us that our number may be increased.

Yours in the truth,

HIRAM CONDIT.

It is the way of the Lord to work for a season, as it were, underground: As the seed that dies in the ground, through dying, comes to life, so God will seem to cut off the hope of fruit of our labor; yet when we have humbled ourselves under his hand, and he has secured the glory to himself, he will put forth his power and bring to life our buried hopes.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year's work, would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

Editor's Canadian Tour.

The brethren in Cleveland were very sorry they did not know of Bro. Hiller's illness and death until they were announced at the Sunday morning meeting by the presiding brother. On the Monday following we sorrowfully wended our way to the "house of mourning," in company with Sisters Lang and Sanford, two good "daughters of Sarah," who are always ready to shed the sympathetic tear with the broken hearted, and mingle a whisper in prayer with the afflicted. Our brother's funeral was held on Tuesday, after which he was committed to the dust to rest till the Lord comes.

It is here appropriate to say that we visited Lake View Cemetery, and had a look at the resting place of Bro. Joblin, "whom not having seen, we love." "Asleep" (the only statement on his tombstone, except his name, date of his birth and death), tells the whole truth for which he lived and died. We spent one afternoon with Sister Joblin, at the parsonage, where she still lives, in care of Sister Bradshaw. This young sister will surely have a rich reward for taking care of Sister Joblin in the evening days of her life, when the kingdom of God comes. It seems that Bro. Joblin always read his sermons from MSS. He had preached in Cleveland for about twenty years, so the reader can form some idea of the barrels of MSS. he has in his study. His library is also very extensive and one of the best in this country. We fortunately "arranged in partnership with a brother, to buy but a his manuscript sermons and his library.

But here' Time is on the wing, and we have "no continuing city." We must get our "things together," and hurry to our Hesperian field of labor. A few tears restrained, a trembling voice strengthens till there is no noticeable quiver, a forced smile, and we are "aboard" the Lake Shore for the country of the setting sun. We took back once more—the last time—and there stands my dear brother Sanford, who says "Good by" for himself and "for the folks." A fourteen hour's ride and the porter says, "All out for Oregon." And now we are at home in our study, thankful to God for his good care of us in the dangerous incidents of travel, and with fond affection in my heart for the dear people of God whom I have been privileged to meet, and whom I love.

The Seven Signs.

The Fifth Sign. "And many false prophets (teachers) shall arise and shall deceive many." A brief paragraph which portends volumes. It has its counterpart in the fifth and sixth trumpets, foreshadowing the rise and career of the mighty Mahommedan system with its two hundred million followers and the mighty political powers which uphold it. A system founded on the teachings of a false prophet. Also the mighty contemporaneous politico—religious system—the Papacy—the "anti-Christ", "the man of sin", more fully portrayed in symbols of the beast, the two horned beast, the image of the beast and the beast and its scarlet woman rider. Rev xiii and xvii, monsters of iniquity and false religion which dominated hundreds of millions and reduced Christianity to the condition described in the next sign.

The Sixth Sign. "Because the iniquity shall abound the love of many shall wax cold." Matt xxiv 12. A condition accurately described in the closing verses of Rev ix under the sixth trumpet, "Yet they repented not of the work of their hands, that they should not worship demons" (alleged souls of men as in the worship of saints and martyrs) and idols of gold, silver, brass, stone and wood (as in the worship of the crucifix, the image of the Virgin and of saints and martyrs as practiced by the Latin and Greek churches); neither repented they of their murders; (the papal power is responsible for the destruction of tens of millions), nor of their sorceries, (the alleged cures and socalled miracles practiced under the sanction of the Papacy and Greek churches are only feats of necromancy) or of their fornications, nor of their thefts." Rev ix 20, 21. All of which were practiced under the name of the Christian religion just before the dawning of the reformation. At that time it was a common practice to sell indulgences, to commit crime under the seal and sanction of the Pope. For a small consideration the privilege to kill, steal, commit adultery or any other crime could be bought. The indulgence was supposed to grant pardon in advance for the sin of the crime it was proposed to commit. Little wonder with such things in the name of Christianity, that "love waxed cold."

The Seventh Sign. "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come." This seventh and last sign, as given by the Master and depicted in the Revelation, foreshadows a mighty change for the better. The dark night of the Christian world, with its shadows and monsters that prey on the benighted souls of men has passed, the day break and the coming of the Son of Righteousness is at hand. "As the light (of day break) cometh out of the East and shineth even to the West, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be." Matt xxiv 27. This is the time when Daniel's shut book is opened and "many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." Dan xii 4.

The preaching of the kingdom of God to all nations and the proclamation of the everlasting gospel, resulting in the fall of Babylon, are being accomplished in the translation of the Bible into every known tongue and its wide distribution. It is now translated either in a whole or part into four hundred and sixty-seven (467) different languages and dialects, of which four hundred and forty-three (443) translations are now in circulation. Twelve million, seven hundred and sixty-seven thousand, one hundred and fifty-three Bibles (12,767,153) were printed and distributed in a single year. The sealed Book is now open. The witnesses are exalted. Their influence is felt for the better through the whole world. As a result the false prophet is now the "sick man of the East." The pope is "prisoner of the Vatican," his dominion taken away," his power rapidly being "consumed and destroyed until the end." Dan vii. The next act in the mighty drama is the coming of the Son of Righteousness.

JAMES W. WILSON.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

We have read Bro. Wilson's article with care and interest, as no doubt our readers have. His classification of the signs in Matt xxiv, with the symbolography of the seven seals, is ingeneous. Whether right or wrong, his pharaphrastic remarks are worthy of reading and thought. We are personally acquainted with our brother, and feel sure he will excuse us for observing that we do not think his proof texts under his "seventh sign" paragraph, justifies his conclusions. Is it not saying too much to affirm, "The dark night of the Christian world, with its shadows and monsters that prey on the souls of men, has passed"? All this "passed"? Not quite. The false Prophet may be called "the sick man of the East", but he is not dead. "The man of sin" may be the "prisoner of the Vatican"; but he has millions of devotees throughout the world. Granting that the Sultan's power and dominion has been weakened in the fulfillment of prophecy, and that the Pope is gradually loosing his authority in the political world, this does not justify us in saying that there has been a "mighty change for the better", only in so far as this particular manifestation of sin is concerned. The Pope's subjects are as loyal to him today as ever they were. From a numerical standpoint, the Catholics are growing faster in America than any other church. Their political power is decreasing, while their numbers are increasing. As a factor in the political world the power of the Pope has been "consumed" according to prophecy, and will be consumed until totally "destroyed with the brightness of his coming." Granting all this, it does not necessarily follow that the world is better morally and religiously. Sin has thousands of forms of manifestation. While the political power of the "sick man" has waned, and the word of the Pope is no longer noticed by the nations, evils and sins without number have taken their place. The "sick man" is on his bed of death; and the Pope is a "prisoner" awaiting execution when the Lord comes. But if we have not read the prophets wrongly there is to be very bad times prior to the Lord's coming. Perilous times are to culminate in a "time of trouble such as never was". Dan xii 1. We do not make these remarks as a critic to stir up debate and argument, but as a brother in loving entreaty against the evils attendant reaching conclusions not justified by the proof.

John Pappus and the Council of Nice.

Brother Huggins:

I am interested in your work for THE RESTITUTION, and being set for the defense of the authenticity of the Scriptures. I have this week taken up a treatise on the subject, in which I take occasion to cite your article on "An Old Skeptical Claim Exposed Again," quoting the extract from H. L. Hastings, and citing your statements regarding the statement of the "historian" John Pappus, whose statement concerning the superstitious origin of Scripture Canon at Nice, A. D. 325, we have occasion to call in question. Your article I speak of is in RESTITUTION of May 20. Our readers have been enlisted with the skeptical statement, and I try to refute it. Now, as to John Pappus, I have tried to find a record of him, as historian or otherwise, have just examined Encyclopedia Britannica, where I only find "Pappus, of Alexandria, a Greek geometer." Will you do me the favor of a citation for your statement concerning him as I am using the matter about the sins as you have, and want the evidence if I have to defend the statement. Although Pappus may not have claimed to be a historian, it is important to know where evidence lies; and I know you would not have made the statement about him without authority for it. I beg the favor of citation.

Please accept next week's issue of Bible Advocate on this question.

Yours fraternally,

JASON BRICKEBRIDGE.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Thanks are due the writer for kindly sending us a copy of The Bible Advocate, of which he is Office Editor. We have found many subjects of interest in this paper, particularly the one on the "Authenticity of the Scriptures" of which he speaks in his letter. Our writer must not wonder at failing to find anything about the "historian" John Pappus in his Britannica. This is not the first time infidels have suddenly discovered "historians"; every now and then they astonish the world by learnedly announcing that a "historian" says this or that, or that the "best scholar the world," says, etc. People who go by sound instead of sense are sometimes deceived by their windy claims. Quotation, however, can usually find that their "great men" are pigmies, if indeed they are important enough to find notice at all in Standard Biographies. We spent an afternoon in the library at Dixon, Ill., hunting the "historian," John Pappus. We succeeded in digging him out of oblivion, where he has been sleeping for years. Too bad the world has not heard of this great "historian" until now! Reader, have patience to read this paragraph about so great a man.

"Johann Pappus, a Lutheran minister and writer, born at Lindau, on Lake Constance, in 1549. He preached at Strasburg. Died 1610."—Lippincott's Pronouncing Biographical Dictionary, by Joseph Thomas, Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1885, page 1898.

John Pappus was not born till 1549. The Council of Nice was held 325 A. D. As a matter of historical inquiry, we leave the reader to judge of his authority as a "historian." But granting the story he tells about the Council is true, what follows? The genuine and spurious books are all under the Communion table. The Council is hopelessly confused, cannot tell the true books from the false ones. They pray for the ones divinely inspired to get up on the table, "and when the Council was called next morning, it had happened accordingly!" What does that big exclamation point mean after the word "accordingly"? Have you not retold this old infidel lie to cast doubt on God's Word? To discredit the authenticity of the whole Bible? You refined infidels (?), you self-styled "higher critics," do you believe the tale you have told about the Council of Nice? The very writer who tells the story and who scratched it out of an old infidel junk pile, forgets his story, and writes "God never gave any inspired Canon of books * * but promised the Holy Spirit to remain always as a guide to his seeking children."

Again: "When the Lord is said to speak through a prophet, or otherwise, I accept it as his Word * * * if it is in harmony with the covenants of promise." The man who tells the Council of Nice story to shake our faith in the Bible, particularly the first two chapters of Matthew, says that he has the "promise" of the Holy Spirit, and that he stands on the "covenants of promise"! Now a "gentle reminder." Where do you get the "promise" of the Holy Spirit? In John's gospel. That gospel was under the Communion table at Nice A. D. 325! Where do you read about the Covenants of promise? In Genesis. But this book, too, was under the table at Nice! Now, my dear sir, the promise" of the Holy Spirit which you claim, may be worthless as the sand; and the covenants of promise upon which you stand, may be spurious as Rome! The Bible is such a mixture of truth and error, according to your claim, that you cannot have real faith in any of its statements. The texts you believe to be true, may really be spurious; and the passages you think are false, may, for ought you know, be pure gold. Don't be a hypocrite. If you are an infidel at heart, come out and say so. Be a man. Be open and above board. Don't insult Israel's God and his Revised Word any more.

They Wrote Letters. Acts x v 23.

Dear Brethren:

Send me one of your booklets. I know anything you write will be good. All the preaching we get now in the dear old RESTITUTION. I do not know another of our faith nearer than Waterville, Wash. and that is quite a distance from here.

MRS. MARY E. BRUNSDORF.

Brother Huggins:

As Secretary for the Missouri Conference, I am requested to write and ask you if you can attend our Conference, which is to be held here Aug. 28 to 30 inclusive. This is our first Conference, but we hope to make it a success, and are working to the best of our ability, to that end. Will you let me know soon if you can attend? We need you and want you so much.

Yours in the blessed Hope,

MAUDE B. MORSE.

We are corresponding with Sister Morse, and are trying to arrange our work so we can go and lend a helping hand to her infant Conference.

Brother Huggins:

Do you remember asking me this question at the Conference last August: "If you had that dread disease, consumption, and knew that you had to die, and were baptized because you had to die, would your obedience be rendered from the heart? Would it be prompted by a good motive? Will that prompt such a forced action as well-pleasing obedience?"

Well, brother, I did not wait until I had that disease, but I did get a desire to be one of God's little flock. I gave myself up, and have felt so happy, so full of joy, ever since.

As I am only a babe in the Christian life, will you pray for me that I may have strength to be faithful, and that I will be found worthy of eternal life when the Master comes.

I want to attend the Ohio Conference at Salem this year. It was the Conference meetings last year at Springfield that made me think, and caused me to become interested in the blessed truth.

Your Sister in hope,

JESSIE KAUFFMAN.

Gold Dust.

Great thoughts are those that go deep enough to take root and bear fruit in lives.

Every word of God will fulfil its mission. All we have to do is to help speed it on its mission.

Temptation is only an invitation; it does not become sin till you accept it.

If you are busy doing the King's work you will not have time to develope any of the meaner qualities that cheapen life.

The best way to get even is to forget.

An honest man would rather be underrated than overrated.

God can use a dull tool but a keen one would do better work.

If anyone speaks evil of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.

Use your own brains rather than those of others.

Cultivate forbearance till your heart yields a fine crop of it. Pray for a short memory as to all unkindness.

A single expression of appreciation and encouragement will at times turn a human life toward an upward path.

Do not despise any opportunity because it is small. The way to make an opportunity grow is to take hold of it and use it.

It is the admirer of himself, and not the admirer of virtue that thinks himself superior to others.

Tell the truth and let others say what they will. You are responsible for but one tongue.

Do not look forward to what might happen tomorrow, the same everlasting Father who cares for you today will take care of you tomorrow and every day.

Keep your eyes open to your mercies. The man who forgets to be thankful has fallen asleep in life.

Living with Christ makes the Christian.

It is while you are patiently toiling at the little tasks of life that the meaning and shape of the great whole of life dawns upon you. It is while you are resisting little temptations that you are growing stronger.—Brooks.

The life which bears no fruit to God's glory is a failure no matter what else it may accomplish.

A virtuous life is like a lamp post. It lessens evil and shows the way for righteousness.

"Daniel purposed in his heart." The trouble with a great many people is they purpose to do right, but they only purpose in their heads and that doesn't amount to much. If you are going to be Christians, you must purpose to serve God away down in your hearts. "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness."

"I would not give much for your religion unless it can be seen. Lamps do not talk but they do shine. A lighthouse sounds no drum, it beats no gong; and yet, far over the waters its friendly spark is seen by the mariner. So let your actions shine out your religion; let the main sermon of your life be illustrated by all your conduct, and it shall not fail to be illustrious."—Spurgeon.

ANNA DIXON.

No Condemnation In Christ Jesus.

Believed, there is therefore now no condemnation to them which we in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but the Spirit. This is the summary of a great argument used by Paul to show the blessedness of those who are in Christ Jesus and are striving to walk according to the commandment. With what sweet assurance we can read and contemplate these words. But it is not a new doctrine, it had been taught many hundred years before. David describes such an one in the first Psalm when he said, "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful, but his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. That man is blessed or happy, for that is what the word blessed means. The reason for such happiness comes from a reflection of the acceptance of divine overtures of mercy. What ought to give more happiness than the knowledge of the fact that we have received pardon from a condemnation which has passed upon all men? How accurately a pardon is sought by any who are confined in our penal institutions, and what joy it gives if one is obtained. This in a small way represents the feeling of those who realize their present position as the children of wrath, "aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenant of promise, having no hope, and without God, but through the intervention of a kind Father and loving Savior provision has been made whereby we may escape from this dreadful condemnation of sin and death, and become partakers of a divine nature.

That we may know what condemnation Paul was speaking of, let us turn to the fifth chapter and 8th verse of this same book "by the offense of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation." Here is the condemnation from which we must seek relief. It came by one upon all, and we are further informed that it came by sin, "By one man sin entered the world and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men. Now this is plain that sin brought death, and that death is styled condemnation. To be free from condemnation is to be free from sin and death. How did the Roman brethren become free from condemnation. The answer is found in the sixth chapter. They had been baptized into Christ Jesus, the body which was subject to and under the power of sin and death was symbolically destroyed in baptism, and they had risen to walk in newness of life. This same thought was made manifest by Jesus when he said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my Word, and believeth on him that sent me hath everlasting life, and shall not come unto condemnation, but is passed from death unto life. Freedom from the condemning power of sin is guaranteed to those who believe on Jesus and put on his name in baptism for the remission of sin. In the book of Acts it is testified that through the name of Jesus was preached the forgiveness of sin, and by him all that believe are justified from all things.

Peter said on the day of Pentecost, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins. Those who obeyed him and those who since that day have followed his advice to be baptized became "dead to sin," and were buried with Christ by baptism into death, and if dead to sin, then free from its condemning power, consequently there is no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus. But does some one ask, Why does the believer die the same as the unbeliever, if he put to death the "body of sin" in baptism? That is a good question. Let me answer it by saying, that they do not die the same. The one dies under the law, Dust thou art, and..... which was pronounced upon their progenitor when "sin entered the world." The believer was made under the same law by birth, but escaped from it by a divine arrangement provided for all the sons and daughters of men who will avail themselves of it.

This arrangement is styled the law of the spirit of life in Jesus Christ, and it makes one free from the law of sin and death. Rom viii 2. There is no legal necessity of the death of the believer in Jesus. That such is a fact may be proven from the words of Paul when he says, we shall not all sleep, or suffer physical death, but we shall all be changed from mortality to immortality. Jesus put this matter beyond a doubt, when he used the figurative language concerning himself and his people. He says, My sheep hear my voice and follow me. I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish.

To make the matter certain that such individuals will not be lost or perish, he again says, This is the will of the Father which sent me, that of all which he has given me I shall lose nothing, but will raise it up at the last day. And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son and believeth on him, may have everlasting life, and I will raise him up at the last day. John vi 39, 40.

Every one who cometh to the Son shall not perish. They may die—their bodies may return to the dust, but they will not, cannot perish. No man shall pluck them out of my hand.

The fisheries of Canada are the most extensive of the world. The eastern sea coast of the Maritime provinces from the Bay of Fundy to the straits of Belle Isle covers a distance of 5600 miles, more than double that of Great Britain and Ireland, and the salt water inshore area, not considering minor indentations nor the great lakes of the west, covers more than 1,500 square miles.

During the year 1907 the additions to the Russian railroad system amounted to 1,167 miles, an increase of 3 per cent, bringing up the total to 40,488 miles. Of the whole mileage, 67 per cent belongs to the state. At the end of the year there were 1,600 miles under construction, included in which is a branch of the Trans-caspian line (Asiatic Midland,) 118 miles, to the Persian border.

S. J. LINDSAY.

To the Brotherhood of Faith in Virginia and other Eastern States: The brethren of the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia have taken the necessary steps toward the organization of a Conference, to be held some time during the latter part of August. It is especially desired that we make this Conference a season of rejoicing in the Lord and thereby strengthen our faith, and spread the good news of the Gospel to others.

Furthermore, we are desirous of interesting in any isolated brother or sister. We want to hear from you, and if it be possible induce you to attend, so write to S. E. Cooper Pleasant View, or to me at Dillbeck.

J. C. THOMPSON.

All that attend will be welcomed for. The church at Felida says come, the interest of the cause says come. It ought to be a pleasure for you to come. It is your duty to come; for the man of God said, "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another.....and a book of remembrance was written for them, and they shall be mine saith the Lord of hosts." "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together."

J. J. CADY, Sec'y.

To the church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conference at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing; for we shall reap if we faint not.

Editor Restitution:

Say to the brethren of the Church of God scattered, that our annual meeting at and near Bosworth, Mo. will be held at the Brown School house two and one-half miles north of Bosworth, meeting to begin on Saturday June 20th, and continue over Sunday, and longer if necessary.

The programme will be the Gospel of the kingdom of God. On Sunday at 11:00 a m the sermon will be by the writer, the text being that by the angels to the shepherds—Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. Luke ii 10.

At noon a basket dinner. Let all home folks bring baskets well filled with some thing to feed the outer man, and to feed brethren and friends from a distance. Let any who expect to attend write to Elbert Murray, at Bosworth, Mo. All are invited, so let us have at least one more good meeting at Bosworth.

My preaching days are nearly over, and I soon will have to do my preaching by writing. Come let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching.

By order of the Church.

JOHN FOORE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

If any of the brethren have statistics, facts or figures, showing the good that conferences have accomplished, I would be glad to have you communicate with me at Woodstock Va. I would like to secure a copy of same. Perhaps Brothers Lindsay, Allard, Wince, Wagoner, Brother and Sister Woodward, Brother Cromer or Sister Emma Jackman and others who have been active in Conference work can help me out. Also in regard to the claim of the orthodox churches that the world is growing better. Can any of the brethren tell me where I can secure facts showing that the world is not growing better.

GEORGE NEILL.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope.

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by O. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost: fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Augusta Ark

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each post paid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleading and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it, but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave, Pasadena, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. H. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their names, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in unregistered letters is usually detected and is at the owner's risk. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always remember your money is for and see that it is drawn to the order of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. and not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In ordering renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

God Is My Refuge.

God is my refuge: not one fear
Shall move my heart when danger's near
Though foes surround on every hand;
Sheltered in Him I safely stand;
My heart shall rest and surely sing,
Beneath the shadow of His wing.

A present help in trouble's hour—
In His temptations time their power:
Though darkness dim my sky o'erspread,
Still by a hand divine I'm led;
His presence cheers the gloomy way,
And turns my darkest night to day.

Indiana Conference Report.

As per announcement, the June Meeting at "Old Antioch" convened Friday, June 12. At 10:30, the President, Brother J. H. Willey read Hebrew i. and Brother J. F. Wagoner led in prayer.

In the President's address he spoke of "Antioch" being a sacred name, also of love and good will to the brethren. Brother D. E. Vanvactor responded to this address, in which he spoke of our High Priest, and the thought of considering one another to provoke unto love and good works, as found in the tenth chapter of Hebrews.

Brother Halsted led in prayer, and at 11:10 Brother S. J. Lindsay spoke on "The Inner Man." He used as a foundation for his discourse, 2 Cor. iv., particularly the 16th verse.

At 1:30 the Scripture lesson was Gal. vi and Brother J. H. Willey led in prayer, after which Brother D. T. Halsted spoke on the subject, "In Christ Jesus, What-and-How". The foundation for this sermon is found in 1 Cor. iv. 15.

A business session convened at 2:30, with President J. H. Willey in the chair. The roll call of the churches showed the following represented:—Argos, Antioch, Bracken, Pleasant View, Rensselaer and South Bend. The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted. It was moved and carried that the Conference recommend to the Evangelist committee to pay Brother Lindsay for work done in Indiana for which he had not received full pay.

At the close of the business session, Brother R. S. Dwiggins of California gave a short talk on the work around Los Angeles.

At 7:30, in the absence of Sister Woodward, Brother S. J. Lindsay spoke on "The Inheritance".

At 10:30 Saturday, Brother Winee led in prayer. Then instead of the customary lesson, Brother Wagoner read the following poem:

The Judge of the earth is coming
For the night is almost spent.
And lone hath the cry been given
To the ears of men "Repent."

He will come when He's least expected,
When there's strife on every side,
When the merchant plies his business
And the Bridegroom wants his bride.

When the world in scorn is pointing
At those who watch and wait,
There's a sudden start of terror,
For the Judge is at the gate.

O! the Lord is coming quickly,
Though the slumbers grow more deep,
Of the careless world that's lying
In a drowsy dreamy sleep.

And swift will be the awakening,
In an hour they thought secure;
For the vintage now is ripening,
And the harvest day is near.

O! sinner, why not get ready,
For the Lord will soon be here.
Now put on the wedding garment,
Then you'll meet Him without fear.

He then read Romans v. 1-12 and spoke on the "Atonement" using the eleventh verse in particular.

At 1:30 the business session was again called. Brother Willey read Psalm ix and led in prayer. It was moved and seconded that the Antioch meeting be discontinued. The motion amended to refer the matter to the churches at Argos and Plymouth. Amendment and motion were both lost.

The Berean President made the following report.

Report of Berean work 1907-1908. Our State Berean Society was organized last June at the time of the Bible School. Brother Neill was its president. He proceeded at once to organise societies at South Bend, Plymouth, Argos, North Salem, Pleasant View and Hillsburg. A partial organization was also effected at Burr Oak, but Brother Neill left before it was completed.

The Corresponding Secretary conducted a corresponding class of ten. A part of whom have done splendid work.

At the time of the Conference last fall, these societies were all doing good work. All reported good attendance and interest.

At their meetings the lesson outlines were discussed, the books of the Bible were learned in order, memory verses were repeated, and a review of the previous lesson was prepared in essay form and read. In some places singing classes were organized in connection with this work. Would a few years of such work among our young people be worth while?

Brother Neill's resignation was handed in in November. Since then I have been responsible for lesson outlining and care of the various societies. I feel myself very incompetent and have found the work an uphill affair. My school work makes it impossible for me to visit societies as a president should. I have done what I could to encourage all Berean workers by correspondence, but this method is indeed unsatisfactory.

Reports sent me last week say that in some places the meetings have been discontinued. Others are still at work. Cause assigned for this condition, no leader. In the young people rests the future of the church of God. It is my firm conviction that they are willing, eager, anxious, if properly led, but they need a shepherd. They need the help and entire attention of some one who is capable and who is willing to labor persistently. That this Berean work may continue successfully is my earnest prayer.

EVELYN K. HARSCH.

At 7:30, in the absence of Sister Woodward, Brother Woodward gave a discourse on "Test of Discipleship", taking as a starting point, 1 Cor. xvi 13. "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong."

At 9:30 Sunday morning, the social meeting was led by Brother Vanvactor. The lesson was Gal. v. The principal thought brought out as found in verse 25. "If we live in the spirit, let us also walk in the spirit." At this meeting a letter was read from our dearly beloved afflicted brother C. K. Burnhill.

At 10:30 Brother Woodward spoke on "The Resurrection" using 1 Cor. xv.

At 2:30 Brother Lindsay gave a discourse on "What Constitutes a Bad Man". Showing that it was the intent of the heart and not the deed that makes the act committed a sin. Also that a person in saying that "I am just as good as such a one and he belongs to church" is usually admitting himself to be "just as good" as one who is not living a righteous life. Brother Lindsay was followed by Brothers Winee and Hubbell on the same subject.

At 6:30 the Berean meeting was led by Sister Idona Romine, the topic being "Things that help us in our Christian warfare." The lesson read was Eph. vi. The leader read a paper on the subject after which the following points were discussed. Does the study of the word help us in our Christian warfare? How and why? by Brother J. F. Wagoner. Does the study of other books than the Bible help us? How and to what extent? Brother A. R. Underwood. Does church attendance help us? Why and how much? by Brother S. J. Lindsay. What part does our associates play in helping us in our Christian warfare? Sister Willey. Discussion of 1 Thes. v. 8 in connection with this subject by Sister Geneva McCrory.

1 Thes. v. 12, 13 as bearing on the subject, by Sister Ella Dement. How can we interest our young people and help them to grow? by Brother Halted who referred it to Brother Lindsay.

At 7:30 Brother Lindsay spoke on that old yet interesting subject, "The Kingdom of God".

A larger number than usual came from a distance. Brother Hugh Railsback of Florida and Brother R. S. Dwiggins of California being among the number.

Ministers present were Brothers Wagoner, Winee, Halsted, Woodward, Dwiggins, Lindsay, Burnham and Willey.

An unusual number of older people who have long attended these meetings were privileged to be present. Among this company were seen Brothers Halsted, Winee, Wagoner, Burnham, Dwiggins, Woodward, Wm. Hugh and Richard Railsback, I. G. Roberts, H. F. Cordill, A. Drew, J. H. Willey and Brother and Sister Samuel Osborne. To these and many others the ground around "Old Antioch" is almost sacred, as many close ties and sacred memories cling around it.

May they with us have the privilege of attending many more such meetings as this one at "Old Antioch".

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 56

My "Story of a Happy Christian Life," is turning out to be the story of many happy Christian lives, and why should it not, when all these lives were so intertwined and interlinked together by heavenly friendship and love? Aunty Willard knew and revered Bro. Henry Logan, whose interesting history I have just been telling, she more than once heard the sweet kingdom message fall from his lips, and was made to rejoice thereby. Of the two dear soldiers who now come before the readers of my articles, she knew but little personally, but met them both, and heard them speak at the first Annual Conference held in Philadelphia, Nov 15-20, 1888, as she also did, Bro. Hatch, Bro. R. S. Dwiggins and others.

Bro. Benjamin W. Woodward is a large man of splendid physique, deeply emotional, spiritually minded, and a speaker, who interests, attracts and converts his hearers. No one but God knows how many he has directly and indirectly brought to the feet of Jesus. The circle of his influence widens and goes onward, as his converts increase their work, bringing in others, and the work of these, still more, until working the problem out by arithmetical progression—the number reached would be almost innumerable, oh, if only all would be faithful, what a mighty host would there be battling now for the truth!

Bro. Woodward's name as well as that of Grant, the maiden name of his wife, are among the indexed names found in the Saltonstall Memorial and Genealogy—"to wit, The Ancestors and Descendants of Sir Richard Saltonstall, First Associate of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and Patentee of Connecticut, by Richard M. Saltonstall, as are also the names of Bros. Field, Winslow, White, Andrews, Andrus, Clark, Miller, Simonds, Austin, Greenleaf, Ramsay, Hall, Lewis, Neall, Barnes, French, Robison, etc. While that of my father links back through that of his grandmother Prudence (Pierce) Chaplin on his father's side, and through that of his great grandfather Atherton, on his mother's side, and my mother through her mother, Lucy Lee. This may seem a light thing to some, and purely accidental, but to me it is most solemn and marvelous, for it links these dear preachers of ours, not only to the kingly line of David, but also to the priestly line through the prophet Jeremiah, and they are therefore, just what God calls them a "royal priesthood, a chosen generation," by natural descent, as well as for the higher prerogative of belonging to the family of God, by having had the name of Christ named upon them. "Modern society"—an English publication—in 1897, said, "Dante's descendants can be traced and many still as recent studies have proved, about a million individuals." I have always felt from childhood up that there must become connection between the true ministers of God at the present time, and the priestly line of ancient Israel. But enough, the future will reveal what we now see but dimly.

I will let Bro. Woodward tell his own story. He can do it much better than I can. He says, "I was born in Chautauqua Co., N. Y., Feb 10th, 1831. We came to Michigan in 1845, settling in Gaines, Kent Co., where I now reside. My ancestors were Methodists, a goodly number being ministers of that faith. My grandfather was a very successful Methodist evangelist. I embraced the faith of my fathers in the year 1846, just a boy, a year from that time, being only sixteen years old, I was made a Methodist class leader, which post I kept until I became interested in the truths as I now understand them, which I first heard from J. G. Frisbie, a Sabbath Adventist. I was much interested in his talks on the nature of man and some other Bible themes, which I heartily accepted, but never endorsed their theories as a whole. A little later Bro. O. R. L. Crozier, Jr. Floyt and Joel A. Simonds came to our rescue, and taught us the way of life more perfectly. About the year 1856, I became a firm and enthusiastic believer, but worked my farm, did some lumbering, and attended to politics, and the Grange and Good Templer lodge. One day Bro. Simonds said to me, Benjamin, you are successful making Grangers, and Good Templers and Greenbackers, is it not more important to make Christians? The thought struck me very forcibly. I concluded I could not serve two masters successfully, so I paid up my dues, received my demits, and for thirty years have given my time nearly exclusively to the ministry. I have traveled through winter's storm and summer's heat traveling thousands of miles each year to preach the good news of the kingdom, preaching for many years about 250 sermons a year, not as many for the past few years. I have baptized between four and five hundred people and have tenaciously clung to the grand old gospel of the kingdom, shunning all side tracks. I am now 77 years young, kept young I suppose by the almost constant associations of my wife who has faithfully assisted me in our work for 25 years. I have lived in this place for 63 years, am a true pioneer, coming here when this country was a dense wilderness, our neighbors the red men, our music the baying wolves, screaming wild cats, and our meat the timid deer or venturesome bear. The Indians were very peaceable, and being mostly Methodists in their religion, they met with us in our worship; and I have seen nearly the entire congregation bathed in tears, when they arose to testify in their native simplicity and earnestness. I am one of the oldest pioneers in the vicinity and was chosen for president of their association a year ago, and re-elected Feb 22nd. I expect to spend my remaining days in the Master's cause, and when I am able shall preach the gospel of the kingdom straight. I never held any debates, the nearest I ever came to it, a man challenged me for a debate. I prepared my argument, but he never put in an appearance. We have a good comfortable church building here in Dutton, and a little company of faithful believers who meet here for worship.—B. W. Woodward.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JULY 5.

ISRAEL ASKS FOR A KING. 1 SAM VIII.

Golden Text. By me kings rule, and princes decree justice. Pro. viii 15.

With this lesson we enter upon a very important series concerning the kingdom. If we give them proper attention they will afford much valuable information on the "glad tidings of the kingdom," the gospel that Jesus came preaching, Mark i 14, 12, 15, 16. The Israelites—Israel—were, as we all know, brought out of Egypt through the power of God, as he had promised to Abraham four hundred years before. Gen xv 13-16.

Moses was the leader, holed them to the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho. Num xxxiii 50. There he rehearsed to them the main events of their forty years' wanderings, from the time they left Mount Sinai. Also many strong points of the law, and some of the things they were to do, and not to do when they possessed the land of Canaan. He told them—foretold—that when they were settled in the land they would want a king to be like the nations round them. This would be the beginning of the throne and kingdom of Israel, Deut xvii 14-20, kingdom of the Lord, 1 Chron xxix 23, kingdom of David; 2 Sam vii 16. Joshua succeeded Moses and led the Israelites into Canaan and established them. Joshua xi 23. And Israel served the Lord all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua. Josh xxiv 31.

After that the Lord gave them judges for about four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel, the prophet. Acts xiii 20.

Samson judged Israel twenty years. Judges xvi 31. After his death it was said, In those days there was no king in Israel and every man did that which was right in his own eyes. Judges xvii 6. The judges had become unjust, their power had waned, the people paid little heed to them until Samuel. All Israel, from Dan to Beer-sheba knew that he was established to be a prophet of the Lord. 1 Sam iii 20.

We now consider the lesson. Up to this time the Lord had appointed the judges. Samuel made his sons judges. Judging from the words, "They turned aside," we are led to believe their character was good before being judges, evidently power and authority spoiled them, as it has done, and is doing to thousands.

The prophecy of Moses was about to be fulfilled. The elders told Samuel about his sons, and asked for a king. It was no wonder that Samuel was displeased. It was customary and proper for the elders to consult the prophets, Ex xviii 15, that they might enquire of the Lord. This time they came with a complaint and a demand. They expressed no desire to know the will of the Lord. The order was, Give us a king to judge us. If the elders forgot their duty, Samuel did not. He prayed to the Lord. The answer was, Give them a king. They have not rejected you, but me. The Lord did not compel them to have him reign over them, neither did he force judges upon them. But he did charge Samuel to solemnly forewarn them what a king would do to them, and demand of them. Samuel faithfully performed his task. His recital of the wants, demands and tyranny of a king was enough to banish even the lea from their minds had they been reasonable, and believed him. They did not come to listen, they had but one desire and determination. Nay but a king shall be over us, that we may be like all the nations.

What a power there is in numbers and in general outward appearance. There was pomp and parade, a glitter and show, a grandeur of splendor in connection with a king that made Israel with judges a tame and commonplace nation, and at the same time there was no nation on earth that could have had a glory equal to Israel if they had kept their covenant with the Lord.

It is not the least pessimistic a gloomy view of either the past, present or future to say that ALL nations have gone, and are going from bad to worse. Our own nation says, Give us an army and navy like other nations. It may be said that all communities, states, kingdoms, societies, religious and other begin with good intentions and motives, and as long as struggle for the onward that society, nation or be pointed out and placed as a model, but once fairly established, luxurious habits, banquets, pleasures and general ambitions begin their corroding, blighting, downward influence. That is why the kingdom of God will consume all other kingdoms. Dan ii 44.

Referring to the golden text. By me—wisdom—kings rule. That is true of some in the past, 2 Kings xii, especially true of the future. Isa. xxxii 1.

Next lesson, Saul chosen king. 1 Sam ix and x.

P. NEILL.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

The Church of God at Guthrie Grove S. C. is still growing. On the 4th Sunday in May Brother Oliver Williamson was buried with Christ in baptism, after a thorough investigation of the Word. He has been a prominent member of the Baptist church for some time, but investigation of God's word proved him to be without the one hope; that at that time, he was without Christ, being an alien from the commonwealth, and a stranger from the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world, but now is made nigh by the blood of Christ. The truth has been fought hard in this community, but thank God we see the false crumbling under the power of the gospel. We have just finished painting our church and have a nice place, with about a hundred members, and have a Sunday school. Preaching every 1st Sunday by the pastor, E. M. Anderson, every 3d Sunday by J. H. Anderson, on the 4th Sunday by the writer, and the best singing choir in the state under the leadership of Prof. P. A. Guthrie. While it has been said that it would soon die, it has been growing all the time. While we are persecuted and evil spoken of, the Word of God grew and multiplied.

Yours in hope of eternal life,
A. N. DURHAM.

It is the way of the Lord to work for a season, as it were, underground: As the seed that dies in the ground, through dying, comes to life, so God will seem to cut off the hope of fruit of our labor; yet when we have humbled ourselves under his hand, and he has secured the glory to himself, he will put forth his power and bring to life our buried hopes.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the real "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

Plymouth, Indiana, June 24, 1908.

Can any one tell us the present address of W. W. Belden, late of Bridge, Nebraska, and of D. B. Renner lately of Davenport, Iowa.

Brethren and Sisters, a number of our friends have not yet renewed subscriptions for the year. Will all such try and remember us very soon. We thank you for the favor.

Report comes that last Saturday night, during the storm that passed over this section, the Church house belonging to the brethren at Burr Oak, Indiana, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. A few of the seats and the organ only were saved.

All who attended Bible School last week were glad to have our Sister, Esther Richardson of Michigan, with us for a few days. She is connected with the city schools of Springfield, O. and was on her way home for the summer vacation. We hope she will call this way again, and we assure her that the latch string of the Plymouth Church is out for her at any time.

Brother Lindsay stayed over from the Bible School and preached for the Plymouth Church on Sunday last. The weather was excessively hot, but fair audiences came out to hear him. During his visit here Brother Lindsay was accompanied by his young daughter Hazel. She is of a bright and happy disposition, and we enjoyed having her with us very much. She has made a number of warm friends here who will always be glad to hear of every good that comes to her in life.

On Saturday evening we had the pleasure of seeing Brother Lindsay and wife bid farewell to Brother Louis Romine, who [illegible] to Plymouth from South Bend [illegible] purpose. He is the husband [illegible] Idonn Romine, who is the [illegible] of Brother and Sister H. F. [illegible] formerly lived here. We [illegible] a visit over Sunday [illegible] and trust they will come again soon. Our prayer is that our new Brother may ever be faithful, and enter in when the Master comes, with the redeemed to enjoy the blessings in store for all the children of the King.

An item in our issue of June 10th, told of Brother Wince baptizing two young men named Logan, at North Salem Church near here on the Sunday before. It is our sad duty to now tell of an accident that happened to our young Brother Glen Logan on last Friday. He was attending to some horses on his father's farm and was kicked by one of them on the head and severely injured. Whether it will affect him permanently or not, is yet to be determined. He is a member of the Plymouth High School, and is a bright student, ambitious to obtain a college education, and fit himself for higher life work. Our prayer is that he may fully recover, and become a light in the world in whatever walk he may chose to enter.

Confusion.

Too much confusion of ideas is one of the most fruitful causes of weakness in any body of believers. What one affirms another denies: what one builds up another pulls down, and thereby progress is prevented, these conditions ought not to exist in the body of believers called the Church of God. In unity there is strength. This principle holds good in the establishment of error as well as of the truth. To attain this unity it is necessary to apply to the study of the Word of truth, reason, consistency and logic. It is not reasonable to believe that any doctrine necessary to salvation is not within our power of attainment. In the natural course of events we come in contact with a sect that we believe are teaching many things for truth, that we hold to be error. But they are well organized and united in their work. Not that their union proceeds from knowledge, but from acknowledging a common head inspired of God they say to give them the message for his saints in these the last days. They come to us and say, "You by keeping Sunday as a rest day in the place of Saturday God's rest day, you have the mark of the beast, and will receive the wrath of God, if you don't change your faith, and observe God's Holy Sabbath." It seems to me that our brethren should be able to meet this question successfully and according to the truth. And the best way to do this is to demonstrate that they are wrong in their application of this Scripture—and then to show by God's Word what the mark of the beast is. But says one that is easier said than done. Granted, but do not conclude from that, that it cannot be done. In the first place let us prove by the Word of God that some things claimed by Seventh Day Adventists are not true, which are fatal to their contention.

They claim that the Papacy changed the Sabbath from the seventh to the first day of the week, and that Sunday is the mark of the Papacy—the beast. Now it happens that Sunday was observed long years before the Papacy was recognized in the Bible as a little horn, and therefore could not be said to be its mark. But he that can't may. The Papacy is not the beast that originated the mark, neither is it the Papacy to which the two horned symbol enforces a mark. The beast of Rev xiii 1, whose mark the two horned beast of verse 11 enforces is the fourth beast of Daniel, identified every time by ten horns. Dan vii 7. The Papacy being the eleventh or last horn to come up.

Again in Rev xvii 3, pagan Rome is symbolized by a dragon with 7 heads and the ever present 10 horns. Again in Rev xiii 1, Rome appears in another phase but with the 7 heads and 10 horns, and in xvii 3, Rome is seen carrying the woman and the ever present 10 horns are in evidence, to identify him as some phase of the Roman empire. And by the way it is written of this symbol that "it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had 10 horns." I would say that it was diverse from the other symbols in that it had 7 heads and 10 horns. Now this is the beast that originated the mark and to which the two horned symbol enforces the mark, and this beast is not the Papacy is apparent, as the Papacy is in Dan vii a horn that comes upon the head of the beast, and in the 13th chapter of Revelations the Papacy is a mouth given to the beast, verse 5. That this mouth is the same as the eleventh horn of Daniel vii will appear if you compare the acts of the horn with the acts of the beast after he receives the mouth.

Now to identify more particularly the beast to which the mark belongs. I will say that the description of the leopard beast of Revelations xiii met their fulfillment in succession as they are recorded by the prophet. The passing of the pagan dragon form was in the days of the Emperor Constantine. The change in the religion of the empire necessitated a change in the symbol. Rome having absorbed the territory and the inhabitants of Babylon, Medo-Persia and of Greece is represented as like a leopard—Grecia; feet as the feet of a bear, Medo-Persia, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion—Babylon.

In chapter xvii 9 the 7 heads are said to be 7 mountains—the well known symbol of governments; and in this case must refer to the 7 different forms or phases through which Rome passed—and this is probably what is meant where it is written, "And it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it." Now after the description of this beast, the first thing noted is the wounding of one of his heads. Notice here that all this took place before the rise of the Papacy—as the horn of Dan vii, or the mouth given to the beast.

Indiana Bible School.

As per announcement, the Indiana Bible School convened at Plymouth, June 15th, at 9:30 A. M.

As Brother Lindsay was called to Illinois to preach a funeral on Tuesday, Brother Wince took full charge of the work until his return. The school opened with sixteen present and Brother Wince reviewed the first chapter of Genesis.

Monday morning "The Creation" was considered, in the afternoon "The Fall of Man." Brother Woodward preached in the evening.

Tuesday morning was a continuation of Monday afternoon. Tuesday afternoon the subject of the "Nature of Man" was taken up and Tuesday evening the subject of "Immortality" was studied.

Wednesday morning the "Great Fact of the Flood" was studied. By Wednesday afternoon Brother Lindsay had returned and was ready to take up the study of First and Second Thessalonians, which is continued each morning and afternoon the remainder of the week except Saturday afternoon, when Brother Wince took up the 10th of Acts.

Wednesday night the subject of "Baptism" was considered. The figure of the Ark and the Israelites crossing the Red Sea were studied in connection with Baptism. The life of Cornelius was also studied. Although he was found to have many good traits of character yet one thing was lacking, the one important act, the obedience in baptism had been neglected.

Thursday and Friday nights the subject of "The Gifts of the Holy Spirit" was studied under the following heads:

1. The Gifts of the Spirit were possessed only by some of God's people, and not by them all the time.

2. The Gifts of the Spirit are not now possessed.

3. The same cause working under the same circumstances will produce the same effects.

4. Holy Spirit the cause working among men is the circumstances.

5. These Gifts were given to ignorant men to qualify them to preach the gospel in different tongues of men.

6. These miracles were given to ignorant men to teach truths through them.

7. To make believers out of unbelievers.

8. The gospel preached by the apostles and confirmed by the Gifts of the Holy Spirit is of more importance than the Gifts.

Three sessions of the school were held daily and the average attendance at each session was thirty.

A building was secured in which meals were served to those attending the school, the expenses of which were paid from donations made for that purpose. Our school has grown to such extent that we see the need of having two sections in the school, one for the older members and one for the young learners. We hope to be able to make such division next year at our regular session.

Obituary.

Our beloved Brother, W. H. Anderson, fell asleep in Jesus on June 12th, 1908, at the home of his brother, Rev. E. M. Anderson in Anderson Co. S. C. Brother Anderson was born in August, 1836, and has been living in South Carolina for the last few years coming here with his father from North Carolina.

He was baptized into the all saving name of Christ by his father in Aug. 1906, and has since remained a consistent Christian. He bore his illness with patience for two weeks, typhoid fever being the direct cause of death. He told his father a few days before his death that he had put his trust in Jesus, and if it were not possible for him to get well any more, he was willing for his will to be done. He leaves a father, mother, five brothers and one sister, besides a host of friends to mourn his death.

The funeral sermon was preached at the Church of God at Guthrie Grove by Brother Newton Durham, from 1 Thess iv 13. After the sermon the congregation sang that most beautiful of all songs "The Resurrection." He was then laid away in the Church cemetery to await the resurrection of the just, at which time he may be heard to exclaim "O grave, where is thy victory, oh death where is thy sting." May the favor and grace of God abide with the heart stricken ones in this their great bereavement and sore trial, is my fervent prayer.

Emma Pack.

Lodosca Dorcas Murphy, daughter of Christian and Diana Murphy, was born Dec. 27, 1878; died June 18, 1908, aged 29 years, 5 months, and 16 days.

Dec. 17, 1899, she was united in marriage to William O. Winters. To this union were born three sons—Lester Paul aged seven years, Jesse Lee aged five years, and an infant son which died about two hours before its mother.

April 16, 1902, she was baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus the Christ by Elder John Claypool. She has lived a Christian life, and died firm in the faith that Jesus will soon come to raise and reward his sleeping saints.

Besides her husband and sons, she leaves father, mother, three sisters, three brothers, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. The whole neighborhood turned out to honor the memory of one whom they have held in high esteem. The floral tributes, and the tears on many faces spoke louder than words the appreciation of loving friends. Death is ever sad, but in this case it is doubly so. The sleeping mother with the little babe in her arms brought tears to the strongest as they viewed her for the last time. We will meet her in the kingdom of God.

S. J. Lindsay.

It is with great sorrow that I announce the death of our dear Brother Matthew H. Dodge, on May 2, 1908. He joined the Church in Leicester, England, about forty-five years ago, and came to America about twenty-five years ago. He lived here in St. Louis all that time except two years in Clinton, Iowa. When he first came he advertised for those of like precious faith, but at that time none were here, and he learned of none until this last winter, when I found him by chance. He was delighted, and soon afterward had the pleasure of listening to some discourses of Brother W. H. Wilson, who spent a week here.

An incurable disease had been working on him for years, to which he finally succumbed. He leaves his wife, two daughters and a son, for whom we have deep sympathy in this loss.

He was a man fit for the Master's use; firm as a rock in the truth. He looked forward eagerly to the time when Christ shall rule. We hope his sleep will be short, and that each one of us will be ready to meet our Lord when he gathers the faithful.

Gertrude M. Logan.

Married.

On June 2, at Tampa, Florida, Dr. James Mark Prime and Miss Patti Pauline Eychaner.

The marriage service was by Elder A. J. Eychaner, father of the bride, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kinyon.

Many beautiful tokens of esteem and friendship testified to the good will and wishes of the guests present.

In the words of the prayer, in our marriage service we repeat, "Our Father in heaven, in the name of Jesus we invoke thy blessing upon these thy children, as they enter this new relation in life. Lead them and keep them from the evils by which we are surrounded. Give wisdom for life's problems, strength for its conflicts, and courage in behalf of truth and righteousness. Grant them light in darkness, and hope as a bow of promise. May the white dove of peace dwell in their home, and the spirit of Christ abide in their hearts. May they ever be mindful of the 'Golden Rule' as the standard by which to measure all their actions. Keep them from accident and give them health, and may the written Word be treasured and obeyed, so that they may indeed be thy children, and when at last the angels shall gather thy Jewels, may their names, together with ours here present be found in the Book of Life. Amen."

Their home will be at Oxford, Neb.

Step Clean Out for God.

Why was he (the man cured of palsy, Matt ix 1-8) to take up the bed? Because, as some one has beautifully said, 'there is no provision made for a relapse. Oh, how many of us have made that provision in the past! Yea, we will get up, but we will have the bed ready for a relapse. So far as you are able, make it impossible, by the absoluteness of your surrender and consecration, ever to get back. Step clean out upon God.—G. Campbell Morgan.

"Do not expect to make great strides at once in believing; or that sanctification is to be wrought in a day."

When you hear an evil report about any one, halve and quarter it, and then say nothing about the rest.—Spurgeon.

"The man who spends his time in counting hypocrites, generally makes a miscount by not putting himself at the head of the list."

A few years ago it was a capital crime in Uganda for a native to learn to read and write. Now there are 50,000 natives in that province who have had mission school training.

Nothing humbles the soul like sacred and intimate communion with the Lord, yet there is a sweet joy in feeling that he knows all, and notwithstanding loves us all.—J. Hudson Taylor.

Translators are always needed in heathen fields, but the greatest among such is he who can translate the example of Jesus Christ into the dialect of daily life, into the universal speech of pain, poverty and suffering for the sake of others.—A. J. Gordon.

The Bereans Column.

Solomon desired wisdom and knowledge above everything else, for he said to the Lord, "Give me now wisdom and knowledge, that I may go out and come in before this people, for who can judge this thy people, that is so great?" And Solomon's desire was pleasing to God, for God said to him, "Because this was in thine heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth, nor honor, nor the life of thine enemies, neither yet hast asked long life; but hast asked wisdom and knowledge for thyself, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made thee king; wisdom and knowledge is granted unto thee, and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and honor, such as none of the kings have had that have been before thee, neither shall there any after thee have the like." 2 Chron i 10, 11 and 12.

Proverbs x 14 tells us that "wise men lay up knowledge," then to be wise we must lay up knowledge, but this does not refer to the knowledge of worldly things, for Paul in speaking to the Corinthian brethren, told them to "awake to righteousness and sin not; for some have not the knowledge of God, I speak this to your shame." 1 Cor xv 34.

Paul exhorted the Ephesians to be rooted and grounded in love, and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that they might be filled with all the fullness of God.

We do not wish to be like some people of whom Paul speaks, "who are ever learning and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth, but to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

From the above Scripture, dear Bereans, we can see that the kind of knowledge, which we are to add to our other Christian virtues, is the knowledge of God's Word, and as I have several times before referred to Paul's sayings I will again, and let him speak to us as he did to Timothy: "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; and that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

All Scripture, divinely inspired, is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

When Paul and Silas were on their way, going from place to place, preaching that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, they went to Thessalonica. While there, they went into a synagogue, (as was their custom) on the Sabbath day to preach. Some accepted what they said, but others would not, and said that these people that had turned the world up side down, had come there also, and set the city in an uproar. The brethren sent Paul and Silas, by night, to Berea. When they arrived there they went into a synagogue. They said there that the people were "more noble than those at Thessalonica in that they received the Word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so." It is very necessary for the Christian to study the Word of God, to increase in knowledge of the Scriptures and be able to teach others.

It is well to follow the way of the people at Berea in studying "the Scriptures daily." Let us take what Jesus said in John v 39, "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me."

After Christ's resurrection he was talking with the people and he opened their understanding that they might understand the Scriptures. And he said unto them, Thus it is written and thus it behooved Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead the third day, and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. Luke xxiv 45, 46, 47. After we have our understanding opened, then we are ready to learn of him and are able to teach others the way of life.

Paul said in 2 Tim, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth. But shun profane and vain babblings, for they will increase unto more ungodliness." A person working in the Lord's vineyard need never be ashamed. If he works in it with his whole heart, and suffer many privations, also make many sacrifices, for the truth's sake, he will stand approved before God.

Again, let us turn to what Paul said in 1 Cor ix, "For though I preach the gospel I have nothing to glory of; for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel. For if I do this thing willingly, I have a reward, but if against my will, a dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me. What is my reward then? Verily, when I preach the gospel, I may make the gospel of Christ without charge, that I abuse not my power in the gospel."

We are told in Heb x that we must "hold fast our profession of faith without wavering," also to cultivate love and good works, and to assemble ourselves together, to exhort one another and so the much more as we see the day approaching. But, "if we sin willfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin." How sad it seems when one has come to the knowledge of the truth, and willfully turns away and not to be redeemed again. It always seems to me that they could not have fully understood the Word, or that they did not have the love for it they should have had, or they wouldn't turn away from anything so precious.

Let us turn back to Num xv 30 and 31 and we read, But the soul that doeth aught presumptuously, whether he be born in the land, or a stranger, the same reproacheth the Lord, and that soul shall be cut off from among his people. Because he hath despised the Word of the Lord and hath broken his commandment, that soul shall utterly be cut off, his iniquity shall be upon him. Peter gives a very sad view of he that turns away, "For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse than the beginning. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them. But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, "The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire."

Dear Bereans, let us be fully grounded in the faith "once delivered to the saints," and keep steadfast to the end, that we may be ready to receive the crown of life promised to those who obey his commandment and keep it.

Your sister in Christ.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

A German Trust Song.

Just as God leads me I will go,
I would not ask to choose my way,
Content with what He will bestow,
Assured He will not let me stray.
So as He leads my path I make,
And step by step I gladly take,
A child in Him confiding.

Just as God leads I am content:
I trust in all He does or lends;
That which He has ordered and sent,
That which He will or recommends,
I would But be should not fain
That I should do the questions will
In living or in dying.

Just as God leads I am resigned;
I trust me to His Father will,
Who is resigned, and rejoice shine,
He can and would Love not!
That which He does ordained as right
Before He brought me to the light—
My will to His is resigning.

Just as God leads me I abide
In faith, as knows in sunshine true
His strength is ever by my side

Editorials.

An apostate's word cannot do any harm.

An egotist is an idolater—he worships himself.

For men to seek their own glory is not glory. Prov. xxv 27.

If you want to give people "that tired feeling", talk about yourself.

Absence from home explains the non-appearance of editorials in "Ebenezer" for some time past.

The success of the young minister depends more on his knowing when to quit talking than in his fluency of speech.

A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver. Prov. xxv 11. If you have any doubts about the "fitness" of the words you want to speak, keep silence. Silence is golden.

We desire to hear from Brother J. H. Anderson, if he is still in the land of the living. Brother Anderson was my schoolmate at the Blue Ridge Academy, in Henderson County, N.C. While in school together we both spoke publicly for the first time in a Methodist Prayer Meeting. We hear that our brother has since developed into an able minister of the gospel.

"I do not doubt that Christ healed the ill any more than I believe that he walked upon the water," says Dr. Slicer in Chicago Record Herald, June 15. "It is impossible to believe the story of the multiplication of the fishes and the loaves of bread. It never happened. His disciples may have been so interested in what he was saying that they forgot they were hungry. That the ill came to him to be healed and were, I do not for a moment doubt." You don't? You are a queer man, Dr. Slicer! Really, now, don't you sometimes have as much as a "moment's" doubt about those old Bible stories of healing? If the miracle of the fishes and loaves can be boiled down to mean, "His disciples may have been so interested in what he was saying that they forgot they were hungry," may not the healing stories of the New Testament be explained this way: "The ill ones who came to Him to be healed may have been so interested in what he was saying that they forgot they were sick?" How foolish in a man who thus whittles away the inspiration of God's word, and who says of the miracle of the fishes and loaves, "It never happened;" how foolish in such a one to say of the miraculous cures reported in the Word that he does "not for a moment doubt" them! "It is time for thee, Lord, to work; for they have made void thy law." Psa. cxix 126.

Higher Critics and the Spade.

Higher Critics are having a hard time lately. They have posed as "scholars, advanced thinkers," etc., etc., and have never lost an opportunity to impress the people that they are the very embodiment of superior wisdom. With such pretending erudition opposing the Bible, the poor illiterate people did not know what to do. The spade came to their rescue. It has unearthed revelations in biblical lands which utterly confound the theories of the literary critics. With a mere spade God has made the wisdom of the world foolishness. The spade has unearthed Sennacherib's cylinder of clay, which records the exact amount of gold that is mentioned in the Bible; a tablet has been found which records Belshazzer's death by night, just exactly as told in Daniel; another cylinder says that Cyrus liberated in the first year of his reign all foreign peoples and sent them back to their homes, thus corroborating in a most wonderful manner the Bible account of the return of the Jews from the Babylonian Captivity. Shame upon you critics of the Bible, you wise men, that have denied the historical authenticity of Old Testament characters. Shame upon you that the spade should have to expose you before the world, and prove you to be liars.

"There was a time when the skeptic or higher critic had his own way in declaring biblical events to be fictions, or relegating Old Testament stories to the region of myth and legend," says Prof. Albert T. Clay, the archeologist of the University of Pennsylvania. "Much of that kind of work is at present impossible. A changed day has come to the reverse. The spade of the excavator and the patient toils of the decipherer have silenced many of these voices; for in recent years the old biblical world has been opened up to the light of day, and we find ourselves face to face with contemporaries of Ezekiel, Moses, Abraham—and yes, trustworthy writings of those who came into contact with Old Testament characters, are placed in our hands, which tell their story; namely, that we have not theological fairy tales but facts to deal with."

Human Testimony.

"The gospel is the power of God unto salvation." But it needs not only to be proclaimed, but expounded and embodied as well. God's method of reeding for the final harvest is clearly indicated in the two parables of the sower, in Matthew xiii. In the first one the "seed is the Word of God," but in the second, "the good seed are the children of the Kingdom." Both the message and the messenger, both the word and the worker are used of God. It must not be forgotten that the devout eunuch, when asked if he understood what he was reading, replied, "How can I except some one guide me?" And who does not know that experience as well as study has both opened and confirmed the Word of God. And has not God ordained that experience shall be an expositor and that the "living epistle" shall not only be "read by all men," but shall be "known" as is an other form of communication? Then let us not withhold our testimony.—Bible Advocate.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

When I last wrote you we were holding meetings at Collins, in the Christian Church. All went well until we began to preach doctrine, and then people were not so interested. It seems as long as you preach smooth things, people will come to hear you; but soon as you begin to show them that the Lord requires them to believe and live something, then the majority are ready to go elsewhere. On Thursday, April 16, we closed the meeting at Collins, Brother Marsh expecting to go to Gladbrook for Sunday, while I went to Brother Isaac Fish's to preach for them at Wolfe School-house Sunday. Monday the 19th I went to Fort Dodge, and after spending two days with my son, I took the train for Marathon, going via Humboldt. On arriving at Humboldt I found the train was four hours late. I went to Brother R. C. Nowlin's where I had a most enjoyable visit with himself and daughter Della. They took me to the train where we met Brother Marsh who was to join me in the meeting at Marathon. On our arrival at Marathon we were met by Brother Arthur Garton, and taken to his home for supper, after which we repaired to the hall where we listened to a most excellent discourse by Brother Marsh on "Sincerity. Will it save us?" Sunday at 11 A. M. we discoursed on the Faith, to a fair audience, Brother Marsh following in the evening with a most earnest appeal on the importance of believing something definite. We continued our meetings until the following Wednesday when we deemed it best to close, and took the train for Humboldt, with Brother Marsh and preached us the day before to advertise and arrange for an effort. Brother Marsh thoroughly billed the town making a house to house canvass, and although a large number promised to come out and hear us, and were loud in their expressions of being glad we had come among them, after speaking two nights not a soul came out besides Brother Nowlin and his daughter. In all our experience we never met with anything like this. Although we were not used to a large attendance we were always able to get two or three to attend meetings. All we could do was to take our grips and go on our way rejoicing that we had the liberty to get out of town without being molested. We might here remark that Humboldt is the county seat of Humboldt County, the home of Frank Gotch, the great wrestler. The janitor of the hall informed Bro. Marsh that we could not get any one to come out to church unless we got out and advertised a show of some kind; then we could have no trouble, but that it would be impossible to do anything according to our method of getting a crowd.

On Sunday, May 10, I joined Brother Marsh at Tama, and we repaired to Irving, to hold a few meetings. We continued the meetings until Wednesday the 13 when on account of people being in the midst of corn planting, we thought best to close the meeting until a time when people were not troubled so heavily with the cares of the world. When will that be? On Tuesday, the 26th, I went to Waterloo where we began arrangements to start the tent out for the summer. Brother Marsh joined us on Wednesday, and on Thursday we secured the services of a man to haul the tent to Hudson, a town of about 1000, situated nine miles west of Waterloo. Here we found a class of people that gave us the most cordial welcome that we ever received in a strange place. Our own people could not treat us in a more cordial manner. The community is purely made up of German Baptists or Dunkards, as they are sometimes called. Our attendance has been exceedingly good and the interest all we could ask. Some seem to have ever heard of the kingdom. There is also a Baptist and a United Brethren church here. Here it was reported that we were Mormons, Seventh Day Adventists, or some other freak sect, and although we denied being connected with any of them, the Baptist minister offered to get a white crow if they would bring us some pork and we did not refuse to eat it. The pork has not appeared yet. As we look around us and see so little interest manifested by the masses in anything that smacks of reality in religion, we sometimes wonder if it is the will of God that we should put in our time and spend the brethren's money trying to get people to see that the Lord is near at hand; but when we went in the Word, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," we are led to ask, Have we done our duty until we have fulfilled these words? No; but after we have done this, the responsibility then rests with them as to whether they will accept or reject the gospel.

O. J. Alexander.

The Adorning of the Doctrine of Christ. Titus ii 10.

To adorn, is to beautify, to make anything more lovely to the sight. And our adorning must not be an outward adornment, but as Peter says, "Let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." I think we sometimes overlook the fact that we are to make our lives beautiful by the religion of Jesus that we accept when we are baptized. Of course there is a complete change. We have to right about face and begin a new journey in life, but after a little time the worldly pleasures and lusts continually come into your path, and if the time is not being redeemed in the work of the Lord, we are very apt to lose interest in spiritual things and seek after carnal pleasures. Now, this is not adorning the religion of our Savior. Why, we are told to let our light so shine before men that they may see our good works, and glorify our Father in heaven. It is the same case as a person going through college; there are certain duties that have to be performed. Many things must be denied, in order to give the time to study, and if a student gives himself up to his work, devotes his energies to become proficient in his studies, he graduates with honors, and is fully repaid for all his pains. While another student has not denied himself recreations and pleasures, and has just put enough study to barely get his lessons, and consequently not become thoroughly familiar with his work, this one may pass the examination, but there are no honors for him; and in after years, he realizes what opportunities he has lost, and the position he might have occupied now, if he had applied himself to his work, in his school years.

Brothers and sisters, we are told to whom much is given, much shall be required, and it is according to our abilities, (what we make of our talents now), that we receive our reward in the kingdom. Jesus says, "Behold I come quickly and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be." This behooves us "to work while it is day for the night cometh when no man can work." The apostles left all to follow after Jesus; they adorned the doctrine of their Master and heard to them, "Verily, I say unto you, that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit on the throne of his glory, ye shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel, and every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or children, or lands, for my name's shall receive an hundred fold, and shall inherit everlasting life."

The apostle Paul gives us good instruction on this subject in I Cor xvi 13, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong; let all that ye do, be done in love." Love must be the motive power that actuates our lives, in fact, if we have the gift of tongues of angels, if we give our bodies to be burned, have all knowledge and such faith as could do wonders, and yet do not exhibit love in our dealings with mankind, we are nothing in the sight of God. There was only one human being in whom this love was perfected and that was Jesus, but there were many who strove earnestly to this perfection of character, and Paul must have been one of these, for he says, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ. Nothing can beautify our lives more than love, and this we can learn by giving attention to the records of examples found in the Word of God. There is a saying, "Nothing ventured, nothing won;" and if we do not strive earnestly and diligently to adorn the doctrine that has been given us by the favor of God, we will not be worthy to enter into the joy of the King when he comes in his glory. Then let us study to show ourselves approved unto God in all things and be overcomers with Christ.

Hattie Sanford.

In the Days of These Kings.

God often revealed his will to men in olden times through the medium of dreams. Most of these dreams were fulfilled during the life time of the dreamer. To this general rule we find one striking exception in the Great Image, as dreamed by the Babylonian king and interpreted by the prophet Daniel.

The successive changes in the history of mankind on the earth are foretold with unerring accuracy. The end of tottering Rome was broken in 1453 when Constantinople was captured by the Turks. Hence we gather that for 155 years we have been living in the toe part of the Image. Comparing this length of time with that of the past empires, and taking into consideration the relative size of the Image represented in each; may we not reasonably expect that the day of the Lord is near at hand, "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Dan ii 43, 44.

How long, Oh! Lord, wilt thou permit error to hide behind the cloak of Christianity? How long wilt thou permit the basest of men to rule this earth? The little flock has watched and waited long. "Yet a little while and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry." For the mystery of iniquity has assumed large proportions. "Only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way." But let us hold forth the Word of life as the apostle Paul, that we may rejoice in the day of Christ which draweth nigh. O, hasten the day in which the redeemed of the Lord shall return and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their head; they shall obtain gladness and joy; and sorrow and mourning shall flee away. Isa li 11. Even so, come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly; and blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book.

V. L. Brinkman.

Faith and Works.

"Faith without works is dead." James ii. 20.

"Faith cometh by hearing." Rom x. 17.

"It is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. xi. 1.

Paul says we are saved through faith. Through faith we inherit the promises. Without faith it is impossible to please God. By it the elders obtained a good report, but faith without works is dead.

"What doth it profit my brethren though a man say he hath faith and have not works? Can faith save him? If a brother or sister be naked and destitute of daily food and you say unto him, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body, what doth it profit? Even so faith, if it hath not works is dead, being alone."

Abraham was justified by works when he offered his son upon the altar. Abel was justified by works when he offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts; and by it he being dead is yet spoken of. Likewise the harlot Rahab was justified by works when she had secured the messengers and had sent them out another way.

Many other examples could be given, but we think this is sufficient.

Faith and works bring to the believer pardon, forgiveness, peace with God, rest, hope, joy, oneness with Christ, victory through Christ, heirship and eternal life, in short, all things. As the body without breath is dead, so faith without works is dead also.

Turko-Persian Situation.

Special dispatches received here indicate a serious situation on the Turko-Russian frontier. Turkish troops, which hitherto have been massed on the Russian side in the vicinity of Erzerum Vilayet, are in full movement towards Persia. Detachments already have invaded Persian territory.

The Turkish occupation of the district of Azarbijan, west of Urmiah lake, has been carried out in a systematic manner and the method of administration of this territory is similar to the administration in regularly annexed territories, which would seem to indicate that the Turks mean to remain permanently. Bodies of Turkish regulars who have followed in the wake of the Kurdish tribesmen, have commenced to collect revenues.

In spite of the proverbial Turkish slowness, a customs house has been established at Kahlur, some miles inland from Urumiah. The Turks have seized salt mines belonging to the Persian crown and have expelled the Shah's officials.

There is every indication, says the dispatches, that the Turks are taking full advantage of the distracted conditions in Persia to seize a valuable strategical wedge of the country.—Toledo Blade.

The proprietor of a Chicago hotel tells of an eccentric guest who registered with him about the time of the simplified spelling flurry, and who undertook, in an ingenious way to show his contempt for the opponents of the proposed reform.

When the newcomer spread his signature on the register, it was at once observed that the name was a most unusual one—R. K. Phthologyrrh.

"Beg your pardon, sir," said the clerk, "but how do you pronounce it?"

"Turner," was the reply, "and spelled to approved fashion, too."

"Will you kindly explain?"

"Simplest thing in the world," said Turner. "First we have 'phth' the sound of 't' in 'phthisis'; then 'olo', the sound of 'ur' in 'colonel'; thirdly, 'gn', representing the sound of 'n' in 'gnat'; and, finally; 'yrrh', the equivalent of 'er' in 'myrrh'. If the combination doesn't spell 'Turner', what does it spell?"—Harper's Weekly.

Celluloid is a plastic material composed of guncotton and camphor. The guncotton, or nitro-cellulose, is made by treating tissue paper with a mixture of nitric and sulphric acids. The product is mixed with camphor and various pigments to produce the desired color, and the materials are thoroughly incorporated by means of heated rolls. It is subsequently submitted to great pressure. It is afterward molded into forms by means of heated dies, under pressure. It is very hard and elastic and takes a high finish.

Two principal theories have been advanced for the erection of the pyramids of Egypt. One, that each king, on ascending the throne, began to build a pyramid as a tomb and monument to himself. This was usually laid out upon a comparatively small scale, so that if the builder had but a short reign his tomb might be complete. As time passed successive layers were added and the size of the monument was thus proportioned to the length of the builder's reign. This theory is combatted by Petrie, who believed that each pyramid was begun and carried out upon a definite design of size and arrangement.

Miss Jane Addams has just completed her course of lectures delivered throughout the country in favor of woman suffrage. She based her argument on the plea that the well being of the working-woman and her children is in the hands of the municipality. Questions affecting the light, air, fire protection and proper sewerage of their homes are all in the hands of the city authorities. Pure food, clean milk and matters pertaining to health regulations come more forcibly to the housekeeper's attention than to that of the man of the family. Pointing out that legislation for the protection of children has been pushed forward by women almost to the exclusion of men, she argues that they could do more for the protection of their homes and for the welfare of the nation if they had the ballot.

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 16. will be [illegible] Monday Aug 16. will be [illegible] for all. Those who attended the last conferences at Salem will remember the undefiled love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to scatter the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing; for we shall reap if we faint not.

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. H. WILSON.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,

W. H. WILSON.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom: second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist: third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ, Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these texts have gone into many families, both to believers and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave, Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 368 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and disperced among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Changes liable to gather and are needless. Money—even paper money is easily detected and is at the risk of a dishonest postmaster. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not IO, or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying he is to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is the wife he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a couple stamps and drops [illegible] not enough to pay the postage, and [illegible] in the editors address. A blind [illegible] Wise is enough.

Poetry.

The Gift of Life and its Return.

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your life will flow,
A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a sense of heart will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

Give truth, and your gift will be paid in kind,
And honor will honor meet;
And a smile that is sweet will surely find
A smile that is just as sweet.

For life is the mirror of king and slave:
'Tis just what we are and do:
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Salvation. No. 4.

EXAMPLES OF PRIMITIVE PREACHING.

It is safe at the present time, in preaching the Gospel to include whatever the Great Teacher and his apostles taught in their message to the world. Our practice should be in accord with theirs. When Jesus entered on his public ministry just after John's imprisonment he proclaimed in the cities of Galilee "Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." The same message that John preached a few months before.

Mark records the same. "Now after that John was put in prison Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying 'The time is fulfilled, repent ye and believe the gospel,' Mark i 14, 15. This was what the twelve under the first commission proclaimed to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. As ye go preach, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Matt. x 7. In addition to the twelve, the Lord appointed seventy others and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place whither he himself would come. Luke x 1. These were enjoined to say, "The kingdom of God is come unto you", v 9. Many of the parables of our Lord were spoken to set forth and illustrate the different phases of the kingdom. During the brief ministry of our Lord the gospel of the kingdom was echoed and re-echoed over the hills, and along the valleys of Judea, Galilee and across the Jordan by our Lord himself, and his chosen co-laborers. Every town and village must have heard the message and had the opportunity to accept or reject it. The very fact that the kingdom was so persistantly preached all over that country by these heralds under divine direction and superintendence, shows how important the kingdom was thought to be; and on this latter fact we may safely state that the kingdom is a good in which believers will finally enjoy happiness and life in full measure. This will be proven further on by quotations from the Scriptures.

THE GREAT COMMISSION.

Under this the apostles were to have a wider field of labor than under the first which limited them to little Palestine. This latter would come into force when they should be endued with power from on high, which occurred at the first pentecost following the passover at which Christ was crucified. By this the apostles were enjoined to teach all nations; (Matt xxviii 19.) go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, (Mark xvi 15) and repentance and remission of sins in his name. Luke xxiv 47. They were commanded to preach the gospel in this broad field in order to repentance and remission of sins. What gospel were they to preach? Plainly the gospel of the kingdom with the additional facts of Christ's death and resurrection, as Luke records. In our Lord's great prophecy which was to [illegible] d its fulfillment in this dispensation, He [illegible] "this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness (testimony) unto all nations, and then shall the end come." Matt xxiv 14. All the world and all nations in the prophecy accords with the language of the commission. So the kingdom is embraced in the gospel to be preached by the apostles, and by the preachers of today inasmuch as no new commission has set aside the old. A gospel with the kingdom left out is a perversion or another gospel, and on him who preaches it a curse will fall, Gal i 8, 9. To leave so much out is a grave matter—disobeying the command; nothing less. But what risks will modern preachers dare to run! They will carry on lengthy revival meetings with a view to making converts and never make mention of the kingdom concerning which the Bible says so much. They sometimes use the word kingdom but by it mean something entirely different from that of the old prophets. It may be a kingdom in the heart, or one beyond the skies, or the church may be meant, or some spiritual affair that is undefinable. Inspired apostles never omitted the kingdom brought to view by Hebrew bards and prophets. In some form of words they refer to it as shown in many of the brief reports of preaching, found in the Acts of the Apostles. In the second chapter of Acts is found a report of the first ministration or service of the New Covenant. Peter in the first sermon brings in God's oath to David. "Therefore being a prophet and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his (David's) throne." Acts ii 30. The oath pledged God to raise his Son from the dead as the heir to the throne, and, consequently, to the kingdom of Israel, of which the Son will come into possession at the appointed time—still future. In modern preaching the oath to David is not even alluded to as being embraced in the gospel. To insist that it is a part of the gospel is likely to call forth ridicule from men who pretend to wisdom in Bible lore. In the second report, Peter, after the command to his audience to repent says, "And he (the Father) shall send Jesus Christ who before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Acts iii 20, 21. Here we have our Lord's coming spoken of, which event precedes the establishment of his kingdom and the restitution of the things spoken of by the long line of prophets including of course the restoration of the throne and kingdom of David. In Samaria, Philip preached the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. Acts viii 12.

It is not necessary to refer to all the examples of primitive preaching contained in the book of Acts. It may be set down as a fact that the apostles and evangelists in their mission to the world announced the kingdom on all occasions of preaching, though this fact may not be found in all the brief reports handed down to us, the words of Christ that "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a testimony unto all nations is in itself sufficient proof on this point; but as corroborative proof I will call attention to Paul's preaching, whose labors were more extensive than any others. Three days after being delivered as a prisoner by the centurion to the authorities at Rome, Paul called together the chief Jews and when they had appointed him a day, it is written, "There came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God; persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening." Acts xxviii 23. And verses 30, 31, "Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him. Preaching the kingdom of God and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him." Two examples of apostolic preaching show to us what should be preached today, for faith and obedience. The first quotation sets before us the important fact that Paul appealed to the Scriptures for proof of what he preached to his Jewish auditors. So when preaching Christ he opened and alleged the two great gospel facts concerning him, his death and resurrection (Acts x 39, 43) by drawing proof from the Scriptures.

WHAT SCRIPTURES?

The books of Moses and those of the prophets. This classification covers what, in popular language, is called The Old Testament. The inspiration of the apostles did not set aside the Hebrew Scriptures, and to these the early inspired teachers constantly appealed, especially when talking to Jewish audiences and to scattered members of Tentribed Israel; and also to proselytes to the Jewish faith who were more or less acquainted with the old Scriptures. Peter, in discoursing to Cornelius, his household and neighbors, all of whom were Gentiles, referred to the prophets in these words, "To him give all the prophets witness," to what Peter enumerated in his talk, that Jesus was slain by the Jews, that he rose from the dead and that he was the one appointed of God to be Judge of quick and dead. Acts x 42, 43. The Christian system as preached by the apostles rested back or had its foundation truths in the old Scriptures which nurtured the living, saving faith of the ancient worthies, concerning whom Paul said in Heb xi, "These all having obtained a good report through faith, received not fulfillment of the promise; God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect." These same Scriptures contain the promises made unto the fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, so often referred to in the later Scriptures as gospel truths: the oath to David securing to him the perpetuity of his throne and kingdom in the person of his remote Son, Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Here also are found set forth under types and shadows as well as by prophetic utterances the death of this Son, and his subsequent resurrection, and future reign over all nations. How abundant in gospel truths are these old and neglected Scriptures. They too, bring to view the future resurrection of the dead and the final victory of righteousness, with the long reign of sin forever ended, and the earth made an eternal paradise.

JOHN L. WISE.

Heart Thinking.

"And he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Prov xxiii 7.

To the careless reader there would be but little meaning in this proverb, but when we pause to give it careful consideration, there is much more than appears on the surface.

That our thoughts govern our actions to some extent we can readily understand, but how little do we consider how our actions are controlled and our lives moulded by the thoughts that are uppermost in our minds. We then can understand the real meaning of the wise man's expression, "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he." Cardinal Newman is accredited to have said, "A life of money-getting is a life of care. From the first there is anticipation of losses in various ways to depress and unsettle the mind, nay to haunt, till a man finds he can think of nothing else."

2 Tim vi 10 says, "For the love of money is the root of all evil; which while some coveted after, they erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." Bear in mind that the evil is not in the money itself, but the love of it; it does not matter so much what a man is worth, as how he came by it. This love of money is classed as covetousness which is idolatry, and has no part in the Kingdom of God, Eph v 5. It is forbidden by Christ himself, Luke xii 5, Rom xiii 9.

Our heart thinking creates a desire, and if not desire is to accumulate wealth, our energies will all be bent in that direction, and we are apt to employ questionable means to accomplish our ends; contributions to charity and the Lord's cause are very small, and the spiritual life very much smothered and dwarfed. Truly "as he thinketh in his heart, so is he."

If the pleasures of the world are uppermost in our minds, we are liable to be of that class represented by "wheat among thorns", in the Sawer's parable of the Sower. Luke viii Our thoughts so bent on pleasure that it is show, theatre, dance, Sunday excursions and the like first, and Church second, if at all. The card, whist, ball and other games usurp the time of Bible study and spiritual reflection, so that our conversation is more of a carnal than spiritual nature, and Matt vi 19, 20, 21, comes fittingly into our minds, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

If your heart thinking is spiritually inclined, if we dwell more on the things of a Heavenly nature, our actions will be more in harmony with the teachings and life of the blessed Jesus, we will delight in his service. His commandment will be a pleasant service. No pleasures of a carnal nature will keep us away from the Lord's house and engaging in his service. Liberal contributions to his cause will be a delight, the poor and the needy will not be neglected, and our faces will glow with happiness because we are walking in the ways of the Lord.

Truly "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he."

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JULY 12.

SAUL CHOSEN KING. 1 SAM. IX. AND X.

Golden Text. "He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God." 2 Sam. xxiii. 3.

There were, as I are few men who have made and are making a fairer, better start in life than Saul. He was of the tribe of Benjamin. His father was a man of means, and of good character. Saul was a fine young man, much better than any in Israel. His extra height made him a marked man, and well known among the tribes. 1 Sam. x. 11.

Some of the farm stock had strayed. Saul's father told him to take one of the hired men and find them. They went a long way north without success. By Saul's talk to the servant we learn that there was much affection between father and son.

Saul advised that they consult the man of God, the seer-prophet. This is further proof that Saul was an excellent young man. He met Samuel. God had told Samuel that Saul was coming. The Lord said he had sent Saul. We see how the Lord works—or did work—among men often by natural—yet wondrous—ways and means to bring about and carry out his purpose. Samuel relieved Saul's mind about the asses, their astonished him telling him he was the desire of all Israel. Samuel kept him all night. Early next morning Samuel anointed him captain—king—over the Lord's inheritance. He told him how to go home, and what would take place on the way. He would be turned into another man, God would give him another heart. This is explained by the words, "And the Spirit of God came upon him and he prophesied among them." 1 Sam. x. 10.

We will now consider the story in the lesson verses.

Mizpah, watch-tower, northeast of Jerusalem. Samuel reminds them of what the Lord had done for them. They had rejected God who had saved them from oppression and slavery, from a cruel king and nation, a bondage from which no man could have freed them. Moses called Egypt an "iron furnace!" Deut iv 20.

Selection by lot, drawing cuts, was a custom among the Israelites. With a few exceptions the land of Canaan was divided among the Israelites by lot, Josh xviii 10. The eleven apostles cast lots for one to take the place of Judas Iscariot, Acts i 26.

The lot fell on Saul. They could not find their chosen king. He had, from timidity or modesty, or a sense of his own unfitness for the position and honors of a king, hid himself. When brought before Samuel he endorsed him as the one "whom the Lord hath chosen," and truly according to the account of him, there was none just like him in all Israel.

God save the King. This proclaimed Saul the chosen king. He went home with a select band—men whom God had selected and appointed—what we may call a body guard to the king.

Children of Belial—wicked, worthless characters; opposers, satans, Deut xiii 13; 2 Cor vi 15. Jesus, by the parable in Luke xix 14, shows that the same class were opposed to him being King. When he comes to set up the kingdom of God, Dan ii 44, the kings, the rulers, the judges, and the people of the earth will be the children of Belial, Psa ii. Their opposition will be like the opposition to Saul, of no account, Psa lxxii.

In connection with the lesson read carefully 2 Sam ix and x.

But he held his peace. The marginal reading is splendid, "He was as though he had been deaf." In this instance Saul set one of the finest examples. What a wonderful amount of peace, instead of turmoil, could come on the world, if honest people would all be 'as deaf" under such circumstances.

Next lesson—Samuel warns Saul and the people, 1 Sam xii.

P. NEILL.

"The true spirit and purpose of the Christian religion is to keep a man pure and undefiled from the lust and covetousness, the ambition and selfishness of the world. Cleansed within and shielded without, we can pursue our way, safe from the temptations that everywhere assail us."

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 1, 1908. NUMBER 25.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

As I have a little time today, and am at home, and the time has expired for the paper, you will find the money order enclosed. I enjoyed very much the little time I had at Antioch, meeting with Brothers Woodward, Halstead, Wagoner and Wiseo. If the Lord carries they will lay their armor by and rest until he comes.

Dear brothers and sisters let us be faithful, the Master is coming most surely to reckon each one of us. We are only stewards today and not possessors. Therefore, let our loins be girt about with truth and our feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. Jesus says, "Behold, I come quickly and my reward is with me to give to every man as his works shall be."

Your brother, waiting for the coming of the Great Life Giver.

M. T. ASLAKSEN.

Dear Restitution:

My subscription ran out some time ago, but the cause of delay was on account of the weather as much of the time we could get our mail but once a week. Brother, have you any of those tracts called "Five Hundred Dollar Reward?" if so, please send me a few as I would like them to give away to the people, as they are preaching too much sky-kingdom doctrine here and going to heaven at death, and their knowing more than they know here in all their life. O, dear brother, I do think that Jesus will soon come to claim his own, because the devil, seems like, is taking the lead and so many people who pretend to be Christians you can not find today. There is a church in two or three miles of here and they call themselves "The Gospel trumpet," and they say they have the power to heal the same that Jesus had, but I want to tell you of one case that they did not heal, of an old lady that used to belong to our church, but she went back to the "Gospel Trumpet" and they prayed for her but she died.

From a Sister,

MRS. R. C. ELLIOTT.

Plymouth, Indiana, July 1, 1908.

Sister M. A. Woodward writes that she will likely be able to visit the Plymouth Church the 2nd Sunday in July.

Our neighbor on the south, Mexico, is having trouble with some disaffected ones who want to overthrow the government.

On June 24th occurred the death of Grover Cleveland, thus removing the only remaining ex-President of the United States.

Can any one tell us the present address of W. W. Belden, late of Bridge, Nebraska, and of D. R. Renner lately of Davenport, Iowa.

Brethren and Sisters, a number of our friends have not yet renewed subscriptions for the year. Will all such try and remember us very soon. We thank you for the favor.

The past week has been a bloody time in Persia. The Shah has the soldiers with him, and men, women and children have been killed in the wild slaughter. It would seem that a Russian hand is aiding in the turmoil, and expecting to assist in restoring order, and then remaining, as is usual in such cases.

We are glad to have the interesting reports of meetings as held by Brother Corbaley in Washington, and Bro. Neill in Pennsylvania. They indicate activity that encourages those in other places to still press on, and not give up the struggle. The Lord is coming soon, and he wants us to be awake watching when he comes.

A letter from Brother O. J. Allard informs us that he is at Laporte City, Iowa, with Brother U. E. March, holding a series of meetings. The attendance is the best he ever experienced at the beginning of a meeting, and they hope for good results from the effort. Faithfully sow the seed, brethren. God will care for the harvest.

Hearing and Seeing.

The hearing ear and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them. Prov xx 12.

Hearing implies giving heed to what is said, giving attention to the word spoken; and the seeing eye denotes mental sight, or comprehension of the word spoken, so that its meaning is understood.

A person may be able to commit to memory many words and long passages without having a good, clear apprehension of their meaning. But we must hear, see and inwardly digest the words of God in order to get their spiritual, life-giving element. And it is to such as have the hearing or attentive, listening ear, that the Lord addresses his lessons and his commandments, which when thus received make wise unto salvation those who heed them.

Jesus gave his followers many lessons, instructing his hearers concerning God's wisdom, justice, mercy and loving kindness toward his children; also of his desire for sincere, heart-service from them upon whom he had showered blessings beyond their ability to measure. Jesus' Word was to them, "Ask and it shall be given unto you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you; for every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

These and many other lessons from the great Teacher were summed up by him by the lesson of the parable of the man who built his house on the rock. Jesus says, "Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them I will liken him unto a wise man which built his house upon a Rock." Jesus contrasts this man who built on the rock with another who built upon the sand. The result of the choice of foundations was just the opposite in the two cases. While the work of one was strong and able to stand the storms and tempests and torrents which came, the other fell and was swept away. To appreciate the full force of the meaning of this word picture drawn by Jesus, we ought to know something of the long dry season of that country, where many months knew no rain fall, and then the sandy soil of hillside or valley was perfectly safe from any danger from storms or freshets, but when the season changes, storms were sudden and violent, and freshets coming down the dry, sun baked valleys with force and suddenness which sweep all before them. Thus we may enforce upon our minds the lesson of the parable. In life we may seem to be on perfectly safe ground and all our wisdom of the world will never foresee the danger of our foundation being swept away. But the time will come when God will put all men's work to the test.

Jesus says the man who heareth these sayings of his and doeth them is like him who built on the rock. What does this parable teach us unless it illustrates what the Scripture means by "hearing"?

This is what the words of Isaiah lv 2 would teach us, where we read, "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? And your labor for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness." Incline your ear, and come unto me; hear and your soul shall live, and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David.

We have seen that the hearing implies that the hearers obey the words of the Lord, recognizing that he is the Master and themselves only servants. Having voluntarily put themselves in this position they must abide by the agreement. It is an "everlasting covenant" that binds the Lord, but the conditions must be just as faithfully kept by those who hope for the benefits of that everlasting covenant as they expect him to be.

Jesus said, It is enough for the disciple to be as his master, and the servant as his Lord." Matt x 25. Seeing his master obedient in all things he has no other desire than to be like him. To hear is for him to obey. Not to say that he always perfectly performs what he knows is his duty, but the desire is in his heart—the spirit is willing, though the flesh may be weak.

In instructing his disciples what things they should do—he said it was for this purpose, "That ye may be the children of your father which is in heaven. Matt v 45. And while the commands are many they are not hard to remember or grievous to be borne. To illustrate, If we are instructed about taking a certain road to reach a certain place and start right we find no trouble in remembering the different objects or landmarks which we were informed at the start we would pass along the way. As we come up to them we remember the words of our Guide and know we are going the best road if we keep in mind what we were told to remember. Just so in our journey of life, if Jesus is taken as our Guide. His words come to us at every season of doubt or trouble or danger or evil temptation. We have only to "know" what he has said and remember. And he entrusted those to whom he spake, to take his yoke upon them and learn of him—for his yoke is easy and his burden light. He sums up all that he would require in two points: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it; Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets." Matt xxii 36 40.

In Matt xxiii he tells his hearers; The Scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat, they are the official representatives of the law giver, the authorized religious instructors of their day. "All, therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do, but do not ye after their works, for they say and do not."

To say one thing or teach one way and do another is proof of insincerity and Jesus does not hesitate to stamp these high officials of the religious world as hypocrites. The thing censured by Jesus was no more common or prevalent in that day than it is now. Human nature is not one whit better than it was then, and we have official religious teachers, who like the Scribes and Pharisees "say and do not." They say, "Search the Scriptures" and themselves neglect them. We are not to do as they do but "heed the word." In one of Jesus' parables we learn of two brothers. The father came to the first and said, "Son, go work today in my vineyard." He answered and said, "I will not; but afterward repented and went."

And the father came to the second, and said likewise, Son, go work today in my vineyard." And he answered and said, I go, sir; and went not. Jesus asks, Which of these two did the will of his father? Is there here any lesson for any of us brothers and sisters? Have we heard the Father's voice and have we answered and agreed to work in his vineyard? How well are we living up to our promise—our agreement at the time we first received the gospel call? If we are no workers how can we expect to share with the workers in the harvest time? Each of us must make the application to himself of Jesus' lesson. There will be a time soon that will no longer be called "today." Our "day" may not last much longer—we are in the eleventh hour and we must be up and doing. Now is the acceptable time. Some have about finished their life's labor and can only look back upon the record of their labors. Whether it has been faithfully performed or not it is now a record for or against them. It will soon be the same with all of us here today. Those whose record we find good should be highly esteemed. Paul told the Philippian brethren to observe joint imitators of him, and watch those who are walking as they had seen him walk, as they had him for a pattern.

And again to Timothy he wrote, Howbeit, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might show forth all long suffering for a pattern of them which should hereafter believe on him to life everlasting. And as Bro. Jubilo once said in commenting upon these words of Paul, "that means us." Paul was a grand example of what is meant by having a hearing ear and a seeing eye. The hearing ear and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them, says the wise man.

We need first the desire to learn. If we have that sincere desire for the truth we seek it diligently and go to the fountain-head—the Word of truth—the Scriptures. But we are liable to err even when we do go to the Scriptures unless we watch ourselves. The Scribes and Pharisees were well versed in the Scriptures and taught the people the duties and doctrine strictly, and even Jesus found no fault with what they taught. It was not their doctrine that was wrong, but they were not themselves examples of what the Spirit of Truth would have them be. So it is in our day. The Scribes and Pharisees were no different from those in our day who "say and do not." Jesus commands to observe what they say, but not to do as they do.

And the Apostle Paul, writing to the Colossians, sums up the grandest of his exhortations in the 3rd chapter concerning the doing of those things which would make the disciples more like their Master, with these words, "Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord. And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him." Thus will the "sure mercies of David" be "sure" unto us also if we heed these words.

Chas. A. Cook.

An Essay.

The following essay was read at Brownstown, Va., Church, June 7, 1908.

Dear brothers and sisters:

As Bro. Neill has told you I will say something to you this morning I will continue on the same subject I was talking to the young men last evening, that is our influence on others, either consciously or unconsciously. Taking as my first reference Matt v 27-28, Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery. But I say unto you, that whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart. These were the words of Jesus Christ and not only apply in this case, but in any other evil which we may wish to do for our benefit or the injury of our neighbor. 1 Peter iii 11. Let him resist evil, and do good; let him seek peace, and ensue it, for the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayers; but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil. 1 Pet iv, For as much then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh arm yourselves likewise with the same mind; for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin; that he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God, for in our past lives we have lived to the pleasures of this world, and now they think it strange that ye run not with them to the same excess of evil living, speaking evil of you.

1 Pet iv 14, If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye, for the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you; on their part he (God) is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified. For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God; and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God? And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear? We find that we are judged and censured and condemned by those of the world for not falling in with their ways of doing and tell us we are too straight in our ideas and there is no use being so old fashioned, such a holy or goody good boy or girl. Until those things they want you to do are all right and every body does them, and there is no harm in them. But when you say anything to them about being added to the church, if you do as they want, then they say I am just as good as you, or any other person who may be of the church, which is not as essential to try to live as near as we know Christ would like to have us live. There we are left without a prop to support us in our effort to bring others into the relation of father and son with God, and into the hope of everlasting life in his kingdom.

Again using the illustration I used last evening, when talking to the boys, say I was of weak will power and several of we boys were to go into a restaurant where they served intoxicating liquors and things to eat, the rest of the boys ordered something to drink and were calling me a baby and coward, and other taunting names to get me to take my first glass of liquor, and a girl and young man were to come in and sit at a table near us and order liquor, and the boys and myself would see her drinking, and they would say you are worse than a girl, by a man and have a glass, it is fine, and through that I would take my first glass and become a drunkard, you see it would be largely to the conscious influence of the boys but the unconscious influence of the woman.

Again the judge, lawyer, preacher, merchant and farmer, young man or young woman, whoever or wherever they are or may be are exerting an influence for good or evil upon each other. In the case of drinking the young man or woman who takes his first doesn't look at the drunkard, but at the occasional drinker—so can take it or let it alone, result he who has not the self control become a drunkard. Dancing, smoking, chewing, swearing, card playing, betting, theatre going, and all those things which are of the world, we who are of the church should keep from if we want to be true children of God and be an influence for good and try to get others into his kingdom.

Truly brethren we will meet with many temptations to do the things we should not, for as Jesus says in Matt vii 13, Enter ye in at the strait gate; for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat; because strait is the gate and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life and few there be that find it. Therefore brothers and sisters and friends, we know not how much influence we are using either consciously or unconsciously for good or bad upon the lives of our friends and neighbors. But we do know we will be judged by our actions in this life, and that judgment either means a short life upon this earth now with the so called pleasures of it and then at death destruction, or life eternal with Jesus Christ when he comes to set up his kingdom. Choose ye the way, for no one can make our choice for us, or take our place in the end.

May the Lord Jesus Christ be with you and bless you, and cause you to make a choice to accept the gospel of the kingdom with the hope of life eternal and at last enter into the joys of the reward of those who are faithful to the end.

P. L. Morros.

Dear Restitution:

When some time ago I held meetings at Rentville, Pa., the home of Bro. John Ongley, there were pressing invitations to come again and bring my wife. I said I might come in June. Two or three Junes have passed since then. On Friday, June 12, we were met at Cambridge Springs by Brother James H. Ongley. After a pleasant drive of twelve miles we were made very welcome by Sister Ongley at their pleasant farm home.

Saturday evening we began a series of meetings in the Advent meeting house. The audience was composed of Saints, United Brethren and Adventist Christians. We shunned not to declare "The things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ." None made open confession. There were free and earnest expressions of both pleasure and satisfaction. Those who hold the truth in the love of it were greatly refreshed, and so were we. Considering that it is a scattered farming district, the general attendance and continued interest made all services a pleasure. Wife and I shared the work, the doctrine being illustrated by charts. We had many and kindly invitations to come again.

We visited our aged Brother Ongley. He is now quite feeble and almost blind, and hard of hearing, confined to his bed most of the time. His mind is very clear on some things past and on the glories of the kingdom to come. He remembers with much pleasure, his visit to the Ohio Conference at Salem.

We much enjoyed a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wolman, also wife brother and Sister John Ongley. James H. and John are sons of Bro. John Ongley. We made our home with Brother and Sister James H. Ongley, where we enjoyed more than kindly hospitality. Brother James never tires of talking about the many phases of the kingdom "as it is written." He and wife rejoice in the prospect of sharing in "the exceeding great and precious promises."

With confounding emotions, reluctant to leave, a desire to be home where duty is, we bade an affectionate good bye to Sister Ongley at her home and to Brother Ongley at Cambridge Springs. Arriving at home we found Sisters Ella and Mary Knowles in possession, and an excellent supper prepared, at which we had the company of Sister Driggins of California.

We found all the church here well and rejoicing in hope.

Report of Labor.

On March 7th, I left Waterville, Washington, for Cashmere, Washington, to hold a series of meetings.

Cashmere is located on the Wenatchee River, eleven miles above the city of Wenatchee. It is here that the finest apples in the world are raised, land with water to irrigate, selling from $500 to $2000 per acre.

I commenced meeting Wednesday evening March [illegible] and closed on Thursday [illegible] spoke each evening and twice on Sundays to good, attentive audiences. Did much private talking in the daytime, visiting the people at their homes, thus giving them the opportunity of asking questions with perfect freedom, which few feel at liberty to do during services.

During the meetings five were immersed, and others greatly interested, and we trust will yet be obedient. For the success of the meetings much credit is due to the members of the Church of God at Cashmere for their untiring attendance and deep devotion to the work of the Master, and we feel deeply grateful to them all for the brotherly love and many personal kindnesses shown us during the continuance of the meetings. May the dear Father keep them united in faith and devotion, bound with the strong cords of brotherly love and charity.

On May 20th Mason Burk of Waterville, was immersed by the writer in the beautiful waters of the Columbia River, and is rejoicing in hope of eternal life when the Lord shall come.

Your Brother in Christ.

Selections.

Don't Hear Everything.

The art of not hearing should be learned by all. It is fully as important to domestic happiness as a cultivated ear, for which so much money and time are expended. There are so many things which it is painful to hear, very many of which, if heard, will disturb the temper, corrupt simplicity and modesty, detract from contentment and happiness, that every one should be educated to take in or shut out sounds, according to his pleasure. If a man falls into a violent passion and calls us all manner of names, at the first word we should shut our ears and hear no more. If, in a quiet voyage of life, we find ourselves caught in one of those domestic whirlwinds of scolding, we should shut our ears as a sailor would furl his sails, and making all tight, scud before the gale. If a hot and restless man begins to inflame our feelings, we should consider what mischief the fiery sparks may do in our magazine below, where our temper is kept, and instantly close the door. If, as has been remarked, all the petty things said of one by heedless or ill natured idlers were to be brought home to him, he would become a mere walking pincushion full of sharp remarks.

If we would be happy when among good men we should open our ears; when among bad men, shut them. It is not worth while to hear what our neighbors have to say about our children, what our rivals say about our business, our dress or our affairs. The art of not hearing, though untaught in our schools, is by no means unpracticed in society. We have noticed that a well-bred woman never hears a vulgar or impertinent remark. A kind of discreet deafness saves [illegible] from many insults, from much blame from not a little connivance in dishonorable conversation.

Decline of Bible Knowledge.

A cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church on a recent visit to Boston was asked whether, after his long experience as a churchman, he believed the great mass of the people of America were growing better. From a religious standpoint, said he is said to have replied:

"It is hard to answer that question on any definite lines. In their respect for religion I am afraid the people of America are not what they were 50 or 60 years ago. For instance, our statesmen show this in their public addresses and debates. The statesmen of America 50 or 60 years ago showed a familiarity with, and a regard for, the holy Scriptures and the Word of God which I am sorry to say does not present itself today.

"I remember reading one speech of Daniel Webster which contained 14 quotations from holy Scripture, which showed Mr. Webster's study of the holy Word and his respect for its spirit. Indeed, Webster used to dovetail his speeches with appropriate quotations from Scripture, showing his intimate respect for the Word of God. This practice, I repeat, is neglected by the public speakers of the present day."

The comment of the cardinal was a just one, but he did not go far enough. He should have added that so long as the regular reading of the Bible prevailed in the public schools the scholars grew up with a certain amount of [illegible] Scriptures, but after [illegible] excluded [illegible] from the schools, the [illegible] which he now deplores.—Armory.

Frankness.

Be frank with the world. Frankness is the child of honesty and courage. say just what you mean to do on every occasion, and take it for granted that you mean to do what is right. If a friend asks you a favor you should grant it, if it is reasonable; if it is not, tell him plainly why you cannot. You will wrong him and wrong yourself by equivocation of any kind. Never do a wrong thing to make a friend or keep one; the man who requires you to do so is dearly purchased, and at a sacrifice. Deal kindly and firmly with all men, and you will find it the policy which wears the best. Above all, do not appear to others what you are not. If you have any fault to find with any one, tell him, not others, of what you complain. There is no more dangerous experiment than that of undertaking to do one thing to a man's face and another behind his back. We should live, act and speak out of doors, as the phrase is, and say and do what we are willing should be known and read by all men. It is not only best as a matter of principle, but as a matter of policy.

The man who thinks he can carry a grudge in his heart against a brother who has trespassed against him, because the brother has not asked forgiveness, has never yet learned the true spirit that pervades the mind of the new born babe in Christ, however long he may have been in the way. Thus saith the Lord,—whether the other fellow has asked forgiveness or not—"Laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies and envies, and all evil speakings, as new born babes, desire the sincere milk of the word that ye may grow thereby."

As a very little dust will disorder a clock, and the least grain of sand will obscure our sight, so the least grain of sin upon the heart will hinder its right motion toward God.—Wesley.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

The Courage of Try it Again.

There are three kinds of courage in this world of ours,
Which help to make projects go through;
There's the courage that comes like the bloom on the flowers,
When the life-like the spring time is new.

There's the courage which comes at emergency's call,
To the weakest, most timid of men;
And then there's the kind that is noblest of all—
The courage to "Try it again."

It patiently labor the end not in sight,
When failure seems directly nigh;
It cheerily plod through the darkness and night,
And conquer our task though we die.

It nearly a smile when the outlook is dark
And the path leads through a rough land and iron,
Oh! this is the courage which makes a bright mark—
The courage to "Try it again."

Editorials.

The Editor will hold a meeting with the Church at Rob, Ind., Aug. 1 to 6.

We have promised the brethren in Missouri to attend their Conference in August.

A letter from Brother Jos. Williams calls attention to the Conference to be held at St. Paul, Neb., Aug. 29 to Sept. 7. Let as many as can possibly attend the meeting, do so.

We have quite a few young brethren and sisters who write for "Ebenezer." We hope that others yet will be added to the list of our Contributors. Young people are a little backward about writing for the press, but we assure them of a critical editorial revision of all their writings, and that their articles will appear in good language. Write.

Interesting Correspondence.

Brother Huggins:

Your letter is at hand, also copies of THE RESTITUTION. I recall you to memory as the minister that boarded of F. A. Booth's restaurant when my wife and I were visiting Mr. Booth and family at Oregon, Mrs. Booth is my daughter. I recall to memory Mr. S. J. Lindsay, one of your ministers, whom I knew when he was Asst. Supt. of schools of Ogle County. I also remember one very pleasant meeting with him in the Supt.'s office when our conversation drifted to our origin, duty and destiny; and later when he talked to our people in the Eagle Point church.

But Brother Huggins, I freely admit that I was ignorant of the doctrines taught by your church until I read the title of your paper this evening—THE RESTITUTION. It sent a thrill of pleasure through me when I read it, and the brief "confession of faith" in the right hand upper corner. It is now over fifty years since I first learned the meaning of that text, and it gives me joy whenever I see or read it. Why that word has so much joy for me is because it stands in Acts iii 20, 21, it wipes out the God-dishonoring, man-degrading, doctrine of endless suffering. But while your faith in the salvation of our race is but partial, I have faith in the universal salvation of the entire human race. But there is great comfort in your creed even though it does not include every being whom God hath created, as among the saved: you do not charge the Father of our race with raising countless millions of erring mortals from the quiet sleep of death with no other object in view only to torture them through eternity. I know that "He doeth all things well". Hence I am not disposed to contend that your people are in error, except to point out that the words, "all things" in your confession of faith means, if any thing, the restoration of every human being to holiness and happiness.

While I am happy in the knowledge that you and your people do not charge God with being the author of a state or condition that reduces countless millions to endless rebellion, anguish and woe, I hold that "all" means all. "All shall know the Lord from the least to the greatest." The Lord is to wipe the tears from off "all faces". "The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things unto his hand." "All that the Father hath given me, shall come to me." "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." "Thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him."

But I have written more than I started out to do. I would love to meet you, but cannot as my duties now, as we expect to visit our daughter in Aurora soon. Would like to have you write.

Yours for the overthrow of error and sin,

HENRY EBERT.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Brother Ebert:

We salute you affectionately because we are all brethren in Adam whether we are related in Christ or not. Gen xix 7; Acts xviii 1. Your good and friendly letter has edified us much. We pray that the Lord will give you a wise and understanding heart, so that if you do not comprehend the blessed truth in all its fulness, you may come to know it "more perfectly" (Acts xviii 26) that your joy may be increased. I am pleased that you like THE RESTITUTION and that you have profited by reading it.

While we regret that you do not agree with us in some questions, we cannot but admire the honest and frank way in which you state your opposing views. You say that "all things" in Acts iii 21 "means, if anything, the restoration of every human being to holiness and happiness." You depend upon the word "all" to hold up the weight of the statement. "All means all," you say, to which I reply no reasonable man can object. All is a universal word, and yet it is only universal to that which it is applied. Sometimes it expresses a general truth with exceptions to that truth understood. Christ says of the antediluvians that the flood "destroyed them all" (Luke xvii 27), but Peter explains that "eight souls were saved by water." 1 Peter iii 20. Paul affirms that Christ must put "all things under his feet", but hastens to qualify his broad assertion with a "manifest" exception. 1 Cor. xv 27. "All the land of Judea.....all were baptized" (Mark i 5), but the Pharisees and lawyers were not baptized by John. Luke vii 30. These passages have the word "all" in them, but they are used to enunciate a general truth, as is manifest from the exceptions expressly stated. Then the word all is a class word, and is generally limited to the class spoke of. On your way to visit your daughter at Aurora, when you get to Oregon and the porter shouts, "All out for Oregon," you will not vacate the car. When you arrive at your daughter's home and ask, "How are you; all well?" and she says, "I am well; we are all well", you will not say, "All means all;" she says, 'All are well,' therefore every "human being" on earth is well. Although your daughter used the word "all", she only meant that herself, husband and son were well. Here the word only stands for three persons. In the sentence, "We are all well," the word "all" is qualified by the preceding "we", and is no bigger a meaning than that pronoun. If I were to say, "All the people in Kentucky were highly excited when Goebel was shot," instead of the phrase "all the people" meaning "every human being" on earth, it would only mean the people in the specified strip of country. "In Kentucky" is a term subsequent to, and is used to qualify the statement, "all the people". All is universal, alright, but limited in this statement to the particular people living in the state named. The affirmation need not be strained to mean more than is expressed by the language used. Though I use the word "all", it is limited to the territory named "in Kentucky". People in Japan were not excited over the matter. Because the Bible says, "All the wicked will he destroy," (Psalm cxlv 20), you certainly do not conclude that God is going to destroy "every human being" that is living or that has lived. Though the word all is used, it is a class word, and universal only in its application to the class described—"the wicked". If the word "all" as applied to the righteous, proves universal salvation, the same word all when applied to the wicked would prove universal destruction. One could argue with as much plausibility that all will be lost as you can that all will be saved. We must not take advantage of language nor misuse the meaning of words.

We could take these same texts you have quoted in your letter one by one and show conclusively by the texts themselves that universal salvation cannot be true. But as we are limited as to time we only make a few remarks on Acts iii 20, 21. You see the word "all" in this text; I am grieved, dear brother, that this little word has kept you from seeing other things there. "All things" you think, "means, if any thing, the restoration of every human being to holiness and happiness." Really, now, your comments are rather inappropriate. The passage does not say, "All human beings", but "all things". "Things" would not stop at "human beings"; they would embrace everything that ever had an existence, from the whale to the tiny sprig of grass. I have yet to meet the man who is really a universalist—one who believes in unlimited salvation. Men who are reputed to be universalist have mental reservations and limits, though some of them are dangerously broad. But as to the text itself; it does not say there is to be a restitution of all things; it says there is to be a restitution, truly, but with this qualification and limit expressly stated: "spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began". There is to be a restitution of what they as "holy prophets", predicted would be restored. When we make "all things" to mean more than was "spoken" by those men of God, we are exaggerating and adding to God's word. And look at the conditions of restoration in the context: "Repent and be converted." v. 19. Restoration and conversion are the same thing, see the margin in Psa xix 7. Why repent? Why be converted? Ah, there were some "sins" of which they were guilty. These must be "blotted out". Repentance and conversion is put prior to their being blotted out. Why repentance, conversion, and blotting out of sins? That when Christ is sent from heaven where he is to now "contained", there might be "times of refreshing". But, dear brother, if these "times" would come to them just as certainly whether they repented and were converted or not, why all this ado? If this text teaches an unconditional restitution; if its fulfillment, "means, if anything, the restoration of every human being to holiness and happiness," why did God send Christ to "bless" us in turning us away from our iniquities? v. 26. If every body is to be holy and happy, saved [glorified by these times "of refreshings" and by Christ, how then is our Lord the "Prophet like unto" Moses (v 23), for under "Moses' law" transgressors "died without mercy." Heb x 28. If every "human being", however vile and degraded, is to spend eternity in "holiness and happiness", how can it "come to pass that every soul which will not hear that prophet (Christ), shall be destroyed from among the people"? v 23.

But I must close my already too long epistle. God help us to profit by our correspondence by augmenting our knowledge of his good word, and by bringing us to be holy, even as He is holy. Amen.

Poor Man.

Our dear but mistaken friends who believe in the immortality of the soul, often say of us who believe in the mortality of man, that we do not have proper conceptions of man's dignity and worth. To think of man, the lord of creation, as being of the same nature as the beast, as mortal in life and as unconscious in death as they are, is to them a very degrading doctrine to entertain about a being who has a spark of divinity in him. Man is looked upon as being at all times and in all conditions far superior to the beast. But, reader, suppose we "reason together" (Isa i 18) about this matter. You can have "reason" whether you have a knowledge of God's word or not. Let us drop God's word out of our investigation for now, and let us approach this question from a standpoint of reason. Now in "reasoning together" we will begin by affirming that man is not equal but in many respects inferior to beast. This humiliating truth and stubborn fact you may not like to believe, but your "reason" will approve the proposition.

For see here: Man is inferior to beast in agility, in gymnastics. The Cicada, a kind of locust, can leap 250 times its length. If a man could jump the same distance in proportion to its length, one leap would carry him a quarter of a mile. The common flea weighs less than a grain, but it can leap such a distance that a man, at the same rate, would leap 12,000 miles per bound. Approximately 6 feet in height and 23 in width are the limit in man's jumping achievements. A red deer can clear a wall 10 feet high, the chamois 11 feet; while the springbok, of the South African veldt, will shoot 10 feet up in the air for amusement. Some animals are simply wonderful in their athletic performances. The black jaguar can reach a limb 14 feet from the ground. The kangaroo can jump 12 feet high, and can leap with ease a width of 30 to 60 feet. The ostrich, in running clears 26 feet at a stride. A man's best speed at running is 4 minutes and 12 and three-fourths second per mile. The dog, horse, the antelope, and many other animals can outrun him. The gray wolf lopes along covering 40 miles in a night. The fox has been timed to run 2 miles at a speed of 26 miles per hour. A horse at full speed on the track travels 32 miles, while a grey hound, the swiftest of all four legged animals, runs 41 miles.

If man succeeds in inventing a flying machine, he cannot hope to rival the feats of the birds. About a dozen kinds of birds have been credited with speeds of 100 miles an hour. Just lately it was discovered that the swallow is swifter than the wild duck or the carrier pigeon. A bird swallow was taken from her nest at Antwerp and sent in a basket by express to Compiegne, a distance of 146 miles. At 7:30 a m she was liberated, and she was seen to arrive at her nest at 8:38. This means that the tiny bird traveled 189 feet a second, or 129 miles an hour.

Then, too, man is inferior to beast in the power of vision. The fly has two immovable eyes, but they are polygonous, like a multiplying glass, the fly actually has as many eyes as facets, as each facet produces a separate image on the retina. Dr. Hitchcock says the house fly has 14,000 eyes, the dragon fly 25,000, the butterfly 35,000, and the mordella 50,000. Reader, I think we had better quit boasting about our superiority over the beast. Compared with them, we cannot hold our own! The ox, the horse, in fact, nearly all animals are stronger than man. The eagle, the goose and the crow, outlive him. The eagle has a more piercing vision; the goose can make more noise, and the crow can excell him in stealing! Proud man, boasting about his immortal soul, his worth, dignity and importance! When compared with the beasts, does it not bring all pride out of you, and make you say with the humility of David, "What is man that thou art mindful of him, or the son of man that thou visitest him?" What are you, anyway? By the aid of mechanical instruments you creep along on a prepared track at 120 miles an hour or glide over the surface of the ocean at 40 miles, and think to yourself, "My! Am I not wonderful!" You can build a tower 200 times your height. But only strip man of his inventions, his machine made instruments, weapons and clothes, and man, the lord of creation, is a poor thing at best. Poor man, "If a man think himself something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself." Gal vi 3.

The New Testament Canon.

We are told by a critic of our Bible that our Canon of New Testament books was first made by the Council of Nice, in A. D. 325, which was a church council held at the city of Nice, under the auspices of the Emperor Constantine, to consider the orthodoxy of some church doctrines. Now it is difficult for us to believe that the ignorance of the religious world was so great that the members of this Council based their work of establishing the canon of Scripture and the decision of what books were inspired and which were not, upon such a superstition as that it could be decided in answer to their prayer that as they placed all the books under the communion table the inspired books should get upon the table and the uninspired or spurious ones remain under the table. Although this is given on the authority of a historian named Pappus, we never could believe that this was all the history there was in the matter, or that the Christian world at that time was sunk in Catholic superstition as to take this fraud as a divine interposition. It is like the story in the Old Testament Apocrypha in the time of Daniel at Babylon, where the people were made to believe that during the night the idol they worshiped actually ate the food of the sacrifices the priests left for that purpose. But Daniel, by the simple experiment of placing ashes on the floor to retain the tracks of the feet of the priests and their families when they came in to eat the food themselves, exposed the fraud and overthrew the idol worship. So in the case of the fabled establishment of the Canon of Scripture, some Catholic priest or priests placed the books as they wished them, if indeed there be any truth in the statement. Now we find that the historian, John Pappus, who is responsible for this statement, was not a historian of that age of the world, but lived about 1250 years later, and gives as his authority an old Greek manuscript, in which decrees are given 500 years after the Council of Nice. We take this statement from THE CONVENTION of May 20, and we give it as our opinion that the historian gave it as an item of superstition, although we know that the religious superstition of the people of the early Christian era was very great, and some of it prevails at the present time.—Bible Advocate.

An Exhortation.

This is a day of darkness—of no open vision—of no miracle. If we remember this, we shall not be overthrown by the apparent forsaking of the earth by God. We are called upon to walk by faith, and not by sight. If our eyes could but penetrate the veil that now hides the unseen from view, we should realize that the forsaking was only in semblance. Christ and angels innumerable are interested and actively employed in human affairs, though we see them not.

Brethren, let us not grow weary and faint. The walk of faith will soon be ended, the veil will be drawn aside, and the darkness dispelled. "The Son of Man shall come." Meanwhile it is for us to believe though we see not. Let us steel our heart against the influence of the wicked, for all men have not the faith.

The children of God and the children of the world are well represented in Christ and his murderers. The latter knew not that the dark hour of the crucifixion was in heaven's revealed program. "He trusted in God; let him deliver him now, if he will have him, for he said, I am the Son of God." Though appearances (humanly speaking) were against Christ, he knew that God was working out his purpose in him, and patiently endured to the end. Who was wise, Christ or his enemies? His resurrection is the answer. Let us profit by this beautiful lesson. The present is our dark hour. Shall we view it as do the wicked—shall we curse God and die—or shall we patiently go through it and reap the reward?

W. S. TOMLINSON.

Where Did Queen of Sheba Get Her Riches?

A new controversy is raging here among archaeologists with the Bible as the basis of the dispute, though it is based on no question of fact that involves the truth of the Scriptures. It has to do with the location of the famous land of Ophir, the land of gold, from which the Queen of Sheba is supposed to have brought her great wealth when she went up to Jerusalem and became one of the wives of Solomon.

The Biblical history is so vague that the discussion opens up a very fruitful field. Dr. Carl Peters, an explorer of note and former governor of German East Africa, has located the gold land in Africa, along the Zambesi river. This theory is all "in the interest of England," according to Baron von Falkenegg, who is also a man of note in the line of exploration. The baron says:

"From the Bible it is incontrovertibly clear that the Queen of Sheba, or Hatsheath, took the land route over Arabia. From the Harrar region in the neighborhood of Djibuti, she sailed to Yemen to some southern Arabian point, and there organized the great caravan. In all probability as the ruler of Habesch, she was also the ruler of southern Arabia."

Baron Falkenegg then discusses the "colonial policy" which King Solomon, in common with King Hiram, of Phoenicia, carried out. He says:

"With his friend Hiram, the Phoenician sea king, King Solomon established colonies in Africa. The Phoenicians furnished the ships and the experienced sailors, and the Jewish king supplied the money and the soldiers. From what is today Tripoli, along all the coasts of Africa, the Phoenicians had their colonies, in northwest and southeast Africa, all the way to Habesch. The remains of Phoenician structures of all sorts abound throughout Africa. On that basis Dr. Peters rests his arguments that the region of the 'Simbabje' is the old legendary Ophir. The gold ships came from the land of 'Ofir'—that is, 'Africa.' The richest deposits, however, were revealed in the Habesch district, or what is today Abyssinia."—Toledo Blade.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

This article reads to show that Ophir, the place of gold, precious stones, ivory, birds of beautiful plumage, etc., was in Africa instead of in India, as generally supposed. Dr. Peters builds his claim mostly on a historical atlas which he has discovered. This atlas was printed in Amsterdam in the beginning of the 18th century. As those who know history are aware, the Portuguese had flourishing colonies on the Zambesi and Congo rivers in the 17th century. The maps now reprinted for us by Dr. Peters show that the people then living had a good geographical knowledge of Africa. How that knowledge was lost is a freak of history which can only be explained by supposing that the decline of the Portuguese power in the "dark continent" caused the death and burial of it. With the old Dutch atlas resurrected by Dr. Peters we have history repeating itself, divulging an early knowledge of the east and southwest coasts of Africa, the courses of the rivers Congo and Zambesi and other streams, the tribes of Akka, and the vast forest in the northwest land of the Congo river. This atlas speaks of the gold, jewels, and the fine animals; and even speaks of the sites of certain gold mines. On such evidence Dr. Peters has built a positive opinion that Ophir mentioned in the Old Testament is in Africa. His claim is interesting and likely true. The Hebrew consonants contain the root of the word Afr, and as Dr. Peters suggests, the Latin ending ica was perhaps subsequently added.

Practical Infidelity Compared with Practical Christianity.

"I have read," said a shoemaker, "a good deal about the heathen gods, and I believe the account of Christ is taken from some of the heathen writings."

"Will you abide by your own decision on two questions that I will put to you?" asked a Bible reader. "If so I will fully do the same. I will abide by your own answers."

"Well," said the shoemaker, "out with it, and let us see if I can answer; there are but few things but what I can say something about."

"Well, my friend," replied the reader, "my first question is, Suppose all men were Christians, according to the account given to us in the gospels concerning Christ, what would be the state of society?"

The shoemaker remained silent for some time in deep thought, and then was constrained to answer, "Well, if all men were really Christians in practice as well as theory, of course we should be a happy brotherhood indeed."

"I promised you," said the reader, "that I would abide by your answer; will you do the same?"

"Oh, yes," he replied; "no man can deny the goodness of the system in practice. But now for your other question; perhaps I shall get along better with that. You have got a chalk this time against me."

"Well, my question is this; Suppose all men were infidels, what then would be the state of the world?"

The shoemaker seemed still more perplexed and remained a long time silent. At length he said:

"You certainly have beaten me, for I never before saw the two effects upon society."—Anti-infidel Library.

The greatest daily change of temperature to be found on the earth's surface is in Arizona. There is frequently a change of eighty degrees in twelve hours.

About forty different kinds of whales and dolphins are known, and although they live in the open sea and look like fish they are not fish at all, but are true mammals, breathing air and feeding their young on milk, like cows and horses.

Lancashire (England) medical officers are calling attention to the danger of weavers in the cotton mills contracting infectious diseases from the practice known as "shuttle-kissing"—sucking the weft through the eye of the shuttle. Diphtheria, consumption and many other diseases are spread by this custom.

The Way to Rise.

There is no way to rise, except by resistance. It has been pointed out that every stairway is nothing but a series of obstacles, each one of which must be overcome singly, if we would let that stairway serve its purpose and bring us to the top. So with everything in life that seems to oppose us, bear us down, or call a halt. It is not only an opportunity for going ahead, but there would be no way of making gains without these helpful resistances. One has well written: "A world in which there were no labors to be accomplished, no burdens to be borne, no storms to be endured, would be a world without true joy, honest pleasure, or noble aspiration. It would be a fool's paradise." Think of this as you are tempted to resent today's invitations to progress.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 10-19, and the Annual Conference from August 19-23. When answering questions of lesson 6, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

S. J. LINDSAY.

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility—to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conferences at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing; for we shall reap if we faint not.

Further particulars later.

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. H. WILSON.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organising a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,

W. H. WILSON.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left to the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by G. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

Subscribe for THE RESTITUTION to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist: third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at 9ve cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 886 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You In Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their names, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know, a great many times and addresses, but we may not remember ours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps collect together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected, and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Ia. or Ohio.

When you order your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending a receipt always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Sloane Williams, and her husband George gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and after awhile when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid to us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

See the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has been used to hold it, addresses it, puts on a stamp and drops it in the box. He has failed to produce his finished work, and omitted three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, 2. failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

In the Vale.

O, I'm weary in my wanderings
With the rush and whirl of life,
As my soul is torn with conflict
Midst the flurry of the strife,
And my locks which once were golden,
Are now like a frosted sea—
O, I need the benediction
Of the Man of Galilee.

O, I am lonely in the shadows
When I'm driven from thy side,
And I pray for thy blest presence
Thou my counselor and guide.
Yes I'm heartsick when I'm storm-tossed
And I long to be with thee—
By thy side in sweet communion
Thou dear Man of Galilee.

I have sought thee on the mountains,
Where high crags are crowned with snow;
I have lingered in the valleys
Where the living waters flow.
When a stranger at the well-side
Thou requested drink of me,
There I saw Thee in Thy beauty
Thou blest man of Galilee.

O, I am thirsty in this desert
For the well-spring of thy grace,
And I'm overwhelmed with hunger
For thy pure refreshing face,
When the sun shall drown in darkness
In the inky midnight sea,
I shall seek to dwell forever
With thy Man of Galilee.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 57.

Sister Mary A. Woodward is a little above medium height, is bright, vivacious; pleasing in manners and appearance; a good conversationalist and a rapid, earnest speaker, who appeals both to reason and emotion.

Both she and Brother Woodward, though not citizens of Indiana have preached at various points in the state, and we therefore lay claim to them as much as if they were "to the manor born."

Their earnestness; their love of the truth, their self-sacrificing, trustful, devotional spirit, has greatly endeared them to the churches of South Bend, Plymouth, North Salem, Argos, and other places and even out-siders, who have heard them, respect them and want to hear them again.

In summer and winter, through heat and cold, rain or shine, and whether the pay was little or much, they have gone to "hold forth the Word of life," hoping that some at least might be saved; for oh, what a dreadful thing to lose life forever! With this thought ever before them they have labored patiently on, enduring the coldness and indifference of back-slidden brethren, the mockings of the sceptics; the weariness and the painfulness of the "journeyings oft," until nearly worn out in the Master's service,—Sister Woodward having little rest, even at home. No one can fit the new dress quite so well as she, no one else tell quite so well what sort of head-gear would be suitable for the blithe little neighbor; help about the currant jelly, lend a hand at nursing the sick child, write a letter for the ignorant foreigner, give comfort to the dying, attend the funeral services. But I will let her finish the story in her own pleasing style and manner. She says:

"I first saw daylight in Darien, N. Y., July 5, 1849, and was given the honorable name of Mary Alice Grant, (Yes, I suppose my father, John Grant, was about third cousin of General Grant, somewhat remote, as the colored man said when claiming relation to John Q. Adams.)

My father and family moved to Watson, Allegan County, Michigan, about 1854. When I was thirteen years of age I tried to get religion at an M. E. Campground. I never knew whether I succeeded or not, as I could not have the power as others did, but they took me into the church on probation (suspicion, my husband says,) for six months. At the expiration of that time I was immersed by Elder Fowler and joined the Christian Church. Was a very active member of that church until the winter of 1881 when Elder B. W. Woodward came to Watson, Michigan, and held a five weeks meeting. What a revelation those stirring sermons brought to many lives. No matter how cold the weather or deep the snow, every night the house was packed to its limit. I had heard, was convinced, but oh, how I fought the truth. How could I leave the church I had lived in, worked for, and loved for nearly twenty years. My friends would turn from me, I would belong to the despised Adventa, how could I do it?

I resisted all argument for two years until one day after a tearful conversation with my dear father, in which he so patiently and kindly tried to show me wherein I was wrong, I asked myself the question, Are you a Christian at all? If you are would you be willing to leave friends, church, old pagan notions, everything for the truth? That settled the question with me, and when Elder Woodward came to Watson on his next appointment Mrs Eunice Stone and myself were baptized, and from that time to the present, I have devoted my life to God's service; traveling with my husband, Elder B. W. Woodward, (to whom I was married March 31st, 1883) thousands of miles a year for many years, and preaching the Word of life.

The results of this meeting in Watson were wonderful, seventy-six were baptized and a neat little church was built. For several years it was a busy body of workers—but at present only six members are living there. Many have died—many moved away. I had attended conferences in Watson and heard the gospel preached by such able expounders as Brothers Simonds, Hoyt, Miller and Chevalier, but it never touched a responsive chord in my heart until 1882. I can look at others now with patient pity when they so stubbornly refuse to accept the blessed truths of the Bible.

Being taken out as people for his name means much. May God make us worthy of a place in his kingdom."
—M. A. Woodward.

AUNTIE WINCE.

This is not the golden age, but the gold-craze age.

Who will Help Us?

In Acts ix. we have an account of Paul's conversion on the way to Damascus. Three days after this we find him in that city before Ananias, who was sent to enlighten him in blindness.

Then follow the statements touching his preaching in Damascus, and of the Jews attempt to kill him, and how the disciples let him down by the wall in a basket, and finally of his reaching Jerusalem. "And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, he assayed to join himself to the disciples, but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple. But Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus. And he was with them coming in and going out at Jerusalem. And he spake boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus, and disputed against the Grecians, but they went about to slay him, which when the brethren knew they brought him down to Cæsarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus." Acts ix. 26-30.

This seems to be plain straightforward history in the life of the great apostle, until we read Gal. i. as follows:—"When it pleased God.....to reveal his Son in me.....I conferred not with flesh and blood; neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me. But I went into Arabia and returned again to Damascus. Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter and abode with him fifteen days, but other of the apostles saw I none, save James, the Lord's brother.....and was unknown by face unto the churches of Judea which were in Christ; but they had heard only that he which persecuted us in times past now preacheth the faith which he once destroyed, and they glorified God in me. Then fourteen years after I went up again to Jerusalem, with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also." Gal. i. 15-24; ii. 1.

1. Did Paul go from Damascus to Jerusalem at once after conversion?

2. Is this first trip to Jerusalem three years after his conversion or fourteen years after?

3. If three years after how could he be with the apostles "coming in and going out," and preaching "boldly in the name of Jesus" and "disputing with the Grecians," and the disciples taking him "to Cæsarea and sent him forth to Tarsus," Acts ix. 28-30, and yet be unknown to the churches of Judea, and during all this time see none of the apostles except James and Peter? Gal. i. 19. How could this be reconciled?

4. If, as stated by Paul himself in Galatians, that he saw none of the disciples except Peter and James for fourteen years after his conversion, how may the statements in Acts ix be reconciled, that he went up to Jerusalem and preached there until the brethren sent him to Tarsus?

Will some one write an article making the above seeming inharmony plain. I think it can be done.

Salvation. No 5.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

If the kingdom of God was of such paramount importance, as to engage the supernatural power of God's Son to proclaim it to the perishing sons and daughters of Israel; if his chosen apostles and evangelists were commanded to preach it in all the world, and do this under divine instruction and guidance, making it largely the burden of the gospel, then it follows, as a natural and logical conclusion that the kingdom is a subject worthy of our attention and study at the present time. It is necessary for him who preaches to have right conceptions of it so as to give his hearers scriptural ideas about what they are called upon to believe.

The word kingdom is much in use today and men seem to have a fair idea of its meaning as gathered from popular usage. The word occurs many times in the Scriptures: in a number of these occurences the word has reference to the kingdoms of men, or worldly governments. In reading the history of these as found in the Bible no one is so stupid as not to understand what is meant; but many when reading prophecies and promises in reference to the kingdom of God understand the word to carry an entirely different meaning, especially when they find it in the N. T. scriptures. There is no need of this change in the meaning of the word. Whatever is the final character and constitution of the great world kingdoms, will constitute the kingdom of God which follows these as the fifth in the prophetic count; but with this difference, all the elements in God's kingdom will be perfect—not all at first but in the course of time. This latter idea is not pleasing to those who reject the doctrine of Israel's and Judah's restoration, and the blessing of the nations on probation in the Millennial age. I will not here enumerate these elements or principal parts embraced in God's kingdom. These will appear plain as we proceed to give Scripture quotations under appropriate heads.

WHERE WILL THE KINGDOM BE?

As it is to be the home of man—redeemed man—it is natural and easy to believe that it will be on this earth. Man was, as primarily created, an occupant of this earth. Here the primitive pair enjoyed their paradise, a garden of surpassing loveliness. Man and earth were adapted to each other. No intimation in the history of his creation, of a translation to some other world, and the prophecy and promise of his redemption are equally silent as to any change in this respect. The way God first set up that he ma, it looked like our first parents were not to be mere tenants at will but owners in full right and title. It was in that was the legal grant of overthrust from the garden of delights. I will discuss this point at greater length under another head. Where will the kingdom be located? for location it must have. In addition to the above fair inference which cannot reasonably be disputed, we see some very plain Scripture statements in answer to the question. Daniel in vision sees the Son of man invested with royalty and in possession of the kingdom. Chapter vii 14 reads, There was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people nations and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed. Verse 27 gives the inspired interpretation of that part of the vision relating to the kingdom. And the kingdom, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him. There is no possibility of understanding this language to mean anything else than a real literal kingdom, as much so as those that precedes it, and whose territory it occupies. It is under the heaven and not above it. In the dream of the troubled king as explained by Daniel the same truth is brought out. Daniel speaking to the king says, "Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and brake them to pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.

The stone in the dream of the monarch, together with its action and increase in magnitude is symbolical of the kingdom which performs a similar action, and exhibits a like increase in dimensions. "In the days these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Dan ii 35, 35, 44. No lower will come in and conquer this kingdom as was done to the great world kingdoms. It will be indestructible and eternal. Its laws will be good extending to the multiplied subjects justice and equity. No one will have cause of complaint that his rights have been infringed by another. The numerous classes of wrongs found in all human governments will be unknown to the kingdom of God. Just such a kingdom lies before us in the rapidly approaching time of Messiah's reign. In that kingdom God's Son will be chief ruler and he entitled "Lord of lords and King of kings." He has promised to share the glory and dignity of his reign with his faithful followers, they being by covenant conditious heirs of God and joint heirs with him. What a lofty destiny! Rev vii 17.

Continuing under the head of place, I will give you a few more texts. Rev xi 15, And the seventh angel sounded and there were great voices in heaven saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign forever and ever." How will this passage harmonizes with those quoted from Daniel; and all these in beautiful accord with the words of Jesus in his given formula of daily prayer; "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Matt vi 10.

These words are today as appropriate in our prayers as when first given to the disciples. The kingdom has not yet come nor God's will done as in heaven. The closing words of the new song voices the same truth. "And we shall reign on the earth." Rev v 10. The promises communicated by the angel to the virgin mother were that the Son she should bring forth, "Shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and shall reign over the house of Jacob forever and of his kingdom there shall be no end. Luke i 32, 33. David's throne was not in heaven, nor Jacob's house or Israel there, but on the earth, as they will also be in the future, in the age of restitution. I have not given a fifth of the proof that might be given on the subject of the locality of the kingdom. Place, time, purpose, and by whom enacted are essential elements of history, and this is equally true of prophecy. Time. When will the kingdom be established? Relative time is here meant. Answer, At the second personal coming of our Lord. Said Paul to Timothy, "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom, preach the word 2 Tim iv 1. Jesus is not yet on his own throne but on the Father's. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." There are frequent allusion in the N. T. to this position of the Son at the right hand of the Father. The throne which he claims (Rev iii 21) as his own is distinct from his Father's throne and is his by inheritance, the throne of his father David, (Luke i 32; Acts ii 30) and is referred to in the following passage, When the Son of Man shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. Matt xxv 31. A long chain of prophecy remained to be fulfilled before the establishment of his kingdom. He spoke in this parable; "Behold the fig tree, and all the trees; when they shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves that summer is nigh. So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, Know that the kingdom of God is nigh." Luke xxi 31. Summer is only nigh when the buds begin to swell, so the kingdom is only nigh when the last particulars in the prophecy is being fulfilled. The 28th verse speaks of redemption being nigh when the kingdom is nigh. Redemption will take place when the Lord comes and the dead are raised. These three events occur in the following order of time: The coming of the Lord; the resurrection of dead; the establishment of the kingdom. Near the close of Christ's ministry, as at the beginning of it, there was the expectation on the part of those who followed him to hear his preaching, that the kingdom of God would immediately appear.

To correct this mistake he spoke a parable and spoke it because he was nigh to Jerusalem the capital city of the kingdom. "A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return..... and it came to pass that when he was returned, having received the kingdom then he commanded these servants to be called." Luke xix 12. This parable can mean nothing less than that the Son is the one meant by the nobleman, the far country, heaven, where he went to be invested with the right to reign in his kingdom when he returns, and the judgment and reward of these servants by the nobleman finds its counterpart in our Lord's exercise of kingly power in his kingdom, the place to which he returns; the earth itself as the territory of his future reign, where he is to put down all rule, authority and power. There is nothing more clearly taught in the Scriptures than the fact that the theatre of Christ's future action and work will be this earth, where his enemies are.

Some one visiting the studio of an artist observed some highly colored stones lying on his table. When asked why he had these stones always before him, the artist said it was to keep his eye up to tone. For the same reason we need to keep before us always high ideals of life. Otherwise our minds are apt to drift away from the things that are best. Some one says that the little sentence, "That will do" has done more harm than any other in the English language. Being satisfied with the thing that merely "will do" is fatal to doing our best. It is well, therefore, to have our pure mind continually stirred up by way of remembrance "lest we forget."

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 8, 1908.

SISTER M. A. Woodward is announced to preach for the Plymouth Church Sunday July 12, at the usual hours.

BROTHER Winse called on us Monday morning on his way home from his visit with the North Salem Church. He reports having had good audiences and attention.

WE request Brother Brenner to answer the questions he asks in a short article in this issue entitled "Who will help us?" We feel sure as he expresses himself, that if ruth be harmonized without trouble, and as he has evidently studied the matter himself, we ask him to give us an explanation.

WE have lately written a number of letters to some of our patrons who are affected by the new postal laws. We trust they will each see the importance of immediately replying to us, so that all trouble can be saved. If in any case there is an error, we shall be very glad to have it pointed out, so that it can be corrected.

THAT the "entente cordiale" entered into by Russia and Japan is getting weaker, and showing signs of coming to an end, will be seen in the following dispatch from Harbin, dated July 4: In well informed circles in Harbin it is believed the Russo-Japanese entente in the matter of Manchuria is weakening and that Russia eventually will throw in her lot with China and America. Various circumstances lead to this conviction, but chief among them is the fact that following the recent mission to St. Petersburg of Baron Goto, president of the South Manchurian railway, the Japanese spent several weeks in negotiations with Russia in Harbin with the object of obtaining the co-operation of Russia in the matter of the mainland railroad line. These negotiations resulted in total failure, and as one result the reported agreement in ... co-operation an... Petersburg gov... ...ference in ... having here with ... able to reach an understanding with Russia. Russia is sending into Harbin coolies and engineers to push the construction of the Amur railroad. The establishment of a Russian municipality in Harbin is held in abeyance.

Report of Labor.

We left our home at Salem, Ohio, June 12, on an evangelizing trip. We stopped the first evening with our daughter who lives near Mount Vernon, our former home. The next day we journeyed to Springfield and had the pleasure of spending a night and part of a day with Brother and Sister David Beck. On the next day we continued our journey to Troy, O., where we were met by Bro. Clyde Pearson, whose home is near the Brush Creek church. We spoke for the ecclesia morning and evening. This ecclesia was founded by our dear Bro. J. F. Wagoner nearly 40 years ago. There are some here who are keeping their lamps burning. Some I fear will need oil when the Bridegroom comes. It was thought best not to continue the meetings during the week owing to the busy times this being a farming community. We remained part of the week and visited with them.

Our next stop was with Bro. and Sister Peter Overholser near Springfield. If you should have an occasion to pass this way do not fail to call as they always keep their lamps trimmed and burning. You will not only go away refreshed physically but spiritually. On the following first day we spoke for the Springfield ecclesia. After morning services we all adjourned to one of the city parks with well filled baskets and replenished the physical nature. We spent nine months of last year with these dear brothers and sisters and can testify of their zeal for godliness and that better part that our Master commended in Mary. On the following day we went to Dayton, Ohio. We were met here by Mrs. Robison.

This meeting had been arranged by Sister Smith who resides here. We remained during the week and spoke to small audiences. We trust that some good was done in the interest of the truth. We find it here as in other places that the amusements are more interesting to listen to than Bible truths. We bid Sister Smith good and continued our journey to Springfield. Sister Smith is isolated but you will find her always interested in gospel truth.

Arrangements had been made to spend the following first day the 28th, with Bro. and Sister N. S. Westfall's who live six miles northeast of Troy and about 10 miles from Springfield. O. About twenty of the Springfield ecclesia were met at Casstown and conveyed to their home 1 miles in the country. This brother and sister have a beautiful home in which we spent a very enjoyable day. All agreeing that it was "a feast of fat things." We held two services one in the morning in which we "broke bread." In the afternoon we held a social meeting in which every one took a part. It was a day long to be remembered. One aged sister said it was a foretaste of our enjoyment in the kingdom of God. We bid farewell to our dear Bro. and Sister Westfall and returned to Springfield in the evening.

Monday morning found us again on our way to Newark, Ohio, to visit a few days with our children. Next we journeyed to Mt. Vernon. Here we met by previous arrangements Mrs. Wm. McWilliams and daughter Mrs. Maud Royston. These two worthy persons had been led to believe the truth through the efforts of Sister Peter Overholser who never loses an opportunity to preach the gospel to aliens. This dear sister never meets a stranger without presenting to them the beauties of the kingdom age. We had the pleasure of helping those anxious ones to put on the sin covering name of Jesus the Christ. There are very few whom it has been our privilege to immerse who have been so serious. Having never heard a gospel sermon preached, yet they were intelligent believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. These two worthy sisters came twenty miles to obey the gospel. I now have the pleasure of introducing to those of like precious faith Sisters McWilliams and Royston. May our heavenly Father keep them as precious jewels. Sister McWilliam's brother whose name we have forgotten accompanied them and is very intelligent in the Scriptures. Our wish is that he may not put off too long the opportunity of obeying the gospel of Christ, which Paul says is the power of God unto salvation to every one who believes. We bid these dear ones good by and continued our journey the next day, arriving at our home after an absence of three weeks. The indications are that our Lord will not delay his coming very long. If we fall asleep we are assured by Christ's resurrection that we shall be immortalized in the resurrection. Our prayer is that all whom our Father has called may strive earnestly to enter in at the strait gate.

Yours in the hope of eternal life.

Confusion. No. 2.

In my first article I come to the notice of the wounding of one of the heads of the leopard beast. Rev xiii 3. After the description of the symbol, the wounding of its head is the first event noted. Now is it not confusion to say that the wound was inflicted by Napoleon Bonapart in A. D. 1798, by taking the Pope a prisoner as taught by Seventh Day Adventists" See Thoughts on the Revelations by Uriah Smith on chapter xiii. p 235. The Papacy is not one of the seven heads of the symbol. This fact will appear if we notice that John says "five are fallen and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh, he must continue a short space." This testimony excludes the possibility of the Papacy being one of the seven heads. Five were already fallen, one the imperial was then present, the other not yet come, and when he did come he was of short duration, whereas the Papacy has existed longer than all the heads combined. According to the testimony the heads are successive forms of the Roman government; and history confirms this fact. Prophecy and history points to the fact that it was the imperial head that was wounded by the repeated hard blows of the sword of the northern invaders in the fourth and fifth centuries. The wounding of the imperial Roman head is an important event in the history of the world, it being symbolized by the sounding of the first four trumpets of chapter viii. The names of the actors in this war were a terror to the Roman world. After the death of the Emperor Theodosius in January 395 A. D. "Before he ex." of the winter the Goths were in arms against the empire under their leader Alaric; followed by Genseric and Attilla, and in A. D. 476 Odoacer became king of Italy. The imperial head of the empire had now received the deadly wound by the sword of the invaders; but life lingered in the empire under the exarchs of Ravenna, and finally was revived or healed under the help of the emperor of the east, and by the ruling power of the Papacy.

By reference to verse 14 of chapter xvii we learn that the image is made to the head that received the wound by a sword. Now that image must of necessity contain the mark of the beast to whom the image is made, for without the mark it would be an image or likeness, the mark being the most prominent feature of the power indicated. In looking for evidence to identify the mark we must not say as Seventh Day Adventists do, "that Rome was Pagan until it was Papal." The error of this position will appear when we enquire as to the time when Rome Pagan became Christian. Gibbon Vol. III. chapter 28, p 131 places the final destruction of Paganism at from 378 395 or some 60 years after the conversion of Constantine. Now how long after this date until the rise of the Papacy as a civil power to be noted in the prophecy, and in history. Seventh Day Adventists commence the 1260 years allotted to the Papacy in 538 A. D., ending in 1798. We ask what about the 143 years after the fall of Paganism before the rise of the Papacy? Many place the commencement of the Papacy in 510, seventy-two years later than the 538. It seems that 510 is the time because in A. D. 1870 the Papacy lost he civil power.

In the chapter we are considering, Rev. xiii. we find events that are placed between the rise of the leopard beast and the giving of the blasphemous mouth to the beast; that this mouth of verse 5 is the Papacy will be seen by comparing the acts of the beast after he receives the mouth, with the acts of the eleventh horn of Dan vii. to the period between the passing of Paganism and the giving of the mouth to the beast we must look for the mark of the beast, that is between the years 395 and 510 A. D. It is generally known that at the council of Nice A. D. 325 Arianism was condemned and the Divinity of Christ affirmed, but it remained for the Council assembled by the Emperor Theodosius in 381, at Constantinople, to finish the work.

"A hundred and fifty bishops, who were present at this Council, gave the finishing touch to what the Council of Nice had left imperfect: and fixed in a full and determined manner, the doctrine of three persons in one God, which is still received among the generality of Christians. This venerable assembly did not stop here; they branded with infamy all the errors, and set a mark of execration upon all the heresies that were hitherto known." Mosheim Church History. p. 105. One more extract will be ample to identify the mark. "Theodosius was the first of the emperors baptized in the true faith of the Trinity. .....As the Emperor ascended from the holy font, still glowing with the warm feelings of regeneration, he dictated a solemn edict, which proclaimed his own faith, and prescribed the religion of his subjects. "It is our pleasure (such is the imperial style) that all the nations, which are governed by our clemency and moderation, should steadfastly adhere to the religion which was taught by St. Peter to the Romans; which faithful tradition has preserved; and which is now professed by the pontiff Damasus, and by Peter, Bishop of Alexandria, a man of Apostolic holiness. According to the discipline of the Apostles, and the doctrine of the gospel, let us believe the sole deity of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, under an equal majesty, and a pious Trinity. We authorize the followers of this doctrine to assume the title of Catholic Christians; and we judge, that all others are extravagant mad men, we brand them with the infamous name of heretics; and declare that their conventicles shall no longer usurp the respectable appellation of churches. Besides the condemnation of divine justice, they must expect to suffer the severe penalties, which our authority, guided by divine wisdom shall think proper to inflict upon them. Gibbon Vol III. p 81." Here we find what the mark of the beast is clearly defined, and that is the doctrine of the Trinity. The beast represents the empire. The emperor is the mouth of the empire. He says, "We authorize the followers of this doctrine to assume the title of Catholic Christians.....All others we brand with the infamous name of heretics. This doctrine is the mark that indicates the difference between the Catholic Christian and the infamous heretics." Under this law the first martyrs suffered by the hands of Catholic Christians. Gib. Vol. III. p. 93-4. Disbelief of this doctrine caused the death of M. Servetus at Geneva at the hands of J. Calvin.

At the Breaking of Bread.

ZECH. XIV. 9.

And the Lord shall be king over all the earth, in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name One. There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the Lord knoweth them that are his. And let every one that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity. Repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins. For as many as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ and if we be Christ's then are we Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. And this is the promise he hath promised us even eternal life. When Christ who is our life shall appear then shall we also appear with him in glory. For we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. Then suffer we shall also reign with him. For the Lord shall comfort Zion. The redeemed of the Lord shall return and come with singing unto Zion, and everlasting joy shall be upon their head, they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and mourning shall flee away. Break forth into joy, sing together ye waste places of Jerusalem. For yet a little while and he that shall come will come and will not tarry. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection, on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. For the law shall go forth from Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem, when the Lord shall be king over all the earth.

BETSEY BURTON.

Japan Makes Innovations in Forest Management.

Japan is the only government in the world which takes upon itself the working of its lumber business, according to Consul General Henry H. Miller, of Yokohama, in a report in which he quotes the director of the Japanese Forest Bureau.

The Mikado's government has set apart a quarter of a million dollars to build sawmills and lumber roads, manufacture lumber in remote districts, and put it on the market. Except railroad ties for Manchuria roads, the Japanese government exports no timber. It is all needed at home.

Many governments in different parts of the world own forests, but, as a rule, the timber is sold where it stands, and the buyer cuts and markets it. That is the way it is done in the National Forests of this country. The Japanese government, however, proposes to carry on all parts of the work, from planting the trees to selling the lumber after it has been manufactured. The report says:

"Recently an official in the department of agriculture and commerce was sent to the United States, and others to Europe for the inspection of the timber trade and forestry administration. A commission was also sent to India for the same purpose. A specialist on forestry in the same department is to be sent to South America shortly on a similar errand. The latter will thoroughly study the rubber plantations, and, if possible, bring back roots or seeds for planting on the Bonins and Luchu groups.

"The Japanese department of agriculture and commerce, which established a saw mill in Akita perfecture in 1906, making a grant of $100,000 in that year and $150,000 in 1907 to develop the business, has obtained a vote of $150,000 toward the fund for the extension of the lumber business, and new government mills are to be established in Nagano and Aomori perfectures. Before the end of this year there will be nine timber mills in all in Akita, Aomori, Miyagi, and Kumamoto perfectures, all worked by the government. In many forests reserved by the government there is a very heavy supply of timber, but these forests are remote from railways, rivers, or sea ports, and much expenditure is necessary for opening roads or constructing other means of transport in order to make such timber available.

District forestry offices will, however, not work mills regardless of profit, as strong competition is going on among them. It is stated that the Government mills will only supply their products to merchants in Japan, and the works are not progressed to such a stage that the Government can export direct. So far, the export of timber by the Government mills has been confined to supplying sleepers to the South Manchurian Railway Company."

The Praise of Men.

"They loved the praise of men more than the praise of God." But what avails the praise of men? These men themselves must meet their Judge, and hear their doom, and stand condemned or acquitted in his presence. How light is the judgment of men; men who are ignorant of facts, illogical in reasoning, unsound in conclusions; how little weight can be attached to their decisions. And yet how many there are whose whole anxiety is, that they may win the applause and approval of men. If men reproach them, they are alarmed. If men applaud them they are gratified.

Many persons seem more anxious to win the approval of other men, than they are to win the approval of their own hearts. They care less for the reproach of conscience which thunders within their breasts, than they do for the plaudits of men, who do not know them as they are, and who cannot understand their real nature.

It is a great thing for a man to have "always a conscience void of offence," it is a glorious thing for a man to know that his ways please God; and it is a sad thing for one to have the approval of the world, while he has condemnation in his own heart, and the more solemn condemnation of the living God recorded against him on high.

Let us set ourselves right with God, however we may stand in the eyes of the world.—Christian.

Better Not.

It is to save the world from being a cemetery and life a funeral procession that we say with emphasis to young people, "better not" drink wine at all; and "better not" do several other things simply because "society" demands that you do them. Be on the lookout, in all simple and apparently harmless things in Society, for the force back of and within them, and look out also for the institutions of which they are a part.....

The danger of the church today is from "society." The savage beasts of the arena may not be ready to leap from their dens upon loyal followers of Jesus Christ, who would meet death rather than deny their Master. But the scorn, the bias, the social "cut," are the means sometimes now employed by the same tempting and malicious spirit of the world to compel Christians to surrender their principles and convictions at the demand of "the prince of the power of the air." Let us stand by our principles. Let us follow conscience, and not fashion; Christ, and not the world.—J. H. Vincent.

Just Pleasantness.

"Why not do it pleasantly, since you are going to do it some way," said the nurse to the novice. "If the patient asks you for a drink of water when you can't give it, don't say sharply, 'I can't stop now, but quietly 'I'll get it as soon as I can.' Impatience in a sick person may result seriously, and no matter how tired you are, you must be pleasant." This is a lesson which a nurse must learn, and well it would be were it as severely enforced in all work. Most of us perform obvious duties but all pathetic the irksomeness with complaints. We allow ourselves the most leniency in this regard in the matter of family chores. The mother intends to mend the torn frock, the father to forgive the son's wrong doing, the boy to run the errand, the girl to give up a forbidden pleasure—but each is tempted to grease the hardness of the job with indignation. Pleasantness is a better lubricator. When it is not so much a duty to be performed as a kindness to be bestowed, care is still necessary to allow no irritation to creep into the tone. A request curtly acquiesced in leaves a hurt; a favor ungraciously granted loses its sweet flavor. Nothing is gained and much is lost by impatience; nothing is lost and much is gained by pleasantness.—Congregationalist and Christian World.

Golden Text. "Only fear the Lord and serve him in truth with all your heart, for consider how great things he has done for you." 1 Sam. xii. 24.

In the two last lessons we learned that Israel demanded a king, and Saul was chosen.

The Lord chose and appointed Saul. The people cast lots. It fell on Saul. They were well pleased with him. It was just and right that the Lord should have the first choice of a king, because the kingdom was his.

"Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests." Exodus xix. 5, 6.

While they were in duty bound to uphold and obey their king in all lawful commands, they were not to fall nor alter in their obedience to God. They and their king were equally responsible to the Lord. They knew it was wicked to reject God and ask for a king. This wickedness was intensified after Samuel told what a king would exact of them. They had despised the words of the Lord from Samuel saying, "Nay, but we will have a king over us," 1 Sam. viii. 19. That they might in some measure understand how stubborn and wicked they were, the Lord, in answer to Samuel sent thunder and rain. This was as unknown in harvest time in Canaan, as snow in summer. Prov. xxvi. 1. This most wonderful demonstration could only be by the power of God. It was convincing and convicting. Israel acknowledged their guilt. They realized, that of all their sins, this rebellious rejection of God as their leader, counsellor, provider, protector and Savior "That he should not reign over them," 1 Sam viii 7, and instead demand a king—was the greatest and they had made themselves liable to the law of sickness, disease and death. Lev. xxvi. 14-38." However they had faith that God would hear the prayer of Samuel on their behalf. It is a great and blessed privilege to pray to God and be heard and accepted. This favor is granted only to the few faithful. A notable instance is Job. He had three very "religious" friends. God was displeased with what they had said to Job concerning him. The Lord would not hear them. "My servant Job shall pray for you" Job xlii. 7-10." The man born blind whom Jesus cured, in testifying before the Pharisees in behalf of Jesus, said "We know that God does not hear sinners." John ix. 31. Samuel assures them they have nothing to fear from now on if they and their king will serve and obey the Lord with all their heart.

The Lord had covenanted with Abram to give the land of Canaan to his seed—the Israelites—forever. Gen. xii. 7; xv. 18. He could not—for his name's sake utterly forsake them. "Though I make a full end of all nations—yet will I not make a full end of thee—Israel." Jer. xxx. 10, 11.

Samuel was the prophet of the Lord to Israel, they all knew it. 1 Sam. iii. 20. It was his duty, much more, his heartfelt desire and pleasure to pray for his people Israel, and to teach them the right way. He could not teach them, nor pray for them unless they, from the heart, desired and determined to reverence and obey the Lord. "Pray not thou for this people.....I will not hear thee." Jer. vii. 16. The Lord had brought Israel out of the house of bondage. Exod. xx. 2. They had seen his glory and his miracles. Num. xiv. 22. He had not failed in one thing he had promised, Josh. xxiii. 14. Israel had willfully failed time and time again. God has not done the same things for us—Gentiles—but he has done that which equals any and all he did for Israel. He gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." John iii. 16. That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ, Gal. iii. 14.

There is now no difference between the Jew and the Gentile, Rom. x. 9-13. As with the Jew, so with the Gentile. The favor of God has been gladly accepted, obeyed and cherished by the few. The many are willingly ignorant, therefore the many shall be destroyed when the Lord comes. 2 Thess. i. 7-10. May the Lord find us and reckon us among "the little flock."

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

If We Know.

Could we but draw the curtains
That surround each other's lives,
See the naked heart and spirit,
Know what spur the action gives,
Often we should find it better,
Purer than we judge we should;
We should love each other better
If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motives,
See the good and bad within,
Often we should love the sinner,
All the while we hate the sin;
Could we know the powers working
To o'erthrow integrity;
We should judge each other's errors
With more patient charity.

If we knew the cares and trials,
Knew the efforts all in vain,
And the bitter disappointment—
Understood the loss and gain—
Would the grim, eternal roughness
Seem, I wonder, just the same?
Should we help, where now we hinder?
Should we pity where we blame?

Ah! we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not life's hidden force,
Knowing not the fount of action
Is long curbed in its source,
Seeing not amid the cold
All the golden grains of good—
Oh! we'd love each other better
If we only understood.

A woman without religion is like a flower without fragrance—beautiful perhaps, but disappointing.

At the close of prayer we can only say as our Savior said, "Thy will be done."—C. W. Tomkins.

"I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world." Go into the world all you please, my brother, but be careful and not let the world get into you.

"Bible promises are like the beams of the sun, which shine as freely in at the window of the poor man's cottage as the rich man's palace."

Sunday, June 28, was a day of great gladness for the people of God in Oregon, Ill. In the morning before we met at the Lord's table to partake of the elements of Christ's dying love, we had the pleasure of helping two [illegible] to become "dead to sin" in baptism, them into the Lord's death; [illegible], Miss Gertrude Sigler, of Oregon, formerly Methodist, and Mr. Earl Gesin, of Forreston, Ill., formerly neutral. Both candidates had studied the truth carefully for some time, and they went into the water thoroughly instructed in the way of righteousness. At the breaking of bread service, Brother Lindsay gave them the right hand of fellowship, and now the church prays that our new Brother and Sister may successfully run the race for eternal life, and be sharers of glory with the redeemed when the Lord comes.

A Few Plain Words.

We occasionally get a paper with the word "Christian" printed in large letters on the first page as part of its name. The editor is an infidel (but for the sake of euphony perhaps we had better call him a "Higher Critic") and in several issues of his paper he has been giving his readers a disquisition on the unreliability of the Scriptures. To quote a few of his statements and affirmations he allows his contributors to make: "God never gave any inspired canon of books, never gave any inspired translation of the Bible." I see. Our Bible is not inspired either in the selection of books or in the subject-matter of the books themselves. Do you have anything more to say? "The King James version is convicted of 20,000 errors by the revisers." Very comforting; go on. "Tischendorf, when copying the Sinaitic manuscript, noted 12,000 variations in the readings from other manuscripts." Now are you through? "The translator and scholar Griesbach collected 150,000 different readings in all the different manuscripts of the New Testament." Enough.

Now reader, just let the roar of the "20,000 errors", "12,000 variations" and "150,000 different reading" subside; we desire to have it perfectly calm while we give our critic a "few plain words". Now my dear man, if the Bible is untrue, as you try harder than Ingersoll ever did to make out; if it is a deception and humbug, we who believe in it with an unshakable faith are just as well off as you are. You make out the Bible to be a human production, and for this reason it is unreliable; all other books are no more than human, and therefore erratic; and finally, you are human yourself, and not to be trusted! Now where are we? or rather, Where are you? We who stick to God's word with the adhesiveness of a postage stamp to a letter (Psa cxix 31), have nothing to lose, if the Bible is false; we are in no worse plight than you are. Why then, since you have no benefit to confer on us, Oh why don't you let us alone? But on the other hand, if God's word is so, woe unto you men who have traduced and trailed it in the dust!

A few more plain words. By reading your works, both standard and periodical, I learn that you believe in baptism, the kingdom of God, resurrection, etc. You ought to be ashamed of such rank inconsistency. There are not many texts in the Bible that mention baptism; and since there are "20,000 errors" in the Bible, I should think you would have double on the subject. Had it ever occurred to you that possibly all the texts on baptism in the Bible were spurious, having been interpolated—put in maybe by the authority of the Pope? It would be just like the Pope to do that. Then it does not look well for you to believe in the kingdom of God. Of course the Bible talks about the kingdom, but remember there are "12,000 variations"—you would be foolish to pin your faith to such a bundle of uncertainty. And why in the name of all that is reasonable do you believe in the resurrection? Why, this is simply past understanding! The Bible teaches a resurrection, certainly. But that is no reason why you should believe it. There are "150,000 different readings" of the Bible, remember, and you cannot, if your life depended on it, tell the true "reading" from the false one. I should think that resurrection, like Christ's divine begettal, would smack too much of the miraculous for you to accept. Every text in the Bible that teaches a resurrection might be spurious. If the Bible has "20,000 errors", "12,000 variations" and "150,000 different readings", it is not as reliable as an almanac. My dear sir, you have made void the word of God by your traditions". Matt xv 6 You have slapped the word of Jehovah at mendacity, inspiration, and even its truthfulness—a merely human production.

Almanacs hit or miss in forecasting the weather, but even in an almanac you could not find "20,000 errors". After you have thus dishonored God and degraded his word lower than the most inveterate skeptic would, for the infidel only claims about "144 contradictions" in the Bible; you "20,000"! Then for you to tell us that you believe this and that! Shame on you! Do you say, "Don't talk so plain?" Then remove the cause. We do not quarrel with you about your convictions. If you honestly have doubts about the inspirational integrity of God's word, we will respect your unbelief and give you all the liberty you want. But do not try to blow hot and cold at the same time. Do not pretend that you are a believer when you are an unbeliever. Do not pose as a Christian when you are an infidel. Remove your false face; let us see you as you are. Then all men will respect your convictions, though they are wrong. But if you have skeptical ideas and claim to represent the Church of God, you are guilty of duplicity, and you will receive condign condemnation from all good men.

The Rich Man and the Poor Beggar.

As suggested in The Restitution of May 27, 1908, that some one write on this subject, we herewith give our humble effort.

In Luke xv. 1, Jesus begins his series of parables ending with the rich man and the poor beggar, while only in the first does he say it is a parable. When asked why he spoke to them in parables, he replied, "To you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given." "Now all the publicans and sinners were drawing near unto him for to hear him, and both the pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." Now the pharisees were rich and believers in a resurrection, and in angel, and spirit, and after death the judgment.

There were many poor beggars in their country living on the crumbs of the rich man. And Jesus told the Pharisees that the publicans and harlots would go into the kingdom of heaven before them. In Luke xviii. 24, Jesus said, "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God. For it is easier for a camel to enter in through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. The pharisees understood that Jesus was referring to them when he said, The rich man died, was buried and in hades he lifted up his eyes being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. He was reclining at supper on the bosom of Abraham, as John did on the bosom of Jesus, and as was the custom in those days, to recline at meals. "And I say unto you, (said Jesus in Matt. viii. 11,) that many shall come from the east and the west and shall recline with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven: but the sons of the kingdom shall be cast forth into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." Also, in Luke xiii. 28, "There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves cast forth without."

So our friends in the flesh who would take away from Jesus the glory of his eternal, which cost him his dreadful suffering and death on the cross to accomplish; and would make an eternal, had better be careful, lest they find themselves in the hades condition when Jesus comes. For if any gospel is hidden, it is hidden to those who are perishing. The heavenly condition, and the outcast condition of these two classes are on the earth, whether they occur immediately after death or after the coming of our Lord at the resurrection of Israel. We can not go much further for the statement contains an allegory, which it is not given for the blind to see.

Hades, seems to be a condition of all those who have never come from under the death penalty, whether dead or alive. For God, who maketh alive the dead, speaketh of those things that are not as though they were, and Jesus' words are the same spirit and life. "My words shall judge you in that day." Agree with thine adversary quickly, while thou art with him in the way; lest haply the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and he to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence till thou hast paid the last farthing." So we see by obedience to the law in that day it is possible to get out some time, while in the so-called orthodox hades, there is no escape.

In Luke xii. 47, we read, "And that servant which knew his lord's will, and made not ready, nor did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes; but he that knew it not and did things worthy of stripes shall be beaten with few." This is surely a just judgment, which a just judge would render. That the just and unjust will arise for judgment is certain, and as we see a difference in judgment and punishment so we can show great difference in glory and rewards.

E. D. McGuire.

P. S. Our friends refer us to the statement in Revelation xiv. where the smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever. Now smoke is the evidence of combustion, not of something burning but of something having been consumed. It is a sign to the eye of the destruction of the wicked. So God has ordained that the awful effect of sin shall never be forgotten from the ages unto the ages. The remembrance of sin in the destruction of the wicked shall be a sign, as the rainbow is now a sign of the destruction of the old world by water, as well as a promise that it will never be repeated.—E. D. M.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

I have often wished that I understood Isa vii 14-16 better, and now that I have the opportunity for the small sum of five cents, I would do without my meals for a day rather than do without your booklet. [No need to make such a sacrifice, Sister Nell, as the booklet is sent free to those who ask for it. Our sister writes that she is 72 years old.—Editor.]

Waiting to see the king in his beauty.

Mrs. R. A. Neff.

Brother Huggins:

I am sending for tracts to different ones, trying to find some free from error to hand out to learners to help them along. Brother Jolslin's tracts are good. I am in a new field—the kingdom of God has never been heard here. A few are anxious for reading matter. Some leaflets sent out by some who claim to be in the faith I cannot give out, for they are misleading. I am as charitable as I can be and serve God. I do not believe in Josephism, and cannot tolerate literature upholding it. I do not believe in the observance of the sabbath God gave to the Jews thousands of years ago, for a certain work and purpose, to be wrought out through them. The sabbath, like many other types, has served its purpose. May God help all of this age to see where they belong.

Your sister in hope of immortality and a new home in the New Earth,

Mrs. C. McClelland.

The best tracts for distribution in a new field dealing specifically with the elementary principles of the gospel, are advertised in The Restitution under the heading, "Books and Tracts". Brother Joblin's "Popular Lectures" are also good. The soulflabby thing dubbed "charity" by some is simply Laodiceanism—a denial of the truth God has revealed in both doctrine and practice. There may be other good tracts other than I have named, but the authors have not sent us any copies, and we cannot recommend leaflets of any kind till we have read them and know that they are scriptural. We are today, as Paul was in his time, "in peril among false brethren". 2 Cor xi 26. The only safety from these perils is to have lots of "charity"—the kind that rejoices "in the truth" (1 Cor xiii 4, 6).

Gold Dust.

Faithfulness in little things is the best preparation for larger service and wider opportunities. Luke xvi 10.

"He is coming who loves God's crown of glory far more than crowns of gold."

The gratification which may be derived from revenge is but momentary, while the pleasure of forgiveness is everlasting.

We can help make people bright by our keenness, but we can never accomplish anything toward making people good except by our tenderness.

"If you cannot preach, then pray. If you cannot go, then give so that others may go. If you cannot sing then sympathize. But in any event, do not forget that Christ assigns by natural endowments to 'each one his work'."

The Work In Iowa.

When I last reported we were at Hudson with the tent, nine miles west of Waterloo. We continued our meetings at this point for three weeks. We were opposed all the time by the Baptist and German Baptist preachers; but after the Baptist minister took occasion to openly rebuke his members for attending our meetings, we had a pretty good attendance from that source. The last week of our meeting the attendance was indeed good, and we left Hudson with the good will of the people, and their acknowledgment that they had been benefitted a great deal. They assured us that when we came again we could depend on a better attendance. The man who let us have the ground for the tent would not take any rent, and told us any time we wanted to come back to Hudson we could have the ground free. He was glad we came to Hudson.

The more I work the more I am convinced that people must be educated into the gospel as much as error has been inculcated into people, that is the reason it takes so much time to get the error out of them before you can get anything else in them.

Last Friday, the 20th, we loaded our tent and had it hauled across the country to Laporte, 20 miles from Hudson, where we began a meeting on Tuesday evening. We had an audience of eight people in the tent and about sixteen on the outside ashamed to come in. Wednesday night we had seventeen; Thursday night, forty; on Friday and Saturday evenings about twenty-five on account of an approaching storm. Sunday we had a service at 3 P. M. We spoke on the subject of Holiness to a very attentive audience. One minister asked the man who rented us the ground for tent, What he let us fellows in for? There was no need, he said, of us coming here. It seems that the same spirit has taken hold of the churches that is in the business world; they would form a big trust if they had the power. We could not have gotten into Hudson if we had to depend on the church there to let us in. I mean the rulers in the church. They manifested the same disposition toward us as the rulers did towards Christ, and would have used us just the same way if they had the power. Is this one of the ancient spirits that comes out of the mouth of the false prophet that goes out to deceive all the nations of the earth? It is the same kind of a spirit that his hatred.—Christian Register.

dominates all kinds of business—that is, squeeze out the little fellow.

Now a question, Can a man be a true Christian and not have love in his own home? and does God dwell in a temple that is unclean?

Scripture Canon.

We have a little more to say upon this subject. Believing this subject is interesting to our readers as well as to ourselves, we undertook what we have presented and on the statement that many of us have seen that the Scripture Canon rested on its establishment at the Council of Nice, A. D. 325, by the superstition of the books arranging themselves, the genuine and uninspired each by themselves, stated by a historian, John Pappus, we wanted the historic citation for it. At the same time we saw the statement in The Restitution of May 20, that John Pappus was a writer of the 16th century, we wanted to know where to find the statement, so wrote to the editor of that department of The Restitution for the evidence. He, Robert G. Huggins, was away from home at the time, so the delay. He replied that after much searching he found this reference to Pappus in "Lippincott's Pronouncing Biographical Dictionary, by Joseph Thomas, Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1885, page 1888." The biographical reference is: "Johann Pappus, a Lutheran minister and writer, born at Lindau, on Lake Constance, in 1540. He preached at Strasburg. Died 1610." Instead of being a historian of the time of the Council of Nice he was a minister and writer shortly after the Reformation of the 16th century, about 1250 years later, saying he copied the statement from an old Greek manuscript.

We love Bible history. We love the history of the Bible, and thought to present something of the history of the manuscripts from which our translations are made, which we call the "original." Also of the different English translations made. The fixing of the Scripture canon belongs to history, and this was more of a study than we expected and more difficult to find; some might say because of our ignorance of the evidence of its establishment. Howbeit, a resort to our friends has brought it out, and we have given it to our readers. As we have stated earlier in our investigation, the canon was more the result of the public opinion of the people than of any church council, which public opinion was then reduced to a decree or declaration of council, at Laodicea in A. D. 367. But then, many of us had seen the statement that the Scripture canon was fixed at the Council of Nice in A. D. 325, and that Catholic superstition was so great that the people were made to believe that the books arranged themselves. And, wanting evidence for everything, we wanted to know where to find it. We thought we might find it ourself. While hunting for it there was published the statement in The Restitution of May 20, as we have stated. Then, of course, we wanted to know in what encyclopedia we might find it, so we give it to our readers.

On the comparison of original manuscripts we find a general agreement of books and doctrinal authority, the variations being slight. So we conclude that our revelation from God stands on a firm basis. We are interested in the finding of new manuscripts, and we look anxiously to see any statement of variation from the others. The latest "finds" show no disagreement in the character and make up of the sacred records. We well remember when the finding of the Sinaitic manuscript was made by Tischendorf in 1859 and published to the world; now it is considered the oldest and is as much valued as the celebrated Vatican manuscript. Our examination causes us to love our Bible more, and to more highly esteem the foundation on which it rests. Then from the Bible we look to the God of the Bible and to the hope begotten within us by the Word, and to the future inheritance of the redeemed family of man, and we feel the importance of trusting in the Savior and Redeemer of men, the Son of God.—Jacob Brinkerhoff in Bible Advocate.

When a man hates the church, the Bible and Christianity, the best way to get at his mind and motives is not to argue with him, but to inquire into his history. Some grievous wrong done to him or his family will commonly be found to lie at the root of

Keep Your Distance.

Next to sinning itself, is going needlessly close to sin. Electricity is not the only force that sometimes works by induction, leaping across space and seriously interfering with currents that it was meant to have nothing to do with. Evil is as expert as electricity at that feat. Therefore the question that Robert E. Speer put to the young people has a very practical value: "How wide is the margin between us and evil?" No man can afford to let that margin grow narrow. It is not a sign of strength, but of weakness, to dally with temptation. The man who might seem to be least endangered by a narrow margin there always has the widest margin, and he who foolishly dares to approach the borderline is the man who can least afford to.—S. S. TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. H. WILSON.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope

W. H. WILSON.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T. J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist: third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian. Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived." Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations a few infidels, and one Christian to earlier, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 305 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2 50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of these small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Find Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. and Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in case everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected these important points—did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, has failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Good News for You.

A message of wonderful beauty,
A message of truth and of light,
A message of love and of duty,
Has come and dispelled all my night.

The Savior is coming in glory—
He stands even now at the door—
I would that this wonderful story
Might gladden your heart evermore.

He's coming with glory supernal
To bring every man his reward,
A place in that kingdom eternal;
Be ready to welcome your Lord.

Read, ponder, the Savior's own warning,
The signs he has given to men;
Though many salvation are scorning,
These show he is coming again.

The signs in the heavens are telling,—
In sun, in moon, and in stars.
Earth's armies to battle are swelling
For bloodshed, destruction, and wars.

Formality, creed, and profession,
Impurity, squalor, and crime,
Distress of the nations, oppression
Infidelity, hatred, and crime.

Though these fill the earth to o'erflowing,
Look up, for redemption is near:
To all the glad gospel is going;
His footsteps even now we may hear.

Salvation. No. 6.

THE SECOND COMING.

Our Lord did not go away to remain forever. Eternal absence from the earth is not in the purpose of God. He who walked the earth in humility, will at no very distant day sway the sceptre as a king on the earth. That second personal coming as an event lies between him as now exalted, and his future kingdom. He must come in order to reign where his reign is absolutely needed. He must come, in order to raise the dead, for the t vo events occur together at the same epoch of time.

It is not in the power of language to set forth in full measure the importance of the event. All depends upon his coming. It is so arranged in the divine plan. What marvelous things cluster about it! What scenes surpassing fable follow it in the great drama of redemption! There will be miracles wrought such as man never witnessed—they will be on a scale so great. May it be the happy lot of the writer and reader to witness, as far as need be, share in the wonders of that age.

The believer's hope centers in that grand event, and not in the exit of an immortal soul from the body at the moment of death, and its flight to heaven as popularly held. When Paul states what the grace of God brings, and what it teaches, he then adds these words, "Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and Savior Jesus Christ." Ti. ii 12, 13. The practice of self-denial and of godly living is encouraged by the prospect of our Lord's appearing and glory, in which glory the faithful believer is to share. Under sufferings endured patiently for Christ's sake the Christian was exhorted to rejoice in view of the revelation of his glory when the suffering one would be glad with exceeding joy. 2 Peter iv 13. The proof of our Lord's personal second coming is abundant and plain especially in the N. T. Scriptures. I shall not attempt to quote or even give references to all the passages on this subject. Will quote a few of the many. The first to which I will call attention now is Acts i 11, the language of the two angels, called men here. "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven, this same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." This assurance of return of the ascended Lord can mean nothing else than his personal coming. This was the only thing that could satisfy the mind and unite and sustain the hope of his disciples, who so reluctantly gave up his company and companionship. They gazed intently at his swiftly diminishing form; thus showing that the parting was painful. How different their feelings after hearing the promise of his return. They are willing to be separated for a time, being assured of the prospect of a union eternal—not at death; such a union is utterly barred out by the promise. If the hope of union at the moment of death had been thought true by these heavenly messengers, here was the supreme occasion for announcing it to these disciples, the most of whom had been told by their Master that death by cruel hands awaited them, under sentence of secular magistrates. Almost anyone, holding the common view would have comforted them with the nearer event of death as affording the propitious opportunity of joining their Master's company in heaven. But instead of this these bright or white apparelled men defer the realization of hope to the day of the Lord's return; be the interval between them and that event, long or short, across it they must look with the eye of faith; and so of every generation of well taught believers; each and all being enjoined by that same absent Lord, to take note of the signs of the times and to take heed to prophecy as a light shining in a dark place until the day dawn. 2 Pet i 19. This hope makes the study of prophecy both interesting and profitable. Every passage setting forth the doctrine our Lord's second coming, and the attitude of the Christian toward it, is a refutation of the doctrine of rewards at death. No one holding this latter view can reasonably and consistently care a fig for the Lord's coming and resurrection of the dead. He may make a pretense of believing both because he finds them facing him on the inspired page, and something must be done with the statements of both subjects. Some spiritualize the two classes of texts. This is a very difficult task for any man to set himself about with any prospect of success in making his theory look even plausible. The question will keep constantly recurring, Why are there so many references to the event of the Lord's coming, and why do the Scriptures treat it as an object of hope, of desire, and the church exhorted to put herself in readiness for it as though the destiny of her individual members would be settled by the event? Can anyone account for this if the case of each individual is settled and the reward entered on at the instant of death? Another question equally significant is, if death does so much for the Christian, why does not the bible talk in the same strain as the poets and theologians? A few examples will be sufficient to show the contrast between the Bible and human theories. Thus is the way the poet sings of death:

"In our great payday
The man buttoned rich and ripe,
(and it gives no more than was in Edenbut)
The King of Terrors is the Prince of Peace."

So wrote young in his Night Thoughts. Paul calls death an enemy. "That is not death," says Athanasius, "that beholdeth the righteous, but a translation; for they are translated out of the world into everlasting rest and as a man would go out of a prison, so do the saints go out of this troublesome life into those good things that are prepared for them."

Again the poet sings:

Death is the season of life.
Were death denied, your sun would have its vale.
Were death denied, fire would not be fire;
Were death denied, even hope would wish to die.

One poet wrote, "There is no death what seems so is but transition."

The great Ambrose of Milan tells us that death "is but a passage made from corruption to incorruption, from trouble to tranquility." Ambrose affirmed in these words, of death, what Paul affirmed of the resurrection [illegible] death, i. e., has made a fool of [illegible] and preachers have [illegible] with each other in the matter [illegible] ifying death, and it is [illegible] to which how [illegible] orn the grim [illegible] of speech. Every effort [illegible] has drawn the attention of the [illegible] lar mind away from the grand [illegible] ural themes of our Lord's per[illegible] coming and the resurrection of [illegible] dead, and thus inspired a false hope in the bosoms of countless millions of poor ignorant souls. It is a question of the blind leading the blind and both falling in the ditch. It is strange that those who write and speak in the above strain do not see the inharmony between their theories and the Scriptures. I will now quote from the inspired Word: "For they themselves show unto us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus which delivered us from the wrath to come." 1 Thess i 9, 10. This passage shows plainly that the apostle, on introducing the faith in Thessalonica, preached the Lord's coming to these idolators and put them in the waiting posture for the event, like had been done at the very threshold of the gospel age as announced by the angels back at the ascension from Olivet. To wait for God's Son from heaven does not mean go to him in heaven, as is so nearly universally taught. In fact the passage refutes that notion and harmonizes with what Christ said to his disciples: "Little children, yet a little while I am with you. You shall seek me: and as I said to the Jews, whither I go ye can not come; so now I say to you." John xiii 33. "And no man hath ascended up to heaven but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven." John iii 13.

The doctrine of Christ's second coming was addressed to unbelievers by Paul, it being an important part of the gospel which they were to believe in order to remission of sins. The kingdom could not be preached and the coming of the king to take the throne be left out. His kingdom is to be on earth and not in heaven. The Scripture view of our Lord's advent accounts for the hope of a respectable body of Christians. They find the doctrine plainly stated in various connections with other important truths.

1. The kingdom. "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom, preach the word." 2 Tim iv 1. The judgment is also in the passage connected with the event.

2 Life. "When Christ who is our life shall appear then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Col iii 4.

3 Salvation. "And unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb ix 28.

4 The crown. "When the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." 1 Peter v 4. Crown of righteousness. 2 Tim iv 8.

5 Reward. "And behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev xxii 12. Matt xvi 27. These texts are sufficient to show what is grouped about that glorious event. Can those who glorify death as the all important event show from the Scriptures a similar grouping? Emphatically no. So the believer is exhorted to watch, to be ready, to wait for the event; to live in constant expectation of it; even to love his appearing as Paul puts it in his expectation of crowns for himself and others equally faithful.

JOHN L. WISE.

Selections.

I Will Give You Rest.

"Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For My yoke is easy and My burden is light."—Matt xi [illegible] parables this be[illegible] of speech. [illegible] le and burden upon you, [illegible] may find rest! What an ea[illegible]sd of way of finding rest, by adding to our burden the yoke and burden of another. It matters not how light it is, if it be a burden and if it be a yoke, it must surely entail labor, and not rest. There were two kinds of yokes known to the ancient world, both of them indicative of the most arduous toil. One was an instrument of timber fitted to the necks of oxen, by which they were yoked together at the plow; the other was a similar instrument of wood or iron fitted to the necks of slaves, at once a sign of bondage and as a means of yoking them together for work. From one or the other of these, the figure is most probably drawn; yet how very far these are from any suggestion of rest.

But what of the yoke and burden which Jesus had to bear, and which he invites you and me to share? Were these in reality light and easy? If so, then all the world will want to come to Jesus. Is it not so? Do not we all want an easy, comfortable religion—a religion which will not involve any expenditure of time, labor, or means? Is it not true that it is the most difficult thing in the world to find support in any of these respects for the Christian Religion—the Church of Christ? Do not we hear, on all sides, the cry for laborers, and for the means of supporting them?

Yes, I am afraid we all desire as easy a berth as possible, when it comes to spiritual matters—the service of our neighbors—the service of our Master. But is this what Jesus means in these beautiful words of our text, which have warmed the hearts, calmed the fears, and stirred into action—yea, stirred into action—myriads of those who have found this rest? Let us see. "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son hath not where to lay His head" (Matt viii 20—Luke ix 58). Was that an easy and a pleasant position to assume? Would anyone naturally associate himself with another, when it involved the taking of a position beneath that which the beasts of the field enjoyed? Did not our Lord suffer hunger and thirst and weariness, and contumely and untold agony in the service of humanity? Yes, and He had to suffer all this alone—not a single human heart could enter into His sorrow or sympathize with Him. Why, even under the shadow of Gethsemane, His own beloved disciples were quarreling amongst themselves as who should be greatest. How could they possibly sympathize with Jesus? These are some of the things which the burden and yoke of Jesus involved.

That Christ knew the disciples would have to endure such things is amply verified. "If any man will come after Me let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow Me." "Strait is the gate and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." "Behold I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves." (It was not to rest that they thus went forth! Nay, verily). "When they persecute you in one city, fly ye to another." "Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake; but he that endureth to the end shall be saved."

Such words are not suggestive of rest and ease, but of toil and turmoil. How could Jesus say, in the face of all this, "My yoke is easy and My burden is light," and invite the weary to come and find rest? Yet the statement is true, absolutely true, and the promise most certain of fulfillment. Not only is it true in this particular case, but a philosophy that is true to nature underlies the whole matter. Is it not almost an axiom amongst us that of all the vocations in the world, none is so wearisome as idleness? And the happiest, brightest, most restful spirit is that of the one whose every moment is filled up with noble work, with disinterested service. I believe the Lord is not here speaking exclusively of that "rest which remaineth for the people of God," but of a rest which He gives now, that we can enjoy now, and which will repay us to the full for every outlay of time, labor, or means. But the service must be a willing one, springing from a pure desire to honor and magnify Him; not from our own ambition, or a selfish desire for personal good. In meekness and lowliness of mind, we must seek, and even, if necessary, suffer for, the good of others. There is a hint of this even in our text. "Take my yoke upon you." Why? Because "I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." This is a spiritual matter, with spiritual results. Our Lord does not promise rest to our jaded bodies, but inward rest and inward peace, as the result of labor spiritually performed, as the outcome of meek and lowly hearts. Thinking not of our own dignity or high position, but esteeming others better than ourselves, we must humbly seek to be the servants of all.

These things are not easy. They do not appeal to the heart and mind of the natural man, and of ourselves we should never seek them, although we would fain obtain the rest and peace otherwise. But there is a copartnership in this matter that makes even these things easy, that makes the heaviest burden light. What was the answer of the Lord Jesus to the Apostle Paul's thrice repeated prayer that he might be freed from a grievous burden? Not the removal of it. Why? "Lest I should be exalted above measure"—lest I should lose that inward grace—a meek and lowly heart. "The Lord said unto me: 'My grace is sufficient for thee, for My strength is made perfect in weakness.'" What a remarkable thing it would be to suppose that the grace of this Almighty One should not be sufficient for a poor mortal creature—sufficient to make any yoke and burden light and easy! And so the same apostle could say in that beautiful 4th chapter of his Epistle to the Philippians, where he speaks of "yokefellows" and "fellow-laborers", and "women who labor with me in the Gospel," and so forth, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." It is the strength which we receive from Christ which makes our yoke and burden light and easy. Do not let us think that by becoming Christians we are going to be relieved from labor, that following Christ means peace and rest without service. It is a deadly thing to be idle in God's vineyard. Notice that the Apostle couples this co-partnery in labor with the very thought of our text: "And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus" (Phil iv 17). "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest.—R. Hill, in Messenger.

Do It Now.

These words are conspicuously posted over the office table of one of my successful friends, and in his workroom adjoining, one may see another sign reading, "Do it Now Avenue."

No wonder this friend is prosperous, and no wonder he is crowded with all the business he can attend to. He knows very well the worth of that little word, "now." There are hundreds who are robbing themselves of a prosperous future because they have not learned the value of "do it now."

An idle present makes an empty future; and he who hopes for a prosperous future should understand that he can have it only by a proper use of all the "nows." It was Cervantes who said, "By the street called By-and-by you reach the house called Never," and it might better be for all our work if we could always remember his words. There are too many who intend to do good sometime, but are doing nothing [illegible] it now. And he who fills his [illegible] with producing but good intent[illegible] would [illegible] way to do nothing [illegible]

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conference at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing: for we shall reap if we faint not.

We have lately written a number of letters to some of our patrons who are affected by the new postal laws. We trust they will each see the importance of immediately replying to us, so that all trouble can be saved. If in any case there is an error, we shall be very glad to have it pointed out, so that it can be corrected.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 15, 1908. NUMBER 27.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this and the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, accompanied by the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Brother J. L. Wines will be with the Plymouth Church next Sunday morning and evening

We hope all who receive letters concerning the new rules and regulations will give prompt attention to the call: as it is necessary to avoid trouble.

Sister M. A. Woodward was with the Church in Plymouth last Sunday, and preached two discourses. In the morning sermon it was shown that the elementary principles that make up a true Christian, are self-sacrifice, devotion, humility and prayer. That the exemplification and amplification of these fundamentals is necessary to the filling out of that character that will be acceptable to the Father, and constitute one a true man in Christ Jesus. In the evening the thought was "Have Faith in God." We have to be guarded against the open infidelity of our times, and against the workings of those would-be friends of God who are endeavoring to bolster up his cause by the aid of amusement annexes to churches, where games are taught that lead to gambling and other excesses. We are to have faith in God amid discouraging circumstances, when others are unfaithful. The worshipful life, the spiritual life, the prayerful life, is not the outgrowth, nor is it even aided by Higher Criticism, nor by the amusement attachments of the day. These do not inspire the hope that will carry us on to higher and better things. Only loving, trusting Faith in God, will satisfy our heavenly Father [illegible] for the inheritance when Jesus comes. [illegible] were most fitting [illegible] and all who listened [illegible] imbued with the [illegible]ed, certainly enjoyed [illegible] and were benefitted [illegible] the health of Bro. [illegible] uncertain just when [illegible] can visit us again, [illegible]ed to do so as soon [illegible] due notice will be given.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JULY 26.

SAUL REJECTED BY THE LORD. 1 SAM 15.

Golden Text—The Lord our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey. Josh xxiv 24.

Saul, the king of the kingdom of God, began well. The Lord was with him. Defeating the Ammonites he was then recognized by all Israel as their king. 1 Sam xi. This was confirmed in chapter 12. The Philistines came against Israel. The Hebrews fled in terror. Saul offered sacrifice. Samuel told him he had done a foolish thing, he had not obeyed the voice of the Lord, and the kingdom would not continue in his family. Chap 13. Saul next pronounced a curse that got the people in trouble, especially his son. Chap 14. Samuel reminded Saul that he was anointed king by order of the Lord, to whose word he should give strict attention. He then charged him, by the Word of the Lord, to go and utterly destroy Amalek, every Amalekite old and young, and every animal they owned. Because they had, without cause, tried to cut off Israel on their way to Canaan. For this the Lord said he would utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven. Ex xvii. "He suffered no man to do them—Israel—wrong, saying, Touch not mine anoint. ed. 1 Chron xvi 21, 22.

The commission to cut off Amalek was given to Saul. He accepted the charge. He warned the Kenites that were among them to leave as he did not wish their destruction as they had been kind to Israel. Ex xviii 10. Jethro was a Kenite. Judges i 16.

Saul took Agag, the Amalek king alive, and destroyed all the people with the sword. This was Saul's report, it was not true. Some thirty years after David defeated them, a decided victory. Four hundred escaped then. 1 Sam xxx 17. They were finally destroyed by the sons of Simeon. 1 Chron iv 43. Saul not only spared Agag, but also the best of the animals.

A great orator—Ingersoll—drew tears of sympathy from a vast audience in Cleveland, Ohio, by depicting in pathetic story, the slaughter of the mothers, and their "innocent" children. The Amalekites were what the Israelites afterwards became. A people laden with iniquity, a seed of evil doers. Isa i 4.

The Lord said, "It repenteth me." 1 Sam xi. In verse 29 we read the Lord is not a man that he should repent. This is another choice morsel for sceptics. It was the desire of the Lord to establish Saul's kingdom upon Israel for ever, if he continued following the Lord. 1 Sam xii 14; 1 Sam xiii 13. Saul had completely failed. The desire of the Lord was frustrated and he repented—changed the dynasty. Found another king from another family. Samuel was grieved all night, rising early to cast Saul at Gilgal.

Lesson verses. Saul hailed Samuel with great swelling words. Josh 16. The fine words were lost on him, and the lie was contradicted and proved by the sheep and oxen. Notice what Saul said, I am innocent, they are guilty. Have you ever tried to find a real sinner? Such a thing is almost impossible. Samuel said, Listen. The Lord sent you on a journey. The order was, utterly destroy and consume the sinners, the Amalekites. Why have you not obeyed the voice of the Lord? It is truly said that a lie will not stand alone, it has to be propped up by others. Saul tried this method. "I have obeyed the voice of the Lord." But the people did not. This was of no avail. The crushing question came, followed by one of the most important statements. "Behold to obey is better than sacrifice." And not only to obey, but obey to the very letter. Time, and many times again, we read, in various ways, that the gospel of Christ is the power God uses to save people. Rom i 16. Also called, "The gospel of the kingdom. The gospel of God, the glorious gospel, the gospel of peace," etc. Those who repent, believe and obey will be saved. Mark xvi 15, 16. Many, like Saul, who have heard, who have not obeyed, stoutly assent that they have obeyed the voice of the Lord when they have only like Saul, and like Cain, have obeyed the impulse—the "the [illegible] impulse" of their own will, instead of perfect obedience offering something, as they suppose to the Lord, or working very hard, as they suppose, in his cause. Obedience is better than sacrifice. Finally Samuel said, Because thou hast rejected the Word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being king. It was a just and even balance, one rejection caused another. The Lord Jesus preached the glad things of the kingdom of God, Luke viii 1, and said, Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away. Matt xxiv 35.

Next lesson, David anointed at Bethlehem. 1 Sam xvi 1-13.

P. Neill.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. I have concluded to introduce a lesson for our study tonight, that is not very often considered, and that is:

WHY HALF OF THE VIRGINS FAILED TO MEET THE COMING BRIDEGROOM.

Now class, tell us what caused the failure?

Bessie. I should say a sleepy, inactive condition, indicated by the words, "While the Bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept."

Teacher. That may contribute to the failure, but was that the real cause?

Carrie. I think not, we read that they "ALL slumbered and slept," so that is just as applicable to the "wise," as well as the "foolish virgins." May it not be that their failure was a lack of moral preparation?

Ella. I hardly think that was the real cause, though that may contribute to the cause.

Lud. Why not?

Ella. Because the reason assigned in the parable is lack of "oil."

Albert. What would be symbolized by the lack of "oil?"

Ella. Why lack of light, the oil in the lamps produces the light.

Arlon. Why did they need light?

Lucy. Because they were summoned to meet the Bridegroom at the midnight hour.

Carrie. That must be the cause, because the "foolish virgins" had no oil to produce the necessary light, and hence their failure.

Teacher. What kind of light does the parable symbolize?

Ella. Gospel light.

Albert. What reason have you that it is the gospel light?

Ella. See 2 Cor iv 4, "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them."

George. Where should the gospel light shine?

Ella. In the darkness of course. See 2 Cor iv 6: "For God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, (minds) to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

Teacher. What is the "gospel of Christ"?

Bessie. The gospel Christ preached.

Teacher. What was the gospel Christ preached?

Bessie. "The gospel of the kingdom."

Albert. How do you know? was, summing up the three facts of the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus is the gospel.

Bessie. Christ never preached those three facts as being the entire gospel.

Albert. Well, show where he preached the kingdom as the gospel.

Bessie. See Mark i 14, "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God."

Matt iv 23. Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom."

Luke iv 43, "And he said unto them, I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore am I sent." This is "the gospel of Christ," the only gospel which the Christ ever preached. Paul calls this "the LIGHT of the glorious gospel of Christ."

George. What does the word gospel mean?

Arlon. The glad news or glad tidings; and when used as a prefix to the words kingdom of God, it means the good news concerning God's kingdom.

Lud. Religious people hold different views as to what constitutes God's kingdom.

Ella. What views are held?

Lud. Some say God's kingdom is in heaven, and others [illegible] heart, while others [illegible] is the kingdom.

George. Well, which of [illegible] views shall we accept as God's kingdom?

Albert. None of them.

George. Well, show us what God's kingdom is, then?

Albert. Well, God once had a kingdom which he suspended, until its rightful heir should come.

George. Show what kingdom that was?

Albert. See Ezek xxi 25 27, "And thou profane and wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end. Thus saith the Lord God; remove the diadem, and take off the crown; this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it; and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is, and I will give it him."

George. Well, did the prophets designate who this heir should be to the overturned throne and kingdom of David?

Albert. Yes, sir; see Isa ix 6, 7: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor (Heb. with) the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever, the zeal of the Lord of Hosts shall perform this."

George. Has the child been born?

Albert. Yes, sir; see Luke i 31-33, "And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

George. Is he now reigning on the restored throne and kingdom of David?

Albert. No, sir; he has gone into the far country to receive the kingdom and to return.

George. Did his disciples expect him to restore the kingdom to Israel?

Albert. Yes, sir; see Acts i 6, "They asked of him saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel."

Ella. I see, the "gospel of the kingdom," which is the gospel Jesus preached, is "the light of the glorious of Christ," is "the light to shine out of darkness," and will consist in the "restoring again of the kingdom to Israel," with Jesus, the Christ, as the literal king over literal Israel.

Bessie. That is exactly what it is, and nothing less than that.

Teacher. Have all people who are expecting the Coming Bridegroom, received the light, concerning the literal reign of the Christ, on the literally restored kingdom of Israel, over literal Israel restored back to the covenant land? And that this is the good news that Jesus preached as the "gospel of the kingdom of God?"

Lucy. No, sir; they have not; a large body of people who are looking for the second coming of Jesus, bitterly oppose the teaching of God's Word, concerning their literal return, and boldly affirm that God has cast them off forever.

Lud. Does the Bible say anything about whether he has cast them off forever or not?

Ella. Yes, sir; see Lev xxvi 44, "I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them: for I am the Lord their God. But I will for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors."

Jer xlvi 28, "Fear thou not, O Jacob my servant, saith the Lord: for I am with thee; for I will make a full end of all nations whither I have driven thee: but I will not make a full end of thee, but will correct thee in measure; yet I will not leave thee wholly unpunished."

Amos ix 15, "I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God."

Lud. Has there any restoration taken place in the past, from which they have never been "pulled up?"

Ella. No, Sir; such a restoration has never yet taken place.

Teacher. Then, if God's Word is fulfilled [illegible] must be restored in the future, [illegible]um on the restored throne of [illegible]s the King of Israel?

[illegible]ust be, or God's Word will [illegible] of the Jews" etc?

[illegible] the following:

[illegible]e of the Jews." Matt ii 2 [illegible] 11 24 37 Mark xv 9 12 18 26 [illegible] xxiii 3 37 38 John xviii 33, 39 [illegible] 14 21.

"King of Israel." Matt xxvii 42 Mark xv 32 John i 49 xii 13 Zeph iii 15. "Governor of Israel." Mat ii 6.

The above titles would be to him an empty farce, should Israel ever remain in exile.

Teacher. As some say the kingdom of God is in heaven, and others say it is in the heart, while others say the church is the kingdom, what says my class?

Albert. I know that I voice the conviction of the class when I say, It will consist in the restoration of the throne and kingdom of Israel, spoken of by Ezekiel as being "overturned" until "he come whose right it is." The right to reign over this restored kingdom and nation, is vested in Jesus, as David's seed, because God swore with an oath to David to give it to him.

Teacher. Then this is the kingdom of God, which Jesus preached as the "Gospel of the Kingdom of God," is it not?

Albert. It is even so.

Teacher. Then those "virgins," who have gone out to meet the coming Bridegroom, who affirm that God will never again restore the kingdom to Israel, lack the saving "light of the glorious gospel of Christ,"—which is the gospel of Christ, or the gospel the Christ preached, which was "the gospel of the kingdom of God," is not that correct?

Albert. Yes, sir; it is.

Teacher. Can those who may claim to be virgins, who are looking for the coming Bridegroom but have not believed and obeyed the gospel of the kingdom of God as preached by Jesus enter in with him into the marriage?

Albert. No, sir; take away the promises to Israel, and the kingdom of Israel, out of the "Gospel of the kingdom," and you have no gospel left.

Teacher. Are virgins who so act, "Wise Virgins?"

Albert. No, sir; they are certainly "Foolish Virgins." Not having the light of "the Gospel of the Kingdom of God," they have not light enough to meet the coming Bridegroom, and enter in with him into the marriage.

W. H. Wilson.

At the Breaking of Bread.

MATT VI 24.

No man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ. Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever. We should have the Lord our God with us our head and him only should we serve.

Little Deeds.

Many disciples sit down despairingly because they feel incompetent to do great things. Because they possess neither wealth nor learning, they unwisely conclude that they can do nothing, and so despairingly fold their hands. Many of the most precious deeds of a Christian are the small acts of his life, such as a mere smile or a kind word. The Alpine strawberry is no larger than a pea, yet it is said to be the sweetest of all the fruits of the field. Under certain circumstances the smaller the deed the greater the evidence of a noble character.

To wash the feet of Jesus, like Mary, is an evidence of greater love than to spread a feast for him like Simon the Pharisee. Mary breaking her alabaster box of ointment, the poor widow giving her two mites, Peter forsaking his fishing tackle, were truer acts of benevolence than the magnificent gifts of a Gould or a Rockefeller. A little boy gave six cents for benevolence, and wrote on the envelope, "Pastor, I want to give a treat." By some little word or deed add a ray of brightness to the life of your pastor's wife, the Sunday-school Superintendent, or some neighbor, and your life will not be in vain.—Mrs. H. B.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,
W. H. Wilson.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. Questions on Sunday School Lesson July 19.

Samuel Warns Saul and His People. 1 Samuel xii.

Golden Text.—"Only fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart; for consider how great things he hath done for thee." 1 Sam. xii. 24.

1 Tell of the victory won by Saul that established him as king among the people.
2 Where was an assembly then held?
3 What for?
4 Why did Samuel address the people?
5 What did the people answer?
6 Why did Samuel want this testimony by the people as to his character?
7 What did Samuel seek to show by referring to their past history?
8 What five conditions of success are given?
9 What two things would make success impossible?
10 What would the consequences be?
11 What was done that showed the power God still gave Samuel?
12 Would this lead to increase faith in God?
13 What effect did this have on the people?
14 Is fear a good motive to appeal to?
15 What was Samuel's farewell message?
16 What was the final warning?
17 Have success in our day depended on like conditions as were presented to Israel?
18 Is the same choice now given to us?

Thoughts on the Lesson.

Selfishness—self-seeking—is at the root of all evil in business and society.

There is not a single case in history where sin brought real, lasting prosperity.

Only true service to God will bring true prosperity.

Only perseverance in the right way will make a good life.

Samuel was the highest type of a ruler. Where can we find any public official who will urge the people to examine every portion of his record?

Our sincerity is best proven by our lives.

Samuel appeals to Israel, saying—"Now therefore, stand still, that I may reason with you." The same sentiment is expressed by us modernly when we say "Lest we forget."

To say "no" to God, is rebellion against Him.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

Interesting Correspondence. Number 2.

Brother Huggins:

Yours of June 20 is before me; and I hasten to inform you that an honest, careful and prayerful study of the Bible for more than fifty years has convinced me that the so-called orthodox creeds are "man-made", and have their origin in "heathen mythology". I charge the numerous advocates of an endless state of condition, in which countless millions of our race will suffer untold anguish, and being either ignorant or dishonest. I also unhesitatingly state that public opinion in modern times has been such as to prevent an honest translation of the Bible; and that to bolster up certain dogmas, the so-called translators in order to conform to the opinions and ideas of a king, or church prelates, have garbled the grand old documents until their authors would scarcely know them. To me it is a wonder how the Bible as a whole has come down to us in as good shape as it is. Do not think, Brother Huggins, that I am arraying all in the vast army of priests and ministers of the Christian churches with knowingly advocating doctrines that are unscriptural; but I am personally acquainted with some who are like Synesius bishop of Ptolmais, who said, "The people are desirous of being deceived. We cannot act otherwise respecting them. For my own part, to mystify I shall always be a philosopher, but in dealing with the masses of mankind, I shall be a priest."—Cave's Ecclesiastics. Your admonition that we "must not take advantage of language nor misuse the meaning of words" shall on my part be strictly adhered to. But really, Brother Huggins, it seems to me that you are sadly in error when you try to convince yourself that "all" is but a part of the human race.

In 1 Cor xv 22 we read, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Is it right or proper to so construe this universal promise so as to make it read: "Even so in Christ shall a select few, a little sect, be made alive?" The apostle teaches otherwise. The expressions are equally universal in each case. All die in Adam. The same "all" without an exception, without any restriction, shall by Christ be restored to life, and ultimately to holiness and everlasting happiness.

Our partialist friends tell us that "this is only a physical change, and does not imply that those who will be thus raised will be saved." We ask, How do men die in Adam? Paul tells us in Rom v 12: "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men." Natural death is the result of physical organization, which comes to each and all. Moral death is the result of sin which every man commits. Paul teaches that all who have borne the image of the earthy man, shall also bear the image of the heavenly. 1 Cor xv 49; 51-54.

That David had in mind the final victory over sin is evident when he wrote, "All the ends of the earth shall remember, and turn to the Lord; and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before him." Psa xxii 27. "All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord, and shall glorify thy name." Psalms lxxxvi. 9. In Isaiah xxv. 6-8 we read, "The Lord shall wipe away tears from off all faces." Jer xxxi 31-34, "They shall all know me from the least to the greatest of them, saith the Lord." But I have not time or space to point out a quarter of the places where the word "all" is used to prove that God will at some time reduce his erring children to subjection. I feel rejoiced to know that my sinful brethren will be made to bow the knee in submission. I am happy beyond expression to be assured that "God will wipe the tears from off all faces."

You have no cause to regret that I do not agree with you in some doctrines. I have had access to all the documentary evidence bearing upon man's origin, his duty, and his destiny, as any of my fellow mortals have. I have, as I have stated, given the subjects named as careful, honest, and prayerful thought, as it is possible for fallible man to do. I have always kept my mind open to conviction, and without egotism I can say that no argument you can advance in favor of Sectarianism in any form, when applied to man's destiny, is new to me, if you quote the Bible as authority. The believer in a God with human characteristics can never experience the real joy that comes to one who is assured that he is infinite in Wisdom, Power and Goodness, and whose tender mercies are over all his works.

I may have extended my letter beyond the limits of your patience, Brother Huggins, but you have yourself to blame if such is the case. I am with all churches and associations so far as they are working for the elevation of our race to a higher moral, spiritual and physical condition. As much as I see in the Catholic Church to condemn and denounce as foolish and absurd, I cannot but help remember its glorious work upon the battle fields in Dixie and in the hospitals today. There is a bond that can never be broken. It is that which binds us together as children of God with the bonds and bands of a common humanity.

May your work in drawing men to Christ prosper, and may your mind fully comprehend the grandeur of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man.

HENRY ELSEY.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Brother Elsey:

Your last letter came to me in due course of mail. With you we think that the religious creeds of nominal Christendom are human, both in origin and matter. And with you we think that the many "advocates of an endless state in which countless millions of our race will suffer untold anguish", are "either ignorant or dishonest"; perhaps both. But we cannot see why you are so exercised about the errors and blunders of the religious world, or why you should condemn the deception of Synesius; for you say that your "sinful brethren will be made to bow the knee in submission", and that holiness and "everlasting happiness" await them all. However mean and degraded, sinful and unclean, let them be driven if they care to be, you are on hand to assure them of God's favor, and of a salvation as complete as the most punctilious Christian can hope to attain. With such a doctrine to encourage immoral tendencies and sin, you are the last man in the world to criticise people for wrong-doing. If "everlasting happiness" is the sure reward for Synesius and the unanimitarians of the past and present, you cannot hope for more, however good you may be. Living as you are in an age of commercial greed and religious dormancy, it would be convenient and easy for you to plunge head and ears into sin, and just as compatible as if you lived the purest and cleanest life. But you do not live your belief, thanks to both you and the Lord! Ah, yes, Brother Elsey, your life is better than your doctrine.

You say, "I think you are sadly in error when you try to convince yourself that 'all' is but part of the race." Then I am to think that you believe that "all" means all the race—"every human being", as you said in your last letter. The fact is "all" has every latitude of meaning. "All men" may mean the inhabitants of a city, state, or of the earth. "All" has every variety of comprehension of meaning, and no stress can be laid on it; and yet on this little word, so uncertain in its scope of meaning, you built the doctrine of universal salvation. What a weak and uncertain foundation to support such a doctrine! We illustrated in our last letter how the word "all" was used as a general term, with exceptions understood or stated, and as a class word, limited in its application to the class spoken of; and these illustrations were gleaned from Bible usages and common parlance. But in your letter now before me, written in reply to mine, you say not one word about the passages we quoted which show that the word "all" is expressly limited in meaning. You said that Acts iii 20, 21, always caused you to rejoice when you read it because it "wiped out" the "God dishonoring, man-degrading" doctrine of endless suffering, and "means, if any thing, the restoration of every human being to holiness and happiness". We showed you by the context that repentance and conversion were urged upon the people addressed, in order to a "blotting out of sins" in the times of coming "refreshing"; and that the passage not only "wiped out" the "God-dishonoring" doctrine of eternal torment, but that with one mighty stroke of Divine Power it "wiped out" "every soul" that is disobedient to "that Prophet". Acts iii 23. Because you found the word "all" in the passage, you were led to make the remark, that the passage "means, if any thing," universal salvation. "We must not", I repeat "take advantage of language nor misuse the meanings of words." You say you are willing to "strictly adhere to" this rule. We shall see.

Now for a test: In Daniel iii when the golden image was set up on the plain of Dura, the king issued this edict: "To you it is commanded, O people, nations and languages to fall down and worship the golden image." verses 4, 5. Listen now to the universal obedience rendered to the king's mandate; and in your mind look out for the word "all": "Therefore at the time, when all the people heard the sound of the cornet.....all the people, nations, and languages, fell down." verse 7. If you were to apply your interpretation to this text, Brother Elsey, what would be the result? Simply this: it says "all the people" fell down; "all means all"; every human being: "without exception, without any restriction." We only have to read in this ill that your meaning of the word "all" cannot stand. "Certain Judeans came over and accused the Jews." verse 8. Why accuse the Jews? "These men, O king, have not regarded thee; they serve not thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up." verse 12. Here "all people" fell down and worshipped the image, but the Jews are excepted. What becomes then of all your ado about the word "all"? You quote 1 Cor xv 22, and then say, "All is without exception, without any restriction." Excuse me, but you do not believe that yourself. You do not believe that Enoch and Elijah died; and you do not believe that the saints who are alive when Christ comes, will ever die; and yet you say "all" must be understood "without exception, without any restriction." How differently Paul viewed "all", may be seen when, after saying, "He hath put all things under him," he made these explanatory comments: "But when he saith 'all things are put under him', it is manifest that he is excepted which did put all things under him." 1 Cor xv [illegible] All with Paul has no "exception" with you is "without exception, not any restriction". Does it [illegible] you to find yourself so [illegible] really opposite the [illegible] Apostle?

And so we might go [illegible] your texts in logical order, [illegible] delicate bubbles, they would [illegible] and totally disappear at the [illegible] touch of criticism. If you find a [illegible] with the word "all" in it, you quote it as a passage of undoubted worth in favor of Universalism, without looking at the context to see to whom the passage applies, its subsequent qualifications, etc. This is why you get misled. To illustrate: You read in Isa xxv 8 that tears are to be wiped off "all faces". Then you privately interpret the prophecy (2 Pet i 20) and begin to cramp free and easy speech in the vice of an arbitrary meaning. Why not read the next verse, the 9th, and let the prophet himself tell whose "faces" are to be wiped dry. Listen to this statement issued by the people with tearless faces: "Lo this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation." It is very wrong in you to quote about "all faces" being wiped dry, and then omit to quote the words descriptive of who is meant. Those who "have waited for him," say with gladness when the Master comes, "He will save us." They break out in song "in the land of Judah" (Isa xxvi 1); the gates open, and the nation "which keepeth the truth" (v. 2) enter on their inheritance in the Holy Land, in obedience to Christ's invitation: "Come, my people, enter into thy chambers until.....the indignation is overpast." v 20. All this is said of people who "have waited" for Christ, "my people, thy dead men". Isa xxv 9; xxvi 1; 20, 19. For them there are no more tears but gladness, bliss and song forever "in the land of Judah". God tenderly cares for them until the "indignation is overpast". If all are saved, upon whom can "indignation" descend? After God's people are united to Christ at his coming, indignation is poured out upon the "inhabitants of the earth;" and the earth shall "disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain." verse 21. Of these "slain" ones it is written in the 14th verse: "They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made their memory to perish." Here are people whom the Lord slays, and of whom he decrees, "they shall not live:" "they shall not rise": people whom he visits with a mighty destruction and leaves not an iota of their memory. Surely people who are "slain" with a diving visitation, and who are never to rise from the dead or live, or have any "memory", surely there can be no salvation for them.

But we must conclude this lengthy letter. Written animadversions are usually tinged with acerbity. Excuse the plain manner in which I express myself. You have a standing invitation to visit me when you are in Oregon. We hope a personal acquaintance will make you think more of us.

With best wishes, Yours faithfully,

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

I am still in the land of the living. I have often wondered if you were my old school mate. Well do I remember the evening we "tore up" the Methodist prayer meeting, with the sword of the spirit. Yes, dear Brother, I have been preaching for eleven years. We have a church of ten members near Pelzer, S. C. My father is pastor.

Dear brother, I am a poor man, and any time you have any literature that would be helpful in proclaiming the gospel, remember me. May God bless you and help you ever to stand for the truth, is my prayer.

Your brother,

J. H. ANDERSON.

We request the reader to note Bro. Anderson's appeal for literature. In our travels we often meet brethren who have bundles of RESTITUTIONS, and they seem not to know what to do with them. Here is an opportunity for you to scatter them, to put them out in the world where they will be read. We get a bundle of each issue of THE RESTITUTION, and in our travels we leave them in cars, depots, etc.

Brother Huggins.

After hearing you preach at Pontiac, Canada, and reading your articles in THE RESTITUTION, I have become very much interested in you and would like your exposition of the [illegible] of Revelation xiii.

[illegible]fore me is an article in the Hoffman[illegible]ing News, from Dr. Hubbard, [illegible] because a man has 233 [illegible]ples which together [illegible]herefore that is the solution of the matter. Be that as it [illegible] I believe the Beast is yet to be [illegible]nquished; for the reason that there never has been anything as yet to fill the bill in every particular; and also from the fact that John says he was in the spirit on the Lord's day. As the Lord's day has never yet been brought in, therefore, of necessity, it must be in the future.

You will oblige me very much by giving us an article in THE RESTITUTION on the subject, whether you agree with me or not.

J. B. LENT.

We are crowded just now with an unusual amount of manuscripts, and it will be some time before we can find room for an explanation of the Beast of Rev. xiii. However, we note our brother's request, and if the Lord is willing, will take up the subject sometime in the future.

The Trial of Our Faith.

"That the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ."

We, as a church, do not attach enough importance to the fact that our faith is being tried as well as our works. From the time that God first took out Abraham, on down through the ages, in all of God's dealings with his people, the trial of their faith has been paramount.

The church, in this age, cannot be tried by different sects, but the trials must come from within herself; and how can it be tried more severely than it is at the present time, by men who have gone out from among us, thus fulfilling Peter's warning, "But there shall be false teachers among you who shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them." 2 Peter ii. 1. They deny the record that God has given of his Son, when he plainly tells that "the Word was made flesh," that Christ was begotten by the Holy Spirit and born of the Virgin Mary, a miraculous birth, pre-figured by the birth of Isaac.

God having in view the implanting of his Word in a fleshly being, would surely implant it only in a being of special choice, so we see the necessity of Christ, especially when the Psalmist has said, "No man can by any means redeem his brother, or give to God a ransom for him."

Those who believe in the Josephite theory, that Christ was not the Son of God until he was raised from the dead, and others who have strayed yet farther from the truth and are teaching that the archangel Michael was "made over" into a Christ and that his begettal took place after his resurrection,—how can these possibly believe the confession of Peter, endorsed by Jesus, "Thou art the Son of the living God," and this confession was made, and confirmed by Christ before his resurrection, the time the Josephites and others who teach the pre-existence of Christ, place his birth as the Son of God. Jesus answered Peter, "Thou art Peter, and on this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Mind Satan are attempting to remove this rock, the very foundation of the church!

Are not those who deny this declaration of Peter's, not only taking away the key of knowledge from themselves, but also hindering those that would enter, just as the Pharisees of old?

How easily all passages taken to prove the pre-existence of Christ, are explained—nay, they explain themselves, by this one clause, "The Word was made flesh." That being true, Christ was able to look back to being with the Father, as the Word, just as he could look forward prophetically. The church has failed to grasp the full meaning of having the Word impersonated by Christ, that it was as natural for him to see the things of the past, when he existed with the Father as the Word, as to look into the future when he would be with God, seated at his right hand.

It is a singular fact that those who do not believe the record God has given of his Son, but teach that Christ was not the Son of God until he was raised from the dead, or that he is an angel "made over," say that these matters are non-essential; yet they lose no opportunity of preaching these doctrines. If as they say, these considerations are of no importance, and if they believe that, we would think that they would not preach them when they are aware of the discussion, thus being created in the Church of God.

ANNA E. DREW.

Gather up the Fragments.

"Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost," was the minister's text. He explained that original word signifies "wasted" as "lost", and then he proceeded to preach upon the virtues of economy and thrift in contradistinction to extravagance and reckless expenditure of money and other possessions. "Make the most of what you have, despise not trifles"—this was the sum and substance of the good man's discourse; a wise injunction in this day of prodigality, but in some mysterious fashion, as I sat listening faithfully to all that was said, still another suggestion presented itself and insisted upon recognition, or, at least, promise of a hearing, upon another better occasion. This was the thought:

Gather up the fragments that remain of the bereaved and shattered life, the broken home and the broken health. It may be that from the few scant pieces you may gather together enough to fill twelvefold some other home or some life. Instead of saying, "So many gone from my presence across the river and I left alone; what am I?" or, "So much to be done and I with crippled limbs, or suffering head, or fluttering heart; what can I do?" pray a blessing and a heavenly strength upon what remains and gather together the broken fragments.

If your home circle is made of vacant chairs, or nearly all are turned to the wall, look around for some other lonely, sad ones to take the vacant places. If they cannot quite fill, let them do it as far as it is possible and give them a cheerful welcome. Do not open to them with a tear and a grudging sigh.

If it is health that has forsaken you, gather up what little energy remains to you, nourish it as well as you can, hope and pray for more strength. Do not give up hope and sit the down sadly as an invalid (this does not mean, either, risking a paralysis by overexertion or exposure) but, if you must be an invalid, see what you can do to make your life as an invalid as rich, helpful and bright as possible. Gather up the fragments of the opportunities left, that some of them be useful.

Gather up the fragments always, that nothing in your life be wasted; for, at the last, we shall be called to account for what has been given us, not for what has been taken away.—Sunday School Times.

A Variety.

There were events in my return from Kansas to Oregon, and to my daughters in Washington, that I felt confident would interest the readers of my Evangelistic Work in Arizona, Oklahoma and Kansas; but as my past trip of 6000 miles has safely ended in my return to the northwest, and my notes of places and events remained with my baggage in Portland, I will thank the faithful editor of THE RESTITUTION for space for my letters and request the withdrawal of the standing notice of my proposed return to the northwest via Texas, Arizona and California with this explanation.

I received hurry call to Portland from my son while I was in Wichita, Kansas. In responding to this call I took the closest route across the mountains by N. P. R. R., to Portland. I have reached my home with health benefitted I trust; and with zeal equally as ardent to still carry the armor and "fight the good fight" as providence may direct.

Soon after reaching my home in the northwest, I received a letter that had followed me several thousand miles; among other interesting things the writer says: "For my part I want to be a little child in believing my Father's Word. I dare not take the part of a higher critic, and so help in destroying all faith in the Bible. We cannot be too careful on this point." And again, "I dont like to have our brethren drop even a letter from God's Word. We are to read and believe it as a little child would read and believe it. A child reading about the devil would take the story just as it reads. He would not turn the devil into evil in a vain endeavor to explain the devil away."

I have taken the liberty to quote this much from a private letter on account of my appreciation of the criticism of "the critic."

A few years ago—no time passes so fast, that the years have reached the "teens" now. At that time, I "trained," for awhile, with those that spent a large part of their time in explaining [illegible] portions of the Word. I [illegible] that now. It takes [illegible] reading and teaching [illegible]ay. When in that [illegible]r of the same school, [illegible] of others of their theo[illegible]d to me. "William do[illegible]'s a personal devil?" [illegible] tells of the prince [illegible]s as if there was a [illegible]er devils. It seems as if a greater exercise of liberty and power was granted to these devils—evil spirits—when Christ was on earth for he used the divine power against them—cast them out—and this control was granted to his disciples." "Who were they?" "The angels which kept not their first estate." Why not, if they were ever on probation? Who will say thronga reached a home around the Father's throne, that never passed through a probationary test? My questioner soon exclaimed, "William believes in a personal devil and he can't believe the Gospel!" But I could not see then and have never learned since how the question has any bearing on the gospel! Surely, with our earliest lessons we must have learned that there is no evil god, called the devil.

When we begin to read the Word with a correct conception of the mortal plane of our existence, we learned that no beings belonging on this plane can continue without reaching the higher plane, and that it can only be reached by partaking of the divine nature.

"Thou believest that there is one God: thou doest well; the devils also believe and tremble (not the "evil" devil with the "l" dropped.) Many of the "evil" do not believe.

My correspondent—"critic of the Higher Critics, does not use a harsh word or insinuation against those that so ruthlessly reject or tear out of the Holy Book whatever is in the way of the theories of their scholarly (?) opinions and deductions. Still they should know that there are other still higher critics who will by the same methods discard the fragments they have left us.

I will not tell my readers who my correspondent is. I would feel that I had betrayed my trust; but to me it is a greater compliment to say, "does not use a harsh word or insinuation" than to write columns of plaudits concerning talent well merited and earned through years faithfully applied to the Master's work. Although I have never met my correspondent, nor the father, I am almost persuaded of the laws of heredity, by calling back the fleet years, and reviewing the fact that the father's reputation was based not on his eloquent words driven to the heart by harsh, bitter criticisms, but through words spoken so kindly that if the church or pulpit were owned by enemies to the doctrines, love won its way. Concerning heredity, in spite of their higher criticism I have believed and still believe that Jesus was the "only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth"—Son of that Being that he addressed so frequently as "Father." Though four thousand years had passed, the fixed law of heredity proved generation after generation that an absolutely perfect Son could not be given to the race of wholly human origin, because "none of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him (for the redemption of their soul is precious and it ceaseth forever.") It is no wonder that at that time and from the standpoint David should bewail the condition of the race by a statement that is used by some to limit the resurrection. "Nevertheless man being in honor abideth not, he is like the beasts that perish." Hope inspired David's heart "But God will redeem my soul from the power of the [illegible]grave." Psa. xlix.

Why can we not understand with or without the Higher Critics "For God so loved the world (I am glad it takes in the world or I might be left out) that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." "But unto the Son (the only begotten of the Father) he saith, Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever." Heb. i. 8. No other in all God's universe has been entitled to the family name because he is the only begotten and received the name by inheritance. "Being made so much better than the angels as he has by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they." Heb. i. 4.

I finish my random thoughts by expressing the wish that the language of Paul may be to all minds and hearts the key-stone of all truth to unite and combine us as one in a perfect household of God. "And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love."

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by U. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. WE have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth money as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Doyle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave, Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance houses will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in unregistered letters is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the numbers changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is it—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on [illegible] stamps, and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an official wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Love, Hope, Life.

O Christ, thy love is given to me;
Thy peace and grace with me abide;
From sin's dark bondage I am free,
Washed in the sacrificial tide,
Strong in thy love, and mingled beside.

O Christ, thy hope is given to me;
And piercing through the veil of years
The promised crown I almost see,
The joy of home untouched by tears,
The safety undisturbed by fears.

O Christ, thy life is given to me,
Thy glory wells my coming feet:
Thy Kingly face I soon shall see,
And feel the peace and rapture meet,
And hear the harpers' music sweet.

Communicated.

Mr. Sincerity and Mr. Truth.

Mr. Sincerity and Mr. Truth were old friends but had not met for some years. Both were formerly members of the same church. In the meantime Mr. Truth has changed his religious views. After speaking of the ordinary affairs of life their conversation drifted to the things that relate to the future life. In the course of their conversation Mr. S. spoke of "our immortal soul."

Mr. T. Friend S., you are mistaken in regard to the soul. The Scriptures nowhere speak of its being immortal. This idea has crept into the church from heathen mythology.

Mr. S. Am I to understand that you have changed your views of the Bible? You formerly believed as I do that we possess an immortal soul.

Mr. T. Yes, after a careful study of the Old and New Scriptures, I am thoroughly convinced that man has no inherent immortality but must gain it through faith, repentance and immersion into the name of the Lord Jesus.

Mr. S. Well, I am indeed surprised to learn of your change religiously. However it is not a vital doctrine. You can believe that and be saved. I may still retain my belief and at last reach heaven.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 22, 1908. NUMBER 28.

Mr. T. Friend S., I must differ with you on this point. Our Lord said to his apostles ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free, John viii 32. Now you cannot be made free by believing an untruth.

Mr. S. I do not understand what you mean by being made free. When we believe in the Lord Jesus are not our sins forgiven, and are we not free?

Mr T. Yes, if you have previously been acquainted with God's purpose in creating the earth and man. You must bear in mind that Adam's disobedience put the race under sin. In Gal iii 22 we read, The Scripture hath concluded (shut up) all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. Again, Rom iii 9, They, Jew and Gentile, are all under sin. Now God has wrought out a plan by which we may get rid of this sin. Paul says, Rom viii 2, The law of the Spirit of life (the gospel) hath made me free from the law of sin and death.

Mr. S. I have always thought that if a man is honest and sincere that is all that God requires. But are we not getting away from the subject. You say that the soul is not immortal. Does not Moses say, Gen ii 9, that God breathed into Adam the breath of life?

Mr. T. But does that in any way affirm that the breath is an immortal soul? It does not. I am pleased to have you refer to the Scripture as proof of your position. Now what does this text teach? That this breath of life made the man a living soul, not an immortal soul. The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground. He then made him a living soul. That is a living man or person, as I said in the beginning that this doctrine crept into the church through heathen mythology. The animals were formed of the dust of the ground and received the breath of life the same as man. Gen i 30 (margin). In Eccl iii 19-20, Solomon says in speaking of the sons of men and beasts, "They have all one breath, all go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all go to dust again."

Mr. S. The writers are here speaking of their bodies and not of their souls. Can we not find in the Bible the expression "immortal soul"? Does not Solomon say that the spirit returns unto God who gave it and the body to the dust?

Mr. T. First you cannot find the expression "immortal soul" in the Bible. The word immortal is found but once in the Book, 1 Tim i 17 and there it is applied to God. The word soul and spirit is nowhere modified by the word immortal. Your quotation from Eccl xii is not quite correct. To assert that all spirits go to God would teach the universal salvation of the whole human family and would teach too much for your theology.

Mr. S. I have always believed this doctrine and must have an abundance of proof to change my mind. In Gen xxxv 18, does it not say that Rachel's soul was in departing? The soul here is spoken of as something separate from the body. It is spoken of as an agent, that is as doing something. It seems that this text ought to be accepted as proof.

Mr. T. Friend S., you have omitted a very important statement in this text, for SHE DIED. Now what is the condition of those who die? Let us read Psa cxlvi 4. In speaking of man we read, His breath goeth forth (that is his life or spirit) he returneth to his earth (the dust), in that very day his THOUGHTS PERISH. Now if Rachel's thoughts perished what was left? For further proof see Eccl ix 5, 6, 10. These texts all prove that man ceases to think when he dies. Life is a condition of being; when the condition is destroyed we say the life is gone. The light of a lamp is a condition; blow the light out and the light is gone. You have destroyed the condition under which the light was produced. The life that we now enjoy is the result of the condition of the atmosphere. Remove from the air these conditions, and we die. If we are placed in a vessel where there is no oxygen we die. The conditions under which we live have been destroyed. A fish can live in the water because it is adapted to conditions. They die out of the water. Can you see that man is wholly helpless without favorable conditions?

Mr. S. These arguments are all strange to me and I must have time to think them over. This is a very new and strange doctrine. There are a great many learned men who do not believe it and have for many centuries. How do you account for their not seeing what you call truth? Do you think that they are willingly ignorant of these things?

Mr. T. The only answer that I can give regarding the learned men was given by Jesus and Paul. Jesus said, By your traditions you have made the Word of God of none effect. Paul said that he was more exceedingly zealous of the TRADITIONS of his fathers. His fathers were the Pharisees. Our Savior warned his apostles against their doctrine. The same doctrine is believed today and all true believers must do the same. Were the people against this pernicious doctrine. The tree of life was placed in the garden, by the means of which Adam was to be made immortal. When he disobeyed the Lord God removed the tree that man might not eat and live forever. Now the only means of life is through Christ.

Paul says Col iii 3, 4, Your life is hid, with Christ in God and when Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory. This life that is hid is our future life. When Jesus comes we will receive it.

Mr. S. I must confess that your proofs seem reasonable but I cannot now accept them. I must now bid you good day, but I promise you that I will examine the Bible more thoroughly. I still think I can produce Scripture in proof of my position. So now good day.

D. C. ROBISON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 68.

Brother J. F. Prime was born the 27th of February, 1834, but I do not know where. He seems to have moved from Iowa to Indiana, near the beginning of the 60's, for he was a member of the "Little Wild Cat" Church as far back as 1862, and he and Brother T. E. Adams were the Elders of the Church during the four or five years that they lived on the Little Wild Cat. He remembers the Conferences of which I have written and was present at the most of them but cannot fix dates. We know he attended the 1863 conference, held near Windfall, Tipton County; for his name is in the report given of that meeting in the Bible Examiner, as being on the committee of arrangements.

He was impressed by Brother A. N. Seymour, but does not tell us at what date, nor when he began proclaiming the word of life to others. His father-in-law, James Carr, with his wife, were also members of the Little Wild Cat church, and Brother Prime says, "If any man at those meetings deserved praise for sacrifice and devotion for the cause of truth, it is James Carr,—still living at Nevada, Iowa at the age of 94, and his wife at 91.

Their home was near the place of meeting and they kept a free table for all who would come, and when the house would not hold all, they went to the large farm-barn to sleep.

Brother Prime says a letter was read from father at one of these conferences, stating that for some reason he could not attend. This must have been in August, 1863, near Windfall, for we know he was not at that meeting.

Sometime during the '70's Brother Prime was called to take the oversight of the little flock at Irving, in Tama County, Iowa. So he must have commenced preaching during his residence on Little Wild Cat. There were only three families in the faith at Irving, when he went there as a local pastor and these were Levi Marsh, John Fitz, and (Is the Christian name correct?) Elek Marchman; the two latter being mechanics, "Old Brother Marsh, being a man of considerable means, proposed to the other two brethren, that if they would do the work, he would furnish the money, and they would have a church building of their own to worship in, where the people could come and hear the truth preached without money and without price. The building was in due time completed and to redeem[illegible] the people of Irving and vicinity, was as fine and as well-furnished a church of its size as could be found in the State of Iowa, and it would seat four or five hundred people."

"Brother H. [illegible] Reed was called on to dedicate the church and was so well liked by the people that Brother Marsh had him visit them quite often, giving him such time, not less than 50 dollars.

Brother Prime remained at Irving two years, speaking twice every first day, except when called away to other points to preach, and "he thinks he is safe in saying that a public collection has never been seen in that good old Restitution church to this day, although many of our able men have been called to Irving to defend 'the faith once delivered to the saints,'" among these being "H. J. Hill, J. M. Stephenson, W. F. Wilcox, George Moyer, Wm. Bruton, A. F. Dugger, A. J. Eyshauer and others."

Several State Conferences were held there during Brother Prime's stay among them, also one public discussion between Brother George Moyer and a Methodist minister, for whom Brother Moyer made it so hot, that his people sent for a second man whom U. M. Myers was enabled to meet, and the result was that the old church would hardly hold the people that came to hear, and it began to look as if the people could and would 'receive sound doctrine.' But alas! how true it is that tradition and association, has more to do with the masses, than 'the gospel, which is God's power unto salvation.'"

On account of poor health, Brother and Sister Prime were forced to move back to their farm in Story County Iowa, having immersed four during his stay at Irving, being careful "lest he get wood, hay or stubble" into the building, "remembering that the Master has said, 'He that heareth the word of the kingdom and understandeth it,.....also beareth fruit.'"

Brother Prime is living now in Ogford, Nebraska, and about two years ago he visited Irving, "and had the pleasure of seeing his old friends and brethren once more and of speaking a number of times in the old church. (Two of Brother Prime's children still live at Irving.)

He made one trip to Attica, Kan., in company with his old co-laborer, T. E. Adams, and while there saw a man whom he supposed was my brother, because his name was Chaplain, but who was a cousin instead. He regrets much "that it was never his privilege to meet my father as he had read his writings so much that he felt as if he knew him."

"While acting as state Evangelist in Iowa," he "was called to Bayauna, Mo., where Brother Calloway then lived, and held meetings in both the Baptist and Methodist Churches." "At the last meeting Brother D. C. Robison came to him after the sermon was over and said, 'Brother Prime, if we can find water sufficient to-morrow I want you to bury the old man for me, that I may arise to walk in newness of life.'"

Of course Brother Prime baptized him, for he knew he was not going forward under a fit of excitement, but that he had calmly and deliberately chosen to become God's servant, and that "like Abraham of old he had seen the promises afar off and had fallen in love with them, and had embraced them," and Brother Robison's example and life's work since has fully attested that Bro. Prime's estimate of the character of the man was correct. Several others were also immersed at the same meeting.

I think Brother Prime also preached in Furnas and Red Willow Counties, Nebraska, where Brother Workmans and old Brother Henry and family from Hazel Grove Church, in Kos. County were located. We are glad of his story because of his connection with the early history of the cause in Indiana. He has been a faithful and cheery writer for the social columns of the dear old Restitution, and has done much for the Master, in all places where his footsteps have been led. Brother Prime is a man of medium height of good appearance when a young man, and, judging from what he has accomplished, must be a good speaker.

We hope to see him soon, when he and all the dear saints of God will

For the season, walk in white,
Where the tenders of light.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 2.

DAVID ANOINTED AT BETHLEHEM. 1 SAM. xvi. 1-13.

Golden Text. "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." 1 Sam. xvi. 7.

The Israelites wanted and demanded a king. Saul was chosen. He was fully instructed. He disobeyed. He was rejected. Another king must be found from another family. Samuel was told to go to Bethlehem, and anoint one of the sons of Jesse. To anoint a man—a priest—was to pour drop or put oil or ointment on his head. This was the Lord's appointing. By this ordinance a Levite was consecrated, sanctified, set apart to minister to the Lord. Exo. xxx. 30.

The kings of Israel were also ministers—servants—of the Lord, and were anointed. David always realized that he was the servant of the Lord. 2 Sam. vii. 19-20. Saul was a wicked servant. Luke xix. 22. David knew that he well, if not better than any one, nevertheless he recognized and realized that Saul was the anointed of the Lord, and was very sorry he had even as much as cut the skirt off Saul's garment. 1 Sam. xxiv. 5, 6.

Samuel said, How can I go?—Men who have a great name among men as teachers and commentators have made much ado about this question of Samuel's. One writes, "Samuel was human and hesitated to do the work. When God said, Go, he should have gone, and not asked, How?"

Unbelievers see many faults in the faithful servants of God, where the Lord himself never blames. There is not even a hint of hesitation in Samuel's words. He just wants to know how to avoid the wrath of Saul. He knew that Saul had no respect for God, and would certainly have some for him. A sacrifice to the Lord by the prophet would not be objected to by Saul. An offering to the Lord—a blood sacrifice—all sacrifices offered to God according to his Word, pointed to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. John i. 29.

The elders trembled. Lesser's translation is much better, "The elders hastened to meet him, and said, Peace be to thee." Samuel invited them to the sacrifice.

He sanctified Jesse and his sons.—Men could be sanctified for a long time, or for a certain time and purpose. Jesse and his two sons were sanctified—set, apart—were to give their whole and undivided attention—for the time being,—to the sacrifice.

Now for the anointing. A strange scene takes place. Seven of the sons of Jesse pass before—or are brought to Samuel. Eliab, evidently a fine specimen of manhood. His general appearance so impressed Samuel that he thought he must be the chosen one. The Golden Text fits in here. The outward appearance that men value so much, counts for nothing with God unless the inward is to match. Again, the outward appearance may be despised of men, and the inward too, but chosen and accepted of God.

It seems as if the seven sons were twice brought before Samuel without any intimation of choice from the Lord. Are here all thy children? No, there was the youngest, the baby of the family, who did not, as yet, count for much beside the other seven. He was brought, a fine looking youth, fresh from the field. The Lord said, This is he, anoint him. It surely was a great surprise. It is hardly fair or safe to guess how the anointing of David affected the family and the whole assembly.

The Spirit of the Lord came upon David.—In this case—and so far, a testimony that he was the accepted, and anointed of the Lord to be the king of Israel.

There is no special anointing now for servants of the Lord. There is one charge for all from God, through Jesus Christ, "Repent ye and believe the gospel," Mark i. 14, 15. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," Mark xvi. 15, 16. Neither does it need the laying on of hands to enable or appoint a man to preach.

Next Lesson, David and Goliath. 1 Sam. xvii. 32-51.

P. XENIA.

Faithful Believers in the Gospel of the Kingdom, in Michigan, Greeting:

Please read carefully the following "Report of Committee," and consider the great needs of gospel work in this state. God does not want you to give one dollar for his work that comes grudgingly, but he has said, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly," and "He which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully."

It is very necessary that more gospel work be done in Michigan. The call comes from many places, "Come and help us." You, dear reader, perhaps have been called and chosen, others are still out of Christ with no hope of eternal life. Your money may send the message of salvation to one of these unfortunate ones. Do not withhold it. If you cannot send all you desire to, send what you can, let God give the increase. We have, already, the promise of a months' work from Evangelist H. G. Huggins, of Oregon, Ill. Where shall he sound the Gospel Message first? Let us hear from you, that the committee may decide the best field of labor.

Yours, in the work,
M. A. WOODWARD, Sec'y.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

To the Michigan Yearly Conference of the "Church of God," assembled at Dutton, Greeting:

WHEREAS We all realize the great need of more urgent work being done in the field than is being done, this Committee believes the first act toward that end should be a better financial system. Therefore, we hereby present to the Conference and isolated brethren the following plan:

First, That every member or believer in the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, set apart for this work one dollar ($1.00) each a year, and also pay the sum of ($1.00) on each ($1,000) one thousand dollars assessed valuation of their property, this to be paid semi-annually to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, Hastings, Barry Co., Mich., R. F. D.

Second, That each church or company of believers appoint one of their members to collect this money from their Church and send to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, semi-annually. All isolated members do the same, or send to the Church nearest them, if more convenient. If all will co-operate in this plan, it will create a fund which will enable us to keep an Evangelist in the field the most, if not all the time, and will make the burden very light for all, and the result will be surprising.

Accepted and adopted unanimously by the Conference assembled.

Committee: R. LAKE,
A. K. RICHARDSON,
H. RAMMOND,
WM. MOSES,
WM. MCCRODAN.

We have lately written a number of letters to some of our patrons who are affected by the new postal laws. We trust they will each see the importance of immediately replying to us, so that all trouble can be saved. If in any case there is an error, we shall be very glad to have it pointed out, so that it can be corrected.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, the resurrection of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Restitution.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 22, 1908.

WE hope all who receive letters concerning the new rules and regulations will give prompt attention to the call; as it is necessary to avoid trouble.

As there are five Wednesdays in the month of July, the issues of July 22 and August 5 will be consecutive numbers, and no paper will be printed on July 29.

WE have just received a detailed obituary of Brother E. M. Anderson, notice of whose death appears in another part of this paper. This will be given in our next issue.

A SENSATIONAL story is printed in the Novoe Vremya of St. Petersburg in which Germany is charged with having developed plans for an attack on England. The matter is all mapped out in detail, the reason for the German Emperor's rage being the increasing friendship between England and Russia. This report is purely sensational, as great wars do not start in this manner. If war comes between these two nations, it will come about in a very different way.

BROTHER John Foore has issued nine different tracts, the titles being—The Great Divine Healer vs. Last day Healers, The Stature of Christ, The Resurrection, The Kingdom of God, To the law and the testimony, The Judgment, Is Baptism essential to salvation, The lost faith restored, Life and death. Others will be issued as he procures means. Each of these tracts cost five cents or more to print and it costs one cent postage to send them out. Brother Foore offers to give them to ministers, to the aged, and the poor. He only asks for your name and address. Those who are able to pay he would like to have you buy his tracts so he can get back the cost of making them. He says he is not begging for money from brethren, but thinks a perusal of his writings will do you good, so is anxious to get them out to all who will read. Let all who wish Brother Foore's writings send to him at 2012 W. Corning ave. Parsons, Kansas.

BROTHER J. L. Wince gave the Plymouth Church two very instructive discourses on last Sunday. In the morning he took up the subject of the Nature of Man, proving that man is a unit being—not dual, or possessed of an immortal soul, which some claim is the real man. That by nature, man is a mortal being, subject to death, and that only by a resurrection from the dead can he have any life hereafter. In the evening discourse he showed how nicely all other doctrines fit in with the idea of the morning sermon. That God's Word is not Yea and Nay, but Yea and Amen. Infidels like to find discrepancies, but the Christian seeks to see the harmony and clearness in all that God has said of man to man. Our hope of eternal life, of immortality, of redemption from death is dependent on our union with Christ, is conditional and not inherent. Our Salvation does not come at death, but at the second coming of Jesus Christ, and the establishment of God's Kingdom on the earth. All the points made by Brother Wince were abundantly sustained by Scripture quotations, and his arguments were logical and conclusive. All who listened enjoyed a rare treat, and those who were absent missed hearing two of the best discourses ever given at the Plymouth Church.

Zionist Meeting.

The following two clippings from the daily press will inform our readers of an important Conference of the American Zionists just held.

New York, July 10.—Announcement was made in Jewish circles and through the Jewish press of this country that important communications from the leaders of the international Zionist movement will be made known at the eleventh annual conference of American Zionists, which will open at Atlantic City on Friday, July 10, and will continue until Wednesday, July 15.

Letters will be read at the convention from Herr David Wolffsohn, president of the Zionist congress; Dr. Max Nordau, Prof. O. Warburg of the Palestine commission, Berlin; Joseph Cowen of the Jewish colonial trust, London; the Rev. Dr. Moses Gaster of the English Federation of Zionists.

A communication from the executive head of the international movement will make known certain important facts in regard to the recent political negotiations for securing privileges from the Turkish government for the settlement of the Jews in Palestine.

The announcement will be made of the proposed organization of a new colony in Palestine for the benefit of the homeless in Israel by 100 American Jews. This colony will be founded by the Achusath Nachla association, which has recently been organized here for that purpose.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 14 —"At no time in the history of Zionism is it more necessary than now to hold on to the fundamental principle of our movement," declared the Rev. M. Gaster, president of the federation and rabbi of Great Britain, in a letter read before the convention of the Federation of American Zionists here today.

"The principle," continued the rabbi, "is to obtain for the Jews that freedom of mind and of body which even in the most enlightened countries is denied them.

"This can only be realized when our people are gathered in the old land, when they are no longer exposed to the disintegrating influences of other nations, in whose midst they live, and by whom the Jews are considered to be a disintegrating element."

The Sabbath.

While on a visit recently, among brethren of a distant State, and somewhat isolated, I, for the first time, made the acquaintance of people, who call themselves, "The Seventh Day Church of God." I at first, thought it was a name adopted by this little company of isolated ones, but have since learned, that the name represents quite a large and growing body. They hold with THE RESTITUTION people, on essential doctrines, but claim to have recently discovered a new truth, not generally understood by the main body of the Church of God, viz., That the ten commandments, was a perpetual covenant, distinct and separate from what they term the sacrificial law, and was given to all people, both Jew and Gentile, and being perpetual has never been changed or disannulled, nor can be. Therefore, it is the duty of all Christians, to observe the Sabbath, and keep it holy. Like all of our people, who consent to ride hobbies, they have fixed their attention and thoughts, on this particular conceit, until it has grown to such proportions in their eyes, as to completely overshadow all other truth. Salvation through faith in Jesus, and his gospel is almost lost sight of, and the keeping of the Sabbath has become to them the Christian's first duty, and the distinguishing mark or line which separates God's spiritual people from the world. In the few weeks of my sojourn among these brethren, I have learned to love them, and it is a sorrow to me to see to what an absorbing extent they are wrapped up in the meshes of this delusive error; and when I reflect, that this "leaven of unrighteousness," and mistaken zeal, is surely spreading among THE RESTITUTION people, it seems to me that some steps should be taken to correct the error. Paul had occasion to reprove the Galatian brethren, for the same error. Gal iv 9, 10, "But now, after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed labor in vain."

And in writing to the Colossians on the same subject he says, "Let no man therefore, judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of no holy day, or of the new moon, or of the Sabbath days, which are a shadow of things to come, but the body is of Christ." Col ii 16-17.

Paul was evidently alive to the folly of full grown men and women, chasing a shadow, when the substance was a present possession. It has been the experience of many, that the most effective way to combat error, is to ask unanswerable questions. Truth is never troubled by questions. Truth is ever ready to give a reason for its hope; error has no reason to give; and a few timely questions may prove the strongest possible argument to him who undertakes an answer, as well as to those who listen.

It is earnestly contended by these Sabbath keeping brethren, that the Sabbath law was given to man at the creation, and that Enoch, Elijah, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the holy men of old, observed it.

I have studied the Bible history of these holy men very carefully, many details of their every day life are minutely recorded, but not one word can I find which indicates ever so remotely, that any one of them observed the Sabbath, or had any knowledge of a holy day. Surely if so important a law was in force, and observed by these patriarchs, some mention of it, would be found in God's history of their lives. Will some Sabbath keeping brother, explain why this omission?

It is asserted that the Sabbath law was given to all people, for a perpetual covenant. I am unable to find any evidence in the Word, that the Sabbath law was ever given to any people, except to the children of Israel, in the wilderness of sin, (Ex xvi 23-30) and repeated from Mount Sinai, together with numerous laws, for the government of Israel, (see Ex xxi, xxii and xxiii). Ex xxxi 12-17 tells us most distinctly, that it was "a sign between God and Israel, throughout Israel's generations. That it might be known, that they were a sanctified or separate people, and that it should be a sign between God, and the children of Israel for ever." If the Sabbath was a sign between God and Israel, to show that Israel was a sanctified, or separated people, it surely follows, that no other people had part or parcel in it.

Will my Sabbath keeping brother give us some Scripture texts, showing when, and by whom, the Sabbath yoke was placed upon the neck of Gentile nations, and also please make mention of any nations, or individuals, except Israel, that have observed it. If the 4th commandment is still in force, and upon all people, it is high time that the entire Church of God, knew about it. Just one clear passage to that effect, dear brethren. I assure you we will believe, and obey, if you will produce it, for no one of us, can afford to live in open rebellion to any of God's commands. "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

STEPHEN HARVEY.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

I am still on the land and among the living; but have been poorly all winter. I am still strong in the faith, and looking for our Redeemer and our Life Giver. When he comes will he find the faith on the earth? It seems to me that the signs of the times bespeaks his coming nigh. It looks as though the people are drifting away after pleasure, pride, and popularity. They want smooth things prophesied to them. The preachers fail to declare the whole counsel of God to them. Talk to the people about the promises made to the fathers, and about the return of the Jews, and the coming of Christ to establish his kingdom on earth, and they know nothing and care less about it. They are led away by the cunning craftiness of men. They fail to study for themselves. The world is growing worse and worse all the time. All nations are preparing for the fulfilling of Ezekiel 38th and 39th chapters. The Zionist movement will bring about the fulfillment of the 37th chapter of Ezekiel.

Oh, how many there are that are not looking for these things. They have closed their eyes and stopped their ears lest they should see, hear, and be saved. Not every one that saith Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Man judgeth the outward appearance but God judgeth the heart.

We read in James ii. 18, Yea, a man may say, Thou hath faith and I have works. Show me thy faith without thy works and I will show thee my faith by my works. Read the rest of the chapter. We see that faith without works is dead, being alone. When Christ comes will he say to the man with the gold ring and gay clothes, Sit up here, and to the poor man, Sit there, or, Sit under my footstool? No, it is the poor of this world, rich in faith that are heirs of the kingdom.

It is the custom of the people nowadays to look kindly to the man with the gay apparel; but, remember, God looks on the heart. He cannot be deceived but we poor mortals can. All hidden things will be brought to light in the Sweet By and By, when all the redeemed will meet on that beautiful shore where partings will be no more, where sickness, sorrow, pain nor death can not come.

May you and I, dear reader, be of that number is my prayer.

Yours, waiting for our King.

JESSE HAROLD.

Questions on Sunday School Lesson July 26.

SAUL REJECTED BY THE LORD.

Golden Text.—The Lord our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey. Josh xxiv. 24.

I SAM. XV.

13. And Samuel came to Saul: and Saul said unto him, Blessed be thou of the Lord: I have performed the commandment of the Lord.

14. And Samuel said, What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?

15. And Saul said, They have brought them from the Amalekites: for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed.

16. Then Samuel said unto Saul, Stay, and I will tell thee what the Lord hath said to me this night. And he said unto him, Say on.

17. And Samuel said, When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and the Lord anointed thee king over Israel?

18 And the Lord sent thee on a journey, and said, Go and utterly destroy the sinners the Amalekites, and fight against them until they be consumed.

19. Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the Lord, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the Lord?

20. And Saul said unto Samuel, Yea, I have obeyed the voice of the Lord, and have gone the way which the Lord sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites.

21. But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the things which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice unto the Lord thy God in Gilgal.

22. And Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.

23. For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being king.

24. And Saul said unto Samuel, I have sinned: for I have transgressed the commandment of the Lord, and thy words: because I feared the people, and obeyed their voice.

25 Now therefore, I pray thee, pardon my sin, and turn again with me, that I may worship the Lord.

26. And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee: for thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, and the Lord hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.

27. And as Samuel turned about to go away, he laid hold upon the skirt of his mantle, and it rent.

28. And Samuel said unto him, The Lord hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee this day, and hath given it to a neighbor of thine, that is better than thou.

DAVID ANOINTED AT BETHLEHEM.

Golden Text—Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. I Sam. xvi. 7.

I SAMUEL XVI. 1-13.

1. And the Lord said unto Samuel, How long will thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? fill thine horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Bethlehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons.

2. And Samuel said, How can I go? if Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the Lord said, Take a heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to the Lord.

3. And call Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will shew thee what thou shalt do: and thou shalt anoint unto me him whom I name unto thee.

4. And Samuel did that which the Lord spake, and came to Bethlehem. And the elders of the town trembled at his coming, and said, Comest thou peaceably?

6. And it came to pass, when they were come, that he looked on Eliab, and said, Surely the Lord's anointed is before him.

7. But the Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.

8. Then Jesse called Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, Neither hath the Lord chosen this.

9. Then Jesse made Shammah to pass by. And he said, Neither hath the Lord chosen this.

10. Again, Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel. And Samuel said unto Jesse, The Lord hath not chosen these.

11. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him: for we will not sit down till he come hither.

12. And he sent and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, and withal of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. And the Lord said, Arise, anoint him: for this is he.

13. Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah.

Obituary.

Levi Harris Shugart, the eldest son of Zebariah T. and Susanna Shugart, was born in Wayne County, Indiana, near Fountain City, October 22, 1827, and died at his home in Chelsea, Iowa, July 2, 1908 at the age of 80 years, 8 months and 10 days.

From the time of his birth until he was fourteen years old he lived with his parents near Fountain City and then moved with them to Cass County, Michigan where he remained until 26 years of age when with the family he moved to York township, Tama County, Iowa arriving July 23, 1854. Here he homesteaded a farm upon which he lived fifty-one years, and moved to Chelsea, Iowa, April 2, 1904.

On February 17, 1859 he was married to Nancy Overturf. To them were born two children, Laura Belle and Noah Kaflin who both remain to mourn. Five years after this marriage his wife died and on August 4, 1867 he was married to Catherine Ashby who is left to mourn together with six children, 30 grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

At the age of 22 he united with the Quaker Church and remained a member of that society until 1870. Being at all times of deep religious feeling and indefatigable student of the Bible he in that year embraced the glad tidings of the gospel and united with the Restitution Church of Irving, which he served many years as elder.

His Bible study was the chief recreation of his life and his knowledge of the Word of God was considered wonderful by all who knew him. He enjoyed nothing more than the discussion of religious subjects and never lost sight of his Master's command, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations .....teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Before his death Brother Shugart requested that the writer should preach his funeral sermon, which was done. The service took place at the home of the deceased in Chelsea on the morning of Sunday, July 5th, and was largely attended.

After pointing out from the Bible that all men were mortal and of necessity must die, we held out hope in the words of Jesus, "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

Where Are the Dead?

Every seat in the Synod Hall (the largest hall in Edinburgh) was occupied last evening, when a lecture was delivered by Dr. John Edgar, of the Royal Samaritan Hospital, Glasgow, on the subject "Where are the Dead?" Dr. Edgar briefly summarized all that science and philosophy had to tell us regarding the dead, and then went on to discuss the topic on lines akin to those of the Conditional Immortality cult. He quoted numerous passages of Scripture in support of his argument, and met others which seemed to militate against it by declaring that they had been mistranslated or badly punctuated. There were no punctuation marks in the old manuscripts. This latter explanation Dr. Edgar applied to the dying thief on the cross, the word "today" belonging, he maintained, to the first part of the sentence, not the second. Speaking of the Hebrew word "Sheol" sometimes translated "Hell" and sometimes "the grave," Dr. Edgar said that a similar double usage of the word "hell" formerly obtained in English. Farmers once spoke of "helling" their potatoes. That did not, of course, mean that the potatoes were roasted. It simply meant that they were buried in the ground or pit.—Edinburgh Evening News.

The temper in which a man holds his views is nearly as important as the soundness of his views. There is a vast deal of truth held and preached, in the pulpit and out of it, in such a belligerent and bitter temper, that for all the good it does, it might as well be error. Truth is not only to enter a man's brain, but his heart, and provide the atmosphere as well as the instruments for moral service. Paul did not think that sound views, held in an unlovely temper, could do no good, for he rejoiced that Christ was preached even "of envy and strife" but his ideal was "speaking the truth in love."

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

The Bible.

Whence but from heaven could men unskilled in arts,
In several ages born, in several parts,
Weave such agreeing truths? or how, or why,
Should all conspire to cheat us with a lie?
Unasked their pains, ungrateful their advice,
Starving their gain, and martyrdom their price.

—Dryden.

Act as We Profess.

I believe that the deepest wound that the Son of God received while on earth was from Judas. The Roman soldier's spear did not cut as deep as the kiss of Judas. He professed to be a friend, and yet he betrayed his Lord and Master. We should not profess one thing and do the opposite. No Christian has ever bought the friendship of the world without disloyalty to Christ. Are we his friends? Then let us not show any quarter to his enemies, but let us stand up against them and fight them, knowing that we shall come off more than conquerors through him that loved us.—D. L. Moody.

His Blessing.

When we are in the spirit to kneel to touch the hem of his garments we are sure of a blessing. Some of the Lord's gifts can only be bestowed when we are resting low at his feet, weak and weary, just waiting to be filled with his power; then with his touch upon our eyes to remove our blindness we can see the way he appoints, in this new life we will be content to go or stay, listening to his messengers as they bring his word to us to comfort and cheer us in the narrow way.—Episcopal Recorder.

Everlasting Life.

Life, unqualified by the adjectives eternal and everlasting, is highly cherished by all. It is freighted with sorrow, laden with affliction, burdened with care, yet we love it, and do all we can to prolong it. In matters of taste and fancy we notice that one thing desired by one is discarded by another. This is true in important as well as trivial matters. For instance, one man will try to gain a [illegible] of the truth, forsake sin and try to lead a godly life; another man, equally intelligent, pays no attention to the Bible and the precious truth it reveals, and by a certain course of education arrives at the point in which he discards the whole. But upon the theme of life all are united; all consider it pre-eminently important. Short as it is, all love it. Saint and sinner do all they can to prolong it. "All that a man hath will he give for his life." Job ii 4. If they are sick money is freely expended, sacrifices are made to "put off" the grim monster, and, like Hezekiah of old, all are desirous of adding numbers to their years. Isa xxxviii. The miner must have life to hoard up his wealth, the avaricious to get gain, and the saint to praise God; for "the dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence. Psa cxv 17.

Let us now pass from temporal to eternal existence. Everlasting life is a life without any death in it; and eternal death is a death without any life in it. One is the opposite of the other. One is the reward of the righteous, the other that of the wicked. Eternal life is a subject of promise. 1 John ii 25. It is a branch of the Christian's hope. Titus i 2. It is hid with Christ in God. Col iii 4. The wicked do not have this promise of life; therefore they will never receive it. "No murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." 1 John iii 15. What is true of one class of the wicked is true of them all. Eternal life will far outweigh the present life in importance. It will be endless, boundless, shoreless,—free from sorrow, crying, pain and death. Rev xxi 4. Its possessors will enjoy eternal happiness and immortal vigor forever. They will unite their heavenly voices in chanting God's glory and in celebrating his praise forevermore. Soon the glorious morn will dawn when eternal life will be given to the worthy of the human race. Soon the face of the Son of man will be seen through the dividing clouds, as the sun bursts in glorious splendor through the rifted clouds to fill the world with light. Soon that day will come in all its splendor, beauty and loveliness. Soon we will unite our voices in praises with the angels who will accompany our Redeemer to the earth, and the dulcet music will roll over the bright landscape and echo back from the golden-crowned hill-tops in the Land of Promise. Dear children of the blessed God, and brethren of our Redeemer, let us wait, watch and pray for that glorious day.

Proved by Its Works.

The Endeavor World publishes an argument which Dr. George F. Pentecost had with an atheist. The latter said that his reason for not believing in the Bible was because he did not know the author. Dr. Pentecost replied:

"Well, my friend, is the multiplication table a work of authority with mathematicians?"

"Most certainly."

"Do you happen to know who the author of that table is?"

In a moment he frankly confessed his ignorance, upon which Dr. Pentecost added:

"Then I suppose, as a matter of fact, being a scientific man and a conscientious skeptic, you never use the multiplication table?"

"O, yes," he replied, "it proves itself to be true by its works."

"Then, my friend," said Dr. Pentecost, "leaving on one side all those hair-splitting questions of science and criticism, shall we not be allowed to say that we know that the Bible is a work of absolute authority in religion and morals—whether we know its human authors or not—because it works well in its own sphere, just as the multiplication table works in its sphere?"

Brother Anderson is Dead.

We were made sad when we read the following letter from Brother J. H. Anderson, dated Pelzer, S. C., July 11th

Brother Huggins:

My father, Elder E. M. Anderson, died July 9, 1908, of typhoid pneumonia, contracted by nursing his son, William, who died June 12, 1908. Father was born July 26, 1842, in Henderson County, N. C. He had baptized between three and four hundred during his ministry. His labors are over; his work will follow him. Dear Brother, please say something about him in THE RESTITUTION. You knew him in North Carolina.

Your Brother,

J. H. ANDERSON.

Our readers will recall the fact that we had just succeeded in locating Brother Anderson, writer of the above letter, our chum in beautiful school-days; and now just when we were rejoicing over our renewal of acquaintance, here comes the sad news of his father's death. We were raised in Polk County, N. C.; Brother E. M. Anderson lived in Henderson County; and although he had to walk a distance of about twelve miles, and climb the Blue Ridge mountains, too, yet he used to preach once a month near my home in a little school house. He baptized both my sisters: Dovie Ann, now deceased, and Mary Jane, now Sister Eastman, of Liverpool, England. We were about ten years old when he preached in the old-fashioned school house, and well do we remember his masterly sermons and exhortations. We have since heard many preachers and speakers, but to our way of thinking, none of them compare with Brother Anderson in eloquence, perfect delivery, and might in the Scriptures. Though very young, we profited greatly by the ministry of our brother whom now we mourn in death. He always stayed at our house, and today, when we deliver a sermon, Brother Anderson is indirectly speaking through us. Dear Brother John, accept my heart-felt sympathy in the great loss you have sustained in the death of your father. I presume the flock of God's people at Pelzer, now that they have lost their pastor, will look to you for food and nourishment in a spiritual way; and I fervently pray God that all your father's fervency, eloquence and marvelous power of expounding the Holy Scriptures, may be reproduced in you. May the spirit of your father rest upon you.

1 Cor. xv 22.

Does Paul in 1 Cor xv 22 mean the saints only, or all who have lived from Adam till Christ comes?

KATHRYN TOWNSEND.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

People who quote 1 Cor xv 22 to prove the resurrection of all, whether just or unjust, interpret the "all" in the first clause of the verse as being identical with "all" in the latter part of the passage. Then they reason that as "all" in the first clause includes every one who has sprung from Adam, the second "all" must embrace the same parties. There is a superficial plausibility in this argument and reasoning. But when we look at the context and get the primary thought in the apostle's mind before he penned the 22nd verse, and then thoughtfully examine the verse itself, we are led to abandon such a broad application of the text as unwarranted and to restrict the passage in its scope and meaning to the righteous only.

Some of the brethren in Corinth had denied the doctrine of the resurrection. The apostle's hypothetical statement, "if the dead rise not," used several times in the chapter (vs 16, 17), indicates as much, even if we had not his express statement that "some" among them had denied the resurrection in so many words. (vs 12). To overthrow this dangerous doctrine of non-resurrection the apostle proceeds to demonstrate that there had been a resurrection (of Christ), verse 20, and that there must be a resurrection of all who are "Christ's" (vs 23); if not, then they were confronted with the direful effects of being in their sins, the nullification of faith, and perishing as a finality. vs 17-19. These disastrous results would affect not the unjust, but the saints themselves, instancing himself (vs 32) and all they which are "fallen asleep in Christ." vs 18. Note with care that throughout the chapter Paul is showing how the non-resurrection of the dead would effect the righteous—"they that are Christ's at his coming." vs 23.

With this thought firmly fixed in mind, we have no trouble in interpreting the 22nd verse. It is as clear as a bell. "In Adam all die; even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Some people with childish simplicity suppose that when they find the word "all" in the Bible, that every human being in the universe is meant, both dead and living. Sister Townsend, of course, is not among this word-snatching class; still for the information of the uninstructed reader, perhaps it is our duty to say that "all" is used twice in 1 Cor xv 22, each time preceded by the modifying terms, "in Adam", "in Christ." All in Adam are one class; all in Christ is another and distinct class. If I were to say, "In Indiana all the brethren are well," the word "all", while a universal term, would be squeezed within the limits of Indiana. "In Adam all die." Without controversy the word "[illegible] in the text as [illegible] limited in its scope by the words, "[illegible] nam". It does not touch thousands of the human race. Thousands of people have "fallen asleep in Christ" (vs 18), have died "in the Lord". Rev xiv 13. These are saints, the people who have transferred themselves out of Adam into Christ. They have put "off" the old man, and put "on" the new man, Christ Jesus, by baptism. This is the way to "put on Christ". Gal iii 27. After they have thus been inducted into Christ, they are said to be "in Christ", to "walk in him", to die in him, to "sleep in Jesus". 2 Thess iv 14. So when we read, "In Adam all die; even so in Christ shall all be made alive," it is clear that we are reading about two classes of people. The first "all" is limited to those "in Adam"; the second "all" is limited to those "in Christ". "All" then, in both clauses, is used in a universal sense; both are equally comprehensive; and yet the terms are applied in the two statements to different parties. "All" is universal in both clauses, but different universals are meant. To express our understanding of the text, we paraphrase it thus: "As in Adam all related to him, as their head, die; so in Christ all related to him, as their head, shall be made alive." Think for a moment how natural this interpretation is. Why does "in Adam all die", include all mankind, and exclude all except the human race? Because it speaks of those, and only those, who owe their physical being to their connection with Adam. In perfect analogy with this, the "all in Christ" refers to all those, and only those, who owe their spiritual existence to their connection with Christ. The first "all" includes all natural men, and excludes all who are not men, because it has to do with natural generation: the second "all" includes all who are believers in Christ, and excludes all who are not believers, because it applies to spiritual generation. If you are "in Adam", you are in the first "all"; if you are "in Christ", you are in the second "all".

Now the apostle says of those who are in Christ that they "shall be made alive". The Greek word zoopoieo, here rendered "made alive", is translated "quickened" in Rom viii 11. Here the great apostle limits the application of the word to those in whom the "spirit of Him that raised up Jesus from the dead", dwells. The wicked are raised from the dead simply as an act of power and judgment; they are not "made alive" or "quickened" into immortal life by the Spirit. But the people "in Christ" are "made alive"; that is, they are not merely raised from the dead as mortal beings, but as Paul says in 1 Cor xv, they are raised "incorruptible", "in honor", "in spiritual bodies", "in glory". vs. 42-44. Daniel says the wicked are raised to "shame and contempt". Dan xii 2. Certainly there is no "glory" in that. Hence we conclude that Paul throughout 1 Cor xv is talking about the resurrection of the righteous to glory, honor, immortality and eternal life.

Sunday Morning Address.

Delivered in the Lord:

Our meeting here this morning implies that we are interested in two great events which have to do with the earth: The death of Christ, and His coming again. Of the first, we are told to keep it in memory. Why keep it in memory? Because the second would be of no benefit to us without the first. The apostle Paul was very [illegible]

Communicated.

Christ's Temptation.

MATT IV 1-11.

After Jesus had been baptized by John in the Jordan, the Holy Spirit descended like a dove and lighted upon him, then he was led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil.

The first temptation was that of the flesh in the form of hunger. "And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights he was afterwards an hungered. Jesus knew that he had power to command stones to be changed into bread, but he also being a student of the Scriptures knew that "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Thus he overcame the first temptation, but again he was tempted. Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city and setteth him on the pinnacle of the temple and saith unto him, if thou be the Son of God cast thyself down, for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee, and in their hands they shall bear thee up. But Jesus said unto him, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." Thus Jesus overcame the second temptation which was a desire for worldly fame and honors.

But again the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them, and saith unto him, All these things will I give thee if thou will fall down and worship me. The third time Jesus overcame the temptation of evil, for he said, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

Then the devil left him and angels came and ministered unto him. Just who or what this devil was was then discussed. We are told that Christ was tempted in all points like as we, and knowing that no personal being other than the disposition within us tempts us gives some assurance that Christ's temptation was in like manner. Any man who permits evil to rule him is considered a devil for such Christ said [illegible]. The apostle James says [illegible] tempts no man, but every [illegible] tempted when he is drawn [illegible] lust or desire [illegible]

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the annual meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conference at Salem will remember the meetings here among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one in being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing; for we shall reap if we faint not.

A New Tract

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Prov 2 Tim. 3. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt 20. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

By them these tracts have gone into many families, both to believers and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and stamps are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

One Year $1.50, Six Months 75 Cents, Three Months 40 Cents.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and State, plainly and distinctly. We have a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps are bulky and are not desired. Money can not be safely returned if sent in letters. Money sent in registered letters is not guaranteed by the postoffice.

When you send your money order and ask it to be drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and not to be payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not IN. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending new subscribers give the exact name to which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the numbering to start with the next issue. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband, George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying not to send the paper here any more. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and after weeks when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid it seems—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable time and labor on an important subject and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has been provided to hold it, addresses it, puts on a stamp, stuffs and clips it in the last. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points. He did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he did not fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Friendship, Love and Truth.

How proud to see, how fair in youth,
Are holy friendship, love, and truth
From these bright hill ous mountains flow
Immortal rills of pleasure;
Can man desire, can heaven bestow
A more resplendent treasure?
Adorned with gems so richly bright,
We'll form a constellation,
Where every star, with modest light
Shall gild his proper station.
How proud to see, how fair in youth,
Are holy friendship, love, and truth.

Salvation. No. 7.

THE RESURRECTION.

The doctrine of the resurrection is vital and fundamental to a valid faith: in fact there could be no faith nor gospel without it, and salvation would be robbed of its meaning. The fitting motto of the human race would be, "Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die." An eternal sleep would be the doom of all. The resurrection of the great head of the church ranks first in the plan of redemption. This is one important fact pertaining to his name. In apostolic preaching to establish this by the testimony of credible witnesses was primary to all else. His death followed by no resurrection would mean no more than the death of any other man dying in like manner. Paul says "he was raised for our justification." All his marvelous claims so unboastingly set forth in his preaching would have amounted to nothing if he had been left in the tomb. His resurrection was what perplexed the Jewish leaders, and while they knew that they could not silence the voice of his Galilean followers they were confident that by bribing the guard to report a lie, they could prevent their own nation from accepting the new religion, based upon the resurrection of the Man they so thoroughly hated. Having been wicked enough to compass his death they were equal to the strategy of propagating a lie successfully as far as the Jewish nation was concerned—a people only too willing to join with these leaders.

When the doctrine of the resurrection was called in question as it was by some of the Corinthian Church the apostle summons the numerous witnesses to the fact of the Lord's resurrection, the most of whom were still living and could be appealed to as all sufficient proof of the fact, which once established, a future resurrection of the righteous dead was asserted beyond question. Upon the written testimony of those early witnesses who saw and heard, handled and ate with the risen Son of God, rests our faith and hope today as on a rock that can not be shaken. Whoever regards the testimony of these witnesses as insufficient to establish the great foundation fact of the Christian religion must live and die—"take a leap in the dark"—without the saving faith of the gospel. Unbelief is all such as he may be ranks in the category of infidels. The fact is, thus rejecting this testimony, a man is logically bound to reject the facts of all history and of those of every day occurrence. This would relieve him in the light of a most unreasonable creature. It will not save him from this charge, for him to say as did Ingersol, that a miracle can not be established by the testimony of witnesses. This is only by assumption. A fact is a fact whether miraculous or common; whether taking place, as the latter, according to the known laws of nature, or as the former, by the will and direct power of God as its antecedents. God in his goodness and wisdom has suspended man's salvation on the belief of the testimony of chosen witnesses. Man is not walk by faith, and not by sight in the matter of salvation.

The resurrection of Jesus was esteemed so important that the apostle said, "Now if Christ is preached that he rose from the dead how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there is no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen; and if Christ is not risen, then is our preaching vain and your faith as vain. Yea and we are found false witnesses of God: because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not." 1 Cor xv 12-15. It was the future resurrection of believers that some of the church were denying, on, perhaps philosophic grounds. Plato's doctrine then, as now, would lead them to deny the possibility of a physical resurrection that would be of any advantage; holding that the body raised would not be different in nature or enduring qualities than the one that fell under the power of death. This is fairly implied in the question which Paul puts in the mouth of one of these objectors. But some man will say "How are the dead raised up, and with what body do they come?" And also implied in the apostle's reply. Paul regarded the resurrection of the church as so closely related to the resurrection of Christ, that to deny the former was equivalent to denying the latter, which would be the setting aside of the testimony of the witnesses and making their preaching vain. The 17, 18 verses state additional consequences. If Christ is not raised your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins: then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If so all hope would be limited to the present life. "Let us eat and drink for tomorrow we die." Christ's resurrection is proof and promise of the resurrection of his church. The philosophic objectors in the Corinthian church had not thought of the very serious consequences following their denial of a future resurrection. Paul's enumeration doubtless opened their eyes and re-established them in the faith of the gospel he preached several years before, when he founded the church in that city.

There are men today occupying pulpits and professor's chairs in theological seminaries and colleges, who deny a future literal resurrection of the dead. Now I ask will not Paul's language in the 15th chapter of 1 Cor. apply to them? I will ask in these words not Corinth in the first century? It is true these moderns retain the word resurrection but give to it a meaning unknown to Bible writers, denying an immortal soul (?) out of a corruptible body at the moment of death or something they call death, is not the resurrection of the dead. The resurrection of the dead takes place at the coming of the Lord and is just as literal as was his from the tomb of Joseph. At the date of Paul's first letter to the Thessalonians none of the members of the church had died for these the living were comforting and his exhortation to the living was "that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope." The heathen world sorrowed or mourned without hope. If the doctrine of a resurrection at death is true here was the fitting occasion for the apostle to have affirmed it as the ground of hope. Why did he not say that these deceased ones were resurrected at the moment of death, and thus consoled the bereaved, instead of pointing them onward to the distant event of the Lord's coming as the ground of hope and consolation? For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. 1 Thess iv 14. "Even so" denotes that the resurrection of believers will be similar to raising Jesus from the dead as he "the great shepherd of the sheep was brought from the dead." Heb xiii 20. He was the first fruit of them that sleep. 1 Cor xv 20. Says the apostle, "For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. (dead) for the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." 1 Thess iv 15-17. These words were the ground of comfort in Paul's day, and so should be today. The whole passage is opposed to the notion of a resurrection at death and a flight to heaven of an immortal soul only. Many funeral discourses are preached and the words the apostle enjoins are left out and other words substituted.

"Sleep in Jesus" denotes relationship to him. They were baptized into him, lived in him, and died in him and will be raised in him. Whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live or die, we are the Lord's: for to this end Christ both died, and rose and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and the living." Rom xiv 8, 9. What a blessed relationship! The place of sleep is the grave or the dust of the earth. "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life." Dan xii 2. See John v 28, 29. I have aimed to quote a few of the plainer texts in the Scriptures on the subject of the resurrection, but these few are sufficient to settle the question as to what it is, and the time of its occurrence.

JOHN L. WISE.

Dear Restitution:

The dear household at Hammond, Louisiana, is made happy because another has decided to cast his lot with the disciples of the Lord who believe the gospel of the kingdom of Christ and are looking for his return to bring the inheritance to the saints.

Alfred, eldest son of Brother and Sister Authon, a young man of every good quality, has become obedient to the faith, being well informed upon the promises made to the fathers of old, to whose fulfillment he firmly believes. He is born anew, washed entirely clean in the blood of the Savior, whose name he now openly bears. There is another birth in store for him, promised to all who have become one in Christ. Now the righteous are subject to death, as are the wicked. In the third birth we come forth in incorruption and immortality, we become possessed with spiritual bodies and we shall die no more. Who can blame us for looking for and longing for the Lord's Day?

Brother Alfred enters upon his last year at the University of Louisiana in September and is a student of the best order. He is of the editorial force of the University journal and is highly respected at Baton Rouge, the seat of the institution.

It was a joyous week I was permitted to spend with the dear ones at Hammond, the first since eight years ago, when dear Sister Bessie rose out of a watery grave into a new bright life. Would that the stay could have been longer, much longer, but this was to a day all that could possibly be spared. Each night and twice on Sunday we met at Happy Woods, the home of Brother Wilson's Pine Woods Bible Class, and as the time was so limited, we did not stop with sermons, but had Bible lectures, thrown four sermons in one. This did not keep the good, busy people at home. They all showed to the fullest their interest in the work and the word of the Lord. I can not express adequately my sense of appreciation of their faithfulness.

Time is too short to permit of enlargement upon the themes treated, solemn and glad lessons out of "The Book," things all old, though sometimes put in a new dress, yet ever old, as plainly taught by holy men, into whom God had breathed spiritual life, or as plainly shown by God's handiwork all about us.

May the seed sown at Hammond be nurtured faithfully by every disciple that my Restitution be sure and fast.

Yours in the One Hope,
J. G. HARRIS.

Obituary.

It is with great sadness of heart that I announce the death of our esteemed and beloved Brother and pastor, E. M. Anderson. He fell asleep in Jesus July 9, 1908, at the home of his only daughter, Sister Nellie Howard, at Pelzer, S. C.

He was born in Henderson Co. N. C. July 26, 1842, and was aged 65 years 11 months and 13 days. He spent the greater part of his life in North Carolina, where he was once a popular preacher in the Baptist Church, being the pastor of quite a large congregation at a point twenty miles south of Ashville. In his investigation of the Bible, he learned the truth, and when he did he honestly told his congregation how his views had changed. The door of the church was closed against him. His people wanted him to renounce the new doctrine, and remain their pastor, but he said, No, I must preach the truth; and he held services just across the road from the church, in a grove, from week to week, until he had converted enough of the members of the congregation to control the church building, and from that time he held services in the building. He converted almost all the members of his old congregation.

About fourteen years ago he moved to Pelzer, S. C. where he soon found a neighborhood five miles west where the people let him have a school house in which to hold services. He was permitted to use this school house two Sundays, and then it was also closed against him. Then he went to the place where the Church of God now stands, which we call Guthrie Grove, and continued his preaching. He has been preaching the gospel of the kingdom for nearly forty years, has organized eight or nine churches, and baptized between three and four hundred persons.

His life has been a noble one, and has now drawn to a close. Faithful was he in the Master's cause, even unto death. While on his death bed he called his oldest son, Brother John Anderson, to him and said, "John, I want you and Brother Durham, and the other brothers and sisters to carry on the work." All the day before he died he tried to whisper something about the church, but he could not be understood. Never in the history of my life have I known a mortal man like our brother who has just passed away. He loved everybody, even his enemies, who so deceitfully used him. He was always ready to return good for evil. Being persecuted, reproached and evil spoken of by them who obey not the gospel, he bore it all with patience, knowing whom he served, ever looking forward to the time when his Lord should appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

He has been pastor of the Church at Guthrie Grove for twelve years, when he first organized the church. He started with three or four members, and now has about a hundred, with four ordained ministers of the gospel, one of whom is his eldest son John, who will endeavor to carry on the work as pastor.

Like a home without a father, our little flock will begin work again, for as an earthly father would lead his children through this life, he led us in ways of truth and righteousness, ever ready to comfort us in our trials and troubles, strengthening our faith by bringing the word of eternal life to our remembrance. The last sermon he preached was from the words "If a man die shall he live again?" Job xiv, 14.

The funeral sermon was preached at the Church of God at this place by Brother A. N. Durham from Rev. xiv, 13, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." Yes, Brother Anderson's work will follow him, not only through this age, but all eternity. After the sermon the congregation sang his favorite hymn "Hallelujah, we shall rise," and we then laid our Brother to rest in the church cemetery until his Redeemer shall come to awake him from the dead—when he shall hear the call "Come ye blessed of my Father; inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

He leaves a wife, five sons, and one daughter to mourn the loss of a good husband and father. One of the sons is now confined to his bed with that dreadful disease, typhoid fever, which was the cause of the death of his father and a brother not long ago. May God in his mercy comfort the heart-stricken ones, and help them in their every trial, and guide them in the ways of truth and righteousness is my heart-felt prayer.

The many floral tributes, and tears on many faces, spoke louder than words the appreciation of the loving friends, for there was not one present but what had at some time or other sat under the sound of our brother's voice when he sounded out the words of eternal life, and had known what a good and kind friend he was even to his enemies. Never has our little church here felt as weak as it does at this time, but thank God for these words, "When ye are weak then are ye strong. All things work together for good to them that love the Lord." Therefore it is for our good, for judgment begins at the house of God. The work is left now for others to do. He has finished his course and kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for him a crown of righteousness, which the righteous Judge shall give him at that day.

Courage brethren, let us stand together in all good works and in faith. Brother John, take courage, and carry on this work of Christ, for your father has trained you for the past twelve years for this cause. He has lain down better satisfied now than he would have done in years past by, for he knew that you would work on and not let the last church be organized go down. Oh that I could pen a full record of his life, just as it is in Christ Jesus, so that all the household of faith might know just how he ever lived.

May we meet in the kingdom of God where tears shall be wiped away, and there shall be no more sickness and death, for the former things have passed away.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 5, 1908. NUMBER 29.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as a preparation for final salvation.

The writer was permitted the pleasure of a visit with our Brother Peter Jeffreys, and the acquaintance and hospitality of Sister James Jeffreys and family, over Sunday, July 19, at Herrin, Illinois.

Brother Jeffreys has been called to pass through a great affliction in the death of his most devoted, noble Christian wife; which occurred at Lady Lands, near Shotts, Scotland, where he and his wife, with others of the family, a party of eight in number, had gone to visit their native land, and make a tour of Europe. This trip, so full of anticipated pleasure, was turned into mourning and sorrow by the sickness and death of the wife and mother after but six days of health to their native land.

Mary Pettigrew was born at Stan Shotts, Scotland, Dec. 21, 1848, and died at Lady Lands, near Shotts, on June 29, 1908, being 59 years, 6 mo. and 22 days old at her death.

Brother and Sister Jeffreys were married in December, 1866, and to this union was born six children, five boys and one girl, of whom the husband, four boys and the girl are left to mourn the loss of a faithful wife and mother. Yet they "sorrow not as others who have no hope." Sister Jeffreys was baptized into the all-saving name by J. S. Bowyer in 1876, and lived an exemplary Christian life to the day of her death. She sleeps in Jesus.

It was with much difficulty that our Brother got to bring the much loved form back to their adopted home, and the home of their children. He sailed from Scotland July 4, and arrived in Murphysboro, Illinois, July 15. Before leaving their native land services were conducted at Lady Lands by R. K. Strang, of Glasgow, former Editor of the Messenger, an advocate of the resurrection, and the return of the Christ.

At Murphysboro the returning company was met by a large concourse of friends and neighbors, anxious to pay respect to one whom through life they had known only to love and respect for her loveliness of character. Appropriate passages of Scripture, selected by Brother Jeffreys were read and intelligently commented upon by Mr. Foster, of the Presbyterian church of Murphysboro. Followed by a multitude of sorrowing hearts she was laid to rest until the beautiful morn of earth's redemptive glory.

May we each strive to live as pure a life, that we may be permitted to meet our sister in that world made new, where parting shall be no more.

Your brother in hope of life eternal when Jesus comes.

J. H. WILLEY.

Visitors can listen to Brothers Marsh, Adams, Eychaner, Lucas, Austin, Lindsay, and of course Brother Allard will keep all alive and going. The Berean Society have one day to themselves, and Bible School and social meeting features will make variety that will please all. We trust the attendance this year will exceed any year so far. If you have not received a programme send to O. J. Allard, Ft. Dodge, Iowa, and he will have one sent you.

Lord Cromer caused a sensation by his speech in the British House of Lords last week. He gave the government warning that the present "peace" utterances of the rulers of nations was of no avail. There is grave danger that before long England will be involved in an European war. It is supposed that he referred to an attack by Germany, as indicated by the Russian press. There are several conditions that bid fair to cause friction, and it will take some careful wire working to avoid a combat. We must remember that all battles between nations are not with sword and cannon. Statesmen are generals, and often the battles fought in council chambers are greater victories and defeats than when armies contend on the bloody field. If we look toward Morocco we will see a danger point. France by the consent of England and Russia, and the forced silence of Germany has undertaken to quiet matters in Morroco. In doing this the present Sultan, Abdul Aziz, is recognized, and his cause must be maintained. The fact is that he has been defeated all along the line by Mulai el Hafid, the pretender, and is now driven from his capital at Fez, and has only at his disposal some of the seacoast towns which are commanded by the guns of the French ships in port. To regain what the rebels now have will be a long and costly undertaking, and France hesitates before taking the risk. In the eyes of the Mohammedans all European powers are looked upon as grabbing for territory, with the exception of Germany, whom they think is only after trade. An unsettled land and people are not good for commercial enterprises, hence it makes much difference how long this disturbed condition lasts. For German trade the country ruled by Mulai el Hafid is as good as that ruled by Abdul Aziz. For years the Sultan of Turkey has looked to England as his friend, and the Mohammedan world has looked upon England as the one power who did not wish to interfere with their religious observances, nor methods of government. England, with more Mohammedan subjects than the Sultan even, was looked upon as "defender of the faith". For the last 200 years Russia has had her eye on the Bosphorus, and has been counted an enemy to Islam. History tells how she has been checked time after time by Great Britain. Now the sentiment is changing rapidly. England has arranged with France, and upholds her in sustaining an unpopular and offensive ruler in Morocco, when it is plain to be seen she wants to gain influence and territory. Then England next forms an alliance, or "comes to an understanding" with Russia, the long time foe of the Moslem, and Persia, Arabia, and even Turkey are affected by the arrangement. We see the situation:—By the recent compacts of European nations as manipulated by King Edward, Germany occupies the position England held a few years ago, that of "splendid isolation". Even the triple alliance is weakened. England is playing with fire in forming friendships with Russia. She is losing her hold on the Moslem world, and they look to the Kaiser alone as the one on whom they can rely. Should Germany feel strong enough to recognize Mulai el Hafid as Sultan of Morocco, the convention of Algeciras would not be enough to hold peace between her and France. In this way England would be drawn into the conflict. It is a big subject, and we cannot give space to all that bears on it now. This will give a little insight as to the trend at this moment. Watch, for they are all "signs".

JULY 24, 1908 is another historic day in Turkey. December 23, 1876, the first Turkish constitution was proclaimed, and after elections were held the first parliament was opened March 19, 1877. The project of reforms that were to be instituted was abandoned when, April 24, 1877, Russia declared war on Turkey. The result of this conflict has passed into history. It was disastrous to Turkey. But after it ended the Sultan refused to consider any reform movements, and up to this time Turkey has been a theocratic absolute monarchy. Last year what is known as the Young Turks party was organized with the avowed purpose of forcing the reforms that had been denied by the Sultan, and they have succeeded so well that they have won to their side not only the people, but most of the army officers. The Sultan learned the Albanians, whom he had depended on to the last, were against him, and so on July 24, he issued his imperial Iade convoking a chamber of deputies, to be elected by the people. The principal points of the new constitution are: Personal liberty, no punishment without trial, religious toleration, a free press, equality of all ottoman subjects, security of property, inviolability of domicile, and abolition of torture. The general assembly will be composed of two chambers: Senators chosen by the Sultan, and Deputies elected in proportion of one for every 50,000 inhabitants. There is great rejoicing throughout Turkey over this gain, and if it is carried out it will certainly be a great help to the country. Whether the Sultan is sincere, is yet to be learned. The signatory powers to the Berlin treaty will not act, as this is a matter wholly domestic.

Dear Restitution:

I recently received a letter from a brother in Nebraska, in which several questions were asked, and thinking some of your readers might be interested in them will give the questions propounded, and answers given.

1st, "What becomes of the soul at death?" The first question to settle is, What is the soul? Gen ii 7 we read "And the Lord God formed man of dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul; not that a living soul was put into the man, but the man was the living soul when he commenced using the breath of life. Before he received the breath of life into his nostrils, he was a dead soul, then when he died, he became a dead soul or dead person, and would be in the grave until the resurrection morning; and as Adam was to die, Gen iii 17 and return to dust, Gen iii 10, so with all his family, Rom v 12, they die and return to the dust of the ground, and there they wait, Job xiv 13-15 until the Lord calls them. John v 25-29, 1 Thes iv 16.

To prove that souls die read Ezek xviii 4, 20, also Josh x 28-30, and xi 10-11, also Ezek xxxvii 1-10 especially the 9th verse shows it was the wind or breath which caused them to live, and not an immortal soul put within them. The term immortal soul is not in the Bible any where, but we are plainly told that "Until the appearing of the Lord, God only hath immortality." The word soul is also sometimes used in the sense (not immortal life, or breath.) 1 Kings xvii 17-21. Here the same word is translated breath in the 17th verse, and soul in the 21st. We receive immortality at the time of the first resurrection, when the Lord comes. 1 Cor xv 51-54. The wicked never receive eternal life, but their wages is death, while the righteous receive the gift of God—eternal life,—Rom vi 23, and St John xx 31. "The dead know not anything," Eccl ix 5, but receive their reward at the resurrection of the Just, Luke xiv 14 Rev xi 1n-18.

2nd, "Where will we spend eternity?" It depends upon our characters, Prov x 30 says—"The righteous shall never be removed, but the wicked shall not inhabit the earth." Psa xxxvii 22, "For such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth; and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off." How long will they inherit the earth? The 29th verse says, "The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever." How are the wicked destroyed? See Malachi iv 1-3, also 2 Thess i 7-10 and Psa xcii 7, Matt xiii 42.

3rd, "What and where is heaven?" In Gen i we learn that "God created the heaven and the earth." The earth was covered with water, which was partly removed so that the dry land appeared, this open space was called a firmament in the 6th verse, and in the 7th verse God called the firmament heaven; so the open space surrounding the earth is called heaven. In the 20th verse "And fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven." Beyond the atmospheric heaven, we have the open space in which are the stars, and systems of worlds, in fact endless space, whose extent we cannot comprehend. In Psalms cxv 16, we read "The heaven even the heavens, are the Lord's; but the earth hath he given to the children of men." Somewhere in this vast expanse is a Holy Place where the Lord has his throne, and where he dwells in glory which mortals cannot comprehend. There Christ is seated at the right hand of his Father, waiting the time when he will again be sent into the world to rule the world in righteousness, Psa cx Acts iii 20, Heb i 3. 13. We pray that "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." It is into this place that Christ has entered "the Holy of all, even heaven itself, there to appear in the presence of God for us." Heb ix.

In John iii. 13 the Savior is speaking of this heaven, when he says "And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven," and John adds—"Even the Son of Man which is in heaven." Jesus tells the Jews they cannot go where he is going, John vii 33, 34. He also says to his apostles, "Whither I go ye cannot come," John xiii 33. When he comes he will take the throne of his glory, Matt xxv 31, which is the throne of his father David, Isa ix 6, 7, Luke i 32, and the overcomer will be granted to sit with him in his throne, Rev iii 21. In Matt v 34 heaven is called the throne of God and the earth his footstool.

4th, "What will become of the righteous while the earth is being cleansed?" In Luke xx 35 and on our Savior says "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage, neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." In Judges xiii 20 "The angel of the Lord ascended in the flame of the altar." The immortal ones being equal to the angels cannot suffer pain so the fire cannot hurt them. In 1 Cor iii the righteous are compared to gold, silver and precious stones which the fire cannot hurt, while the wicked are compared to hay, wood and stubble which are consumed by the fire which tests the temple of God. In Isa xxxiii 14, "Who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire? Who among us shall dwell with everlasting burnings? he that walketh righteously and speaketh uprightly; he that despiseth the gain of oppressions, etc. He shall dwell on high. This is illustrated in Dan iii where Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego were unhurt by the fiery furnace heated seven times hotter than it was wont to be heated, and the king peering into the intense heat saw them walking about loose and they had no hurt, and with them a fourth 'whose form was like the Son of God.' The 3rd chapter of 2 Peter describes the flood of water which destroyed the wicked at the time of the flood, then he speaks of the flood of fire which will destroy the wicked at the end of man's probation, the righteous alone being preserved. Then there will be new heavens and a new earth where "dwelleth righteousness. John says there will be no more sea, Rev xxi 1, Isa lxv 17. "When the resurrection takes place what will be our nature?" The children of the resurrection, the children of God, cannot die any more, and are equal unto the angels, Luke xx 34-36. They cannot sin and are born of God. Put on immortality, 1 Cor xv 54. They seek for glory, honor, immortality, eternal life, Rom. ii 7, and become partakers of the divine nature, 2 Peter i 4. Enter the kingdom of God, 11th verse.

5th, "Will we be spiritual and not occupy our bodies as at present?" Christ was the first fruits of them that sleep, or the righteous dead, 1 Cor xv 20. In the days when Israel was a nation, the people just before the harvest would bring in sample sheaves from the fields of grain, and present them to the priests as a sample of what the harvest would be. Christ after his resurrection then was the first fruits of the sample of what the righteous will be at the time of their resurrection. Christ had flesh and bones after his resurrection, also the prints of the nails in his hands and his feet "and they gave him a piece of a broiled fish and of an honey comb, and he took it and did eat before them," Luke xxiv 36-43, John xx 19-29. "But we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him for we shall see him as he is," 1 John iii 21, then we shall have flesh and bones also. In Phil iii 21, "Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." In Isa xxvi 19, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise." In Job xix 26 "And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God, whom I shall see for myself and mine eyes behold and not another." The blood is the life now, the Spirit of God will be the resurrection life, Rom viii 11.

6th, "Does baptism take the place of circumcision, and if so ought not infants to be baptized?" If baptism takes the place of circumcision then the female infants should not be baptized as none but the males were circumcised. In Gen xxii 6-12 the sign of circumcision was given as a covenant that the Lord would give Abraham the land of Canaan. Baptism is for the remission of sins Acts ii 38. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," Mark xvi 16. They are to believe before they are baptized, can a baby believe? In our baptism or sprinkling are not spoken of, therefore are not taught. We are to be buried with him in baptism, Rom vi 4, 5, Col ii 12. Born of water, John iii. I fear they are preaching another gospel than what Paul preached, if they are they should read Gal i 6-10.

7th, "And shall be tormented day and night, forever and ever." "Does not this passage teach eternal torment for the wicked?" The term forever and ever does not always mean eternal duration, but is limited by the life of the person spoken of, or by the termination or ending of the event spoken of. Forever and ever when applied to the Creator or those things which continue eternally as the sun, moon, or earth, or the reward of the righteous, means eternal duration, but when applied to the wicked who can be burned up as stubble and become ashes Mal iv 1, Psa xxxvii 20, "But the wicked shall perish and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs, they shall consume, into smoke shall they consume away." Can you burn the fat of lambs eternally? then forever with it would be till it is burned up; so with the wicked and the devil, their torment only lasts while they are being burned, they would cease suffering when reduced to smoke and ashes. Exod xxi 6, "And his master shall bore his ear through with an awl, and he shall serve him forever." He could not serve him after he was dead, but only while he was living, so the forever is limited by the length of the man's life. Jonah while in the whale's belly, although only there three days and three nights in describing it he says, "I went down to the bottom of the mountains; the earth with her bars was about me forever," and yet in three days the "Lord spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land," and that forever was ended. The Bible has many examples of this use of the word "forever," where it does not mean eternal duration, and the torment and burning of the wicked is one of them.

THOUGHTS.

Faithfulness in small duties prepares for greater works.

Small victories fit us for larger ones.

Lack of appreciation by those near us, should not discourage.

Perseverance in the right way will bring results.

When God gives us weapons we should find their proper use, and then practice with them daily.

"Sloth" is a gigantic Giant, and he has a brother equally as bad named "Procrastination." Beware of them.

David possessed qualities we should emulate—Humility, meekness, piety, diligence, faithfulness, perseverance, courage, activity, faith in God.

Charles Dickens has said, "Trust in nothing but in Providence, and your own efforts; and never separate the two."

Northwest and Southwest.

My delay in writing has not been from lack of events that were of interest to me or would be to my friends. Perhaps explanation is due to nobody. I am back in the northwest. I reached the locality of my residence of 38 years, my place of work for the third of a century, a long uncertain period, when we vainly try to pry into the hidden secrets of the days and years beyond. How well that the same curtain that hides our pleasures and joys conceals our sorrows and tears. The same black clouds and deep mist that at distances may make us stumble, shuts out of our view as well, the events that we could not bear to have hedge our way through life's toilsome trip.

EVANGELISTIC NOTE.

The Northwest Conference has selected me to carry their banner during the coming year, by selecting me for evangelist. On account of my past ill health, the finance committee is empowered to select a substitute in case it should be thought best for me to change climate during the year. So it is left open to my discretion whether I shall work in the northwest or return to the south and southwest. The brethren could not have devised a plan by which to express more sympathetic confidence.

May I have correspondence with all that are interested in my work.

Address me at Etna, Wash.

Every one come and give us your help and encouragement in the work we have begun.

SADIE B. MORSE, Sec'y.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I must tell you that the Northwest Conference resulted in my being asked to immerse two believers. Young energetic Mary, nineteen years old, the daughter of our beloved Brother and Sister Belshaw of Eugene. May she prove as faithful as the Marys of an age ago. She is a college graduate, and best of all of marked sense and conscientiousness.

Also the young wife of Brother Dan Prutzman, who had come out in obedience in my early work in Washington. Lest my strength should fail brethren Belshaw and Prutzman were on the shore ready to run in and assist me. Again I say God is with his servants.

Dear Restitution:

I celebrated my 80th birthday July 14. My health is fairly good, and I still feel that I will live to see our King come in his beauty. I cannot think it will be long now. I trust I am one of the Lord's poor, yet rich in faith, an heir of the kingdom. I cannot think of doing without THE RESTITUTION.

Your brother in hope.

EBENEZER.—1 Samuel vii 12.

Boil It Down.

Whatever you have to say, my friend,
Whether witty, or grave, or gay,
Condense as much as ever you can,
And say in the readiest way;
And whether you write of rural affairs,
Or particular things in town,
Just take a word of friendly advice—
Boil it down.

When you get spluttering over a page,
When a couple of lines will do,
Your latter is spread so much, you see,
That the head looks thinly through;
So when you have a story to tell,
And would like a little renown,
To make quite sure of your wish, my friend,
Boil it down.

When writing an article for the press,
Whether prose or verse, just try
To utter your thoughts in the fewest words,
And let them be crisp and dry.
[illegible] paragraphed, and you suppose
[illegible] clearly "drawn,"
[illegible] over again, and then
Boil it down.

Don't continue the use like to print
An article lately long
And the general reader does not care
For a couple of yards of song:
So gather your wits on the smallest space
If you would win the author's crown,
And every time you write, my friend,
Boil it down.

—Selected by Anna Adams.

Editorials.

We wish to call the attention of our contributors to the poetry selected by Sister Adams, "Boil It Down".

In this issue we begin a series of articles written in reply to a Christian minister's effort to prove the immortality of the spirit. There will be nine articles in the series and they will appear in consecutive issues.

We have just received the announcement of the great loss Brother Peter Jeffrey has sustained in the death of his wife. We deeply sympathize with our dear Brother in his bereavement, and commend him to God who "comforteth those cast down."

Brother W. L. Skeels reports that on July 19th, he had the pleasure of baptizing Miss Etna Hathaway, in the Columbia river. He also requests us to publish the following notice: As I am acting Evangelist for the Northwest Conference with the privilege to go to the Southwest if my health or need should call for it, I hope the brethren will correspond with me concerning the work without delay. Address, W. L. Skeels, Etna, Wash.

The Spirit of Man.—No. 1.

To my brethren in Christ, Edward Coats and Amasa Richardson, Greeting:—In the interest of truth and Christian unity I write briefly and tersely on the questions in issue between us.

The spirit in man—does it exist? "There is a spirit in man, and the breath of the Almighty giveth them understanding." Job xxxii 8. We are here taught that God's revelations ("breath"—"inspiration") are made to the spirit of man because it is the rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being. I believe it; do you?

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

As above letter is addressed to brethren Coats and Richardson, it is proper to explain that we are writing this reply to it at the solicitation of Brother and Sister Woodward, of Dutton, Mich. Instead of giving the writer's name we sign, "A Christian Minister". With our friend's personality thus hid in the invisible, we hope our minister in the review to follow, will be able to look our reply squarely in the face and to thoughtfully follow the arguments we present, without feeling himself critised. As his letter is written to two of our brethren with the design of convincing them that the spirit of man is immortal, we conclude that the writer has developed the strongest arguments and advanced the clearest proof texts in defense of his position that can be found. His arguments are not only plausibly presented, but they are dictated by a good spirit. We pray that the spirit of our Master may rest upon him when he reads our review of his position, and that God may open his eyes wherein they may be closed, to the end that he may have fulness of joy in the things which our Father in heaven has revealed in his written word. 1 Jno i 4.

He begins his argument for the immortality of man's spirit by quoting Job xxxii 8, "There is a spirit in man." We believe as strongly as our minister that man has a spirit. In not ask the question, "Does it exist," as if we denied its existence. We do believe that "there is a spirit in man"; there is no room for difference of opinion on this proposition. But when our friend tells us what the Spirit is, a wide difference of opinion divides us. He says that the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being"; and that therefore to it "the inspiration of the Almighty" imparts understanding by revelation. The statement in Job xxxii 8 is not, "There is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth it (the spirit) understanding." A man who is capable of being a minister is supposed to know something about grammar. Elihu says that the inspiration of God given "them understanding". The understanding is predicated of "them". To try and make a plural pronoun refer to a singular noun violates the rules of grammar, and while we are sure our friend knows this, yet he was so eager to make a point to favor immortal spiritism that he forgot himself and no doubt unconsciously made the blunder. For the argument's sake we grant your claim that the spirit is the intellectual part of man, and predict in passing that you will regret having made the point. Throughout our review we shall keep this statement ringing in your ears, that the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being;" and if we err not in our judgment, you will deplore the moment when you penned the words.

The Seventh Sign Again.

"And this Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come." Matt xxiv 14.

The counterpart of this sign is found in several symbols in the Revelation, especially in the symbol of the angel with the Open Book and Loud Voice. Rev x. Symbols foretelling better conditions to be brought about by a free Bible, translated (opened) into all languages, free speech and religious liberty.

In the sixth and seventh verses the angel is represented as swearing that the time shall be no longer delayed, (Diaglot) indicating that it is the last, before the Kingdom which immediately follows.

In the eleventh verse the angel says to John: "Thou must prophesy again before many peoples and nations and tongues and kings."

Through the Bible John and the other evangelists and Bible writers are proclaiming the Gospel today in four hundred and sixty-seven different languages and dialects; in almost every known tongue. Even the Empress of China has a Bible which she reads in her own tongue.

The angel having the "everlasting Gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, to every nation, kindred, tongue and people," (Rev xiv 6) resulting in the fall of Babylon (the papal system), is a symbol which finds its fulfillment in the same great work. See also Rev xviii 1.

It is free Bibles and free speech and consequent spread of the knowledge foretold by Daniel (Daniel xii 4) that has accomplished the downfall of the papacy and is routing all the monsters of religious darkness, superstition, iniquity and greed.

A few centuries ago it was a crime, punishable with prison, rack and stake, to make, read or believe the Bible, or to teach the Word of God. Now, Bibles in most countries are as free as the air we breathe. Indeed, one may read it and teach the great truths it contains under the very eaves of the Vatican without molestation. Also one of the largest Bible houses in the world is located in Constantinople, the seat of the power of the false prophet and the spiritual seat of the Greek Patriarch.

Bibles are also free in China, the home of the dragon, and this Holy Book of God, free speech and religious liberty, is fast making inroads in Russia, the last stronghold of the anti Christ. That this wide-spread diffusion of light and knowledge have brought better conditions to the world and especially to the Christian world is very apparent.

The civil and religious liberty and free speech, which we enjoy have their roots in the Bible. It was men inspired of Bible teaching, contending for the divine right to believe and follow God's Word, who fought the battles and gained the victories which sealed to us these essentials of human progress. It was also the untrammeling of men's minds, through these liberties, that has given the world the great inventions and scientific miracles which are the conspicuous features of this age, and unfolded nature's secrets and harnessed her forces to do our work and carry our burdens.

It is the influence of the Bible that has, to a certain extent ameliorated the horrors of war, inspired Red Cross Societies, Arbitration Boards, Peace Associations, Schools, Colleges, Hospitals, Orphan Asylums, Old Folks Homes and the multitude of charitable institutions and temperance societies that are the conspicuous features of this age. Institutions practically unknown until the Bible was given to the common people in their own languages. It was the Bible's influence also that was back of the abolition of chattel slavery and is inspiring the warfare against the rum devil, now sweeping over our own land, and making great headway in foreign countries.

A few centuries ago, the power that then dominated the world, which claimed to be the only true church of Christ Jesus, was chiefly occupied in seeking out, torturing, burning and exterminating alleged heretics, and the world looked on and applauded. Now, if some vile Negro, guilty of a beastly crime is, by an over-wrought mob burned at the stake, the voice of humanity, inspired by christianity, cries out in horror at the deed. Surely this indicates moral and religious progress.

I thank you, brother editor, for your frank and friendly criticism. A little more careful study of the subject and a clearer understanding of the thought intended to be conveyed, and I think we shall get together. I therefore reiterate and explain, my statement as follows:

"The dark night of the Christian world, with its shadows and monsters that prey upon the benighted souls of men has passed, and the day break and the coming of the Son of Righteousness, is at hand." The thought conveyed is not that we are now in the full day, but that the dark night (dark ages) has passed and the dawn of the Christian world is breaking, like the light shining from the East at dawn. The monster beasts and dragons of false religion that flourished and fattened upon the ignorance, superstition and vice of the benighted people of the dark ages, are not dead it is true, but are by the light of God's Word, emanating from the Bible, cowed and rendered harmless, as it were.....are being "consumed by the spirit (word) of His Mouth" and soon will be "destroyed by the brightness of His coming." (2 Thes ii 8.)

They have had their period of triumph, during which they had "power over all kindreds and tongues and nations," "made war with the saints and overcame them" (Rev xii 7, 8.) But the light of God's Holy Word is now shining and their deeds and false characters are by it made manifest and the vials of God's wrath are being poured out upon them. Rev xvi. Christians have nothing more to fear from persecuting powers. The period of their material and physical affliction is past. The period when these monsters could wield the sword of persecution has gone. There are no more such powers to arise before the Son of Man comes.

It is true, as you say, there is yet to be a "time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." Dan xii 1. The beast, the false prophet and the dragon will have more trouble. There is trouble also for the nations, not for the "Christian world", but for its adversaries and the foes of Israel.....not perilous times for Christians, but the time of their victory—the time of the 7th trumpet (Rev xi 15) and the time of the Seventh Vial (Rev xvi 17). Armageddon (Hill Mageddo) is Israel's battle ground, not the Christian's. "At that time thy (Daniel's) people (Israel) shall be delivered." Dan xii 1 For details of that time of Israel's affliction and triumph, see Ezekiel xxxviii and xxxix, Zachariah xiv, Joel iii 9 to 18.

You are not correct, however, in the assertion that "The Pope's subjects are as loyal to him today as ever they were." This is neither true of the Pope nor the Patriarch, nor are you correct in the assertion that Catholics are numerically increasing. In Russia the mechanics and peasants are very largely becoming indifferent or hostile to the Greek Church. In Catholic Austria there is a revolt against the ecclesiastical authority and a great falling away from the church. This also true of Italy and Spain, France also has just severed the relation of church and state, while everybody knows how enormous is the proportion of the French people untouched by the church. The Catholicism of today, also, is very different from that of a few centuries ago. The light has penetrated its benighted soul and exerted an influence materially modernizing its practices. The Pope today cannot command his followers or influence them to murder Protestants, at least not in this country, nor is the Catholic Church holding its own in this country.

For example: During the last eighty-six years there has been, in the aggregate fifteen million Catholic immigrants to this country, whereas today the church only claims about twelve million members. On the principle that "Once a Catholic, always a Catholic," this claim embraces all who have once been Catholics.

Further: Statistics show, that in 1890 there was, in this country 8,201,247 Catholics, which had increased in 1902 to 10,876,757, an increase of 2,675,390 in twelve years. During those years 2,705,134 Catholic immigrants landed on our shores, so that instead of gain, through births and conversions, during this time, the church suffered a net loss of 29,794 members.

Think on these things, my dear brother, and study to make yourself a workman approved of God, rightly dividing the Word of Truth.

J. W. WILSON.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our dear Brother Wilson has grown grey in the study and service of the truth. For us to make strictures on his article looks like the pupil trying to instruct the teacher. Still it may not be out of place for us to make the following observation in love:

1 The gospel of the kingdom (Matt xxiv 14) was preached by the apostles "to every creature". Mk xvi 15. It is stated in so many words that they fulfilled the commission. Mk. xvi 19, 20; Rom x 18; Col i 23.

2 John "must prophesy again" (Rev x 11), but if Revelations is his first prophecy you cannot squeeze the requirement to "prophesy again" into the contracted statement, "Through the Bible John and the other evangelist and Bible writers are proclaiming the gospel today." If John's first prophecy is the Revelations, how does its preservation and translation into "467 different languages and dialects" fulfill the requirement to "prophesy again"? The same prophecy translated and preserved would still be the same prophecy. No "again" in that.

3 John will be among the number to "prophesy again" (preach again) when the angel or messenger in midheaven delivers "the everlasting gospel" "to them that dwell on the earth". Rev xiv 6. This message the saints will deliver when the Lord comes; for they announce in their ministry that "the hour of his judgment is come" (verse 7), prior to which the Lord stands on Mount Zion with his saints. Verses 1-6. This great message to the nations is not made before the coming of the Lord by translating the Bible into "467 different languages and dialects," but after the Lord's advent it is proclaimed by the saints, the judges of the world. 1 Cor vi 2; Psa ii 10, 11, 12. John will "prophesy again" then "before many peoples, and nations, and tongues and kings," and execute the judgment upon the "powers that be" written in Psalms cxliv 5-9.

4 The "spread of knowledge foretold by Daniel" (xii 4) makes the world wiser, but no better. Goodness does not keep pace with knowledge. The more knowledge a mean man has the more dangerous he is—the meaner he is capable of being. "Free Bibles, free speech" are not "routing all the monsters of religious darkness, superstition, iniquity and greed." James exhorts his brethren to be "patient unto the coming of the Lord." v 7. He indicates in the context why they will need to have on hand a good supply of patience. Rich men will defraud and kill the laborer, and lay up dishonest gain "for the last days". Verses 1-6. This prophecy goes all to pieces if "free Bibles" are to rout, among other "monsters", "GREED"! Since the world began there has never been a time when there was such inordinate greed as now; when there were so many millionaires and multimillionaires.

5 It is a mistake to say that when a Negro is burned to the stake in the South (and there is where the mob work is generally done), "the voice of humanity, inspired by Christianity, cries out in horror at the deed." Having been raised in the Southland, and having myself witnessed Negro mobs, I know whereof I speak. Instead of crying out at the "horror of the deed", the most reputable citizens are in the mob by hundreds and sometimes by thousands.

6 The admission that there is to be a time of trouble for the nations "such as never was", is not saved by the attempted discrimination, "for the Christian world." We are talking about the WORLD—the claim is that the world is getting better. We claim the world is still the world. And that from a spiritual standpoint (the only standpoint worth looking from) the world is no better than formerly, is clear from the following facts.

a The population of the world is 1,424,000,000. There are 116,000,000 Protestants. This number includes, remember, many young children and infants; they are numbered in the reckoning, especially in European countries. To be fair, we must cut down the Protestants to about 10 millions. When you think how many of these are as ignorant of the gospel of the kingdom as Hottentots; the backsliders, hypocrites, liars, etc., you have about ? ? ? Protestants who live and believe the teachings of our "free Bibles".

b There are 8 million Jews who deny with curses the Lord Jesus Christ.

c There are 170 millions of Mohammedans who deny the blessed Jesus, and do not believe one word in our "free Bibles".

d There are 856 millions in the blackness and darkness of heathenism!

e There are 84 millions of Greek Catholics, 190 million of Roman Catholics, making in all the insignificant (?) total of 274 millions! More than twice as many Catholics as there is of all the freakish sects of apostate Christendom put together. Let us not get unbalanced and fall back into the theological rut that the world can be and must be evangelized by preaching the gospel. The apostles preached the gospel with the Holy Spirit sent down from heaven, but they did not evangelize the world. Is it not folly then for us to expect to do more with "free Bibles" without the gifts of the Spirit, than they were able to do with them?

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

We enjoyed your remarks on Henry Elsey's letters very much. Sometime when you have the space and time give us what you consider a proper explanation of Jno v 28, 29. Is all used in a restricted sense here?

ESTHER RICHARDSON.

Brother Huggins:

We are very much pleased with your explanation of 1 Cor xv 22. In Adam and in Christ are two distinct states. How we get into Christ, or how we become constituents of that all-saving name, and so members of the one body and joint partakers with the Christ of all that is promised, is to believe what God says and do what he requires.

KATHRYN TOWNSEND.

Brother Huggins:

I have never had the pleasure of meeting you as my work has been such in the past few years that I could not go to conference; but I hope to be at our conference this year at Waterloo and renew acquaintances with the brethren. The longer I am isolated from those of "like precious faith", the greater is my desire to so live that I may at last have a place in that kingdom "where partings are no more". Will that not be a grand and glorious place when compared with the world today? When we see how business men of today prey on each other's trade, using every means to benefit self, we can hardly realize how it will be to have naught but brotherly love and perfect peace. May that day soon come, and may we each use our greatest efforts to prepare the people for the grand consummation of God's plans, is my prayer.

With kind personal regards, I am,
Yours in the faith,
O. J. MARSH.

According to the figures for the last year available, Americans used the telephone 8,660,000,000 times, as against 8,114,541,691 times abroad. In Europe with its five times greater population, there were 1,726,880 subscribers, as compared to 2,241,866 in the United States.

Paris is suffering from a plague of curious flies, known as "St. Marc's Bibions. They are not poisonous, but are very ugly, being over half an inch long, with enormous heads, and feelers like cockchafers. Nobody knows where they come from, and curiously enough, the plague is confined to Paris, and has not reached the country.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 9.

DAVID AND GOLIATH. 1 SAM xvii 38-49.

Golden Text.—In the Lord put I my trust. Psa xi 1.

The story of David and Goliath is very interesting to most all boys and some girls. It is also, as it should be, of great interest to all believers. It is a grand lesson, a noble example of faith in God. Many men have scorned David because of his else, but few indeed have tried to equal him in his fidelity to God.

David said to the Philistines, You come to me with a sword, a spear, and a shield. This was not all. He had a helmet of brass on his head, and a coat of mail, greaves of brass, or copper; boot legs, and a target-shield of brass on his back. This was not unusual for a full armed warrior, but when we read that he was six cubits and a span, nearly ten feet high, some say nearly twelve, and every way large; a giant, we can readily understand why he struck terror to the hearts of Saul and all Israel. Read all of chapter xvii.

When Saul was little in his own eyes, and the Lord anointed him king, 1 Sam xv 17, he was not afraid of any enemy, 1 Sam xi 11.

I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts.....whom thou hast defied. He will this day deliver thee unto my hand,.....For the battle is the Lord's. David knew what Paul knew, that boasting was excluded by the law of faith. Rom iii 27. Now let us listen to Goliath, the Philistine. It was evident he knew his challenge had been accepted, and that the champion of Israel was at hand. He was looking for "a warrior armed for fight," "a footman worthy of his steel". When he saw David coming up the valley that lay between the armies of Israel and the Philistines he was surprised and distressed. He disdained him, despised him, and seeing David's shepherd's staff, the only visible weapon, he concluded that David despised him as he would a dog that worried sheep.

He cursed him by his gods. This informs us that Goliath, an unbeliever, a heathen, was just like all the present day unbelievers. Most people now have at least three Gods: the true believer, like David, has one only. Cursing, called profane swearing, is the ready weapon, and recourse of all vulgar men. Goliath was one of them. He followed his cursing by boasting. Cursing and boasting are firm mutual friends. After all he did not depend for victory on his gods. There has been words enough; now for action. Goliath comes toward David with giant strides, his armour showing like a modern battleship, or like a locomotive engine bearing down on a man. The young bearer of the "name of the Lord" and Champion of the host of Israel did not wait to be run down. He ran to meet the Philistine. When he was near enough for his purpose, he took a smooth stone; one that would slip easily from the sling and go straight to the mark. The sling has been long abandoned as a weapon of war. We have now "humane warfare". The modern soldier wants to kill ten instead of one, and then we are told "The world is getting better." Though the battle was the Lord's we need not overlook the skill of David. It is very likely he could, like the seven hundred chosen men, Judges xx 16, sling stones at a hair breadth, and not miss. The stone struck Goliath on his forehead and sank in. The towering boaster, that had defied the armies of the living God, fell helpless to the ground. The race is not (assured) to the swift, nor the battle to the strong. Eccl ix 11.

This class of warfare passed from among the people of God when the Lord Jesus Christ came preaching the gospel, glad news of the kingdom, and healing, not killing, all manner of sickness. Matt iv 23. The only weapon the believer has is "the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." Eph vi 17. All other weapons are carnal, belong to the flesh. 2 Cor x 3, 4. Those who go to war are opposed to God. Rom viii 7. All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword. Matt xxvi 52. This is foolishness to the wise of the world. For proof we have the world wide efforts to have great armies and immense battleships. Truly the wisdom of God is foolishness to the world. 1 Cor i 17-25.

Next Lesson. Saul tries to kill David. 1 Sam xviii 6-16.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,
W. H. WILSON.

All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 3502 Woodland ave, Cleveland Ohio

"The Kingdom of God." is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. S. J. LINDSAY.

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conferences at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing: for we shall reap if we faint not.

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. One Year $1 50. Six Months 75 Cents, Three Months 40 Cents.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their names, post office, and state, plain'y and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name to which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the same changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid to us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a few stamps and drops it in the box. He has failed in part to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an inclosing wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

The Purest Pearl.

"Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee." Acts iii. 6.

Beside the church door, nursery and knee,
A blind woman sat on the cold door-stone;
The wind was bitter, the snow fell fast,
And a mocking voice in the wind blast
Seemed ever to echo her moaning cry,
As she begged for alms of the passers-by:
"Have pity on me, have pity, I pray;
My luck is hard, my head is gray."

The bells were ringing the hour of prayer,
And many good people were gathering there;
But covered with furs and mantles warm,
They hurried fast through the wintry storm.

Some were hoping their souls to save,
And some were thinking of death and the grave.
And glad they had no time to heed
The poor soul asking for charity's need.
And some were blooming with beauty's grace,
But closely muffled in veils of lace,
They saw not the sorrow, nor heard the moan,
Of her who sat on the cold door-stone.

At last came one of a noble name,
By the city counted the wealthiest dame;
And the pearls that o'er her neck were strung
She proudly threw to the beggar flung.
Then followed a maiden young and fair,
Adorned with clusters of golden hair;
But her dress was thin, and scanty and worn,
Not even the beggar's second morn.
With a tearful look, and a pitying sigh,
She whispered soft, "No jewels have I,
But I give you my prayers, good friend," said she,
"And surely I know God listens to me."

On her poor, weak hand, so shrunken and small,
The blind woman felt a tear-drop fall,
Then kissed it, and said to the weeping girl,
"It is you that have given the purest pearl."

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 69.

One in writing these stories of the anointed sons of God, feels as if the very sandals must be removed from the feet, the spot being holy ground wherever he treads. For were not these dear ministers of the Advent faith called by the great King of heaven to proclaim this especial message, just as surely as were the prophets of old, to proclaim the messages that were entrusted to their keeping? Their work has been a great one, and "their words have gone to the ends of the earth."

Among these beloved heralds of a soon coming Savior in Marshall County, Indiana—that Shiloh of our people in the Central States—was Richard Corbaley, a friend of the Willards and a co-worker with my dear father.

He was the first white child brought by the traditionary swan to the spot where the city of Indianapolis now stands, having been born in Marion County, August 7th, 1820, four years after the Hoosier State had been admitted to the union.

His father, Jeremiah J. Corbaley, is said to have been of Irish descent, meaning of course that his ancestors came from Ireland and formed a part of the Irish nation. And yet he was not of Irish lineage in the true sense of the word. There was not a trait nor a feature of the true-blooded Israelite about any of the Corbaleys that I ever saw. For the Irish as we recognize them,—those who swarmed over here in the early 50's and became the servants in our kitchens, our ditchers and the builders of our railroads, are Canaanites from the land of Palestine.

As far back as the time of Deborah and Barak, Ireland was colonized by two distinct peoples: the Danites and Phoenicians. Other Israelites came in at various periods, viz Greece, Spain and Denmark, and as the name of the island was at one time Scotia,—a name afterward translated to Scotland, the Israelitish element of its inhabitants, dwelling in the northern part of Ireland are more properly denominated Scots, while those in the southern part are the true Irish. It is from the former people that Brother Corbaley's lineage must be traced. His mother, Jane (Barnhill) Corbaley was of English and Scotch descent, but when the ancestors of either came to this country, and where they first settled, we do not know. Marion Co. was heavily timbered and almost unexplored when Jeremiah J. Corbaley located there and his little son, when old enough to wield an ax, had to help cut down the great trees, saw them into logs, roll them into heaps and pile on the brush so they could be burned out of the way. What fortunes were thrown away with the destruction of those beautiful forests. But the ground had to be utilized in the building of homes, and only enough timber could be saved for the needs of the growing family; the pioneers could not look out for the future wants of their state and nation.

Richard, having aided his father in clearing, fencing, breaking up, and planting the fields, set about securing an education, and became a teacher, working on the farm through the busy season and wielding the rod through the winter. In 1845 he came to Marshall County and settled on what was known as the Boyce place, three miles southeast of Argos. Here he cleared up a farm and on the 5th of May, 1847, was married to Jane Croco, a woman in every way worthy of so worthy a husband. He doubtless came to a knowledge of the truth through the preaching of Brother Ephraim Miller, who in 1847-48, accompanied by Brother Hoyt, visited Marshall County and delivered a series of discourses near Wolf Creek in what was then well known as the Pisgah Church.

But be this as it may, when he did find the truth, he laid hold of it with all his heart, as a treasure that was worth selling everything else to buy. And though living in Plymouth for a time in the practice of law and in 1852 appointed clerk of Marshall County and serving two terms, business was not allowed to interfere with his growth in grace, but the schooling therein found was but made the stepping stone to usefulness in the higher calling of the ministry, which calling he entered by preaching his first sermon at old Pisgah in 1860. For he had returned to farm life prior to this date, and in 1856 had been ordained deacon of the Pisgah Church and seems to have been holding the same office down to 1861. He was chairman of the June Conference at that church in 1863, and one of the speakers at the August conference near Windfall in the same year. He taught feet-washing as one of the ordinances to be practiced in the church, and strenuously held to this view to the day of his death, it being still practiced in the churches that he organized in the far west. For in 1871 having become a great sufferer from asthma, he moved to Healdsburg, California, where he recovered his health. But in 1880, on making a visit of six months to his old friends in Marshall County, he nearly again attacked him and did not leave, even when he returned to Healdsburg, so four years later he went with his son Abram L. to Douglas County Wash., where another son Platt, had made a home for himself. Here he took up a claim and was joined by his wife and his daughter. In 1892 he rented his farm and moved into the town of Waterville where he remained until his demise.

"Shortly after moving to Healdsburg, Cal., an infidel lecturer by the name of Underwood, held meetings there, breathing defiance against all forms of Christianity and challenging the clergy to a public discussion on the subject. None of them responded until one night Brother Corbaley was present and at the close of the lecture arose and gave a short review of the statements made by the lecturer, one of which statements was that the ark was not large enough to hold all the animals Moses said were brought into it. "Why!" said he, "one whale would take up most of the room on one deck." In reply, Brother Corbaley said, "He had received some information from the lecturer which was decidedly new and startling, among other things that it was necessary to take whales into the ark to keep them from drowning or that an over supply of water would prove disastrous to the fish!"

In the applause which followed, much of the lecturer's work was lost upon the audience. He closed by accepting the challenge to debate, and then, to the surprise of all, the infidel backed squarely down and would not enter into a discussion at all, bringing consternation into the ranks of his followers.

Later on Brother Corbaley held a public discussion with a Unitarian preacher from San Francisco by the name of Dr. Bowles on the nature of man and other subjects in which the fallacy of the Dr's position was apparent to all candid minds."

AUSTIN WIRES.

Mr. Sincerity and Mr. Truth No. 2.

Mr. S. Good morning Mr. T., I am pleased to have the pleasure of your company again. Since we last met I have been looking up some proof text that I think proves my position on the soul. Did not Jesus promise the thief that he would be with him in heaven on the day on which they were crucified? Luke xxiii 42, 43.

Mr. T. You certainly have not read it as it is. "And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. And Jesus said unto him, Verily, I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in Paradise. Note please what the thief requested of Jesus. Remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom, not heaven. This question must be answered affirmatively or negatively. It is evident that Jesus gave an affirmative answer.

His answer can mean nothing else; therefore when Jesus comes in his kingdom the thief will be remembered. When Jesus comes in his kingdom this earth will be made a paradise. You should remember that there is no promise to anyone of going to heaven at anytime. David says, The heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men. Further Jesus and the thief did not die that day. See John xxi to xxviii. When the soldiers came to break the legs of them who were crucified they found that Jesus was already dead and did not break his legs. It is said that persons crucified lived for several days and that their legs were broken that they might not escape. Again there is not a word said about the immortal soul of the thief going anywhere. The request was that the person be remembered and not his soul. Jesus could not have gone to heaven that day as he died and was buried and remained so for three days and three nights.

Mr. S. Does it not say "Today thou shalt be with me in paradise"? and is that not proof that they were together that day?

Mr. T. We should be very careful in our study of the Scriptures that we do not put one text against another. You depend upon the placing of the comma after "thee" for proof. Punctuation marks are of recent origin and should not be depended upon in opposition to Scripture. I have Wesley's Notes on the New Testament, published in 1878. Since then two texts have been changed as to punctuation. Matt xix 28 reads, Ye who have followed me, in the regeneration, etc. Hebrews i 12, This man when he had offered one sacrifice for sins, forever sat down on the right hand of God. You can compare these texts with the same in our Bibles and you can see that the punctuation changes the meaning. Now change the comma and place it after "today" and all is plain.

Mr. S. Our ministers all give this text as a proof of the soul's immortality and I have never given it a critical examination. Your arguments seem to be reasonable and I will consider them. But now since we are going to use Scriptures I want to ask your opinion on the following text, Acts xii, 59. In this, "Stephen calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus receive my spirit."

Mr. T. I would not care to give you my opinion as it would be worthless. However we can examine this text as we have the others from the standpoint of Scripture and reason. Stephen asks Jesus to receive his spirit. We must first determine what is meant by the word spirit. The word here rendered spirit is from the Greek word "pneuma" and is correctly rendered breath. It comes from the Hebrew word "Ruah" and it is also rendered breath. The word rendered receive is from the Greek word "Dexia" and is rendered sustain by Booth in his Lexicon of Primitive Words. Stephen's prayer would then read, Lord Jesus sustain my spirit or assist me to suffer. With this reading and the knowledge of the meaning of the word "pneuma" the doctrine of the soul's immortality is not sustained by this scripture.

Mr. S. Friend T., I wish you would explain Paul's desire to depart and be with Christ. It seems to me that this is one of the strong proof texts that teaches that the soul departs and is with Christ. If it can depart and be with Christ, it must have a consciousness and is therefore immortal.

Mr. T. A superficial examination of this text, Phil i 23 might be forced to teach the separate existence of the soul. Unfortunately for those who believe that doctrine the word soul does not appear in the text. Paul is here speaking of himself, and not of his immortal soul.

This is one of the difficult texts to explain. Paul in this chapter is speaking of the things that had happened to him while a prisoner at Rome. In the 12th, verse he would have them to understand that the things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the gospel. In verse 19 he says, I know that this shall turn to my salvation through your prayer, and the supply of the spirit of Jesus Christ, according to my earnest expectation and my hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all boldness, as always so now also Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death. Note please, Paul's purpose was to magnify the Lord by his death. If he continued to live he would preach the gospel. If he was put to death he would do as others had done, magnify the Lord.

In verse 21 he says, For to me to live is Christ and to die is gain. Whether he lives or dies it is gain to Christ. If he dies he will be for Christ. It is all gain to Christ. But if I live this is the fruit of my labor: That I may be Christ's. Paul belonged to Christ and Christ to God so Paul was sure of immortality. Yet he did not know which to choose. The choice was the will of our Heavenly Father. We now come to Paul's desire, TO DEPART and be with Christ. I wish to submit to you this question. Did Paul anywhere in his writing express a desire to depart and go to heaven and be with Christ? Let Paul answer this question. Phil iii 20, 21. Our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; Who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself. Notice please, that Paul's desire was that this vile body be changed and fashioned like unto his glorious body. Not at death but at his appearing from heaven. Again 1 Cor xv 51, 52. Behold I show you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed. (At death? Let the apostle answer.) In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. At the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we (who are alive then) shall be changed. In perfect harmony with the words of Jesus to Martha. He that believeth in me though he were dead yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth (when Jesus comes) and believeth in me shall never die. John xi 25, 26. In 1 Thess iv 13 to 18 Paul teaches that Jesus will descend from heaven with a shout with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air.

Now, friend S., you will admit that Paul's desire was to have a part in the resurrection when Jesus should come. No where did he express a desire to go to heaven at his death? but that he might receive his eternal when Christ should come. Col iii 3, 4. The language in Phil i 13, must be interpreted in harmony with other scriptures. Paul's desire was that Jesus might come while he was alive and that he might depart, meet the Lord as he descended from heaven, as taught in 1 Thess iv 13, 18.

Mr. S. Friend T., you have indeed revealed some grand truths. I thank you for your pains in searching the scriptures and bringing out many new things. That is, they are new to me. I express a desire to continue our study of the word. For the present I bid you good by.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 16.

Saul tries to kill David. 1 Sam xviii 6-16.

Golden Text.—The Lord God is a sun and shield. Ps lxxxiv 11.

Many are willing to say amen to the golden text, but very few indeed put it to the proof. David showed his entire faith in it. We read of the same quiet unwavering trust in all those who really believed and entered into the covenant that God made with Abraham. Genesis, chapters xv and xxii. This is the class of people to whom the Lord God is a sun and shield.

By the slaying of Goliath, David had won the right to the promise of the king. The promise of great riches, the king's daughter for a wife, and a special freedom for all his father's household. 1 Sam xvii 25. There is on record that David referred to this promise. Like faithful Abraham, Gen xiv 21-23, he had no desire that any man should make him rich. Saul made no mention of the rewards, but he did make David commander-in-chief of his army. This was endorsed and enjoyed by all Israel. A writer says, It was customary "in those days" for the women to go out and meet with singing, cheers and praise, the victor and the victorious army. Such demonstrations have come right down the line of time. Great special festivals have been made by the women of this country within the last twenty-five years on the return of war heroes. There is, and always was, far more honor accorded to the man, or men, who have killed many, than to the man, or men who have spent their lives trying to gain a little peace and comfort for their fellow men.

Saul did wish to honor David and it is not likely that he would have tried to kill him, but when the women, in their praise of David accorded him tenfold more honor than Saul, he was filled with envy and jealous rage. Envy is the rottenness of the bones. Pro xiv 30. Who is able to stand before it? Prov xxvii 4. Jealousy is cruel as the grave. Song vii 6. Saul was now classed among the unrighteous, the malicious, and murderers. Rom i 29.

At first Saul loved David, not for what he was, but for what he could do. He interested, pleased and amused Saul. 1 Sam xvi 21. He had not done one thing to lose the affection or good will of Saul, on the contrary his general conduct commanded at least respect. Saul knew what the women sang was true, he also knew that David was in every way superior to him. This was enough for a foolish man like Saul, his love was turned to hate. The sight of David going quietly about his business kept up the anger that rests in the bosom of fools. Eccl vii 9.

An evil spirit from God.—Men—natural men—who cannot receive the things of God. 1 Cor ii 14. Yet profess to know, to obey and serve God, have many excuses—for God—about this evil from God, and skeptics laugh and say the Christian's God is good and bad just as he wants to be. Those who have faith in God have no trouble about such statements, they know that as God did so, it was right. Saul cast a javelin—spear—at David, twice so far, he tried to kill him. David was not deceived by any show of friendship or affection on the part of Saul. While he played the harp for the king, he was watching, and besides, "the Lord was with him". Saul could not be allowed to kill him. He was also the Lord's anointed, and the Spirit of the Lord was upon him. He was the king of Israel after Saul. 1 Sam xvi 1. He knew that those that wait upon the Lord, not only inherit a kingdom, but will inherit the earth. Ps xxxvii 9. Saul saw that the Lord was with David, but that did not stay his hate and envy. Whatever Saul did, or did not do to David made no difference in his conduct. While he was the servant of Saul, he knew he was more so the servant of the Lord. He had the example of other chosen servants of God, especially Moses, the meekest of all men, Num xii 3, whom the Lord greatly exalted.

Saul's envy and jealousy became mixed with fear of David. Can we imagine how a man could be any more miserably tormented. We admire David; we cannot admire Saul, yet we are almost constrained to pity him. "For wrath killeth the foolish man, and envy slayeth the silly one." Job v 2. Poor deluded Saul, he either did not care, or did not know that he was killing and slaying himself in the sight of God, cutting himself off from all hope of eternal life, the great gift that God has offered through his Son Jesus Christ. May we, by the word and favor of God, keep ourselves from the power of envy—the power of Satan. Acts xxvi 18.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

We trust they will each see the importance of immediately replying to us, so that all trouble can be saved. If in any case there is an error, we shall be very glad to have it pointed out, so that it can be corrected.

The following from Brother Lindsay will be self-explanatory. We are glad that Brother Marsh is to be at this meeting, and hope some day he can visit us in Indiana.

Brother Underwood,

Please say in The Restitution that since sending out Program of Illinois Conference the services of Brother O. Eldred Marsh have been secured in addition to our published program.

S. J. Lindsay.

A constitutional government for Turkey, forced by one party, aided by the soldiers, seems to lack the element of sincerity. The Sultan is not converted to the end of thinking such a government will be best; he is simply forced by circumstances to accede to the demands made. The Macedonian reforms are yet to be worked out. France has yet to bring quiet to Morocco. Germany is suspicious of all Europe. An attempt was made on the life of the Sultan of Turkey last week. In view of such conditions the "Peace cry," as indicted by the following clipping marks one of the sure signs that the end is rapidly nearing.

The Progress of Peace.

A dispatch from Revel indicates a perfect accord between France and Russia. The visit of the French president was an occasion of many festivities and much general acclaim.

The British chancellor of the exchequer in a public address commented upon the relations between his country and Germany and expressed an earnest desire to see between them the same cordial understanding as that with France, Russia, and the United States.

At the opening of the Peruvian parliament the president of that republic announced to the members that the controversy with Bolivia about boundary was to be adjusted by arbitration.

From Central America encouraging reports come of settlement of difficulties through the joint arbitration court recently established there.

There are some discordant voices heard among the nations. But it is a significant fact that day after day brings these more hopeful reports of peace.

The several hundred organizations whose representatives have been in session in London during the week are doing good work in the dissemination of the gospel of peace.

In fact, the multiplicity of forces working toward a common end is surprising. In all parts of the civilized world these peace societies are winning supporters.

Some of them declare for peace in all things, the ultimate object being pursued with no regard for expediency. The fidelity of the Quakers in this regard has become proverbial.

Others are trying to adjust their program to actual conditions, even favoring increased armament as the best way to secure eventual triumph of peace.

It has been a long and hard fight, but victory seems nowhere nearly so remote as it did a few years back.

National honor is a delicate thing. Disturbances are likely to come when least expected. But there never were such hopeful conditions as now.

When leaders of thought in all civilized nations are more and more pronounced in favor of peace and of settlement of difficulties by arbitration, it is evident that there will be steadily increasing hesitancy on the part of any country to declare war.

With the judgment of mankind favoring peace there must be substantial reason for the appeal to arms. Such an act nowadays has to meet the critical examination of the whole world instead of being a matter of interest to contesting nations alone.

It is such a condition of public opinion that makes the friends of arbitration and peace happy as they scan the horizon for the signs of the times.

Can any one give us the present address of J. W. Hall or Hull, late of Morrow, Ark.

A letter from Brother Lindsay, dated Aug. 7, says they begin their school with good prospects. Seven had already arrived on Saturday. We trust all their expectations will be realized.

A dispatch from Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 9, shows to what lengths fanatical frenzy will lead men. A man named Simpson, leader of some missionary society, gave an address, and at the end a man came down the aisle shouting "Hallelujah," and turning out his pockets, stripping off his valuables, and cast them in the basket. The fever spread to the audience of 5000 people, and soon a crushing mob of all sorts were fighting to get to the baskets. The result was that $20,000 in money, $40,000 in jewelry, watches, etc, and $10,000 pledges were handed in. The hysteria lasted an hour and a half, and the people left the church, most of them without a cent, having given every thing they had. Probably not one of that audience knows the first principles of the gospel that is God's power to salvation, yet they were induced to distress themselves to send a spurious gospel to others. If some who really know God's plan and profess to be guided by him should be impressed to "sacrifice" a little of the goods they have accumulated, not in a wild scramble, but in a sane manner, the Lord's cause would be benefitted thereby.

By throwing some light straws up in the air, and watching them come to the ground, we can tell which way the wind blows from. It has been stated that Catholicism is losing ground throughout the world, and especially in this country, and among English speaking peoples. The following clipped from the Chicago Tribune will show the opinion of some high authorities in that body concerning this point, and indicate their "great expectations," at least Rome Aug. 8.—Father A. P. Doyle, rector of the apostolic mission house at the Catholic university at Washington, has succeeded in stirring generally the warm waters of the vatican. He predicted that through the work of the mission house in a few years the Catholics will be four times as many as they are now, or 60,000,000 to 75,000,000. So America will be practically a Catholic country.

If in the meantime Archbishop Bourne of Westminster will have organized through Father Herbert Vaughan, who is studying the plan of the mission house, a similar institution in England the whole English speaking peoples will, in the expectation of Father Doyle, in a short time be converted to Catholicism.

Father Doyle submitted plans of organization to the pope, Cardinal Merry del Val, and other members of the sacred college. According to his calculations if he receives the support needed, in ten years from now 200,000,000 more English speaking people will have joined the Catholic church.

Merry del Val, speaking to Father Doyle, said he followed with the keenest interest the growth of the work since the beginning, ten years ago, and he seems to have a comprehensive knowledge of the wonderful results secured by arousing among the priesthood all the consuming zeal for convert making by sending trained missionaries to address non-Catholics and by instituting centers of missionary activity.

Father Doyle ventured to remark that if the holy father knew what an easy way to teach the catechism the question box furnished he probably would recommend it. In a recent encyclical on teaching the catechism the cardinal said he had made practical use of it in a series of lectures, declaring the state thinks the time particularly ripe for an aggressive propaganda among English speaking peoples. Many observant non Catholics had told him that English speaking people would be prevared to accept in entirety the teachings of the Catholic church, did they but know them as they are.

It is said that with the fleet of United States battle ships now crossing the Pacific ocean there are 14,000 men and only five chaplains—one for every 2800 men.

Brethren, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you, for the favor.

Conference Report.

The annual meeting of the North West Conference convened Friday evening, June 26, at Felida, Wash., in the new church just finished. Preaching Friday evening by Brother Darby of Corvallis, Oregon.

The visiting brethren were C. M. Belshaw and wife and daughter of Eugene, Ore.; Brother Smith of Corvallis, Oregon; Brother Pentzman and wife. A brother from Seattle (have forgotten his name), Brother Frank Smalley and daughter of Edna, Wash.; Brother Darby of Corvallis; Sister Grace Lawrence of Enq, Wash; Sister Clara Knapp of Shecils, Ore.; Brother Louis Montgomery of Portland Oregon; a Brother Montgomery and wife from near Battle Ground, Wash.; Brother Stewart from Wenatchee, Washington and Sister Almira Brooks and son of Laurel, Oregon.

W. L. Skeels arrived in time from his evangelist tour to take in the Conference.

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock Social Meeting was held by Brother Montgomery. A good many gave their testimony on the Lord's side. So many seemed anxious to tell the rest what the Lord had done for them. Sister Anna Hathaway sat at the organ and led the singing.

At 11 o'clock preaching by W. L. Skeels.

12 o'clock basket dinner, was prepared by the sisters and ladies of the neighborhood and was served in the Grange hall. Hot coffee and strawberries in abundance.

2:30 Business meeting was called by the President, Brother Lewis Montgomery. The Secretary being absent R. H. Brooks acted as Secretary pro tem.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved after a couple of mistakes on the part of the acting Secretary in reading strange writing were corrected.

The delegates from the different churches gave in their reports. Most of them were without a regular preacher, but all were keeping up the Sunday Schools, and Social Meetings.

Brother Neil Hathaway on the building committee said the cost of the new church at Felida was $1350.00. The Conference treasury reported $127.80 on hand. Brother E. McIrvin was appointed to the church finance committee. The evangelist gave in his report which will be found below.

Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Lewis Montgomery, Portland, Oregon; Vice-President, Frank Smalley, Edna, Washington; Secretary, R. H. Brooks, Laurel, Ore.; Treasurer, E. McIrvin, Felida, Washington; Evangelist, W. L. Skeels. Motion made and carried that Brothers Darby and Skeels be given letters of recommendation. Committee on resolutions, Sarah Smith, Grace Lawrence, Anna Hathaway, Flora McIrvin. Motion made to adjourn, carried.

At 8 P. M. preaching by Brother Darby. On Sunday morning at 9 o'clock all that could, repaired to the water, and two sisters put on Christ by baptism, Sister Pentzman and Sister Mary Belshaw. W. L. Skeels baptized them in the waters of Salmon Creek. May they never regret the step taken on that pleasant sabbath morning. 10:30, preaching by Elder Obornel of Portland. 12 o'clock, the Lord's Supper after which a basket dinner was served in the Grange hall close by. 2:30, the President called a business meeting to conclude unfinished business.

The committee on resolutions handed in the following resolutions:

Resolved, that we, as a Conference, will endeavor to the best of our ability to uphold the right and put down the wrong whenever we have opportunity.

Resolved, that we offer our thanks to the people of the community for helping to entertain the visiting brethren.

Resolved, that we offer thanks to the Ladies' Aid for furnishing the organ for our new church.

Resolved, that since death has removed from among us three of our members, Brother Emory Brooks, Brother Merrit Elliot and Brother Brown that we offer our heartfelt sympathy to their bereaved families, especially to the afflicted son of Bro. Brown.

Resolved, that we offer our thanks to Elder Obornel for his kindness in assisting in dedicating our new church.

Resolved, that we offer thanks to Brother Darby for his help in conference work.

Resolved, that we offer our heartfelt thanks to our beloved Evangelist for his faithful work in the past year, and regret that his health has been so poorly and do hope and pray that he may continue to improve and be able to carry the gospel to the world for many years more.

Resolved that we extend an invitation to all preaching brethren who take Christ for their example and guide.

The Committee on Resolutions.

It was moved and carried that the resolutions be accepted.

It was then moved and carried that a committee consisting of the President, Vice-President, and Secretary have the power to hire an assistant evangelist.

Motion made and carried that the President of the conference have power to appoint a committee of three to draft new by-laws for the conference. A motion to adjourn was then carried.

Evangelist Report.

My evangelistic work in the northwest under the jurisdiction of conference management was almost a failure, resulting from causes over which I had no possible control.

The symptoms of paralysis and heart failure which continued to increase in the fall of 1907, caused me to change my field of labor to the southwest. I received liberal donations from the Arizona brethren and beyond my expense of reaching them they gave me this aid toward my expense to go on farther east. I must say in commendation of the southwest territory, consisting of California and Arizona which by a recent conference was added to the Northwest Conference, that this increase of labor which embraced the Pacific Coast did not increase the financial responsibility of the northwest or their difficulty of sustaining an Evangelist. The northwest has not been neglected on account of the extent of the field, but on account of the necessity of going to the southern parts of the field to prolong life in the restoration of health. With donations from Arizona and from my continued trip I carried the gospel to many places in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

I cannot give a detailed report of the year. I was a sick man a large part of the year trusting God and hunting health but working up to and beyond my strength.

Distance traveled about 6000 miles. I did not take up a collection in any one of my many meetings. Three were immersed and one church organized. I started with about $100.00 and returned with about $75.00. I made and make no charge to any one for the years labor, but place it on the credit side of health and usefulness, and thankfulness to a protecting Providence.

Announcement.

The Seventh Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Christ, will be held at the Restitution Church near Casey, Illinois, to begin October 3, and to continue until the 11th. This is known as The Southern Illinois Conference. The Program will appear later. The speakers will be Brothers Daniels, Allard, and Brother Conner if he can come; and if he cannot, some one else. Everybody come the first day and stay until the last day. We will meet all at the station, Casey, Illinois, on the Vandalia Railroad. All are invited and welcome.

Address all communications to Lewis Weaver, Casey, Illinois, R. F. D. 3.

B. J. Woods, Pres.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Churches of God, Greeting:

The Church of God in Nebraska will hold their Annual Conference in St. Paul, Nebraska, August 20th to September 7th, inclusive. The meetings will be held in the Court House Hall, a large well-lighted room easily reached. We have planned to have meals served throughout these meetings at ten cents a meal or twenty-five cents a day, to those who are able to pay, but those coming who are not able to pay are just as welcome as those who pay. Beds will be provided for all free of charge. We expect to have with us some of the best speakers in the faith.

Dear brothers and Sisters, drop for awhile the worldly cares we are all troubled with more or less (and some of them are very hard to lay aside,) and make an effort to come to this meeting, asking the Lord to help you to come. Heb. x. 24, 25, says "And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another, and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."

Some very important business is to come up for settlement, so let each one feel that this is your meeting and make an extra effort to come. You are needed. Come and help us to make this one of the best meetings ever held in Nebraska.

Both the Union Pacific and the Burlington Railroads have branch lines coming to St. Paul. A committee will meet these trains.

Minnie Rogers, Sec'y.

Evangelist Report for June.

Closed at St. Paul, June 1st, at Blair, June 6, 7, 10, Arapahoe, June 19, Holbrook, 20, 23, Cambridge, 24, 25, Indianola, 26, McCook, 27, Box Elder, 28, 29, July 1, Moorefield, July 2. As we are going to Iowa to return the work Brother Allard put in for us last winter, we just made a flying trip among the churches.

We found the church at Holbrook prospering and their Sunday School in fine shape under the supervision of Brother H. P. Story, and Brother S. W. Harlan as teacher of the Bible Class. They are making it very interesting all around. They have a fine lot of talent for teachers and they ought to rejoice in this as untold lacking in some localities.

I stopped off at Cambridge for one day and visited Brother and Sister Gamble whom we had not seen for years. We had a pleasant old-time visit, and found them still sound in the faith, and their faces turned toward the kingdom. Brother Gamble brought us into town in the evening and we took supper with Brother James Hammond, Editor of the Clarion. Brother Hammond has a nice home and family, and a good business, and is still sound in the faith.

We then went to Indianola one day and visited Brother Thompson and family. Then to McCook where we spoke one night to the faithful and a few who came in to hear the gospel.

We then proceeded to Box Elder where we spoke twice on Sunday, and baptized Mrs. Mary Wolfe in the afternoon. The strange part of this is that Sister Wolfe became interested in the truth through the instrumentality of Sister Mary Wolfe who was baptized a number of years ago. They spell their names alike, yet they are no relation, at least until now they are Sisters. This late Sister Wolfe, like her namesake is a very intelligent lady, and Sister Wolfe can be justly proud in the part she has played in bringing this worthy Sister to a knowledge of the truth. This shows what a little effort and a pure life will do.

We then went to Havana, spoke on Monday and Tuesday evenings. On Wednesday I baptised Sister Minter, after which Brothers Minter and Hammill took us to Curtis where we boarded the train for Moorefield. I was met by Brother Schultz and conveyed to his hospitable home. We got out a few in the evening on short notice and had a very good meeting.

We then came home to prepare to go to Iowa where we will be till after conference. On our trip a good many expressed their intention to be at the conference, and we trust that their will will be carried out. Brothers and sisters, make the effort and you will be there.

Financial report shows:

Received from all sources, $19.20. Expenses amounted to $17.10. Received, less expenses, $2.10. Salary $50.00, less $2.10, leaves balance due $47.90.

Your Brother in the work.

Almus Adams, Evangelist.

Editor Restitution:

I am just in receipt of a letter from Daniel Hull of Chicago, offering me a seemingly candid challenge to debate the revelation of the Bible from God versus its revelation from the spirits of dead men, also the phenomena of Spiritualism.

I expect to start to Eden, Washington, tomorrow to hold a meeting. As the Spiritists begin their annual meeting the first of August, and I wish to be back soon to meet the discussion, I will certainly have enough activity to once or kill. I hope to continue active in the northwest as long as I can go unless I am called to the southwest field.

As ever, for Christ,

W. L. Skeels.

Obituary.

Walter E. Goodyear was born July 28, 1852, in Camden, Oneida Co., N. Y. Died, July 29, 1908. Age, 56 years, 6 days. He is one of the eight children born to the late Lorenzo and Mary Gooyear. He is survived by six brothers and sisters. They are Wallace, Mary and Schuyler, of Bloomington, Illinois; Mrs. Martha Hall, of Cadillac, Mich.; Lucius, of Toledo, O., and Mrs. Love Missman, of Pipestone, Minn. Walter never married. He had been for a long time a believer in the things concerning the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, but not until a year ago at our conference did he submit to baptism in the name of the Lord Jesus, through the administration of Bro. R. G. Huggins. He has been most faithful to his convictions. A remark frequently heard from them with whom he was associated in church work was, "How we will miss Walter in our meetings." Not only will he be missed by the church in Dixon but by all who met him last year at the conference as well as by a host of friends outside. He was faithful in his home life and will be missed by brothers and sisters more than by any one else. He is gone but not forever. There will be a glorious dawn one of these days. We hope to meet him there. Until that time he awaits the Lord's coming in the beautiful cemetery in South Dixon, Illinois.

My Bible.

Book of all Books! Book divine!
All and always thou art mine.
From beginning through to end,
I will still on thee depend:
Infidels still love to scout thee,
Critics high bred doubts about thee,
Devils low would rout thee
If they could, thou Book sublime!

"Higher critics," fowered creeds,
Fail to satisfy my needs.
My soul hungers to be fed
With divine not human bread.
I need something God hath spoken,
My heart craves inerrant token
That his word can ne'er be broken.
This, my very soul demands.

Let the critics still rebuke
Moses and his pentateuch!
Let their question what he wrote.
To their heart's content—I vote,
That he who walked upon the sea,
And raised the dead in Galilee,
Of Moses said—"He wrote of me"
Divine interpretation!

Jesus Christ, the Holy One,
God's dear and beloved Son—
He who at twelve years of age,
Taught the Book to Jewish Sage,
Found no "myth" in Jonah's story,
Found in Job no "allegory,"
But with light shed down from glory
Found him self throughout it all.

Then to Jesus let us look
To interpret his Father's Book.
He who said, and also willed—
"Every jot shall be fulfilled,"
Knew 'twas heaven's revelation,
Never questioned "inspiration,"
Ever taught its close relation
To himself—Most Book of mine

Editorials.

You lengthen your life by shortening your troubles.

Something for nothing is seldom worth more than that.

Nothing dries up the heart so quickly as bathing it in the waters of melancholy.

The great object of life is not to please ourselves, but to do our duty. Rom. xv. 3.

It takes a real smart man to keep out of all the foolishness there is in the world.

A good man corrects a mistake when he makes one; a wise man corrects his mistake before he makes it.

To rightly estimate a man's character, you must take into account not only what he does, but also what he does not do.

If your life is a failure at home it will be a failure everywhere. If you have no cozy corner in the heart of the family circle, you have no power with souls outside.

Books, Papers, etc.

A Gold Nugget of Hope, by Bro. W. L. Skeels, of Etna, Wash. Hortatory. A bundle of tracts from the office of Present Truth, St. Paul, Neb. Some of them are fairly good. There is one pamphlet on the Sonship of Christ by Bro. Almus Adams, which is on the right side of the question, and which is well worth reading. Cheap; two copies for five cents; 100 copies, $1.00. A long letter on the New Covenant, written to Bro. Chas. B. Williams. Mostly a compilation of texts on this subject. The article is accompanied by a letter in which the Editor is told to publish the article just as it is "entire." The writer speaks of the "rath of God," and about "obeying the gospel from the hart," etc. The poor Editor must not change "rath" to wrath, nor "hart" to heart; he must publish the article without change, or return the MSS. to writer. Most writers are thankful to have the Editor come between them and the reader. We decline to publish articles without editorial revision..

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

As I desire to do what good I can with my pen, if the troubles I have should unfit me for field labor, I send my manuscript to you this time, and ask if you have time to give me advice concerning my style, etc. My natural place is public speaking. I have loved it from early boyhood, and have with my resolution had as chief ambition the desire to make people better. As a boy I was an Ohio pioneer in gospel work. I am now sixty-four years old (late to seek a new field for doing good,) but I must do all I can for the cause of the Master I love. If any length of days are left me when I cannot be useful, I will be of all men the most miserable. I have troubles which naturally make wood use treated me with the utmost consideration with all I have sent to him for THE RESTITUTION. I regard him as the right man in the right place. I think editors of religious periodicals, as well as evangelists and ministers of the gospel, should help sustain each other as they would be sustained. Remember me as taking a personal interest in your work and success.

For Christ,

W. L. SKEELS.

We thank Brother Skeels for his good letter. It shows that our Brother has a burning desire to be useful to the Lord and his people. It is a mistake to think people get old and worthless; we never reach the "deadline" till we permit our energies to stagnate. If we only had more men like our brother, men who were enquiring and anxiously seeking an opening for work in the Lord's service, we would have fewer "drones" in our beehive. He encloses an article entitled, "A Gold Nugget of Hope." We see nothing wrong with his "style." Follow your "natural style," whether it is as good as other writers or not; it will be the best for you. In Paul's old age, he resorted to writing epistles for the edification of his brethren, and we think our dear brother can follow the example of the Apostle, and be of use to the Lord and helpful to his people by using his pen. We welcome Brother Skeels as one of our contributors, and say to him and all others who write for our paper, Do not write long articles. If you have considerable to say on one subject, write several articles, each independent of the others, under separate headings. We refuse to publish "To be continued" articles in Ebenezer. If the different writers knew with what avidity the readers perused the letter department of our paper, more of them would write for its column.

Is Man's Spirit in the "Likeness" of God.

Has it (the spirit) "likeness" (Gen i 26, 27) to the spirit of God? "Who among men knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of the man which is in him? Even so the things of God none knoweth, save the spirit of God." 1 Cor ii 11. If "likeness is not taught here it is not anywhere. "Image" and "likeness" of Gen i 26, 27 are an exceeding strong statement of man's similarity to the Creator. "God is a spirit." John iv 24. The spirit in man is the only part which can in any sense be in the "image" and "likeness" of God.

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Concerning 1 Cor ii 11, our friend says, "If 'likeness' is not taught here it is not anywhere." We think too that Paul teaches a likeness here, but it is a likeness a Christian minister should be very shy of. The likeness the apostle points out is this: "The spirit of man sustains the same relationship to man that the "spirit of God" does to God. As man, according to our friend, is a mortal body having within him an immortal spirit, so to carry out the "likeness" about which our minister is so particular, God would have to have a mortal body inhabited by an immortal spirit! We are sure that when our friend thinks over the "likeness", he will not like it well enough to ever mention it again. "The spirit of man" and the "spirit of God" are no more personalities than the "spirit of the world", of which the writer speaks in the 12th verse.

Here our minister becomes very bold and outspoken in his defense of the immortality of the human spirit. He puts the words, "Image" and "likewise" in quotation marks, and refers the reader to Gen i 26, 27 to show where he quotes from. Then he makes this novel statement, "The spirit in man is the only part which can in any sense be in the 'image and 'likeness' of God." Reader, we will quote Gen i 26, 27, and we ask you to bear in mind our friend's statement, very sweeping in its scope, that the spirit is the "only part" of man that "can in any sense" be in God's likeness. All right; ready: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth..... So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." The 28 verse adds: "And God blessed them, and God said unto mortal spirits "made"?

2 He was to have "dominion over the fish of the sea", fowl, cattle, etc. Pray tell us what kind of a "dominion" an immortal spirit in man could have over these material things?

3 "God created man in his own image," says the Record. According to this verse it was the being "created"; it was the "man" who was created in the image of God: our friend says it was not the man, but the spirit of the man, so created!

4 The record farther states that when God made man in his image, he made male and female: "Male and female created he them." If the spirit is the "only part" referred to, as our writer affirms, then we have male and female spirits!

5 Not only this unheard of absurdity, but more; for since God said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply," etc., we would have the spirit of man, the "only part" referred to, multiplying itself into millions of immortal spirits by sexual cohabitation!

6 Adam "begat a son in his own likeness, after his own image; and called his name Seth." Gen v 3. Did Adam "beget" his son Seth, or did he beget an immortal spirit?

7 And lastly, we invite your attention to the following passage: "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made he man." Gen ix 6. The mere quotation of this text against your assertion that the spirit of man is the only part which "can in any sense" be in God's image, is most calamitious in consequences. The passage shows that the "man" created in God's likeness, has "blood" that can be "shed". And yet a minister of the gospel comes along and tells us that the spirit is the "only part" of man that is referred to when you read about the image of God! This text written by the hand of Moses, the man of God, has the same effect upon your assertion as an ignited match would have thrown into a mountain of gunpowder.

While the Erie barge canal will cost $101,000,000, about one-third of the estimated cost of the Panama canal, the magnitude of the work exceeds that at Panama. The present Erie canal is about 350 miles long and of this distance the barge canal follows the old route for only 24 per cent, or eighty-four miles. For the other 260-odd miles the canal is laid out on what is practically another route, following their rivers and lakes, an old route of travel by water, which was used by the pioneers who settled the western part of the state.

The Throne in Heaven.

In Revelation, chapter iv. 1-2, it is written, "A door was opened in heaven, and a voice said, Come up hither, and I will show thee things which must be hereafter, and immediately I was in the Spirit, and behold a throne was set in heaven and one sat on the throne."

John does not designate by any name who it is that sits on the throne. The open door through which John entered heaven, has no reference to a door in the sky, but rather to a future state and condition of things that obtains on the earth, in the hour of judgment to come.

Again, the throne in verse 4, is seen surrounded by other twenty-four thrones upon which are seated twenty-four elders wearing crowns of gold, "and out of the throne proceeded lightnings, thunderings," etc.

The twenty-four elders and four living creatures full of eyes representative of the one body glorified, worship him who sits on the throne, and cast their crowns before the throne, "Saying, thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, honor, and power, for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." Here one discovers who it is that sits upon the throne, even the Lord God Almighty, the Creator of heaven and earth. The Eternal Spirit, the Father of our Lord Jesus associated, always stands first and foremost in all things pertaining to his revealed purpose. It is for his pleasure primarily, not man's, that all things are and were created.

In chapter v. 1, a little book or sealed scroll is seen in the right hand of him who sits on the throne. This little scroll is written within and without, and sealed with seven seals, but who is worthy to open the seals and bring to light the hidden secrets of eternal wisdom? Great and wonderful events are locked up, so to speak, in this little scroll, and John wept because there was no man in heaven and earth worthy to open the seals of the little book or even to look thereon. Among all the holy men of old none were found worthy.

At last the Lion of the tribe of Judah was proclaimed as the one worthy to loose the seals. He is, at the time of the seals opening, the Lion, but when John looked to see him he did not see a Lion, but a Lamb as it had been slain, showing that his worthiness rested upon his sacrificial work as the slain Lamb. The Lamb without spot or blemish, perfect in character, not true of any other one of the Adamic race, and only true in this instance because of the interposition of Almighty power, where human frailty was absolutly impotent.

The fact that the Lion of Judah's tribe takes the little book from the right hand of him who sits on the throne fully identifies the Father as the one holding the book and sitting on the throne. Rev. v. 7.

In verse 13, the reader will see both Father and Son as related to the throne.

In chapter vi. when the sixth seal is opened, the reader will see the throne again, but under a somewhat different aspect. The great earthquake that follows, synchronizes with the sounding of the seventh trumpet,—the sixth seal possibly overlaping the last trumpet in part.

In this great epochal earthquake the identical same throne is again in full view to the reader's mental vision. The heaven departs as a scroll when and every freeman hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks and mountains, and said to the rocks and mountains, Fall on us and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of his wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?"

If we were to follow in the footsteps of standard expositors it would be necessary to seek the fulfillment of the sixth seal in the days of Constantine the Roman Emperor in the beginning of the 4th century. No such startling and wonderful events as are described under the sixth seal occurred in the days of Constantine. The great day of the Lamb's wrath did not come then, nor has it yet come. How strangely it would read "Hide us from the face of Constantine and from the wrath of the Lamb," as if the Roman Emperor and the Lamb were co-partners on the throne. The change from paganism to paganized Christianity was not an earthquake revolution but a change of dress and habiliments. It was paganism after Constantine just the same as before, except in its outward dress and drapery. The idols remained but their names were changed, while the ceremonials of public worship were possibly made more captivating to the vulgar crowd. The barbarian cared little whether his God bore the name Jupiter or St. Peter. If he could only see the idol before whom he prostrated himself that was enough, he was content.

The great day of the Lamb's wrath is again brought to view under the seventh trumpet, and could not therefore have occurred in the days of Constantine. The seventh angel sounded and there were great voices in heaven saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ and he shall reign forever and ever, and the nations were angry and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets." Rev. xi. 15-19.

In my judgment there is no good reason for doubting the soundness of the application of the sixth seal and the seventh trumpet to the same epoch in the world's history, even the great day when the dead in Christ shall rise up, and appear before the Judge of quick and dead. It is the day of his indignation against the idol-worshiping nations who defile the earth with their wicked and forbidden abominations. Hence we read "there were lightnings, and voices, and an earthquake and great hail."

The seventh trumpet earthquake shakes the thrones of kingdoms and empires and cause the stars (princes and rulers) of the political and ecclesiastical heavens to fall as a fig-tree casteth her figs when shaken by a mighty wind. No such an upheaval transpired in the days when the dragon changed his outward dress, but not his heart. It was the dragon still, in sheep's clothing, making war under the banner of the cross, as cruel and unrelenting as any of his predecessors.

In the day of the Lamb's wrath the "sun is darkened and the moon become as blood." The sackcloth blackness of the sun, and the blood-like aspect of the moon would be the inevitable result of the heavens departing like a rolled up scroll.

6. And it came to pass as they came, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that the women came out of all cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with instruments of music.

7. And the women answered one another as they played, and said, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands.

8. And Saul was very wroth, and the saying displeased him; and he said, They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands: and what can he have more but the kingdom?

9. And Saul eyed David from that day and forward.

10. And it came to pass on the morrow, that the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand, as at other times; and there was a javelin in Saul's hand.

11. And Saul cast the javelin; for he said, I will smite David even to the wall with it. And David avoided out of his presence twice.

12. And Saul was afraid of David, because the Lord was with him, and was departed from Saul.

13. Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him his captain over a thousand; and he went out and came in before the people.

14. And David behaved himself wisely in all his ways; and the Lord was with him.

15. Wherefore when Saul saw that he behaved himself very wisely, he was afraid of him.

16. But all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

QUERIONS.

1. What was the great victory David had won?
2. What blessing had this brought to him? Verses 1-4.
3. Why was this manifestation of love displeasing to Saul? 1 Sam. xx. 8
4. What reward did Saul make David for his services?
5. How did David act in prosperity?
6. What did the officers and people think of him?
7. Who sang praises for David when he returned?
8. What did they say of Saul and David?
9. How did Saul feel about this?
10. What did Saul fear from David?
11. What does "Saul eyed David mean?
12. What came upon Saul after this
13. Why did this come upon him? Sam. xvi. 14.
14. To what crimes did Saul's jealousy lead him?
15. What was the source of all this?
16. Where did Saul then seek to play David?
17. What was David's feeling for Saul? 1 Sam. xvi. 21.
18. How did the people feel toward David? Verse 16.
19. What was the result of David's wisdom and prudence?
20. What is true wisdom? Job xxviii 28; Psa. cxi. 10.
21. How did David treat his enemy Saul? Verse 10.
22. How should we treat our enemies? Matt. v. 44.
23. Was this kind of discipline good for David?
24. What does "And the Lord was with him" mean?
25. Will the Lord be with us now?

THOUGHTS.

Hatred and jealousy are twin born of selfishness.

Ardent, heart-felt joy at the success of others, is the best cure for selfishness.

Saul's vices tended to bring David's virtues out more prominently.

As God was with David, so is with every one of us, in so far as we are willing to receive him, and guided by him.

When we are faithful God is with us.

One way to act toward others is to return good for evil. This was David's way.

Another way is to return good for good. This is the way many men do.

A third way is to return evil for good. This is Saul's way.

Envy and jealousy, covetousness and selfishness, never yet brought a good thing to pass.

The Illinois Bible School will convene this year at Oregon, August 10-19, and the Annual Conference from August 19-28. When answering questions of lesson 8, please say if you will try to attend. Please send the names of any others who may be persuaded to come. Let us try to make this year's School the best we have yet had.

S. J. LINDSAY.

To the Church of God in Ohio, grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

As we are still waiting for God's Son from heaven, and as each one that has named the name of Christ has assumed a share of the responsibility to occupy—do business to and for the Lord Jesus—until he come, we are reminded by the flight of time, that the sixth annual Conference is rapidly approaching. At the last meeting held in Springfield, it was decided that the next gathering should be at Salem. It has been found that the time from Wednesday evening, Aug 12 to Sunday Aug 16, will be most suitable for all. Those who attended the first conferences at Salem will remember the unfeigned love among the brethren, and the unselfish joy manifested by every one at being able to send out an evangelist to sound out the Word of life. This was doing the will of God from the heart. Our Brother Robison, State Evangelist, is doing noble work. Let none of us be weary in well doing; for we shall reap if we faint not.

Further particulars later.

P. NEILL, Pres.
J. C. THOMPSON, Sec.

The Twenty Third Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Nebraska will be held in St. Paul, Nebraska, Aug 29 to Sept. 7, inclusive.

MINNIE ROBERTS, Sec.

To Hell and Back Again.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scripture teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. H. WILSON.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by C. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

THE MESSENGER

Is the name of a religious monthly magazine advocating the coming of the Kingdom of God, the return of the Lord Jesus, and the hope of Eternal Life. Published in Glasgow, Scotland. Subscriptions received by the American agent, William G. Rothe, 970 St Marks ave, Brooklyn, N. Y. 1 copy 37 cts, 2 copies 69 cts, 3 copies 97 cts, 5 or more copies 25 cts each copy per year. Sample copy on application.

Those having occasion to write to Brother James C. Thompson, Sec'y of the Ohio Conference will note that his address is now 1397 East 124th St. Cleveland, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foors.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foors, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foundations of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 19, 1908. NUMBER 31.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

One Year $1.50, Six Months 75 Cents, Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind, not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work; has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

The Jewish Pilgrim.

Are these the ancient holy hills,
Where angels walked of old?
Is this the land our story tells
With glory not yet cold?
For I have passed by many a shrine,
O'er many a land and sea;
But still, old promised Palestine,
My dreams have been of thee.

I see thy mountain crests green,
Thy valleys fresh and fair;
With summer's brightness they have been,
When Israel's home was there;
Though o'er thee sword and time have passed,
And cross and crescent shone,
And heavily the chain has pressed,
O thou art still our own.

Thine are the wandering race that go
Unblest through every land,
Whose blood has stained the Polar snow,
And drenched the desert sand;
And thine the home for hearts that turn
From all earth's shrines to thee,
With their lone faith, for ages borne
In sleepless memory.

For thrones have fallen, and nations gone
Before the march of time;
And, where the caravan coiled alone,
Are forests in their prime;
Since Gentile ploughshares marred the brow
Of Zion's holy hill,
Where are the Roman eagles now?
Yet Judah wanders still.

And has she wandered thus in vain,
A pilgrim of the past?
No, long deferred her hope has been,
But it shall come at last;
For in her wastes a voice I hear,
As from a prophet's urn,
It bids the nations build not there
For Jacob shall return.

Oh, lost and loved Jerusalem!
Thy pilgrim may not stay,
To see the glad earth's harvest home,
In thy redeeming day.
But now resigned to faith and trust,
I seek a nameless tomb;
At least beneath thy hallowed dust,
Oh! give the wanderer room.

Difference.

There are mournful eyes, that sobless weep,
Hearts that in speechless patience keep
Vigils of anguish, while seeming to sleep.

There are yearning eyes, that a thought may dim,
Hearts that cry out against their will,
And only in breaking, learn to be still.

Salvation, No. 8.

THE SAINTS THE ETERNAL ABODE OF THE SAINTS.

That this is called in question seems very unreasonable in the light of the Scriptures which so plainly teach it. The earth is man's native place, the place where he came into being, and was primarily in every way adapted to his well-being. He was created of the dust of the ground, he lives and thrives on the products of the soil. Every need of his nature is provided for in the marvelous variety of things about him. Every faculty of his mind finds its correspondence in nature. He is placed at the bottom of the great atmospheric ocean and breathes the life sustaining air without an effort of the will. There are things of beauty in varied form and coloring to please the eye; sweet odors and sounds to regale the senses of smell and hearing; foods of various kinds rich in aroma to give an exquisite pleasure to the palate, and nourish the body. Such was the habitation of man, such the primal paradise of the sinless pair. In consequence of sin, the beautiful scene was changed, man was evicted and his lovely paradise fell into ruins or became as other portions of the earth's surface; no more the surpassingly beautiful spot it was when God planted it. It is true that all beauty was not effaced. Some flowers bloomed and grass grew and green trees waved in man's second home, and these continue to adorn the countless homes of Adam's children wherever nature can assert herself, and man's skill second her efforts. Though the scene was marred nature was not rendered wholly ugly to comport with man's sinful condition. The hideous thing in the world today is sin in its vast aggregate as current history portrays it to our view. It is this that helps so amazingly to broaden the contrast between the present and that lovely but too transitory garden home of our first parents. It is this condition of things, with death confronting us that makes us long for the second paradise, "the new heavens and new earth wherein the righteous dwell."

Revelation opens with a most lovely picture, a frontispiece so to speak, and this same Revelation closes with another even more charming than the first. At the time of the fall, followed by the promise of the seed that would bruise or crush the serpent's head, there is no intimation that man would be translated to some other sphere on the ground of obedience, as though too good and exalted in his nature to enjoy an earthly home. To crush the serpent's head as a promise comprehends the work of the Christ in putting down all rule, authority and power in the destruction of the enemies of God, and in giving eternal life to all who choose to obey him. This work is to be done on the earth where his enemies are, where there is opposition, sin and death. Here is where man started and continues to be on trial for eternal life, and here is where the closing chapters of the Bible leave man redeemed.

This earth honored by the presence of the Son of God, in his humility, and moistened with his blood and tears, will be the theater of his future reign, jointly with the saints, over the subject nations. John in vision sees a new heaven and a new earth—a new order and condition of things. Rev xxi 1. And Peter, Nevertheless we according to his promise, look for a new heavens and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness. 2 Pet iii 13. Isaiah prophesies in the same strain, Behold I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things (R V) shall not be remembered nor come into mind. Isa lxv 17; also lxvi 22. It is the same earth concerning which it is written, "Who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed forever." Psa civ 5. The same that in the beginning was "covered with a garment when the waters stood above the mountains." Verse 6. It is "waxing old like a garment," (Isa li 6) and needs to be changed. In Psa civ is a fine poetical passage. The Psalmist addressing Jehovah says, Of old thou hast laid the foundations of the earth; and the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed. Verses 25, 26. It will be a new earth, but not another earth. New in the sense of renewed, or as the Christian is said to be a new creature. "Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." 2 Cor v 17. This best illustrates the meaning of "new" as applied to the earth. To this new earth comes down the New Jerusalem and God dwells with men. It is here that he wipes away all tears, stills the voice of crying, banishes sorrow, pain and death, plants the tree of life, restores Paradise in more than its primeval splendor, and fills the earth with his glory. This surely will be good enough for the redeemed church, and the obedient and saved nations. Who can imagine any thing better? It is true it remains the material earth it was when Adam and Eve walked amid the bowers of the first paradise. That some spots even in this age of sin, by the skill of man working in harmony with nature have been made exquisitely beautiful and charming, shows what can be done when God puts his hand the second time to the work of creating and adorning, and man lends his skill to the same exalted design. I will now call attention to some very plain texts about whose meaning there can be no reasonable ground for difference of opinion. And the Lord said unto Abram, After that Lot was separated from him, "Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward and southward, and eastward, and westward; for all the land which thou seest to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever." This promise is repeated to the father of the faithful after his change of name, "I will give unto thee and to thy seed after thee the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession." Gen xvii 8.

The reader will notice particularly that the first part of the promise is to Abraham himself, securing the land to him for an eternal inheritance; it relates to no temporary occupation of the land, as a stranger and a sojourner. He did not get enough in actual possession to set his foot on. "He gave none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on; yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him when as yet he had no child." Acts vii 5. So he lived and died in the land, and the promise made directly to him remains unfulfilled up to the present time. The fact of his purchasing a spot for a place of burial showed the nature of the covenant, that it related to time subsequent to his death and resurrection. Like others of the fathers he died in faith, looking forward to the then distant future for the realization of his hope. Heb xi 13. They saw the fulfilment "afar off." By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance obeyed; and went out  By faith he sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise." Heb xi 8, 9.

After the descendants of Noah had forgotten God and become vain in their imaginations, and fell to worshiping birds, and beasts, and creeping things he chose Abraham and laid the foundation of his faith and hope in certain promises, among which we find the promise of a local habitation on the earth in time future to his life of pilgrimage, and of course future to his death and resurrection. God in giving Abraham the true religion which was to become the religion of the world or of all nations in subsequent ages, centered hope in land, not in sky in earth, not in heaven as understood in popular theology. The promise of a new heaven as in Isaiah, Peter and Revelation is a promise of a renewal of something in close connection with the earth, something that had waxed old like a garment, something disordered and needing re-arrangement. What needs a change worse than the earth's atmosphere, the repository of deadly poisons, and the theater of destructive tornados and cyclones? The land of promise in its changed condition is the better country or heavenly one desired by Abraham. Heb xi 16. With the curse removed, with paradise restored, with God tabernacling with men, with sin and death banished from it, with the glory of God filling it and soft blue skies bending over it, where could a better country be found? He who desires a better one is harder to please than father Abraham.

The snatches of poetry quoted in a preceding chapter do not tell the truth, but Hebrew poetry does. "The heavens, even the heavens, are the Lord's; but the earth hath he given to the children of men." Psa cxv 16. In the 37th Psalm five times it is affirmed that those who wait upon the Lord, those who are meek, the blessed of the Lord, the righteous, and those who keep the way of the Lord, shall inherit the earth or land; once it is affirmed of these that they shall dwell therein forever, and their inheritance shall be for ever. I will quote one passage. The righteous shall inherit the land and dwell therein forever." Verse 29. See verses 9, 11, 22, 34, in connection with verse 18. The great Teacher said, "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." Matt v 5. The meek are to be permanent dwellers of the earth but the wicked are to be cut off from it and rooted out of it. The purpose of Jehovah as primarily expressed in Gen i 28, has never been carried out. "God blessed them, and God said be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it." The subject nations under the righteous rule of Jesus and his immortalized saints will do this. Who can afford to choose the way of the wicked and suffer his doom? Will you, dear reader, choose to close your eyes in an eternal sleep, shut out from all the lovely scenes in the new earth, to which you are so kindly invited by the gospel?

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 23.

FRIENDSHIP OF DAVID AND JONATHAN. I SAM. XX.

Golden Text. A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity. Prov xvii 17.

The friendship—or love—of David and Jonathan can only be fully understood and appreciated properly valued—by those who have themselves entered into covenant relation with God and Jesus Christ, having full faith in the promises made to Abraham. Gen xii to xxii; Gal iii.

There was nothing new about such friendship. It was not based on anything of an earthly character, such as personal appearance. Nor was it the outcome of David's bravery and skill in vanquishing the gigantic Philistine.

Saul had David brought before him, 1 Sam xvii. Jonathan stood by listening, by the time David had answered Saul's questions, and by the way he answered them Jonathan had recognized in him a brother, and more than a brother by birth, one of "like precious faith." 2 Peter i 1. As it is now, so it was then, those who did meditate on God's covenant of eternal life, and cherished it in their heart were few and far between. It was therefore an abounding joy for Jonathan to meet David, there was at once a "unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." Eph iv 3. Class distinctions disappeared. The king's son and shepherd lad met as the sons of God. Saul kept David with him, and Jonathan made a covenant—a contract or agreement—with him, and dressed him in his own clothes that he might be properly attired for service in the king's house. The friendship was so closely cemented by mutual faith that the words of Paul will fitly apply.

Their lives, their hopes, their aims are one,
Their comforts and their cares.

"The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David," 1 Sam xviii 1-4. This is grand language of words to express a fact, the simple, yet wonderful fact, that the life of David was as dear and important as his own. As time passed the hatred of Saul for David became more intense, determined and foolish. He instructed all his servants to kill David. He sent messengers after David from place to place. David fled to Samuel to Ramah. Saul went there himself, chapter 19. David fled from there and saw Jonathan. They held a serious consultation. Jonathan was loath to believe that his father was really determined to kill David. However he said, I will do anything you may desire. David said, You have made a covenant of the Lord with me, if you find any falsehood in me slay me yourself. Do not bring me to your father. They went out into a field. There Jonathan in the name of the Lord God of Israel promised David that he would find out from his father if he really did mean to kill him, and would most surely let him know. 1 Sam xx 1-13. In verses 14-17 Jonathan made another agreement with David. He asks as if he knew that the Lord had rejected his father and family from the throne of Israel. 1 Sam xv 26-28, and that David would be the king. So he had him swear—or vow—by the Lord that he would be kind to his family. Verses 18-23, Jonathan explains to David his plan to let him know what his father said about his absence. His place at the table being vacant the king asked Jonathan about him. Saul's rage was beyond bounds. He simply raved, and declared that David must die. Jonathan asked why. For answer Saul threw a spear at him. He was assured now that David was right when he said there was but a step between him and death. 1 Sam xx 3. Jonathan left the table full of anger, grief and shame at the foolish conduct of his father. "The glory of children are their fathers." Pro xvii 6. It must be sad indeed when the time comes—as it sometimes does—when the child has to blush for the unmanly behavior of the father.

Next morning Jonathan—sad at heart—went out to give David the signal of danger, and to bid him good by, they could not longer meet openly as friends.

"Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart; so doth the sweetness of a man's friend." Pro xxvii 9.

The meeting and parting of Jonathan and David is told in a few words. No one that is a friend indeed, or has a friend indeed, and reading the words, but what will keenly feel the grievous pathos of them, and will share deeply in the heartfelt grief of Jonathan and David. The same great power, Saul the king of Israel, that brought them together under happy circumstances is now the means of parting them under most distressing conditions. Though the parting is sad indeed, it is not for ever. They have sworn—in the name of the Lord, to meet again. For though parted by King Saul, they will be united by Jehovah's king. Psa ii 6, when he comes to raise the dead and change the living saints. The friendship of Jonathan and David—and such as they cannot be destroyed, or ended by any earthly power.

Next lesson, David spares Saul's life. 1 Sam xxvi.

P. NEILL.

We have lately written a number of letters to some of our patrons who are affected by the new postal laws. We trust they will each see the importance of immediately replying to us, so that all trouble can be saved. If in any case there is an error, we shall be very glad to have it pointed out, so that it can be corrected.

Is the World Growing Better?

A few weeks ago, the writer asked through THE RESTITUTION for statistics showing that the world was growing worse and not better, as popular churches at present teach. Brother Eychaner very kindly answered that query and referred me to Brother Marsh, but in the meantime Brother James Wilson of Chicago has undertaken to answer this question, both directly and indirectly, through THE RESTITUTION and has affirmed that the world is growing better. I am sorry but I must take issue with Brother Wilson on this question. I feel sure though that he will not be offended if I append herein my reasons. I will put these reasons in the shape of four questions.—Question 1. Do the following testimonies apply to times immediately preceding the second coming of Christ? Jude 17, 18; 2 Tim iii 1-5; Luke xvii 26-30. If they do, it matters not whether the world seems to grow better in our estimation, we have God's word that it will grow worse. Question 2. If this is the age of free Bibles and the hundreds of tons of said Bibles are supposed to be doing so much good, is it not strange that an inventory recently taken in Chicago shows that only 60 out of every 1280 families owned Bibles and that the vast majority of those that didn't own them would not accept one as a gift? Question 3. If the world is growing better, one reason for it would be the conversion of the heathen. Orthodox churches go frantic, trying to raise money to send missionaries to India and other benighted lands, to teach the followers of Buddism and other false religions, Christianity. Queer, isn't it, how they have overlooked two Buddist temples, right here in America, one in Seattle and one in Boston. Funny how they have overlooked common newspaper reports to the effect that Dr. N. Krishna, Ph. D. and Bhikkhu Ananda Metteyya, two Buddist monks are touring the United States endeavoring to gain converts to their religion. Speaking of the work of Christian (?) missionaries in foreign lands, latest estimates place the heathen at one billion. If it were possible for each of the missionaries now at work to convert 25,000 (a pretty big job) 320 millions would be converted, leaving 678 millions left. We are given to understand from reliable authority that the heathen multiply very fast, and that for every convert made seventy more are born. Keeping these figures in mind is it not folly to expect the conversion of the heathen, or the world, through the agency of the Free Bible, or any other means other than the personal appearance of Christ?

Question 4. The people of the United States spend 80 million dollars a year for tobacco, consume annually 3 billion cigarettes, use the product of 42 thousand breweries, which is 2 billion gallons of liquor. Statistics prove to us that these figures increase from year to year. If the world is growing better, these figures ought to decrease. We might just add that a perusal of the daily newspaper shows an increase of government corruption, crime, vice, profanity, theatre-going, dancing, horse-racing, cock and bull and prize fighting, divorce, mob rule, anarchism, etc.

Brethren, let us look at these matters carefully, "For when they shall say, peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child, and they shall not escape," 1 Thess v 3. Let us earnestly pray "Our Father who art in heaven, all hallowed be thy name, Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

Plymouth, Indiana, Aug. 19, 1908.

Our space this week is given to our correspondents.

Another uprising of the tribes in Morocco is threatening the French troops stationed in some of the outposts.

Brother J. L. Wince gave the Plymouth Church two good sermons again last Sunday. The weather was extremely warm.

The city of Springfield, capital of the State of Illinois, has been the scene of wild disorder for some days. An assault on a white woman by a negro was the start of the trouble, the mob destroying property and killing innocent blacks. The soldiers are in charge now.

The printed programme for the Nebraska Conference is at hand, and all wishing a copy please send to the Secretary, Minnie Rogers, St. Paul, Nebraska, and get a copy. A notice of the meeting is given elsewhere in this paper, and all can see the time, and the arrangements made to care for visitors. The preaching is to be done by Bros. Joseph Williams, Almus Adams, S. J. Lindsay and O. J. Allard, interspersed with social meetings and song services. With this array of talent all who attend can be assured of most excellent and earnest teaching, and a good and profitable time can be had if all will work for the cause of Christ, and not for selfish ends. Our prayer is that the truth of God will be set before the people, and that some will see its beauty, and accept salvation so freely offered.

Acts Ix. and Galatians Compared.

A. J. Eychaner in The Restitution of July 8, requests some help. I have been troubled about the same in time past., However, I think a little investigation will set all things right.

In Acts ix. Luke gives a brief account of Paul, failing to mention that he spent any time in Arabia, and its object. In the 9th chapter of Acts from the 1st to the 21st verse inclusive, Luke gives the work of the Apostle from his conversion to the time he left Damascus and went into Arabia.

To complete this story I would read in between verses 21 and 22; Gal. i. 18, to 24. This, I think, gives us a complete history of the apostle for the first three years after his conversion.

In Gal. ii. 1, 2, Paul records his visit fourteen years later, when he and others went to Jerusalem to attend the conference spoken of in Acts xv. In Gal. i. the apostle tells why he went into Arabia. In verse 1, he writes, "Paul, an apostle, (not of men, neither by man, but by Jesus Christ and God the Father, who raised him from the dead.)" In verses 11, and 12, he states again, that "I certify you brethren that the gospel which was preached of me is not after men; for I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." It was necessary that Paul be instructed not by men but by Christ himself. For this purpose he was sent into Arabia that he might be instructed in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. In the 17th verse he says: "Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia and returned to Damascus." At this point we take up Luke's account beginning with the 21st verse of the 9th chapter of Acts. But Paul increased the more in strength (Diaglott—power,) and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, proving that this is very Christ. Before leaving Damascus the first time he preached, "that he is the Son of God."

Paul's second visit to Damascus stirred the Jews and they took council to kill him. The disciples let him down by the wall in a basket. From here he went to Jerusalem after three years. Gal. i. 18. At this time the disciples feared him, but Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles (Peter and James) and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord on the way, and that he had spoken to him and how he had preached boldly at Damascus, (verse 22,) in the name of Jesus. He spoke boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus and disputed against the Grecians; but they went about to slay him. The rest is told in the 30th verse. It is evident that this could not have been the time of the visit recorded in Acts xv. for at that date, fourteen years after, Paul was well known to all the apostles. The fact stated in Acts xv. that Paul and Barnabas were together at the conference does not prove that they were not together three years after his conversion.

I will now attempt to answer the questions asked:

1, He did not. 2, Three years after. 3, All of this could occur very easily. Notice Gal. I. 21, 22. Afterward I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia; and was UNKNOWN BY FACE unto the churches of Judea which were in Christ. The Diaglott says was unknown personally to the churches in Judea.

In Acts xxii. the apostle rehearses his visit to Jerusalem after three years and tells of a vision in which he was directed to leave there and go among the Gentiles as they would not hear him. Then the disciples took him down to Cesarea and sent him forth to Tarsus, his native city.

I have given in a brief article what I understand the Word to teach concerning the movements of the Apostle Paul for the first fourteen years of his ministry. If I have not unraveled what seems to be a tangle I will stand corrected.

To the Readers of The Restitution.

My name has not appeared among the contributors of The Restitution for many months, and frequently some one enquires the reason why. I do not know how to answer such enquiry. I only wonder that anyone would notice such poor composition. To me it reads very insipid. I am unable to write my thoughts with any force or beauty such as the glorious gospel of Christ demands.

I often reject my manuscript as not worth the space it takes in The Restitution. Our patient Editor always publishes my articles, thinking perhaps some one will receive some benefit from them; or perhaps it will encourage me to make another effort and thereby improve. Our beloved paper is always filled with so much better matter than I can furnish that I have tried to hide behind their productions and feel excused. Yet I confess to some misgivings in the matter. I suppose I can talk better than write, and have often resolved to do so but have failed to carry out my resolution. My hearing is very poor and that furnishes me an excuse, but does not satisfy me. That is the reason I do not attend the Conferences, and take part in the deliberations. It is not that I am not interested, but I am so deaf that I cannot catch on to anything that is said. I once heard a deaf man preach. He did well as a speaker but he looked lonesome and I felt lonesome on his account, and I know if our Master had been present he would have healed him and sent him on his way rejoicing. Oh, how much we need him! He could heal our infirmities, allay our racking pains, dry our tears, banish our sorrows, give us joy for heaviness and clothe us with immortality. Let us hope the time of tarrying is nearly over, and that the night is far spent and the day is at hand.

We believe the Lord will come at the appointed time and fulfill all that the Father has given him to do. This is the Faith concerning the Kingdom of God. That which Christ accomplished, when in the flesh, constitutes the sum of the knowledge and the reason of the hope that is within us. We are not satisfied with saying we believe Christ died for us, but we would exult in the knowledge of the fact. The sufferings of Christ are to his servants the pledge of the glory into which he will enter. And to suffer with him is to know that we shall be glorified together. Faith first, then the excellency of the knowledge is freely given us of him in whom we have believed. We are admonished to grow in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. We must not fail to maintain the ground of our hope even unto the end if we share in the grace that is to be revealed unto us at the appearing and kingdom of the Lord. More is required of us than an assent to the fact of his existence. "Whom to know aright is life eternal." Destruction waits for all who know him not. We must get into the inmost circle if we would be led by the sweet influence of his holy spirit, and enjoy the perfect fellowship of his love. We were brought near by the blood of Christ, but many have not kept that nearness, but like the Prodigal have wandered into a strange land, and have left their high-calling and have stooped to affiliate with the degenerate and vile until want and wretchedness cause them to contrast with bitter reflection the abundance of the Father's House with their abject condition. Alas, too many unlike the Prodigal never return. God help us all to walk worthy of the highest vocation to which he has called us, that we may not be empty handed when summoned into the presence of the Lord of the harvest.

The Two Adams.

Adam was a type or figure of the Christ that was to come. Both were a special creation; one made "from the dust of the ground"; the other "made of a woman". Both were placed under law; the first transgressed; the second was obedient. The first received dominion and a bride. The second is likewise to receive dominion and a bride. The likeness must be sought for between the two, in the period before the first transgression. There is no evidence nor reason in the idea that because Adam sinned:—therefore his nature was changed. His environment, his relation to his creator was changed. Under the environment of dominion, ease and luxury the first Adam sinned. Under the environment of poverty, tyranny and opposition the second Adam triumphed by obedience. The physical perfections of the passover lamb finds their counterpart in the moral perfections of the second Adam. To be tempted as Christ was is no sin, but to yield to the temptation is sin. Take a look through the telescope and view the planets moving in their orbits, and the "earth hung upon nothing", and ask yourself if it is not sin to doubt the ability of the architect of the universe to beget the second Adam from the virgin in other than by the natural law of generation? Oh, shame on you doubters! The fact that it is written, "Behold a virgin shall be with child, etc." should be an antidote against that raw and outlandish idea that was in the mind of the heathen, and is voiced by Russell in relation to the sons of God and the daughters of men. It is more than probable that the virgin mother of Christ lost the mark of virginity by the birth of her first born Son and heir to David's royal throne: Heir to the throne as the son of Mary; and legally as the son of Joseph born after marriage; and heir to the throne of the world as the Son of God, and successor to the first dominion lost by Adam.

A Bit of Autobiography, with Present Events.

About a dozen years ago I was in the Willamette valley, evangelizing. In telling the people that Christ is coming back to reign on the earth, I also told them that "the living know that they must die; but the dead know not anything," with emphasis on the last clause. Soon after my return to Scholls, Oregon, I got a letter from the locality of my meetings, saying that Moses Hull, of Chicago, was at New Era, Oregon, holding a spiritual camp-meeting, and asking me if I would debate with him?

I had recently held a discussion in Vancouver, Washington, on the Truth of the Bible, with the happy result of afterward immersing two of the three, that had been almost poisoned by infidelity; as the Vancouver champion had announced that his reputation reached from the Atlantic to the Pacific, while I humbly told the audience that my reputation only reached from Vancouver across to Oregon, to a little village about thirty-five miles away, and as the duties of an evangelist called for boldness, as well as work, I notified those that were working for another discussion to be between Mr. Hull and myself, that if he would acknowledge the Bible as the foundation of evidence, I would discuss Spiritualism with him, but if he denied the Bible, I would discuss that question with him. As I received no reply from him the subject seemed to have passed into an endless death, in the exchange of communications through our friends; but not entirely, I guess.

Last Summer I was stopping with my daughter, Mrs. Grace Lawrence, Etna, Washington. I was informed that the Spiritualists would have an annual campmeeting in a grove near the place, and invited by them to attend, and investigate, I accepted.

At the first meeting Mr. Mills, of Seattle, announced that the order of the meeting would be changed and they would have a conference, or speaking meeting, in which all present would be invited to take part.

He continued, in which he asserted that he had a standing challenge to discuss Spiritualism with any minister, lawyer, or doctor. Believing the move to be only a game of bluff, I answered, Told them of my experience with Moses Hull, and offered to discuss under the same conditions. I met with them every day for a week Keeping it before them during that time, I only made second to the public discussion, the privilege of attending their circles and the privilege to investigate the phenomena of spirit manifestation, without having my power to move about, to go to the cabinet, or where I pleased, interfered with during the investigation. I could neither get a discussion or an untrammeled investigation. I believe the week ended in a triumph for our cause, and think the whole community so thought, except those that have been hoodwinked by their magnetism and tricks. Since coming back from my trip I am informed that Daniel Hull, brother to Moses Hull, deceased, will be here during the month of August, to hold their annual camp-meeting, and that they will expect a discussion, though I expect to go next Sunday to hold meeting at Eden, Washington, near Astoria. I hope to be back during the month. I know better than others that my condition of health needs a condition of active, energetic work, to my full strength, rather than inactive rest. You will be apt to hear more of this if there is more to it.

My appointment by conference to evangelize was followed by resolution granting privilege to change my field to the southwest if health or better usefulness should demand it.

In order for information I desire brethren of the northwest to write to me; also the churches, and brethren of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona and California. If these states, with Arizona as the center, from which the gospel could be carried, would organize a southwest conference, I think much good would result. Experience with the climate gives me confidence that health would be insured in the Arizona climate.

The Missouri Conference.

Beginning the evening of Aug. 26, and continuing until Sunday, Aug. 30, inclusive, the Missouri Conference of the Church of God, will convene with the brethren near Fredericktown, Missouri, about ninety miles south of St. Louis. Probably a number of the Missouri brethren are acquainted with it as the Blush church. All coming, via St. Louis, will take the Iron Mountain and Southern train, leaving Union Station, St. Louis, about 7 A. M., Wednesday morning, Aug. 26th. You will arrive at Fredericktown, 1 P. M., here conveyances will be provided for all who come to take them to Blush. Write and tell me you are coming. All those desiring to come after Aug. 26, will also be met.

Brethren and sisters in Missouri, this is a part of your work, come and accomplish your task, which is a joyful one. We have long needed and desired such an organization, now it is started, contribute to its success.

To the followers of Christ in other States, in our endeavor to found a Conference in Missouri, we appreciate very much the encouragement given by members of other Conferences, and we trust that a number of you will attend the meeting. The time is rapidly advancing, make your preparations now to come, and enjoy this meeting; and while enjoying it, make successful the purpose of its organization, a closer union of the people of God, that we may not stray from the light of the Truth.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 6 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This is the work that Bro. Wilson made notice of under the title of "To Hell and back again." The title as printed is as above given.

Questions on Sunday School Lesson Aug. 23.

Friendship of David and Jonathan. 1 Sam. xx.

Golden Text—"A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity." Prov. xvii. 17.

30. Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said unto him, Thou son of the perverse rebellious woman, do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion, and unto the confusion of thy mother's nakedness?

31. For as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom. Wherefore now send and fetch him unto me, for he shall surely die.

32. And Jonathan answered Saul, his father, and said unto him, Wherefore shall he be slain? what hath he done?

33. And Saul cast a javelin at him to smite him: whereby Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David.

34. So Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month: for he was grieved for David, because his father had done him shame.

35. And it came to pass in the morning, that Jonathan went out into the field at the time appointed with David, and a little lad with him.

36. And he said unto his lad, Run, find out now the arrows which I shoot. And as the lad ran, he shot an arrow beyond him.

37. And when the lad was come to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee?

38 And Jonathan cried after the lad, Make speed, haste, stay not And Jonathan's lad gathered up the arrows, and came to his master.

39. But the lad knew not anything: only Jonathan and David knew the matter.

40. And Jonathan gave his artillery unto his lad, and said unto him, Go, carry them to the city.

41. And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of a place toward the south, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times: and they kissed one another, and wept one with another, until David exceeded.

42. And Jonathan said to David, Go in peace, forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord, saying, The Lord be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever. And he arose and departed: and Jonathan went into the city.

Thoughts.

The good in us is strengthened by true friendship.

Friendship tends to make us like the one we love.

We can keep friendship by acts of love, mutual service, telling of virtues and covering faults.

True friendship is shown in loving, rather than in being loved; in giving, rather than in getting; in serving, rather than in being served.

"The way to get is to give."

Jonathan was loving, constant, unselfish in his friendship for David.—Jesus loved even his enemies.

True friendship gives no heed to the "tale-bearer."

God loved us before we loved him. Even when we do wrong he does not cease to love us, but asks us to repent and turn to him.

Were God to cease being our friend as soon as we made an error, who among us could claim his friendship today.

Dear Restitution:

I feel that I must tell your readers of our recent Conference held at Waveland, Ark. It was the most harmonious I ever attended. It seemed that the Lord was with us from the start. After the first day, we had to go to the creek every day and baptize somebody, and some days twice a day. There were twenty some odd baptized, and among them, one old man who was perfectly gray from age. This meeting was held right where I have been preaching for a quarter of a century, and many of them understood the truth, but had not become obedient to the faith. But when they heard it could not resist any longer, and therefore came forward and put on Christ by baptism. There were delegates and visitors from several States, and I do wish every one of like precious faith could have been there. There were people there whom I had never seen, and you have no idea how much good it did me for some of them to come to me and say, Brother Daniel, I was led to see the truth by reading your tracts. There was one man who came there who had been converted to the truth by reading my tracts, and who sent for Brother Hood to come and baptize him. He invited us to hold the next Conference in his neighborhood, which we agreed to do. He said there were a number in his settlement who believed the truth, who had been led to see it by reading my tracts. My health is no better brethren, and I would have been treated before now, but I was not able to do so. But some of the brethren have helped me some, and I want to thank them for it through The Restitution, and pray God to restore unto them fourfold. I baptized five loving ones into the name of the Lord Jesus last week, and if I get my health restored, I hope to baptize many more the coming year. Brethren, I have quite a lot of my kingdom tracts on hands, and have another tract on the same subject, in the hands of the printer, that will be out by the time this paper reaches you. This tract shows what the elements of the kingdom of God are, the condition they are in today, and when they were brought together, and organized into the kingdom of God. I do hope that every one of the faith who sees this, will order some of them and thereby enable me to pay the printer for printing them, and help me pay my expenses while I am being treated. I cannot, and will not ask the brethren to help me, unless I can give them value recieved, but I feel that in these tracts, I can give them value recieved and help the cause of our blessed Lord, and they can, by buying them, help me and the cause too. So brethren, you who have means, please send for some of these tracts, which are only ten cents each, or one dollar per dozen, and thereby help one who is in need, and also the cause which every lover of the truth should love above every thing. There are a few of the brethren who have helped me, whose names I would give if I were not afraid they would not like it, and to whom I owe a debt of gratitude I can never pay, for if it had not been for them, I never could have hoped to be treated as I shall have to be, if I ever regain my health. But with their help, and with the help I hope to get by selling my tracts, I feel that the dawn of a brighter day is before me, without which all would be dark to me today. The tract that is now in the hands of the printer, will contain one of my latest photographs, and will sell at only ten cents each, or one dollar per dozen. Address Magazine, Ark.

Your loving brother in affliction,

T. J. Daniel.

Coming.

Therefore be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh. Matt. xxiv. 44.

He may come perhaps at morning,
When to simply live is sweet;
When the arm is strong, unwearied
By the noonday toil and heat;
When the undimmed eye looks fearless
Up the shining heights of life,
As the eager soul is pouring,
Yearning for some noble strife.

He will come perhaps at noontide,
When the pulse of life throbs high;
When the fruits of toil are ripening,
And the harvest time is nigh:
Then, through all the full-orbed splendor
Of the sun's meridian blaze,
There may shine the strange new beauty
Of the Lord's transfigured face.

Or it may be at the evening—
Gray and sombre is the sky,
Clouds around the sunset gather,
Fast and dark the shadows lie.
When we long for rest and slumber
And some tender thoughts of home
Fill the heart with vague, sad yearning
Then, perhaps the Lord will come.

If He only finds us ready
In the morning's happy light,
In the strong and busy noontide,
Or the coming of the night.—
If He only finds us waiting,
Listening for his sudden call,
Then his coming when we think not
Is the sweetest hope of all.

Editorials.

Character is the result of daily choices.

The hypocrite in the church is the best argument the devil has to advance.

People need what is in your heart as much as they need what is in your head.

There is a vast deal of difference between a broad mind and a swollen head.

No failure costs more than it is worth—if the fellow who failed makes use of it.

Some people use a little effort to accomplish something, and then entirely exhaust themselves boasting about it.

A Side Issue.

Advocate of Woman Suffrage.—The question of woman's suffrage always has been and always will be the prime factor in social life.

Minister.—It was not so in the beginning. Then women were only a side issue. Gen ii 21, 22.

Higher Criticism the Kiss of Judas.

Dr. McFeters of the Southern Presbyterian Theological Seminary, in an address before the Bible League of North America, at St. Louis, made the following vigorous and just attack upon the destructive higher criticism as taught in the Chicago University. He said in part: "Higher criticism is not the Roman's spear which pierced the side of the Lord. It is rather the kiss of Judas, which, under the pretense of friendliness, aims at the destruction of religion. We, the adherents of literal faith in every work of holy writ, are contending today for the altar and the hearthstone. Radical criticism, such as that voiced by the University of Chicago, proposes a complete change from Christianity to infidelity. It not only presumes to modify, but even, on occasion, rejects the truth taught by Christ, such as his resurrection and second advent. There are a few ambitious young men at the university, who, impatient of obscurity and meagre pay, think to procure themselves better positions by attracting publicity. This aim they can accomplish best by sensational attacks upon what is holy."

Medley.

We do not glory in war. It runs directly counter to our nature to have to use the sword. Yet we often have to defend the truth, and as much as we love peace and quiet, duty sometimes demands that we take the sword and spike some "high thought" right between the eyes. And this warfare sometimes, in fact it is often, occurant "within" as "without, in the outer court". Whether pleasant or not, we cannot evade pointing out this medley within the divine walls of our own church. In a little pamphlet called "Human Versus Divine Wisdom", a printed sermon in reply to Mr. Gonzales, a Congregational minister, the writer says, speaking of Mr. Gonzales' words which he quotes: "Next I proceed to prove that he is an infidel. He says: 'The Bible is just like a tool, to be used like a hoe or rake. Revelations were written by an old man after he was a hundred years old, and discarded by the early church; and Ecclesiastes teaches the sleep of the dead, but it is of very doubtful authority.' If the Bible is like a hoe or rake, then man is as high above it as he is above a tool, and man is to control it instead of the word of God regulating him! In one breath he said we must harmonize all the Bible.....take it all. In another breath he throws out Revelations and Ecclesiastes."

This is a plain criticism on Mr. Gonzales' Bible-destroying theory. It sounds good to the ears of all Bible lovers. But the writer who penned the above words writes in a paper published at Atchison, Kansas, March 15, 1908, as follows. He quotes several Psalms, and then makes this comment on them: "I will not insult God by attributing such sentiment as this either to him or to David, or to any other man inspired by any other spirit than the spirit of hate and murder.....The spirit of these Psalms proves them to be from some sore headed forger and man-hater written after the captivity." And then with a "suppose we try Solomon's Song of Songs," he quotes a selection from Canticles, and then remarks: "He who can see deep spiritual things in this Song is more pious than we are. I doubt that Solomon had any better inspiration when he wrote this than had Brigham Young." Now our writer has proved that Mr. Gonzales was "an infidel" because he compared the Bible to a tool, and because he threw away certain parts of the Bible because they proved soul-sleeping. Then after he makes this criticism of the Congregational preacher, he suddenly discovers that many of the Psalms were written by a "sore headed forger and man-hater", and that the Song of Songs are as worthless as the writings of Brigham Young! Medley? Yes. But there two duties which this medley has fastened upon the writer, and he should lose no time in attending to them: 1. He should withdraw his criticism on Mr. Gonzales, and apologize for calling him "an infidel". He should say to Mr. Gonzales: My dear friend, I am so sorry I called you an infidel. I regret it from the bottom of my heart. I have found out since I called you such an ugly name that you were right; that the Bible is merely "a tool"; and that instead of the tool controlling us, we must control the tool! When you threw out Revelations and Ecclesiastes you shocked me, but come to think of it, the Psalms are written by an old "sore headed forger and man-hater" and Canticles are not fit to be read! Accept my apology, and I will withdraw my written pamphlet against you, and request all readers who have them, to commit them to the flames. This is your duty; it would be manly and upright for you to do it. But no, you go on selling your strictures on Mr. Gonzales! And your second duty is this: You should get out of the Church of God as soon as you can. The Church of God stoutly contends for the inspiration and authority of what you think is only the writings of an old "sore headed forger". We are believers; you are an unbeliever: what fellowship is there between us? You do not believe with the Church of God; why then don't you leave the church with which you don't agree, and join one you agree with? Quit such medley; wake up and do your duty. Be a man.

Is the Body a "Tabernacle" for Man's Spirit.

Man was made to dwell on earth and have dominion over all animal life upon it. Gen i 26, 28; Psa viii 6-8. Consistent with surroundings and duties, God created the body of man of "the dust of the ground" as the "house" or "tabernacle" of the spirit. Gen ii 7; Job iv 17-21; 2 Cor v 1-10; 2 Pet i 13-15. It is with reference to the body that man was made "but little lower than God", or "angels" (mar. Psa viii 5); the same fact is affirmed with reference to the body of Jesus (Heb ii 5-18, noting verses 9, 14, 15).

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our minister is shrewd enough to see that if man was created to "dwell on earth" and to have "dominion over all animal life", "surroundings and duties" logically necessitated a material man. So to be "consistent with surroundings and duties" God set about to make another man, or rather a "tabernacle" in which the spirit-man might be imprisoned. Our friend's own comments are, "God created the body of man 'of the dust of the ground'". It will richly repay the reader to turn to Gen ii 7 and see for himself how our friend has deceitfully used the Holy Word of God, unintentionally no doubt. Moses says, "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground." See now the difference between Moses and our dear friend: Moses says the Lord "formed man of the dust of the ground: "A Christian Minister" says he "created the body of man 'of the dust'". Moses says the "man"; our friend says "the body of man". Another fulfillment of the words of the wise man: "Add not thou unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar." Prov xxx 6.

After this effort to pervert God's word, our friend braces himself up to say that "the body is the 'house' or 'tabernacle' of the spirit." For proof of this statement we are invited to Job iv 17 21; 2 Cor v 1-10; 2 Pet i 13-15. It becomes our duty to turn to these texts to see if they substantiate his affirmation.

We begin with his first text, Job iv 17-21. The prophet begins by saying, "Shall mortal man be more just than God?" We cannot but wonder what a preacher wants of such words to prove the immortality of man. We continue to wonder what he means till we get to the 19th verse where we read about "them that dwell in houses of clay." By calling to memory that our minister is designing to prove that the "body is a 'house'" for the spirit to live in, we are able to see that he wants us to understand that by "houses of clay", our bodies are meant, and that "them that dwell in" these houses are our immortal spirits. Beautiful and ingenious as this interpretation is, it is bound to get spoiled. If the distinction between "them" and the "houses" is what our friend thinks; if "them" are the immortal spirits, and the "houses" the bodies they inhabit, woe be unto the spirits of men! For in the following language the prophet speaks of "them" as "they": "They (the immortal spirits) are destroyed from morning to evening; they (the immortal spirits) perish forever..... They (the immortal spirits) DIE, even without wisdom. Vs 20, 21. If "them" who dwell in "houses of clay" are immortal spirits, "they are destroyed"; "they perish"; "they die"!

Your second passage, 2 Cor v 1-10, speaks of man's body as a tabernacle soon to be "dissolved", in contrast to the immortal body of the future which is "from heaven", and which is likened to a permanent "house" to stand forever "in the (now) heavens."

You cannot find in the entire chapter the least hint that the body is a tabernacle for the spirit of man to dwell in. God does dwell in the bodies of his saints by his Spirit, and for this reason they are called "the temple of the living God"; but this is entirely a different thing to your conception of man's body being a tabernacle for the indwelling of an immortal spirit of his own.

Turning now to your third and last text, 2 Pet i 13 15, we read, "I think it meet as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance; knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle." Our friend refers to this passage to prove that the body is a house for the spirit to dwell in. So he doubtless understands that the "I" in the tabernacle is the immortal spirit; and the tabernacle the "I" puts off, is the body. We are willing to give his interpretation a fair test, to see if it is "consistent with surroundings and duties". I will put on an overcoat. The coat is my tabernacle, I will suppose; and I am the immortal spirit enclosed within it. I am the "rational, thinking, intelligent", talking, acting man. I am in there now, and I say, "I think it meet as long as I (Who is talking, who is the "I"? The spirit-man inside the coat. Well,) am knowing that shortly I (the spirit-man inside the coat) must put off this, my tabernacle (coat). Moreover, I (the spirit) will endeavor that ye may be able after my decease". The spirit is now dead, and we stop for the funeral.

Conclusions.

Higher Critic. Superior wisdom and advanced thought have destroyed faith in that fish story about Jonah and the whale.

Partial Inspirationist. Certainly; no body gives that story credence now; even we do not, and we are advanced thinkers and teachers in the church.

Infidel. Good, brethren, that's right. Have free thought. Do not be hampered by Christian restrictions. Like saloon men, assert your "personal liberty" rights.

Believer. But if the book of Jonah is untrue, and you throw it aside as worthless, may there not be other books in the Bible equally untrue and worthless? Be sober and careful. Conclusions are very important. We must have regard for—

Higher Critic. Conclusions? No bother about them. We know by eminent wisdom that the Bible is just a book among books, written by men, some of whom were none too good, expressing their blunders, when they made blunders, and their poetry, if they were poetical; but only expressing the men and age out of which they came.

Infidel (blinking his eyes). With what wisdom and eloquence our friend speaks! How lofty his thoughts! Go on; give us "free thought" and "personal liberty".

Partial Inspirationist. I am so fascinated by the glitter of twenty century erudition, I never stop to think about conclusions. When such men as Brother Higher Critic speak, the loftiness of their burning eloquence and deep thoughts just lifts me up into the air; I don't care or think about conclusions. As a partial inspirationist I believe the writers of the Bible only wrote under the inspiration of God "at times"; hence the reason of so many blunders, fish stories, contradictions, etc. No one knows whether the Bible is inspired even in a partial sense; at the most some only think it is—some of it, may be. The only conclusion possible is—Higher Critic. That the writers of the Bible were not so well educated as we are, and that their Bible is not as good a literary production as Shakespeare's works.

Partial Inspirationist. Well, guess. We don't know whether the Bible is inspired or not. The things in it which are true are true in themselves, and not because Bible writers said them.

Infidel. "The Lord bless you", if there is a Lord. I must take you by the hand and say, Hurrah for your 'conclusions'. Amen, brethren, Amen!

Baptism.

Baptism is as essential to our salvation, as Noah's ark was essential to the saving of himself and his household.

"Eight souls were saved by water." "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also save us." 1 Peter iii 21.

Christ himself said, "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." St. John iii 5.

"He that believeth and is baptised shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned." Mark xvi 16.

It is everyones duty to study and search the scriptures and see what they say about baptism, before being baptised. There are certain conditions on which baptism is based in order to make it scriptural, and these conditions are repentance and faith.

Paul says, "I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have taught you publicly, and from house to house, testifying both to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. Acts 20, 21.

Repentance is a reformation of life. It is the hating of sin and forsaking it. So before being baptized we must confess the Christ of God, believe, repent and then obey by being baptized, for the washing away of sin.

On the day of Pentecost when the Jews cried out, "Man and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter said, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." Acts ii 38. They believed, and were baptized. If that was the way in apostolic times, it is the way now. Therefore, immersion is correct, as it is the only form which represents Christ's death, burial and resurrection. It is the only way to get into Christ.

"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?" Rom vi 3. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Gal iii 27. Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the "Father", even so (are) we also (raised from the burial of baptism that we) should walk in the newness of life." Rom vi 4. "For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also (raised) in the likeness of his resurrection." Rom vi 5.

If ye be in Christ, if ye have put on Christ,—"then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Gal iii 29.

Brother Huggins:

I started via Portland to Astoria, but my health did not make a continuation of my trip advisable. I have received a challenge from Daniel Hull, a leader with Spiritualists, to discuss the Bible and Spiritism in their camp meeting near here. I hope to meet him in the future on Bible inspired of God, against Bible revealed by the spirits of dead men.

As ever,
W. L. SKEELS.

Brother Huggins:

I was much pleased to receive your article to be read at our Conference, and thank you for the same. The subject is one which always brings comfort and encouragement to those who belong to the sect everywhere spoken against. I will read it with a few remarks, so you may preach a little sermon to us that I hope will do us all good. We certainly were disappointed that you could not be with us, but, we cannot always control circumstances, and so we do as we can, and not always as we would. May our Father bless you in your efforts in proclaiming the glorious gospel.

Yours in the One Hope.
MATTIE NEILL.

Brother Huggins:

I almost feel acquainted with you from your personal communications in connection with your present work and your former relation with Ward and Work. I will be pleased to continue to send articles to you or Bro. Underwood as may be most convenient to the management of THE RESTITUTION and the most readily used. I am reaching years—that are laughingly augmented by added troubles from which I had no escape that I could find, but recognize Christ as the Ebenezer, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." Though we may continue to find some that we cannot trust, as well as other difficulties that bedge our ambition to do good and it may seem that a signal defeat is surely just ahead—as with Israel at Ebenezer (1 Sam iv 1) and the enemy (those we regarded our best friends) may destroy our hope—make conquest of the ark (1 Sam v 1), yet, my dear brother, after we have almost drowned our hope with tears and the final conflict is fought we can select a stone, even from the blood stained field of Ebenezer and name it "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us," and turning our eyes to the mark of the prize, we will see the rock that is higher than I—the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

Dear brother, I did not design or wish to write on the expressive name of your editorial page—which belongs properly to your pen only, but started with no other purpose than to thank you, and through you our Brother Underwood, for your encouraging courtesy in space granted; and your kind personal letter of criticism from which I hope to profit as earnestly as I requested it.

Having thought more of the name you have given your department I hope that every time we open to that page that a thrill of hope will lift the burden a little higher from out heart, every time we see the word Ebenezer, and many will have reason to be thankful on account of the good cheer that lies imbedded in it. If the ambitious young have only had Excelsior inscribed on their banner, let young and old add Ebenezer, for this will mean success not in this world alone, but in "the world to come."

Your earnest brother,
W. L. SKEELS.

Gold Dust.

Talk not of yourself—but of Jesus.

The one person in the world whom it is most necessary to reform is yourself.

Every day of the Christian's life should be marked by some deed of kindness and love.

The doing of the will of God leaves no time for disputing about His plans.

Not only to say the right at the right time and right place, but far more difficult is it to leave unsaid the wrong thing at the tempting moment.

The whole world of science, and art, and literature, and song, could it be ours, is as dust in the balance compared with a saving knowledge of the truth in Christ Jesus.

ANNA E. DIXON.

Interesting Paragraphs.

Twenty-five high school principals in Kansas are women. They are said to do their work so well that no one has ever suggested putting men in their places.

A residence of at least five years is required to qualify an alien for naturalization. No matter how long a man may have been in the United States, two years must elapse between the date of his declaration of intention and his admittance to full citizenship.

So many peanuts are eaten in this country that the native supply is not sufficient for the demand and about $3,000 worth of the African nuts were imported from Marseilles in 1906 and over $73,000 worth in 1907. The west coast of Africa produces quantities of peanuts.

Haymakers on the farm of H. A. Snell, near Hanover, Pa., noticed a cow in a nearby meadow strangely jumping about and bellowing loudly. Upon investigation they were astonished to find that eight weasels had attacked her. After a hard fight the farmers succeeded in killing several of the blood suckers and scattered the remainder.

In the manufacture of alcohol from peat, a Danish company, with experimental plant in Denmark and one in France, has found the cost to be about one-fourth of that made from potatoes. In the process of manufacture, the cellulose or fiber of the peat is converted by sulphuric acid into a soluble carbo-hydrate and this is fermented by a special yeast.

Miss Lillian Smith, captain of the Ladies' Perseverance Swimming club of England, has just declared her intention of trying to swim the English channel during the present season. Though she is only eighteen, she has already performed some remarkable feats as a swimmer. She accompanied Jabez Wolffe in one of his attempts to swim the English channel and remained in the water four and a half hours. She is not the first woman to make the attempt. Last year Annette Kellerman, of Australia, made a valiant effort to reach Calais, but failed.

Report of Labor.

By our request our esteemed brother J. F. Wagoner left Rochester, Ind., July 8th, and arrived in Woodruff the morning of the 9th. He was met there by my father and made a trip of twenty-two miles by wagon to our home. On the following evening after his arrival he spoke to us for a short time. He also spoke once before leaving. And on the afternoon of the 13th he baptised my brother and I. On the following morning he left for his home.

Yours in the hope of eternal life.

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map, which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Wilson has fortunately become possessed of a limited number of copies, and will dispose of them at 40 cents each. In view of the important changes that are to take place ere long in the countries adjacent to Russia, this book is a valuable aid to the earnest watcher of the signs. Secure one before the supply is exhausted. The book contains what is called "The Will of Peter the Great," which we have been asked recently to print, but have delayed for want of space. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

TO HELL AND BACK AGAIN.

I am now preparing a thirty-two page booklet to be entitled as above. It is something that is very much needed, for the public mind is clouded as to the Scriptures teaching suggested by the above topic. An attempt will be made to make the teaching clear and forceful. In order that I may know how many copies to print, I would like each one to write and say how many copies you would like me to reserve for you. If you will do so immediately it won't be long before it is printed. Single copies will be fifteen cents, or five for fifty cents. It would be better to take them in lots of five or ten, as postage will come less than on single copies. Address 420 North Willow ave, Austin station, Chicago, Illinois.

Announcement.

The Seventh Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Christ, will be held at the Restitution Church near Casey, Illinois, to begin October 8, and to continue until the 11th. This is known as The Southern Illinois Conference. The Program will appear later. The speakers will be Brothers Daniels, Allard, and Brother Conner if he can come; and if he cannot, some one else. Everybody come the first day and stay until the last day. We will meet all at the station, Casey, Illinois, on the Vandalia Railroad. All are invited and welcome.

Address all communications to Lewis Weaver, Casey, Illinois, R. R. 3.

B. J. WOODS, Pres.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Churches of God, Greeting:

The Church of God in Nebraska will hold their Annual Conference in St. Paul, Nebraska, August 29th to September 7th, inclusive. The meetings will be held in the Court House Hall, a large well-lighted room easily reached. We have planned to have meals served throughout these meetings at ten cents a meal or twenty-five cents a day, to those who are able to pay, but those coming who are not able to pay are just as welcome as those who pay. Beds will be provided for all free of charge. We expect to have with us some of the best speakers in the faith.

Dear brothers and Sisters, drop for awhile the worldly cares we are all troubled with more or less (and some of them are very hard to lay aside,) and make an effort to come to this meeting, asking the Lord to help you to come. Heb. x. 24, 25, says "And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another, and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."

Some very important business is to come up for settlement, so let each one feel that this is your meeting and make an extra effort to come. You are needed. Come and help us to make this one of the best meetings ever held in Nebraska.

Both the Union Pacific and the Burlington Railroads have branch lines coming to St. Paul. A committee will meet these trains.

MINNIE ROGERS, Sec'y.

The Twenty-first Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug 22 to 30. Programme later.

EVA L. STEARNS, Sec.

A New Conference.

I am requested by brethren in Missouri to take the preliminary steps toward organizing a State Conference in Missouri this coming summer. I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,

W. H. WILSON.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted, Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by G. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave, Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 366 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of these small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 430 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother, Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

One Year $1 50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

"emittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid for us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Angry Words.

Angry words are lightly spoken
In a rash and thoughtless hour;
Brightest links of life are broken
By their deep insidious power;
Hearts inspired by warmest feeling,
Ne'er before by anger stirred,
Oft are rent past human healing
By a single angry word!

Poison drops of care and sorrow,
Bitter poison drops are they,
Weaving for the coming morrow
Saddest memories of today.
Angry words! O let them never
From the tongue unbridled slip
May the heart's best impulse ever
Check them ere they soil the lip.

Love is much too pure and holy,
Friendship is too sacred far,
For a moment's reckless folly
Thus to desolate and mar.
Angry words are lightly spoken,
Bitterest thoughts are rashly stirred,
Brightest links in life are broken,
By a single angry word.

The Destiny of Russia, as Foretold by God's Prophets.

In the study of prophecy in its various branches as related to the coming of the Lord there is no branch more important than that of the movements of Russia, denominated by Ezekiel, as "Gog", "Rosh", etc., and by Daniel as "the King of the North". Daniel shows that the movements of the King of the North, is the very last sign prior to the coming of the Lord. Daniel shows that "at the time of the end", that he will "overflow and pass over", through the Bosphorus, into the Mediterranean Sea. Russia has several times attempted to "overflow and pass over", but has been turned back every time.

Ezek xxxix 2 (margin) says, "I will draw thee back with an hook of six teeth." In 1855, she started to pass over, and the six allied powers turned her back. When the Lord's time comes, Ezekiel says, I "will put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth." This is doubtless the time spoken of by Daniel, when at "the time of the end", he "shall overflow and pass over. He shall enter also into "the glorious land" of Palestine, or "Shall plant the tabernacle of his palace between the seas (Dead and Mediterranean Seas) in the glorious holy mountain."

Now notice as to what shall happen when "the King of the North," shall "overflow and pass over". See Dan xi 14: "At THAT TIME (and at no other time) shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth (in defence) for (of) the children of thy people"—people of Israel. "And there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at "that time" thy people (God's people) shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book." If they are delivered "at that time", it cannot be before then; hence the importance of watching for "that time". "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake (at that time), some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Hence the King of the North must "overflow and pass over," prior to the resurrection. "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament (at that time); and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever," at that time. This is the sign which will tell God's people exactly where they are.

The "King of the North", of Daniel and the "Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal," doubtless represent the same character. Both Daniel and Ezekiel speak of him coming forth like a storm. See Ezek xxxviii 8, 9. "In the latter (time of the end) thou shalt come into the land (of Palestine) that is brought back from the sword, and is gathered out of many people, against the mountains of Israel, which have been always waste; but is brought forth out of the nations, and they shall dwell safely all of them. Thou shalt ascend and come like a STORM, thou shalt be like a cloud to cover the land, thou, and all thy bands and many people (allies) with thee."

Verse 15, 16: "And thou shalt come from thy place out of the NORTH parts, thou, and many people (allies) with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company and a mighty army: and thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the land; it shall be in the latter days (time of the end), and I will bring thee against my land, that the heathen (Gentiles) may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes. Thus saith the Lord God; Art thou he of whom I have spoken in old time by my servants the prophets (Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel) of Israel, which prophesied in those days many years that I would bring thee against them." Compare this with Dan xi 40, 41, 44, 45 At the time of the end shall the King of the South (Turkey lies to the south of Russia) push at him: and the the King of the North shall come against him like a whirlwind (storm, Ezekiel), with chariots and horsemen, (Cossack cavalry) and with many ships (passing through the Dardenelles into the Mediterranean Sea); and he shall enter into the glorious land (the land of Israel, Ezekiel), and many countries shall be overthrown: but these shall escape out of his hand, even Edom, and Moab, and the chief of the children of Ammon. . . Tidings out of the east and out of the north shall trouble him: therefore he shall go forth with great fury to destroy and utterly make away many. And he shall plant the tabernacle of his palace between the seas, in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him."

Ezekiel says that he shall fall upon the mountains of Israel, and so both prophets agree. It would be of interest to identify Gog and Magog, of Rosh Meshech and Tubal, and of Persia and Ethiopia, of Libya, Gomer and Togarmah, of Sheba and Dedan, the Merchants of Tarshish, and the Young Lions, etc., but it would occupy too much space. I have in my possession a valuable book which does all this, and a great deal more. It is entitled the "Destiny of Russia, as Foretold by God's Prophets." It is a paper covered book of 118 pages. I have been fortunate enough to secure sixty copies of this book, which I will sell at 40 cents per copy. Of course sixty copies will last but a short time. As to whether you secure one or not depends upon how soon you order. They will be sent without partiality in the order in which they are received. When these sixty copies are sold no more can be secured as they will be out of print.

Peter informs us that this Word of Prophecy, is something that is sure, absolutely reliable, and that we do well if we take heed to it. He also informs us that it is a light that shines in the darkness, and will continue to shine until the dawn of the coming day, when the Day Star or the Bright and Morning Star will arise. The "wise shall understand," says God's prophet. It is only the wise virgins who were prepared to enter in.

In the short time that remains let me advise all to carefully study the prophetic word.

Yours in the Blessed Hope
W. B. WILSON.

Manifestations of Love.

I shall not keep you long brethren, as the gift of clothing my thoughts in entertaining sentences has not fallen to my lot. I will give you a few thoughts on the above topic as they have occurred to me in my walk through life, and from the reading of God's Word. Love is hard to define. "Any one reflecting upon the thought he has of the delight which any present or absent thing is apt to produce in him has the idea we call love." So says our dictionary. We only know we love or are loved by its manifestation, and this manifestation must be in acts not words. Words indeed are idle if the actions do not corroborate the words.

Is it not so? It is a theme that has called forth the highest eloquence of man, expressed in poem and prophecy, and inspired the songs of the angels when they sang, "Peace on earth, good will toward man," for there is born in the city of David, a Savior which is Christ the Lord." That song still rings through the ages, voicing the greatest manifestation of love ever man.

The manifestation of love commenced with the creation, and has continued until the present time, and will continue until the fulness of joy is reached when sorrow and sighing shall be done away and we shall bask forever in its unalloyed effulgence as it radiates from the throne of God. We have a taste of it now in the family life of those who love each other. Who delights in manifesting that love by little acts of self-sacrifice, speaking loving words, or gentle caresses, which are reflected back in the happiness of the family circle. In such a family faults are overlooked, hasty words are not long remembered, because love suffereth long and is kind. The hand clasp of a friend, tried and true, brings a thrill to the heart and a joyful gladness that millions of riches could not bring. These are but manifestations of love, which nature prompts. In the household of faith we must stand upon a higher plane if we obey the commands of One who spake as never man spake, and every act of his life left us an example of love, hard indeed to follow, but which must be reached after if we love him, and would stand with the pure in heart before the throne of God. If ye love them that love ye, what reward have ye? says our Lord. Our reward is in the pleasure that the return love brings, and so we have our reward, and there is nothing to look forward to, for sinners also love those that love them. We must step upon a higher plane. Jesus says, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another," how much? "as I have loved you." How much did he love us? Read of his life, and see how he manifested that love. Wandering about in the hills of Judea, no home, no where to lay his head, despised, railed at, and finally haled before the tribunal of men, to answer for crimes of which he was not guilty. I often think of that lonely figure, forsaken by those whom he had loved, not one to stand by him in his hour of trial, not one to manifest the least bit of interest, but afraid lest they too should be involved in his disgrace. They stand afar off, and look on, one of them even denying that he knew him. What a pitiful picture of human frailty, but how human, we all love to be associated with the successful. How good and loving we can be, if trials do not come our way. What a lesson is here for us. Despised, rejected, not even the loved disciple near to comfort him, did he falter? No. For us he suffered that cruel death, foreseeing which he had in agony sweat those drops of blood. This is how he manifested his love for us, and this is how we are commanded to manifest our love to one another. Can we do it, brethren? Only by so loving that we may stand on the higher plane of unselfishness, being rooted and grounded in love. If ye love me, keep my commandments. One command says, Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. Is this easy to do? No. Because self says immediately, "I have enough to do to bear my own burdens, why should I bother with my neighbor's, but if we love the Master we manifest that love by hastening to help bear our neighbor's burden. Love of self is the foundation element in our nature, but if we include our neighbor and forget a little of self we are going a little way towards the realization of the command to "Love thy neighbor as thyself." It is by no means easy to so fulfil the law of Christ and bear the many things that are disagreeable to us. As the leaves of the trees differ in forms, so some are born with a sensitive nature that appreciates every form of beauty both in nature and art, or the lovely in character, while others of coarser mold take pleasure in those things that do not at all appeal to one of finer fibre. The first one, if he accepts Christ will almost immediately see the beauty of Christ's character, appreciate his sorrow and suffering, and see the greatness of self sacrifice on our behalf and rejoice greatly in the glory that is to follow to those who follow in his footsteps, while the other of the coarser nature, only dimly at first, sees why it is necessary to do the many things commanded contrary to nature, and often perhaps offends the esthetic nature of the first man by doing things that he regards as utterly out of place in a Christian, and expresses his disgust forgetting to bear with his fellow laborer until the purifying form of the law of Christ has lifted up the struggling man to the same high plane as himself. Is not this one way in which we must manifest our love for our Leader by helping him of the lesser degree of fineness to grow more and more like Christ, and thus letting the love of Christ, constrain him until he can love his enemies, and thus grow nearer the high ideal set for us in the Holy Word.

He of the finer nature will always keep a little ahead of the coarser grain, provided they both equally strive to win. How thankful we ought to be, that when he comes for his own he will not judge by the sight of the eyes, nor reprove by hearing of his ears Also that man looks upon the outward appearance but God upon the heart. The finer man may have received the ten talents and the coarser one two, but we notice the one receives as much as the other, according to the gift bestowed which is double the size of the gift, showing that to whom much is given, much will be required, but the reward of each is according to the gift. So let us bear with one another, study each others nature and environment, and leave the rest with him who doeth all things well, and by so doing our hearts will grow tender and pitiful, and become more knit together in love, like a loving family with Christ for our head.

We are not only to bear but also to forbear, and perhaps this is harder for the quick, sensitive man, thus to manifest his love for his brother than by bearing; and why, because forbearing has to do with self restraint. This one is ready to blaze up in wrath at something the coarser brother may say or do, that strikes him as not according to Christian ethics. By forbearing to speak the word that is already on his lips, will he not be manifesting his love for the Savior and his brother, to the one because he loves him, and to the other because he knows his brother is one of God's little ones, and by forbearance show him he has learned the great lesson that Christ taught, to forbear and forgive. How hard the lesson is to learn only the quick tempered one knows, or how quickly, in response to an angry word one will rise to the lips in reply.

If these words of our Master are in our hearts, "Be ye angry and sin not. Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God, and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God," the angry word will not be spoken. "Beloved if God so loved us we ought to love one another." Here is another precious statement, "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us and his love is perfected in us. Does he dwell in us, then if we do not love one another, and allow that love to go on to perfection by bearing and forbearing? Evidently not. What then, brethren? Shall we lose our crown if God dwell not in us? Must we wait until our brother has conquered all his faults, before we love him, or shall we manifest our love by forbearing and forgiving whenever the occasion arises to make it necessary. Does not every such victory over self, draw us nearer to the perfection of love by our victory over self. We are like babes, when born into the family of God we must grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth, and go onward to perfection, and also because God manifested his love to us when he sent his only Son into the world, that we might live through him. This was done before we knew him, an example of unselfish love. Have we not cause to rejoice that we shall not be judged by man's judgment? How many of us would stand with the unnumbered throng that will sing his praise on the glorious holy mountain, if we depended on even our brother's judgment to admit us, how many of us would stand there? It is truly a position worth striving for. The picture of peace that Isaiah presents in the 11th chapter is beyond our mortal ken, and still it is within the power of every one of us to behold that picture of pence, and participate in its joys. Shall we see it if we fail to manifest the same love to each other that God has manifested to us? I trow not. He that hateth his brother is a liar. For he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? A natural question is it not, when God is love? We have this commandment from him, That he who loveth God loveth his brother also. Can we fulfil this command if we entertain a critical spirit towards our brother, and do not patiently bear with his little faults, and forbear to speak the bitter word, and so manifest our love both for our Master and our brother. Remember that though we have faith to remove mountains and have not love, we are as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal. The power of the intellect is great, but who can compare it to the mighty power of love? Intellect cannot give you life eternal, but love can and will, but it must live and manifest itself in the life that we live or we shall not receive in the life that is to come. We admire the brain power of a Cæsar, a Bonaparte, an Alexander, who were able to accomplish so much. Who for? Self. Selfishness was the motive power of their action. We love Martin Luther, Clara Barton, Florence Nightingale, Frances Willard, and the great Lincoln. Again we ask why? Because love was

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUGUST 26, 1908. NUMBER 32.

J. H. Willey
Read

the power that stirred their minds and brought forth results that will live as long as time lasts. They worked with tireless energy for the good of mankind.

Again, if we love God, we love his Son, and if we love them we love those who have been gathered into the fold of Christ, and manifest that love by meeting with them when they assemble to worship in the way appointed. If we neglect to do so, is love warm in our hearts? I am glad that we in our mortal blindness are not appointed to judge. Still if a man says he loves his family and takes every opportunity of spending his time away from them, naturally we say he has a queer way of manifesting his love. So if a friend says he loves a friend, and on every kind of a pretext, avoids his society I fear that friend would in time begin to doubt the strength of that love. Christ says, "By their works shall ye know them." Shall we not then manifest our love for our Savior if it is warm within by meeting with those who meet to remember him, as often as opportunity offers? Allowing self to be swallowed up in our desire to obey him who spake as never man spake, who loved as no man ever loved, and loved us to the death. Who said, "Do this in remembrance of me." Should not the remembrance of that love make us eager to do his commandments; so fill us with love that we have no room to remember our brother's failings, but with hearts full of a desire to please our loved One, worship and adore as the angels did, and sing, Worthy, worthy is the Lamb that was slain. We know that he is risen again, and is alive forever more, inviting through his Word, all men to come unto him and find rest, everlasting rest. How many and beautiful are the invitations he gives us, born of his love for us. How can we help but respond? We do love to please the object of human affection. As the love for the heavenly transcends that earthly love, so far our desire to please the heavenly object, ought to exceed the earthly. Do we manifest such love if we neglect any command of our dear Lord? I cannot think so.

How did he manifest love to his fellow men while here? Can you find one selfish act in the whole record? A leper came and he cleansed him without a question. A man came and craved a favor for his servant, and it was granted. The sea rolled in tumultuous waves and he said, "Peace, be still," and the winds and the waves obeyed his will. Think how the sick of the palsy rejoiced when he said, "Son, be of good cheer, thy sins be forgiven thee." Do you not think the woman who touched the hem of his garment, saw the love in his eyes when he said, "Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole." If we but touch the hem of his garment with faith in our hearts shall we not be clothed upon with the garment of righteousness and receive a covering for our sins. Happy thought that love is so great. His mercy so sure. He spoke to the dead—they arose. He touched the sightless eyes and light sprang into them. No one who asked his aid went away empty handed. No child of misfortune lacked a loving word. Shall we not love this the grandest figure of the ages with all our hearts and earnestly try to build up a character worthy of such a leader?

He says, "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest." We know the promise is for all who will come. Can we not lift our eyes to the hill from whence cometh help, and realising our frailties, overlook the frailty of our brother with the true love of God in our hearts, make sure our entrance to the city of God. Nothing unclean can enter there. Only a white robed throng can walk its gold paved streets. Love will be the pass word at the pearly gates, the voices of the white-robed throng will be tuned with love, as they sing the song of Moses and the Lamb. The throng is made up of the lowly, the meek, the pure in heart, and those who have suffered for righteousness sake. Can we afford to miss the grandeur of that time won by faith and self sacrifice in Christ's cause? Let each heart answer for itself.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 26, 1908.

TAKE notice of Brother Huggins' change of address. 3502 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, Ohio.

A POSITION is open for a young man who is of the faith, and has a knowledge of the printing business sufficient to set type, do neat job printing, run a small press, and mail papers. Any one wishing a position write to this office.

BROTHER F. L. Austin is attending the Iowa Conference this week, and has arranged his return trip so as to be with the Plymouth Church on Sunday, Sept. 6, and preach for us. The services will be at 10:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. Let all within reach make note of the date, and arrange to come and hear Brother Austin once more.

A HASTY note from Brother Lindsay of Oregon, Illinois, dated August 23, informs us that 44 were enrolled at their Bible school. We will doubtless have an extended report later. One saddening feature of the meeting was that Brother Lindsay's oldest daughter, Etta, had an attack of appendicitis, and was operated on Monday evening, Aug. 17. She is getting on nicely, however, and hopes soon to be out again. Brother Lindsay started for the Waterloo, Iowa, conference on Sunday night.

A LETTER from Brother P. Neill says that the Conference at Salem was a complete success. He says: "There was not a jar from beginning to end. We missed you and some others very much, but I cannot think of even one present who was not welcome." This is encouraging and calls to mind pleasant memories of the times when we were privileged to meet with the beloved in the Lord at Salem and other parts of Ohio. Our prayer is that the good influence of this gathering may last and grow throughout the coming year, and that more and better work may be done for the Master than in any year past.

SOME people say "It is just luck," and others say "It is Providential." Have it as you each please, but on last Wednesday the building containing the Hall where the Chicago Church held their meetings was destroyed by fire, all except one corner where the organ and book case owned by them were kept. For some reason this corner with the goods belonging to the church, and the "Communion Service" was not burned, but were not even damaged by fire or water. Until some other place is secured they will meet at the several homes, as will be arranged for. A notice by Brother Thompson will explain this fully.

Conference Report.

The business meeting of the Ohio Conference, Church of God, was held at Salem, Ohio, on Saturday, Aug. 15th, 2:00 P. M., and presided over by P. Neill, President.

The report of the secretary for the years 1907-08, was read and accepted.

The following is the treasurer's report:

Total receipts Aug. 31, '07, $607.25.
Expenditures, Aug. 31, '07, $465.46.
Balance on hand, $141.79. Bros. Morron and Klingenstein were appointed an auditing committee, and made a favorable report.

It was advisable to have two members of the conference committee in each of the larger cities, accordingly the following were elected:—For Salem, Bros. Morron and Pottorff; for Cleveland, Sister J. C. Thompson and Brother Klingenstein; for Springfield, Bros. Overholzer and D. Beck; for Barberton, Bro. Juergensen; Brush Creek, Bro. J. Lehman.

Brother Robison, Evangelist, read an extensive report of the work done in the state during the year. This report has appeared in three parts in THE RESTITUTION. Some discouragement had been encountered; but the report of six baptisms seems to offset these.

Brother Juergensen, as chairman read the report of the conference committee, which was accepted. Great praise is due this committee for the efficient manner in which they have discharged their duty.

A letter from Brother and Sister C. Moore, of Cleveland, Ohio, was read in which they expressed their wishes for the welfare of the conference movement and in pledging their support for another year earnestly desired the re-election of Brother D. C. Robison as evangelist. They were unable to be present, owing to the illness of Sister Moore.

Brother and Sister Farley, of Sisterville, W. Va., by letter expressed their regrets at being unable to be present. This dear brother and Sister are making a most glorious defence for the truth once delivered to the saints. It is our earnest hope and prayer that God may bless their labors.

The officers elected for the coming year were W. S. Tomlinson, President, P. Neill, Vice President, Stanley A. Sanford, Secretary and Treasurer, and D. C. Robison Evangelist, unanimously, with Mrs. D. C. Robison as assistant.

Votes of thanks were extended to the retiring officers, also to Brothers Neill and Robison for the noble work of the former in Salem, and of the latter throughout the state.

The place for the next conference meeting was left to be decided upon by the officers of the conference.

Brother Tomlinson urged the use of more tracts by the Evangelist, and upon due authority appointed the following to make expenditures for the purpose of obtaining quantities of the best tracts, Brothers Robison, Morron and Klingenstein.

After the reading by Brother Robison the herein printed articles were unanimously adopted as the foundation for the faith of the Church of God in Ohio.

WHAT WE BELIEVE.

1 We teach that men can only be saved by an intelligent belief in the Gospel (Mark 16:15 16; Matt. 13:23; Rom. 1:16-19.)

2 This Gospel consists of the good news of the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ (Matt. 4:23; Acts 8:12; 28:23.)

3 The Kingdom of God will be a literal kingdom, established on the earth (2 Sam. 7:16; Jer. 3:17-18; Dan. 2:44.)

4 The Kingdom proper will consist of the twelve tribes of Israel, who will be gathered from all nations; and, after the rebels have been purged out will be planted in the land of Palestine (Ezek. 20:38; Amos 9:15.)

5 The dominion pertaining to this Kingdom will embrace all Gentile nations on the earth (Dan. 7:27; Rev. 11:15.)

6 Jerusalem will be rebuilt in splendor, and be "the City of the Great King," the capital of the world (Matt. 5:35; Isa. 62:7; 66:13; Jer. 31:38-39.)

7 The nations then in existence will consist of mortal men and women, as at present. They will go up, representatively, from year to year, to worship the Lord, the King, at Jerusalem (Isa. 65:17-25; Zech. 14:16.)

8 When the Kingdom has been established, the nations will learn war no more, but live in peace "one thousand years" (Micah 4:1-4; Rev. 20:1-5.)

9 The RULERS of the Kingdom shall be immortal, yet tangible, and will consist of Jesus and his brethren. These kings will be those who will have been redeemed by the blood of Jesus out of every nation (Rev. 5:9-10; Matt. 19:28; Rev. 2:26-27; Zech. 14:9.)

10 Before the twelve tribes can be fully restored, and before the Gentile nations can be subdued and blessed, Jesus must return to Jerusalem to sit on David's throne (Luke 1:32-33; Rom xi 25-26; Acts iii 20-26; Ps lxxii; Ezek xxxvii.)

11 The glorious reign of JESUS and His BRETHREN will continue one thousand years over mortal nations. At the end of that time all sinners will be rooted out of the earth, and from that period the earth will be inhabited by a race of immortal beings (Rev xx 4; Prov ii 22; Ps xxxvii 20-34; Matt v 5; Rev xxi 4.)

12 Deity will be manifested in each approved saint, as He now is in Jesus, which multitude of saints, with Jesus as the Chief, will constitute the ONE NAME, which is to rule the kingdom and dominions for one thousand years (Ex iii 13-15; vi 3; John xvii 20-26; iii 5 6; Ps lxvii 1-4; Zech xiv 9.)

13 Man is a creature of the dust—out of the earth, earthy—and by reason of sin is death-doomed (1 Cor xv 47; Gen ii 8; Ps civ 14; Job iv 17.)

14 Death is the extinction of life; and man in death is unconscious, and dependent on resurrection for a future life (Gen iii 19; Ps vi 5; Isa xxxviii 18; Ps cxlvi 4; Eccl ix 5 6; x 10; I Cor xv 16-23.)

15 Man in his present state, being destitute of immortality, if he remains in ignorance of the way of life, will forever end his existence in death Ps xlix 12-14 20; Isa xxvi 14.)

16 Those who comply with the conditions will obtain immortality at the resurrection (Rom ii 6-7-16; I Cor xv 51-57; 2 Cor v 10.)

17 Men and women whose hearts have been purified by the belief of the things of the Kingdom of God and the NAME of Jesus, if they desire in all honesty the inheritance of eternal life in the Kingdom of God, are proper subjects for an immersion in water in to the ONE NAME (John iii 5; Rom vi 3-5; Acts viii 12.)

18 In the ONE NAME they have Christ as their Mediator, Advocate and High Priest, who will, if they are faithful, intercede for them and through whom they will obtain the great salvation (1 John i 7-9; ii 1; 1 Tim ii 5; Heb iii 1.)

19 We reject the Gentile dogmas regarding an immortal soul, an immortal devil, dreading hell, eternal torments, eternal existence of the wicked, kingdom in the skies for saints, and universal resurrection. (Gen ii 7; Ezek xviii 4 20; Heb ii 17; Ps xxxvii 20; Isa xliii 17; Dan vii 27; Prov xxi 16.)

"To the law and the testimony, if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." (Isa viii 20.)

Echoes From the Ohio Conference.

To those "of like precious faith" scattered abroad we send these words of greeting. Our conference held at Salem, Ohio is now in the past. The farewell has again been said and those who were our guests have gone to their homes. It was the universal verdict that the conference was in every respect a success. The gospel of the kingdom of God was heard in every sermon, song and exhortation. During the interval of services all enjoyed themselves in exchanging experiences and building each other up in our most holy faith.

Every service was enjoyed from the opening address of Brother Neill to the last on Sunday evening. The Springfield brothers and sisters with the Cleveland did much to make our meeting a success.

We had the pleasure of immersing our young brother Ashford Lehman, from Brush Creek. Brother Ashford has been defending the truth for several years and is a very intelligent young brother. We commend him to the Brothers and Sisters of the Brush Creek ecclesia.

There were some very pleasant things said during the conference. It is the opinion of Sister Neill and others that the spirit of unity prevailed to a greater extent than in any conference that has been held. Brother Peter Overholser of Springfield exclaimed, said, "It is the time of my life." Sister Kauffman, of the same ecclesia, was present and attended each session. Salem is 200 miles from Springfield and our sister had passed her golden wedding and the 70th year of her life.

I must speak of the sermons delivered during our conference. Sister Neill's discourse on the kingdom of God was enjoyed by all. Those who have heard her know that our sister is a very graceful and fluent speaker. Sister Robison's discourse on The Bible and Its Message, was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Our sister showed herself well versed in history and the message of the Bible. Our Bible School subjects were enjoyed by all. This is a new feature in our conference work. We hope to be able in a few years to support a Bible School as others do. On Thursday p. m. a stranger dropped in on us. We soon found that he was not a stranger to the covenants of promise.

This stranger is Brother Jeffreys of Murphysboro, Ill. Brother Jeffreys was on his way to New York to meet his children who are on their way from Europe. Brother Jeffreys has been isolated for a number of years. All appreciated his visit with us. We detained him until he was compelled to go. Our brother has a standing invitation to drop in on our conference at Salem at any time that suits him. It is our wish that he preach the word. Mr. Eldemiller of near Troy, Ohio was a visitor. He expressed himself as well pleased with all sermons, songs and exhortations. We were pleased to have Miss Florence Westfall, daughter of Brother and Sister Westfall, of Troy, Ohio. Master Carl Beck, son of David and Anna Beck of the Springfield ecclesia enjoyed himself very much. Carl is only eleven years old but has distinguished himself as an artist. His oil printings are much admired.

Our audiences were very attentive. Much of the time our house was well seated. On Sunday morning and evening we had a full house. We had nearly forgotten that Sister Virginia Ritenour, of Virginia, attended our conference. Many will remember her in attendance at conferences last year. We were pleased to have her with us as she is intelligent and earnest. We were selected as evangelist for the coming year. We hope to be able to do something for the Master. Brother Juergesen of Barberton impressed all with his earnestness for the cause of Christ. He has been of much value to the conference.

Your brother in the Hope of Israel.

D. C. ROBISON.

Report of Labor.

Dear Restitution:

I wish to announce through the dear, old RESTITUTION, that on Saturday, August 1st, 1908, the Church of God, at Guthrie Grove, S. C., began a series of meetings which continued for eleven days, closing Aug. 11th, 1908.

This meeting, though saddened by the loss of our own Pastor, E. M. Anderson, has been one of great success to the Master's cause, and has brought many to a more perfect knowledge of the truth, and caused them to cry out, What must I do to be saved?

During the meeting twenty persons made a confession of their faith by putting on baptism. On Sunday, August 2, Brother J. H. Anderson preached his first sermon as our pastor here, which was very fine and to the point, and will be long remembered by those present. Sunday night Brother A. N. Durham preached to a large congregation.

The services throughout the meetings were arranged as follows:

Song Service at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. From 10:00 to 11.00 o'clock the brethren made short encouraging talks. Preaching at 11:00 and at 7:30 P. M. Song Services until 8:00, after which preaching would begin. All appointments for preaching were filled by the Pastor, Brother J. H. Anderson assisted by Brother A. N. Durham. During the meeting we enjoyed listening to twenty Bible discourses by these two brethren which were full of the grace and knowledge of God to make us wise unto salvation. The two brethren preached some of the best sermons we have heard them preach since they have been in the ministry.

There was much interest shown all during the meeting and some went away like King Agrippa, "Almost persuaded to be a Christian," which I trust will some time soon not be "Almost persuaded" but "Altogether persuaded." We have had a great feast of good things here at Guthrie Grove, which will last unto life eternal.

Brother J. H. Anderson accompanied by Brother A. N. Durham, J. S. Brewer, W. W. Moore, and G. M. Pack left this morning for N. C., where Brother Anderson and Durham will carry on a meeting in that state. Brother Anderson has received several letters from the brethren up there lately asking him to come and preach for them which he could not refuse, although he has had many troubles and hardships to bear this summer. He is one that is always ready to go forward in the Master's cause, making no excuse whatever. I hope much good will be done up there by these brethren. The party will return in about ten days. May the kingdom of God soon come and thus end the present state of things.

Your Sister, in hope of eternal life.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 30.

DAVID SPARES SAUL'S LIFE. 1 SAM 26.

Golden Text. Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you. Lu vi 27.

There is no command of God or Jesus Christ that is more disregarded, or overlooked than this golden text. There are thousands who profess—by their "religious" connections—to love the Lord Jesus, but would consider it silly and really foolish to love their enemies, and do them good. Notwithstanding the fact that Jesus plainly said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." John xiv 15.

The natural man—the world—cannot receive the things of the Spirit, therefore to the unbeliever the golden text is foolishness. 1 Cor ii 11. A babe in Christ, 1 Peter ii 2, can only have a slight idea of it. A novice, 1 Tim iii 6, one that is trying to understand—can hardly be expected to fully carry out the command. But every one—without exception—who profess to "know the living and true God, and Jesus Christ," John xvii 3, should at all times love their enemies and do them good. Observe, it is YOUR enemies, not every ones enemies, nor all the bad people in the world. Men that would treat an enemy, as David treated Saul, were always very scarce, and at the present time are rarely met.

The hostile nations round Palestine were the enemies of Israel, and of course of David, and wicked in the sight of the Lord. David—with the help of the Lord—punished those enemies severely.

David fled from Naioth in Ramah, 1 Sam xx, to escape the wrath of Saul. Then to Nob, then to Achish, king of Gath, 1 Sam 21, to the cave of Adullam, to Mizpeh, to Hareth, chap xxii, to Keilah, to a mountain in the wilderness of Ziph, to the wilderness of Maon, to Engedi, chap xxiii. Saul with three thousand chosen men pursued David at Engedi. Saul went into a cave, and was at the mercy of David and his men. He would not take advantage of Saul, nor allow his men. He cut off a part of Saul's robe, he even regretted that act, because Saul was the anointed of the Lord. When Saul left the cave, David called to him, told him he could easily have killed him, showed him the skirt to prove his words, and said "the Lord will avenge me of thee." 1 Sam xxiv 12-14. Then showed Saul that as king of Israel he was in very poor business. He was a great king, hunting a dead dog—a flea. It was David's sterling faith in God, and his genuine humility, by which he was able to rule his own spirit. "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." Prov xvi 32. This was what enabled David to spare Saul's life.

Saul broke down, he wept, and was very penitent, said some fine things to and about David, told him he would surely be king of Israel, and like Jonathan Saul made him swear that he would not destroy his family. David promised. Chap xxiv.

Saul would neither keep his word with God nor man. The Zephites—from the south, towards the lower end of the Dead sea—came and stirred up Saul to go after David again, and again David spared his life. The king was asleep with his spear close at hand, and a bottle of water. Though he had a full guard, they were also asleep. David took the spear and the bottle, then he called to Abner, chief of the king's body guard, and accused him of not taking proper care of his lord, the king, and that he had forfeited his life, and ought to lose it. This was very galling to a warrior. He had no excuse. Saul heard David, and by good words and fair speeches tried to deceive David. Rom xvi 18. "Is this thy voice, my son David?" He was certainly a good son to Saul, but jealousy is cruel, and Saul was filled with it from the time that the women sang "Saul killed his thousands and David his tens of thousands." 1 Sam xviii 7. If the Lord was urging Saul against David, he was willing. He did not despise the chastening of the Lord. For the Lord scourgeth every son he receives. Heb xii 5, 6. But if this persecution was of men, he invoked the wrath of God upon them, because they had driven him away from all that belonged to him, and from the privilege of worshiping the living and true God with those of like faith. They had made him a wanderer, leading a vagabond life. He told Saul that the Lord had delivered him into his hand, so he could easily have taken his life, but he would not avenge himself, nor by his own hand slay Saul. He had full faith that the Lord would deliver him. Saul with a show of goodness, blessed David, and they went their way.

Questions on Sunday School Lesson Aug. 30.

DAVID SPARES SAUL'S LIFE.
1 SAM XXVI.

Golden Text—"Love your enemies; do good to them that hate you."—Luke vi. 27.

17 And Saul knew David's voice, and said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king.

18 And he said, Wherefore doth my lord thus pursue after his servant? for what have I done? or what evil is in mine hand?

19 Now therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the Lord have stirred thee up against me, let him accept an offering: but if they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lord; for they have driven me out this day from abiding in the inheritance of the Lord, saying, Go, serve other gods.

20 Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth before the face of the Lord: for the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains.

21 Then said Saul, I have sinned: return, my son David; for I will no more do thee harm, because my soul was precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly.

22 And David answered and said, Behold the king's spear! and let one of the young men come over and fetch it.

23 The Lord render to every man his righteousness and his faithfulness: for the Lord delivered thee into my hand today, but I would not stretch forth mine hand against the Lord's anointed.

24 And, behold, as thy life was much set by this day in mine eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the Lord, and let him deliver me out of all tribulation.

25 Then Saul said to David, Blessed be thou, my son David: thou shalt both do great things, and shalt also still prevail. So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

By overcoming trials we are made stronger.

Only good love—can finally prevail against evil.

The tendency of good is to awaken good in others.

Sunlight brightens whatever it may shine on.

Particles of dust even will reflect light.

Crushed ice is still ice—only warmth and sunshine melt it into water.

Love's conquest is to transform hate into love.

The Tone of Voice.

It is not so much what you say
As the manner in which you say it;
It is not so much the language you use
As the tones in which you convey it.

The words may be mild and fair,
And the tones may pierce like a dart;
The words may be soft as the summer air,
And the tones may break the heart.

For words but come from the mind,
And grow by study and art;
But the tones leap forth from the inner self,
And reveal the state of the heart.

Whether you know it or not—
Whether you mean or care—
Gentleness, kindness, love and hate,
Envy and anger are there.

Then, would you quarrels avoid
And in peace and love rejoice,
Keep anger not only out of your words
But keep it out of your voice.

Editorials.

A lie has no feet and cannot stand, but it has wings and can fly afar.

Blessed are they who have no hobbies to ride. But if have a hobby you must, let your hobby be the hobby of not having a hobby.

Do you in lowliness of mind esteem your brother better than yourself? Phil ii 3. If you are Christlike "this mind" (v 5) will be in you.

Keep in touch with the throne of grace by daily prayer. Keep the tendrils of your heart entwined around the throne of God. It will make you and keep you like God.

The Illinois Bible School has just closed. The attendance was large, and the interest good. Will soon publish a full report of the school if reported by the Secretary, Sister Grace Williams.

Elsewhere in this paper, Sister Martin requests an explanation of the words, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." She really answers her own question, and so Scripturally, that we have not a word to say in reply.

It is a loving action to warn one who is in danger, even if you get no thanks for it. The Psalmist calls the reproof of the righteous a kindness and an excellent oil, and Solomon says, "As an ear-ring of gold, and an ornament of fine gold, so is a wise reprover upon an obedient ear." Psa cxli 5; Prov xxv 12.—Wiley Jones.

Please note the change in our address which is made in this issue. The Lord willing, we shall spend most of our time this year in Cleveland. We are at liberty to answer calls to preach in Michigan, Indiana, and other States not too far from Cleveland. We decline to preach at places and in the fields where Bro. Lindsay works. He is an able minister of the truth, and churches within his reach need not write for my help.

In the Christian Herald (New York), instead of having "Obituary" for the caption under which to print deaths, funerals, etc., they are published under the headline: "Called Higher." That a living man is "called higher" when he dies is one of the absurdities of immortal soulism. In quiet moments of thought and reflection, can a reasonable man work himself up to seriously believe that a dead man is "higher" than a living man? Solomon thought that even a dog, if alive, was better than the mighty lion, if dead. Eccl ix 4. Consider.

Is the Bible an Infallible Guide?

Not if we let Higher Critics represent it. In a recent issue of a monthly paper which comes to our study, we notice a "free thinker" says that our Bible canon was fixed by men "no more inspired than you or I"; that in the confusion of getting the books together twenty-three "divinely inspired books of our Bible" were omitted from the canon, and are "now lost to the world". After making the proposition clear as mud, the writer announces with "profound scholarship" this conclusion, to him an apparently comforting one: "The infallible guide is not any book transcribed by corrupt monks, but the Holy Spirit as a continual revealer of the truth written, and of direct wisdom from heaven. See 1 Cor ii 10, 12; xiv 26, 30". Like the Holy Ghost-filled and Holy Ghost-led people of pagan Christianity, our writer denies that the Bible is an "infallible guide"; it takes the Holy Spirit as a "revealer" before we can see the "truth written" in it; and like them, he throws the Bible aside as the work of "corrupt monks", and looks for "direct wisdom from heaven"! Yet this same writer with a depth of "scholarship" known and possessed only by Higher Critics says of "hypnotized dupes" who get religion in revival meetings, "The Word of God has almost no weight  against 'my experience'. A magnetic shock from these human batteries has more weight than a dozen texts from God's Word. God pity such." Save your pity, O ye Higher Critics; pity yourselves, O ye perverters of the right way of the Lord. You say that the "infallible guide is not any book", argo not the Bible; that without the Holy Spirit as a "revealer" you cannot ascertain the "truth written" in it; that wisdom comes from heaven "direct"! Then why do you desire God to pity a man who prefers a "shock" of the Holy Spirit to a "dozen texts from God's Word"? What is this thing you call "God's Word", anyway? The fragments, bits of pieces, the parts of God's word which have happened not to get "lost" through the ages, but which have been preserved by the translation of "corrupt monks", therefore not "an infallible guide"! You pity and you want God to pity a man who prefers a "shock" of "direct" power to something you call "God's Word", but which in reality you believe is only the work of "corrupt monks"! Twelve texts from such a book has "no weight", and cannot have any weight with a reasonable man; he will prefer a "shock" every time to such uncertainty. He will turn from such monkish rubbish and cry out for "direct wisdom from heaven". But after our Higher Critic turns from God's Word as a monkish book, and looks to the Holy Spirit as a "revealer", he says with the consistency and "profound scholarship" characteristic of his class: "See 1 Cor ii 10, 12; xiv, 26, 30." These texts are the foundation on which he builds his claim of spirit-guidance. My, what a bank of sand to erect your "shock" claims upon. He builds his theory on less than a "dozen texts" and these were transcribed for him by "corrupt monks"! A man so wise, so ripe in scholarship—and to think he would believe such monkish texts! How longsuffering Heaven is.

Is the Spirit Conscious in the Death-State?

Does the spirit live in a conscious state apart from the body? James ii 26 reads, "The body apart from the spirit is dead." Every logician will grant the natural inference from these words is that the spirit is yet alive after the death of the body. Why mention the separation of the two and the death of one if the other is dead also?

Eccl xii 7 says that at death "the spirit returneth unto God who gave it." This settles the question involved in Eccl iii 21 relative to the spirit of man. The spirit of man is in God's keeping while the body moulders in the dust. That is why Jesus said, "Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit." Luke xxiii 46. Matt xxvii 50 reads, "Yielded up his spirit;" Mark xv 37, "gave up the ghost", John xix 30, "gave up his spirit". Stephen called upon the Lord "saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Acts vii 59. That is where the spirit of the daughter of Jairus was when the Master said, "Maiden, arise. And her spirit returned to her immediately." Luke viii 54 55. Her spirit was alive and responsive to the Master's call.

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our good minister begins his argument in defense of spirit-consciousness in the death-state by quoting the words of the apostle James, "The body without the spirit is dead." ii 26. His comments on this text are very peculiar. He says that "every logician" will readily admit as a "natural inferences" that the spirit survives the death of the body in a conscious state. He would render better service for immortal spiritism if he would pass by "natural inferences" and give us a "thus it is written" for the immortality of the spirit and its consciousness in the death state. "Why mention the separation of the two and the death of one if the other is dead also?" If our friend knew what the spirit of man is, he would blush at the simplicity of his question. The translators of the Bible have given "breath" as an alternate reading for spirit in the margin of Jas ii 26. Man was lifeless until God imparted to him the "breath of life" (Gen ii 7); and as soon as his "breath goeth forth" (Psa cxlvi 4) his body is "without the spirit", and he is as "dead" or lifeless as he was before he ever breathed. No man of intelligence, to say nothing of a "logician", would be foolish enough to admit that the breath is "yet alive after the body is dead." The breath gives life to organized bodies, other things being equal; it gives life, but it is not itself alive. To say of the breath which never was alive that it is "yet alive" in the death-state, is to use language carelessly and to betray a lack of manly discrimination.

Then we are told that the spirit "returns to God" at death (Eccl xii 7; that it is in the "hands" of the Father (Luke xxiii 46); that it is "received" by Christ (Acts vii 59); that it is "yielded up" (Mk xv 37); all of which we accept and heartily believe. My only regret is that our minister who so glibly quotes these texts does not accept them himself. This the reader will see when we come to review the part of his article which sets up the claim that all spirits, whether good or bad, are in Hades in the interval between death and resurrection. But we dismiss this point for the present, and ask, Have you quoted a single text setting forth the consciousness of the spirit in death? Not one! The texts you quote tell us where the spirit "returns" to; into whose "hands" it is committed. They locate the spirit; they tell where it is. Our friend unconsciously confesses as much; for when he gets through quoting his passages he says, "That is where the spirit of the daughter of Jairus was when the Master said," etc. When the proper time comes we will show that you flatly deny the "where" of the spirit. But dear friend, How do you expect to show that the spirit is conscious in death by citing texts to show "where" it is? There is a vast deal of difference between telling where a thing is and showing its condition there. Come, friend, get down to the issue. You started out to prove that the spirit is "in a conscious state apart from the body", and we demand the proof.

Our friend does make one weak effort to perform the impossible task of proving that the spirit is a conscious entity while its body is dead. His attempt would be amusing but for the solemnity of the issue. Mark his words: "That is where the spirit of the daughter of Jairus was when the Master said, 'Maiden, arise.' " "Her spirit was alive," he says, "and responsive to the Master's call." Our writer certainly has a wonderful faculty for getting things mixed. When he starts to make a point, it makes no difference how many grammars he may meet on his pathway, he kicks them to one side, and goes on triumphantly to the goal—his point! The reader will remember how he applied the plural "them" in Job xxxii 8 to the singular word "spirit". Now he says, "Stephen called upon the Lord 'saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.' " Acts vii 59. If he will take the the trouble to read Acts vii 59 he will find that "they" stoned, called, said, etc.; and the 60th verse tells what Stephen did; how "he" kneeled, prayed, etc. How our friend can make the plural pronoun "they" represent Stephen, is a twist in polemics we are not familiar with. He made the mistake we presume by gazing intently at the point in his mind when he should have been looking at the text he was transcribing. He does not hesitate to ignore the rules of grammar, as may be seen from his words, "That is where the spirit of the daughter of Jairus was when the Master said, 'Maiden, arise'. And her returned to her, and she rose up immediately.' Her spirit was alive and responsive to the Master's call." Here he says that when Christ said "Maiden, arise", her spirit was was not only "alive", but that it was "responsive"—it responded at once to the "Master's call"! Here, perhaps for the first time since the world began, the spirit is called a "maiden"!

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

I have many questions to ask you, but, at present, would like to have an explanation of Jesus' words in Luke xviii 16: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." What I want to know is, what is meant by the words, "For of such is the kingdom of heaven"? Now, I do not believe, as many do, that the kingdom will be, or rather is composed of little children. Rather we must become teachable, humble, obedient, etc., as little children are supposed to be. In Matt xviii, the disciples came to Jesus and asked him, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven? Jesus called to a little child and set him in the midst of them, and said, Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me. But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me," etc.

We know that little children cannot believe or be converted, so we have no proof that this scripture has any reference to little children going to heaven at death, as many believe. We do know that Jesus addressed his disciples as little children, (Jno xiii.) Brother, please be as explicit as possible, for I am very dull of comprehension.

A Sister in Israel' Hope.

Some Mistakes Corrected.

It is a mistake to say at the communion table that the bread is a memorial of his "body which is broken for you." 1 Cor. xi. 24. Rather say, "Which is given for you." Luke xxiii. 19. His body was not broken, John xix. 32. See Diaglott on 1 Cor. xi. 24.

It is a mistake to construe Rev. i. 10, "I was in the spirit on the Lord's day," as it is read, "I was in the Lord's day in spirit," meaning that John was in spirit carried forward to a future period which those who so interpret the text call the Lord's day. The simple meaning of the phrase is that John was inspired (inspirited) to see the vision on the first day of the week, which, at the time he wrote was known to Christians as the "Lord's day," because the Lord rose from the dead on that day.

It is a mistake to apply 1 Cor. xv. 22, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive," to the whole human family. The apostle in this portion of his letter is writing to and of "brethren" (v. 1). It is true that non "all" is as broad as the other, but both comprehend the righteous only. Those out of Christ, whose sins are unforgiven, are subject to death on account of their own sins regardless of Adam; for "the soul that sinneth it shall die." But why do the righteous die whose sins are forgiven? Because they possess the Adamic nature, they die in Adam. "And as we have borne the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." 1 Cor. xv. 49. In other words, as we all die in Adam, so in Christ shall we all be made alive. "But every man in his own order, Christ the first-fruits, afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming."

Brother Huggins:

I have just written something about the seals and trumpets of the Apocalypse for your inspection and criticism. I adopted the suggestion, "boil it down," so that it would appear in RESTITUTION. Am much pleased with Bro. Moyer's article in RESTITUTION, (April 5th); just been reading. He is another "innovator" as related to Apocalyptic exposition. Had something about covenants a while ago; needed "boiling down" but have not been to able to get at it on several accounts.

The reading of Bro. Moyer's piece suggested to me the propriety of writing about the seals, being convinced of the interpretation submitted for some years.

As ever in the One Hope.

Something About the Sealed Scroll.

REV. IV. 1.

The scroll not rolled from bottom to top, nor from top to bottom; but sideways. Beginning in the opposite direction to that which we are accustomed to.

The Hebrews commenced at what would be to us the back of the book, or scroll. The scroll is presented to our notice. Already rolled up and sealed—each communication firmly sealed.

In opening, or breaking the seal. The last one sealed must necessarily be the first unsealed, or opened, and therefore the seal No. 7 would be number one opened, and so on to number seven, which would be number one in the sealing process. So then, seal number three or four could not be opened till numbers one and two were opened; and so on in the reverse order of the sealing.

This order necessitates that the writing under seal number one have its application near the close of the judgment period rather than away back under Roman domination. The accuracy of this order is apparent by a study of verses 1 and 2 of Rev. vi. The man on the white horse is a warrior represented as pressing on and on to victory. One crown shows his connection with royalty, and the wording of the writing affirms victory. Let it be noted that at the commencement of the rider's career, he is invested with one crown, but we find that near the close of his career as a warrior he is invested with "many crowns"—consult chapter six 11, 12. There is no difficulty in identifying this exalted personage.....The time is during the hour of judgment, and just before the establishment of the kingdom, when the Victor will rule the nations with an iron (strong) sceptre; when the kingdoms of this world will become the Lord's and his Christ's.

The prophetic facts and conditions represented under this seal goes to show that the opening of the seals are to be just in the reverse order from the popular conception current among expositors (?) But all of them during the war period, including seal number (6) six, under which is the great earthquake, which makes kings and emperors totter on their thrones.

After an intermission in the scenes, a new act is presented. The messengers appear with seven trumpets. The seventh seal includes all of these seven trumpets. And as with the seals, so with the trumpets, all of them judgment periods. The trumpets beginning and ending with the seventh seal. The seventh trumpet blast synchronizes with seal number one, when the rider on the white horse completes his victories as recorded, chap xi 15.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Obituary.

At the home of his sister in Marengo, Iowa, Abraham Yike, in the 68th year of his life. He was born in Fairfield County, O., Mar 28, 1841. Died July 3, 1908. In disposition he was amiable; in conduct kindly; in attainment intelligent and religious. He was a kind husband, a good neighbor; conscientious and faithful to his religious convictions, filling his place in the economy of God. Many years ago he was a member of the Christian church. After coming to Iowa in 1869 he joined the Advent Christian, and still later when more light came to him by the study of the Bible, he became identified with the Church of God at Irving, Iowa.

He leaves a loved companion to continue along the journey of life. May she be sustained and comforted in her bereavement by the promise of life by a resurrection from the dead. We trust that his peaceful sleep will end when the last trump shall sound.

A. J. EVERHART.

Stilla Darby was born March 14, 1880; was married to Clay Gilbert, Sept 13, 1903, died Aug 2, 1908. Leaving husband and little daughter 3 years old, with many relatives and friends to mourn her loss. Sister Gilbert was baptised by the writer September 28, 1902, near Augusta, Okla. She was living in Medford, Oregon at the time of her death. Sister Gilbert was ever ready to learn of the things of the kingdom and not only to learn but to tell it to others and was ever ready to defend the truth.

The enemy is now the victor and we have laid her away in the cemetery at Corvallis, Ore., to await the resurrection with the full assurance that it will be (if we live right) as little Wanda said as she looked at her mother when she was ready for the casket, "I will get to see mamma when Jesus comes."

How blest the righteous when he dies,
When sinks the weary soul to rest;
How mildly beams the closing eye,
How gently heaves the expiring breast.

So fades a summer cloud away;
So sinks the gale when storms are o'er,
So gently shuts the eye of day,
So dies a wave along the shore.

But soon shall shine the mighty morn,
When slumb'ring saints arise and sing,
"O grave, where is thy victory now,
And where, O death, is now thy sting!"

The Seventh Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Christ, will be held at the Restitution Church near Casey, Illinois, to begin October 3, and to continue until the 11th. This is known as The Southern Illinois Conference. The Program will appear later. The speakers will be Brothers Daniels, Allard, and Brother Conner if he can come; and if he cannot, some one else. Everybody come the first day and stay until the last day. We will meet all at the station, Casey, Illinois, on the Vandalia Railroad. All are invited and welcome.

B. J. WOODS, Pres.

Dear Brethren and Sisters of the Churches of God, Greeting:

The Church of God in Nebraska will hold their Annual Conference in St. Paul, Nebraska, August 20th to September 7th, inclusive. The meetings will be held in the Court House Hall, a large well-lighted room easily reached. We have planned to have meals served throughout these meetings at ten cents a meal or twenty-five cents a day, to those who are able to pay, but those coming who are not able to pay are just as welcome as those who pay. Beds will be provided for all free of charge. We expect to have with us some of the best speakers in the faith.

Dear brethern and Sisters, drop for awhile the worldly cares we are all troubled with more or less (and some of them are very hard to lay aside,) and make an effort to come to this meeting, asking the Lord to help you to come. Heb. x. 24 25, says "And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another, and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."

Some very important business is to come up for settlement, so let each one feel that this is your meeting and make an extra effort to come. You are needed. Come and help us to make this one of the best meetings ever held in Nebraska.

Both the Union Pacific and the Burlington Railroads have branch lines coming to St. Paul. A committee will meet these trains.

MINNIE ROGERS, Sec'y.

The Twenty-first Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug 22 to 30 Programme later.

EVA L STEARNS, Sec.

A New Conference.

I wish all baptized believers in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, in Missouri, to send their names and address to Miss Sadie Morse, at Valles Mines, Missouri. (Josephites are not wanted.) Kindly send in your names as soon as convenient, so that we will have time to work up the details. All sending in their names will be posted about the organization work.

Yours in the blessed hope,

W. H. WILSON.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

SOME GOOD BOOKS

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by C. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 866 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ, Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. B. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 3502 Woodland Av, Cleveland, O.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Ia. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has been used to hold it, addresses it, puts on a stamp, and drops it in the box. He has worked hard to produce his finished work, but neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

The Later Peace.

We have passed the noonday summit,
We have left the sounding hunt,
And down the hillside slowly
Descend our weary feet.
Yet the evening airs are balmy,
And the evening shadows sweet.

Our summer's latest roses
Lay withered long ago;
And even the flowers of Autumn
Scarce keep their mellowed glow.
Yet a peaceful season woos us
For the time of storms and snow.

Like the tender twilight weather
When the toil of day is done,
And we feel the bliss of quiet
Our constant hearts have won—
When the vesper planet blushes,
Kissed by the dying sun.

So falls the tranquil season,
Dew-like, on soul and sight,
Faith's silvery star rises bleached
With memory's sunset light,
Wherein life passes softly
Along the verge of night.

BAPTISM ESSENTIAL.

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing into (R. V.) the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Matt xxviii 19. Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be condemned." Mark xvi 15, 16. Belief of the gospel and obedience thereto in the act of immersion in water are equally essential to salvation. He that does both shall be saved. In Acts ii 38 baptism in the name of Jesus Christ is coupled with repentance for the remission of sins. If remission does not precede repentance, logically then it does not precede baptism. Both are for the same end. Paul's case confirms this view. Ananias addressing him said, "Why tarriest thou? arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Acts xxii 16.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 2, 1908. NUMBER 33.

"Wash away sins" is a figure of speech with a definite meaning, and that meaning, that his sins were forgiven on condition of this act of obedience. It cannot mean the pardon of his sins prior to the act. Men who pride themselves on their scholarship and their knowledge of the Bible, have been known to ridicule the idea of water washing away sins. If Ananias had used the words "wash away thy sins" in a literal sense there would be ground for ridicule; but using these words by figure of speech to convey the idea of pardon pending the act of baptism, there is nothing over which to become funny and facetious. To grant remission of sins on condition of this act of faith in the facts, of the death, burial and resurrection of Christ, is surely very reasonable, and as I have shown Scriptural. Its being an overt act does not remove it from the region of faith. It is truly faith manifested by a typical act that accords exactly with the facts of Christ's death, burial and resurrection. Entombed in the water the person is for the time cut off from the vital air; buried with him in type and raised with him in the likeness of his resurrection. This is plainly taught in Rom vi 3 5. Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death. Therefore we are (have been, Diaglott) buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. Baptism puts the repentant believer into Christ and this by representing his death and resurrection. The way into him is through a burial and resurrection. If this is not so then this passage has no meaning. By baptism we are brought into legal relationship to him. For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. Gal iii 26, 27. Paul says of Christ, Who was delivered for our offences, and raised again for our justification. To harmonize with the fact that Christ was raised for our justification we can logically conclude that God justifies the believer when he has completed the action of baptism in being raised from the grave of water. He is not regarded as just until his sins are remitted.

I now call the reader's attention to Romans vi 17, 18, quoting from the Diaglott, "But thanks to God, that though you were the slaves of sin, yet you obeyed from the heart that mould of instruction into which you were delivered; and having been emancipated from sin, you became servants to righteousness." Here emancipation from sin is connected with obedience to the mould of instruction. Baptism as shown in verses 3, 4, 5, is the mould or type of the death, burial and resurrection of Christ.

In Col ii 12 is additional proof of the importance in which baptism was held by divine inspiration. "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through faith in the operation of God who raised him from the dead." In verse 13 it is declared that those who had been buried in baptism were quickened or made alive together with Christ, having had their treapasses forgiven. There are some who profess to be Christians who claim they have been pardoned, who have never obeyed the command to be baptized. These assert that Holy Spirit baptism is the "one baptism," to which Paul refers in Eph iv 5. But what proof have they that their sins have been forgiven? Where is the testimony to so important a fact? Surely not in God's Word, for this commands the obedience to this mould of instruction. Can he treat them other than sinners inasmuch as they refuse to obey? Such can appear very pious and prayerful and this in the estimation of some is regarded as proof of God's approval.

Peter, referring to Noah's family of eight souls saved by water, then says "The like figure whereunto baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." 1 Pet. iii. 21. Here baptism is called a figure; that it saves us, and that an answer of a good conscience toward God follows the act, which can only be on the ground that remission of sins depends on it as a condition thereto. God has so appointed in the gospel. He inspired Peter to say to the convicted Jews "Repent, and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins."

This is the testimony of God prior to the act; so when the act is performed he, faithful to his word, remits the sins of the individual believer, thus clearing his conscience of guilt. He who has not from the heart obeyed the command, is deceiving himself, if he indulges the thought that pardon has been granted; relying upon the uncertain testimony of his own feelings, instead of the Word of God. Remission of pardon or forgiveness, is the sovereign act of Jehovah, and takes place at the court of heaven. After the offering of the sinless Son of God has been made; after his resurrection has been brought about; after he has entered on his priestly office; after the gospel has been preached and faith exercised, and man has reformed, and obedience rendered by him; absolutely fundamental as all these are, and vital to the great question of human salvation, sin remains to be pardoned by Almighty God. Man must be pardoned by the highest authority in the universe against whom he has sinned.

To say this is not under estimating any of the means to the grand end. Baptism as one of the conditions of pardon, of justification and of salvation, must not be set aside by a name. It is by God's appointment and arrangement in the plan. Wherever discovers its true place and relation is wise up to what is written. If it is non-essential, as some have contended, why do we find closely connected with it, emancipation from sin, Rom. vi. 18, remission of sins, Acts ii. 38, newness of life, Rom. vi. 4, the old man crucified with Christ, verse 6, and salvation as in Mark xvi. 16.

JOHN L. WIRE.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 60.

"Some time after holding a discussion with Dr. Bowles, Bro. Corbaley held a debate with Wm. M. Healy, a prominent Seventh Day Adventist. At that time Ellen White lived near Healdsburg, and many members of other churches were leaving their organizations and joining the Seventh Day people. The ministers of the town came to Bro. Corbaley and asked him to hold a public discussion with Elder Healy, acknowledging that they could not themselves meet his arguments. He consented and the discussion lasted eight nights, four nights on the Sabbath question and four on the Kingdom. A synopsis of the discussion was afterward printed from notes taken by a lawyer of the place, W. G. Swan. Bro. Corbaley took up the arguments of the Seventh Day people in detail and completely demolished them. The result of the discussion can best be seen by a conversation, held between Professor Granger of the Advent school at Healdsburg, and Mrs. Mulgrave, wife of the editor of one of the papers of the place. She had been attending the Advent meetings, and was intending to join them and commence keeping the Seventh Day. After the discussion she left off going and one day meeting Professor Granger on the street he said to her, 'Why do you not attend our services any more?'

She replied, 'that the discussion had completely settled her mind on that question, and she did not believe the Sabbath was binding on Christians of this dispensation.'

The Professor retorted, 'You ought to come and hear Bro. Healy now; he can make it so plain when there is nobody to bother him.'

These discussions were all held in a theater, capable of seating a thousand persons.

Later Bro. Corbaley held another debate with a Dr. Sturman—a noted Spiritualist of San Francisco. The discussion was held to Alexander Valley about nine miles north of Healdsburg, where the Dr. and C. W. Russell owned a ranch in partnership. The result of this debate was that C. W. Russell abandoned the Spiritualists and Bro. Corbaley baptized him into the name of the Lord Jesus. He with his wife—Hattie Krringer Russell are now living at Chico, California, where they are doing good work for the Master. A recent letter from Sister Russell, says "she attended a Conference at or near Tipton, Indiana, and that Bro. Richard Corbaley baptized her while there. H. V. Reed and T. G. Newman were there and seemed to be her especial favorites, their speaking and singing. Bro. Newman composed a hymn while on his journey thither and the brethren and sisters sang it during the social hours. every one wanted to learn it. It began

In this vale of tears we dwell,
Listening to God's Holy Writ,
And our bright and happy home near at hand.
Not being princes in disguise
We do not expect the prize,
Till we gain possession of our rightful land.

Chorus.—
Shout! oh yes! shout! our King is mighty!
Cheer up, comrades, soon he'll come;
And we all shall meet again,
There with him forever reign,
Nothing to glory in our own beloved home.

"At this same Conference (shot thinks) Bro. Hatch was ordained. It seemed a queer ceremony to her, for our people to be engaged in. She never saw Bro. Hatch afterward so far as she can remember. She has not forgotten Bro. O. T. Halstead and wife, Bro. Andrews, nor the two Hornadays, knew the most of Isaiah Hornaday's children. The oldest daughter being a great chum of hers. But none of them became Christians. They lost faith in the Bible when their father became so changed, and finally believed nothing, after having been so zealous in the truth. He used to introduce his wife—Betsy, as 'My woman,' which amused Sister Russell very much. She was also acquainted with Dr. Field and the doctor used to say 'He was her oldest acquaintance as he saw her before her mother did.' The two families were very intimate, the Krringers being members of the Doctor's church, 'The Christian Tabernacle,' for many years, but her parents, with a few others, were great Bible students, continually investigating, thereby gaining much additional truth. But the doctor never could grasp the return of Israel—smart as he was, and many an argument did Sister Russell's parents have with him on the subject.

When Bros. Read and Stephenson held a two weeks' meeting in Jeffersonville, they convinced their hearers that Israel would return to their own land, and Dr. Field how to listen to it all. Many were re-immersed, among the number being quite a body of Campbellites—some of the leading members, and as the Doctor would persist in taking in people from other churches without re-immersion many of the older members withdrew—Sister Russell's parents among the rest, and also the present Sister Halstead and daughter.

Sister Russell knew Brother Proctor when she was a little child. He was their next door neighbor. She and her mother attended a Conference at Old Union, but she does not give the date. When she and her husband went to California, they located in the same town where Bro. Corbaley lived and thus it was, that Bro. Russell was buried into the likeness of Christ's death by the same hands that had so many years before buried the dear girl who was afterward to become his wife. It is an interesting episode in the life of Bro. Corbaley and one well worthy of being recorded in his "story."

"While in California, Bro. Corbaley organized several churches, one at Willough Slough in Yolo County, of some 40 members; another at Stockton; another in Alexander Valley; another in Lake County, one at Healdsburg and several at other points.

After going to Washington he continued the good work, preaching the first discourse, marrying the first couple and preaching the first funeral sermon in that section of the "Big Bend" country. On his birthday anniversary—August 7, 1893, the Church of God at Waterville was organized with six members. Afterward through his efforts and the work of others, Bro. Austin, Bro. and Sister Woodward and A. J. Eychaner the church rose to a membership of about eighty members, though it has since been greatly reduced by removals to Wenatchee, Cashmere, California, and other places, though meetings are regularly kept up, and the members are united in the faith.

Bro. Corbaley held many other discussions, both public and private in that far away country of Israel's immense domains. A man from Wenatchee came to Waterville claiming to be an infidel. He was starting on a lecture tour and Waterville was his first point. He went to all the preachers in town and challenged them to hold a discussion with him on the Bible. They all refused but referred him to Bro. Corbaley. This infidel went about the streets with a banner inscribed, 'A —— from Hell.' He finally came to Bro. Corbaley's house and proposed having a discussion. The proposition was accepted, the debate being held in the court house, and the result was that the man abandoned his lecture trip and returned to Wenatchee the next day."

Bro. Corbaley was a modest man, medium in height, had a kindly face and prepossessing manners. "His strong preaching points were his wonderful knowledge of the Scriptures, coupled with his convincing logic and the ability to present the truth in so convincing a manner, that even a child could understand. He had wonderful talents in answering all kinds of questions without a moment's hesitation, and in seeing and exposing the weak points in the arguments of those opposed to him. He was an expert in watching and presenting the signs of the times and in teaching practical Christianity, and above all in practicing what he preached. He was respected and honored by the community about him for his strong character and worth, despite the difference in faith. A stranger first hearing him was attracted by his wonderful power of memory and command of language, coupled with earnestness and love for humanity and the truth. Toward the close of his life, his admonitions to others were very touching and heartfelt. He died as he had lived with implicit confidence in the soon coming Savior and Redeemer," the date of his death being Thursday July 16, 1908.

He had preached for more than 43 years and had held about 40 discussions. But he sleeps, soon to rise and reign in immortal glory.

I have given this interesting sketch of his life and work, as sent to me by his worthy son and successor, Alvaro L. Corbaley, with few changes in wording. And hope that it will be blessed to the strengthening and encouragement of many of our toil-worn workers in the vineyard of our Lord.

AUNTIE WIRE.

At Breaking of Bread.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Nowadays we hear so much about being without sin, that people are sanctified, and cannot sin, but I do not find that to be the case in my reading of the Bible. Take Eccl. vii. 20, For there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not. Rom. iii. 9, 10, For we have before proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under sin; and it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one.

1 John i. 10, That which we have seen and heard, declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us, and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son, Jesus Christ. And these things write we unto you that your joy may be full.

This, then, is the message which we have heard from him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. If we say we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin. If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. If we say that we have not sinned we make him a liar, and his Word is not in us.

James iii. 2, For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in Word, the same is a perfect man, and also able to bridle the whole body.

James i. 26, If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain.

James iii. 8, But the tongue can no man tame, it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be. For where envying and strife is, there is confusion and every evil work. But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without wrangling and without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace. Therefore, brothers and sisters we are only accounted free from sin because we have a covenant relation with God through his Son Jesus Christ, we have him as a Mediator who is willing to forgive us our sins if we ask him to do so. The second chapter of Ephesians applies to you and me as much today as it did in the day that Paul wrote to the church at Ephesus, not particularly for correction but showing a contrast between what we were and what we now are and giving us instruction as to what we should do. Read Eph. ii. 13th verse and 10th to end of chapter.

The trouble with the greatest number of the churches today is the desire to add to the membership, and allow them to do about as they wish, and still remain on the church roll, without trying to live near to Christ's teachings except in a general way, very much loosened from what he would have it.

Those of the world say this thing or that thing is all right; everybody does that, and it doesn't matter. But the Scripture says, Titus ii. 11, For the grace of God, which bringeth salvation to all men hath appeared. Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for the blessed hope and glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ; who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

Therefore brethren, we must do as Paul says in his letter to the Philippians, Finally brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

Wherefore, my beloved, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you, to will and to do of his good pleasure. Do all things without murmurings and disputings; that ye may be blameless and sincere, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom shine ye as lights in the world.

P. L. MONSON.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10200 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 2, 1908.

BROTHER G. Eldred Marsh will work with the Illinois brethren this coming year, in place of Brother Huggins.

THROUGH Brother Lindsay we learn that the Iowa Conference was excellent in every way. Thirteen were immersed at the close. We hope the Secretary will give us a full report soon as possible.

A BROTHER in Colorado is manager of a business connected with the handling of bees. He can give a young man of the faith, who would be willing to begin at the bottom and work up, a permanent position. Does any young brother want to learn more of this? If so we will give you name on request.

BROTHER Huggins has announced his change of address from Oregon, Ill. to Cleveland, O. He has been attending the Missouri Conference the past week, and with all the care possible there may be some mix-up of the mail. Keep track of you letters, so if any thing is lost you can supply a duplicate.

A LETTER from Sister Woodward, dated Aug. 31, informs us that she has been kept at home by the severe illness of Brother Woodward. He is still sick, and she cannot leave him to take long trips. This will answer many inquiries. You may rest assured that when able to do so both Brother and Sister Woodward are at work in the Master's vineyard.

HOLLAND has a grievance with Venezuela, and has called upon the other powers to aid her in punishing the offender. France and Great Britain are interested in the matter, and unless there is a backdown on the part of Castro, he may find his ports are all blockaded some morning, and his revenues cut off. The United States will not interfere so long as no attempt is made to acquire territory.

THE situation in Morocco is in a very complex state. The Sultan of record, Abd-el-Aziz, has been defeated and is completely out, his troops and officials having left him, and gone over to his victorious brother, Sultan Mulai Hafid. The powers have recognized Abd-el-Aziz. In order for them to change and recognize Mulai-Hafid, he must ratify the Algeciras agreement, and be willing to carry out its provisions with all the powers. As his fight has all along been on an Anti-European policy, by doing this he would have to sacrifice his strong hold on the people who have placed him at the head. Some favor the calling of a new Algeciras Conference to deal with the changed conditions. To do this would be for France and Spain to acknowledge their inability to handle the case and it is likely they may not relish this. The situation will require skillful handling to adjust it satisfactorily.

AGAIN the "Peace Cry" is sounded. The German Emperor, at a banquet, made a speech in which he set forth the feeling of his nation as follows:

"I rejoice to be able to declare my deepest conviction," "that the peace of Europe is not in danger. It rests on too solid foundations to be easily upset by the incitements and calumnies provoked by envious and evilly disposed individuals. In the first place firm security rests in the consciences of the princes and statesmen who know and feel they are responsible to God for the lives and prosperity of the peoples intrusted to their leadership. Moreover, it is the will and desire of the people themselves to live peaceful lives and tranquilly pursue the development of the magnificent achievements of progressive civilization and measuring their strength in peaceful rivalry. Finally peace is also assured and guaranteed by our powers on sea and land by the German nation in arms. Proud of manly discipline and love of honor of her armed forces, Germany is determined to keep them at their high level without menace to others, and to develop them as her own interests demand, favoring none and injuring none."

In view of possible complication in connection with changed condition in Morocco, Turkey, and other parts of the Mohammedan world, this "peace" talk is strange indeed, and sounds like the boy who "whistles to keep up his courage."

BROTHER F. L. Austin of Fonthill, Ontario, has arranged his return trip from the Iowa Conference so as to be with the Plymouth Church on Sunday, Sept. 6, and preach for us. The services will be at 10:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. Let all within reach make note of the date, and arrange to come and hear Brother Austin once more.

An Admonition to Praise the Lord.

"It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High. To show forth thy loving kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness in the evening." So sang the sweet singer so many years ago, and today after so long a time, we who are followers of our Savior, who died for us, that we might have life and immortality, ought to delight to sing the same, for we have so much to be thankful for. The Psalmist says it is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto his holy name.

We do not want for a moment to think that David's life was without trouble or temptation. O no, for it was quite the contrary. In one place he cries out unto the Lord, like this: Lord, how are they increased against me. And again he says, Mine enemies are lively and they are strong, and they that hate me wrongfully are multiplied. They also that render evil for good are mine adversaries. But instead of standing still or feeling it was no use to try to serve the Lord because of so much trouble, we hear him say, Though an host shall encamp against me, my heart shall not fear, though war shall rise against me, in this shall I be confident. One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after, that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to enquire in his temple, for in the time of trouble he will hide me in his pavillion. In the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me. Therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices of joy. I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the Lord. So we see through all his trials and trouble he still felt like singing praises unto the Lord.

To go back to our text, It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and sing praises to his holy name. We who have so much to be thankful for should heed this admonition. What have we to be thankful for? In the first place we should be thankful that we live and have a being. We should be thankful that we live in a country where we can worship God after the dictates of our own conscience, and where can we do this better than in our own United States. Therefore I say we should be thankful that we live under the Old Flag of red, white and blue.

I have heard people say (about Thanksgiving time), I have nothing to be thankful for. I always feel sorry for them, because they do not realize what they were saying. The Psalmist says, Let the people praise thee, O God. Let all the people praise thee. We should be thankful that the time is coming when this shall be fulfilled, when all will know him from the least to the greatest.

We should be thankful that we can obtain the blessing of the Lord. Listen. Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord or who shall stand in the holy place? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart, who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity or sworn deceitfully. He shall receive the blessing from the Lord and righteousness from the God of his salvation. Do we comprehend what this means? Clean hands and a pure heart?

Paul said in writing to the Ephesians, Be ye followers of God as dear children, and walk in love as Christ also hath loved us, etc. And he says, But fornicators, and all uncleanness or covetousness, let it not be named among you as becometh saints, neither filthiness nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not befitting, but rather giving of thanks.

We have so many blessing to be thankful for we could not count them if we would. Sometimes we get discouraged and feel that we are having a hard time. Things do not always go to suit us. Sometimes we almost feel that the Lord has hid his face from us. Then we should remember to count our blessings and we shall forget our discouragements.

Dear brothers and sisters and friends, if I could make you see how essential it is to count our blessings and to praise God for them, and then cast on him our every care. Then I think we would be sure of the blessing from the Lord.

We started out to count or tellsome things we are thankful for, but when we commence to name them one by one, we find our blessings even in this life were so great that we could not enumerate them, and so we will say we are thankful for the confidences we have in our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. We know that we have made many mistakes in our Christian warfare, still we feel that the Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy. We would lean upon him as a child upon his father's breast and trust him, for he knoweth our frame and remembereth that we are dust. Therefore we would give thanks unto the Lord and sing praise unto his holy name, remembering and bearing in mind that we must have clean hands and a pure heart if we would claim his blessing.

ALMIRA BROOKS.

Pacific Coast Work.

After closing my most singular discussion, of six nights duration, at the Spiritualist Union meeting, Elma, Wash., held during the 1st week in Aug., I immediately announced meetings near Astoria, "near" as you might count distance in this vast Pacific coast country. Astoria is in Oregon, near the mouth of the Columbia River. My destiny used to be called "Crooked Creek". A few years ago, I by the word, had the satisfaction of seeing a little church planted here known as "the Crooked Creek church." It is the same beloved few still. But through the kaliedoscope of names (change of names), I started Aug. 19 to Eden on Crooked Creek, Washington, situated about 15 miles from Astoria across the magnificent Columbia River from that city. You like the name Eden. Who is there that does not? When we think of our ever lasting home, we think of Eden. The name has a mild sweet thrill in it. From Portland on the staunch steam boat Spencer, on the beautiful Willamette (pronounced Wilamet, as many of you eastern ers say be pretty name as though you spoke of a girl named Ella.)

Thirteen miles down the river from Portland we turn westward into the Columbia, one of earth's great pulsating arteries of life and commerce. As we move smoothly down the placid surface, we observe that flats and hills increase a little in attitude, for the Columbia must pass through the Coast Range to reach the Ocean. But those that have seen the Rocky Mountains, Cascades, etc., will almost sneer at the name mountains, and by comparison prefer to call these hills and ridges. Nevertheless there are some mountains in this range that mark up to the thousands. We saw nothing out of the usual, till we reached Kalama, Wash. Here the Northern Pacific R. R. transfers its trains across the Columbia, on a ferry boat, large enough to take an entire train across at once. The ferry boat, train and all was stalled on a sand bar. Our benevolent steamer Spencer made fast to a strong tow line, and after spending nearly an hour, pulling and tugging, succeeding in freeing the captured monster.

I landed at Brookfield, Wash., about 2 P. M. After a little enquiry I felt convinced that I would have 6 or 7 miles to walk across the country and ridge, from Brookfield to Eden. I might meet one of the brethren. They might not be informed as to when I would arrive. I can get there! Cheerfully I shouldered my burden in the form of valise. If I don't get there I will stop at a ranchers till I can. A half a mile out a kind inhabitant invited me to leave my burden with him and he would forward it to Eden with the mail carrier. I accepted. How light I felt. I moved energetically, not rapidly, up toward the top of the ridge, between me and Eden. What chance for serious reflection. Life is a serious affair. We have all had our burdens to bear, our hills to cross. Is our Eden in view as a reality. Life is not a dream—nor the hills, nor the burdens, nor the friends—you cannot be so sure of that!—the friends. Yes, there is One you can trust always! trust though an earthly loved one may be worse than cut down, he will stay over all the hills and canyons of life. Even in the "valley and shadow"! I looked ahead, up, up, my weary way, and saw our beloved Bro. Frank Smalley, coming with horses to meet me—no apology was due. It was only one of the incidents that help make up the life of an evangelist, help to add the spice, give the flavor. It is really interesting—to one's self. A ride down the Crooked Creek side of the ridge where a slip or a stumble of my horse would hurl me away down through the brush with a rush—you Ohio, Indiana and Illinois brethren would say, "It is mountains." You may call it mountains, if my letter is short enough. I am at Bro. Frank Smalley's hospitable home, waiting till tomorrow when I expect to begin a few meetings.

Table Talk.

"Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." Rom. v. 1.

The 4th chapter first establishes the fact that Abraham was justified by faith, and yet that his faith had to be proved by works. Still the works of faith must not be understood as in any degree earning a justified standing with God. Abraham was accounted righteous or counted as righteous on account of his faith, which faith was proved and tried by works.

By faith, or on account of faith Abraham received the promises, therefore Paul is moved by the Spirit to quote of him the words of David: "Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered" —"Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin." This describes the blessedness of the man Abraham. God mercifully accounted him righteous without works—that is to say, not on account of works was he called righteous. Yet we want to be sure we know what "works" are referred to by the apostle in this connection, or we are lost into confusion and error.

In this same epistle to the Roman brethren, Paul gives the key to his meaning where he speaks of God as "both just and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus" and adds, "Where is" boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? of works? "Nay, but by the law of faith." "Therefore we conclude, say he, that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law." "For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory, (or boast) but not before God." For the promise that he should be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham or to his seed, through the law, (that is the law of Moses which required works of a physical observance in ceremonials and rites and sacrifices) but "through the righteousness of faith."

The law required perfect obedience to live by it—as we read Ezek. xx 11, "I gave them my statutes, and showed them my judgments, which if a man do, he shall even live in them." But Paul in his Epistle to Galatians ii. 16, shows that none were able to keep the law perfectly, saying, "Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by works of the law; for by the works of the law shall no man be justified." But concerning Abraham, he says in the chapter read—(Rom. iv.) "He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God (not boasting or glorying in himself, you see) being fully persuaded that what he had promised, he was able to perform and therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness."

We may well take a side glance right here and note that there are works of faith as well as works of the law.

In the 6th of John we hear Jesus saying to the multitude who followed him "for the loaves and fishes"—"Labor not for the meat which perisheth, (the margin says, 'work not') but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life." Then said they unto him "What shall we do that we might work the works of God?" Here was a fine opportunity to have told them to keep the Law of Moses that God had given them—but he knew that none had ever been able to keep it, and that he was mercifully sent of the Father to fulfill all the law for them in order that they might have life everlasting through him; so he turned their minds to the truth in this way: "This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent," showing them that he was the "Bread of Life" and that by hungering after that spiritual food they might be "filled" with everlasting life. This work of God to which Jesus turned their attention was the beginning of good works—the foundation on which they might continue to build for eternity—gold, silver and precious stones were none too good or valuable to lay upon this foundation for good works—and every man's works will be tried or proven.

But returning to the Epistle to Romans—we have seen that strong faith or confidence in God's promise was reason for Abraham being righteousness imputed to him.

Now says Paul, "It was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him; but for us also to whom it shall be imputed, if WE believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead, who was delivered for our offences and raised for our justification."

There is a breadth of love and a wealth of mercy contained in the words—"not for his sake alone but for us also." God has been merciful and gracious in imputing righteousness to Abraham on account of his faith. And we are not losers by the lapse of time since the days of Abraham if we clearly follow in his faith. The blood that sealed the everlasting covenant was shed by Jesus on the cross of Calvary. He was delivered for our offences, as well as for those of Galatia and Rome. If we have faith in the sacrifice as holy and acceptable unto God, and through him hope for justification he is now acting as our Advocate and High Priest before God, from whence we may confidently look for him to return with power and great glory and to reign on earth as King of kings and Lord of lords.

If we have such faith as this we have "peace with God." What can excel the spirit of peace and confidence in God which is enjoyed by those who know they have been justified through the loving kindness and tender mercy of God operating by the faith in his promises centered in Jesus, his Son.

But we must be watchful and prayerful lest we get self-confident instead of confident in God. If we are not watchful we fall into habits which soon become strong as bands of iron and nothing but the grace and favor of God can deliver us from them. Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation. Jesus knew we needed this or he would not have given it to us. "Wherefore brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure."

Obituary.

Mrs. Lyman Adams, 603 Peoria avenue, died at her late residence on Monday evening.

Esther Dorcas (Thatcher) Adams was born May 2, 1825, at Ithaca, Tompkins County, New York. At the age of seven years she moved with her parents to Oswego, Tioga County, New York, where she remained until she was married, December 28, 1854, to Lyman Adams of the same place. In June, 1855, they moved to Dixon, of which place she has ever since been a resident.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and three children, Edwin H., Ernest A. and Anna L., her first child, a son, having died Oct. 18, 1856, aged ten months.

Besides these she leaves three sisters who reside here, and one brother living in Morrison, Illinois.

When very young she united with the Baptist church in Oswego, but after coming to Illinois she changed her religious views and became a firm believer in the Bible truth of the resurrection and life only through Christ. Though in feeble health for a number of years, yet her faith was not diminished in the promises of God and she fell asleep with the full assurance that when Christ appears the second time she would rise to immortality.

The above is a clipping from a local paper. Brother S. J. Lindsay was called from the Iowa Conference to preach the funeral on Thursday, Aug. 27.

Married.

At the home of the bride's parents in Seattle, Wash., on Aug. 12, 1908, Arthur George Young, only son of the late Geo. W. Young and Anna M. Young, to Miss Martha R. Collier.

Many good wishes and tokens of remembrance were given by near relatives and friends, and we trust God's blessing may rest upon them in their journey through life.

The Hall occupied by the Church of the Blessed Hope (Church of God,) in Chicago has lately been destroyed by fire and until another suitable place to meet can be secured services will be held at their most convenient homes each Sunday morning at the hour of 11:00 o'clock, according to announcements made the previous Sunday. Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 6
SAUL AND JONATHAN SLAIN IN BATTLE.
1 SAM XXXI.

Golden text. Prepare to meet thy God. Amos iv 12.

Thinking back over the lessons since Saul was made king over the kingdom of God—the kingdom of Israel—there is nothing peculiar or uncommon in his life or death. No man that ever sat on the throne of the Lord, 1 Chron xxix, or any other throne made a better beginning than Solomon. The Lord loved him, 2 Sam xii 24, and he loved the Lord, 1 Kings iii 3. Forty years afterwards he died in disgrace, 1 Kings xi 40-42.

Amaziah, King of Judah began right. He turned from following the Lord and was slain, 2 Chron xxv, 2 and 27. From the time that Saul disobeyed the word of the Lord, not utterly destroying the Amalikites as he was commanded, 1 Sam xv, his whole life was a series of errors,—sins against God.—His determination to kill David was without reason or excuse. After he gave up the pursuit of David, 1 Sam xxvii 4, the Philistines—always the enemies of Israel—gathered for warfare. When Saul saw them he was afraid, his courage failed him. The Lord was no more with him, 1 Sam xvi 14. He inquired of the Lord but received no answer, 1 Sam xxviii 6. He had banished, or ordered out of the land all that had familiar spirits—witches and wizards—and now, in his desperation, he commands his servants to find one—a witch—that he may inquire of her. He was perfectly aware of the law of the Lord against consulting such. "The soul that turneth after such.....I will set my face against that soul.....and cut him off from among his people, Lev xx 6. He was told there was one at Endor eight or ten miles from where he was in Gilboa.—He disguised himself.—Think of him, a conspicuous figure. "From his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people, 1 Sam ix 2, trying to conceal his identity. In his extremity he had lost good sense. Read 1 Sam xxviii. He was told that the Lord would deliver him into the hands of the Philistines, on the morrow.

In the lesson verses we find that the Israelites were completely defeated, routed in utter confusion. The Philistines were eager to get Saul and his sons. From the reading it seems that Jonathan and his brethren must have determined stand against the assailants in favor of their father; they were cut down. Saul seeing his doom commanded his armour bearer to kill him. This the man refused to do. If he had done so and lived he would have been disgraced for life. The armour bearer went BEFORE the king. It was his business not only to carry arms for the king but to die for or with him. They both suicided, the most horrible, mean and disgraceful of all ending of life, self-destruction.

The lesson title is therefore not correct, Saul was not slain. The golden text is also out of order, Saul did not need to prepare to meet his God. The idea intended to be taught by tradition—false doctrine—is that Saul's body died and his soul or spirit went to God. Let us positively refuse to believe anything except the word of God, that is "Saul was dead", verse 5. This was God's judgment on Saul, because of repeated disobedience. Let us be sure to learn from Saul's great failure, "Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams."

Next lesson, David made king over Judah and Israel. 2 Sam ii 1-7, v 1-5.

The Bible Divine.

The Bible IS we plainly see;
Then it must have a pedigree;
It either is a book divine,
Or men to make it must combine.
Suppose the latter, then they must Either be wicked men or just.
Take either side and you will see
A proof of its divinity.

If wicked men composed this book
Surely their senses they forsook;
For they the righteous man defend,
And curse the bad from end to end.
If righteous, then they change their notion
For they the authorship disclaim.
They often say, "Thus saith the Lord,
And testify it is His word;
If it be not they tell a lie,
And all their righteousness destroy.

Could Moses and could Malachi
Unite together in a lie?
Could Job and Daniel with the rest,
Spread o'er the world from east to west,
Unite together and concur
When means failed between them sir?
Not only so, but ages ten
Bands as of years and not a few?

Editorials.

The Conference of Illinois, held at Oregon, Aug. 19-23, was very well attended and fairly interesting. The speakers were Brethren L. E. Conner of Cleveland, Ohio, G. F. Morse, Marshalltown, Iowa, S. J. Lindsay, Oregon, Ill, and F. L. Austin, Foothill, Canada. A report of the meeting will soon be published.

August 23rd, the last day of our Conference, a most beautiful day, we had the pleasure of baptizing Miss Cecil Cross, daughter of Brother and Sister John E. Cross, of Oregon, Ill. For two years we have constantly instructed our young sister in the way of the truth, and although only about fourteen years old, she obeyed the gospel with a largeness of faith and understanding rarely seen in those of riper years. We have reasons to believe that God will get a good deal of glory out of the faith and life of Sister Cecil Cross.

The Editor is writing these notes at the home of Sister Townsend, Lebanon, Ill. We are stopping here for a rest before we begin work at the Missouri Conference. The confusion of travel prevents us from answering correspondents, acknowledging books, manuscripts, etc. Several have sent us good matter for publication for which we thank them.

Does an Immortal Spirit make Resurrection Possible.

Right here is where the Sadducees made their mistake relative to the resurrection, denying its possibility because, according to their view, there was nothing alive to answer God's call. Acts xxiii 8. Jesus taught them that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were alive when God talked with Moses at the bush; and not only were they alive according to the statement of Jehovah, but Jesus says, "all live unto him". Lk xx 37, 38; Matt xxiii 29-32; Mk xii 24-27. If Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were not living when God talked with Moses, then Jesus was wrong in his reply to the Sadducees. But it must have been their spirits living then, for their bodies were dead long before. Is this not the reason he is called "the God of the spirits of all flesh" (Numb xvi 22; xxvii 16), because the spirit lives after the flesh is dead, and "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." He is the Father of spirits (margin, "our spirits") to whom we owe obedience much more than to the fathers of our flesh. Heb xii 9.

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Strange as it may seem, the reader will observe that our friend in above remarks discusses the "possibility" of the resurrection. He seems to think that if in death there is "nothing alive to answer God's call", resurrection is an impossibility. God is incapable of raising the dead if there is nothing "alive" to help him out a little! His position, nakedly stated, is simply that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and everybody else, for that matter, who are dead, must be alive; there must be something "alive to answer God's call"; if not, resurrection is not a "possibility"! To what a powerless and degraded position does this argument put the Almighty! The resurrection of the dead is not a "possibility" with God unless he has an immortal, living, "responsive" spirit to help him do the work! If our friend so limits the power of the Almighty One, we wonder how he accounts for the sufficiency of God's power to form "man of the dust of the ground" (Gen ii 7), unaided by a "responsive" spirit. No immortal spirits were on the scene to help God in the formation of man; at least no "maiden" spirits were yet in existence! And we have faith to believe that since God managed to form man of the dust by his own power, he will get along somehow at the resurrection in reforming man of the dust, unassisted by semi-gods called the ghosts of dead men.

As our friend has conditioned resurrection upon life and not death, he proceeds to make the following strange remark: "Jesus taught them (the Sadducees) that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were alive." You think so? Moses says that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob are dead and buried. Gen xxv 8,9; xlix 31, 33. It cannot be that our Lord taught the Sadducees that these men "were alive"; if he did, he disregarded and contradicted the testimony of Moses. And then your grammar—but what does a preacher care for grammar? You say that Jesus taught that "Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were alive", and then in the same breath you say, "it must have been their spirits living then." Christ used the names Abraham, Isaac and Jacob; you use the same now and affirm that they "were alive", and then coolly convert the nouns into "their spirits!" A smooth trick that would have served your purpose well had you not got caught "in the very act". But now that your trickery is exposed, perhaps you will give us a listening ear while we set before you the design Christ had in mind when he uttered the words you have quoted. Addressing the Sadducees who denied the resurrection he said, "Now that the dead are raised, Moses showed at the bush." Lk xx 37. The very basis of his argument is the fact of their being dead. "Now that the dead are raised" is the proposition Christ starts out to demonstrate; not "Now that the dead are alive". God calls himself the God of these three men who are dead. Now our Lord reasons that as God is "the God of the living" and not of the dead, it follows that since he calls himself the "God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob"—the God of these three men who are dead—the conclusion is inevitable: God entertains the purpose of raising them from the dead. The Sadducees caught the point and could not resist the argument: it was irresistible. To bear out our opponent's sense of Christ's words, "Now that the dead are raised", would have to be changed to read, "Now that the dead are alive, it is plain, for if they are not alive with a 'responsive' spirit 'to answer God's call', their resurrection would not be a possibility' ". And he would have to elaborate his theology by stating that it is 'possible' to raise the dead because they are not dead. To prove the resurrection of the dead you must show that nobody is dead! To prove that the dead are to be raised, just show that they are all alive! Wonderful logic this. It is a burning shame that the Savior's argument, so cogently put that it "silenced" the Sadducees, should at this late day be so perverted by a man who claims to minister the gospel of Christ. One cause which blinds his eyes to the Lord's meaning in this passage of Scripture is, that while Christ was talking about God's intention to raise the dead, our friend is thinking and talking about its "possibility". To prove a thing to be possible, is one thing; to prove it is going to occur, is another. The question is, What is God going to do with the dead? The Sadducees denied that it was God's intention to raise them. Jesus proved it was his intention to do it. Observe the difference between possibility and intention.

God, then, is called the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, not because they are alive, not because "the spirit lives after the flesh is dead", as our minister suggests, but because God intends to raise them from the dead. And since God has All Power back of his intention, he will certainly "quicken the dead" into life again. Entertaining such intentions and having ample power to execute them, all his people "live unto him"; for in the matter of resurrection he "calleth things which be not as though they were". Rom iv 17. Yet you say that the Lord is called the "God of the spirits of all flesh" because the "spirit lives after the flesh is dead". Here you need somebody to nudge you and whisper in your ear, "Be careful." You are getting yourself into a trap now from which you will seek in vain to be released. It will require a good deal of work and perspiration to squeeze the words "all flesh" small enough to only mean the human family. Job explicitly states that "all flesh" is a phrase expressive of animals as distinct from man, whom he brings in subsequently for separate mention. Job xxxiv 14. Plain statements of Holy Writ leave no room for doubt that the beast possess the spirit, and the same spirit man does. Psa civ 30; Act xvii 28; Eccl iii 19-21. What do you gain by your argument that God is the God of the spirits of all flesh? You gain a great loss, as a Hibernian would say. For, as the beasts, equally with man, have spirit, and as the spirit you say "lives after the flesh is dead", you have quite a lot of animal spirits on your hands to dispose of somehow.

Our Lord's Teaching About Money.

The huge barrier always more or less obstructs the mission work of the Church—the want of money. The heavy debt often prevents forward movement, and the fact of debt compels retrenchment. Even when men offer to go, Boards are often unable to send and support them. We believe that all this ought not so to be. Our Lord's teachings as to money gifts, if obeyed, would for ever banish both these limitations on Church work and all concern about supplies. These teachings are radical and revolutionary. So far are they from practical acceptance that, although perfectly explicit, they seem more like a dead language that has passed out of use than a living tongue that millions know and speak. Yet, when these principles and precepts of our Lord on giving are collated and compared, they are found to contain the materials of a complete ethical system on the subject of money, its true nature, value, relation, and use. Should these sublime and unique teachings be translated into living, the effect not only upon benevolent work, but upon our whole spiritual character, would be incalculable. Gravity compels us to be content with a simple outline of this body of teaching, scattered through the four Gospel narratives, but gathered up and methodically presented by Paul in that exhaustive discussion of Christian giving in 2 Corinthians viii, ix.

The basis of Christ's teaching about money is the fundamental conception of stewardship. Luke xii 42; xvi 1-8 Not only money, but every gift of God is received in trust for His use. Man is not an owner, but a trustee, managing another's goods and estates, God being the one original and inalienable owner of all. The two things required of stewards are that they be "faithful and wise," that they study to employ God's gift's with fidelity and sagacity—fidelity so that God's entrustments be not perverted to self-indulgence; sagacity, so that they be converted into as large gains as possible.

This is a perfectly plain and simple moral principle, yet it is not the accepted foundation of our money-making and using. The vast majority, even of disciples, practically leave God out of their thoughts when they engage in finance. Men consider themselves owners; they "make money" by their industry, economy, shrewdness, application; it is theirs to do as they will with it. There is little or no sense of stewardship or of its implied obligations. If they give, it is an act not of duty but of generosity; it ranks not under law, but under grace. Hence there is no felt inconsistency in hoarding or spending vast sums for worldly needs and appropriating an insignificant fraction to benevolent purposes. Such methods and notions would be utterly turned upside down could men but think of themselves as stewards, accountable to the one great Master for having wasted His goods. The great day of account will bring an awful reckoning, not only to wasters, but to hoarders; for even the unfaithful servants brought back to their Lord the talent and the pound at last, but without profit, and the condemnation was for not having used so as to increase the entrusted goods.

In our Lord's teachings we find this kindred principle of investment: "Thou oughtest to have put my money to the exchangers." Matt xxv 27. Money-changing and investing is an old business. The "exchangers", as Luke renders, are the bankers, the ancient Trapezitæ, who received money on deposit and paid interest for its use, like modern savings institutions. The argument of our Lord refutes the unfaithful servant on his own account, why not, without such risk, get a moderate interest for his Master by lending to professional traders? It was not fear but sloth that lay behind his unfaithfulness and unprofitableness.

Thus indirectly is taught the valuable lesson that timid souls, unfitted for bold and independent service in behalf of the Kingdom, may link their incapacity to the capacity and sagacity of others who will make their gifts and possessions of use to the Master and His Church.—A. T. Pierson.

"On the Sides of the North."

It is stated (Ps. xlviii. 2,) "Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, on the sides of the north, the city of the great King." Notice specially the words, "on the sides of the north."

"Rev." James Neil, M. A., formerly incumbent of Christ's Church, Jerusalem, and who has had intimate knowledge of the land and the manners and customs of the people, writes concerning this passage:—"The country must always have looked greenest and best when viewed from the north, a direction which all travellers should if possible, take when they traverse it in spring. This would appear to explain why David singles out 'the sides of the north,' or 'northern sides,' in speaking of the beauty of Zion in a passage which has perplexed the commentators." The highest of the mountain summits which surround Jerusalem is in the north, and is named Mount Scopus. It is considerably above the level of the city.

From Mount Scopus the Temple would be readily seen. The Temple was not so much a compact building as a series of building with large courts. Herod's Temple and Courts, existing at the time of our Lord occupied thirty-five acres. The courts were not all on one level. There was a flight of steps to the court of the women. From this a third to the courts of the priests; and a fourth to the threshold of the Holy Place—Blessed.

Sacrifices in the Reign of Christ.

Brother Huggins:

In the prophetic teaching of Ezekiel xliii 18 and onward, we find a return to sacrificial offerings foretold. We have been taught to believe that in the next age, more intelligent and glorious than this one, these sacrificial memorials would find no place. As Christ was the end of the law, we were led to think that the Old Covenant had passed away forever.—A. Graves.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

As to what we have been taught, that is a matter of no moment. All who are not doctrinally prejudiced, and who take the Bible as their man of Counsel must admit that when Ezekiel's "house of prayer for all people" is built in the Holy Land, the offerings and sacrifices superseded by Christ's death are restored. Anyone who claims to believe the Bible must admit this. Mal i 11; Isa ix 7, 8; xix 21; Hos ii 4, 5; Zech xiv 21; Psa cxviii 27. We have been taught the "intelligent and glorious" age to come would have nothing of this sort in it; we have reasoned against the possibility of offering sacrifices after the anti-typical "Lamb of God" has offered himself for the sin of the world. Jno i 36. A few moments of sober thought, however, will dissipate the force of this seemingly strong objection. Babes in Christ are familiar with the rudimentary truth that Christ's reign upon earth will be a priestly one: "He shall be a priest on his throne." Zech vi 13. The saints associated with Christ are "Kings and Priests." Rev i 6. That they exercise this double function during Christ's reign on earth is evident from Rev v 10. If, then, the Millennial reign of Christ is a priestly one; if he exercises the double function of King and priest then; if he is King to rule and a priest to intercede for sins, it is in harmony with the "eternal fitness of things," that the people ruled should make offerings in token of their obedience; and that the Priest should have sacrifices to present to the Father on their behalf.

Sacrifices and ordinances are retrospective and prospective in their significance and scope. This we learn from the offering of the Levitical law. They pointed prospectively prophetically to the death of Christ which was not yet accomplished. Jno i 29; 1 Pet i 19, 20. They were typical of the "better sacrifice" (Heb ix 23) to come. After Christ's death became a fact we find that our Savior has left us the ordinance of breaking bread and drinking wine (as "show the Lord's death till he come." 1 Cor xi 26. This ordinance, you see, looks prospectively to the Lord's coming and retrospectively to his death. It points both ways, backwards and forwards, past and future. Sacrifices, ergo, offered before Christ's death, pointed down in a typical way to his death on the cross. Now that his death is a historical fact, we conclude that the sacrifices which will be offered in Ezekiel's Temple in the next age of "more intelligence" than this one, will retrospectively and commemoratively celebrate the Lord's Sacrificial death on the cross. The breaking of bread not only leads the mind forward to the Lord's coming, but leads it backward to his sufferings and death. Sacrificial ceremonies, therefore, are historical and prophetical; and hence the Lord's supper is celebrated in the kingdom of God (Luke xxii 16 18), and the song of redemption is sung (Rev v 9, 10) there—both are historical, retrospective and commemorative. Incongruous at first thought perhaps, that a ritual obsolete for centuries should obtain again under the rule of the "Prophet like unto Moses" (Acts iii 22), yet reflection on the subject reveals a grand display of divine wisdom in the arrangement. Christ would not be much "like" Moses if there were an absence of Sacrificial offerings during his beneficent reign.

The Atheist's Prayer.

When I was a boy away in the mountains of Pennsylvania, I knew an old infidel who was eager to argue against the existence of a God. That is what infidelity hates, the existence of a God. A young preacher, against the warning of the friends as to his abuses and his obscenities, resolved to see that blatant scoffer, and confront him with the truth of God.

The skeptic was soon vociferating against the idea of there being a God. He was sitting in his saw mill, just over the lever that lifts as the saw leaves the log, and while denouncing the doctrine of a Deity, that lever sprang, catching him under the heels, and flinging him backward, and downward, headlong into the stream!

As he plunged, however, he shrieked out as loud as he could yell, "God have mercy!"

The preacher ran around, waded into the water and drew the struggling man ashore. Said the pastor, "I thought that you did not believe in a God?" As soon as the infidel stopped strangling, he said in a subdued, voice, "Well, if there is no God, there ought to be, to help a man when he can't help himself."—Vanguard.

The Regeneration of Palestine.

At the eleventh convention of American Zionists, recently in session at Atlantic City, the speakers presented evidence of success that must have been surprising to many people. In every important country the number of those who believe in re-establishing an independent Jewish state is reported as showing steady growth, and the actual colonization of Palestine by refugees from Russia and Roumania is proceeding apace.

Equally surprising are the facts given as to the success of the colonies and the revival of the industries and commerce of the Holy Land. Consular and disinterested private reports confirm practically the claims of the enthusiastic Zionist leaders.

Thus in a recent issue of the London Economist it was stated in an article on agriculture in Palestine that groups of colonies or refugees from Russia, Galicia and Roumania are scattered over the entire country; that their total holdings aggregate 30,000 hectares, or about 2¼ percent of the surface, and that scientific cultivation has replaced the primitive methods of the Arabs.

The effect of the colonization may be gauged in part from the rapid increase in the export and import trade of Jaffa, the chief trading port of Palestine. The shipments of oranges have trebled in the last ten years, and in 1907 reached a value of $900,000. The export of soap made of olive oil is constantly increasing, and vine culture has been undertaken on a large scale. Large quantities of barley are sent to Europe, and dependence on foreign flour is decreasing. The chief import is cotton goods.

New railroads and harbors are planned in Palestine, and they will open new parts of the country and provide it with better outlets and trading facilities. An art and crafts school has been established and a polytechnic is projected. Silk and cotton will be grown, coal deposits near the Dead Sea will be utilized, and new industries are expected to spring up.

These and other facts lead The Economist to conclude its review with these hopeful words:—Palestine, indeed, bids fair to be a land of the future as well as of the past. The industry and resource of its old inhabitants are restoring its ancient fruitfulness; their business capacity and enterprise may give it a commercial position greater than it has ever before enjoyed.

Such testimony cannot fail to encourage the faithful Zionists, whatever its bearing may be on the question of restoring an independent Jewish state.—Chicago Reform-Herald.

Gold Dust.

It is not so much for us to seek success as to be found faithful.

There is nothing so strong or safe in an emergency of life as the simple truth.

He who cannot forgive others, breaks down the bridge over which he himself must pass; for every man has need to be forgiven.

Holiness consists of simply two things, two endeavors—the endeavor to know God's will, and the endeavor to do it when we know it.

What makes a Christian is not the theology we have in our heads, but the love we have in our hearts.

If a man exhibit not the spirit (disposition) of Christ in word and action he is none of his.

"Live for the Lord today, and look for his coming tomorrow.—Bonar.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

The Lord is subduing the Philistines about me, within and without, and I have raised nine EBENEZERS and hither by his help I'm come to Mount Zion, the heavenly Jerusalem. I regret exceedingly my absence from Los Angeles during the visit of Brother Skeels. It does my heart good to read his simple, unaffected letters; he opens his heart to us in the simplicity of Christ as do you in your loving remarks on the same.

I called on Sister Williams a few Sundays ago, as was requested by a notice in THE RESTITUTION, gave her the names of several sisters of the faith who I know will be glad to see her. Brothers Smith, Waggoner, Mc Kaw, Harriman, Carbaley, and myself will endeavor to have meetings regularly on every Sunday morning, for worship, prayer, singing, praise and study of the Word.

The situation here in Los Angeles is peculiar; as soon as we begin to do something the Philistines break us up; but the stone is set between Mizpeh and Shen, and they can come no more within our border.

May God bless you. If my article is too long send it back and I'll cut it in two. "Grace be with you."

E. B. MCILHENY.

Among recent wonderful surgical operations is one of a most daring and unusual nature. An idiot, six year old, the daughter of a resident of Berlin, has been converted into an intelligent being by the process of grafting part of the mother's thyroid gland upon the child's pancreas. In more popular language, this means that part of the mother's throat has been transferred by the grafting process to a gland, or tissue, lying directly at the back of the stomach. The operation was carried out by Dr. Carl Garre, a German surgeon, whose success in the transplanting of organs from one animal to another and even from the lower animals to human beings, has attracted wide attention.

Let no man think himself to be holy because he is not tempted, for the holiest and highest in life have the most temptations. How much the higher a hill is, so much is the wind there greater; so much higher the life is, so much stronger is the temptation of the enemy.....When we are tempted let us cry for the help of our Father, as a child cries after the comfort of his mother.—John Wickliff.

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Questions on Sunday School Lesson Sept. 6.

SAUL AND JONATHAN SLAIN IN BATTLE
1 SAM. XXXI.

Golden Text—Prepare to meet thy God. Amos iv. 12.

1. The Philistines fought against Israel: and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down slain in Mount Gilboa.

2. And the Philistines followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchishua, Saul's sons.

3. And the battle went sore against Saul, and the archers hit him; and he was sore wounded of the archers.

4. Then said Saul unto his armourbearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith; lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and abuse me. But his armourbearer would not; for he was sore afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword, and fell upon it.

5. And when his armourbearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise upon his sword, and died with him.

6. So Saul died and his three sons, and his armourbearer, and all his men, that same day together.

7. And when the men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley, and they that were on the other side Jordan, saw that the men of Israel fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook the cities, and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

8. And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his three sons fallen in mount Gilboa.

9. And they cut off his head, and stripped off his armour, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about to publish it in the house of their idols, and among the people.

10. And they put his armour in the house of Ashtaroth: and they fastened his body to the wall of Bethshan.

11. And when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard of that which the Philistines had done to Saul,

12. All the valiant men arose, and went all night, and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Bethshan, and came to Jabesh, and burnt them there.

13. And they took their bones, and buried them under a tree at Jabesh, and fasted seven days.

QUESTIONS

1. How were Saul and David left in our last lesson?
2. Was David still afraid of Saul?
3. What happened when David was with the Philistines?
4. What did the Philistines then prepare to do?
5. Where was David at this time?
6. How did Saul feel about the approaching combat?
7. Tell what Saul did in his trouble.
8. Did Saul get any comfort from this act?
9. How did the battle terminate?
10. How did Saul and his three sons die?
11. How did David learn of the death of Saul and Jonathan?
12. How did he feel when he heard it?
13. What did David say of Saul and Jonathan in last part of 2Sam. i?
14. With the opportunities placed before Saul, could he have made a useful and good king?
15. When Saul was tested what did he lack?
16. What does Solomon say in Prov. i. 24 32, of such a character as Saul?
17. Must we be tested as Saul was?
18. What will lead to certain failure?
19. What will bring success?

THOUGHTS.

Saul started with high hopes, splendid promise, great possibilities. He was talented, a mighty warrior, had good home training, an attractive individuality, a commanding person, and the Spirit of God was with him.

Over and over again Saul was tested, given new opportunities, and yet failed repeatedly.

The cause of failure was his disobedience, his rejection of God as Master and guide.

He depended on self.

The result was certain failure. He became morbid and suspicious. Virtue was gone, his heart hardened, and destruction without remedy followed.

Jonathan, with true filial love, still clings to his father.

David says of Jonathan "Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women."

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellent condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 350 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

The Covenants and their Relationship. This is a work written and published by C. M. Myers in 1882, 50c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian. Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived." Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Foore out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. H. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 868 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $3.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

---

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 35 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has been strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on ample stamps and drops it in the box. He labored hard to produce his polished work, neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

A Grand Old Poem.

Who shall judge a man from manners?
Who shall know him by his dress?
Paupers may be fit for princes,
Princes fit for something less;
Crumpled shirt and dirty jacket
May bestrothe the golden ore
Of the deepest thought and feeling—
Satin vests could do no more.

There are springs of crystal water
Ever welling out of stone;
There are purple buds and golden,
Hidden, crushed, and overgrown;
God, who counts by souls, not dress es,
Loves and prospers you and me,
While he values thrones the highest
But as pebbles in the sea.

Man, upraised above his fellows,
Oft forgets his fellows three;
Masters, rulers, lords, remember
That your meanest kinds are men;
Men by honor, men by feeling,
Men by thought, and men by frame,
Claiming equal rights to sunshine,
In a manly ennobling name.

There are fields embroidered greenly,
There are little weed-clad hills;
There are feeble fern-like saplings,
There are cedars on the hills.
God, who counts by souls, not station,
Loves and prospers you and me;
For to him all famed distinctions
Are as pebbles in the sea.

Toiling hands alone are builders
Of a nation's wealth or fame;
Titled laziness is pensioned,
Fed and fattened on the same;
By the sweat of others' foreheads,
Living only to rejoice;
While the poor man's outraged freedom
Vainly lifteth up its voice.

Truth and justice are eternal,
Born with loveliness and light;
Secret wrongs shall never prosper
While there is a sunny right.
God, whose world-heard voice is singing
Boundless love to you and me,
Sinks oppression with its titles,
As the pebbles in the sea.

I could not do without Him
Jesus is more to me
Than all the richest, fairest gifts
Of earth could ever be.
But the more I find him precious,
And the more I find him true,
The more I long for you to find
What he can be to you.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 9, 1908. NUMBER 34.

Communicated.

Mr. Sincerity and Mr. Truth. No. 3.

Mr. Sincerity. Good evening, Mr. Truth. I am pleased to meet and greet you again. I am much interested in our talks on the Scriptures. Your ideas seem to be reasonable, yet I cannot think but what we possess an immortal soul and that there is sufficient Bible testimony to prove it. Will you please give me what you understand to be a correct view of Luke xvi 19 to 31? This scripture represents the rich man, Dives, and Lazarus in conversation after death. Their place is hell and Abraham's bosom. If they conversed they were not unconscious, as you teach.

Mr. Truth. Friend S., I am pleased to again take up the study of the Bible. First we must determine whether this Scripture is to be taken as a literal fact or a parable. Now it is for you to choose which you regard it.

Mr. S. Why I have always understood it to be a literal fact or something that actually took place. Does it not say there was a certain rich man and there was a certain beggar?

Mr. T. Believing thus you have not considered carefully something in this statement much against your ideas. Note first that there is not a word in it about an immortal soul. It says nothing about the soul of the rich man nor of the beggar. It says that the beggar died and was carried by angels into Abraham's bosom. The rich man died and then was buried. Not one word is here said about their immortal souls. The beggar full of sores was carried into Abraham's bosom. If you accept it as literal you must so construe it. Again the rich man in hell lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom. Now are you willing to accept that heaven and hell are so closely related that each may view the other and have a conversation? I think it is too real to suit you. Again the place where the rich man is found is not a place of torment. The word hell in this text is translated from the Greek word "hades" which is the equivalent of the Hebrew word "sheol". The only Hebrew word rendered "hell" is "sheol". It occurs 65 times, being three times rendered "the pit" by the translators of the C. V. They have rendered it "the grave" 31 times and 31 times "hell". The American Revisers desired to substitute "sheol" wherever it occurs in the Hebrew text. With this rendering all would be clear. If we understand the word "sheol" to mean the grave and receive the scriptural truth regarding the condition of those in the grave, we would not think of attaching a literal meaning to this Scripture. In Psa xvi 10 we have this word "sheol" used, rendered hell. Now in Acts ii 27 this Scripture is applied to Christ. Are you willing to affirm that Christ was sent to this place of torment as you wish to think it? This requires too literal a construction. If you preachers were honest in their presentation of this subject they would state the truth to their audiences. There are three Greek words rendered by one English word, "hell", without any explanation, hades, Gehenna and Tartarus. Gehenna is the only word with which fire is associated. The Revised Version prefers "Gehenna" to "hell" in the New Testament passages. While we have fire associated with this word, torment is never spoken of, but a destruction. The righteous are never spoken of as being in Gehenna, but the wicked who are compared to tares, dead branches, dead grass, etc. Those things are easily consumed. Smith's Bible dictionary locates Gehenna south of Jerusalem where the refuse of the city and the carcasses of the dead were cast. If the fire did not consume, the worms did. Thus we have "where their worm dieth not and their fire is not quenched." The last word "Tartarus", is rendered, "hell", in 2 Peter ii. 4. The apostle says that the angels that kept not their first estate were cast down to hell (Tartarus) and delivered them into chains of darkness. There is nothing said here about being tormented. To get this meaning we must depend upon heathen mythology. Are you willing to receive such testimony?

Mr. S. What proof have you that it is a parable and not a literal fact? I admit that your points are well taken, yet I cannot see why Jesus would use such language and not explain it.

Mr. T. As a proof that this is a parable, notice that this is found among a number of parables, the parable of the lost sheep, of the piece of money, of the prodigal son, etc. Again this was spoken to the Pharisees, verse 14. These things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables; and without a parable spake he not to them. Matt xiii 34. He (Jesus) said unto them, know ye not this parable? and how then will ye know all the parables. It is stated that he spake not to the multitude except by parables. When he used this language (Luke xvi 19 to 31) he spake to the Pharisees. Now then, parables are related to the kingdom of God. This parable may be explained thus; the rich man may represent the Jewish people, who were rich in promises, as to them were entrusted the oracles of God. Our Heavenly Father had given them great riches. Exodus xix 4, 5. He had exalted them above all nations. He, Jesus, came to his own and they received him not. Yet God's declaration must be true, "As truly as I live, I will fill the earth with my glory." This is the purpose of the Eternal One. The Jews rejected him, the Gentiles were left to themselves. In this Jesus taught the Pharisees that these two nations would change relations to God. Abraham's bosom represents the promise made to him that his seed should bless the nations.

In Gal iii 26 to 29, we learn that if we have been baptized into Christ that we have put on Christ, and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to promise. These words were addressed to Gentiles. They become Abraham's seed through adoption. God is taking out of the Gentiles a people for his name, not from the Jews. The beggar has changed places with the rich man. His sores are being healed by the regeneration of washing or the circumcision not made by hands which Paul in Col ii 12, calls baptism. The account of Dives and Lazarus closes with reference to "Moses and the prophets." Luke xvi 31. In turning to Isa xiv 1-11, the king of Babylon answering somewhat to Dive, and the poor captive ten to Lazarus. This in Isa according to R. V. is expressly called a "parable".—Thou shalt not take up this parable against the king of Babylon v 4. Here, when the king descends into sheol, and is greeted by those found there, the trees talk and the worm is spread under him and worms cover him, the worms indicate the presence of the king's dead body in Sheol. All is plain if we understand that, by the figure called personification, speech may be attributed to putrefying corpses in the grave." The parable of the rich man and Lazarus teaches the kingdom of God as spoken of in Dan ii 44. The Jews made the recipients of the kingdom under Saul, David and Solomon, etc. Jesus came as the promised king. The Jews rejected him, so he taught these Pharisees that they were about to be rejected and the promises were to go to another nation or people.

Mr. S. I confess there seems to be some things in the way of accepting it as a literal fact. I am confused as to its real meaning. Can it be that so many of our educated men are mistaken about this Scripture?

Mr. T. Friend S., I would call your attention to Paul who became an apostle. He was educated in the schools of his day, being brought up at the feet of one of the Doctors of the law, and yet he persecuted the Church of God. This same apostle says of the Jews, though the Scriptures were read every Sabbath day in the synagogues, yet they heard not the voice of the prophets. They had eyes and see not, ears and hear hear not. So they put to death their king. We are admonished to "Study to show ourselves approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." To do this we must clear ourselves of the traditions of our fathers and accept the gospel of the kingdom of God. I submit in love these truths and hope that you may prove all things and hold fast to that which is good.

Mr. S. Friend T. I will investigate these Scriptures and satisfy myself. I will be pleased to meet you again. So farewell.

D. C. ROBISON.

Nuggets of Gold in Paragraphs.

Nature is blessed—not injured by the dropping dew; so more is Lumanity disgraced by the dropping tears Do not say, It is only womanly to weep, for the sweetest expression of sympathy is in the shortest verse, "Jesus wept!" It describes the manliest of men in his love and sympathy.

"Do unto others." "Do"—it is active. All Christianity is active. It has no passive form. "Do as you would have others do to you." It is well called "The Golden Rule." Philosophy has never offered a better and never can.

"Be sure you are right and then go ahead." "You had better wear out than to rust out." We will have to all go out eventually, but we can divide such a flame that will leave light for others after we are gone; "their works do follow them." "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest."

Do not strain you eyes in trying to look through the mist and black clouds and dust storm for better times in years to come; the obstacles to your vision shut out other ones, as well as possible pleasures. "Sufficient to the day is the evil thereof." Surely sufficient to the months and years, without searching for what God has wisely concealed. We can only live by months in this life. It will be different after while!

You often wonder why God, (if he is love) suffers you to be loaded down with so many ills. You even rebel. You do not reason well. God's time is all eternity. He designs it for you if you will be a faithful son. If you had been given an eternal existence you could not have appreciation and gratitude without contrast. We know and enjoy by contrast and comparison. Health is compared with sickness; strength with weakness; the sweet is known because we have tasted the bitter; eternity will be contrasted with the shortened days; new earth in its glory with the old wilderness—oh, the contrasts are without end "for our light affliction which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." "God is love!" It was even desirable to be a martyr to those that reasoned well.

There are some fellows that do not seem to comprehend God's way of gathering a family into his household. They think of a multitude of sons and daughters, but scoff at only one begotten Son. By their "higher criticism" they undermine the foundation on which the church is built "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" spending their ability in criticising others and the Book, in which Book we trust, they seem to gain sympathy because they are suffering under criticism. It has been a question to me all the way through the bloodless thunder of this destroying strife, How can the family become one in the only begotten if the story of the begettal is a fable? Strife has done more harm than good ever since Paul's day—there is one exception,—"Strive to enter in at the strait gate."

Conference Report.

The sixth annual Conference of the Church of God, in Ohio convened at Salem, Ohio, Wednesday, August 12, and continued over the following Sunday.

The order of service was carried out as published in THE RESTITUTION and the Salem, Ohio papers. Some slight changes in the programme was made necessary, due to the absence of Bros. W. S. Tomlinson, and J. Armitage, whose places were occupied by Bros. P. Neill and D. C. Robison respectively. Brother C. Moore was absent on account of the serious illness of Sister Moore, and the Communion Service was therefore presided over by Brother H. Juergensen. This was no doubt one of the most impressive services we have ever had the privilege of attending.

Brother W. H. Wilson delivered three excellent addresses, and our prayer is that he may be blessed in his efforts to spread the truth.

The Bible school was a valuable appendage.

The discourses delivered by our able Sisters, Robison and Neill, were brimful of good thoughts and need no garnishing.

The Social meetings were much enhanced by the short talks of our Brother P. Jaffrey, of Murphysboro, Ill., who appeared in our midst on Thursday afternoon, during the meeting conducted by Sister Lang. His sound doctrine talks and gospel songs made him a valuable addition to the conference. Brother Jaffrey is isolated, but has been making a noble defense for the truth. If the Lord delays his coming we hope to meet him many times, as he has won a foremost position in our affections. [illegible] Among the many [illegible] Young People's meeting of Sunday afternoon appealed prominently. It was at this session that we "Touched the Hem of His Garment." This was an affectionate phrase of our late Brother Jubilo, and is employed here in fitting tribute to his memory, for his having labored with most of us, and earnestly assisted us in obtaining a thorough understanding of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. About eighteen gave testimony of their faith and hope, including the very interesting experience of our youngest babe in Christ, Brother Ashford Lehman, of Brush Creek, son of Brother Daniel Lehman. He was immersed Saturday afternoon, by Brother D. C. Robison, and given the right hand of fellowship Sunday by Brother Juergensen. Brother Lehman is an earnest, wholesouled young man, and we recommend him to all, and earnestly desire for him a remembrance in your prayers.

The Song Services were impressive and inspiring. Many thought this the best conference of all.

Obituary.

Again the cruel and relentless enemy, death, has entered the home of Sister Ida Overholt and her devoted husband. Little Kenneth, only five months old, was stricken with Cholera Infantum, living only about thirty-six hours after the attack.

Kenneth Carl was born March 18th, 1908, and died August 21st. Funeral from the home, services conducted by the writer.

The parents and brothers and sisters certainly have the sympathy of their many friends, as this is the third baby that has fallen under the power of death within the last five years, none of them a year old. It was said by the Lord, of Rachel's children, "Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears.....they shall come again from the land of the enemy." If the Lord directed Rachel's thoughts to the return of these little ones to their own borders, from the enemy's land, cannot the parents of today look forward to the same hopeful promise?

God help us to understand his Word and be guided by it into truth.

In sympathy.

M. A. WOODWARD.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, OFFICE EDITOR

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 9, 1908.

THE announcement is made for the Indiana State Conference to be held with the church in Warren County. Let all get ready and attend it. Each organized church should send delegates empowered to act, that the cause may not languish, but be given a forward movement. The time to work is getting shorter, brethren, and what is done must be done quickly.

BROTHER F. L. Austin was in Plymouth last Sunday and gave the Church two good sermons. In the morning his remarks were based on Phil ii 1. It was really an outline of the Christ-life. His greeting to the assembled friends, especially to the elder ones was touching and tender. He said all were longing for a change, when the Lord and Master shall come, and all the glory and grandeur promised will be realized. The precious dust of ages must be looked over, not by mortality, but by the Omniscient One, gathered and changed to youth and beauty, and crowned with immortal glory. There are two agencies that make for salvation—Christ with his power—his gospel. Then our own efforts must be the other factor. Salvation does not come to us simply as a reward is given to a child for the performance of some one act, but rather—to the one who has labored and waited as does the husbandman for the harvest. The youth of life is the time to start. The vigor of life should be given to so important a cause, not simply a little of old age. The tender little vine that is trained to encircle the thread until it gets firm hold of the higher supports, and as it grows winds in and out of the lattice work, thus getting a firm hold,—cannot then be shaken from its position, because it has become a part of the structure itself. But if the vine is left to run over the ground and among the weeds and thorns, till it attains a rank and unruly growth, and then is lifted up and the small tendrils are fastened to the supports high up where they must sustain the weight of the plant, will be swept from side to side by the winds, and the adverse currents will strain them, till often they are torn down and destroyed. Youth is the time to train and cultivate till the principles of love, truth, gentleness, kindness, as exemplified in the Christ-life shall so transform the carnal mind that we become "like-minded" with Christ, are his true helpers, his faithful friends.

The evening discourse was founded on 2 Peter ii 1, and was really a continuation of the morning [redacted]. Faith in Christ is the fundamental principle that must inspire us and force us to act out the true Christ-life so as to obtain Salvation. The gospel reveals the righteousness of God, and by taking hold of it we become heirs to the glorious promises set before us. How are we children, sons of God? Not by nature, but by grasping his will, and our character and conduct is moulded and made [redacted] him—like his son Jesus Christ. Thus by faith we are made his sons, and by continuing in him, and growing as the child grows, first in the underlying principles of his will, then step by step we are led to greater and fuller problems in the life the Father wants us to live, adding the graces as developed in the gospel of Christ.

Brother Austin laid down in forceful manner that it is no use to gather more knowledge unless you have courage to go forward and practice the degree of knowledge you already have. Christianity is not going to church on Sunday and reading the Bible, but it is putting into practice the knowledge you have of the will of God. Practice, control, drill. To add Godliness, be more like God. Brotherly kindness can only come when you have control of self. You cannot treat your brother right till you are right yourself. Charity cannot be added till the other graces are in proper order. Christianity is not simply to learn the gospel of the kingdom of God, but it is more—a drill in the principles of the Christ-life, till you have attained the perfection required.

Brother Austin left Monday morning to make a short visit with his mother, Sister Woodward and others in Michigan, after which he will go to his home in Fonthill, Ont. All were pleased to have him visit here, and he will always be welcome to his many friends in this locality.

[redacted]

The question "Is the world growing better or worse?" has been asked, and much discussion has arisen. [redacted] result of this discussion has been to confirm each disputant in his opinion. This is not an unusual outcome when such differences arise. The trouble comes from the wording of the question itself, "Better or Worse". Read it "Better and Worse", and then you can have harmony all along. A writer, E. P. Marvin, in the World's Crisis, has put this so plainly that we give his article herewith.

"1. Never was a time honored by so many humble Christians. Never was a time disgraced with so much pride.

2. Never a time when so much was being done to crush dishonesty. Never a time when there were so many thieves.

3. Never so much sacrifice for the world. Never so much selfishness in the world.

4. Never so much of the spirit of philanthropy. Never so much greed of gain.

5. Never so much done to raise the fallen. Never so much organized effort to crush the weak.

6. Never a time when there were so many noble Christian men. Never a time when there were so many scoffers and shams.

7. Never so great material prosperity. Never so great soul-racking want.

8. Never so great political honor. Never so great political corruption.

9. Never so great effort to destroy crime. Never so great and growing criminality.

10. Never so much done to make life attractive. Never so many to leave the world by their own hand.

11. Never so much light from heaven. Never so much darkness from hell.

12. Never was God so near to men. Never were men so possessed by the devil.

Is the world growing better or worse? It is growing better and [redacted] 'Let both grow together until the harvest.'"

The Lord's Day.

A Revelation [illegible] chapter a part of [illegible] was in the spirit on the Lord's Day."

There is a great divergence of opinion as to the meaning of the above quotation, even translators differ. The quotation is from King James' Version. The 20th Century Version says, "I found myself in a trance on the Lord's Day."

To my mind one cannot get the true meaning of this wonderful book of Revelations until a correct understanding is had of the passage under discussion.

There are three different opinions I wish to mention in reference to this passage:

1st, Those who believe that John wishes to say that this vision was on Saturday, the Jew's Sabbath. Most of those holding this belief are the Seventh Day Adventists.

2nd, Are those who would have him tell us that his vision was on the first day of the week. I think that one answer will do for each of these two opinions. The answer is, I can find no place in the Scripture where either of the two days referred to is ever called the Lord's Day, neither can I find them referred to or either one of them by any other name synonymous to this expression "The Lord's Day." As a matter of fact the expression is used but once in the whole Bible, and that in our text. The Greek term is "he Kuriakeh." Robert Young says it means "Day the Lord's."

Old Testament writers, and New alike, refer to the Seventh day either as the Seventh day or more commonly the Sabbath, while New Testament writers always speak of the first day as the first day and never by any other name, hence, he who uses the term "The Lord's Day" referring to our Sunday does so without Scriptural warrant or authority.

There is a third class that hold that the term "The Lord's Day," is identical to the one that is so often used in the New Testament "The Day of the Lord," and has no reference to any particular twenty-four hours, but refers to an epoch or age the same as we might call the present Gentile times or the day of the Gentiles, and the past age the Jewish times or the day of the Jews. Will also say that the Greek word that is translated "in" in the sentence, "in the Spirit" is next wrongfully translated "on." "On the Lord's Day," it should read, "In the Spirit in the Lord's Day," as the same Greek word is used in each case. And they hold that John would say to us in the text that in the Spirit or trance he sees and hears things that will take place in the great and notable Day of the Lord.

To substantiate this view I wish to submit some Scriptural evidence. Rev. i. 1, says, "It is a revelation which must shortly come to pass." 19th verse, "Write the things thou hast seen and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter."

2nd Peter iii. 10, says, "But the Day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be dissolved."

In the above passage Peter uses the phrase "In the which" (referring to the Day of the Lord) these things will occur. Then says, 13th verse, "Nevertheless we according to his promise look for a new heaven and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness."

Please notice what John says, Rev. xxi. 1, "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea."

In the above passage we see the things Peter predicts to happen in the Day of the Lord, happening in the Day of the Lord that John sees in a trance in vision.

In I Cor. i. 8, Paul says "Who shall also confirm you unto the end that ye may be blameless in the Day of the Lord Jesus Christ." The reason is plain because in the Day of the Lord is the judgment where we must want to be blameless.

In Rev. xx 12, is recorded John's vision of the judgment that he saw in these words, "And I saw the dead small and great stand before God and the books were opened, and another book was opened which is the book of life, and the dead were judged out of those things written in the books according to their works. The same thought is expressed in Phil. xi. 16, "That I may rejoice in the day of Christ," also Phil. i. 10, "That ye may approve things that are excellent, that ye may be sincere and without offense till the day of Christ."

I think enough has been said to convince anyone that the things seen in trance are the things that will [redacted] come to pass in the great and notable Day of the Lord.

THE APOSTLES.

Soon after Jesus had entered upon his mission, he found it necessary, in order to carry on his work perfectly, to call men to his service. These men are termed "The Twelve Apostles," and when he had called the twelve he gave them power against unclean spirits and to heal all manner of sickness and diseases. He commanded them to go not into the way of the Gentiles, but rather go to the lost sheep of Israel, and to preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. They were to make no provision for their journeys, as he taught them the workmen is worthy of his hire. They seemed to be organized in a body similar to senators and representatives, with Peter for their speaker, as we see on the day of Pentecost. They being endued with the same power, yet having different offices or ranks, as Jesus said upon the confession of Peter, I will build my church. Also he is said to have the keys of the kingdom. Jesus said they would not be able to do the works he did but greater works will they do. They seemingly having power, equal to Christ; yet they are only instruments of God, speaking the things commanded of him.

JESUS AT A MARRIAGE IN CANA OF GALILEE.

Jesus and his disciples were invited to the marriage in Cana. It was, and is yet, the custom to invite relatives and intimate friends to marriages; so Jesus attended this wedding. The supply of wine became exhausted and they wanted more, so Jesus made the water into wine. His object in doing this, his first miracle, was to show his power, and that God had sent him. Jesus had a better object in view in attending this feast than people ordinarily have on these occasions. The world now has its social amusements and entertainments where God and his plan of salvation are never mentioned. Should one dare to mention it, he would be an unwelcome guest. We who profess to be followers of Jesus and are looking for his return, and have separated ourselves from the world, should not take part in societies for worldly amusements, where the truths of the gospel would not be appreciated. We should always associate ourselves where we could let our light so shine before men that they may be constrained to glorify our Father in heaven.

MATT. VI. 24.

No man can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and love the other.

Joshua xxxiv 15. And if it seems evil unto you to serve the Lord, choose you this day whom ye will serve. You must choose whom ye will worship. It must be the God of Israel, or idol gods—ye cannot serve two masters, if ye forsake the Lord and serve strange gods, then will he turn and do you hurt after that he hath done you good. The command in Israel was, thou shalt have no gods before me. Hear O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord, and thou shalt love him with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. Choose ye this day whom ye will serve, is a command. For us it is just the same today—God or Mammon.

The apostle James says, Know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God. Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God, for, either he will hate the one and love the other. Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world.

If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. But he that doeth the will of the Father abideth forever. But they that will be rich fall into temptation, for the love of money is the root of all evil, which while some covet after they have erred from the faith. This shows us plainly that we cannot serve two masters. If we love the world and seek after riches we fall into temptation, err from the faith and forget God. Brothers and sisters let us earnestly strive to be rich in good works, lay hold on eternal life. Let us choose whom we will serve and let it be the one master, the God of Israel.

Dear Restitution:

I take pleasure in reporting the baptism of Miss Seraphine Ritenour of Dilbeck, Va., on Sunday, August 30, 1908. Sister Seraphine Ritenour is a sister in the flesh to Sister Virginia Ritenour with whom many readers are acquainted. Sister Seraphine is a girl of splendid mental calibre and of an unusually nice disposition, and I feel sure will adorn the doctrine of Jesus Christ.

When several weeks ago she expressed a desire to be baptized, there was submitted to her a number of questions concerning her belief of the things concerning [redacted] kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, Acts viii 12. In answering these she gave an excellent reason for the hope that was within her. 1 Peter iii 15.

Accordingly on last Sunday at five p. m. we repaired to Passage Creek just a few steps from Slate Hillschool house, where in the presence of a few members of the household and neighborhood she put on Christ. Gal iii 27. This is the fourth addition to the Slate Hill Church in the last year. The little body at this point feel much encouraged. They are now making improvements to the schoolhouse in which they meet which will make the room much more cheerful.

Speaking, breaking of bread and the Berean class is held every third Sunday and a weekly Sunday School is in charge of Sister Virginia Ritenour.

My work with the church in Virginia is now so arranged that I can accept a limited number of calls to speak elsewhere. All who care for my services please address temporarily, in charge of the general delivery Washington, D. C.

DAVID MADE KING OVER JUDAH AND ISRAEL. 2 SAM II 1-7; v 1-5.

Golden Text. David went on and grew great, and the Lord God of hosts was with him. 2 Sam v 10.

To the ordinary, and even to the more than ordinary man, the grief of David, at the death of Saul, his powerful, and bitter enemy, is a wonder and a mystery. Those who know, and are living according to the covenant the Lord made with the fathers—the Hebrew fathers, Lev xxvi 42, know the reason of David's lament. He knew that the covenant included eternal life by a resurrection. "All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever." Gen xiii 15. Saul did not live in faith, he did not die in faith, he died without hope. "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin." Rom xiv 23. Saul perished in and because of his sins. The Lord put him away. 2 Sam vii 15. David knew that Saul's name would have been in the Lord's book of life, if he had obeyed. The death of Jonathan made David's cup of sorrow run over.

The death of Saul caused some confusion among the Israelites. The men of Judah at once recognized David as king, and made him so. Judah was not the first born son of Jacob, he was the fourth by Leah. He frequently took a prominent part in family affairs. He stood surety to his father for his brother Benjamin. Gen xliii 9. He was as good as his word. Gen xliv 18-34. Under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, his father blessed him above all his brethren. "Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise." Gen xlix 8-10.

In the march to Canaan the tribe of Judah went first. Num ii 9. When Joshua died the Lord made Judah the leading power. "And the Lord said, Judah shall go up, behold, I have delivered [redacted] land into his hand." Judges i 2. After a time the tribes became known as Judah and Israel. 1 Sam xvii 52. The two together as "All Israel." 1 Sam xix 5. David did not have as much wisdom as his son Solomon, but he made far better use of what he had. He began—after the death of Saul—by inquiring of the Lord. Saul ended by trying to enquire of the Lord. "In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Prov iii 6. With rare exceptions, this was the rule of David's life. Knowing that the death of Saul vacated the throne of the kingdom of Israel for him, he inquired of the Lord what he should do. He did as he was told and the men of Judah anointed him king over them. He was of the tribe of Judah. He did not forget nor neglect those who had shared with him in many dangers and privations. They dwelt with him in Hebron.

Abner, captain of Saul's army, was faithful to the household and memory of his king. He took Saul's son, Ishbosheth to Mahanaim—east of the Jordan, about a hundred miles from Hebron, where Jacob met the angels of God. Gen xxxii 1, 2, and proclaimed him over all Israel. 2 Sam ii 9. This made enemies of Judah and Israel. There was constant war between them. Ishbosheth losing and David going on and growing great as saith the golden text. After a time Ishbosheth accused Abner of very disgraceful conduct. This made Abner very angry, and he turned to David and offered to gather Israel to him. It seems as if Abner was more king in Israel than Ishbosheth. The offer was accepted on conditions. When Joab—captain of David's army heard of it he killed Abner. David was broken hearted over this cowardly murder.

This brings us to chapter 5. The [redacted] of Israel—representing the tribes—came to David. They reminded him of what he used to do in Israel—all Israel—even when Saul [redacted] king, and that the Lord had chosen him to feed Israel—to rule, govern, lead, protect, instruct and judge them according to the Word of the Lord. Paul instructed and charged the elders of the church at Ephesus to feed the church of God with the Word of God. Acts xx 17-38. And they anointed David king over Israel—this made him king over Judah and Israel, all Israel. And David perceived that the Lord had established him over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom, for his people Israel's sake. 1 Sam v 12.

Under the law of Moses the promise was that they who walked in the statutes and commands of the Lord would flourish and prosper in all things of this life, Lev xxvi 1-13. Under the gospel of Christ it is nearly the opposite. "I have given them thy Word, and the world hath hated them." John xvii 14. Paul lost all for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, Phil iii 7, 8. Others took joyfully the spoiling—taking away—their goods, [redacted] x 32 36. All such are heirs of the kingdom. James ii 5.

Let us strive to have an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. 2 Peter i 11.

Dear Restitution:

I have just returned to Lewis again for a short time. I have been receiving my paper all right; but being sick and not knowing where I would stay I put off renewing my subscription. Please find enclosed Money Order to pay for same.

I am quite old and have been very sick, and cannot work, and cannot send money as I would like to. I am still in the faith, looking forward to the soon coming of our Redeemer and Life Giver, and it seems to me that he is nigh, even at the door. The people are drifting away after pride and pleasure, never thinking the coming kingdom and King is near.

I ask an interest in your prayers that I may hold out to the end. My hope is in the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Yours, waiting for the King.

Editorials.

A full report of the Missouri Conference will appear later, written by Sister Sadie B. Morse, Secy.

No arrangements are yet made for the forwarding of our mail, so correspondents will understand the delay in answering their letters and printing their articles.

The Missouri Conference held with the Brush Church, in Madison Co., heard the word of truth as presented by such able ministers as John Foore, J. H. Luman, W. H. Wilson, Peter Jeffrey, and S. Cooper.

When the Missouri Conference was over, the Editor, in company with Brother Wilson, went to Morse Mill, to hold a series of meetings there. We are pleasantly living at the bright and happy home of Brother and Sister J. F. Williams while the meeting lasts, and are writing our editorials this week at his home.

Did Christ's Spirit Hold a Protracted Meeting in Hades?

Turning now to 1 Peter iii 18-20, we find the strongest possible teaching on this question. Speaking of Christ, Peter says he was "put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit: in which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison, that aforetime were disobedient.....in the days of Noah." What did Jesus do while his body lay in the grave? Preached to the spirits of men "in prison". What men? Men disobedient "in the days of Noah"; hence dead "in the flesh" long before the time when Jesus, "made alive in the spirit", went and preached to them. Could he have preached or they have understood his preaching, if the spirits of speaker and listeners were dead like their bodies? If these words of Peter are true, then the spirits of men are alive and conscious while their bodies mingle in the dust. I believe they are true; do you believe they are?

The "prison" where the spirits of the "disobedient" antediluvians were undoubtedly the place where God knoweth how.....to keep the unrighteous under punishment unto the day of judgment". 2 Peter ii 9. How can anyone suffer punishment who is dead, unconscious of anything anywhere? The place where "the unrighteous are kept under punishment unto the day of judgment," is where the rich man was in Hades. Lk. xvi 19-31.

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

When our writer says that he now gives us the "strongest possible teaching" on his views, he uses language which inspires the reader with expectations. Such language of confidence naturally makes the reader sit up and take notice—makes him expect something in the way of an argument out of the ordinary. With rapt attention we begin to read: "What did Jesus do while his body was in the grave? Preached to the spirits of men 'in prison.'" Notice, please, how our writer discriminates between "Jesus" and his "body", and how he has Jesus holding a revival meeting in hades while his body is in the tomb. To untaught people who do not know anything about Jesus, to them this argument may appear as the "strongest" our friend has yet advanced. But people who are familiar with God's word, who humbly follow its teachings and who know by its divine authority who "Jesus" is, will not estimate the argument so highly. The Jesus of divine revelation was born (Matt ii 1), crucified (1 Cor ii 2), killed (1 Thess ii 15), died (Acts ii 36), buried (1 Cor xv 3), and was raised from the dead (Acts ii 32). Our friend preaches "another Jesus" (2 Cor xi 4); he has an immortal spirit-Jesus; one who was not born, was not crucified, killed, died, buried, nor raised from the dead! According to him, after the body of Jesus had died, had breathed out the spirit-Jesus; after the spirit-man had left his body, abandoned it like one would an old "house" unfit to live in, there was a misleading and untrue superscription written over our Lord's "remains", the dilapidated "tabernacle" of his body: "This is Jesus"! Matt xxvii 37. Had this been written to sanction the "strongest possible teaching" for immortal spiritism, and had our preacher been the writer thereof, it would have read, "This not Jesus; it is only the 'house' Jesus once lived in; but Jesus has now vacated it—and is on a preaching tour in hades. Soon as his special revival services are over there, he will return to this old 'tabernacle'. We look for him to return in about three days."

If our minister has here presented the "strongest" argument for his theory that has been or can be produced, reader, I beg you not to look at his arguments he has unwittingly confessed are weaker! But as strong as his present position may be, suppose we walk right up in its face and pretend that we are not one bit afraid of it. Here we go; keep up courage. "What did Jesus do while his body lay in the grave?" Answer: He 'preached'. To whom did he preach? Answer: To the immortal spirits of the antediluvians. Where were the services held? Answer: In hades "where the rich man was". As the rich man was in "torments" there, we are led to suppose that the antediluvians were in a condition of misery also, and had been enduring everlasting burnings for—well, ever since they had been there. Now, what did Jesus preach to these men during the series of meetings he held there? No dodging, now. What did he preach? No good end is served by looking away from the question and swallowing hard, as if there was a lump in your throat. You dare not dishonor Christ by saying he preached anything other than the gospel. 1 Peter iv 6 says that the gospel was preached to those dead men. Now, since the word gospel means "good news or glad tidings", will you tell us what good news Christ preached to his ghost audience? You do not believe that a single spirit can get out of hell torments; there is absolutely no way of getting out of hell, so you teach. If so, Christ could not break good news to the ghosts there of a coming deliverance. He could not preach salvation, could not offer them any means of escape from everlasting doom. To say that Christ preached gospel or good news to these irredeemable spirits is simply to say that he tantalized them with a mock offer of pardon which it was impossible to grant. If there was no pardon possible for them, then Christ never saved a soul by his preaching tour to hades. If there was no redemption for them, what kind of a gospel, what good news would he have to communicate to them? If you say there was an offer of pardon made to them by the ministry of Christ, then you convert hades into purgatory; and instead of being "A Christian Minister", you should be a Catholic Priest. Thus does your "strongest possible teaching" go down with an everlasting smash.

With the "strongest" argument thus demolished, it now remains for us to give the reader a brief and true exposition of 1 Peter iii 18-20. "Quickened by the spirit", the King James' translation is rejected by our writer, and instead of it he approves and quotes, "Made alive in the spirit". Well, "quickened" means to "make alive"; and it would be the worst kind of folly to talk of anything being made alive unless it was dead. Notice that made alive is preceded by the words, "Put to death in the flesh." What part of Jesus was made alive? Certainly the part, and only the part, that had died. If the flesh part of Jesus was "put to death", it must have been the flesh part of him that was made alive. But our friend understands the text differently. He follows it with comments in which he affirms that the spirit of Jesus and the spirits to whom he preached must have "been alive and conscious"! Let him think twice and he will see that in trying to keep the spirit alive as a separate entity from the flesh "put to death", he has killed it! Think, my friend. If the spirit is what was "made alive", if it was "quickened", then it must have been dead! How could the spirit of Christ be "made alive" if it had not died? Impossible. Here are the facts in the case: Jesus was put to death. Three days after his death he was "quickened" (made alive) by the spirit. It was "by" the same spirit that made him alive that he "went and preached to the spirits in prison". Peter's words cannot be misunderstood or misinterpreted: "By which (spirit) also he went and preached", etc. Going anywhere and preaching there "by the spirit" contravenes the idea of personal presence. When bodily absent from a church, Paul wrote that while he was absent from them in the body, he was "present with them in spirit". Col ii 5. In the same way, although Christ was bodily in heaven, yet he came and "preached" at Ephesus. ii 17. Learn now how the Spirit of the Father, called "the spirit of Christ", was in all the prophets (1 Pet i 10-12), and especially was Noah full of it, for he is called a "preacher of righteousness" by way of marking him off for special eminence. 2 Peter ii 5. Through him the spirit of God strove mightily with the antediluvians for 120 years. Gen vi 3. As they were "disobedient" to the strivings of God's good spirit all the time "the ark was preparing", they were doomed to destruction at the expiration of the time mentioned. They were like so many criminals incarcerated "in prison". Still the "long-suffering of God" was very well marked in that all this long time the spirit strove in its ministry and offered them a reprieve of the sentence, a full pardon. Though the spirit thus "preached" this good message to them, they persisted in "disobedience", Peter says. Common sense demands that they were "disobedient" to the preaching they heard; and that therefore, the preaching and disobedience were at the same time. When was the preaching done, Peter? When were they disobedient? When did the "longsuffering of God wait" for them to repent? When were the "eight souls saved", Peter? All of this was "in the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing". Tell us once more, Peter, When was the preaching, disobedience, and the salvation of the eight souls? "In the days of Noah," Then this is when the gospel was "preached" to them; then is when most of them were "disobedient"; then the "longsuffering of God" waited; "while the ark was preparing". Oh the simplicity and beauty of this passage. But in order to bolster up the "strongest possible teaching" for immortal spiritism and consciousness in the death-state, this text is "wrested"—given such a twist that its historical basis is denied, God's "longsuffering" in ancient times is ignored; and all this for the sake of extracting from the text the "strongest possible teaching" for immortal spiritism! In a vain effort to show that Jesus was alive when he was dead; that he was holding a protracted meeting in hades when he was in the tomb; that the gospel was preached the second time to sinners who had spurned God's "longsuffering" for 120 years; that there are opportunities of salvation for sinners after they have disregarded the gospel in this life—the delusive and dangerous "second chance" theory of Russellism and the Purgatory of Catholicism!

Our Lord's Teachings about Money.

5. Another most important principle is the subordination of money, as emphatically taught as illustrated in the rich young ruler (Matt xix 16-26). This narrative, rightly regarded, presents no enigma. With all its attractive traits, this man was a slave. Money was not his servant, but his master; and because God alone is to be supreme, our Lord had no alternative. He must demolish this man's idol, and when He dealt a blow at his money the idolatry became apparent, and the slave of greed went away sorrowful, clinging to his idol. It was not the man's having great possessions that was wrong, but that his possessions had the man; they possessed him and controlled him. He was so far the slave of money that he could not and would not accept freedom by the breaking of its fetters. His "trust" was in riches—how could it be in God? Behind all disguises of respectability and refinement, God sees many a man to be an abject slave, a victim held in bonds by love of money; but covetousness is idolatry, and no idolater can enter the Kingdom of God. How few rich men keep the mastery and hold money as their servant, in absolute subordination to their own manhood, and the masterhood of the Lord!

4. We ascend a step higher, and consider our Lord's teaching as to the law of recompense. "Give and it shall be given unto you" (Luke vi 38). We are taught that getting is in order to giving, and consequently that giving is the real road to getting. God is an economist. He entrusts larger gifts to those who use the smaller well. Perhaps one reason of our poverty is that we are so parsimonious of parsimony. The future may reveal that God has been withholding from us because we have been withholding from Him.

5. Kindred to this law of recompense is the law of superior blessedness. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts xx 35). Paul quotes this as a saying of our Lord, but it is not to be found in either of the gospel narratives. Whether he meant only to indicate what is substantially our Lord's teaching, or was preserving some precious words of our Great Teacher, otherwise unrecorded, is not important. It is enough that this saying has the authority of Christ. Whatever the blessedness of receiving, that of giving belongs to a higher plane. Whatever I get, and whatever good it brings to me, I only am benefitted; but what I give brings good to others—to the many, not to the one. But, by a singular decree of God, what I thus surrender for myself for the sake of others comes back even to me in larger blessedness. It is like the moisture which the spring gives out in streams and evaporation, returning in showers to supply the very channels which fill the spring itself.

6. We rise a step higher in considering God's law of computation. How does He reckon gifts? Our Lord teaches us that it is by comparison. No one narrative is more telling on this theme than that of the poor widow who dropped into the treasury her two mites. The Lord Jesus, standing near, watched the offerings cast into the treasury. There were rich givers that gave large amounts. There was one poor woman, a widow, who threw in two mites, and He declared her offering to be more than any of all the rest, because, while they gave out of a superfluity she gave out of a deficiency—they of their abundance, she of her poverty.

She who cast her two mites into the sacred treasury, by so doing became rich in good works and in the praise of God. Had she kept them she had been still only the same poor widow. Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing) and the two mites "make a farthing". He who, as the superintending Providence of Nature, watches the fall of a sparrow, so that "one of them is not forgotten before God," also, as the overseer of the treasury, invisibly sits and watches the gifts that are dropped into the chest, and even the widow's mite is not forgotten.

He tells us here how he estimates money gifts—not by what we give, but by what we keep—not by the amount of our contributions, but by their cost in self-denial. This widow's whole offering counted financially for but a farthing (a quadrant, equal to four-fifths, or two-fifths of a cent, or three-fourths of an English farthing). What could be much more insignificant? But the two mites constituted her whole means of subsistence. The others reserved what they needed or wanted for themselves, and then gave out of their superabundance. The contrast is emphatic; she "out of her deficiency", they out of their superfluidency.

Not all giving—so called—has rich reward. In many cases the keeping hides with God, the giving. Selfish, vulgar hoarding and spending spread a banquet; the crumbs fall from tables, to be gathered up and labelled "charity". But when the one possession that is dearest, the last trusted resource, is surrendered to God, then comes the vision of the treasure laid up in heaven.

7. We ascend still higher to the law of unselfishness in giving. "Do good and lend, hoping for nothing again" (Luke vi 35). Much giving is not giving at all but only lending or exchanging. He who gives to another of whom he expects to receive as much again, is trading. He is seeking gain, and is selfish. What he is after is not another's profit, but his own advantage. To invite to one's table those who will invite him again, is simply as if a kindness were done to a business acquaintance as a basis for boldness in asking a similar favour when needed. This is reciprocity, and may be even mean and calculating.

True giving has another's good solely in view, and hence bestows upon those who cannot and will not repay, who are too destitute to pay back, and too degraded, perhaps, to appreciate what is done for them. That is like God's giving to the evil and unthankful. That is the giving prompted by love.

To ask, therefore, "Will it pay?" betrays the selfish spirit. He is the noblest, truest giver who thinks only of the blessing he can bring to another's body and soul. He casts his bread aced beside all waters. He hears the cry of want and woe, and is concerned only to supply the want and assuage the woe. This sort of giving shows God-likeness, and by it we grow into the perfection of benevolence.

8. Our Lord announces also a law of sanctification. "The altar sanctifieth the gift"—association gives dignity to an offering (Matt xxiii 19). If the cause to which we contribute is exalted it ennobles and exalts the offering to its own plane. No two objects can or ought to appeal to us with equal force unless they are equal in moral worth and dignity, and a discerning giver will respond most to what is worthiest. God's altar was to the Jew the central focus of all gifts; it was associated with His worship, and the whole calendar of feasts and of feasts moved round it. The gift laid upon it acquired a new dignity by so being deposited upon it. Some objects which appeal for gifts we are at liberty to set aside because they are not sacred. We may give or not as we judge best, for they depend on man's enterprises and schemes, which we may not altogether approve. But some causes have Divine sanction, and that hallows them; giving becomes an act of worship when it has to do with the altar.

9. Another law of true giving is that of transmutation. "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations" (Luke xvi 9). This, though considered by many an obscure parable, contains one of the greatest hints on money gifts that our Lord ever dropped.

Mammon here stands as the equivalent for money, practically worshipped. It reminds us of the golden calf that was cast out of the earrings and jewels of the crowd. Now our Lord refers to a second transmutation. The golden calf may in turn be melted down and coined into Bibles, churches, books, tracts, and even souls of men. Thus what was material and temporal becomes spiritual and eternal. Here is a man who has a hundred dollars. He may spend it all on a banquet, or an evening party, in which case the next day there is nothing to show for it. It has secured a temporary gratification of appetite—that is all. On the other hand, he invests in Bibles at ten cents each, and it buys a thousand copies of the Word of God. These he judiciously sows as seed of the Kingdom, and that seed springs up a harvest, not of Bibles, but of souls. Out of the unrighteous mammon he has made immortal friends, who, when he fails, receive him to everlasting habitations. May this not be what is meant by treasure—the treasure laid up in heaven in imperishable goods?

What revelations await us in that day of transmutation! Then, whatever has been given up to God as an offering of the heart, "in righteousness," will be seen as transfigured. Not only the magi's gold, frankincense and myrrh, and the alabaster box of ointment of spikenard, very precious, and the house and lands of such as Barnabas, but fishermen's boats and nets, the abandoned "seat of custom," the widow's mites, and the cup of cold water—yea, when we had nothing else to give, the word of counsel, the tear of pity, the prayer of intercession. Then shall be seen both the limitless possibilities and the "transcendent riches" of consecrated poverty.

Once it was necessary to proclaim to the people of God that what they had brought "was more than enough," and to "restrain them from bringing" (Ex xxxvi 6). So far as known, this is the solitary historic instance of such excess of generosity. But should it not always be so? Is it not a shame and disgrace that there should be lack of "meat in God's house"? When his work appeals for aid, should there ever be a reluctance to respond or a doling out of a mere pittance? Surely His unspeakable gift should make all giving to Him a spontaneous offering of love that, like Mary's, should bring its precious flask of spikenard and lavish its treasures on His feet, and fill the house with the odour of self-sacrifice!—A. T. Pierson.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

I have been interested in your discussion in THE RESTITUTION with Brother Wilson upon the "Seventh Sign." You are both, evidently, well able to quote Scripture and present data in support of your several positions, and there it ends and your readers are left in doubt as to which is right. Would it not be better to "rightly divide the Word of Truth?" Arraying Scripture against Scripture is never satisfactory.

It has generally been accepted as an axiom of truth that the intellectual and moral status of a nation is in proportion to their accepted knowledge of the Scriptures. The preaching of the Scriptures has had the effect as was evidently intended at the beginning, in separating and bringing clearly to light, two distinct classes of professing Christians, namely:—The intellectually moral man and the obedient believer unto eternal life. The one represented by "the wheat in the field;" the other something more, namely,—"the servant of the householder" (Matt. xiii.)

Viewed from this light the prophecy of Daniel xii. (which speaks of general knowledge) does not come into conflict with the words of the Christ, Matt. xxiv. 30; Luke xviii. 8, nor with the apostle Paul, 2 Tim. iv. 4, as is made to appear in your discussion, and the seeming differences between yourself and Brother Wilson are harmonized.

The distribution of Bibles and sundry missionary enterprises may not save a single soul unto eternal life because of the perversion of the Word of Truth, but it has enlightened the people of the nations intellectually and morally, of which there is an abundant objective manifestation.

In conclusion, do you not think that the book of Revelations is just what it avers to be, "The Revelation of Jesus Christ to his servant John." That it was in fact something that up to that time had not been revealed? It could in no sense be a revelation, if John and the other apostles knew all about it prior thereto. Was it not therefore, a "prophesying again?"

Fraternally Yours,
WM. KEMPIS.

A Request.

Will every one in the State of Washington, that believes in the grand old Restitution Doctrine, drop me a card at least. I have three objects in view: 1st, I want to find out how many are near enough to help build up a church some where near or in Sunnyside, Washington, and in the near future be able to hold a Conference meeting. 2nd, I like to locate brethren so in case I go to another town I can call on you, and if you come to our town you can call on us, and 3rd, I have been wondering if we could not have a tract fund. I find lots of people just starving for the truth, and I am not able to feed them all. I am doing all I can, if not a little more now. Who will help to build up a church in this part of Washington? If we all do all we can there will be a move that will repay us for every dollar we spend, and one more reason, I ask every one in the State to please drop me a card with full address is this:—Not long ago a very nice young lady asked me if any one else in Washington believed as I do? Her mother is very much interested in the faith.

Now brethren, will you grant my request? I will be very grateful to you. Address me at Sunnyside, Washington.

Your Sister, waiting the Nobleman's return.

The Rich Man and Lazarus.

The key, if a key is needed to open to us the truth contained in this parable, is to be found in verse 14 of this 16th chapter of Luke. That it is a parable, is placed beyond contradiction. Speaking to his disciples the Master said, Unto you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God; but unto them that are without, all things are done in parables..... without a parable spake he not unto them; and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples Mark iv 11-34. The 16th chapter of Luke begins and ends with parabolic teaching. In verse 14 we read, And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things; and they derided him. And he said unto them, Ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knows your hearts; for that which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God. Now as a natural consequence Christ speaks to them the parable. "There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day." The clothing and condition of this rich man answers to the clothing and condition of the Jewish high priest; who represented the nation before God in the Holy of Holies. Corroborative evidence on this point is found in the fact that the rich man calls Abraham father, and Abraham acknowledges the relationship. Now who is the beggar that desires the crumbs from the rich man's table? I answer, the Gentiles who acknowledge as the Son of God, Jesus Christ, the Lord's Anointed.

In Mark vii. we have the account of a Greek woman, Syrophenician by nation, that besought the Lord for a favor; he answered, that it was not meet to take the children's bread and to cast it unto dogs. And she answered and said unto him, yes, Lord; yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs. And he said unto her, for this saying go thy way; the devil is gone out of thy daughter."

Again, there were certain Greeks that came to worship at the feast, who said to Phillip, "Sir, we would see Jesus." John xii 20 21. The persistent importunity of the woman, and the request of the Greeks indicate a desire on their part to receive some of the crumbs from the rich man's table. The sores of the beggar represents the immoral condition of the party. If we are right so far in the exposition of the parable, we shall find that the events narrated will agree with the facts of history in relation to the rich man, and the beggar.

The thing said in parable is never the thing meant, but it has some likeness to the thing meant. Now what is meant by the death of the beggar? Read Romans vii 9, "For I was alive without the law once; but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died. This is the law of remission in baptism, "Knowing this, that our old is man crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that hence forth we should not serve sin." Rom vi 6. The Gentile having died to sin, and become alive to righteousness, the angels or messengers carry him to Abraham's bosom; a figurative expression of a happy condition. See John i 18, "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him." "The rich man also died and was buried; and in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torment. Now about the time when the gospel was preached to the Gentiles, and the converts became Christ's, and heirs to the promises made to Abraham; figuratively were in Abraham's bosom.

Now what happened to the rich man—the Jewish nation? He died as a nation, and has been in hell ever since, tormented in its flames. Moses predicted their suffering in latter days, on account of their sins. Hosea exhorts her to put away her sins? "Lest I strip her naked, and set her as in the day that she was born, and make her as a wilderness, and set her like a dry land, and slay her with thirst." Hosea ii 3.

Ezekiel prophetically says, "Therefore have I poured out my indignation upon them; I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath." xxii 31. In Isa v 13-14, we read, "Therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge; and their honorable men are famished, and their multitude dried up with thirst. Therefore hell hath enlarged herself, and opened her mouth without measure; and their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that rejoiceth, shall descend into it." Verily all this has come upon the Jews. Now what is this great or impassable gulf? "Your iniquities have turned away these things, and your sins have withholden good things from you." Jer v 25.

Again we read, "Your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear. Isa lix 2. Our Lord knowing the Scriptures predicted in Matt xxiv the dire calamities that would come upon the Jews; the same is condensed in this parable. The next in order is the five brethren of the rich man. Who are they? On the same principle that the rich man represented the two tribes that were then in the land, the five brethren would represent the ten absent tribes. This view would seem to be correct because in answer to the request of rich man to send one from the dead; Abraham makes answer, "They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them."

I think it must be admitted that at that time, no people but the Jews had the writings of Moses and the prophets. How true the statement that our Lord puts into the mouth of Abraham, "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead;" which fact is proven by their rejection of Christ, though he did raise Lazarus from the dead.

SOME GOOD BOOKS.

An aged Brother of this city, who can no longer see to study, has placed in our hands a number of books to offer for sale. He needs the money. The books are all in excellant condition, and for all practical purposes as good as new ones would be.

The following list will give an idea of what they are:

Lectures on the Science of Human Life, Dr. Sylvester Graham, 650 pps, $1.00.

The Book called Job. This is a free translation of the Hebrew, with copious foot notes, by Oliver S. Halsted. Price 75c.

A Model Superintendent, being the sketch of the life-work of Henry P. Haven, of the International Sunday School lesson committee. Good for any one in this line of work. 60c

Any one wanting any of these books can have them post paid at the above prices.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a weapon for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels. And one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 380 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ: Address T J Daniel, Magazine Ark

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents, Three Months 40 Cents.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even in proper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the name of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Better Late than Never.

Life is a race, where some succeed,
While others are beginning;
'Tis luck at times, at others speed,
That gives an early winning.
But if you chance to fall behind,
Ne'er slacken your endeavor,
But keep this wholesome truth in mind—
'Tis better late than never.

If you can keep ahead, 'tis well,
But never trip your neighbor;
'Tis noble when you can excel,
By honest, patient labor;
But if you are outstripped at last,
Press on as bold as ever;
Remember, though you are surpassed,
'Tis better late than never.

Ne'er labor for an idle boast
Of victory o'er another;
But while you strive your uttermost,
Deal fairly with a brother.
Whate'er your station, do your best,
And hold your purpose ever;
And if you fail to beat the rest,
'Tis better late than never.

Choose well the path in which you run—
Subdued by noble daring;
Then, though the last, when care 'tis won,
Your crown is worth the wearing;
Then never fret, if left behind,
Nor slacken your endeavor;
But ever keep this truth in mind,
'Tis better late than never.

Salvation. No. 10.

WHAT SHALL I DO?

No more important question relating to salvation, can be asked by man than this. The Bible gives the plain and satisfying answer, and the book or treatise entitled, The Acts of the Apostles, is the one in which to find the answer. No man or woman is prepared to ask this question intelligently, who is ignorant of the gospel; and no one however learned and clothed with authority, but alike ignorant of the gospel and its requirements should be appealed to for the answer. These would only be "blind leaders of the blind." A great deal of preaching has been done, honestly no doubt, with a view to rousing the emotions of love gratitude and reverence. It is a constraining power, the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. It is God's message of love to the fallen and undone. It offers pardon to the guilty, mercy to the undeserving, peace to the troubled conscience, a home to the homeless, life to the dying, gladness to the sorrowing, and untold wealth to the poor. It proposes to take men and women of Adam's fallen race into the holy copartnership with the Son of God, to make them eligible to high official positions in the kingdom. It is the means of adoption into a noble family with God as the Father, and his Son as first born or elder brother. If all this is not an exhibition of love where can love be found? What more can any human soul ask? What more desire.

I trust that sufficient was said under preceding heads to acquaint the reader with the gospel as preached by Jesus and his inspired apostles. The obedience of faith is now in point. This is the human side. Faith comes first and is either expressed or implied in the history of every case of conversion found in this book.

Under the preaching of Peter on that notable pentecost when the Spirit was shed in such rich profusion on apostles, three thousand of the assembled multitude asked what they should do. They were pricked in their hearts. This was the result of their faith in the word spoken. The question was direct, coming from hearts convicted of sin, and feeling the need of pardon. Peter's answer met the question. Important as is prayer, none was commanded or enjoined here. In the estimation of some people today, the manner of making converts as on that day seems to lack piety. But be assured, dear reader, the whole proceeding was under the direction of the Holy Spirit operating through the apostles. Peter said "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Acts ii 38. Both repentance and baptism are acts, so to speak, of the believer; the first a mental act, the second an overt act, and both are for the remission of sins. Both are equally essential to the one end. No one asks, What must I do? unless the conscience is aroused to a sense of sin as a breach of God's holy law. This is conviction, and follows faith, and precedes repentance. A man does not repent of sin so long as it does not trouble his mind, or produce uneasiness in view of a judgment to come. When he comes to feel the exceeding sinfulness of sin (Rom vii 13) he is ready and anxious to change his mind and pursue a very different course of conduct.

The word repent, as used in the second chapter of Acts, according to Young, is to have another mind, and Green gives, as the definition of the Greek word, here translated repent, "to undergo a change in mind and feeling, to repent, to make a change of principle and practice, to reform." Every sinner to whom the gospel comes is solemnly commanded to do what this word means, change his mind and feelings in reference to sin; to hate his former course of life, and resolve from henceforth to practice righteousness in the fear of God and in the light of the gospel. Paul in Athens said, "The times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commanded all men everywhere to repent." Acts xvii 30.

This repentance is in view of a judgment to come, the same that made Felix tremble when it was preached to him by the apostle. The next verse reads, "Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained." The judgment is by God's appointed judge and the assurance to men, of that judgment is the fact that the great Judge has been raised from the dead. The repentance enjoined by the gospel is not sorrow for sin as is often taught from the popular pulpit, though this should lead to the repentance that need not be repented of.

Paul says, "Godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of, but the sorrow of the world worketh death." 2 Cor vii 10. The apostle makes a clear distinction between the two, so there is no reason for confounding them. The distinction is even more plainly expressed in the Greek. The repentance must be toward God, otherwise it is not to salvation. Paul says, Testifying both to Jews and Greeks repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. Acts xx 21. All must be Christward and Godward. There must be a turning from and a turning to. Both ideas are well expressed in 1 Thess i 9. "For they themselves show what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for his Son from heaven."

The object of the gospel is to turn men and women from all manner of sin. Concerning Israel, God said, "I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live. Turn ye, turn ye from your evil way and live; for why will you die, O house of Israel." Ezek xxxiii 11. As to ancient Israel, so to sinners of today, his call is beseechingly addressed by the gospel.

BAPTISM.

Baptism is joined with repentance in the command. Under apostolic preaching baptism was immediately attended to; there was no postponement to some convenient time, weeks and months away—as far as we can discover from the record. There was no effort made to set aside by substituting Holy Ghost baptism as the "sons baptism". There were fewer cases of this baptism then than now (2) We read of many of these in current religious literature.

Religionists in the broad gauge that both pulpit and pew receive such a baptism. While I am not disposed to ridicule an honest belief in this matter, it is my duty to call the supposed fact in question. There are only two cases of Holy Spirit baptism in N. T. history of preaching and conversions. The first is found in Acts ii chapter. The apostles were the subjects of this baptism which was promised by Christ about ten days before.

Read the description of this marvelous outpouring of the Spirit and compare it with the alleged baptisms of our day. From the difference between the ancient and modern, the claim set up for the latter as being Holy Spirit baptism must be abandoned as untenable. On this notable pentecost, aside from the manner of its outpouring, and attendant phenomena in the room where the apostles were sitting, this effusion of the Holy Spirit qualified these men for preaching the exact truth, and do this in the numerous tongues spoken by the assembled Jews from the many nations enumerated by Luke the historian. Speaking in the different languages served the double purpose of reaching the minds of the multitude with the truth, and of demonstrating to them the divine mission of the apostles. Are these things true of any set of modern preachers claiming Holy Ghost baptism? No. The other case is found in chapter x of Acts.

The whole chapter is devoted to the history of the first preaching of the gospel to the Gentiles. Cornelius and his household, in the providence of God were to hear the gospel and accept it. It was only by a vision that Peter's deep-seated prejudices against association and intercourse with Gentiles could be broken down and in like manner a vision was necessary to bring about the meeting of the Jewish apostle, and the Gentile Cornelius. Peter proclaimed the same word to these Gentiles that before had been spoken unto Israel. It is recorded that "While Peter yet spake the Holy Spirit fell on them which heard the word." verse 44. The next verse reads, "They of the circumcision which believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Spirit; for they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God. Then answered Peter, "Can any man forbid water that these should not be baptized with (in) water which have received the Holy Spirit as well as we? and he commanded them to be baptized." Others did the baptizing. The Holy Spirit was not given to convert these people, but to demonstrate the fact of God's acceptance of the Gentiles, to Judean Christians. Peter will refer to it for this very purpose. The news of Peter's intercourse with the uncircumcised reached the Judean Christians before Peter's arrival at Jerusalem. It is written. The apostles and brethren that were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God; and when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the circumcision contended with him, saying, thou went in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them." Acts xi 1, 2, 3. This called for a full report of the whole case, by the apostle.

At verse 15 he says, "As I began to speak the Holy Spirit fell on them as it did on us at the beginning," referring to pentecost. He then quotes the promise in Christ's own words: John indeed baptize (in) with water; but ye shall be baptized (in) with the Holy Spirit." The fact of fulfillment of the promise here, as at Jerusalem on the pentecost, Peter deemed sufficient to convince reasonable men that the door of faith was open to Gentiles. And it did convince them. "They held their peace and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life." verse 18. It was well that Peter could so report. Is there anything like this in our day? I would like to see it.

Conference Report.

As announced, the twelfth annual Conference of the Churches of God in Illinois, was held at Oregon, beginning Wednesday evening August 19, and continuing over the following Sunday.

From beginning to close it was a most excellent meeting, full of Christian love, and spiritual uplift to all present who would open their hearts to receive these blessings.

The ministers on the program were Bros. L. E. Conner of Cleveland, Ohio; E. Eldred Marsh of Marshalltown, Iowa; S. J. Lindsay, State Evangelist and R. G. Huggins, Assistant State Evangelist, of Oregon, Illinois. These all preached the Word in its purity, and all who have ever heard these brethren can appreciate fully the feast of truth that was ours in those few days. In addition to these, an unexpected treat was furnished by the stopping for a day of Brother F. L. Austin, who was on his way to the Iowa Conference. He was persuaded to preach to us on Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock. It was a sermon full of the Gospel and the Spirit of our Master, and will be remembered long by many.

Aside from the sermons during the conference, there were the hours devoted to social meetings both of the general Church and of the Berean Society which were all a source of good. Also, there was the Question Box discussions of knotty problems. These were given as a rule to be solved by the ministers present, who, if they did not agree on every point, always differed in love, and by their logic, and convincing argument, backed by the Word, made these hours very instructive and profitable.

Sister Anna Adams of Dixon and her Committee, had charge of the musical part of the program, a feature of which was the sweet singing by Sister Lillian Filson, and her daughter Gracie, who by special request appeared several times at the different services.

On Saturday, at the annual business meeting our State Evangelist, S. J. Lindsay, gave a most encouraging report of the year's work. This report has already appeared in THE RESTITUTION. Also, our Assistant Evangelist, R. G. Huggins, gave a good account of work done, and of results accomplished during the year.

The reports of churches showed that in some places the work is doing well, at others the interest seems waning, but all are hoping for better things. Viewing the field as a whole, some of the new places show a growing zeal, which will offset any discouraging features elsewhere.

The Treasurer's report showed the amount collected to date of August 21, '08 to be $3,092.19. Of this sum about $400.00 was gathered by the evangelists above the regular subscriptions.

All the officers who served last year were re-elected save one. We have as President, J. W. Wilson, Lewis Weaver Vice President, J. W. Cooper 2nd Vice President, Emma L. Smith, Secretary. As Brother J. M. Glotfelty, our former Treasurer, positively refused to serve another year because of failing health, or rather, because the burden has been too great for his strength all the past year, the conference therefore accepted his refusal, well appreciating his efficient service which he has always given in this office, and Brother John Cross, of Oregon, was elected Treasurer for the next year.

The Executive Board, consisting of the following brethren: J. H. Williams, E. F. Oesh, J. M. Glotfelty, S. H. Smith and P. Jeffrey were re-elected.

By unanimous vote of the Board our Brother, S. J. Lindsay, was to be retained as our State Evangelist. An offer as our Assistant Evangelist was also tendered Brother G. Eldred Marsh, which he has since found he is free to accept. We are expecting a very profitable year under the leadership of these brethren, well knowing however, that the people must do their part. May God keep us in that attitude of mind that was in Jesus, who sought not self, but the kingdom and the will of God.

There were new faces at our meeting this year from Iowa and Indiana. Among these were Sister Eva L. Stearns of Iowa conference and Sisters Bullsback, Romine, and Lois Thompson from Indiana, Brother and Sister J. H. Willey and Sister Evelyn Harsch, also of Indiana, were with us again, having attended our conferences for the first time last year. We were so glad to have these dear ones with us, and hope they will form a lasting habit of attending our annual meeting. We need them and trust that others also will come next year.

After meeting all the friends from near and far, and spending a week in such spiritual uplift and religious association the ties grow very close, and it is hard to realize as the "God be with you" is sung, and the good byes are about to be spoken that the separation from many of these must be for at least another year—perhaps even till the dawn of the great morning.

But as we closed our conference on Sunday evening after a most able sermon by Brother L. E. Conner, we went from the place trusting more fully in the care and leading of our God for all future days, stronger and truer in purpose to be faithful to the end—even unto death, or his coming.

EMMA L. SMITH, Sec'y.

To All Members of my Correspondence Bible Class, and others:

For two years I have been conducting a correspondence Bible class. The work has now grown to such proportions that I can no longer do the work required. At the suggestion of some of the members of the class, I will publish printed Bible lessons through a course of ten lessons, and will send them out to any who will take the lessons and promise to do the work. It will cost in actual expense about $1.00 for publishing the ten lessons to each. I cannot afford this expense. If the reader will drop me a postal card saying he will faithfully do the work and send $1.00 to cover expense upon receipt of the first lesson, I will place his name on the list. I cannot agree to send out the lessons unless a hundred members are obtained. This is not a money making matter and unless this plan succeeds, I must drop that work all together. Address me at Oregon, Ill.

Faithfully yours.

S. J. LINDSAY.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed I send renewal of my subscription for another year. I beg pardon for so long delay, and thank you for your kindness in sending after my time ran out, as I value the paper highly and try to hand them out to others who may read them and so learn "the way of God more perfectly" or may inquire what they might do to be saved.

Your correspondence with Mr. Elsey, the Universalist is very interesting to me. Sorry he rests his hope on so weak a foundation as the word "all" without any conditions.

With Christian regard, I am your Brother in Christ.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 16, 1908.

LET all interested make note of the new place of meeting secured by the Chicago Church. It is in the down-town district, and is easily reached from all sections, and will be much better than before for all.

A LETTER from Brother Lindsay says that his daughter Etta, who was taken sick at the time of the Illinois Conference, is getting along nicely, which will be a pleasing news to their many friends in various parts of the country.

AT the close of the Nebraska Conference at St. Paul, which ended Sept. 6, Brother Lindsay went with Brother Allard to Maxwell, Iowa, for a series of meetings, after which Brother Allard will accompany Brother Lindsay to Illinois, where both will work for a season. This is an excellent way for doing evangelistic work, and we hope good will result from this combination of effort.

WHILE France and Spain were trying to settle on a joint note to the powers regarding the Moroccan situation, the Germans took matters in their own hands, and startled all by acknowledging the usurper Mulai Hafid, as Sultan. There was a strained condition for a few days, but it seems to have subsided somewhat, and by careful handling it is hoped to avoid any clash at present.

FOUR Conferences are to be held at the same time next month: The Michigan, Indiana, Southern Illinois, and the Kansas all will be in session over the second Sunday of October. These are all important meetings, as much business is to be attended to that requires all the best efforts of every brother in the states offered. There should be a representative from every church at these meetings, to assist in the work of the Conference and to arrange for aggressive evangelical effort this coming year. Brother Huggins is to be at the Michigan meeting, Brother Daniel at the Kansas meeting, Brother Conner at the Illinois, and Brother Lindsay at the Indiana, so all can be assured of the public speaking being well worth going to hear. Let every church wake up to duty and privilege, and be represented at these gatherings.

DURING the past week there has been held in London what is called an "Eucharistic Congress." It is a conference of many priests, bishops, cardinals and high officials of the Catholic church. It is the first time in three and a half centuries that England has been visited by a papal legate. On Sunday there was a "procession", and it had been planned that "the host" should be carried in the parade. A protest was made by certain ones representing Protestant societies, and the civil authorities asked that this last feature be omitted. The request was finally agreed to, but the officers of the Church appeared with all their robes and regalia. At one point the police had great difficulty in keeping the crowd back, and the procession was broken and delayed for some time. There is intense feeling over the occurrence, and more trouble may yet develope.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ This restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

There is little hope for the man who believes that all roads lead to the same place. It is just as reasonable to believe that all currency is equal in denomination.—J. T. Butler.

A New Church in Iowa.

Saturday, September 5th, I left my home in Marshalltown and went to La Porte City, a town between Waterloo and Cedar Rapids on the Rock Island railroad. A short time before conference brothers Allard, Adams, and myself conducted a tent meeting there, as a result of which thirteen professed faith in the gospel. Three of the number were baptized at the time of the meeting, and seven more during conference in Waterloo The remaining three are elderly people whose health would not permit them to enter the water at this time. Arriving at La Porte City I was met at the station by brother Frank Cummins and a little son of Sister R. O. Herrick, and conducted by them to the latter's home, where I met with a most agreeable reception from the entire family.

The following afternoon (Sunday) I preached in Sister Herrick's home to twenty-six on "Our Faith", taking as a text, Hebrews xi 6: "Without faith it is impossible to please Him: for he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him".

After the service Sister Herrick and I called on Grandma Malbride, a dear old sister who is confined to her bed by illness. We found her very cheerful in her affliction, but only expressed regret being that she was unable to attend the meeting. Having read a few words of comfort and hope from the Scriptures and offered a short prayer for her recovery we returned to the home of Sister Herrick.

At seven-thirty the people assembled and I called them to order for a business session, and organized them into a body, appointing with the approval of the church the following officers: Elders, Brothers J. L. Baker and B. L. Sheaffer; Conference Sec. Sister R. O. Herrick; Local Secretary—Sister Fern Harding; Treasurer—Sister Luella Shockley; Pastor—Brother G. V Herrick.

Immediately after the business meeting I addressed an audience of twenty-seven on "The Whole Duty of Man", taking for a text the words of Jesus found in John xvii 4—"I have glorified Thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do". I admonished our new brethren to continue steadfast in the truth, to strive to develope spirituality in each other, to do good to all men especially to those of the household of faith, and above all to have fervent charity among themselves. Brethren, pray for these beloved new members of the body of Christ that they may grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ", and that they may be found without spot and blameless on the return of the Master.

I was ably assisted in all the services by our young Brother George V. Herrick, who possesses much natural ability and will in time develope into a worthy preacher of the gospel. He is earnest and sincere, and apparently values above all else the building of a true and useful Christian character. He deserves the prayers and encouragement of all of God's people.

G. ELDRED MARSH.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Soon following my discussion at Etna, I attended my omitted meetings at Eden, Wash. I began meetings at Eden, Wash., Aug 23 and closed Aug 30.

This country has its wet season, including the winter months and its dry season—the summer months but this week in August (on account of rain) was more like a paragraph misplaced by the printer. By counting in the two Sundays we succeeded in having seven meetings and an agreeable visit with the brethren.

Having been reared so far in the interior of our country as Ohio, I always think of the land of my boyhood and of the novel interest that would be awakened in the minds of many who would like to be in this wonderland. If in my wanderings I should wander too far away from the duty of a deck hand and load our little craft with material that does not properly belong to a religious periodical, only a gentle hint will correct the mistake if given by respected pilot or mate.

On the beautiful first day of September good by had come and a return trip to prospective duties in localities of the northwest. Brother and Sister Smalley and Brother and Sister Olmstead had at their pleasant homes on Crooked Creek entertained with kindness and hospitality that could not be surpassed in the Union. Bro. Frank Smalley accompanied me down the creek a half mile to take me in his gasoline launch to Astoria. When we reached Eden we learned that another gasoline launch would soon start to that city. Bro. Frank decided to accompany me in the other boat instead of his own. We started at 7 A. M., our boat "The Eva of Eden" full length 26 feet, size of cabin 14 feet by 7 feet. Distance to Astoria a mile and a half down Crooked Creek, and 14 miles down and across the Columbia River.

In addition to our ten souls we observed 10 large cans of cream in the cabin, a few sacks of potatoes, and most disagreeable, but at present most useful, the pressure, midst the cabin of the native, but odorous engine, and equally active engineer, who with close attention would increase his activity, when at times the engine would display the indifference common to this class of machinery. He succeeded in keeping her going till she reached to her task. When we entered the great river of the northwest. It was pleasant to see how peaceful a surface a perfect fall day presented us. At places the river varied from 5 to 15 miles wide.

As Brother Smalley had volunteered the guidance of the boat, and left to the owner the control of the engine, there was nothing for even a land lubber to be nervous about. We had left Eden at 7 and reached Astoria at 10 A. M. At Astoria we took to steamer at 2:30 P. M. and had an uneventful trip on stream a hundred miles to Portland; from Portland we recrossed the familiar old Columbia to Vancouver, where an N. P. train brought me up along the bank of Lewis River, and I find myself ready to enter on a series of meetings on the next night after reaching home. As two ministers of the Latter Day Saints are holding meetings in the same house, I apprehend that in the interest of the cause there will be neither collision or collusion. They have announced my meetings, as not to interfere with theirs, or to be interfered with by theirs. "Be as wise as serpents, and harmless as doves."

Dear Restitution:

At the close of our meeting at Guthrie Grove, S. C., (twenty intelligent persons put on Christ by baptism,) we then received an invitation to go to North Carolina, a distance of about sixty miles, to which call the following persons responded: Elder J. H. Anderson and his wife; Brothers J. S. Brower; W. W. Moore; G. M. Pack and the writer. All went by private conveyance over the mountains to Brother and Sister Ball's where we were given a hearty welcome, and arrangements were made for preaching at the house as Brother Ball is old and crippled. We held service at Holly Springs church on Sunday, after the service at Brother Ball on Saturday and Saturday night. On Tuesday Brother Caleb Shipman's wife was baptized into Christ, and it was one of the most solemn baptisms I ever witnessed, she being a cripple was carried into the river in a chair and was baptized. Oh, how anxious we are to obey when we learn what the gospel is; and here we want to say that we never met a more consecrated people than these two families. They are ready to spend and be spent in the cause of Christ. Brother Ball is old and feeble, and I ask the prayers of the whole Body of Christ, that he may live until we get the church built, because he is a strong member. We reorganized the church and will try to build it up again, by the help of God.

Brother and Sister Shipman have several children that are out of Christ that we want to see put on Christ by Baptism. They are intelligent men and women. Those we met are not hostile toward the gospel.

On Wednesday we left for South Carolina and came to Brother Patterson's near Hendersonville, N. C. Brother John Anderson preached there on Wednesday night. This was the last sermon that we preached in North Carolina.

Yours, in hope of eternal life,
A. N. DURHAM.

The Secretary's report was read and approved.

The President's report of letters written and received, showed an increase over last year, having written 142 and received 177. no new societies have been organized, but new interest has been created at points where we formerly had societies, and it is hoped soon to have a society at Oregon, Ill., and at Hammond, La.

The following Treasurer's report was read and approved:

Balance in treasury Sept. 1, 1907, $28 54.

Receipts from Sept. 1, '07 to Aug. 21, '08, $51.55.

Balance in treasury, Aug. 21, '08, $67.32.—Olive Drew, Treas.

Reports from Chicago, Antioch, Dixon, Ripley, Marshall and Adeline were read. Those handed to the Secretary were as follows:

Dixon. The average attendance for the year being 11. The meetings being held every Sunday if possible when there is no preaching service. We follow the usual plan during our meetings. We have twelve members, all of whom have almost a perfect record of attendance. We have taken in $7 85, since Jan. 1. We intend to use some of this for renting a church in Adeline in which we hold preaching services once a month. Last Christmas we spent about $15.00 for charity. The interest is good and attendance excellent. One of our members has been ammonished since conference. Our meetings have been interfered with a little on account of sickness, etc, but we aim to meet twice a month. We have lost two of our active members by removal.—Nellie Timmer, Pres. Mary Gesin, Sec'y.

A Question.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

In looking over THE RESTITUTION for the past two or three years, I find quite a good many articles, by several different writers, on the subjects "Resurrection" and "Judgment." I have summed up the ideas, expressed in these articles under the following heads:

1. That at the coming of Christ, only the faithful saints will be raised; Those in Christ who have been unfaithful; being raised at the end of the thousand years to come before the judgment seat to receive their sentence of second death.

2. That at the coming of Christ only the faithful saints will be raised: That at the end of the thousand years, all the rest of mankind will be raised to come before the judgment seat.

3. That at the coming of Christ, all who have heard and understood the gospel, and whose knowledge therefore makes them responsible, will be raised and appear before the judgment seat of Christ. The faithful saints to be raised immortal and appear there for the purpose of receiving their positions in the kingdom, the rest to receive their sentence of punishment.

One of the above ideas might be right, which would prove the other two wrong, or all three might be wrong. We know from the prominence given these subjects in the Bible, and from Heb vi 1, 2, that the fact that there is to be a resurrection and judgment, is among the first principles of the Gospel. I would like to ask, for the benefit of several others and myself, the following question:—Shall we consider an understanding of the details of the resurrection and judgment, as to when they occur, and who will be the subjects, as non-essential to salvation?

GEORGE NEAL.

Curses Coming Home.

A Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Evangelist, speaking of the arrest of a theatrical manager, who has since been convicted and imprisoned, says: "On his former arrest, among those who appeared against him was a leading politician, who, in great distress, stated that his only son, a lad of sixteen, had been debauched through the influence of this theater, and had become a drunkard, vicious, and every way dissolute. The mayor heard him in silence, and then replied:

"I am very sorry for your son, but I have small sympathy for you. Five years ago I introduced into our Legislature a bill to abolish these places. It passed the Senate, and was defeated in the House by your single opposition!"

Inquiry at the mayor's office confirmed this statement as literally true. If the number of youths debauched and ruined by our theaters could be ascertained it would prove to be exceeded only by the number ruined by the dramshop."

God's Justice.

We marvel sometimes that God's justice is not promptly and signally displayed, and that those who sin are not at once destroyed. They would be if they depended on the forbearance of good men. But wicked men live and prosper, not because God is indifferent, but because he is patient, and gives them time and opportunity to forsake their evil ways. The world is full of instances to show us that divine justice, though long delayed, is at last executed. Nothing is more foolish, if we are aware of it, than to envy the prosperity of the wicked.

These difficulties will vanish in the light of the judgment day. The enemies of the good man may try to add bitterness to his misfortune, and say: "Why does not God befriend you, and why does he not punish us?" But the end is not yet. In that day when the secrets of all hearts shall be made manifest, virtue will be rewarded and vice punished, and all men, whether saved or lost, will be forced to exclaim: "God is just! God is just!"

Speak for God.

"I have yet to speak on God's behalf." Job xxxvi. 2.

We ought not to court publicity for our virtue, or notoriety for our zeal, but at the same time it is a sin to be always seeking to hide that which God has bestowed upon us for the good of others. A Christian is not to be a village in a valley, but a city on a hill. He is not to be a candle under a bushel, but a candle in a candlestick giving light to all.

Retirement may be lovely in its season, and to hide one's self is doubtless modest, but the hiding of Christ in us can never be justified, and the keeping back of truth which is precious to ourselves is a sin against others and an offense against God. If you are of a nervous temperament and of retiring disposition, take care that you do not too much indulge this trembling propensity, lest you should be useless to the church. Seek in the name of him who was not ashamed of you, to do some little violence to your feelings and tell to others what Christ has told to you. If thou canst not speak with trumpet tongue, use the still small voice. If the pulpit must not be thy tribune, if the press may not carry on its wings thy words, yet say with Peter and John, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I unto thee." By Sychar's well talk to the Samaritan woman, if thou canst not on the mountain preach a sermon; utter the praises of Jesus in the home, if not in the temple; in the field, if not in the exchange; in the midst of thine own household, if thou canst not in the midst of the great family of man.

From the hidden springs within let sweetly flowing rivulets of testimony flow forth, giving drink to every passer-by. Hide not thy talent; trade with it, and thou shalt bring in good interest to thy Lord and Master. To speak for God will be refreshing to ourselves, cheering to saints, useful to sinners, knocking to the Savior, Dumb children are an affliction to their parents. Lord, unloose all thy children's tongues. "Open thou my lips, and my mouth shall show forth thy praise."—Spurgeon

Better than Gold.

When gold was discovered in bleak Klondyke, men left friends and country, home and position, wives and children; and dragging themselves the ordinary comforts of life, and even lingering life itself, hurried away to the frozen north to search of the yellow gold. But there is something greater than gold, and more precious than diamonds, gems that may adorn one's crown in the eternal world, when Klondyke gold and Kimberly diamonds are forgotten, and these gems may be found in many lands today. Are you willing to go for them? Would you be willing if it meant the sacrifice that men make in order to obtain the perishable things of this life? Are you willing to part with all you possess in order to procure the pearl of great price? The Master was willing thus to do, and we read in one of Paul's letters, "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."—By Lindon J. Carter.

There is a story of a boy who left his home and went to the city alone for the first time. He set out with forebodings, but everything turned out better than his fears. The conductor was kind. A stranger sat beside him and described the places they passed. A driver who knew exactly where he wanted to go was at the city station. When it was all over he learned that his father had been with him all the day, in another car, planning things for his comfort and sending helpful persons to him. Is not that the way God has been with us all?

Editorials.

A good report of the Missouri Conference appears in this issue. Reader, pray for God's blessings to rest upon this new field of labor.

The meeting at Morse Mill was specially blessed of God. Brethren Charles and Robert Cooper and Chas. Manken, of Bush, Missouri, were among the visitors. The interest and attendance were splendid.

September 6, 1903, was the day. There was joy in heaven and upon earth, among the angels and the brethren at Morse Mill, Missouri. Five dear souls had confessed their faith in the gospel during the meeting, and we gathered on the bank of Big River at Morse Mill, September 6, to plant them in the likeness of Christ's death.

They are all young people, three of them school teachers, the very cream of the community. Their names are: Eva Wilson, Clayton Williams, Myrta Tuttle, Edward Williams and Katherine Williams. Others were "almost persuaded". The Lord bless the Morse Mill Church, that it may be like a city on a hill.

Books, Papers, etc.

Is Baptism Essential to Our Salvation? A pamphlet of 30 pages by Brother John Foors of 2012 W. Corning Ave., Parsons, Kansas. Price 10 cents.—A Bible Study of Hades, a new booklet by Brother W. H. Wilson. Contains valuable information about hell. Price 15 cents.

The Editor has been detained a week longer in Missouri than he anticipated, with the result that all mail addressed to Cleveland has not been received until September 12. Let readers note this, as it explains delay in correspondence and also non-appearance of articles intended for publication in Ebenezer.

Does Hades Have Two Departments?

Because this narrative in Luke xvi 19 31 is a parable does not in the least imply that the persons, places, actions, language used, etc., are all necessarially fictitious and imaginary, never existing realities. In the parable of the sower (Matt xiii 3 8) are we to think there are no such realities as "sower", "seeds", "birds", "rocky places", "thorns", "good ground"?

Same reasoning will apply to all parables. Why is so much effort put forth to explain away the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, while such parables as that of the sower are accepted without a murmur? It is generally understood that the state of the dead as set forth in this parable was the prevailing belief of both Jews and Gentiles, the term, "Abraham's bosom" being the Jewish equivalent of the Greek term "Paradise". Lk xxiii 43. It is evident that Jesus used the language in its ordinary significance among the people. He did not hesitate to expose the error of the Sadducees relative to the resurrection; but neither he nor his apostles anywhere contradict the prevalent belief relative to Hades being the abiding place of the spirits, both of the just and unjust, till the day of judgment.

To deny the existence of the place and the two classes of spirits abiding there is to accuse the All Wise Teacher of clothing truth in the garments of falsehood and leaving it to uninspired teachers to tear off the mask. I prefer the words of the Master just as they stand in the inspired record. Peter says (Acts ii 25 31) that the soul ("spirit", 1 Peter iii 18) of Jesus was in hades while his body was dead. Jesus knew where his spirit was going and the thief fully understood when Jesus spoke to him the cheering word that he should that very day be with him, the gentle Savior, "in paradise."

I believe they went there; and that from paradise, the place of the just in hades, Jesus "went and preached to the spirits in prison." It may seem foolish, but I would rather believe the words of Christ and the apostles than try to explain them away. I am not wise enough to attempt the task.

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER

EDITOR'S REPLY.

A good story well told has a fascinating charm for most people. But before a tale sounds like music to the ear, it must be told well; it must have wit, point and Hibernian characteristics; and especially must all its different parts fit together in harmony. If its different parts misfit, it mortifies more than edifies.

The story our friend has told about hades dovetails in nicely with the teachings of the Koran and is in perfect accord with the belief of the Mohammedans. It fills our heart with sorrow of the saddest sort to see people who profess to be Christians turn their ears away from the word of God and take up with the fables of heathens. Let us now take a critical look at my friend's story about hades, and see if he is a good story teller.

He makes a brilliant start; he begins well. He gives us a good talk on the rich man and Lazarus. He says some good things on this parable, and we render honor to whom honor is due by complimenting him for his words of wisdom and exhortation relative to the narrative. We appreciate what he says about the danger of trying to "explain away the parable of the rich man and Lazarus"; and he edifies us immensely when he says that we are to "take the words of the Master just as they stand in the inspired record."

He illustrates his meaning by saying that in the parable of the sower there was a literal "sower", "birds", "seeds" etc. Amen. Now in applying his excellent rules of interpretation to the rich man and Lazarus, we ask him to remember the words, "rich man", "died", "buried", "bosom", "eyes", "finger", "tongue", "gulf", and "so that they which would pass from heuce to you cannot". In all this we are to "take the words of the Master just as they stand in the inspired record."

It is still fresh in the reader's mind how our friend said last week that the rich man and all the disobedient spirits of the antediluvians were in hades. They were all there "in torments" according to our Master's words in the parable of the rich man and Lazarus. They were in the hot, miserable, tormenting department of hades.

Christ's soul was in hades during the time of his death (Acts ii 26 31); so he had the honor of preaching the gospel to lost souls as they splashed around frenzy "in torments." It is a question whether his audience were comfortable enough to listen to his sermons or not. And we are left in the dark as to whether Christ suffered much in this awful place; perhaps not as he "preached" there for three days. But to hasten on with the story: Just here our friend recalls to mind the promise Christ made to the thief on the day of his death, that on "that very day" they were both going to paradise.

Be very careful now; for heaven's sake do not spoil your story. You had just said that Christ was in hades preaching the gospel to lost souls as they wailed in "infinite despair": now you say Christ is in paradise with the thief! How are you going to make these two stories chime together in harmony? Here is difficulty, and to get out of the tangle our minister invents two departments in hades: one hot, the other cool; one for "torments", the other for "good things"; one "Abraham's bosom," the other the devil's abode; one for saints, the other for sinners; one is paradise, the other the place of eternal torments.

In telling this old Pharisee fable he evidently felt that the story was rather "thin", to use a hackneyed term. "It may seem foolish", he admits in advance. Yes, this Pharisee tradition, this Mohammedan fable, this Catholic relic of the "dark ages", does, to be frank and honest, "seem foolish". When the prophet Jonah was in the fish's belly, he was in sheol, hades. ii 2. I wonder if the fish had both departments in him, the hot and cool place; and I wonder which department Jonah was in! And since sheep were in sheol or hades (Psa xlix 14), I cannot help wondering which of the two departments they are in! And finally, as hades is to be cast into the lake of fire (Rev xx 14), I cannot but lament the awful blunder God will make in giving over paradise with swarms of immortal ghosts in it, to the dreadful lake of fire and brimstone! Oh my Lord, save paradise and its saved inhabitants!

We received with grace and thanks your little lecture on the rich man and Lazarus. You will, then, I am sure, pardon me for referring to the narrative for the purpose of bringing out a point on hades that you seem to have overlooked. We must "take the words of the Master just as they stand in the inspired record"; no explaining them "away", now. Agreed. After you get Christ in hades, the hot department, preaching, then you have an afterthought. You think of his promise to the thief to go to paradise with him "that very day".

Then you try to "explain away" the hitch in your story. You say: "I believe they went there (to paradise); and that from paradise, the place of the just in hades, he 'went and preached to the spirits in prison.'" Not too fast, now. We just want you to look at the parable recorded in Luke xvi, and we want you to take the words of our Lord just as "they stand in the inspired record". Here they are: "And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you CANNOT; NEITHER CAN THEY PASS TO US that would come from thence." verse 26.

These are the words of Jesus "as they stand in the inspired record." They show that a fixed gulf exists between the "evil things" of the rich man and the "good things" of Lazarus; between the "torments" of the rich man and the "bosom of Abraham"; and they show that however badly some on one side of the gulf desire to cross it, they "cannot". Yet you say that Christ and the thief went to paradise, "and that from paradise, the place of the just in hades, Jesus went 'and preached to the spirits in prison'"!

According to this Christ himself went over the very gulf he said "cannot" be crossed! Do not attempt to explain this gulf away; take the words of the Master "just as they stand in the inspired record", and you will abandon the story you have told, not merely because it "seems foolish", but because it is positively in conflict with the very words of him who spoke as never man spoke.

Report of Missouri Conference.

The organization of the Missouri Conference has proven a success; the meeting began Wednesday evening, according to the program with a sermon by W. H. Wilson, whose aid in this work is very much appreciated.

Thursday, August 27, at 9:30 A. M. the conference was formerly opened by President J. H. Morse.

The ministers participating in the conference were; R. G. Huggins; W. H. Wilson; John Foors and J. H. Luman. Brother P. Jeffrey, of Illinois, lent a willing hand and voice where help was required. Other visitors from a distance were, Kathryn and Jennie Townsend; Mrs. Martha Sutterfield; Samuel and Elijah Sutterfield; Mrs. J. A. Tuttle; Myrta Tuttle; Katherine Williams; J. T. Williams. The attendance from the Brush locality was very good. The church at this place acts as a unit.

A committee of three persons, P. J. Graham; J. F. Williams. Sadie Morse was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for submission to the official board.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are, President, J. H. Morse, Valle Mines, Mo. Vice President, J. F. Williams, Hillsboro, Mo. R. R. 3. Secretary, Sadie Morse, Valle Mines, Mo. Treasurer, P. J. Graham, Fredericktown, Mo. R. R. 3. W. A. Cooper, of Fredericktown was elected as the fifth member of the official board. Then a committee of Ways and Means consisting of Charles Cooper, James S. Wilson, L. J. Dale, was elected to co-operate with the official board.

The treasurer reported ten amount of $271.00 already pledged for the evangelical and conference expenses of the ensuing year.

The time and place of the next conference will be determined by the official board, but it will most probably be held at Morse Mill, Missouri.

Licenses to preach were granted to P. Jeffrey, of Murphysboro, Ill., and W. S. Cooper, Fredericktown, Mo. R. R. 3.

Anyone desiring preaching, write to Pres. Morse for one of these ministers.

We earnestly desire the hearty co-operation of all organized churches of God in Missouri and all isolated members, that the work begun so successfully may be carried on in the same manner, in the future. All wishing to subscribe to the fund for this work, kindly send to the treasurer.

SADIE B. MORSE, Sec'y.

Resolved, that we return our heartfelt thanks to, and prayers for the brethren and people of the community of Bush for their kind hospitality and brotherly way in which they cared for the delegates and visitors to this conference.

Respectfully Submitted,

The Beginning and the End, or the Natural and Spiritual.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Gen. i 1. "For like as all that is made in the world hath a beginning and an end, and the end is manifest; even so the times also of the Highest have plain beginnings in wonders and powerful works, and endings in effects and signs." 2 Esdras ix 5, 6.

"And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold it was very good." Gen i 31. "When the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy." With such an auspicious beginning, one would suppose these conditions would last indefinitely; this was not to be the case, however, for there soon came a disarrangement, disturbing the physical condition of man as well as the earth, culminating in a great flood of waters from above and below, and drowning every living creature on the face of the earth, with the exception of eight persons and two of every kind of animals.

Thus ended the old world that was, and there began an evil world that now is. It might be profitable to refresh our memory as to the cause of God's displeasure with man which has resulted in such a terrible destruction of life.

We find on the sixth day that God made the beast of the earth after his kind and cattle after their kind, and everything that creepeth upon the earth, after his kind. Lastly, man was created, a natural or fleshly image or figure of God, and given dominion over all, which he has never entirely lost. God now takes the man and places him in a garden (eastward in Eden), which he had planted for his special use to dress and keep it. God made to grow in this garden every tree that is pleasant to the sight and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat of it; for in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." And to the beast and the fowl were given the green herb for meat, and they were brought before Adam and he named them; but for Adam there was not found an helpmeet for him. But God took a rib of Adam and made a helpmeet and Adam called her woman, because she was taken out of man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife; and they shall be one flesh. Said the Apostle, "This is a great mystery, but I speak concerning Christ and the church."

How long they lived in this happy condition with this perfect environment, enjoying each others society, and the luscious fruits, and the water of the sparkling life giving river, is not revealed. But one day there came a test, a trial of their obedience; a beast of the field appears on the scene, to whom Adam had given the name, serpent. The record says he was more subtile than any beast of the field, which means that in his nature, he was crafty, cunning, designing, deceitful, but Adam was just the reverse; he was innocent, harmless, pure, sinless, unsullied, artless, he was weak or frail and subject to vanity, the nature of the serpent, under conditions of temptation, which have now come. The serpent was in no respect a snake of our day, but a magnificent beast, while his power of speech should be no cause for astonishment; for if an ass could speak intelligently to a prophet, surely this beast could talk before he is cursed.

The apostle informs us that all flesh is not the same flesh, dividing flesh into four classes, viz., Men, beasts, birds and fishes. Man is then a separate creation from the animal kingdom. The apostle also declares that God, being the great Potter, has power over the clay, of the same lump to make a beast, which under certain conditions will develop a crafty nature, a figure of destruction; and a harmless, gentle, innocent lamb, a figure of the great sacrifice. The garden was not the abode of the serpent; he was to dwell in the field and partake of the herbs. So it must have been an act of presumption for him to leave his first estate, come into the garden, and question Eve. Approaching the woman, (not the man), with an air of superiority, wise in his own conceit, exalting himself above the knowledge of God, he joins the truth with a lie, the worst kind of a deception. The woman is completely taken off her guard and deceived, beguiled. She perceives the tree is good for food, pleasant to the eyes, and to be desired to make one wise, and did eat. In these three statements are contained all the substance of the deceptions of today. The woman is now under sentence of death, but Adam was not deceived, declares the apostle. It is not difficult to imagine the thought of Adam; bone of my bone, flesh of my flesh, my loving, beautiful wife, I will die with you, so deciding that he loved the creature more than the command of the Creator, she gave to him, and he did eat. As access to the tree of life in the midst of the garden would extend their natural existence for ever, they were expelled, and it is guarded by the cherubim and flaming sword. Had Adam and Eve been spiritual instead of natural, they would have both dropped dead instantly, when the Lord spake to them, as did Ananias and Sapphira. Being natural they lived out their day for the propagation of the race, but under sentence of death, as is all their race. There are three parties to this transaction, viz., the serpent, the woman, and the man. The serpent is cursed for the part he played, and represents sin, a seed which is cursed forever; as Jesus, "the seed of the woman," said, "These shall go away unto everlasting cutting off, to be burned up in the fire of Gehenna prepared for the devil and his angels. The woman represents a class easily deceived, but saved by law under certain conditions. Her punishment is greater than the man's. "Thy desire shall be to thy husband and he shall rule over thee." Every good woman's desire is in this direction. In Christ her salvation is the same as man's, but she has her place in the family, as well as in the assembly, and every good man treats his wife lovingly and tenderly as Christ does the church. The man, male and female in Christ, when redeemed, represents the Christ, Head and membership of the body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all. As the woman was in the man and was brought forth in the garden, so the church is in Christ and will be manifested in glory in the Paradise, now preparing in the third heaven. During the period from the natural creation until the flood, there was a separation, a distinction made between the seed of the woman. Cain, her first born, killed his brother Abel, and Seth was given to represent Abel. His seed were called "sons of God," and when they intermarried with the daughters of men, the Spirit of the Lord was grieved; it fanned before him for wickedness became great. He repented, or decided the time had come for their end, and changed the conditions. Peter tells us that in the last days, the conditions will be changed by fire, instead of water; and of these transformations the wicked are willingly ignorant. Said Jesus, "As in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the day of the Son of Man; they builded, and planted, and married, and knew not until the day came," but he says farther, "the wise shall understand." We now perceive the origin of the devil and of evil on the earth; not by the disobedience of an angel of heaven, but by man also entered the world. The man by his disobedience partook of the nature of the serpent. "Ye are of your father the devil, ye are from beneath, I am from above." Jesus said, And now as the Holy Spirit is given, we have to deal with him as spirit, for the weapons of our warfare are not carnal or fleshly, but are in the Spirit of Christ.

Editor Restitution:

September 10th, Brother D. M. Hudler was called from Muscatine, Iowa, to preach the funeral of Joseph Renner, Plum River, a young man of about 18 years, youngest son of David Renner. He was sick only a few days at the home of Brother Marsh Weutz; funeral services were held in the new church at George Renners, the house being crowded to listen to Brother Hudler, who did ably, the audience being very attentive. May God bless the words spoken.

A friend is a gift of God to be thankful for. In thinking over his causes for gratitude on Thanksgiving Day, a noble and godly man gave special prominence to the fact that one whom he loved was his friend. He who is not thankful for a friend does not appreciate friendship, and is not worthy of love.—Henry Clay Trumbull.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Announcement.

The brethren at the Colony at Rollin, Kansas, will hold their yearly meeting at the above place beginning Friday evening before the second Sunday in October, and lasting over Sunday following. We expect as speaker Dr. T. J. Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He is an able defender of the gospel of the kingdom of God. All are invited to come, and will be welcome and things made as pleasant as possible. Only a few are left at Rollin to take care of the brethren, but we will do the best we can. Our programme is Preach the gospel that was preached to Abraham, and by Christ and the apostles. Brother Daniel will do most of the preaching.

By order of the Church,
JOHN FOORE.

The first quarterly conference of the Church of God in Michigan, will be held this year (D. V.) in Decker school house, Millbrook, beginning Friday evening, Oct. 9, and lasting over the following Sunday. The speaker from a distance will we expect, be Brother Huggins. He has never worked in our state, but in nearly every other place, and if we are the last to ask his services, let us not show any less interest in the work, but rally to the standard of truth with a full force, for while he may need the inspiration of our presence, there is not one of us but who needs his words of encouragement and instruction.

Brother Huggins has promised to work a month for us in this state, and the points where he will labor will be decided at the conference.

Those coming to Grand Rapids will take the Pere Marquette train, Saginaw division, at 7:00 a m or at 5:00 p m, change at Edmore, taking the Pere Marquette, Big Rapids division, and stopping at Blanchard, where you will be met with conveyances on Friday.

Remember brethren, if the cause of truth, which we all profess to love, lives and prospers, it is because its real friends show a deep interest in its support. The Millbrook brethren are faithful in attending other conferences and desire your presence there. How ready and anxious we are, with plenty of money to attend a Fair, but forget the great importance of gaining eternal life. The race for life eternal ought to be of more importance than horse racing.

M. A. WOODWARD, Sec.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

To the Michigan Yearly Conference of the Church of God, assembled at Dutton, greeting:

WHEREAS: We all seeing the great need of more urgent work being done in the field than is being done, this Committee believes the first act toward that end should be a better financial system. Therefore, we hereby present to the Conference and isolated brethren the following plan:

First, That every member or believer in the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, set apart for this work one dollar ($1 00) each a year, and also pay the sum of ($1 00) one dollar on each ($1,000) one thousand dollars assessed valuation of their property, this to be paid semi-annually to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, Hastings, Barry Co., Mich., R. F. D.

Second, That each church or company of believers appoint one of their members to collect this money from their Church and send to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, semi-annually. All isolated members to do the same, or send to the Church nearest them, if more convenient. If all will co-operate in this plan, it will create a fund which will enable us to keep an Evangelist in the field the most, if not all the time, and will make the burden very light for all, and the result will be surprising.

Accepted and adopted unanimously by the Conference assembled.

Committee: R. LAKE,
A. K. RICHARDSON,
H. HAMMOND,
WM. MOSES,
WM. MCCRODAN.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 61.

Brother D. R. Mansfield and his wife —Mehitable Higgins Mansfield—were quite prominent factors in the history of the early Advent movement in Indiana, and therefore fall naturally into my story. They were quite well acquainted with my father, with the Logans, and with the Willards. I met them first in 1852 or '53. They were the principal speakers at a conference held in the lovely little town of Osweego, Kosciusko County, Indiana,—Brother and Sister Willard's home place A delightful meeting it was, thrilling into an ecstacy of joy into my then youthful heart, and seeming to impress a dear older brother as nothing had ever impressed him before. The large house was filled to overflowing and although the services were protracted until a late hour in the evening, none went away. I shall never forget that meeting.

I next met Brother and Sister Mansfield at a conference held in a schoolhouse near where the town of Argos now is. This was in 1858. Quite a delegation of believers went from our county, among the rest being my parents, grandparents, Brother and Sister Willard, their son and an adopted daughter. Many visitors were also in attendance from different parts of the state and we had "a feast of fat things, of wines on the lees well refined."

I had for some time been troubled as to the validity of my baptism because when I first went forward I did not understand the promises made to Abraham. I went to Brother Frank Berick and after stating my trouble asked him to re-immerse me. He promptly refused, saying, "there was no need of repeating the ordinance for such a reason." I then timidly approached Brother Mansfield, and said, "I did not understand the covenants of promise when baptized at the age of nine years; will you re-immerse me." He said, "I will" and did so after the conference was over,—in Yellow River at the town of Plymouth. In a recent letter, he says "Yes, I well remember baptizing Roxana Chaplin, and have always thought I did right."

Brother Mansfield is a medium-sized man, with sandy hair and complexion. He is quiet and unassuming in demeanor, as I remember him, but it is so long since I have heard him speak that I cannot say as to his talents as a preacher. I only remember that he and his wife were very successful in persuading men and women to "flee from the wrath to come" and to "lay hold of the hope set before them." Sister Mansfield, however, was much more the eloquent of the two.

Brother Mansfield was born in the town of Camden, state of Maine, Mar. 6, 1821, was converted at the age of 15, and united with the Congregational Church. He was twenty-one when the message of the soon coming of Christ to earth again stirred the world as it perhaps had never been stirred before. He was clerking at the time in the city of Bangor, Maine. I do not know who the speakers were, but he went to hear, investigated, embraced the truth in the love of it and full of enthusiasm went back to his native town to tell the blessed story, and he has kept on telling it even down to the present day, "trying to persuade men and women to get ready that they may hail the reality with joy."

While preaching in 1844, in company with his cousin—Wilder B. Start, a young lady in the congregation saw that it was the truth of God that was being presented; believed, came forward and yielded obedience. It was Miss Mehitable Higgins, who afterward became Brother Mansfield's wife. "She was a good singer and an excellent help to him in every way, and stood nobly by his side during all the years of her life."

In form, features and bearing she was a queenly woman, a rapid, original, eloquent and wonderfully persuasive speaker, but did not begin her labors in public until after she and her husband located in Indiana in 1852

Her father, was also an Adventist minister, and preached in Laporte and Marshall Counties.

For six years after coming to the Hoosier state, Brother Mansfield and wife had pastoral charge of the church at Union Mills, Laporte County, Indiana, and of one at Buchanan, Michigan for fourteen years, traveling and preaching much in the mean time in different parts of the two states. Both of these churches are still standing, and are, as far as I know, in a prosperous condition.

After leaving Buchanan, two years were spent in Chicago and two or more in Minneapolis, Minnesota, when they returned to Union Mills to again take charge of that church. The six months of happy reunion with old friends sped rapidly away, and then Brother Mansfield's dear Mehitable fell at her post, and was laid away to rest beside the many sleeping converts who had learned from her lips the way to Christ!

The two children were married, and both urgently pressed their father to make his home with them, but he said "No, I have now the work of two to do and must labor on until my work is finished."

Three years passed by in loneliness and sorrow when he took to himself a second companion—a Sister Jennings, of Connecticut who had for many years, preached in all the New England States. He now settled at Auburn, Ill. and held the pastorate of that church for two or more years, when he again returned to his beloved Union Mills, to spend the same length of time, and to preach also at Kingsbury, Sumption Prair., Olive Branch and other points. Of course he was acquainted with old Sister Clark and with the Catlins.

1890—'91, he spent in Aurora, Ill., reorganized a church on the South Side in Chicago, in 1892 with a hall in the Masonic Temple as a place of worship.

After seven years happily spent in that great modern Nineveh, he moved to New Albany to labor alternately at that place and at Jeffersonville, but his health failing he was forced to resign and after a year or so, feeling restless he turned his steps to California, where he has lived for the past six years.

The first year of his stay there, he had charge of a church. He then fell and broke one of his limbs close to his hip, and since that time has only been able to preach as a supply and not at all for the past two years, being now 87 years of age and greatly afflicted with rheumatism.

He spends his time living over the scenes of the past as connected with the work of the Advent people and prays that the younger hands, in whose care it will soon be left may be faithful to the charge and may never let the banner we have lifted, trail in the dust." He has been in the ministry over sixty years.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a menium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low [illegible] should do so at once

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Wilson has fortunately become possessed of a limited number of copies, and will dispose of them at 40 cents each. In view of the important changes that are to take place ere long in the countries adjacent to Russia, this book is a valuable aid to the earnest watcher of the signs. Secure one before the supply is exhausted. The book contains what is called "The Will of Peter the Great," which we have been asked recently to print, but have delayed for want of space. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the P. O. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Wait and See.

When my boy, with eager questions,
Asking how, and where, and when,
Tares all my store of wisdom,
Asking o'er and o'er again
Questions oft to which the answers
Give to others still the key,
I have said, to teach him patience,
"Wait, my little boy, and see."

And the words I taught my darling
Taught me a lesson sweet;
Once when all the world seemed darkened,
And the storm about me beat,
In the 'children's room' I heard him,
With a child's sweet mimicry,
To the baby brother's questions,
Saying wisely, "Wait and see."

Like an angel tender chiding
Came the darling's words to me,
Though my Father's ways were hidden,
Bidding me still "wait and see."
What are we but restless children,
Ever asking what shall be?
And the Father, in His wisdom,
Gently bids us "Wait and see."

The Purpose of God.

That God had a purpose, design or aim in view in creating the Earth and peopling it with all its varied inhabitants no one who concedes that Creation was wrought by God will seriously doubt. The purpose may be very little understood by us at first, but as we study into His word and reflect upon the evidences there furnished, we will get more and more light on the details of God's plan and object in creating and maintaining this world we live in.

If we start in with a mind that is humble and receptive we will shortly find that the Great Creator gave a positive promise in which he announced his purpose to fill the whole earth with his knowledge and glory as the waters cover the sea.

But having recognized and received this truth, the mind is naturally prepared for a reception of other things, —things connected with the divine plan and purpose, truths important for us to know and understand.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPTEMBER 23, 1908. NUMBER 36.

Knowledge of divine truth in all its varied lines and channels is and must ever be progressive. We cannot take in all the truth at once, even on one subject.

Such have been the circumstances of our birth, or our early training and environment that if the whole truth were presented to us at once we should reject it from the force of prejudice and preconceived notions. But the mind having a little—that is having first obtained a slight glimmering of truth and grasping that may obtain more and more light until a clear and consistent understanding is reached of what God has revealed.

What we have to beware of is the thought that we know everything, instead of recognizing the fact there is room for infinite expansion in our knowledge of God's plans. The angels have been learning for thousands of years and we have to go on to perfection—perfection of knowledge as well as character.

To add to our faith not only virtue, but to virtue knowledge, and we find it was a constant prayer of the apostle Paul that the brethren to whom he wrote should progress steadily in this way.

"And this I pray," he wrote to the church at Phillippi, "that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge and in all judgment." "That ye may approve things that are excellent, that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ." Phil i 9 and 10. Brother Bland says the word judgment would be better rendered sense or discrimination, and the intention of the 10th verse is they try or test things that differ. And he continues to say that Paul did not wish them to have a blind, undiscerning indiscriminating faith and affection. He wished their faith to be based upon intelligence, that they should be able to test things which differed and discern things which were of real value, and that which was of the truth, as distinguished from that which was plausible but erroneous.

There is great danger that brethren and sisters, having got so far, come to a standstill. That having gained sufficient knowledge for an examination, they stop there and never show the same amount of anxiety again to advance in the knowledge of divine truth. But if such a spirit as this is in existence it is distinctly wrong. We should never rest content with the idea that we know all there is worth knowing of God's plans and purposes in the earth.

The announcement, brief as it is that the whole earth shall be filled with the glory of God, is a most amazing one to those who hear it for the first time. But when the mind has grasped some of the details of that glorious earth which are revealed in God's word, wonder gives place to admiration, love and praise.

The mind receives a vision surpassing that which Moses must have received when God granted him the view of the promised land of Canaan from the top of Mount Nebo, the highest peak of Pisgah. Such was the power of faith in God's promise found in Abraham that "by faith he sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise: For he (Abraham) looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Hebrews xi 9 and 10.

"And truly, if they had been mindful of that from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned. But now they desire a better country, that is an heavenly: Wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God (He even called Himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob). For he hath prepared for them a city." Heb. xi, 14, 15.

Another thing that the natural mind prompts to do is to judge others by our own little knowledge—that is to condemn as wrong or erroneous any conception of God's purpose that we have not ourselves yet received. But if we ever bear in mind the thought that we none of us are perfect in knowledge any more than in character we will deal more charitably, less severely condemning our fellows for holding a different view from what we have arrived at.

The circumstances of our birth and training, or surroundings all affect mind in such a way that we have many modifications of the same general understanding; no two minds being in exact agreement in all details, or modifications of inherited tendency to different views, or powers of comprehension differing from every other person. A kind and merciful God has taken into consideration the many and varied human frailties which we inherit by nature. "He knoweth our frame, he remembereth that we are dust," and has a purpose and plan whereby just such poor materials as we all are can be made fit for a place in that grand design.

The natural mind cannot conceive any thing to compare with that which God has been unfolding of His purpose by prophets and apostles, and lastly by his own Son, and therefore the question of the natural mind is, Why has God delayed the accomplishment of such a benevolent and wise purpose through six thousand years, allowing the conditions existing on the earth to go from bad to worse continually, until there seems no hope or prospect of any thing but evil ahead of us?

The question itself admits the present evil conditions, and is therefore obliged to pronounce as good and benevolent and wise any plan which would do away with such a condition. The questioner also perceives that the tendency, the progress of present conditions, is downward and evil. Some one has said that "the correct statement of a proposition is half its solution." In this case we may say that is three quarters of the difficulty cleared away to be able to discern the evil tendencies of society and the powers which govern the present world. The apostle Paul styles it in Galatians "this present evil world," and John says "the whole world lieth in wickedness." Therefore we are exhorted to "not be conformed to this world" but transformed by the renewing of the mind.

The question implies that there must be a failure upon God's part. Let us look at the question again:

"Why has God delayed the accomplishment of his wise and benevolent purpose six thousand years?" It must be admitted that if God's plan is rightly stated, and that purpose is no nearer realization now than it was six thousand years ago, that there is no hope of its realization in the future. A failure upon God's part would mean that he had not the power to control, or lacked the knowledge of the conditions, or did not possess the wisdom to plan or design suitably to those conditions.

But God's Book not only unfolds that purpose through succeeding generations of prophets and inspired apostles, but it reveals him as One of Infinite Power, unlimited wisdom and knowledge, so that if we accept God to be such an one as he declares himself to be, we see that the question, when examined in the light of God's own word, shows that the questioner doubts the very existence of such a God. That is, a God whose attributes are all infinite, and whose characteristics are all good to the degree of perfection.

To such a God as is revealed in his Book there can be no such thing as delay. While it is true that after six thousand years of human history there has been no progress among the mass of mankind toward a condition that would give glory and honor and praise to such a God, the accomplishment being apparently as far from being realized as at the beginning; yet by the aid of the light of his Word we can see the progress already made, and discern the nearness of the time when that purpose will be accomplished, and his promise become a present fact. When "the whole earth shall be filled with his glory as the waters cover the sea."

Where the natural mind fails in grasping this great truth is in measuring God's works and designs by a human standard. The grand purpose of God is for eternal years, and while the time of preparation may seem long to man, whose life is but a span, yet to God a thousand years are but as one day, and one day as a thousand years.

This does not affect the plans or purposes of the Creator of heaven and earth. He is eternal, omnipotent and omniscient. He can accomplish in one day the work of a thousand years, or can continue the work through a thousand years, and not change nor vary in his purpose with the passing years. "In him there is no variableness or shadow of turning." James i. 17.

By reason of being independent of time or any other condition which affects mankind, to limit his accomplishment of his plans or designs, God has no need to hurry his great operations. They proceed with the majestic and stately deliberation of the great glacier, which may travel an inch or a foot in a month or a year, but is nevertheless ever moving, and carrying all that stands in the way with it. The great Creator of all things is at all times the Supreme Governor. He has never forsaken his position as Ruler of all the forces of creation and nature. Men may doubt and look to science as to some oracle of wisdom for light and knowledge of future, and not see any sign of its promises being fulfilled.

Nearly two thousand years ago they were saying "Where is the promise of his coming," and the "Coming one" had already come. What made them doubt it? What makes them doubt God's purpose in the earth? Because the time seems long to them and they are measuring God's purpose by human standards, hence they have continued to say "for since the fathers (the men of ancient times) fell asleep all things continue as from the beginning" of creation. 2 Peter iii. 4.

Yet God tells all who will hear him through his faithful servant Peter, that he "is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness, but is long suffering to usward, not willing that any should perish, but come to repentance."

Here Peter gives us the key to the mystery of all God's dealings with mankind. He is providing for their poor, weak, unworthy condition, and designs taking into his plans and purposes any and all such as will work in harmony with that plan NOW, in this present evil world of today. He will make high places of honor and glory for them in his eternal kingdom.

By his foreknowledge of events and power of controlling all conditions, he has the absolute certainty of seeing his purpose accomplished at the time he had in mind from the beginning, and in the way he had planned. In Deut. vii. 6 7, he speaks by his servant Moses to Israel, saying, "Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God; the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth." "The Lord did not set his great love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people, for ye were the fewest of all people. But because the Lord loved you, and because he had sworn unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage."

All Israel were chosen, a special people, yet how few continued to walk in his precepts and statutes as was also necessary in order to actually receive the promise in the end. In his wisdom and foreknowledge God foresaw and provided for just what afterwards occurred, as we find recorded in Acts xxviii. 27, 28. "The heart of this people is waxed gross; and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they closed; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them."

"Be it known therefore, unto you," said Paul to the Roman Jews, "Be it known unto you, that the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it." Thus fulfilling the prophets, whom Paul had quoted unto them. They were among the chosen people of God—individuals among a class, that would be saved, but individually failing to receive salvation.

We have a parallel to this in Acts xiii. where Paul and Barnabas were preaching at Antioch, and many Jews were filled with envy and spoke against them. Paul and Barnabas waxed bold and said, "It was necessary that the word should first have been spoken to you; but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles." For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, "I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth."

After this, as we find recorded in Acts xv, we find Peter saying to the Apostles and elders, "Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles, by my mouth should hear the gospel, and believe. And God which knoweth the hearts, bare witness, giving them the Holy Spirit, even as he did unto us; and put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith."

Then Paul and Barnabas arose and declared the miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them. And after they had held their peace, James said, "Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name; and to this agree the words of the prophets, as it is written, After this I will return and will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down; and will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up; that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord who doeth all these things."

Shall we question here how God can provide in his plan and purpose for the actions of people hundreds of years before they are born, so that there is absolutely no chance of failure that his will will be accomplished when he has foreordained that the thing shall be. The answer comes right along here from the mouth of the apostle James in summing up the way God has provided for every contingency in advance.

He says, "Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world." Therefore he can speak by Peter, of a certain class as "elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ."

Acts ii. 23, Of Jesus we read that he was delivered into the hands of his enemies by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, but in the same verse declares the wickedness of those who crucified him.

Along side of this we must place what is written in Rom. viii, 29, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose. For whom he did foreknow he also did predestinate, to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren. Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called; and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified them he also glorified."

Faith was always a pre-requisite to justification, for without faith we cannot please God. The justified ones in all generations have been reckoned righteous for or on account of faith. Gal iii. 8, 26.

Then we are forced to the conclusion that when the Scriptures allude to such as are "foreknown of God," and "predestinated to be conformed to the image of his Son," that it refers not to individuals, as such, but to a people, a body of believers who fulfil the conditions, obey the commandments and laws of God. With that thought in mind no man can say "I was foreknown of God and predestinated to be saved." No one can be saved without faith and good works, but all those who have the faith and the good works, and continue steadfast therein, are predestinated to be conformed to the image of his Son. Here we may consider the words of Paul to Timothy, "Be not thou ashamed of the testimony of our Lord nor of me his prisoner: but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God, who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling; not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began."

Here Paul refers to their works as of no consequence as affecting their "calling", but we must not understand him as meaning that "works" are not as essential as faith. The Scriptures always teach that "he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness" is accepted of God. (Acts x 35.)

Paul evidently only meant that their "works" had not earned a position in the purpose and plan of God, but His grace or favor had given it to them through Jesus Christ. God had the work planned from the beginning and they undertook to work in harmony with His purpose when it became known to them through the Gospel.

And [illegible] 4 and 5 "Acc[illegible]n us-in him [illegible] of the wor[illegible] and with [illegible] love: Hav[illegible] the adop[illegible]ist, to b[illegible]od pleas[illegible] and with[illegible]ove", with[illegible]ke by love' [illegible]ow is a life [illegible]nding in forbear[illegible], in every good work, and [illegible]ns that the "us" embraced in this company are not arbitrarily chosen and fixed number who will be saved without the necessity of "working out" their own salvation.

We are called—"the elect"—"foreknown of God," yet we have to strive against the evil we inherit and that which surrounds us as well, seeking to "make our calling and election sure." God's purpose is sure. Nothing else is more certain, but our part in His purpose all depends upon what use we make of the opportunity which He has so graciously given us of becoming Sons and Daughters of the Almighty and Rulers in the Age to come.

Even the Apostle Paul was afraid lest having preached unto others the glorious Gospel of the Kingdom of God, he should himself become a castaway. How much more reason have we, Brothers and Sisters, to examine ourselves to see if we are in the faith. Not so much need of question whether we know the doctrine as to question are we living according to it. Does our daily life and conversation speak of the spiritual life, the pure and lovable and Christian characteristics of His true disciples? Does the light of the life of Christ shine so that our neighbor sees even "just a little" on our account?

Let us strive to let our light so shine that men may see our good works and glorify our Father who is in Heaven, is my prayer.

CHARLES A. GOSS.

It is only when we see what it was in Him that we can know what the word rest means. It is the mind at leisure from itself. It is the perfect poise of the soul; the absolute adjustment of the inward man to the stress of outward things; the preparedness against every emergency; the stability of assured convictions; the eternal calm of an invincible faith; the repose of a heart set deep in God.—Drummond.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 23, 1908.

THERE being five Wednesdays in this month, our next issue will bear date of Oct. 7.

CHOLERA is raging in Russia, and southern Europe is threatened. The scourge has Manila in its grasp.

BROTHER R. W. Woodward is reported as getting stronger, but is not yet so he can be left for any length of time. We hope he will improve and be able to attend the Michigan Conference next month.

BROTHER O. J. Allred of Iowa writes that he expects to be with Brother Lindsay in a meeting at Camden, Ill. commencing this week and lasting till he goes to the Seattle to Illinois Conference on Oct. 3 to 10.

BROTHER D. E. Vanvactor reports baptizing a young man named George Rode at Burr Oak, on last Sunday morning. Thus one by one the number is being made up that will wear crowns in the next age. May our young brother ever stand with the faithful.

BROTHER J. L. Wines gave us two discourses at the Plymouth Church last Sunday. He was suffering somewhat from a cold, but the morning sermon was masterly and clear on the Sonship question, while the practical talk of the evening should surely be well worth taking to heart by all. Brother Wines visits the Plymouth brethren every 3d Sunday, and never fails to have something of value to leave for the thought of his hearers. Other speakers may be more brilliant and show better, but there is a stability and solidity to Brother Wines that impresses the careful listener, and cannot fail to benefit all who wish to learn of the great truths in God's [illegible]. May he be spared to [illegible] for many years to [illegible]

It [illegible]ndeed to b[illegible]meeting. [illegible] who have o[illegible]ative work n[illegible]rk to which the [illegible]a great one. The l[illegible] planned for daily searching of the Scriptures makes them of two fold value. Truly the young of the secular churches are to be pitied, as they do not know how to study the Bible; no one to lead them; it is the blind leading the blind; and of course both must fall into the ditch of error and misunderstanding. The Master tells us to study the Scriptures "to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth."

The Bereans are surely heeding this admonition, segregating its most intricate parts, and putting them into their proper places, showing the golden chain of evidence running through the Bible, of the second coming of Christ, his glorious reign here on the earth, and life only through him.

During the short life of the society they have accomplished much, the young of our church have been reached as never before, and are being educated and prepared to take up the burden of the Master's work which shall so soon fall upon their shoulders. You who have opportunity of affiliating with those of like faith, little realize the spiritual famine and discouragements of the isolated ones; but, with an eye single unto Christ, let us press toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

I remain your Sister in Christ.

ARMELDA J. HOWARD.

Dear Bereans:

I can only send words of greeting, as our work here has been broken up.

I am glad to be counted as one of your number, and wish that I could do more to aid the work. My heart goes out to you in your faithfulness. You are noble Bereans indeed, to carry on the school and conference from year to year.

Dear young Bereans, let me say to you, Make good use of this blessed opportunity. Just now, its full value you cannot realize. It is in later years that you will appreciate what you gained by studying under such worthy teachers as Brother Lindsay and others who help in the school.

Last but not least, there is our blessed President who has served us so faithfully, doing many things to help those who are the least inclined to study, and writing letters till her arm will surely be paralyzed. If only you could scatter your knowledge to the four winds, that more of the less enlightened could receive the benefit. Maybe there wouldn't be so many people saying they don't know what to believe, hearing so many different beliefs, all claiming to be right. The great trouble is to get people to read or to think different from what they have always been taught. But the promise is only to the overcomer. May God help each and every one of us to so live amid the cares of this life that we may be one of the "Little Flock" is my prayer.

Your Sister, in the One Faith.

MRS. MYRTLE CHANDLER.

Dear Bereans:

How much I would enjoy being with you to join in praises of prayer and song, and learn from the good teachers I know will be there. Yours is a grand and good work, the instruction of the young is very important, for if our blessed Savior delay his coming it is to the young people who are now developing talent that we must look for instructors in the years to come. God will help you, dear Bereans, in your noble work. Study to make yourselves approved. Press onward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal. The reward is well worth our best efforts; for in this life we experience many disappointments and encounter much sorrow but in the earth made new all will be joy and peace. No more death, think of it! Here we must part with our loved ones, there we will meet them and the faithful of all ages. What a meeting that will be! Then we will be able to sing the new song. "O Joyful Day Soon May it Come!"

In the galleries of heaven, angel footsteps look ing down,
And they watch us as we struggle day by day;
To the victor in the battle God will give a starry crown,
If we ever keep moving on the way.

Your Sister, in Christ,

ADELIAH M. SCROGGS.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.
TEMPERANCE. PRO. v. 11-23.

Golden Text. "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging." Prov. xx. 1.

Temperance is a Christian, a religious virtue, or excellence. It is also a moral good quality. The saints are instructed to add it to their faith. "Add to your faith virtue, virtue to knowledge, to knowledge temperance." 2 Pet i 6, 7. In this connection it does not mean in reference to wine and strong drink only, but temperance as a rule of life, self-restraint, self-denial, prudent, soundness of mind. A man is not always a good man because he is temperate in the matter of wine and strong drink—commonly called whiskey—sometimes beer is added. There are men who are strictly temperate, in regard to strong drink, but in some way or ways, viciously intemperate, even dangerously so. Temperance—liquor temperance—is a good thing, but by no means the only good thing. On the other hand when a man abandons self-control and becomes known as intemperate—a drinker or drunkard, it makes no difference how many other good qualities he may have, he is unfit for the society of any ordinary man, woman or child. For one strong proof of this statement we refer to the golden text. The full verse is, "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." These are words of positive wisdom. And they prove to us that the intemperate man, the man who makes a fool of himself with wine, or drinks strong drink until he sings, laughs, roars, offers to fight, or otherwise makes a noise, deceiving himself, losing common sense—is not fit for any place in common life. There is much needless, out of place, abuse heaped on the head of the saloon keeper. He is by no means blameless, but he should only be blamed for his own part, and not for the part of the drunkard and his own too. All men of good moral character should avoid, and refuse to keep company with a saloon keeper, should not recognize him as an equal. Under inspiration from the Lord Jesus Christ, by the Holy Spirit, Paul the apostle instructs the Church of God at Corinth—those called to be saints—not to keep company, or in any way to associate with a drunkard, even if he was called a brother. 1 Cor v 11. In the next chapter verse 10 he tells them a drunkard is not an heir, and shall not inherit the kingdom of God, and therefore entirely out of place in the church, or in the home, or any home. If he was not mocked and deceived by drink until he was not wise, he would go off and live by himself. Yet kind hearted men and women will pet him, and coy over him, and even blame others for his condition. Let us not estimate the drunkard from man's standpoint. God is love. 1 John iv 8. God gave his Son that WHOSOEVER believeth in him should not perish. John iii 16. This whosoever can include the drunkard if he will turn from all his sins.....Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord God; and not that he should turn from his ways and live? Ezek xviii 21-23. This applies to all men temperate or intemperate. All who have not believed the gospel of the kingdom and have not been immersed in the name of the Lord Jesus. Acts xxviii.

The lesson verses inform us that some condemnation is pronounced on those who profess to be God's people and are to strong drink. They are gone into captivity, have no knowledge. With their glory, multitude, pomp and rejoicing they go down to the grave. There is an awful curse against them. They justify the wicked for reward, and take away—or deny—the righteousness of the righteous. Those who have believed and been baptized. Mark xvi 15, 16, should be lovers of good men, sober, just, holy, temperate. Titus i 8. Against such there is no law. Gal v 22, 23.

Next Lesson David brings the Ark to Jerusalem. 2 Sam vi.

P. NEILL.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY OCT. 4.
DAVID BRINGS THE ARK TO JERUSALEM.
2 SAM VI.

Golden Text. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise. Psa c 4.

The history of the Ark is one of intense interest. Its presence was of vital importance to the Israelites, and of deadly peril to any other nation. The order for the making, with the details of material and construction is found in Exod xxv. In it was kept the "testimonies, statutes, and the judgments, which Moses spake to the children of Israel, after they came out of Egypt. Deut iv 45, and xxxi 26. Also the tables of stone on which were written the ten commandments. Deut x 1-5. The golden pot of Manna, and Aaron's rod that budded. Heb ix 4. It was called "The ark of the Lord." Josh iv 5. The ark of the covenant of the Lord. Deut x 8. The ark of the testimony. Ex. xxvi 33. The ark. Lev xvi 2.

After the instructions concerning the making, comes the all important statement, "There will I meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubims which are upon the ark of the testimony." Ex xxv 22. It was put in, and kept in the inner chamber of the tabernacle called the holy place, into which the high priest only could enter. Ex xxviii 29, 30. And he only once every year. Ex. xxx. 10. The golden censer was the only other thing in the holy place. In order that Aaron might be duly impressed with the awful majesty of the Lord, when he went inside the vail, or curtain, that divided the holy from the most holy place, and stood before the ark, and the mercy seat, he was instructed to take a censer of fire from the altar, and make a cloud of sweet incense to cover the mercy seat, "that he die not." Lev xvi 12, 13.

It was to be taken care of by Levites only, on the journeys of Israel. The Kohathites, descendants of Kohath, son of Levi, Gen xlvi 11, had charge of it. Num iii 31. But even they were not allowed to go into the holy place and prepare the ark for moving, that was for Aaron to do. Num iv 15.

After Moses Joshua was made leader of Israel. He commanded the people to follow the Ark. Josh iii 3. The waters of Jordan were divided, held back, dried up before the ark It was placed in the middle of Jordan till all Israel passed over. The ark was as the presence of God. Joshua records that the Lord dried up the waters of Jordan. Read Josh iv. At the final division of the land of Canaan to the Israelites the ark was located at Shiloh, Josh xviii 1, north of Jerusalem about 30 miles. It was there for about 300 years. It was taken by the Philistines in battle. 1 Sam iv. They took it to the temple of Dagon, their god, in Ashdod. Dagon was broken in pieces, and there was great distress in Ashdod. They carried it to Gath, that city was nearly destroyed. They took it to Ekron. The Ekronites cried out in despair. 1 Sam 5. They sent it away, it reached the border of Bethshemesh, about 7 miles from Ekron. The men of that place looked into it and fifty thousand and seventy died. 1 Sam vi. It was then taken to the house of Abinadab, on Jerusalem. 1 Sam vii 1. This brings us to the lesson, and gives us an excellent idea, or understanding, regarding the surpassing value of the possession, and presence of the ark to the Israelites. And we can better comprehend why David wanted the ark brought to Jerusalem. Just why he should go for the ark with thousands of chosen men—many of them priests and Levites—is not known. David and all Israel knew that none ought to carry the ark of God but the Levites, for them hath the Lord chosen to carry the ark of God, and to minister to him for ever. 1 Chron xv 2.

In 1 Chron xiii there is a shorter, but at once the [illegible] bringing of the ark to Jerusalem. David never for an instant worshipped or acknowledged any other god but the God of Israel, and therefore was a man after mine own heart. Acts xiii 22. This was the Lord's choice of David, nevertheless he made a mistake. He no doubt intended to greatly honor the Lord by going with the chosen of Israel to bring the ark. The new cart and the oxen was not the manner of transportation for the ark. "The Kohathites set forward bearing the sanctuary." Num x 21. The harps, psalteries, timbrels, cornets and cymbals were not forbidden. 1 Chron xv 16, but they were not to take the place of the trumpets. "In the day of your gladness.....ye shall blow with the trumpets." Num x 1-10. The priests were to blow the trumpets, "the priests did blow the trumpets before the ark of God." 1 Chron xv 24. When David went the second time to bring the ark to Jerusalem. Read 1 Chron xv. The whole procession and doings displeased the Lord. He took no revenge on Uzzah. It was death for a Levite [illegible] tabernacle to touch the ark before it was covered by Aaron. Uzzah died under that law. Another thing [illegible] noticed. It was Eleazar, a son of Abinadab that was sanctified—set apart—to keep the ark of the Lord. 1 Sam vii 1, not Uzza and Ahio. Note also when the ark was in the house of an Israelite, that house was blest. When the gospel of the kingdom is believed and obeyed from the heart, and carried out in the home, that house is blest with righteousness, peace and joy in the Spirit. Rom xiv 17. The individual who lives according to the gospel is blest with the exceeding great and precious promises of the divine nature, 2 Pet i 31, in the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. 2 Pet i 11.

Next lesson, God's promises to David. 1 Chron xvii.

Married.

At the home of the bride's mother, near Forreston, Illinois, September 17, 1908, Mr. Earl F. Gesin and Miss Nellie M. Trimmer. Earl is the second son of Brother and Sister Ernest Gesin, who are well known to brethren in Illinois. Nellie is the daughter of Sister Carrie Trimmer, who, with her daughter, was baptized by Brother Huggins something more than a year ago. This summer Brother Huggins was called upon to baptize Earl. Thus, these two young people are starting right. Sober, industrious young people they are and with the beginning of such lives united we look forward to the highest success in this life and a home for them in the kingdom of God. May God's richest blessings attend them.

Editorials.

There is as much power in reserve as there is in expression.

A good report of the Illinois Bible School appears in this issue.

There is a time to speak, and a time to refrain from speaking. It takes as much wisdom to know when not to speak as to break silence.

A letter from Brother E. F. Randolph, of Fairbanks, Oklahoma, propounds several questions. They will be answered as soon as space is available for that purpose.

A letter from Sister Kathrine Williams, of Morse Mill, Missouri, speaks of the effort there being made to induce Brother Jeffrey to visit and preach for them once a month. We pray that their efforts may be crowned with success. Brother Jeffrey, the Lord bless you.

The Editor leaves Cleveland, September 30, to spend a month with the brethren in Michigan. Our Cleveland address will always find us, no matter where we are. But those who want to reach us by mail without delay, can address at Dutton, Michigan, during the entire month of October.

The Editor sends an urgent request to all the readers of THE RESTITUTION to write short letters for the "They Wrote Letters" department of "Ebenezer." Especially do we request the ones whom we have baptized to send a line and tell us that they are still rejoicing in their first love. Let us hear from you dear ones, and frequently.

An interesting letter from our dear Sister Castle, of Oregon, Illinois, will be read with interest in our letter department. Our Sister is almost an invalid, and we baptized her about a year ago in a bath tub. We are glad to learn that she still rejoices in the truth, and we do not forget to pray for her husband, Mr. Castle, that he may soon see his way clear to obey the truth. The Lord bless him.

Sister Martin is almost sorry for a "Christian Minister," she thinks we have "roasted" him unmercifully. We think too that we are rather severe on him. But really we have exposed his views, not him. We do not know him, but have heard that he understands and believes many doctrines in common with us. We are making a weak and humble effort to get him to abandon the immortality of the soul or spirit. Let our readers fervently supplicate God to use our remarks on his position as a means of opening his eyes to see the bright and shining light of the truth.

The Where and Condition of the Spirit in the Death State.

A study of 2 Cor v 1-10 shows that Paul considered man's spirit lived while "absent from" the "dissolved" bodily frame. "Our habitation which is from heaven" is not heaven itself, but the immortal body which shall be given us when Jesus comes. After our spirits are clothed with this "habitation which is from heaven" we shall not be found naked. Ver 3. "Naked" is rendered "discarnate" in Twentieth Century New Testament. That means "we shall not be found" disembodied after receiving that. Paul says that he is willing rather to be absent from the body (ver 8), and at home with the Lord, which would necessitate the death of the body and his living in spirit life apart from the body, while in that state he must be fully conscious, else he could not say, "We make it our aim, whether at home (in the body) or absent (from the body) to be well-pleasing unto him." Ver. 9.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our minister is very hazy as to "where" the spirit is in the interim between death and the resurrection. Christ's spirit was very restless when it was absent from his body; at least it appears so from our friend's representation. Soon as it got "discarnated" from his body it went on the wings of the wind to paradise; then remembered having an appointment to preach in hades, the hot part of that region, whither he went, although he had to cross a gulf that in his preaching on earth he had said could not be crossed. Somehow his ghost got over the gulf, he delivered a few sermons to the antediluvians (we are not told why these antediluvians were favored above the rich men, the devil and other inhabitants there), then left them to their doom; and coming back by way of paradise (?) his spirit re-entered its "house"—the body. Flitting like this from place to place one could not state definitely "where" his spirit was at any given time. According to this theory, the spirits of men, whether just or unjust, go neither to heaven and bliss, nor to hell and final punishment; they both go to hades, though they occupy different apartments there. With the spirit thus located in the Pharisaical hades where "is a place not regularly finished; a subterraneous region, wherein the light of this world does not shine", and where there is "perpetual darkness" (Josephus, page 901), what coziness does our friend have with such passages as, for instance some he has quoted, about the spirit returning to God (Eccl xii 7) in God in hades? in "perpetual darkness"? Why should he tell us that Stephen called upon Christ to "receive" his spirit? Is Christ in hades? Surely our friend can see it he thinks a moment that if the spirit goes to hades, as he claims, he has no use for 2 Cor v 1-10. For if that portion of Scripture proves that the spirit lives apart from the body, where does it live? You cannot say, it lives in hades; for Paul answers the question differently. He says the life enjoyed while "absent from the body", is one lived "present with the Lord". Is the Lord in hades? If the Lord is in heaven (Matt vi 9), and if hades is an "unfinished part of the earth" where "perpetual darkness" reigns, how could Paul get disembodied, go to hades, and there be "at home with the Lord"?

But dropping this thought for the present, we wish to consider the condition of the spirit in its unclothed state. Paul says not one word about the body being the clothing of the spirit, about the spirit being unclothed in hades or any where else. Yet our writer affirms that "a study of 2 Cor v 1-10" will show that Paul believed that man's spirit "lived while" the body is dead. He talks about "living in spirit apart from the body;" and that in this disincarnated state "he must be fully conscious". We have not forgotten your words in your first article, that the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being". Later you said that the body was only the "house" this "rational, thinking intelligent" being lived in. If a shout an unconscious house, and the "rational, thinking, intelligent" man escapes from it unharmed, is any thing rendered unconscious by the act? If I shoot an unconscious body, and the conscious spirit escapes from it unharmed, do I render anything that was conscious, unconscious by the act? Surely not. Then if during life the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being", and if at the death of the body this spirit escapes from the body with its intellectual powers unimpaired, no part is rendered unconscious by death. Look now at this simple statement of David: "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." Psa cxv 17. If this passage relates to the intellectual part of man, it clearly negates the doctrine of consciousness in death, and tells us that men "go down into silence", where they "praise not the Lord". Don't say, "Oh, that text relates to the body", for if it does, then only the body praised the Lord before death. If there is any point to the statement it indicates that whatever praised the Lord previous to death, cannot praise him after death. If then, only the body praised the Lord before death, then the body is the intellectual man, for praise is impossible without intellect: and if the body, instead of the spirit, possesses intellect before death, then the spirit, having never been the intellectual part, cannot possess intellect after death; so, from this standpoint, death must produce unconsciousness in man in the fullest and truest sense. If you insist on your previous statement, that the spirit is "the rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being", instead of the body, and that the spirit praises the Lord through the body, then the conclusion is inevitable that the part which praises the Lord previous to death enters into "silence" at death; so from this point of view, too, it is seen that death must annul one man in total unconsciousness. But if as a desperate and last resort, you should claim that the spirit and body jointly "praise the Lord" before death, then it follows that spirit and body jointly cease to praise God, and enter into a state of "silence" at death. To say of some part of man that never did and never could praise the Lord while alive that when dead it should not praise him, would be nonsense too ridiculous to charge upon an intelligent man, to say nothing of imputing it to the Lord of hosts. Whatever praises the Lord in life, let it be a part of man only, or the entire man; let it be the spirit or the body, or both, just that intellectual something ceases to praise him after death, and is enveloped in "silence." Let him insist who will that the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being", there is no loop hole to escape from the conclusion this text forces upon us, namely, that the intellectual part of man, the part that "praises the Lord" ceases to praise him when paralyzed by the hand of death.

Report of Illinois Bible School.

The sixth annual Bible School of the Church of God met at Oregon, Ill., Aug. 10, 1908, and closed Aug. 29, 1908. The school was the largest yet held, the enrollment being fifty-four, besides a large number of visitors.

Sister Anna Drew, of Dixon, had charge of the primary division and she proved herself fully able to do her work. Brothers Lindsay and Huggins had charge of the more advanced division of the school, and both are able teachers. Brother Lindsay's lessons were based on a chronology of the Old Testament, showing the types of better things to come were brought out one by one, and none present felt a new desire to live more like the Perfect One. Brother Huggins' lessons proved the absurdity of the idea that Satan is a person. Surely no one could listen to the proof given without being greatly benefitted.

As a result of the study of God's Word four young people were baptized. Miss Mae Hanson, of Lebanon, Ill., Miss Ida Ordnung, of Burlington Junction, Mo., Miss Nellie Johnson of Chicago, and Miss Cecil Cross, of Oregon, took up the cross of Jesus. Let us remember them in our prayers.

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 11, Sister Willey of Plymouth, Ind., entertained us with an illustrated lecture on Australia. On Thursday evening Brother and Sister Lindsay entertained us at their home in a very pleasant manner. On Friday evening a literary and musical entertainment was given by the members of the school and their friends. The whole period of time was pleasantly and profitably spent.

May we all meet again is the prayer of your Sister in Christ.

GRACE M. WILLIAMS, Sec.

They Wrote Letters Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

We miss you so. May God bless you wherever you go, and give your work the highest success.

Your sister in Jesus.

EMMA L. SMITH.

Brother Huggins:

I received your papers, THE RESTITUTION, and thank you for them. I have now put my name on the list of subscribers for it. I had a double object in sending for the paper. I knew you would be heard from through its columns, and then I am very fond of the paper, for its many good Christian thoughts and advice.

I had prepared a little scolding for you, but as I have been given an excuse for your not coming to see us before you went away, I will forgive you.

I was so sorry I was not able to attend the Conference. I am some better now, but how long that will last I can not say. I hear you are coming to get your things, and we shall be so glad to see you again. We have missed your pleasant calls and the pleasant cheer that your calls left us. You did so much for us, more than we shall ever be able to repay.

Our prayer is that you may ever prosper in the work that God has called you to do. Do not get discouraged, for you know you are in the right, and oh, that is such a comfort to us to know we are doing right. I must not tire you with a long letter. We all join in sending our love to you, Mr. Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, Porter, Lizzie and Lelon.

Hoping to see you soon and have a nice talk with you, your sister in the Christ.

MRS. A. M. CASTLE.

Brother Huggins:

The writing which I enclose with this letter, is merely an outline of a very large subject, and I trust that the intelligent reader familiar with Scripture teaching, will be able to fill in the details so as to get the harmonious teaching upon the points suggested. Testimony is ample and to the point, but refrained from loading down with quotations. The covenants yet to be noticed may in their unfolding throw additional light on this first and last Noahic covenant.

Any criticisms will be appreciated. The Bible is a larger book than most people imagine. One must dig to find the hidden treasures of the Word. Prov. ii. 2, 3, 4.

Respectfully submitted,

C. W. TOMKINS.

Brother Huggins:

I was greatly disappointed that you did not answer my question. I thought that I understood the portion of Scripture referred to, but wanted to hear your explanation, as you make everything so plain. Please explain Rev xx 10. We think the tract is just fine, I had several times read isa vii 14, and always thought it related to Christ. It is nice to have it made so plain as your little tract. I feel so thankful that we have so many able ministers of the gospel in the Church of God. How dreadful it would be if we couldn't understand the Word of God. But "God has commanded the light to shine out of darkness." 2 Cor iv 6. Thank God for the light! Brother Huggins, I'm almost constrained to feel sorry for the "Christian minister," who asks you so many questions about the "spirit;" you gave him such a roasting. Pray for us that we may hold out faithful to the end. We are so isolated. For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end. Heb iii 14.

I remain in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

MRS A. J. MARTIN.

To Bro. George Neill.

I have just read your article of inquiry in THE RESTITUTION of Sept. 16th. It appeals to me as being a very fair question and one which should engage our attention, not for the purpose of determining whom we shall or shall not fellowship, but for the purpose of "growing in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ".

I believe that Bro. Neill will agree with me that the brethren at Thessalonica were in a saved condition at the time Paul began to write to them, for he addresses them as those who are in God the Father and in the Lord Jesus Christ. 1 Thes i 1-3. Further on he tells of their work of faith, labor of love, and patience of hope, showing that they had a hope and that they were working toward that hope. They were Paul's brethren; yet, I find by his second letter to them that it becomes necessary for him to enlighten them on the very question which Bro. Neill mentions; namely, the resurrection. See 1 Thes iv 13-18.

Again, Paul addressing the church at Corinth, calls them "sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord," etc. Evidently Paul regarded them as brethren. Yet, I find according to his writing to them that they were ignorant on this very same point, for in 1 Cor xv 51, we find him explaining to them what had hitherto evidently been "a mystery" to them. This evidence goes to show that the ordinary resurrection, etc., were not considered knowledge essential to salvation, but rather knowledge unto growth. If we could only get to understanding it this way, a great deal of the time that is wasted in examining others to see whether we shall fellowship them or not, could be spent in getting the cardinal principles of the gospel before a dying world.

On the day of Pentecost, Peter preached Christ raised from the dead to sit on the throne of David. Acknowledging belief in what they heard, three thousand were added to the church that day. When the Samaritans believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women. Again I assert that the points named by Bro. Neill are but means of growth and not for a standard by which to measure fellowship. I observe along with this, however, that faith, love and hope were from the foundation of the church.

Your brother in Christ.

Announcement.

The brethren at the Colony at Rollin, Kansas, will hold their yearly meeting at the above place beginning Friday evening before the second Sunday in October, and lasting over Sunday following. We expect as speaker Dr. T. J. Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He is an able defender of the gospel of the kingdom of God. All are invited to come, and will be welcome and things made as pleasant as possible. Only a few are left at Rollin to take care of the brethren, but we will do the best we can. Our programme is Preach the gospel that was preached to Abraham, and by Christ and the apostles. Brother Daniel will do most of the preaching.

By order of the Church,

JOHN FOORE.

The first Annual Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, will be held at Pleasant View Church, Warren Co., Indiana, commencing Thursday Evening, Oct. 8, 1908, and continuing over Sunday following. Program and directions how to reach Pleasant View church will be published in due time. Brethren and Sisters in Christ, this is the important conference of the year. We urge you to be present. Let each church send delegates. We need your presence and help. Come let us council together, that the work of the Master may be furthered in our state, and God will aid and bless.

Your Brother, in Christ,

J. H. WILEY, Pres. Ind. Con.

The Seventh Annual Conference of the Church of God, in Christ, will be held at the Restitution Church near Casey, Illinois, to begin October 3, and to continue until the 11th. This is known as The Southern Illinois Conference. The Program will appear later. The speakers will be Brothers Daniels, Allard, and Brother Conner if he can come; and if he cannot, some one else. Everybody come the first day and stay until the last day. We will meet all at the station, Casey, Illinois, on the Vandalia Railroad. All are invited [illegible]

Remember brethren, if the cause of truth, which we all profess to love, lives and prospers, it is because its real friends show a deep interest in its support. The Millbrook brethren are faithful in attending other conferences and desire your presence there. How ready and anxious we are, with plenty of money to attend a Fair, but forget the great importance of gaining eternal life. The race for life eternal ought to be of more importance than horse racing.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

To the Michigan Yearly Conference of the Church of God, assembled at Dutton, greeting:

WHEREAS: We all seeing the great need of more urgent work being done in the field than is being done, this Committee believes the first act toward that end should be a better financial system. Therefore, we hereby present to the Conference and isolated brethren the following plan:

First, That every member or believer in the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, set apart for this work one dollar ($1 00) each a year, and also pay the sum of ($1 00) one dollar on each ($1,000) one thousand dollars assessed valuation of their property, this to be paid semi-annually to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, Hastings, Barry Co., Mich., R. F. D.

Second, That each church or company of believers appoint one of their members to collect this money from their Church and send to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, semi-annually. All isolated members to do the same, or send to the Church nearest them, if more convenient. If all will co-operate in this plan, it will create a fund which will enable us to keep an Evangelist in the field the most, if not all the time, and will make the burden very light for all, and the result will be surprising.

Accepted and adopted unanimously by the Conference assembled.

Committee: B. LAKE,
A. K. RICHARDSON,
H. HAMMOND,
WM. MOSES,
WM. MCCRORDAN.

To All Members of my Correspondence Bible Class, and others:

For two years I have been conducting a correspondence Bible class. The work has now grown to such proportions that I can no longer do the work required. At the suggestion of some of the members of the class, I will publish printed Bible lessons through a course of ten lessons, and will send them out to any who will take the lessons and promise to do the work. It will cost in actual expense about $1.00 for publishing the ten lessons to each. I cannot afford this expense. If the reader will drop me a postal card saying he will faithfully do the work and send $1 00 to cover expenses upon receipt of the first lesson, I will place his name on the list. I cannot agree to send out the lessons unless a hundred members are obtained. This is not a money making matter and unless this plan succeeds, I must drop that work all together. Address me at Oregon, Ill.

Faithfully yours.

S. J. LINDSAY.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to the word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

AN EXPOSITION OF ISA. VII 14 16.

A booklet by Robert G. Huggins, Oregon, Ill, designed specially for the brethren. Plain, brief, true, thoughtful, logical. Price for those who want to pay 5cts, for those who want to pay the postage only, one two-cent stamp, for those too poor or who do not want to pay anything free. On such terms every brother and sister in the United States and Canada should read it. Send as above.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how many good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate this favor.

"The Kingdom of God," is the title of a tract written by T J Daniel for purpose of converting those who know nothing of the truth, or to scatter in new fields. The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map, which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Wilson has fortunately become possessed of a limited number of copies, and will dispose of them at 40 cents each. In view of the important changes that are to take place ere long in the countries adjacent to Russia, this book is a valuable aid to the earnest watcher of the signs. Secure one before the supply is exhausted. The book contains what is called "The Will of Peter the Great," which we have been asked recently to print, but have delayed for want of space. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies post paid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by inviting her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Peace of Great Price, which was much better.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man Is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Who Shall Roll Away the Stone.

What poor weeping ones were saying
Eighteen hundred years ago,
We, the same weak faith betraying,
Say in our sad hearts of woe!
Looking at some trouble lying
In the dark and drear unknown,
We too often ask with sighing,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Then with care our spirits crushing,
When they might from care be free—
And, in joyous song out-gushing,
Rise in rapture, Lord, to thee.
For before the way was sealed,
Oft we had with joy to own,
Angels have from heaven descended,
And have rolled away the stone.

Many a storm-cloud sweeping o'er us
Never pours on us its rain;
Many a grief we see before us
Never comes to give us pain.
Oft times in the feared tomorrow
Sunshine comes, the cloud has flown;
Ask not then in foolish sorrow,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Burden not thy heart with sadness,
Make the wiser, better choice!
Tread the path of life with gladness,
God doth bid thee, mourn, rejoice!
In today's bright sunshine basking,
Leave to morrow's cares alone;
Spoil not present joys by asking,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Iowa Conference Report.

Another year has rolled around and once again from all over the State of Iowa, and other States, Oregon, Louisiana, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska included; also from Canada, were gathered together the brethren and sisters of like precious faith, on our beautiful camp grounds at Waterloo, Ia.

The Conference commenced Aug 22, and closed Sunday night Aug 30 to a large and appreciative audience. For ten days we had one continued feast of good things and our hearts were filled with hope and rejoicing, as we heard again the grand old truths that proclaimed God's love toward us, and the wonderful things he has in store for us. These with the splendid talks on practical living and character building, made all present with one accord pronounce this to be the best Conference we have ever held. And each one of these Conferences should be better than the last one, for in this race for eternal life there is no place to stop or rest. It is an uphill journey in which we must keep pushing upward and onward toward perfection for if we stop we fall backward, there is no place to stand still.

At the end of each of these Conference years we should know that we have accomplished some thing, that we have cheerfully overcome and put under our feet some of the trials and temptations that come into our lives, and that by putting them under we have risen a little higher out of the worldliness and selfishness that cramps our better nature, into a higher atmosphere, that lifts us into a closer fellowship with Jesus, and gives us a wider out look, where we attain more of the spirit of Christ, of love, joy, peace and righteousness.

The writer of the Hebrews certainly knew the good results of these meetings for he warns us not to forget to assemble ourselves together, and it is in these best and holiest and happiest hours that we rise above the petty vexations, the cares and worries of life, and realize in part, what it will be to the children of the King, the heirs to a magnificent inheritance.

These meetings inspire us and give us more zeal, and we are strengthened and prepared to go out into the world, determined more than ever to overcome with the help of God, our weaknesses and the temptations that surround us. To deny ungodliness and worldliness and worldly lust, and live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world. Looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of our Savior, Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

We were happy to see an increase in attendance of our young people, and glad to note the interest and zeal manifested by them in all the meetings. There is nothing more encouraging to the older members or more helpful to the growth of the cause, than to see the younger ones preparing to take upon themselves, as Elijah did long ago, the mantles of the older ones, for upon them will soon devolve the duties of upholding the banner of Christ, and defending, by their lives of living sacrifice the faith once delivered to the saints.

The little children too were so faithful in their attendance at the children's meeting, that the older ones that had them in charge were more than rewarded for the time they devoted to them, by the appreciative way in which they responded to the teaching of the Scriptures, and the spirit with which they entered into the work. It is a beautiful study to work with children, and as we understand them better, the purity of their minds, their simple faith, and confiding love, the readiness with which they forgive, we realize more what Jesus meant, when he said, "Unless ye become like one of these, ye cannot enter the kingdom of God."

Many of the old faces were missed this year. Some that have been so faithful year after year. It is wonderful how we miss these brothers and sisters, no one else can take their places. Each one has a place to fill, a work to do that is individually their own, and we miss them and wish they were here. Some were kept away by sickness, others by business and the cares of the world. These we hope to see again next year. But every year our ranks are broken by those that have finished their work, their toiling is over and we lay them to rest, Asleep in Jesus" until that glorious morning, a morning without clouds, when the Sun of Righteousness shall appear, and gently wakening them from their slumber, will say, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter ye into the joys of thy Lord."

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ Jesus, are we doing all we can in the service of the Master, are we using our talents to the best of our ability, or are they wrapped in a napkin and hidden in the ground? Is your light hid under a bushel or is it trimmed and burning and shining brightly so that others seeing your good works may glorify your Father which is in heaven.

There is a work for each one of us to do. The question is, Do we know what place we are fitted for, and are we performing our duty faithfully? We are not all teachers, neither are we all qualified to preach. But we can all be helpers, and we can stand by our leaders ever ready to encourage and strengthen and support them.

We have among us true Christian men who have grown gray in this service for the Master, who have given their lives in digging down deep into the treasure house of the Word of God, and have given us these beautiful truths, that to us are like pearls of a priceless value.

There are others in the prime of life, giving us the very best of their lives, sacrificing all that the world calls success, that they may obey the command, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel.

We have some younger men earnestly desiring to teach the Word of God, and they might be a power among the people, if we individually would be willing to sacrifice as much as our leaders do, by keeping them in the field. If we could realize that we are one family and fellow-workers together, and that if we share the sacrifice and suffering so will also share the reward. If we would determine to work as hard this year to keep ministers in the field as we wish them to work to turn many to righteousness, we would be a power in the land, and the coming of the Lord would not long be delayed, and we too might shine like those that turn many to righteousness like the stars for ever and ever.

There was $850 00 subscribed to the Evangelist fund this year, we ought to have a great deal more. Let us try this year to crucify the old man of sin, and not lay up for ourselves treasures upon the earth. But let us place our affections on things above and use our talents and our means as the Lord hath prospered us, and do this year more than we ever have before. There is no higher calling than to go out among the people and teach them the way of life. Let us thank God that he hath honored us by giving us this opportunity, not merely of reaping the benefits of the gospel—but of working for him. For if we suffer with him we shall also reign with him.

Business meeting called to order by the President, and the following reports were accepted:

There were about 250 in attendance at the Conference. $850 00 subscribed to the Evangelist fund. Letters read and subscriptions received from Mrs. Mary Beahse, A. R. Underwood, Charlotte E. Young; B. M. Myers, Miss Lizzie Johnson, Mrs. John Robinson, W. G Stebs.

There were thirteen baptized Sunday afternoon by O. J. Allard, namely, Addie Lorimer, Sac City, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Crombough, Belle Plaine; from La Porte, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaffer, Mrs. R. O. Herrick, George and Eden Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Harding, Hazel Gates of Ostwein Emma Bergrew, Steinhope, and Marion Sweeny of Waterloo.

Baptized at Gladbrook, by A. J. Eychaner, Earl Clark, Blanche Allard, Ivy Starbuck, Irene Taylor. Baptized at Laporte by Brother Adams, Luella Shockley, Fern Harding, Claud Young. At Marathon, Emma and Fay Beardsley, Ella and Ina Bellack.

The daily programme was carried out as published. Among the speakers present was Brother A. J. Eychaner who makes his home through the winter at Tampa, Fla. He has been in the Evangelical work for forty years, and is one of the founders of the Iowa Conference. Although a modest and unassuming man, yet he has always been one of the guiding stars and ruling spirits in Iowa. He gave us several excellent discourses. We are always proud to have Brother Eychaner with us, for we know he is an earnest and careful student of the Bible, and the spirit that predominates in him of sincerity radiates to his hearers, and we always feel better after we have had some spiritual food from him.

Brother Garton of Marathon, gave us one discourse, and although not actively engaged in the work, he is a good speaker, setting forth the doctrines of the faith in a plain intelligent manner that is always appreciated by his hearers.

Brother Adams of Nebraska, is no stranger to the Iowa brethren, having labored among us many years. His quaint humor and droll philosophy mingled with sound forceful doctrine, make him many friends, and a power with whom few can compare.

Brother Lindsay of Illinois, having been with us several times, we have learned to call a brother and a friend. As usual he gave us several of his excellent sermons. He also conducted the Bible school, that was not only an enjoyment to all attending, but also a great help and inspiration. Brother Lindsay is a natural teacher, a man of fervent spirit and marked ability, with a depth of learning and force of character that makes him many friends, and a success in his chosen work.

Brother Fred L. Austin of Canada, came to us a comparative stranger, but we soon learned to respect and honor him as a brother. He is a brilliant and logical speaker, with unquestioned sincerity in his devotion to the principles and doctrines of the Christ. The enthusiasm with which he taught a higher standard of Christian living and righteousness, was infectious to all who heard him. Brother Austin made many friends, and will always be sure of a hearty welcome by the Iowa brethren. We hope it will not be long before we have the pleasure of hearing him again.

Among the names most worthy of honor, stands that of C. C. Ramsay of Philadelphia. For many years he was an evangelist in the Western states, and has given his life in the service of the Master. Several present were among those that had been led to put on Christ by his teaching. Although he is too feeble to be actively engaged in the work, yet his heart is so filled with the love of the gospel of Christ, that as he tells of his work in the past and his hope of the future, his intense enthusiasm brings tears to the eyes of his listeners. We are thankful that Brother Ramsay was permitted to meet with us, and if to the Divine wisdom of God he thinks best, we would like to meet with him again—if not in this life, in the life to come.

It is a high tribute to pay to any one to say he is best liked where he is best known, but it is true in the case Eldred Marsh, and it is with many regrets that we see him leave Iowa for Illinois. Eldred has worked in Iowa since the beginning of his ministry, and we feel he belongs to us. He is an earnest and sincere Christian, and by his kind deeds and faithful service we have all learned to love and admire him. Many felt it was a mistake to permit Brother Marsh to leave us, but the Conference Board thought it was for the best, both for him and for Illinois, and although he will be very greatly missed among the young and old alike, yet our hearts are with him and we hope after a little while that he will be back again among his old friends, who are always ready to give him a hearty welcome.

Before closing this report I feel that we should thank our President, O. J. Allard, for his efficient services of the past year. For many years he has been inseparably associated with the Conference, and his heart and soul is in this work to do all he can for it. Perpetually beaming with cordial good nature, always giving a helping hand. A man of generous impulses, he is a general favorite among the people, and much of the success of the Conference is due to his efforts.

Respectfully submitted in faith, hope and love.

EVA L. STEARNS, Sec.

To All Members of my Correspondence Bible Class, and others:

For two years I have been conducting a correspondence Bible class. The work has now grown to such proportions that I can no longer do the work required. At the suggestion of some of the members of the class, I will publish printed Bible lessons through a course of ten lessons, and will send them out to any who will take the lessons and promise to do the work. It will cost in actual expense about $1.00 for publishing the ten lessons to each. I cannot afford this expense. If the reader will drop me a postal card saying he will faithfully do the work and send $1.00 to cover expenses upon receipt of the first lesson, I will place his name on the list. I cannot agree to send out the lessons unless a hundred members are obtained. This is not a money making matter and unless this plan succeeds, I must drop that work all together. Address me at Oregon, Ill.

Faithfully yours.

S. J. LINDSAY.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 7, 1908.

It is reported that the cholera is on the decrease and it is hoped it will not spread to new districts.

This paper is dated Oct. 7, but we get it out early, so as to be able to attend the Conference at Warren Co. if possible.

BROTHER J. R. CRATON writes wishing us to announce that he has his boat, which he calls "The Ark of God" ready for service. He wants the assistance of those who are able to proclaim the Word of the Lord. His letter is mailed from somewhere in Mississippi, but the mark is so blurred it cannot be made out, and he gives no address.

A LETTER from Sister C. Rohrbach says she has returned to her home at Stillwater, Okla. after a stay of three months in Texas. They will start their meetings again and Bible class work. She speaks in high terms of a visit with Sister Hannah Barber and others at Oklahoma City, and how they all enjoyed talking of the coming kingdom. It is the first thing with them, and Sister Rohrbach says she will ever cherish sweet memories of her visit there.

BROTHER John Foore writes a long letter, which we cannot now print for want of room. It tells of his trip of some 350 miles from his homeat Parsons, Kan. to the home of Brother J. M. Robbirds, near Erick, Okla. For some months they have been corresponding with the view of some one going there to immerse Brother Robbirds and wife; it being as one time thought that Brother Wilson would be able to reach this point, but he could not. At last Brother Foore went and on Sept. 20, baptized J. M. Robbirds and wife into the all-saving name, and he wishes to introduce our new Brother and Sister to the Household of Faith. May the rich blessing of God's grace be with them, is our prayer.

BROTHERS and Sisters, we do not wish to complain, for we know it is close times, money hard to get, work scarce. It is always so during a year of presidential campaign. For some reason—explain in how you will—less money is sent in to religious papers such years, even by such as our people who claim to have little to do in politics. In the year 1907 our friends paid to our "Helping Fund" from Jan. 1, to Oct. 1, $303 95. This enabled us to carry along just about even, making up a little balance from the year before. The rest of the year 1907 kept us nearly even, so that we started 1908 out well. From Jan. 1, to Oct. 1, 1908, we have received on this fund just $157 40 This has all been applied as directed. There are yet on our list 104 names that are not provided for this current year. Brethren and sisters, we do not like to cut these dear ones off, and stop their papers. It must be evident to you that we cannot carry them ourselves. Do you want us to have to drop them? Many, indeed the most of these brethren and sisters, are old people, who find pleasure in reading our paper. They look for it week to week. It pains our heart to think of having to cut them off. My Brother, my Sister, how does this affect you? Consider this matter, and answer it as you think will please Jesus now and when he comes.

THE Chicago Tribune for Sept. 28, contained the following, which will be of interest to our readers:

New York, Sept. 27. Almost 2,000 years have passed since the destruction of Jerusalem by the Roman general, Titus. This event took place in the year 70, just 1,838 years ago, and yet there are at least 10,000,000 persons looking toward that sacred site today, yearning for the rebuilding of the holy city.

All over the world in every synagogue millions of Jews—orthodox, conservative, Zionist—are praying for the restoration of the Temple of Solomon on its desecrated mountain.

Only the reformed Jews, a comparative handful, have abandoned this long hope for the restoration. It has been made even more lively during the last few years through Zionist agitation, and now in view of the new regime in Turkey the prayers that Jerusalem at last may return to its own are renewed with greater fervor than ever.

It is especially interesting now to have presented an account of the destruction of that great city. Selah Merrill for thirty years studied in Jerusalem and for sixteen years was the American consul in that city. Mr. Merrill lectures on oriental researches and discoveries at the Lowell institute.

After describing the Titus plan of operations and the taking of the city, he continues:

"The Romans continued the work of destruction and slaughter for several days until the whole outer city had been destroyed. The brigands and insurgents joined in the work of destruction and massacred many thousands of their rivals.

"Titus massacred tens of thousands of Jews and burned Jerusalem and razed it to the ground, but he crowned his work of destruction with a deed that has made his name an anathema to all Jews. He entered the holy of holies of the temple, the place behind the veil where the high priest entered only once a year. Thus the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple of the Jews was consummated with an act of sacrilege—"the abomination of desolation standing" in the holy place."

THE following is taken from the Chicago Tribune of Sept 27, and shows what is being done in the way of the Jews getting a better footing in the Holy Land.

London, Sept. 26.—Zionism promises to benefit materially by Turkey's political liberation of Hebrews, who under the regime of Ottoman sultans have been forbidden to buy land in Palestine. They now are buying openly and it is stated that a Jewish syndicate is negotiating for a large part of the sultan's private domain now in the market, comprising the whole length of the Jordan valley from Tiberias to the Dead sea.

There is little doubt that the Jews will soon repossess the site of ancient Jericho, which was the first fruit of the Israelitish conquest of Canaan. The greater part of Jerusalem outside the walls already belongs to Jewish capitalists, Zionist pioneers, who bought at various times secretly, notwithstanding the sultan's prohibition. Taking advantage of the equality proclaimed to all Turkish subjects, the Jews are openly claiming full rights of citizenship.

Many Jews have joined the Jaffa Jerusalem society. Its object is to safeguard the rights of coreligionists in the empire and promote their education.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 11.
GOD'S PROMISE TO DAVID. 1 SAMUEL 17.

Golden Text. "There hath not failed one word of all his good promise." 1 Kings viii. 56.

The promises to David are not quite so many as the Lord made to Abraham; but are just as comprehensive. In other words, God's promises to David include all that were promises to Abraham. They are the same everlasting covenant.

In the lesson the promises begin in verse 8. It is written, I have made thee a name.—That was partly true; but will be more so in the age to come. So let us read it—

1. I will make thee a name like the great men.
2. I will appoint a place for my people Israel.
3. I will plant them.
4. They shall dwell in their place.
5. They shall be moved no more.
6. I will subdue all thine enemies.
7. The Lord will build thee a house.
8. I will raise up thy seed after thee.
9. I will establish his kingdom.
10. He shall build me a house.
11. I will establish his throne forever.
12. I will be his Father.
13. He shall be my son.
14. I will settle him in mine house, and in my kingdom for ever.

These promises may be said to cover and include all the offers of salvation God has made to men through the Lord Jesus Christ.

God's promises to David being the same as the promises made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, were the things concerning the kingdom that Jesus preached. Jesus preaching these promises called them, "The Gospel of the Kingdom," Mark i. 14, 15, and with the voice and words of authority he called upon the house of Israel—the Jews—Hebrew—to repent and believe the gospel—good news—glad tidings.

Let us briefly consider one or two of the promises:—

No. 2. I will appoint a place for my people Israel. Behold the days come—In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen—I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel—And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up. Amos ix. 11-15. These few words from Amos may be said to comprise all the fourteen promises noted above, directly indorsing promises 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

At one of the most important conferences of the apostles, elders, and the church held at Jerusalem to consider the subject of the conversion of the Gentiles, the apostle James declared that God was visiting the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name. In connection with that statement he quoted from Amos. Acts xv. 13-17.

The promises God made to David, had been preached as gospel to the Gentiles and some had been converted, had believed and been baptized, Mark xvi. 15, 16. It was not known—by the Israelites in times past, that the Gentiles would be fellow heirs of the same body as the Jews—and partakers of the promise in Christ by the gospel, Eph. iii. 1-6 This and other Scriptures inform us—Gentiles—that by believing the promises God made to David and being baptized we become fellow heirs with him. In Psalm lxxxix. we find a grand and positive testimony to God's promises to David. My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I would not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me, Psalm lxxxix 34-36.

Somewhere about 1000 years after God further verified his promises by sending an angel to Mary, saying, "Thou shalt have a Son,—shalt call his name Jesus,—he shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David. He shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end, Luke i. 30-33.

God's promises to David are splendidly rehearsed by the raptured prophet, Isaiah ix. 6, 7.

In these few Scriptures we have a glimpse of the kingdom of God—the King, the Lord Jesus Christ,—the saints and all that will possess the kingdom, Daniel vii. 18,—joint heirs with Christ,— he subjects—the Israelites, and finally all nations, Psalm lxxii. 11.—the territory, the land of Canaan, Gen. xv. 18 21, gradually the whole earth, Daniel ii. 44; vii. 27.

To this gave all the prophets witness, that through his—Christ's name, whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins, Acts x. 42, 43.

Every promise of God to David referred to the kingdom of God and Christ. The kingdom is called the kingdom of God, the kingdom of heaven, the kingdom of Christ, and so on.

The promises of the King,—Christ—and the kingdom were first made to Abraham. The words kingdom and throne do not appear, but the King, kingdom and throne are all comprehended in Gen. xx. 17, 18. The Golden Text does not come under—is not connected, with God's promises to David, but to promises God made to Moses, and through him to, and concerning the Israelites,—the words were part—a very small part—of Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple.

Let us strive to have a share—heirship—in the promises made to David.

Next Lesson, David's kindness to Jonathan's son. 2 Sam. ix

P. NEILL.

Dear Restitution:

I received on late mail a letter from our dear Brother J. M. Dellenbaugh, Avery, Okla. As it is a private letter valuable on account of its brotherly love and earnest zeal (the build up kind) I do not feel the liberty to publish it, but as many of your readers may have interest in subject under consideration I take the right of bringing this matter before them by publishing my answer in full (with favor of our beloved Editor).

Brother Dellenbaugh:

I received your kind encouraging letter on late mail, forwarded from my daughter Grace. I think I may be able to start to your place about Nov. 1st, if all is encouraging.

I am seeking health by camping and hop-picking, it would be novel to come to Oklahoma and pick cotton. I am better, but do not wish to remain in this climate during the winter.

I wish to do all I can toward organizing Conference work south and southwest. The people will have to agitate that work themselves, especially through THE RESTITUTION, if we succeed in organizing and remaining an organized body. Hope you will take hold of that part of the work at once and keep me informed of your progress. Though I am evangelist of the northwest for the coming year, it is with the privilege to change my field of labor for my own health or usefulness.

Take hold of this work according to your judgment and the brethren you may consult. It is a question whether there should be a great southwest Conference, as there is and has been a Northwest Conference for nearly 20 years, or whether the southwest should be divided into smaller organizations ("The harvest is great but laborers are few.") To succeed we must organize. My means are will nigh exhausted. I feel now that it is more liable to fail than even health. It will take money to travel and do the work. Though we be rich in faith, money is a necessity of travel. Write.

Your affectionate fellow workman,
W. L. SKEELS.

Dear Restitution:

I notice in the last issue of THE RESTITUTION that through a letter from Sister Kathrine Williams, of Morse Mills, Mo. "some efforts were being made toward having me preach for them once a month." I therefore, thought it probable they had written me regarding that matter, but so far I have not received any letter from the brethren acquainting me with their wishes toward that end.

I received a Ministerial Certificate from the Missouri Conference of the Churches of God, and have written to Brother J. H. Morse, President of the Conference, advising him that on account of my mining and other interests, requiring my personal attention, I am precluded from the possibility of visiting them regularly on each month. Also that it was my intention after the Southern Illinois Conference adjourns, to make them a visit, advising him when I could be with them, and visit them occasionally afterwards when convenient.

While I am willing to do what I can in the way of preaching or exhorting, it must be understood that I do not make any pretense as a public speaker. That has not been my calling, but the Lord helping me, I shall try to present the grand old gospel of the kingdom in my own though stammering way, to the best of my ability.

You have seen through the reports of some of the brethren that I have had the pleasure recently of meeting quite a number of the brethren whose names have been familiar to me for many years as they have appeared in THE RESTITUTION Only those who have been similarly situated, being isolated, can fully realize the pleasure it conveys to the heart and mind of one, when meeting with those that speak with the—shall I say the same tongue. You know Peter's speech betrayed him, and so with us when we hear them speak their tongues betray them, and we are able to recognize what school books they have been reading, and what their citizenship. I have reference to the brethren I met during the Conference at Salem, Ohio, and at Blush Church, Mo.

The singing was excellent at both places, every one joining in this part of the services. This I think is as it should be in all meetings of the brethren.

Now brother Editor, I have not been giving much attention to exhortation or doctrine, as many know, but I have given some attention to reading with the expectation of doing something in the way of the first two mentioned. With unfeigned love,

Yours in the blessed hope.
PETER JEFFREY.

Obituary.

Mary A Gilbert was born in Columbia Co, New York, July 10, 1822. She was married to George B. Gilbert in the year 1842. Five sons and three daughters were born to them.

They moved to Michigan in 1867, where Mr. Gilbert died ten years ago, leaving her nearly blind, and in consequence of this affliction very helpless, but living as cheerful and happy as this sad condition would admit, living with her daughter and husband, Bro. and Sister Stickler, until her death, Sept. 18, 1908. She had reached the age of 86 years 2 months and 8 days. The funeral service was held from the Decker schoolhouse, Sister M. A. Woodward speaking 1 Cor. xiii; 12.

If you want to know the true meaning of "Laodicean," just attend church and prayermeeting these days and you will understand.—J. T. Butler.

In Memoriam.

Loving hands laid Sister Tuttle to rest among the flowers she loved so well. Roses, carnations and lilies loaded the air with their fragrance. They softened the thought of loss, and spoke of hope for the future. The sweet face was calm in the majestic repose which comes to those who sleep in Jesus. On the serene brow were written the traces of a life spent in the duties that were her portion of life's burden.

Those who came to pay tribute, in subdued tones told of her gentle and kindly disposition and generous deeds.

The words of the Wise man were in our thoughts: "The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life. She stretcheth out her hand to the poor, yea she reacheth forth her hands to the needy. In her tongue is the law of kindness. She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness. Her children arise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised. Let her own works praise her in the gates."

Many tender hearts in far distant states will be touched in loving remembrance of the happy hours we spent in this Christian home where she always gave a cordial welcome to all. To the Sunday School class that Brother Tuttle taught so many years these lines may recall the happy hours of the annual reunions. However far we are separated in fact, in spirit we join in appreciation of the good things both temporal and spiritual to which we were led by the gentle hands that are so quietly resting from their labor until the dawning of the better day.

MRS. PERRIS WILLEY.

Another faithful one has been removed by death from the Church at Plymouth. Her place is vacant—she sleeps in Jesus. We shall miss her. Her aged husband, an Elder of the Church, will be lonely without her. They were devoted to each other and to their God. In his loneliness and sorrow he is not without hope. Her life was a jewel, radiating love in the community where she lived, joy in the home, meekness and humility in the church.

May God give his support to our brother in his sorrow, and help us to live worthy to meet her when God shall bring the sleeping ones to immortal glory.

J. H. WILLEY.

Married.

At the residence of the bride's parents, Saturday afternoon Sept. 19, 1908, Iva B. Hill to Ray M. Aldrich. Ray is an industrious young man, owning a farm about eight miles from Iva's old home, and is the son of Bro. and Sister Julius Aldrich. Sister Iva, the daughter of Bro. and Sister Thos. Hill, active in Church work, will be greatly missed by the Millbrook people, but we trust she will be the means of building up the cause of truth in the community to which she is going. We bid them God speed in their new life.

Married in Woodland, Mich. at the residence of the bride's parents, Miss Jennie J. Parmalee and Mr. George C. Coats, on the eve of Sept. 16, 1908. George is the only son of Brother and Sister Edwin Coats, of Coats Grove, a fine young man of good and industrious habits, and is united to a lady of pure sterling qualities. We wish for them success in this life, and pray they may very soon turn their thoughts to seeking for eternal life.

For one soul saved by scolding and fault-finding, ten are saved by sweetness. For one soul saved by fear of hell, ten are saved by the thought of the love of God. A gentle voice and a smiling face make a religion beautiful to the miserable and the sinful, whereas gloomy looks and a harsh or condescending manner make religion seem a thing to be avoided. Do you wish to draw souls to God? Then let your soul reflect His love. Be gentle, be sweet, be patient. Practical people may condemn you, but only thus can you imitate Jesus.—Christian Uplook.

Religious Indiscretions.

There are people in the world who never seem to accomplish much themselves, but who develop a remarkable gift for finding fault with others; and seem to think it their business to point out the failures, mistakes, and indiscretions of persons who are less wise than themselves. In many instances, no doubt, their complaints are just; for most live men make mistakes;—dead ones, we believe, are not guilty of them. To these murmurers and complainers Bishop Huntington very appropriately says:—

"There are indiscretions, we hear. No doubt of it. The question is whether the indiscretions are so many and so glaring as to overbalance the palpable and lasting good that comes of engaging many people heartily in the new conviction that they have a spiritual and responsible capacity, and owe their lives to their Creator. When we have governments without indiscretions, families without indiscretions, colleges without indiscretions, manners, trades, navigations over any sort of sea without them, we shall have an administration of Christianity without indiscretions. But remember that the greatest indiscretion we can possibly fall into about religion is to let it alone."—Common People.

Do right, as God gives you to see the right, and be grateful for his gift of light, but do not boast yourselves on grace. When self-righteousness comes in, God's grace goes out. "A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. E. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Let Us Pray.

Most Holy and Loving Father, We thank Thee with all our heart for having brought us to this day of privilege. We will make mention of Thy loving kindness, O Lord. Thou art worthy to be praised, and to be had in everlasting remembrance by all the creatures Thy hands have made. We thank and praise thee for the atmosphere of this calm morning after the conflicts with the world of business through the week. We adore Thee for such varied means of grace we enjoy. We praise and magnify thy holy name because thou has revealed thyself to us in Thy Son, Christ Jesus our Lord And our Father, and our God, we pray that the exercises we may be engaged in this day may be greatly blessed of Thee. May assurances of thy presence and blessing come to us through all the services, so that faith may be strengthened, hope confirmed and we able to gather courage for what of conflict still awaits us. Oh, God, as the troubles of the last days multiply, we look over the little band who have been called out in this place, with little pleasure and pain—pleasure because some tremble at thy Word; and pain because some do not so tremble, do not act as if they are thine, —but their own. Great God, if it be possible, use us to arrest such in their mad career, and induce them to return to their first love, before it be too late. In Christ's name.

M. JOBLIN.

Editorials.

It does not require riches to do great things. The widow with two mites gave more than the rich. Christ says so.

We sow a thought and we reap an act; we sow an act and we reap a habit; we sow a habit and we reap a destiny.—Thackery.

Notice Brother Moyer's letter, which kindly and justly criticises an article from our pen in a recent issue of THE RESTITUTION. We stand corrected. Thank you, my brother.

"There is no greater mistake", says an able minister, "than to suppose that Christian can impress the world by agreeing with it. Not it is not conformity that we want; it is not being able to beat the world in its own way; but it is to stand apart from and above it, and to produce the impression of a holy and separate life: and this only can give us a true Christian power". Golden words, and we heartily commend them to our readers.

We call attention to the prayer by Bro. Joblin printed under the heading, "Let us pray." Our deceased brother wrote his prayers as well as his sermons; and as the Editor in partnership with Bro. Tomlinson now owns them, also Bro. Joblin's library, we have decided to publish one of his petitions in each issue of THE RESTITUTION. Our dear brother was mighty in prayer; and we hope that our readers will profit by reading his supplications. We must acknowledge God in all things; and we think it as appropriate to open "Ebenezer" with prayer as a sermon or other religious exercise "Let us pray" will hereafter be a permanent fixture in the opening of "Ebenezer." Like Abel who, although dead, "yet speaketh" (Heb. xi; 4). so with Bro. Joblin; though dead, yet he now speaks to us in whispers of prayers and the voice of supplication. May his loving entreaties which edified and comforted the brethren while he was alive, now that they are to be reproduced in print, build up and encourage the people of God still, and be of lasting benefit to all who read them, especially to ministers. They appear just as he wrote them, the Editor only revising them slightly, and then only for grammatical reasons.

"This Man."

Jehovah is so great that he exclaims, "The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool," and beholding all things in heaven above and earth beneath can say, "All these things hath mine hand made," yet, says our condescending Lord, "To this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word," Isa. lxvi; 2. When I contemplate the Almighty looking down from heaven, the habitation of his holiness and glory, to "this man," I am lost in love and praise. Isa. lxiii; 15.

What Part of Man is Unconscious in Death?

The same teaching is brought out in Phil. i. 21-25. "For me to live is Christ," meaning "that life which I now live in the flesh I live in faith" (Gal. ii. 20;) and "to die is gain," because he would then be in a better state personally, than his life in the body permitted. But when he contrasted the benefit his presence in the flesh would be to the Philippians with the gain to himself to die and be with Christ, he was in a "strait betwixt two," not knowing which to choose; "having the desire to depart (from the flesh) and be with Christ, for it is very far better (for my sake;) yet to abide in the flesh is more needful for your sake." I have seen columns written to show that Jesus and Paul and Peter do not mean what they say of "life in the body" and "out of the body:" but I greatly prefer the plain, simple words of Christ and his apostles relative to these questions.

God give us grace to accept his Word as it stands.

Your Brother in Christ.

A CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Concerning the texts cited by our friend in this his last effort to establish the consciousness of the spirit apart from the body, we have but few words to say. The theory of going to heaven when you die is an old worn out song, we know, still we verily believe there is more melody in it than zigzag badean rhapsodies. If our friend had not abandoned the old, old story of heaven going, he could quote Phil. i. 21-24 with some show of consistency. Though the apostle says nothing about his spirit departing and being with Christ, and not a word about it being a gain to his spirit to be absent from the body, and drops not the least hint that it would be "far better" for his spirit to leave his body and go to hades, our friend presumes to say and interpret his words as if he had said as much. But adding to God's Word does not help out his hadean story one bit. With his additions to the text, it is still worth nothing to him. Our friend believes that the spirit "departs" to hades as soon as the body dies, while the passage talks about "departing and being with Christ." The text is worse than useless to you to countenance the claim that the spirit goes to hades, unless you believe that Paul could be "with Christ" in hades, and therefore, Christ is in hades! The non-progressive part of Christendom who sing the old threadbare hymn of "mansions in the sky," can beat you singing. Better go back to singing the old song you have thrown away.

Our friend who started out by saying that the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being," still talks about this spirit escaping the power of death and surviving the death of the body in a conscious state. What we want to know is, What part of man becomes unconscious in death? If we "accept the word as it stands," we shall have to believe that something, some part of man, becomes unconscious in death. As he claims that the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being" in life, and remains the intellectual man after death, he denies that any part of man is unconscious in death. But David says that when a man dies, "In that very day his thoughts perish." Psa. cxlvi. 3. If the spirit is the "thinking" part of man, it is the spirit that has "thoughts." Then if "thoughts perish" when man dies, and the spirit produces them, does not death reduce the spirit to unconsciousness? Or take this text: "In death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave (sheol, hades, the very place you say the spirit is conscious) who shall give thee thanks." Psa. vi. 5. If David's allusion here is merely to the body, and to the body only, then it follows that the body is the part that had memory prior to death, instead of the spirit; and if this is so, the spirit must be destitute of memory after death as really as before. Thus without controversy, this text leaves man unconscious in death. That which could remember in life, ceases to remember after death, whether we ascribe memory to body or spirit, or to both jointly. In life we possess the faculty of memory; in death we are deprived of it—the very being that can remember in life, cannot remember in death.

Then we read again; "There is no work, nor knowledge, nor device, nor wisdom, in the grave (sheol, hades) whither thou goest." Eccl. ix. 10. We hope our friend, after reading this statement about hades, will be a wiser man. But to limit ourselves now to the spirit and its consciousness in death. According to this passage the very part of man that possesses "knowledge" goes into sheol. Now if the body is the part that goes to sheol, the body is the intellectual part of man while he is alive, and consequently the spirit is destitute of intellect even in life, and therefore cannot be conscious in death; but if the spirit is the intellectual man in life, the "rational, thinking, intelligent" part of man, as our friend claims, then it is the spirit that goes into sheol at death, where there is "no knowledge," "nor wisdom." In such a place no doubt Jesus gave some very stirring sermons; and no doubt that his audience listened with undivided attention! But to resume our thread of reasoning: If the intellectual man is the spirit and body combined, while in life, then it follows that this very intellectual man goes into a state at death where there is no "knowledge." This address, "whither thou goest," is made to a living, conscious being, whether (a the spirit or body or both united in one; and whatever part is here addressed, goes to a realm where there is no "knowledge," "wisdom," etc. That part of man which lacks knowledge and wisdom before death, must be without knowledge and wisdom after death; and that which possesses knowledge and wisdom in life, is dispossessed of them in sheol, which is a realm where there is no "knowledge," "wisdom," "nor device," whether occupied by physical man, or disembodied ghosts.

One more text, please: "The living know that they must die; but the dead know not anything, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten. Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished." Eccl. ix. 5, 6. This text attributes knowledge to some part of man while alive, and denies it to the same part when dead; "the living know" something; "but the dead know not anything." Now I repeat that only the intellectual man can possess knowledge, whether that be the body, the spirit, or both combined; and only the intellectual man can be dispossessed of knowledge by death; for that cannot be taken from a being which he never possessed. If the body is the part of man that possesses intellect in this life, then the spirit is destitute of knowledge, and cannot be the intellectual man, the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being," and, of course, having never possessed knowledge before death, cannot possess it after death; then death leaves man absolutely unconscious. If my friend recovers from this staggering blow, and asserts in righteous indignation, that the spirit is the "rational, thinking, intelligent part of man's being," that it is "knowing part of man, then it follows that as that which possesses knowledge while alive, shall be deprived of knowledge after death, the spirit must be consigned to unconsciousness under the blow of death; for whatever part of man knowledge is attributed to during life, it is deprived of it in death; therefore, if the spirit is the intellectual part of man before death, it will "know not anything" after death. If body and spirit united constitute the intellectual man prior to death, then both combined will be deprived of consciousness, and "know not anything" subsequent to death; for whatever may be said to "know" while alive, is as positively said to "know not anything" in death. And more: "Neither have they any more a reward," They do not "have" any reward during the death state; they have to wait for the resurrection for their "recompense." Luke xiv. 14. While there is to be no reward in death, there is to be a reward when the reign of death is over. The dead are described in the words, "Their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished." It is a fact that the passions of love and hatred belong to the intellectual man, let that be what it may; for it is impossible to love or hate without intellect; and if they belong to the body and not to spirit, then the body is the intellectual man and the spirit is devoid of intellect previous to death, and consequently cannot possess it in death. But if the passions of "love" "hatred," "envy," etc., which are guided by the intellect, are passions of the spirit—not of the body—then the spirit must be affected by the stroke of death, under which these passions "perish." Turn and twist all you can death plunges the intellectual man into utter unconsciousness.

And with these words, we close our reply to our friend in the ministry We have, like Paul, used "great plainness of speech" (2 Cor. iii. 12,) but we can assure our dear friend that notwithstanding our plain words we have a warm heart, and that our desire is to see the truth shine forth in all its beauty. If our remarks have been helpful to him in giving him a clearer understanding of the Divine Word, or if they have ministered to the enlargement of our reader's knowledge of the truth, we are thankful. God bless our humble effort to elucidate his truth, and may we all who read these remarks have, as our minister words it, "grace to accept his Word as it stands." Amen.

They Wrote Letters. Acts xv 23.

Brother Huggins:

It is with pleasure that I pen these lines to you to acknowledge the receipt of the certificate of baptism. However, I shall not endeavor to tell you of the joy it brought to my heart, or how delighted I was to receive it; but you will understand when I say, I thank you. I expect to have it framed soon as possible, and hang it up in a conspicuous place, so that I may view it often and meditate upon it.

I have been thinking ever since our meeting closed that I would like to write you a long letter to reveal to you the good you accomplished during your brief stay here. But I could not reach you as I did not have your address. Now that I have your address I shall proceed to tell you that which I long for you to know.

I was sad the last evening of our meeting for it is hard to part with those whom we have met and learned to love in the truth. Then too, I was so hungry! It seemed that it was not right for you to go away and leave us starving for the truth. I wanted you to stay and feed us a little while longer. We had been enlightened; we had tasted of the Word of God, and were so hungry for more.

Now I see it was better so. Did you know that by going away and leaving us thus, that we would when deprived of some one to feed us, go in search of food for ourselves? That is just exactly what I have done. Every leisure moment I have now, instead of reading magazines of fiction, I go to God's Word and study it diligently; and with the aid of Brother Wilson's Text Book, and the instructions you gave us, I have accomplished much. We have had a good reference Bible for several years; but (I speak it to my shame) I had never learned to run references until you told us we should do so. And I did not know what the concordance was until you spoke of it. Now I consult it often, and have learned to run references also.

So you see by having us hungry, (yet leaving us instructed as to what we should do and how we should live) you caused me to "dig down" as it were for myself.

And that is not all. The lessons you read made a lasting impression on my mind, and I find consolation in turning to the chapters you read to us and allowing myself to be guided by God's word. I am trying my very best to grow, to go on unto perfection, and not to "fall away." Henceforth I shall live a nobler life than I have in the past, I shall be a better girl, now that I know the truth.

Now I wish to tell you that I am almost positive that some of the seed sown here fell on good ground, bearing a bountiful harvest for some one. I would that it were possible for you to be the one to reap the same. Surely you will come back to us sometime, since you are not ignorant of the fact that "others were almost persuaded." Besides the people want you, Sister Pounds told me this revealing that they do.

Everyone seems to regret that the meeting didn't last longer. So you see the interest awakened. Yes, we certainly did have a fine meeting. It was short but sweet.

I received the first copy of THE RESTITUTION yesterday, together with some back numbers. I had been looking forward eagerly to receiving it, for I feel that by keeping in touch with you, it will help me to grow, Knowing that the third page was yours, I turned to it first thing, there to find the report of our meeting. Please don't think that by reading your page of the paper first that I am partial; I shall peruse the whole paper.

I have read "The Kingdom of God," by T. J. Daniel, and it is fine. Also some of M. Joblin's works, which are excellent. I have two of Bro. Wilson's books which are very good. Of course I read the little booklet you gave me the last night of our meeting: "An Exposition of Isa. vii: 14, 15, 16." I cannot but revere it. I am glad that I can say from my heart, I believe the "report;" I accept Him as my Christ, Lord, Savior and Friend, and when he comes in glory, I trust that he will exalt me to share with him the youth and vigor of immortality.

Such is the faith of one of your converts,

EVA WILSON.

Brother Huggins:

In your remarks concerning the higher critics, partial inspirationist, etc, you say to a certain party not named, "get out of the Church of God." It occurs to me that your advice is irrelevant, directed at the wrong party, and outrage on your part a hesitancy or weakness to deal with the matter squarely. No Church of God or congregation of believers obedient to the "law of the Spirit of life" would be guilty of tolerating an infidel as a co-partner in fellowship, nor would they compromise the truth with any man who rejected a fundamental doctrine of the one faith. There is evidently a mistake somewhere. Any church or congregation pretending to be obedient believers that recognizes an infidel or unbeliever as a brother in fellowship is rotten to the core. It is to that church or congregation that you should direct your admonition, enabling them to see where they are at, and what they are doing in winking at unsound doctrine. Give the trumpet a certain sound that no one can misunderstand. The man who holds or hides stolen goods is equally guilty as the thief who did the stealing. On the same principle any congregation that submits passively to a system of teaching that ignores the fundamentals of the gospel faith becomes an active participator in evil doing and deserve to be classed as Balaamites unless they speedily repent.

Who is on the Lord's side? is the question that confronts all such. Every earnest man and woman who desire to stand approved of God will not permit themselves to become responsible for unsound doctrine by participating with those actively engaged in teaching the same. An enlightened and zealous man will stand aloof and protest against such work.

GEO. MOYER.

Something More About Mistakes.

It is always safe to stick to the reading of the most approved text.

To "construe" is to twist the text so as to make it appear in harmony with one's preconceptions. Rev 1 10 reads word for word literally, thus: "I was in spirit in the Lord's day." It means within a place or state. The text is clear cut and intelligible as we find it placed on record. And moreover, believable. Let interpreters turn and twist to suit modern notions; there it stands, and will continue to stand unto the consummation. Compare iv 2, "Immediately I was in spirit"—spirit without the article in both cases. Let the reference be to what or when, referred to while "in spirit" is not to be considered just now.

The reference to Adam—1 Cor xv 22, the progenitor of the human race—as to the "all" in him being the "righteous only," as is the "all" in Christ. The "all" in Christ does not embrace the whole human family, as the succeeding context asserts. It requires no great amount of wisdom to see that the term "Adam" of itself involves the all in him, old and young, saint and sinner, from first to last; when a very few are left over alive when the Lord returns. Rom v 12, 15, 17.

The "Order" of verse 23 asserts a series of resurrections, beginning with Christ—the first fruits Verses 20 and 23. Next those who belong to him at his arrival—next, "the end" or last of the series, just before the commencement of the millennium. Rev xx 4, compared with xiii 15, 16, 17. They lived and reigned with Christ the thousand years. This is the first resurrection, that to the royalty, first in rank, not in time.

The martyrs of the judgment period are highly distinguished and are (to be) crowned with highest honors. The passage about the "Rest of the dead" (5) a mere error. [Tischendorf.]

The Scriptures do not affirm that after the one thousand years, the earth will be inhabited by a race of immortal beings. References given miss the mark. "The glorious reign of Jesus and his brethren will continue one thousand years."....And much longer. See Rev xi 15. For ever and ever—ages of ages—time unlimited. Compare xxii 5, "They (that is, his brethren) shall reign for the ages of ages." Compare Eph ii 7 and iii 21, "An endless succession of ages."

No end to the kingdom and therefore no end to the reigning—see Luke i 33. The "forever" is supplemented by—"And of his kingdom there shall be no end." And abundant references.

The nation of Israel will be perpetuated not merely "forever," but rather "for all the days." See Gen viii 22. And be "the first fruits" of God's national increase, or ingathering at harvest time. Generation after generation continues "perpetually." Gen ix 12, 16 Everlasting covenant continues unto the age and the hidden period beyond. Compare Ezek xxxvii 24-26 and references. Read carefully 67th Psalm and references.

The Kingdom Suffering Violence.

Matt. xi. 12:—"From the days of John the Baptist until now, the Kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." The word translated "suffereth violence" may be either middle or passive. All the English translations, from Wicliffe down to the Revised Version, follow the Vulgate, which makes it passive, "vim patitur." But if we take it as middle, then we have a different meaning altogether. The word occurs only here in the New Testament, but is common in Greek writers, in the sense of pressing forward. In this case the Kingdom becomes the nominative, and the thought is then parallel to Luke xvi. 16, when, on another occasion, Jesus repeated the teaching and said, "the Kingdom of God is preached." So here "the Kingdom of heaven" breaks forth, presses itself on the attention of men, and ardent, eager souls press into it, as "they pressed upon Him to hear the Word," as "they thronged Him," and would "take Him by force (the very word of Matt. xi. 12) and make Him a King" (John vi; 15.) This agrees with the context (always an important point in an interpretation), which defines the limit of this proclamation, "from the days of John the Baptist until now." E. W. Bullinger.

The first quarterly conference of the Church of God in Michigan, will be held this year (D. V.) in Decker school house, Millbrook, beginning Friday evening, Oct. 9, and lasting over the following Sunday. The speaker from a distance will we expect, be Brother Huggins. He has never worked in our state, but in nearly every other place, and if we are the last to ask his services, let us not show any less interest in the work, but rally to the standard of truth with a full force, for while he may need the inspiration of our presence, there is not one of us but who needs his words of encouragement and instruction.

Brother Huggins has promised to work a month for us in this state, and the points where he will labor will be decided at the conference.

Those coming to Grand Rapids will take the Pere Marquette train, Saginaw division, at 7:00 a m or at 5:00 p m, change at Edmore, taking the Pere Marquette, Big Rapids division, and stopping at Blanchard, where you will be met with conveyances on Friday.

Remember brethren, if the cause of truth, which we all profess to love, lives and prospers, it is because its real friends show a deep interest in its support. The Millbrook brethren are faithful in attending other conferences and desire your presence there. How ready and anxious we are, with plenty of money to attend a Fair, but forget the great importance of gaining eternal life. The race for life eternal ought to be of more importance than horse racing.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

To the Michigan Yearly Conference of the Church of God, assembled at Dutton, greeting:

WHEREAS: We all seeing the great need of more urgent work being done in the field than is being done, this Committee believes the first act toward that end should be a better financial system. Therefore, we hereby present to the Conference and isolated brethren the following plan:

First, That every member or believer in the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, set apart for this work one dollar ($1.00) each a year, and also pay the sum of ($1 00) one dollar on each ($1,000) one thousand dollars assessed valuation of their property, this to be paid semi-annually to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, Hastings, Barry Co., Mich., R. F. D.

Second, That each church or company of believers appoint one of their members to collect this money from their Church and send to the State Treasurer, A. K. Richardson, semi-annually. All isolated members to do the same, or send to the Church nearest them, if more convenient. If all will co operate in this plan, it will create a fund which will enable us to keep an Evangelist in the field the most, if not all the time, and will make the burden very light for all, and the result will be surprising.

Accepted and adopted unanimously by the Conference assembled.

Committee: R. LAKE,
A. K. RICHARDSON,
H. HAMMOND,
WM. MOSES,
WM. MCCRODAN.

LYDIA RADEBACK, Sec'y.

BROTHER John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 76 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ, The restitution, The Kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor

The price is 25 cents, and he hopes the brethren will buy enough of them to pay the printer for printing it. He shows first, the importance of believing the gospel of the kingdom; second, that it was not set up in the days of John the Baptist; third, that it was not set up on the day of Pentecost; fourth, that it will be set up at the second coming of Christ. A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map, which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Wilson has fortunately become possessed of a limited number of copies, and will dispose of them at 40 cents each. In view of the important changes that are to take place are soon in the countries adjacent to Russia, this book is a valuable aid to the earnest watcher of the signs. Secure one before the supply is exhausted. The book contains what is called "The Will of Peter the Great," which we have been asked recently to print, but have delayed for want of space. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1 00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of these small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office and State, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife he did not say she was—as we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and after awards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

Plymouth, Indiana, Oct. 21, 1908.

Brother J. L. Wince gave two excellent discourses at the Plymouth Church on last Sunday.

As we go to press the war talk is for one day, and the next against. It is a dangerous game, and a little match may set the whole magazine ablaze.

The reason why the Sunday School lesson notes by Brother Neill did not appear in last issue, was because he failed to mail them in time. They were all prepared, but missed getting in the mail. It simply shows we are mortal, and liable to mistakes.

Just before going to Conference we received a card from Brother Wm. B. Wilson which has been misplaced, but it told of a visit to Omro, Wisconsin, where he had baptized some, and expected others to yield obedience. We trust Brother Wilson will give a full report.

A letter from Brother Geo. Neill says they are comfortably situated in their home in Washington, that he expected to visit the State Hill, Va. Church on last Sunday, and that the last few meetings at this point have been very good, all of which we are pleased to hear.

Mrs. Anna Reese, of Harris, near to the North Salem Church, accompanied by Sister Kinney, came to the Plymouth Church on last Sunday morning and on making the good confession, was immersed by Brother Wince. May she ever be found faithful and finally gain a crown in the kingdom of God is our prayer.

The first number of Brother Lindsay's Bible Lessons is printed and sent to subscribers. The object is to promote and encourage Bible study. A series of ten lessons will be issued monthly. Subscribers are to write answers and send them to Brother Lindsay for inspection. This is an excellent opportunity, and with such a teacher as Brother Lindsay giving his time and energy to it, no student can fail of benefit. A few more names should yet be added to the class. A dollar is asked for the ten lessons, to cover the cost. Send to S. J. Lindsay, Oregon, Ill.

Conference Report.

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God met with the church at Pleasant View, Oct. 8 to 11 inclusive. The meeting opened Thursday evening at 7:15 in the usual way. After which Brother Ham Thompson gave a short address, in which he welcomed all visitors whether from far or near. To this the Conference President feelingly responded. At 7:45 Brother S. J. Lindsay spoke on, "Be not unequally yoked together." Friday at 10:30 the lesson read was 2 Peter 1, and Brother Willey led in prayer, Brother Halstead spoke on "Putting off this my tabernacle, What is it?" At 1:30 the audience listened to a sermon by Brother Wagoner.

At 2:30 a business session was held. The reports of the ministers showed that each was trying to do at least something in the Master's vineyard. A few have been added to our number by baptism. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports showed that $881 95 had been received and that $151 59 still remains in treasury, the expenditures being $280 36 Kenssaline pledged $15.00 for next year's fund: Plymouth pledged $30 00; Pleasant View paid $72 25 beside which she raised sufficient to pay Bro. Lindsay for a week's work following the conference.

Officers elected for next year: President, J. H. Willey; 1st Vice President, J. A. Burnham, 2nd Vice President, E. C. Plummer; Secretary, Lydia Railsback: Treasurer, Ezra C. Railsback.

Ministerial certificates were granted to D. T. Halstead, J. F. Wagoner, J. L. Wince, J. H. Willey, W. H. Wilson, J. A. Burnham and D. E. Vanvactor.

At the close of the business session Mrs. Holee spoke for a few minutes on Sunday school work.

At 7:00, the social meeting was led by Brother Burnham. His lesson was Matt xxii.

7:30, sermon by Brother J. F. Wagoner, subject "The kingdom of God will be God's divine government when established upon earth." Brother Wagoner having been called to Colfax for a funeral had to leave early Saturday morning. Therefore he and Brother Lindsay exchanged places on program for Friday and Saturday evenings.

Saturday 10:30 Brother Wince spoke on "The One Name." In the afternoon Brother Lindsay conducted a Bible lesson on "The Father's House" based on John xiv 1-8 inclusive. He showed plainly that the word "house" was used to sometimes designate family, a nation, a tribe and God's people. Some texts used as proof Acts x. 1-2; Heb iii 2; Num xii 6 7; Ezek xviii 30-31; Zech viii 13; Zech xii 11-13; 1 Cor iii 1 11; Eph ii 19-22; Heb iii 1-6; 1 Pet ii 1-5.

At 9:45 Brother Carl Thompson led the Berean meeting. Subject of lesson. "How to overcome." Texts used 2 Pet i 4; 2 Cor vii 1; 1 John v 4; Gal vi 14; John xvi 33; Rev ii 7-11 and 17-26; Rev xxi 7; Rev ii 6; Rev iii 21; Psa xi 4; Isa lxvi 1; Luke i 32, 33, Heb x 36, 37; Rev xxii 12-14; Matt xxv 30-34.

7:30 sermon, Brother S. J. Lindsay, subject, "The Word of God."

Sunday morning at 10:15 the social meeting was led by Bro. Willey; 10:45 sermon by Brother Halstead on "The Efficacy of Prayer." Sister Willey led the Sisters' meeting at 1:30. The subject being "The Smitten Rock," showing the beautiful type of our Lord and Savior. At 2:30 Brother Wince assisted by Brother Halstead conducted the communion service after which Brother Lindsay gave a short talk following closely Brother Halstead's thoughts of the morning.

At 6:30 was a Berean meeting. Instead of having a lesson at this time, the time was taken up in telling the object and work of the Berean societies together with the announcement of the annual Bible School. Before the close of this service letters were read from Sister Jane Corbaley and Sister Swaim. At 7:30 Brother Lindsay spoke on "The Promises," Gen xvii.

The ministers present were Brothers Wince, Wagoner, Halstead, Lindsay, Willey and Burnham. The meetings were all good and we appreciate the many kindnesses shown us by the brethren at Pleasant View.

Lydia Railsback, Sec.

The Quarterly Conference of the Church of God, convened at Decker School House, Millbrook, Michigan, as previously announced. Brother Decker, our president, called the house to order, and after giving the words of welcome, introduced Brother R. G. Huggins who took charge of the devotional exercises, giving us a fine sermon on "Thoughts," taking for his text Prov. xxiii. 7. We think now as we review that sermon in our mind, that we will be very careful of our thoughts, lest they control our actions in the wrong direction.

Saturday, October 10, the business meeting was called, and a partial report of the June Conference was read and approved. Sister Woodward's bill for work and postage was approved and an order drawn on the treasury properly signed for $20.51. The condition of the Watson Church was discussed, and it was finally decided that Brother Woodward should go there and look the field over, and conclude what should be done.

It was decided to keep Brother Huggins at work for a week at the Decker.

After the adjournment of the business meeting, Brother Woodward spoke, using the familiar text 1 Cor. xvi. 13. Dinner was served at the Grange Hall across the road.

At 2 o clock Sister Woodward gave a sermon on "Actions," text from 1 Sam. ii. 3: "For the Lord is a God of knowledge, and by him actions are weighed."

Sunday morning Brother Huggins was not able to speak, having quite a severe attack of lugrippe, and Sister Woodward spoke from Matt. vi. 10: "Thy will be done."

Dinner again at the hall, and Bro. Blakely not being able to come, Bro. Woodward spoke on the subject "The Two Thrones," after which Sister Ella Decker conducted the Berean work. Sister Decker is a very earnest able President, and we can see what advancement her pupils are making with her thorough leadership. A beautiful quartette was rendered by the young people.

Sister Mary Allen conducted the Song services, which were all most inspiring.

Sunday evening Brother Woodward took charge of the Social meeting, 45 testimonies being given, followed by a sermon on "Love" by Brother Huggins, text 1 Cor. xiii. After this the Lord's supper was conducted by Brother Woodward, the "Good by" hymn "God be with you till we meet again" was sung, and the Conference closed.

Anxiously did we wait for those out of the fold to come in, to make the good confession. Perhaps the meetings through the coming week will develop into action. God grant it.

Sisters Harper and Wineburg came from Brady, and how glad we all were to see them. Seven came from Dutton, and others coming in from the surrounding country, Remus, Sylvester, East Millbrook, etc, made a good congregation.

The Southern Illinois Annual Conference of the Church of God, convened at Moriah, Oct. 3, 1908. Preaching brethren present D. M. Hudler and O. J. Allard, who did the preaching until Tuesday, when Brothers L. E. Conner and Peter Jeffreys arrived and assisted during the balance of the meeting.

The attendance and interest was exceedingly good throughout the meetings. On Friday, Oct. 9, a business meeting was called by the President B. F. Woods, and by his request Bro. L. E. Conner acted as chairman of the meeting. Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: A. O. Lenz, President; John Elliott, Vice President; B. F. Woods, Secretary; Lewis Weaver, Treasurer.

Treasurer reported collected during the year $130, and paid out $130.

A motion was carried to correspond with some available man to secure his services, with view of having regular preaching during the coming year at Moriah and the Salem Church.

O. J. Allard,
Sec. Pro Tem.

A Feast.

Yes, you would almost think we were having an annual conference here in Dutton, such is the interest manifested. Good audiences gather every evening to hear—what? Good news of the kingdom, from one of the Father's servants who comes here laden with good things. We had been busy for more than a week sending out invitations far and near, and Sunday they began to respond with their presence. Four from Byron, four from Caledonia, father Grant from Watson, and C. L. Austin and wife from West Branch came Saturday evening, remaining until Tuesday following. It was the first time in years our son Claud had been privileged to hear the gospel message from his own people, and he greatly enjoyed the good things said.

But I have not told you who was interesting us so much. It is Brother R. G. Huggins, and we feel we are very fortunate in securing his services for a month. He is a thorough and logical speaker, rightly and so plainly presenting the gospel that none can say "I cannot understand." We pray God's blessing to rest on the word as spoken, that those who hear may heed, and be saved by believing the gospel.

Brother Huggins will go from here to Millbrook Conference, and there he will be directed as to his next field of labor. We wish every believer in the state could hear him and be built up and strengthened in the work.

Yours in hope,
M. A. Woodward.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

On returning from my rest in the Oregon hop fields, I found in my mail a marked copy of the Progressive Thinker, Chicago, Sept. 19. It contains a long article which gives Daniel Hull's version of the discussion that he and I held at their camp meeting.

Although his report is warped, especially the quail story and Noah's Ark arguments, he rehearses his position that the gods-Jehovah included-are the spirits of dead men, and that they revealed whatever truth is contained in the Bible. I have no desire to canvass this new invention of the last times, but I regret the more that The Restitution did not find room for my version of the meeting and debate.

W. L. Skeels.

[Never received any report of said discussion, so could not refuse to publish it.—Ed.]

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10009 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Obituary.

Hannah Eckhart was born in Rose County, Ohio, September 25, 1830, and died October 9, 1908, aged 78 years and 14 days.

At the age of seventeen years she was married to John Boyd, whose death occurred eight years ago. To them were born five children, two of whom survive. There are also seven grand children and two great grand children.

Thirty eight years ago she with her husband became members of the Church of God, and were baptized by Elder E. C. Andrus, better known as "Uncle Charley." She remained with that body, a consistent member till her death.

Aunt Hannah, as she was familiarly known, had been a great sufferer for the past eighteen years, but during this long time of affliction she was patient and kind, never complained, but always had a smile and a word of cheer for every one. The last two and a half years of her life were spent at the Home Hospital in Lafayette, Indiana, and the matron of that institution said "Of all the patients we have received, she was the least trouble; always grateful, always pleasant, and a general favorite with her fellow sufferers, nurses and doctors."

God's plan of a future life was presented to a large audience by the writer, from Heb. xi. 13. By the side of her husband John Boyd, she sleeps in Jesus to awake at his coming.

J. F. Wagoner.

David William Beebe was born Oct. 19, 1836, and died Oct. 1, 1908, aged 71 years, 11 months and 12 days. He was born at Clyde, Ohio, [redacted] what was called North Ridge.

He became an invalid at the age of eight years, and has suffered pain ever since. He left the North Ridge in 1850 at the age of 20, and drove across the country to Blackhawk County, Iowa, where he lived until 1859. He then moved to Willmington, Benton County where he purchased an interest in a saw mill, which was known as the Robinson & Beebe Mill.

In 1873 he moved his mill to his farm near Urbana, where he has since lived, except two years spent in the North woods as an engineer.

On April 4, 1877, he was married to Miss Mary Brown, and to this union [redacted] were born eight children, four boys and four girls, all of whom were present at the funeral except Nathan, who lives in Kansas City, Missouri, all of the family being members of the church, and I will say after being the minister of the church in Urbana for four years, and having visited in a great many homes, I have never seen a better regulated family.

Brother and Sister Beebe deserve the credit of sending eight children out into the world that are clean, Christian boys and girls. Not an oath was ever heard from one of these boys, and none use tobacco or intoxicants, or loaf the streets at night, but are in their homes by the side of wise parents, where the Word of God is read every day. The girls are clean, and were taught the principles of God and honor.

What a blessing is such a mother to the world. Long may she live, and when she too is dead, what hallowed memories will cluster around father and mother.

Brother Beebe was one of the pioneers of the State of Iowa, coming to this place and helped to clear the land and build the town. He enlisted to serve his country, but on account of disability was not accepted.

Brother Beebe believed in God, and in the second coming of Christ, and in his kingdom to be established here on earth. He leaves to mourn their loss a loving wife, who has ever been faithful, and who will miss his tender affection, counsel and advice, and the eight children who will miss a father's love and care, besides a brother living at Yorkville, Ill. He also has five grand children.

His last sickness was borne with patience, not a murmur was heard till he grew fainter and fainter, and finally fell into that dreamless sleep which still kisses down his eyelids.

Funeral at 2 o'clock Oct. 3, when words of comfort were spoken by the writer, after which our beloved bro. that was laid away with the hope of meeting him soon where death cannot separate us from those we hold so dear.

The music was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Pardee, and Mrs. Jennie Haines.

At Ripley, Ill., on Thursday night, Oct. 8, at 7 o'clock, Mr. John H. Long of Woodstock, and Sister Anna Howell of Cooperstown, Ill. Sister Anna became obedient about three years ago, being baptized by Bro. Lindsay during his first meeting at this place. We trust that John may, in the near future, see the necessity of putting on Christ, and thus they may journey through life together, looking forward, not only to happiness in this life, but also in that which is to come.

Let Us Pray.

O God, We adore Thee as the Author and Giver of every good and perfect gift. Thou art daily loading us with Thy benefits. We rejoice in life this morning, and a measure of health and strength, and the use of our reasoning faculties. What shall we render to Thee for all our blessings? We can only thank and praise Thee that our lives have fallen to us in such pleasant places, while others have been pining in poverty, or wasted by sickness, or racked in pain, or left friendless and portionless and hopeless. Thou hast caused showers of blessings to fall around us. But above and beyond all this, showers of spiritual blessings have descended upon us. We have received the words Thou hast sent to us by Jesus, and by Divine grace Thou hast taken us out of the world, and begotten within us a hope of life, and all the glories of thy kingdom; and today with a little company of believers in thy promise, we come to learn more of Thee and the riches of Thy grace—may we perceive Thee,—hear thy voice and receive thy heavenly messages, so that we may go away strengthened to maintain the fight of faith, and at last come off more than conquerors through Him that has loved us. In Jesus' name.

We have just closed a week's meeting at Dutton, Michigan, the home of Brother and Sister Woodward. The attendance and interest have been good.

A series of eight questions are to hand from Brother John H. Byerly, Gibbden, Iowa. We return to Cleveland Oct. 26, and then we shall write replies to the many questions now on file.

[illegible]just in Michigan, we [illegible]er a great debt of [illegible]her and Sister B. W. [illegible]Brother and Sister R. Lake, and Sister May Cummings, for unusual kindness in a time of much need. We cannot pay them for their kindness to us—the Lord will

We can travel and evangelize part of the time this year, but as our dates are fixed at least a month in advance, we cannot accept hurried calls to preach at new places. Those who want our help must speak out in plenty of time. After this year our time will be very limited, if indeed we evangelize any at all.

The Restoration of Israel.

Brother Huggins:

I am sending you by this mail, under separate cover, a copy of the "Last Days" for June 1907. Please read the marked article, "Isaiah Misinterpreted by Adventists." The writer's effort to explain the prophet's statements in the second chapter, and the same prophecy in Mi. iv. is superficial, strained and untrue. The one little but significant word "for" (Mi. iv. 5,) demolishes his whole argument. It shows that the prophecy preceding it is the false saying of the people "in the last days" (Isa. ii. 1;) that instead of God saying, "many nations shall come up and say" (2) the words of the prophecy. And further, it shows that instead of righteous people saying, "Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more" (3,) in a time of supposed perennial blessedness, "all people will walk every one in the name of his God;" "for" (5) this is what the prophet says they will do. Do you believe the statements of such idolators?—An Adventist.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

We have perused the "Last Days" you kindly sent us with more than ordinary interest. The article marked and criticised by you we have read and re-read. The article shows no pusillanimity in the writer, yet he maintains a sweet, Christian spirit. His explanation of the prophecy in Micah iv. is so accordant with the immediate context, and is so harmonious with all other parts of God's Word, that I am surprised that you think "one little significant word" will preempt his "whole argument." You seize the word "for" (5) with avidity, and try to make this little word do the work of an athlete. By it you expect to "demolish!" The word is so "little," dear friend, be careful that you do not, by sophistry and puerility, give it too big a task to perform.

Now let us look at this word "for"—this word of such tremendous "significance." It is a Hebrew particle, and means "though it be that." Examine the marginal rendering in Jos. xvii. 18; Gen. viii. 21; Exod. xli. 17. "Though it be that all people will walk in the name of his God (nationally "all people" are idolators except Israel,) and we will walk in the name of our God forever and ever." (5) The nations of the earth have been, and are, "against" (11) the Israelites. They have been scattered, peeled, and afflicted by the idol worshipping nations of the earth; and in the midst of this opposition, the Jew is represented as making a resolution something like this: "though it be that" all people among whom we are dispersed and down-trodden, walk after their gods; "though it be that" in the shame of national disaster, we have for centuries as nomads among idolators, yet in view of the heart-building prophecy that our temple is to be restored with its sacrifices (1,) we will walk in the name of our God forever and ever." As they were thoroughly cured of idolatry by the Babylonian Captivity, so they will be effectually healed of unbelief by their present dispersion, affliction, and dishonor. Zech. x. 8-12. "In that day"—here we ask the reader to pause a moment, just long enough for us to "demolish" something! Keep sedate while we ask "an Adventist" who says this: "in that day?" Is this the "false sayings of the people?" the "statements of idolators?" Listen, O ye Adventists; "In that day, SAITH THE LORD, will I assemble her that halteth, and I will gather her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted, and I will make her that halteth a remnant, and her that was cast off a strong nation; and the Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion from henceforth, even forever. And thou, O tower of the flock, the stronghold of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem." Absconding Adventists, we know it is irksome for you to hear these words of Holy Writ; but if you can endure it remain with us until we quote the 11th, 12th, and 13th verses, and then you can avaunt: "Many nations are gathered against thee. . . . But they know not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they his counsel; FOR HE SHALL GATHER THEM AS THE SHEAVES INTO THE FLOOR. . . . Thou shalt break in pieces many people; and I will consecrate their gain unto the Lord of the whole earth." Our Adventist friends, when confronted with plain statements like this passage, and which undeniably proves the restoration of Israel as a nation, seek to evade the force of the text by saying, "O, that's spiritual; it means spiritual Israel—the church." But beloved, who has been "halted;" "driven out," "afflicted" and "cast off?" The church? No! Literal Israel. Very well; so far so good. "I will gather her that is driven out" (6) "I will make her that halteth a remnant, and her that was cast off a STRONG NATION." (7) The same "her" that was "cast off" and "driven out" is to be "gathered" and made a "strong nation." But the Adventists, like the "many nations" (11,) "understand not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they his counsel." This accounts for, and explains, why they do not believe the Lord will gather his people "as the sheaves into the floor," and make them "a strong nation"—in fact the "first dominion" in the coming kingdom, the kingdom which shall "come to the daughter of JERUSALEM."

Our friend thinks that the "perennial blessedness" spoken of in Micah iv. is only "supposed" by the aberrations of an idolatrous people; that it is only a lad, never to be realized; that it is only the "false sayings" of "idolators," who are afflicted with a disease, which for convenience we shall call, inflammation of the imagination! The Editor thought he was pretty well posted in the wily ways of modern theologians. He thought he had seen every dodge human ingenuity could invent in the way of theological quackery; such as, "That's spiritual;" "the Bible was never intended to be understood;" "it makes no difference what we believe anyway," etc., etc., and we have seen the Josephite, scissors in hand, go through the Bible, clipping out a passage here, and a text there that did not suit him. And occasionally we have seen him when his theory had been made uncomfortable by a cogent argument, sufficiently filled with effrontery to tear out a whole chapter and brand it "spurious." But for "an Adventist" to put down as the "false sayings of the people;" prophecies made by the God of Abraham, and to brand as statements of "idolaters," the language of the Most High God, reaches the climax of presumption! He has reached the last round of the ladder; there are no further heights to climb! We warn you friends, one and all, Be careful how you tamper with the words of the living God. He who despises the Lord's Word "shall be destroyed." Prov. xiii. 13. Anciently God's people "mocked the messengers of God, despised his words, and misused his prophets," with the fearful result that "the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, TILL THERE WAS NO REMEDY," to heal them. (2 Chron. xxvi. 16, see margin.) "As the fire devoureth the stubble, and the flame consumeth the chaff, so their root shall be as rottenness, and their blossom shall go up as dust." O my Lord, against what crime have you decreed such a vengeance? "BECAUSE THEY HAVE CAST AWAY THE LAW OF THE LORD, AND DESPISED THE WORD OF THE HOLY ONE OF ISRAEL, THEREFORE IS THE ANGER OF THE LORD KINDLED AGAINST HIS PEOPLE, AND HE HATH STRETCHED FORTH HIS HAND AGAINST THEM." Isa. v. 24, 25.

I had rather submit to death in a hangman's noose than "despise" one word "the Holy One" has said; I would lay my neck on the block before I would "cast away" one jot or tittle of God's Word which he has "magnified above his name." Our friends who have "despised" certain parts of God's Word because it did not suit them, and have "cast away" other parts of it because it did not jingle with their theories, will find, when they come into judgment, that they have provoked the Lord to wrath, and that he will stretch forth his hand against them in a fiery indignation, which shall destroy the adversaries. Heb. x. 27. They will then find (but alas, too late for them) that God is not mocked; that their "blossom" of beauty, which looked so well and smelled so aromatic, shall go up as dust, and that their very roots which they thought were securely fastened in the ground, shall be as rottenness. As they decompose in the rottenness of the grave they will regret ten thousand regrets that there is no remedy that will heal them.

Do you want to turn from such a black, dreary vista, to a lovely and bright future? Then believe the words of the Almighty. And what are his words in Isa. ii. 3, 4? Here they are; accept them. "He shall judge among the people, and shall rebuke strong nations afar off. . . . Neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree, and none shall make him afraid; for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it." Does this say, The mouth of idolaters have spoken it? Or, for this is one of the false sayings of the people? No indeed! The mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it.

You conclude your letter with the question, "Do you believe the statements of such idolaters?" We conclude our reply with the interrogation: Do you believe what "the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken?"

Abraham.

After the dispersion the population of Babylonia were dominated by that giant in wickedness, as opposed to that righteous rulership continued in the family of Shem—Nimrod, grandson of Ham, and mighty hunter before the Lord—established on a basis of human wisdom a system of misgovernment, which in a variety of forms and phases have dominated the world to this day (1908) so that the Nimrodean which started with Babel—Babylon confusion—and symbolically corrupter of the world—developed into the great Babylonian empire. A despotism of the strongest kind continued with occasional modifications till the last phase under Gog and confederate powers who are destined to be overthrown upon the mountains of Israel. "The little stone"—smites the colossal image on the feet and toes then in the reverse order on to the heart of gold—all broken to pieces and becomes like chaff before the wind. The misgovernment of organized sin in the world, was, is and will be tolerated and overruled by the God of heaven. But a limit is set and firmly fixed in the Divine purpose, so that thus far and no farther shall human rulership be tolerated.

The time having come for divine intervention to be manifested in the call of Abram—high father or sheik—from Ur of Chalde as the one man recognized by the Deity as suitable for his purpose—pause here and reflect; just one man, the root of the new order of things in the order and sense of means to a definite end in view. No Abram!! Then what?

The records concerning Abram—Abraham are something more than a biographical sketch merely for the filling a certain space in the make up of a book recording event in su[illegible]an one's career. Covenant with Abram concerning the land—the inheritance of himself and seed. Firstly in the singular number, and secondly in the plural. The unitseed make the multitudinous seed possible, and "The promise is sure to all seed"—the natural as well as the "children of promise"—the Isaacs. Take a map and examine the extent of territory embraced in the "promised land" and find it to be 1100 miles by nearly five hundred, or 550,000 square miles—each mile containing 640 acres. And if, as Pope wrote, that "every rood of ground maintained its man." Then what an immense population may be expected and sustained when the curse is removed and the earth produce in abundance the best of everything for the use of a thankful and worshipful population, not including the officials of the government, who execute justice to all. God found the man he wanted and made him the depository of his promises, and therefore Abram becomes Abraham—"Father of a multitude of nations." And of Sarah it is written—"I will give thee a son of her"—"mother of nations—a royal people shall be from her." The C. V. reads, "Kings of people shall be of her"—"kings of people" is rather an awkward way of expressing the thought. Abraham 100 and Sarah 90 years of age. And yet, Abraham staggered not the least bit, but believed that God would give him a son, and God did, and so Isaac was born. Here is another wonderful departure from the natural order of things, and affirms the co-operation of God and man in the redemptive scheme. And therefore the covenant of ages established with Isaac and from whom Abraham's seed were destined to be called. It may not be out of place to notice that the renewal of the promise to Isaac was actually unconditional and predicated upon what Abraham had already done. "Because Abraham" did so and so. And so Isaac is thus farther demonstrated to be the destined representive of the "children of promise," in every clime, in every age into "the dispensation of the fulness (or completion) of times" of restitution announced by the prophets in the Holy Scriptures. "Now, we brethren," says Paul, "as Isaac was, are the children of promise." After referring to the princess Sarah as the "upper Jerusalem"—in rank, mind ye, "our mother"—mother of all the Isaacs, "to the manor born"—so then.....we are not children of the bond woman but of the free"

Gold Nuggets from the Christian Mine.

When we grow weary of the curse that is on all hands let us lift the telescope of faith and try to get a focus on the country, where it shall be said "And there was no more curse," and though we "see through a glass darkly" the comparison will give good cheer.

We may know something of the height, and depth, length and breadth of God's love through Christ by contrast with the wrath of the law.

We should seek eternal life and hasten when we know that the wages of sin is death.

Though a legion of angels should attempt to cast a crown for the redeemed out of the gold of the selfish, they would fail.

The farthing of the widow was noticed at the temple and will be remembered at the palace. The handfuls of gold of the rich caught the eyes of the throng by its glitter, but will be forgotten at the palace. Palace crowns are not of corruptible gold.

When you "count your blessings" do not forget to help those that have sorrows; and it may be no discredit to them; for "He was a Man of sorrow and acquainted with grief." This is his great honor and our great help.

The mine expert knows the valuable gold nugget, though it be stained and colored by the worthless substance with which it had lain buried; but he will kick with contempt at the valueless mica which the novice greedily gathers, thinking he is accumulating great riches, in fragments of gold. "It is not all gold that glitters."

"Experience is a dear school," but it makes the wise more wary; we learn more by contrast and comparison and get deeper impressions than by any other method, and may no longer be "fools" if we have learned in that school and use our knowledge wisely.

By your power of contrast and comparison you know the short ring from the long ring at the phone. By the same ability differently applied you know the genuine dollar from the counterfeit.

The infidel blinded by the fog of skepticism looked at us poor, lame, hobbling Christian beggars; the fog lifted so he caught the outlines only of the Christ and he exclaimed, "I admire that noble man, Jesus of Nazareth"! Let us study Jesus of Nazareth more by contrast with ourselves, and we will gain knowledge more valuable than nuggets of gold, if applied to character.

There is nothing so contemptible as deception and hypocrisy; nothing so condemned, and detested by Jesus, as it should be by all, that would be like him. The skeptic condemns Christianity, because professed Christians fail to reach the standard. It is only a proof of the genuineness of the standard.

We appreciate the garden of flowers in its beauty, because we have seen the waste of the barren desert.

I saw a city of 500,000 rapidly depopulated of half its inhabitants, because they knew of other regions where earthquakes do not come. They fled in terror from once happy homes which were being devoured by ravenous flames. The power of contrast gave them haste.

My congregation almost stampeded from the church in Oklahoma. Towns in the state had been recently destroyed by cyclones; it was cyclone times; rain pattering against roof and windows, sent a magnetic wave of fear through the audience; in Oregon it would have caused the people to settle down to a two hours siege with the assurance that we could go home when the rain slacked; comparison.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

After looking over the enclosed paper—cannot see how I could curtail the wording and still maintain the sense. I have not given references because I infer that the intelligent reader will be able to recognize the partly quoted passages. Perhaps I should refer more minutely to the standing of Isaac in the development of the "Divine purpose" in the line of the Messiah—The Lord's Anointed.

Have heard people remark—"No difference to me whether there ever was or was not an Abraham,—the religion of Jesus Christ is good enough for me," etc. Dear me, how faithless, thoughtless, and dark of mind and conscience I write you as a co-worker unto the kingdom of God, and hope you will give me the benefit of any criticism which you may think proper as you can have the time to do so.

"Busy." To be sure you are busy in the work to which you have given yourself. And "may the Lord bless you, and give you peace."

As ever in the one Hope,

C. W. TOMKINS.

Why Counterfeited?

Did you ever see a counterfeit $10 bill?

Yes.

Why was it counterfeited?

Because it was worth counterfeiting.

Was the $10 bill to blame?

No.

Did you ever see a scrap of brown paper counterfeited?

No.

Why not?

Because it was not worth counterfeiting.

Did you ever see a counterfeit Christian?

Yes, lots of them.

Why was he counterfeited?

Because he was worth counterfeiting.

Was he to blame for being counterfeited?

No.

No Room for Boasting.

Bachelor—A man's wife is called the "weaker vessel" in the Bible.

Minister—Yes; but even if you put the text that way, the implication still remains that man is a weak vessel, so there is little room for boasting.

Read at Sisters Meeting, Indiana Conference.

Sister Willey:

Your kind letter of remembrance was duly received by me, and I feel so thankful to be remembered now in my declining years by dear ones from whom I have been so long separated. It reminds me of the love of the Father above for his dear ones, though many of them have been sleeping for ages in unmarked graves, yet he loves them still. They are never forgotten, and soon the coming Lord will claim them for his very own.

Say to the dear ones assembled in Conference meeting for me, Do not be discouraged, do not give up the fight, though the way seems dark sometimes and troubles and sorrows beset us, and we seem to stand almost all alone. Soon the glorious light of the Eternal Day will burst upon us; our Lord will remember us, and our time of sorrow and of trial will be over, the cross laid down, the crown of glory ours.

The day of your meeting together, October 8th, I will be 81 years of age. But few of those whom I knew in my early life are now living. A loved companion and many dear ones have fallen under the great sae my death, but how thankful I feel that it will not be forever; and with [illegible]eat joy and hope and longing, I am looking forward to the time when the blessed Master will come for his precious jewels. This has been my consolation in many a time of sorrow and distress.

How sweet this hope to me, how precious the words of life, and the promises of our God. Though we may never meet in this life, yet if true, if steadfast and faithful, we will meet in the golden morning of the Resurrection Day.

Your Sister in Christ,

MRS. JANE CORDALEY.

President Lincoln's Advice.

It became the duty of President Lincoln to send a letter of censure to a young officer accused of quarreling with another. This is what he wrote:

"The advice of a father to his son, 'beware of entrance to a quarrel, but, being in, bear it that the opposed may beware of thee,' is good, but not the best. Quarrel not at all. No man resolved to make the most of himself can spare time for personal contention. Still less can he afford to take all the consequences, including the vitiating of his temper, and the loss of self-control. Yield larger things to which you can show no more than equal right; and yield lesser ones though clearly your own. Better give your path to a dog than be bitten by him in contesting for the right. Even killing the dog would not cure the bite."

A Practical Truth.

As assuredly as the practical character of the Lord's second coming is really apprehended in the power of it, the most blessed effects upon the life and deportment of Christians will follow. By means of it we are taught what awaits the worldly, lying in the wicked one, and what will be the end of all this world's glory, pride and pomp. The future destiny of the children of God is also unfolded to us, even that we shall be perfectly conformed to the image of our risen Lord, both in soul and body, when we shall see him as he is.—George Muller.

"There is no science or art, whatever you call it," says a physician, "in which the changes are so frequent and so radical as in medicine. The medical library which I got after leaving Harvard medical school nearly 30 years ago is useless today. The theories in vogue then are forgotten now, just as the pet theories and fads of today will be forgotten ten years hence. Its little use buying medical books. The germ theory of disease will surely be outgrown, and it looks now as if it would be followed by a craze for mental therapeutics. The pendulum swings back and forth, between mind and matter, and meanwhile people manage to get well, or to die, as God wills. Doctors haven't really much to do about it. Mental healing has its province, but what the boundaries of that province are no one has yet discovered."

Remember the prayerless soul is a fruitless soul. If we measure our work for God by our own ability to do it we must not be surprised if God takes us at our word, and the results are small; but if we are trustful enough to believe that it is God, and not we, by whom the work is done, we shall surely find the blessing to be according to his power and out of all proportion to our own strength.—Braithwaite.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 18.

DAVID'S KINDNESS TO JONATHAN'S SON. 2 SAM IX.

Golden Text. Be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another. Eph iv 32.

At the death of Saul the enemies of Israel were victorious, and the kingdom of the Lord was in a mixed up condition. Judah made David king, but that did not at once remedy, for the time being it made matters worse. For several years there were wars and trouble between Judah and Israel, between David and the son of Saul. By the time David was made king over all Israel the nations around had grown bold. It took much and severe punishment from David before he could get rest from his enemies—the enemies of the Lord, and of Israel—the Philistines, the Moabites, Ammonites, Syrians and Edomites. 2 Sam viii.

Having quieted his enemies, and put his kingdom in good order he had time to reflect, to think of things he had promised to do, things undone, and that ought to be done.

Among other matters he remembered his covenant with Jonathan—Thou shalt not cut off thy kindness from my house for ever....So Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, saying, Let the Lord even require it at the hand of David's enemies. And Jonathan caused David to swure again. 1 Sam xx 13-17.

This was certainly most remarkable on the part of Jonathan for David at this time was, because of the persecution of Saul, an outcast, a fugitive, a wanderer, and to all appearance was likely to be killed by Saul. 1 Sam xix 1. This covenant, on the part of Jonathan was certainly prophetic. He evidently knew—had faith—that David would be king, and therefore able to fulfill the provisions of the covenant. He afterwards said so in plain words. Fear not for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee; and thou shalt be king over Israel, 1 Sam xxiii 17, 18, and there the covenant was renewed in the name of the Lord. Judging from the character and nature of David, it is more than just likely he would have been good to any of Jonathan's family without being under covenant obligation. However the Lord being a witness to the agreement it was safe and sure as human power could make it. Mephibosheth being lame on his feet was not a very prominent character. After some inquiry David found a man that could give him the information he wanted. "That I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake." He had a tenderly affectionate remembrance of Jonathan. Apart from the covenant, the common rule among men that "one good turn deserves another," was enough to induce a man like David to show kindness, for Jonathan was always kind to David from the time they first met before Saul. 1 Sam xviii 1-4.

To Ziba David said, "That I show the kindness of God unto him." David had a full, even overflowing experience of the kindness of God. And this promise was truly the best he could make to the son of Jonathan.

We do not know what treatment Mephibosheth had received in the house of Machir, but he seemed to be much astonished that David, the king of Israel, a king of great skill and greater power should send for him. It is not likely he knew any thing of the covenant between his father and David. If he did know of it, he did not rely on it, had no faith that it would protect him. He was afraid of David, but the kind king put him at ease. Fear not, for I will surely show thee kindness for Jonathan, thy father's sake.

All who have made a covenant with God through Jesus Christ, the covenant, the same covenant that was made with Abraham, Gen xv and Gen xxii are called upon by the words of the golden text. Observe we are not called upon to be kind to some one because some one has been kind to us. We are to be kind, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God, for Christ's sake has been kind, tender-hearted, forgiving towards us. This language has no application to those who have not entered into the Abrahamic covenant. "God so loved the world." John iii 16. But the love cannot protect those who are, "Strangers from the covenants of promise." Eph ii 12. Let us all strive to be the seed of Abraham, Gal iii 29, that we may share in the kindness of God.

Next lesson, The joy of forgiveness. Psa xxxii.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY OCT 25.

THE JOY OF FORGIVENESS. PSA. XXXII.

Golden Text. Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Psa xxxii 1.

All Sunday school lessons are important. There are none more personally so than forgiveness. We are not this time considering the case of Saul, of David, of Jonathan, or of the Israelites. The question is, Am I rejoicing in the joy of forgiveness? Many men tell us how to be forgiven of God. And God—in the Bible tells how he forgives. The two ways are entirely different. By finding out—from the Scriptures—how God has forgiven others, we will be able to decide for ourselves, if we are forgiven.

In Gen xv 6 we read, And he—Abraham—believed in the Lord, and he—the Lord—counted it—his belief, faith—to him for righteousness. Here we have, in so many plain words, that Abraham was forgiven because he believed just what the Lord told him Whatever transgressions he may have been guilty of up to this time, were all forgiven.

Abraham is called the father of the faithful—"the father of all them that believe." Rom iv 11. In other words, if we believe what Abraham believed our transgression is forgiven, our sin is covered. It is all important now to know what Abraham did believe, if we believe the same then we know the joy of forgiveness. It is not at all necessary for us to go into all the details of the things that the Lord promised Abraham. A consideration of two or three things promised will suffice. "In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." Gen xii 1-3. Abraham believed this—do we? "Unto thy seed will I give this land—Canaan. Gen xii 6, 7. Abraham believed this, do we? "All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed FOR EVER." Gen xii 14-16 Abraham believed this also, do we? Thy seed shall bena the sand for number. Gen xv 5, 6. "And he believed in the Lord; and he counted it to him for righteousness. "Thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice." Gen xxii 17-18.

Turning to Gal iii 16 we find the seed of Abraham is Christ. The apostle Paul sums up all the promises to Abraham in these few words: "In thee shall all nations be blessed" and in the same verse calls this THE GOSPEL. Gal iii 8

The commission or charge to the apostles was, "Go ye into all the world, and preach THE GOSPEL to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark xvi. 15, 16.

In these few notes we have not gone into what is covered by and included in the few words "in thee shall all nations be blessed." As far as the record, or story, in Gen. chapters xii. to xxi. goes, there is no account of Abraham asking what these promises mean. The clear statement is made, that he believed and was accounted righteous, justified, forgiven.

There are thousands who do not believe these promises, but seriously claim, and proclaim that they are forgiven, sanctified and saved. Can such a thing be possible? That is certainly a momentous question. But what is still more seriously important to us individually is, Am I one of those thousands? or have I accepted God's way of forgiveness? and am I working out my own salvation with fear and trembling? Phil. ii. 12.] Is my faith the same as Abraham's? If no, I am Abraham's seed. I belong to Christ, and am an heir to the promise, Gal. iii. 27 29. And I know of the blessedness of he whose transgression is forgiven; whose sin is covered. Throughout the Bible—especially in "Moses and the prophets" we find the gospel—the promises to Abraham—clearly explained, and therefore we can ever add to our faith knowledge, 2 Peter i 5, and grow in favor and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, 2 Peter iii. 18, and know the blessedness of the man to whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity and in whose spirit there is no guile, Psa. xxxii. 2.

Verse 5. Here David acknowledges his sin and iniquity, and confessed his transgressions unto the Lord, and he was forgiven. Why was he forgiven? Ans. Because he believed the gospel—the promises to Abraham—with all his heart and mind, as well as the promises to himself Without faith—the faith of Abraham—it is impossible to please God. Heb. xi. 6 So without faith it is impossible to be forgiven. To know the joy of forgiveness. It is not blessed is he who FEELS he is forgiven, nor who asserts he is forgiven. When any one believes—has implicit faith, like Abraham,—in the promises and is baptized, obeying from the heart, he or she shall be saved. Read Romans vi. Such a one KNOWS he is forgiven, knows he is blessed, knows his transgression is forgiven. Knows his sin is covered. Knows that God does not impute unto him iniquity. BECAUSE he has believed and obeyed the Word of God, and the Lord Jesus Christ. "Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice ye righteous; and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart."

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian. Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave, Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind, or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 4, 1908. NUMBER 41.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this and the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper, Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—every body knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is not certified as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an interesting subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, underweights it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. Has inherited herd to produce his finished work, then neglected three important minutes—he did not enclose it in an ellipse wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

A GEM.

If a pilgrim has been shadowed
By a tree that I have nursed,
If a cup of clear cold water
I have raised to lips athirst;
If I've planted one sweet flower
By an arid, too barren way;
If I've whispered in the midnight
One sweet word to chill of day;
If, in one poor bleeding bosom,
I at weep-wept chord have stilled;
If a dark and restless spirit
I with hope of Life have filled;
If I've made for life's hard battle
One faint heart grow warm and strong,
Then, my God, I thank Thee—Bless Thee
For the precious gift of song.

Salvation. No. 12.

NO OTHER NAME.

"Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven, given among men whereby we must be saved." Acts iv 12. These are the words of Peter in answer to the question of the rulers, elders and scribes, Annas, the high priest, and others. The occasion that called forth the question, "By what power, or by what name have you done this," and Peter's reply thereto, was the healing of the man, lame from birth, who, by his friends, was brought daily and laid at the gate of the temple, called Beautiful, to receive alms of the people. The poor cripple expected nothing but a small gift from Peter and John such as he had been receiving for years from those going into the temple. These apostles had neither silver nor gold, but something vastly better than the beggar's pittance they were empowered to impart in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, soundness of limb. What a glad surprise to the poor crippled man. It is no wonder that he leaped and praised God. To be freed from disease and physical defects is sufficient ground for thankfulness, but what ought we to render to the God of all grace who through his Son pardons the sinner freely; removing the sense of guilt and transforming him, making him a new creature in Christ, fitting him by a great moral change for heavenly society, and to hold companionship with unfallen angels, and with the sinless Son of God. Salvation, which is nothing short of deliverance from sin and all its direful consequences, including death, is to be wrought out through Jesus, the anointed Son of God. He ranks first among the agencies and means that God in his wisdom and goodness has employed and will continue to employ for the accomplishment of the one grand and glorious end, man's salvation. The angel said to Joseph concerning the son to be born of Mary, "She shall bring forth a son and thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sins." Matt i 21. Jesus means Savior. This was his proper name as he was known among his acquaintances and friends. He was also called the Christ, which means anointed. This is an official title or appellation. Anciently priests were anointed preparatory to serving in the priesthood, (1 Chron xvi 22), and kings also before taking their thrones, as were Saul and David at the hands of Samuel. It is affirmed of Jesus that he was anointed with the Holy Spirit and with power. Acts x 38. Jesus confesses, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." Luke iv 18. When Jesus came into the coasts (parts R. V.) of Cæsarea Philippi he asked his disciples, saying, "Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man am?" They had heard various and conflicting opinions expressed by men. Some said he was John the Baptist; some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets. These were superstitious notions entertained by men ignorant of what the prophets had written. It might be expected that the disciples could have a very different answer expressive of their own opinion of him, being his pupils. So he said to them, "But whom say ye that I am?" Simon Peter answered * * * Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." For this confession in harmony with the teaching of the prophets Jesus pronounced a blessing on Peter. It is not to be supposed that Peter was the only one of the apostles who had attained to the full conviction that Jesus was the anointed Son of God, he of whom Moses and the prophets wrote. The rest shared with him this divinely revealed truth. Peter speaks for himself and fellow apostles. This confession is in broad contrast with the conceptions entertained by men of that day, concerning Jesus. Some could believe him to be John the Baptist, and some Jeremias, and others Elias; any one but the Son of God, so convincingly proven by miracles wrought by him in their presence. They chose the ridiculous instead of the reasonable and Scriptural idea of him. It was true his birth was humble, yet royal. His parents were of a class from which it could hardly be expected that great leaders and reformers should come; yet a class in good repute in Galilee. His occupation, that of a carpenter, was objectionable, yet it was honorable because useful. Prospective kings had before him followed lowly callings. David the shepherd boy, by God's choice was placed on the throne of Israel, and thus became the father of a long line of kings, from which line this humble Nazarene came, whose claims were wickedly rejected by the Jews, in the face of most overwhelming proof. Jesus says, "Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." Matt xvi 17. No direct revelation was made to Peter. The marvelous works which he witnessed was the main ground of his conclusion—this together with the predictions of Old Testament prophets which were meeting their fulfillment in the words, character, mission and works of this lowly born Son of Mary. The Jews, looking on the outward appearance, the circumstances of his birth, parentage, place of abode, occupation, and the humble companionship of fishermen, adjudged him a false claimant to the throne of David, and charged him with blasphemy because he said he was the Son of God. John x 36.

Pilate wrote "This is the King of the Jews." Luke xxiii. 38 This stung them to the quick, so they tried to persuade him to write, he said, "I am the King of the Jews," but the governor refused to change the writing to conform to their wish. So they had to face the objectionable title which meant to all the world they had crucified their King.

Pilate had, during his trial (?) asked Jesus the question, "Art thou the King of the Jews?" to which he replied "Thou sayest it," or "it is as you say." As a fuller answer to the question he said, "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth." John xviii. 33, 37. What he confessed to Pilate is truth, saying truth concerning the only name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. Pilate was convinced that this prisoner at his bar was as he claimed to be, The King of the Jews; for in reply to the rabble cry, of Crucify him, Crucify him, he retorted, Shall I crucify your King? Pilate's repeated asseveration was, I find no fault in him. Yet against his own convictions of the innocency of Jesus he gave sentence that Barabbas should be released unto the mob and Jesus be crucified. Unjust Governor the washing of your hands in token of your freedom from guilt does not free you from the crime of murder. An ocean of water cannot remove the stain of innocent blood. The guilty was freed from punishment and turned loose on human society; and the guiltless Son of God sentenced to be crucified as the basest of criminals; as the result of Pilate's cowardice.

"Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God." Both question and answer involves the notion of pre eminent Sonship, ranking him above any of the many sons of God. The question contemplated an answer that would exalt him as superior to all other created moral and responsible beings; so in harmony with this all promises and prophecies concerning him, give him first place in Jehovah's beneficent plan to save men. I will further remark that the question was not designed to elicit the answer that he was the son of Joseph after the flesh, nor the son of Joseph in a legal sense, nor even a son of God, but The Son of the living God. The Anointed One, the One of whom Moses and the prophets wrote; the One singled out and made conspicuous by divine revelation, as qualified and empowered to do a work that no other created being could do, restore fallen and undone man to God's favor and bestow on him a nature as enduring as that of the unfallen angels.

No one name or title brings out or sets before us the fullness of meaning of his character and office. These are rather to be gathered from all that is written about him on the pages of Inspiration, and this must include his many titles, the more imposing of which I quote; The Son of the living God; The only begotten of the Father; The Son of the Highest; Jesus Christ; Savior; Redeemer; Mighty God; (Isa. ix. 6.) Counsellor; The Prince of Peace; Lord; The man that is my fellow; Shepherd; Life; Resurrection; The Word; Wisdom of God; Express image of his Person; The Son of Man; The Branch; The Lamb of God; Lord of lords and King of kings.

This many titled personage was the Word in the beginning, the promised seed destined to bruise the serpent's head; the Word made flesh by supernatural begettal (Matt. i. 18; Luke i. 35) born of the Virgin Mary in the line of David, and in the town of Bethlehem. Prophecy began to meet its fulfillment in this infant Son of Mary. His birth, so lowly was honored by the presence of the angel of the Lord, who announced to the awed and trembling shepherds "good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Savior which is Christ the Lord." One angel is not enough to do honor to the infant King; for we are told that "suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Angels from some far distant world, lowly shepherds from the plains and hillslopes about Bethlehem, and Wise Men from the East paid honor alike to this infant heir to David's throne. In that manger-cradled child were enfolded marvelous possibilities of the future. There was the prophet, the priest and the King. Well might angels honor by their presence the occasion of his birth, and Wise Men from the East pay adoration and make their offerings.

Honor is due to him now as to no other wearing the human form, for on the ground of his love of righteousness and hatred of iniquity, God anointed with the oil of gladness above his fellows (Heb. i. 9) and made him better, even than the angels, as by inheritance he obtained a more excellent name than they, (verse 4) for God never at any time said to one of these, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Verse 5. This Being, so exalted, is not ashamed to call sanctified man brethren. Heb. ii. 11, 12. What condescension!

This Son is so emphatically entitled to honor that he who honors him not fails to honor the Father. John v. 23. Our love must be centered on him, and it must be so great as to prompt to the keeping of his commandments. John xiv. 15. Failure to do this forfeits his love of us, and this means forfeiture of life. Jesus has a higher claim upon our love than father and mother, so he said "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me." Matt. x. 37. This supreme love for him in ages of persecution brought the faithful disciple to the faggot and flames, and entitled him to the martyr's crown. Paul is an illustrious example of firm adherence to the truth at the cost of his life by sentence of Nero. What sacrifice will we make for the truth in Jesus?

Ordaining a Saloon Keeper.

Let us look and listen while the authorities ordain a saloon-keeper.—He openly professes that he has been "called" to sell rum; and he is recommended as a man of "good moral character" by some one who is willing to back him financially. The license fee is paid, and he is pronounced all correct by the ordained authorities, who now proceed with the ceremony, substantially as follows:

"Take thou authority to tempt men. Take thou authority to rob men of their money and reason. Take thou authority to stain our streets with blood. Take thou authority to fill our jails, and increase taxation. Take thou authority to destroy the sons of men, and take thou authority to defy the commands of high heaven. And when you are called to an account in the day of judgment, present this license, and say that we, the authorities, who have been elected by Christian people, authorized you to sell rum."

If any speak ill of thee, flee home to thy own conscience, and examine thy heart; if thou be guilty, it is a just correction; if not guilty, it is a fair instruction. Make use of both; so shalt thou distil honey out of gall, and out of an open enemy create a secret friend.—Quarles.

How frequently is the honesty and integrity of a man disposed of by a smile or a shrug! How many good and generous actions have been sunk into oblivion by a distrustful look, or stamped with the imputation of proceeding from bad motives, by a mysterious and seasonable whisper!—Sterne.

Obituary.

In memory of Franklin Updike, who died Oct. 6, 1908, aged 72 years, 11 months and 6 days.

He lived near Brownstown, Virginia, and is survived by a devoted wife and four children: Dr. C. F. Updike, Burch Updike, Pauline Updike and Mrs. Kate Brown, all of whom are left to mourn their loss. The deceased was a kind and devoted husband, a loving father, a good neighbor, one among our best citizens, whose genial ways will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

He was a lover of truth, and his companion is one of the eldest members of the Church in this place. Their house has been one of my religious homes for many years. Their door was always open to any of the followers of Christ, and they were not forgetful to entertain strangers as well. Mr. Updike, or "Uncle Frank" as we all familiarly loved to call him, was intimately acquainted with my deceased husband during the days of his pilgrimage, and he always had a warm side for the doctrine he taught concerning the kingdom of God.

Many a pleasant hour have I spent at their old homestead, talking on these things, and in the latter part of his life he bought a new teacher's Bible, which he made his constant companion until his last sickness, which he bore with great patience and without murmuring until he fell quietly asleep, and now awaits the resurrection morn when we all hope to meet our loved ones and see the King in his beauty.

Boys, Be Spruce!

Boys, be spruce. Always strive to look neat and clean. Black your shoes and brush your clothes. Never let people see you with your hair like "Old Nick in a gale of wind," or with your face and hands the color of mud. Slovenliness and dirt tell against you fearfully. Speak up, and never hang back when people ask you questions you ought to answer. Promise only what you can and will perform. Be prompt. Keep your appointments to the second, and never put off things. Tell the truth invariably. These rules well attended to, will make you manly, and gain you the good opinion of the world.

A Wise Chinaman.

"Ultimate good is only to be obtained through hardship," said Kong Yne Wei, the Chinese reformer. Did you ever hear of our great sage, Chang Wu?

"Well, one day a beautiful princess came to propound important questions to the sage, but was so shocked to note his great age and manifold infirmities that she forgot to speak, and could only gaze at him in silence.

"'Daughter,' said Chang Wu, smiling, 'why do you regard me so strangely?'

"The princess flushed and murmured confusedly:

"'O father, do—do you not find it very unpleasant to grow old?'

"'Yes, very,' Chang Wu answered. 'But it's the only way I ever heard of to live a long time.'"

The practical thought in this lesson is in David's question to Ahimaas—

"IS THE YOUNG MAN SAFE?"

The young man is not safe, for various reasons.—

He is in bad company. He is away from home. His environments are unwholesome. He has begun to drink intoxicants and to smoke cigars. He is not yet a drunkard—oh not but the drunkards of today were scholars in Sunday School thirty years ago. His habits will soon be past changing. He is beginning to envy the rich. He is learning to gamble and to bet. The sporting page is the best page in the paper. He gives way to his lower nature—evil stories delight him. He thinks thoughts that should not enter the mind of the pure. He is also imbibing skeptical opinions. There is much in mere opinion, for some men are governed by opinion. False ideas of this life and that to come are easily formed. Depending on opinion he soon learns to think there is no God, no future life, no judgment day. Pitfalls at first, then disaster and ruin complete.

"Is the young man safe?

Sowing and Reaping.—"'Tis a law of the harvest that we reap more than we sow." We should be careful of the seed we now, that we may reap a full harvest of "golden grain" for our Master. "Like produces like," so look well to the nature of the soil, as well as the kind of seed, so that the plants be productive. Sow that kind of seed that will be a joy and pleasure to reap by and by.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Do not forget to renew your subscription when it expires.

All space this time is given to correspondence.

The Presidential campaign is over, and Mr. Taft has been chosen President of the United States for the next four years.

We give in this issue the obituary of our beloved Brother C. C. Ramsey. Thus one by one the old faithful pioneers are falling. We wish the Lord would soon come and end the rule of death.

The Atonement

That this very important doctrine is not clear in the minds of a number of those of the one faith is evident from remarks the writer has heard and articles which we have read. The object of this article is to set forth what we understand the Scriptures to teach. To fully understand the subject we must first see the need of an atonement. In reading the first three chapters of Genesis we learn that the man whom the Lord God created was put on trial in the garden and failed. This left the race without the promise of eternal life. God promised Adam dominion conditionally. The provisions were that they keep the law, viz: not eat of the tree in the midst of the garden. Adam became alienated from God through disobedience and was driven out of the garden. It now became necessary that some one of the race remove this alienation or effect an atonement with God that all who wished might become reconciled to our heavenly Father. In the language of another, "some one of the race must work his way back into the garden." This Christ did through obedience to the law of sin and death and the Mosaic law. He did the things always that pleased his heavenly Father. God recognizing him as his obedient Son in whom he was well pleased. If we keep in view the position toward God of the first and second Adam we will be able to understand the atonement. The Edenic law was, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." It is evident that Adam did not suffer the penalty of this law but was permitted to die a natural death as he lived 930 years and died. The penalty of this law must be met in the person of some one of the race. The one who does this must be just and not suffer as a malefactor. This one was Jesus the Christ. He suffered, the just for the unjust. Christ also [illegible]th once suffered for our sins, the just for the unjust that he might bring us to God. 1 Pet iii 18. He was judged a malefactor by false witnesses. By this means he was cursed but God relieved him of this unjust sentence by raising him from the dead. Jesus by his own blood obtained eternal redemption. Heb ix 12. "For us" in this text being supplied we omit it and state that Jesus by his blood obtained eternal redemption for himself with the power of giving eternal redemption to as many as will obey the gospel of Christ. Jesus wrought out the atonement that we might be reconciled to God through Jesus. We should keep in view that the atonement is the work of Christ and the reconciliation is the work of the race. In Heb v. 9 we read, "And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." The atonement has been effected for us and we are permitted to become the sons and daughters of God by adoption. Jesus was God's only begotten Son and because of his perfect obedience God raised him from the dead. Our reconciliation is brought about by faith, repentance and immersion into the name of Jesus the Christ. Immersion is as Paul teaches in Rom vi a crucifying of the old man. By this ordinance we come under the Edenic law as did Christ. We have been crucified, put to death, know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? This relieves us of the law of sin and death.

Again Paul declares that being buried in baptism is the circumcision not made with hands, which is the putting off of the sins of the flesh. Rom vi 3; Col ii 11, 12. Circumcision under the Mosaic law was a purifying ordinance. In Rom iv Paul states that Abraham received circumcision as the seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised. This rejects the heretical doctrine of substitution. If Jesus becomes our substitute and has "paid it all" as some teach and sing, there is nothing else that we can do. To become the only begotten Son of God Jesus was put on trial and tested. He proved worthy and received the name of the Father. In order to become adopted into this family and receive the name, we must obey and be placed on trial and tested.

We here desire to give a definition of atonement. To become one, at-one-ment. The Hebrew word in the Old Testament means to cover. The acts under the law produced an atonement. The word reconcile has the same general meaning and is from the prefixes re and con, and the root word cileo which means to call with or together again. Christ became the author of reconciliation. In this connection we wish to state a few facts. (1) That the human race is under condemnation of death on account of Adam's sin. Rom v 12, 16; Rom iii 9; Gal iii 22.

(2) That sin has produced a breach between man and his Creator. Rom v 10; 2 Cor v 10; 2 Cor v 18.

(3) That the means of healing this breach can be provided by God only. Isa lix 16; Hos xiii 4; John iii 16; Rom xi 32.

The above facts are indisputable and are in opposition to the doctrines taught by the churches of our day.

(1) That Christ's death took away the sins of all mankind. Now if this were true the race would have nothing to do and universal salvation would be the result, which is affirmed by many. It is affirmed that the following Scripture proves the above statement. Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Jesus was the Lamb of God and by his death he rendered the Adamic penalty ineffectual on conditions of faith, repentance and immersion. Those who believe the above statement to be true must deal with the fall. John iii 36. He that believeth not the Son shall not see life.

(2) That Christ died as a substitute. This destroys the whole plan of redemption. A substitute is one who takes the place of another. The one for whom the substitute is provided goes free. There can be no further claim upon him in any way. The law under which he was placed has been annulled. This being true, death would be abolished. This can not be true, because death is abroad in our land today. Paul declares that Christ hath abolished death. Shall we take this in a literal sense, or as something that is conditional? Some in order to believe in the universal resurrection of the race claim that Christ's death effected all in Adam, and by his death all will be raised from the dust. This strikes at the very foundation of the Bible doctrine of the atonement. We are admonished to first put on Christ. Then if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we (those who have put on Christ) have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin. 1 John i 7. The blood of Christ effects only those who are his through faith, repentance and immersion. It was through his blood that he obtained eternal redemption. Paul declares that God brought from the dead the Lord Jesus, through the blood of the everlasting covenant. Heb xiii 20. The shedding of the blood of bulls and goats could not effect what the blood of Christ did. The gospel of the kingdom of God is quickened through the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus the Christ. As Christ worked out his own salvation, that is obtained eternal redemption, so are we commanded to work out our salvation with fear and trembling. Jesus has done for us what we could not do for ourselves. We read in Psa lxxx 17, Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand, upon the Son of Man whom thou madest strong for thyself. This was effected by the Father giving to Jesus a strong heredity. Trace his strength down through such characters as Abel, Noah, Enoch, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David and Mary, and then add to those that he (Christ) was begotten by the Holy Spirit. He had the blood of the ancients in his veins and was the Son of one whom God graciously favored above all mothers from Eve down. In the fifth Psa xxviii., etc. Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies. I have more understanding than all my teachers; for thy testimonies are my meditation. I understand more than the ancients, because I keep thy precepts. Jesus is the only one of the race who merited righteousness. Abraham and all others have obtained righteousness through faith. What saith the Scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness. We become righteous through the faith of Abram.

Yours in the faith of Christ.

LIGHT.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding to the simple," Psalm cxix. 130.

There is no stronger figurative expression in all the Scriptures than that often used, as in this passage wherein light stands as a type of wisdom or knowledge. Solomon said: "Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun."

All the forces of nature are stimulated by the nature of the orb of day, and things animate and inanimate respond to the cheering, life-giving light of day, when darkness is dispelled by sunrise.

Just as truly in the spiritual world is light a symbol and type of blessings from the Great Life-Giver. The passage just quoted from Psalm cxix. is one of the best of these symbolic uses of light, as indicating God's favor. They who have that light dwell in the light of his countenance, for he "maketh his face to shine upon them, and teaches them his statutes."

An instance of literal light and of darkness being miraculously sent as marks of God's favor on the one hand and his judgment or wrath on the other, is found recorded in Exodus x. 21-23). Here we read "And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt. And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days. They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days; but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings."

We see here a case of God's displeasure indicated by real darkness, and his favor marked by miraculously supplied light. Certainly we can all see that God was giving a lesson, which would be used in all generations to illustrate his spiritual blessings to Israel—the Israel that saw those wonders with natural sight, and spiritual Israel who sees them by the spiritual sight derived from his Word.

The Psalmist David had this spiritual perception highly cultivated by meditation upon the words of God, which he says give light and understanding to the simple. He was thus brought, as it were, into the presence of God, using the expression as if the light he derived from the Word was radiated from the very presence of God, saying, "Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us," just the contrary to turning his back upon them. This is a strong contrast, yet in harmony with the words found in Isaiah ix. 2, "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined."

They that turned to God through the belief of his Word, saw a great Light when they received Jesus as the Son of God, and thus practically escaped from "the shadow of death."

The prophecy recorded in Isaiah is quoted by Matthew (iv. 16) as fulfilled in Jesus when he first set out to preach the Gospel of the kingdom. His proclamation begins with the words "Repent (turn about, face the other way, face God, not be walking from him, or walking in darkness) Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Jesus was the embodiment of truth and light. His teachings were full of light to the darkened mind, so Paul calls his message "the light of the glorious gospel of Christ; for God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined into our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." 2 Cor. iv. 4 ff.

A word has been coined to meet the idea here expressed by Paul—that word is "enlightenment." The figurative use of the word "light" to express knowledge is so familiar in the Scriptures and in our common every day usage, that it almost appears to be natural rather than figurative. And this seems to have been true from the earliest human history. God himself wisely arranged such use of many words spoken in one language, so that the mind is impressed in the figurative use of the word by the common physical facts of nature as observed in our surroundings.

Just note a few facts about "light." In the physical or natural world: "In the beginning God said, Let there be light, and there was light." From this we see that God is the source or giver of light to the new made world as well as of the spiritual light contained in his Word.

In the natural world "light" and "heat" or warmth are almost synonymous terms, and the sun, the great light giver, is also at the same time the source of heat, which is the source of all life both animal and vegetable upon the earth.

Therefore we can readily see there is Divine Wisdom and wonderful appropriateness in the use of the word light in connection with the Word of Truth for it, the word "giveth understanding to the simple," and becomes the source of life eternal in them by its genial influence, like the sun's rays in the natural world. Gives understanding to the simple! Who are the simple? Is every one simple who is taught by the Word? It may be that we can find some indication at least of the truth in Psalm xix, where we read—"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; (or literally, restoring the life) the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple." Then we see that the simple are those who lack wisdom, and who come to the words of God for wisdom, and that wisdom comes to them through the entrance of his words—they give light to the darkened mind and understanding to the simple, and makes them wise who were simple. It makes them "wise unto salvation," for the law of the Lord is contained in his words, and the passage just read shows that "the law of the Lord converts the soul," restoring to the simple newborn ones, a knowledge of his way of life.

Brethren and Sisters, All of us have received some measure of the light of God's Word, the entrance of which giveth understanding. We were all simple once. What light we have received has been given us to use. We are taught that we must work out our own salvation. That does not mean do nothing. It means that our one talent should be increased to two, and two talents to five, and our five to ten talents.

It means that the light which we have received should be used to get us more light; that we may grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. He said "Let your light so shine that men may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven." We can all preach better sermons by our life than with our lips. Many a man can refute the arguments of the Apostle Paul to his own satisfaction, at least, who is disarmed and speechless before the story of his life of self-sacrifice and love.

Jesus said "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall ha[illegible] light of life." To follow him is to be like him—following his example in everything. That was what makes Paul's words ring true. They were in full accord with his life and works. He shall not walk in darkness, Jesus said who follows him, which reminds us of David's words, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path. Order my steps in thy word, and let not any iniquity have dominion over me."

The "light of life" which Jesus spoke of is in his word, and it is a life giving word. The light is mental and spiritual; it is uplifting and upbuilding to the moral side of our nature, therefore "good works" must follow as the result of enlightenment. No one can rightly claim to be enlightened by the Word of God, and not show the fruits of that inward light by his good works.

Paul said to the Thessalonians "Ye are the children of the light, and the children of the day," and further on adds "But let us who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love, and for a helmet the hope of salvation." To be sober is to be serious—be in earnest.

Our faith is not likened by Paul to a garment, or an adornment, to be worn lightly, as mere covering of our own true selves. His language all suggests warfare, contention, struggle and hardship. Our religious professions must be borne out by good works.

Faith and love are forever linked together and inseparable, as Paul tells the Galatians, "We wait for the hope of righteousness by faith which worketh by love. Any faith that works for the glory or exaltation or advantage of the worker in the present time is vain and useless. We are in the time when selfishness, ambition, covetousness and all manner of evil passions rule the world. If the spirit of the world gets a foothold within us we are sure to let our Bibles get dusty and the word of God loses its interest to us. Things of the present eclipse the brightness of eternal things and our light becomes darkness, and we make shipwreck of our faith and become castaways on the great ocean of time.

But let us take new courage, brethren and sisters. The old Book still sheds its rays like a beacon light for all who will be guided by it. With new strength and hopefulness let us urge men to take up the study of the Bible.

Let us remind them that not what a man believes about the Bible, but what he appropriates from it determines its value and helpfulness to him. Let us stimulate and nourish our own individual spiritual life by coming closer and more sympathetically in contact with the richer and higher experiences of the men of the Bible—the great men of past times. To quote a recent writer: "Let no man make the foolish mistake of drawing a circle about his own life and by backing his own experience the measure of the possible, starve in an isolation of his own creating. Rather let us sit reverently at the feet of the good and the wise of all ages, profiting by the study of their lives and experiences"—above all at the feet of Jesus the Word of God, the light of the world. And let us aspire to realize in ourselves the splendid possibilities which their lives show and prove to be within the reach of men. By a mental fellowship with them who have grown in grace and have secured a high degree of Divine favor we are enabled to climb to spiritual heights ourselves.

Let the Bible be studied and taught with all diligence and zeal as the priceless treasury of deeper religious experiences, as well as the revelation of God through prophets, apostles and his own Son.

To him be glory and honor both now and evermore, Amen.

Dear Restitution:

The meetings conducted by Eld. S. J. Lindsay, at Marshall, Ill., Oct. 19 to 29, were greatly enjoyed. Besides the many new thoughts given us, other things were brought to our remembrance that should not be forgotten, one of these, Our need for the daily study of God's Word. Those in attendance from other points were, A. Scroggs and family, and Miss Nora Young of Paris, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Weaver, Mrs. Z. E. Brant, and B. J. Woods, of Casey, Ill.

May the lessons of truth so ably delivered, be treasured in honest hearts and bring forth fruit to the glory of God.

Letitia Murphey.

Our dear old Brother C. C. Ram[illegible] fell asleep in Christ at the home of his son, Charles, at Mason City, Iowa, September 15, 1908.

Brother Ramsay was born at Lowell, Mass., December 18, 1830, being nearly seventy-eight years of age at the time of his death. He was married April 9, 1853, at Exeter, N. H., to Emily T. Dudley, who died at Chicago, Ill., April 10, 1884, and was buried at Floyd, Iowa. Five children were born to this union; two dying in infancy, those surviving are Mrs. Willard T. Perrin, Vinton, Iowa; Mr. Chas. E. Ramsay, Mason City, Iowa, and Mr. Reno Ramsay of Algona, Ia.

On the 1st day of December, 1885, he was joined in marriage at Merrill, Kansas, to Mrs. Martha Branson who survives him. She has been his very devoted companion for over twenty-two years and keenly feels the loss of his companionship in her declining years. Force of circumstances did not permit her to be with him in his last illness.

For forty-five years Brother Ramsay has been an earnest and faithful worker for the Master. He was an earnest believer in "The Restitution of all things spoken by the mouth of all the Holy Prophets since the world began" and the soon coming of the Master. He had held charges in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, and was engaged in evangelistic work in Iowa and Kansas for many years. He was a man of eloquence and was very successful in evangelistic work, and many are the faithful ones who have been brought into the Truth by his preaching. Many have fallen asleep but there are a great number who survive him and who are able and willing to testify, both by their lives and voices, of the Truth which he brought to them, which he so earnestly believed, and of which he was such an able and ardent exponent. Well might he exclaim with the Apostle Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith."

Early this summer, Brother Ramsay came West to visit his children. He attended the Conference of the Church of God at Waterloo, Iowa, in August. He was at Floyd, Iowa, in September visiting friends, and attended the Advent Christian Conference which was being held there. Immediately after the close of the Conference at Floyd on Sunday, Sept. 13, he went to the home of his son at Mason City. On his arrival there he complained of feeling a severe pain at the pit of his stomach. A physician was called and all the care that loving hands could give was had. About 9:00 o'clock Tuesday A. M. he fell quietly asleep to await the Master's call and was laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery at Floyd beside the companion of his youth.

Funeral services were conducted by the Pastor, C. W. Brown, of the Advent Christian Church at Floyd, Iowa, his text being, 2 Sam iii 38, "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel."

John Wolf's Essay.

At an Oberlin College Commencement, one of the after-dinner speakers, General Nettleton, of Philadelphia, related an incident which he said had been more valuable to him as a lesson in moral philosophy than even all the profound teachings of their wise President Fairchild on that subject. In common with many other Oberlin students, he taught school during the winter vacation, and required his pupils, of course, to write essays. In one school an ungainly but stalwart youth named John Wolf refused for several weeks to comply. It was impossible, however, to excuse him and inasmuch as the refractory boy was at least thirty pounds heavier than his teacher, a terrible crisis seemed at hand. Finally the stubborn scholar concluded to bow to the behests of law, and drew forth a whole sheet of large-sized foolscap laden with this eminently grave and thoughtful production:

"About Virtue.—Virtue is a good thing to get a holt of. Whenever a feller gets a holt of virtue, he better keep a holt."

The General added that it has often since been useful to him to recall the terse and impressive ethics of John Wolf. Whenever he has been invited to go to Congress, or to engage in Savings Banks or Life Insurance, it has always been enough to break the spell of any such dangerous temptation to recall the great principle:—"When a feller has a holt of virtue, he better keep a holt!"

"It is not the engine with the loudest exhaust that is hauling the longest train."

Let Us Pray.

Great God, in whom we live and have our being. We are still the living monuments of thy mercy. Imperfect as we are, another day of hallowed privilege has dawned upon us, and we have one more met to worship Thee as the Body of Christ. And having taken our places before the throne where all Thy family favors are bestowed, may each, one in strong expectant faith, look for and await the promised blessing. May each member of Christ's Body gaze on him who once was slain, till the whole being is opened up for his reception, and every vestige of our own will be swallowed up in his.

We are deeply conscious of many failings, Oh God, although we have taken the name of the Anointed upon us. Forgive all, we beseech Thee, that thou hast seen amiss in us, so that we may experience thy pardoning love, and have sweet communion with Thee, and thy glorious Son and thy saints, and be able to go on our way rejoicing.

Mercifully regard those of our number lawfully detained from the Lord's Table, whether from age or infirmities or pressing duties; bless them as their need they need. And Oh, God, if any are being chained with the things of time and sense, and grown lukewarm toward Thee, Oh, God, we pray Thee use us for thy glory: give us wisdom and fortitude to warm them to revive the things that remain before it be too late.

Great God, if it be possible to snatch any more brands from the burning—graciously help us to reach them with thy gracious message. And hasten thy coming kingdom. In Jesus' name.

The Sonship of Christ.

If Jesus were as old as the Father, then he is not the Son of the Father. Those therefore who make Jesus to be God and a person from all eternity, destroy his Sonship, and by thus denying the Son, they deny the Father also, for it is by begetting the Son that he has become the Father. Such teachers are of antichrist. "Who is the liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? This is the antichrist, he that denieth the Father and the Son. Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father; he that confesseth the Son hath the Father also." 1 John ii 22 23. "Grace, mercy, peace shall be with us from God the Father, and from Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, in Truth and Love." 2 John iii. "Whosoever goeth onward and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God; he that abideth in the doctrine [of Christ], the same hath both the Father and the Son. If any one cometh unto you, and bringeth not this doctrine, receive him not into a house, and give him no greeting; for he that giveth him greeting partaketh in his evil works." 2 John ix 11. "If we deny him, he also will deny us." 2 Tim ii 12. "But there arose false prophets also among the people, as among you also there shall be false teachers, who shall privily bring in sects of perdition, denying even the Sovereign [despotes] that gathered them, bringing upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their lascivious doings; by reason of whom The Way of Truth shall be evil spoken of. And in covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you; whose sentence now from of old lingereth not, and their destruction slumbereth not." 2 Pet ii 1-3. "Beloved, while I was giving all diligence to write unto you of our common salvation, I was constrained to write unto you exhorting you to contend earnestly for the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints. For there are certain men crept in privily, they who were of old set forth into this condemnation, ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness, and denying the only Sovereign [despotes] and our Lord Jesus Christ." Jude 3-4.

These Scriptures show that those who do not teach the true doctrine concerning Christ, that is, his Sonship, will be lost, for they are of antichrist. The orthodox doctrine certainly denies the Sonship of Christ in that it teaches that he always existed, and hence never had a father. Orthodox theologians unwittingly admit this, in that they teach that the phrase "the Son of God" means an office, and not a person, and quote Matt xviii 16 to prove it: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." In this, however, they are very wrong, for Jesus is not the Son of God because he is the Christ, but he became the Christ because he was the Son of God. The Scriptures tell us he is the Son of God, not because he is the Christ, but because he is begotten of God. Read Luke i 35, "And the angel answered and said unto her, the Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee, and because of this the Holy One Begotten shall be called the Son of God."

The New Testament is full of the doctrine that Jesus is the Son of God. The angel Gabriel declared it to Mary, Luke i 32, 35. The Lord God, the Most High, spoke it audibly from heaven, Matt iii 17. Peter confessed it by a revelation from God, Matt xvi 16 17. Jesus declared it to be the enduring Truth upon which he would edify his congregation. Matt xvi 16-18. John wrote out the life and deeds of Christ that people might believe it, John xx 31, and he later wove it by the Spirit into a beautiful benediction, 2 John iii. Paul and all the other apostles taught it everywhere.

The Scriptures also carefully distinguish the person of Christ from the person of God. Rom i 7; xv 6; 1 Cor i 3; 2 Cor i 2, 3; Gal i 1-5; Eph i 2, 3, 17; v 20; vi 23; Phil i 2; ii 11; Col i 2, 3; 17; 1 Thes i 1, 3; iii 11-13; 2 Thes i 1-2; ii 16 17. 1 Tim i 1-2; 2 Tim i 2; Tit i 4; Phil iii; 1 Pet i 3; 2 Pet i 1-2, 16 18; 2 John iii; Jude 1, 21, 25.

Those who teach that Christ was created in the beginning before man, somewhere in the misty past eternity, are quite as fatal in their teaching as the straight orthodox, for they also deny the real Sonship of Jesus. In that they make him to be merely a created being like the angels, whereas the Scriptures make him to be the real Son of God by begattal, and as such he is the only begotten. John i 14; iii 16, 18; 1 John iv 9.

These teachers also deny that Jesus was actually begotten in the Virgin, for they teach that he was already a person before this, and hence their Jesus is not the Son of God and Son of Man. Such people may confess "a" son, but not THE Son of God and therefore there was no salvation in their doctrine.—E. B. Gifford.

Christian Science is Pagan Philosophy.

While claiming to be Christian, "Christian Science" is really pagan in origin and teaching. Pundita Ramabai, a native of India, says: "On my arrival in New York I was told that a new philosophy was being taught in the United States and that it had won many disciples. The philosophy was called 'Christian Science,' and when I asked what its teaching was I recognized it as being the same philosophy that has been taught among my people four thousand years."

When "Christian Science" declares that matter has no reality, it simply echoes the teaching of pagan philosophy. And when it denies the existence of a personal God, saying that God is all in all, in the sense that he is universal principle, it announces what is known in philosophy as Pantheism, and this, too, is an imported pagan commodity. Jesus Christ revealed God as Creator and Father, a spiritual personality who thinks, wills and loves.—A. C. Dixon.

Zionism in Germany is Important Factor.

German Zionists are now not only the most splendid "Landsmannschaft," having an enviable organization and contributing the most to the movement, but they have become, so to say, the brains of Zionism, laying its plans and carrying on its strategy.

Another picture of the Zionists deserves notice. The German Zionists were in Herzl's time the most stubborn adherents of political Zionism and the boldest denunciators of "Cultur Zionism" and the immediate activity in Palestine theory. Now, they are the most ardent promoters of Jewish culture—forming clubs for Jewish music, giving exhibitions of Jewish art, establishing courses of Jewish literature, and they are most vigorous and systematic workers for the rehabilitation of Palestine.

And these endeavors are indeed rewarded by splendid results. Jewish nationalism is gradually extending its influences over everything Jewish in Germany. Perhaps in no other country are comparatively so many Zionists without a Zionist consciousness as in German Jewry.

The "Bezalel" school in Palestine thus owes its existence to the German Jews, and the Hilfsverein, which creates in Palestine such institutions as kindergartens, primary schools, teacher's seminaries, and a school of technology on a national basis and in the national spirit is, of all non-Zionist organizations working in Palestine, such as the Alliance, the A. J. A., the only one that "understands the rule that the Jews in Palestine will play as a people in the awakening of the near east."—Maccabean.

A Gold Nugget of Hope.

We can well afford to see the dying spasms of an expiring epoch—wars, and rumors of war; nation against nation, famines and pestilence, and earthquakes in divers places. We can stand watching—waiting and praying and even lifting up our heads and rejoicing for our redemption draweth nigh. If beyond all this we can see the dawning of the day of the Lord, the "brightness of his coming," the Sun of Righteousness rising with healing in his wings, oh, we will be repaid a million fold, if we endure to the end.

Men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after the things that are coming on the earth. We know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. If our prayer could hasten the time of the coming day, and the better life, we would all cry "Come, oh, Deliverer come quickly. We want others saved from the thralldom, and consequence of sin, even if we fail of deliverance; but by thy grace we shall not fail.

"My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness." These words are a sweet encouragement, shimmering with the golden outline of hope though one wallows in the dust of humility.

Christ is coming! Therefore, be ye also ready. Let us lift his banner high above us, though self be humbled into the dust of the grave. There is sweet life and happiness in the beyond and a sky made glorious by his presence. Though the earth may now be as iron, and the heavens as brass, we will trust him, and still look beyond! Our hope is of more value than the nuggets of the Klondikes.

Our banner is inscribed with these indelible words, "Faith, Hope and Love;" but the greatest of these is love. Sometimes the battle is hard, but the banner never grows heavy. If in the struggle I drop in the grave, wave the same banner above my grave. Say that I forgave all who wronged me, and hide me from the shame that others have brought upon me—that I forgive as I would be forgiven! Brothers! carry the same banner higher, stronger, and longer, than I have done or till the Commander comes, and says "The good fight is finished." Then, oh joy! the struggle will be over for us for all time.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

Last evening we met at the church and organized our Berean Society.

We have thirteen members now, and will have more soon, I am sure. Eleven of us are young folks and our officers are: President, Eva Wilson, 1st Vice President, Sadie Morse, 2nd Vice President Katherine Hlenin, Treasurer, Clayton Williams and Secretary K. E. Williams.

Brother Wilson has promised to stop off while on his way south, and install the class.

Ed Williams, Sadie Morse and Myrta Tuttle came out Saturday to attend the meeting. I feel satisfied that our society is going to do just lots of good. Four of our members are not in the faith and some more are going to join, who are not in the faith.

Your Sister,

K. E. WILLIAMS.

Brother Huggins:

When I am reminded that God hath made a selection of the saints from the foolish, the weak, the base of this world, and not from the wise and prudent, we can well bear with one another in patience and long suffering. We have not chosen God; he hath chosen us.

The statement in THE RESTITUTION of Oct. 14, 1908, that I had used some words without authority, may be true with respect to one person, and I humbly ask his forgiveness. In regard to the chart, some of us believe it to be defective, and do not desire to be identified with the teaching. My letter was written on the spur of the moment, with no guile or reflections intended for any one.

We trust we have unfeigned love in our hearts for all the brethren. He knoweth his own; he calleth them all by name. Brethren, pray for us. We are weak but he is strong, and it is a lonely walk sometimes. Our common salvation is one thing, but our works in earnestly contending for the faith once delivered unto the saints, is quite another. "Let every man be careful how he builds."

In love to all.

Gold Dust.

Every action brings some sort of fruit.

Life is a quarry out of which we are to mold, and chisel and complete a character.

Our real measure of ability and willingness is in our doing the little that we can do, and not the great that we would like to do.

There is real heroism in doing one's duty, but the truest heroism is in doing what is right without being conscious that it is duty—duty having been lost in love.

The Bible's promise is always to the man who holds out to the end, not to the man that goes part way, but to him that overcometh. "To him that overcometh I will give of the tree of life; to him that overcometh will I give power over the nations; to him that overcometh I will give to eat of the hidden manna; he that overcometh shall inherit all things."

A Family Matter.

One day as a minister was passing down the street in Scranton, where he resided he was seen by some hangers-on at a public house, which he was approaching, and one of the number called to him and said:

"We have a dispute here of some importance, and would like you to decide. It is in relation to the age of the devil. Can you tell us how old he is?"

"Gentlemen," said the minister with dignity, "you must keep your own family records."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Good Will Habit.

A habit of holding a kindly attitude of mind toward everybody has a powerful influence upon the character. It lifts the mind above petty jealousies and meannesses; it encircles and enlarges the whole life. Where we meet people, no matter if they are strangers, we feel a certain kinship with the friendliness for them. If we have formed the good will habit.

In other words, the kindly habit, the good will habit, makes us feel more sympathy for everybody. And if we radiate this helpful, friendly feeling others will reflect it back to us.

On the other hand, if we go through life with a cold, selfish mental attitude, caring only for our own, always looking for the main chance, only thinking of what will further our own interest, our own comfort, totally indifferent to others, this attitude will, after a while, harden the feelings and the affections, and we shall become dry, pessimistic and uninteresting, says Home Chat.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 64.

I am leaving Auntie Willard a long time while writing the story of her contemporaries and friends but as the sketches of all these dear ones form a part of the history of the Advent movement in Northern Indiana, it is but right that I give a brief outline of their lives.

In an early day when much of this part of the state was covered by wide stretches of forest, a young and stalwart Methodist minister could often be seen on horseback threading his way over the rough, almost unbroken roads, all his belongings packed in a rude pair of saddle-bags. This was J. M. Stephenson, afterward so widely known and beloved among our brethren of the Abrahamic faith. He was born in Jennings County, Indiana, near Old Vernon and not far from Madison. His parents having died, he was placed at the age of fifteen, in the care of his uncles, Thomas and Lewis Hicklin—both very prominent preachers in the M. E. Church and ardent anti-slavery men, having been connected with many of the border-state raids upon slave territory and also in defending the slaves who were rescued from bondage and sent north by the "underground" secret service, though the work was attended with much personal danger to both rescuers and fugitives.

"J. M." imbibed the anti-slavery views of his uncles and led several bands of the colored people to the north and freedom. When he was about eighteen he attended the Lawrenceburg Academy and was chosen to deliver an oration at some public exercises. It was the turning-point of his life. Bold and enthusiastic on the subject of human rights he felt that now was his chance to speak and that speak he would. He would do his part toward breaking every yoke and letting the oppressed go free. If he could help to Freedom's emblem should not be a chain. His name was called, he came to the platform, gracefully greeted his audience and began to address them in rapidly uttered burning words, picturing as he went on the dark slave dungeons, the black slave ships, the toilers in the cane-fields and rice-swamps, the auction-blocks, the parted families, the cruel lash and agonizing cries of the bondmen.

It was a rabid abolition lecture and before he had finished talking he was mobbed, and rotten-eggs and these missiles were broken up; party-feeling running very high in that section of the country. Of course after this exciting episode he left the school, not to keep silent, but to go with his uncle Thomas on a lecturing tour to become a full-fledged abolition lecturer and preacher. His father had been a strong Baptist, but "J. M." thrown under the influence of his uncles embraced their faith, and traveled extensively for many years as an evangelist for the Wesleyan Methodists, but his health failing the conference sent him to Wisconsin, in 1845 or 1846, as an advance preacher of the anti-slavery doctrines, advocated by that church. He was very soon offered the Presidency of the Conference in the state, but having been inoculated with Advent doctrines sometime before this, he so zealously proclaimed them from the pulpit, especially that relating to the mortality of man, that he was given the alternative of leaving the conference or standing a trial for heresy. He chose to leave and with D. P. Hall began an active campaign against the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, and kindred tenets of the orthodox churches. But he and Brother Hall coming in contact with the Sabbatarians embraced their views and for five years preached for them making many converts; but having become convinced that there would still be probation for "the lost of the nations" in the age to come, he became a leader in this faction of a large and growing body of believers in the second coming of Christ and gave up the Seventh Day theory, as [illegible] and no foundation [illegible] the Scriptures of Truth.

He traveled extensively without any stated salary, supported only by the voluntary contributions of the brethren, and governed by them as to his field of labor, his wife, Lusette, making her home with her parents or traveling with him, accompanied by her daughter and active little son, for he owned no home until 1857, when he was called to preach at Eureka, Wisconsin, to a community holding no particular religious theory, the leaders of which were inclined to Universalism. Here he preached for five years and raised up a large body of believers. 1862—Will he resided in Buchanan, Mich., having bought a place there. This little haven of rest he sold to Joshua V. Himes and bought another at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, where he lived five years. Trading this for a farm at Wrightstown, Wisconsin, he moved the same year (1868) to Chicago, where he settled down, traveling from thence as the evangelist of the Chicago body of believers until after the Chicago fire, when he went to California and Oregon, to proclaim the truth, and to recuperate his shattered health. But although he remained three years on the Pacific coast, he met with little success in gaining converts. The people there cared nothing for religion; they were too busy.

While in Oregon, Brother Stephenson began writing his book—"God's Plan of Salvation." He finished and had it published in Chicago. He also wrote several smaller works and held many debates with orthodox preachers, infidels, spiritualists, etc, several of which were published in book form. The most noted of his discussions was one held at Indianapolis with a disciple preacher by the name of Russell. This debate many of the brethren will recall as it was also published in book form.

Brother Stephenson wrote much for our church paper, and was for some time its Editor at Harvard, Illinois, and at Indianapolis, Indiana, Sister Stephenson doing the office work while he traveled and preached.

In 1869 we find him holding a meeting of more than ordinary interest at Old Union, Indiana, and from there going on to Canton, Ohio, where he baptised Brother Henry Eshelman's wife and daughter and a Brother Blasi. Thursday, the brethren put up three hundred bills to advertise the meetings. By the next morning they were nearly all torn down. Three hundred more took their place, and shared the same fate! How the world hates the truth!

1869 was the year following the one in which our friends of the Christ faith, Mansfield, Field and others attempted to swing our Indiana Conference into their ranks and signally failed. Brother Stephenson and Brothers Wilson, Wagoner, Halstead and Clark, attended the conference at Antioch, Indiana, in 1869. It was an excellent meeting. From Antioch Brother "J. M." went to Tippecanoe City, Ohio, where Brother Austin Curtis and Brother Lehman lives. He also preached at many different points in Canada, with varying success.

Just when he came to Kosciusko County to preach, I cannot remember but think it was about 1884. He held meetings at Pierceton and at Gospel Grove. Also in Brother Wm. Guffin's neighborhood and at Leland, in Whitley County. He was not a resident of Indiana for any length of time after coming into the faith, but labored at various points in the state, during the period of his ministry as a despised Adventist. He speaks lovingly and in high terms of praise of the church at Rensselaer, Indiana, as a church of the true Philadelphia type, this in 1868. Some of his strongest articles appeared in "The Herald of the Coming Kingdom" for that year. They were entitled "The Law of God" and proved conclusively that we are not under the law of the Sabbath at the present time.

Brother Stephenson was a man of medium height, with massive brain and fine appearance, a wonderful conversationalist and a speaker of power and ability. He sometimes talked four hours, tiring everybody out but the lawyers. No matter how many questions were asked him during a service he would take them up at the close of his sermon and answer them in the order in which they were asked.

He died in Brown County, in Illinois.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, NOV 8.

DAVID GRIEVES FOR ABSALOM. 2 SAM. XVIII.

Golden Text. "A foolish son is a grief to his father." Prov. xvii. 25.

David the king of Israel was a real man, a genuine, manly man. He was not a paragon of perfection,—there has only One appeared among men "who knew no sin." 2 Cor. v. 21. David made one serious error—sin—and some less important. But there was no chronic disposition—no continual weakness towards sin in his make up. He had natural affection, but his love for the Word and work of God was much greater. He had no joy in preparing for battle against his son Absalom. His warriors were willing to die for him, but not with him. They would not let him go to battle. He took their advice but charged his commanders and officers to "Deal gently" "for my sake with the young man, even with Absalom." The defeat of Absalom and his followers was complete. It seems from verse 9 that Absalom was fleeing for his life, riding through the "wood of Ephraim" he was in some way caught by the head in the boughs of a tree, the mule going on, he was left hanging. Joab —David's chief commander,—and his young men paid no heed to David's request to deal gently with Absalom. They killed Absalom. When the runners from the battle-field came to David he gave no attention to the tidings of victory. His question was, "Is the young man, Absalom safe?" And again to the second messenger, "Is the young man Absalom safe?" The much dreaded answer was, "The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rose against thee to do thee hurt, be as that young man is." The king was grief stricken, further news had no charm for him. Bowed with sorrow he left his seat of authority at the gate, going to an upper chamber, weeping and lamenting, "O my son Absalom! my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son."

Many men and women have read these words of heart-felt grief, and entering into the affliction of David have been moved to deep sympathy, shedding tears of sincere sorrow at the thought of David's hopeless lamentation. The king's sadness was contagious. The word of his intense mourning spread quickly among his people. Instead of returning with shouts of victory, and being hailed as conquerers, the victors tip-toed, as it were, into the city of Mahanaim as if they had been defeated and were ashamed, "But the king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud noice, O my son Absalom! O Absalom; my son, my son." 2 Sam. xix 4.

This was inconsolable grief—Why? above and beyond all things David loved and cherished the Word of God. The covenant of the kingdom, and eternal life and glory that the Lord made with Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and himself. Every man—and woman—that has entered into this covenant with God, through Jesus Christ are truly anxious for the eternal welfare of their relatives, friends, neighbors and all they meet. David knew the value of the covenant—the promise of God—Absalom's life proved that he cared nothing for that. His father knew that "While there is life there is hope." Absalom "died in his sins." John viii. 24. This cut off all hope, and made the sorrow of David very bitter indeed. The most poignant, painful grief must give way—or beset aside—for the onward march of time and events,—called busia ss. Joab, David's nephew, who killed Absalom, had no heartache about his death. He went to the king, put the practical side of the matter before him, saying that he had made those ashamed that had saved his life, and those that were near and dear to him, and even accused him of loving his enemies better than his friends, saying, If Absalom had lived you would not have cared if all the rest were dead. Up and do your duty or the result will be worse than anything that ever happened to you. Read the first part of chapter xix.

David recognized the truth of these statements and assertions. Suppressing, concealing his great grief, he rose and sat in the gate—seat of authority, sending word to all the tribes of Israel that he was ready to go back to Jerusalem because he was still their king. Meantime, "Sorrow is better than laughter," Eccl. vii. 3. This is a great truth for those that can receive it. We are made certain, by the Word of the Lord, that the time is coming when joy and gladness will [illegible] stay, and sorrow and sighing [illegible] away, Isa. xxxv. 10. This joy and gladness will be the portion of the righteous.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bibly Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map, which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Wilson has fortunately become possessed of a limited number of copies, and will dispose of them at 40 cents each. In view of the important changes that are to take place are long in the countries adjacent to Russia, this book is a valuable aid to the earnest watcher of the signs. Secure one before the supply is exhausted. The book contains what is called "The Will of Peter the Great," which we have been asked recently to print, but have delayed for want of space. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to prepare his Saviour's work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

I've Been Thinking.

I've been thinking, I've been thinking,
What a glorious world were this,
Did folks mind their business more,
And mind their neighbor's less.
For instance, you and I, my friend,
Are sadly prone to talk
Of matters that concern us not,
And others' follies mock.

I've been thinking if we begin
To mind our own affairs,
That possibly our neighbors might
Contrive to manage theirs.
We've faults enough at home to mind—
It may be so of others;
It would seem strange if it were not,
Since all mankind are brothers.

Oh would that we had charity,
For every man and woman:
Forgiveness is the mark of those
We know "to err is human;"
Then let us banish jealousy—
Let's lift our fallen brother;
And as we journey down life's road,
Do good to one another.

The Divine Sonship.

This letter was written to a very dear brother who was inclined to Josephism, in an endeavor to win him back into the light of the Sonship.

My Dear Brother:

From our present view point, the doctrine that Jesus was begotten of Joseph seems cold and sordid in comparison with the beautiful faith, hope and love inspiring belief in the Divine Paternity. A relationship which alone makes possible that all-transcending example of Divine love expressed in the sacrificial offering of the "Only Begotten Son of God," to insure the salvation of those that believe.

It is true, we should keep our minds open for the reception of truth, at the same time it is equally important to exercise the judicial faculty to "Prove all things and hold fast that which is good," so that we do not become "Unstable souls." "Wafted about by every wind of doctrine."

Before we can reject the view that Jesus was begotten of God, as told in the 1st chapters of Matthew and Luke, many seemingly insurmountable obstacles must be removed.

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 11, 1908. NUMBER 42.

We can find no authentic evidence that Joseph was the natural father of Jesus. Outside of the first two chapters of Matthew and of Luke, which those who believe in the Josephite paternity of necessity reject, the information concerning Joseph is very meager. Four times only is he mentioned in the remaining Scriptures, then only as Jesus "supposed" father. See Luke iii 27 and iv 22; John i 45 and vi 42. Whereas Mary is frequently authoritatively mentioned as his mother and the Scriptures abound in references attributing his fatherhood to God. The Fatherhood of God and Motherhood of Mary are conspicuous while the fatherhood of Joseph is nowhere asserted. We maintain that if Joseph was indeed Jesus' natural father that fact would have been told in plain words.

HIS SONSHIP NOT PUBLICLY KNOWN.

No one questions that the Jews, including his disciples till they were better informed, supposed Joseph to be Jesus' father. He was a member of Joseph's family and undoubtedly was adopted by him and thus became his legal son. For prudential reasons, sufficiently apparent, the knowledge of his Divine begettal was kept secret (even Mary "kept those things in her heart," Luke ii 51) till God himself was ready to make an authorative announcement of his Sonship. Luke iii 22, etc.

Jesus himself said: "No man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father." Matt. xi: 27.

At another time he raised and seemingly settled the question of [illegible] ship, when he asked Peter, "[illegible] ye that I am."

"Thou art the Christ, the [illegible] Living God" was Peter's answer which Jesus responded:

"Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." Matt. xvi: 15-18. A statement that further proves that till the Father revealed it, the secret of his Sonship was not publicly known.

The importance of a belief in the Divine Sonship appears in Christ's further words. "On this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Thus he made a belief in his Messiahship and his Sonship a basic principle of Christian faith. As the heir of David—the Christ—he is heir to the throne of Israel. As the Son of God, "He is heir of all things," Heb. 1:2, and "shall have the heathen for his inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession." Psa. ii: Dan. vii: Rev. xi: 15. A thought that aptly lays in and becomes the underlying principle of the Gospel, which Paul says was before preached unto Abraham, "saying, In thy seed shall all families of the earth be blessed." The seed being the Christ, the Son of God, under whose righteous reign, Israel and the nations will be blessed. This also supplies the reason why the Apostolic and early Christian confession of faith embodied a belief in the Divine Sonship. Matt. xiv; 33 and xvi: 16, John i: 49 and vi: 69 and xi: 27, Acts viii: 37, etc.

"Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God" says John, "God dwelleth in Him and He in God." 1 John iv: 15, see also 1 John iii: 23 and iv: 9 and 10 and v, 5, 9 to 14.

SON OF MAN.

It is true Jesus also called himself the Son of Man and is frequently called the "Son of David." To claim that the expression Son of Man, means that he is the son of Joseph, does not appeal to us as reasonable. The two terms, Son of Man and Son of David are synonmous in their import, signifying that he is the descendant of David, in other words, the Messiah—the Christ.

Jesus said: "When the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels, then shall he reward every man according to his works." Matt. xvi: 27. From the viewpoint that he is both a descendant of David and the Son of God, the significance of the expression, "Glory of his Father" is plain. But if the term Son of Man, signifies the son of Joseph, it remains for those who so claim to explain the nature of the glory possessed by Joseph, that shall attach to Christ when he comes.

JESUS RAISES THE SONSHIP QUESTION.

The question of the Sonship was again directly raised by Jesus in conversation with the Pharisees, "What think ye of Christ, whose son is he?" he asked. They answer, "The son of David." Jesus then recites a prophecy, in which David in spirit calls him Lord and asks "If David then call him Lord, how is he his son." Matt. xxii: 46. From the viewpoint that Christ was begotten of God and born of, or as the Apostle Paul says: "made of a woman," [Gal. iv: 4] of the House of David, (Luke i: 27), the answer to the question is plain. The Jews in their ignorance could not supply it, but it was revealed of God to Peter, who answered the same question in the words above quoted "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." If he was Joseph's son, as well as Mary's, and not God's Son, there is no reason why David should call him Lord. On the contrary, if he was begotten of God, as God is greater than David, God's Son, even though a descendant of David, on his mother's side, would be entitled to precedence. The question itself implies the Divine Paternity, and was evidently propounded by Christ as an argument to sustain his claim to the Sonship.

TITLE TO THE THRONE OF ISRAEL.

The claim [illegible] Jesus [illegible] be the natural [illegible] to be heir to [illegible] not Alphonso [illegible] pain, through [illegible] ought that Jesus fulfilled the vow of Israel, through Mary, his mother, and the title to the throne of the world, [illegible] the "Only begotten of the Father," (John i: 14) is therefore legitimate, and from our present view point, very satisfying.

If Jesus was wholly of earthly parentage he would have been born a Jew with inherited instincts, prejudices and characteristics of that race, whereas he possessed but few of the characteristics of the people with whom he mingled. Begotten of God he was a Cosmopolite, belonging to no particular race but to all races. There is therefore a universality in His character. He not only belongs to no particular race but to no century or age, but to all ages. Translate His words into the language of any people and He might have been the offspring of that people. Date them by any century and they belong to that century as fittingly as to any other. His words are timely always and never out of place. His was a life and example age lasting and world wide. His heart pulsated with love for the whole human race. God-like in his instincts, knowledge and love. He is therefore eminently fitted to be the Savior of the World and the world's King.

THE MEASURE OF GOD'S LOVE.

In view of the foregoing, we believe we are justified in asking that the evidence of the Josephite paternity to be acceptable must be of the most direct and positive character, especially so as it involves the uprooting of what we esteem a most precious and vital principle of Christian faith. A doctrine which the Scriptures as they have come down to us unquestionably teach. A beautiful love inspiring thought which is lost if it was not "God's Own Son," not the "Only Begotten Son of the Father," but Joseph's son who was sacrificed.

Witness the immeasurable love embodied in the words of Jesus, "God so loved the world that he gave his Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life." John iii: 16

Any one who has an only son, especially a good, faithful, loving son, can in a measure appreciate the boundless love that inspired so noble a gift, the most precious the mind can conceive.

Paul says, (Rom. v: 10): "If when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son, much more being reconciled we shall be saved by His life."

It is clear the death of Jesus meant more and accomplished something which the death of no other person could, and that the words "His Own Son" have a meaning essentially different in relation to Jesus than the term sons as applied in the plural form to others.

Also witness the pathetic tenderness of these hope inspiring words. "He that spared not His own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall He not with him also freely give us all things." Rom. viii: 32.

The phrase "His Own Son" expressing all the wealth of a father's love, who was yielding his most precious treasure in giving up His Own Son. His beloved One to die. In verse 29 we are told of the arrangement for others. They were "to be conformed to the image of His Son." To be brought about as Paul further says, (Gal. iv: 4) through the agency of God's Own Son.

"God sent forth his Son made of a woman under the law that he might redeem them that are under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons, and because ye are sons God hath sent forth the spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying Abba Father (our Father)."

This adoption is the medium brought about through the agency of his own Son, by which others become God's spiritual children, but the Medium, Jesus himself, was God's only [illegible] of his Divine nature. [illegible] attempts to express the boundless magnitude of the love thus manifested.

He says "For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Rom. viii: 38, 39.

Manifestly if Jesus was Joseph's son, his sacrifice involved no great manifestation of Divine love. It is no sacrifice—requires no stretching of heart-strings—is no example of love to give that which belongs to another. It is considered the height of patriotic devotion for a man to give his son for his country, but to send a son of another as a substitute and sacrifice him on the country's alter suggests but little patriotism.

Why should any one want to exchange the sublime manifestation of the Father's love in giving up "his own," "his only Son" for the altogether unsatisfactory thought of a sacrifice of Joseph's son?

Or exchange our splendid Savior, commingling as he does in his person in a harmonious, lovely and not unnatural way the majesty and love of the Divine with the mortal weakness of the human that he might taste death in our behalf?

Or the beautiful conception of our "Christ, the Son of the Living God" with His God inherited spirit of holiness, His Godlike knowledge, penetration, mercy and power, the heir through His Almighty Father to all things, for a son of Joseph.

The thought possess not a single redeeming feature, while the conception of the Divine Paternity expresses the measure of inconceivable love. Not the blood of the son of Joseph, but the blood of Jesus the Christ, God's Son cleanses from sin.

If indeed it is possible to muster cold facts sufficient to conclusively demonstrate that Jesus was begotten of Joseph, and consequently is not the Only Begotten of the Father, so that we shall be compelled to give up the doctrine of the Divine Paternity, it will be like tearing the very heart strings out of Christianity.

NO STREAM CAN RISE ABOVE ITS FOUNTAIN.

Paul says "The first man (Adam) is of the earth, earthy. The second man (Jesus) is the Lord from heaven." [1 Cor. xv: 47). Also (John iii: 13) and "God sent forth His Own Son made of a woman." Gal. iv: 4. From the viewpoint of the Divine Paternity it is plain in what sense he was the "Lord from heaven," "came down from heaven," was "sent forth" and crucified. From the viewpoint of a Josephite paternity, however, these expressions are inexplicable. If he originated from earthly parents, he must also have been of the "earth earthy," and in no sense came from heaven.

It is impossible for a stream to rise above its fountain. The doctrine of the evolution of species from a lower to a higher form is impossible in nature and unsupported by fact or experience. It is uniformly under the guiding and uplifting hand of higher intelligences that upward progress is made. A mere man born of human parents could not become the spiritually perfect and sinless Christ the Saviour of the world.

Begotten of the substance of the Father and born of the purest type of woman in all Israel, Our Saviour came into the world occupying a higher plane than it is possible for the natural man of himself to attain to, the plane from which Adam fell. Tempted as Adam was, he conquered. As Adam was given dominion over the forces of nature and all animal creation, (Gen. i: 28) so "He put all things in subjection under him." Heb. ii: 7, 8. Deceases, the winds and seas, evil spirits and all forces of nature were obedient to his will. Even death itself yielded its dominion to him power. As Adam left his high estate but to [illegible] share the punishment and sorrow of his beloved bride that God had given him, so Jesus, the "Second Adam" became "Sin for us," bride, with 2 Any the higher plane, his "high [illegible] descended to our level to become our sacrificial offering, that he might "bear our sins," and redeem us and lift us up to the still higher plane to which God exalted him, the plane of immortal life. Occupying a higher plane he is able to reach down and lift up Adam's fallen posterity. No man born of human parents, weighted with the imperfections of a degenerate ancestry, could have accomplished so noble a mission and work of love.

A CREDIBLE MIRACLE.

(It is true the Divine begettal involves a miracle. Christians, however, should not stumble over such examples of Divine Power. The begettal of the Savior is no greater miracle than the creation of Adam, the resurrection of Christ, the blooming of a rose, or the growth of an oak from an acorn.

Some in contending for and against this doctrine have clouded the issue by asking an explanation, or in trying to explain the method of the miracle, just how and through what means and agency it was brought about. Such discussion is as sensible and profitable as it would be to discuss whether, in the miracle of the resurrection, it is essential that God should gather into the new body all the particles of dust that composed the old one, or what chemical changes must take place in the transformation of a corruptible into an incorruptible body.

IN WHAT SENSE IS JESUS THE SON OF GOD?

As before said, the Scriptures as they have come to us unquestionably teach the Divine Paternity. The Sonship is conspicuous throughout the New Testament. Before those who exercise the judicial faculty to "Prove all things" can accept the doctrine of the Josephite paternity, it will be necessary to show if Jesus was not God-begotten, in what sense he is the Son of God, and when and in what way he came into that relationship. Also, as all who are "led by the spirit of God are the children of God," (Rom. viii. 14) in what distinctive sense different from the other sons Jesus is the Son of God, that he should be preferred above the others and called the "Only begotten Son of the Father," (John i 14-18, 34, John iii 16 and 18; Psa ii; Acts xiii 33; Heb i 5; 1 John iv 9. His "firstborn," (Psa. lxxix: 27) "His Own Son," (Rom viii 3 and 32; Gal iv 4 and 6 and other testimony.)

We become the children of God by the regenerating influence of the "Word of Truth" operating in us, followed by the "Washing of regeneration." In other words, we are converted and baptized for the remission of sins and having reformed our lives, are spiritually made into a "new creation in Christ Jesus" "Born again," into the spiritual family of God. Before this new birth we were spiritually "dead in trespasses and sins." Eph ii 1.

Manifestly Jesus did not become the Son of God in that way. He is the embodiment of the Word (John i 14) and therefore could not have been begotten of it. Indeed it is through his Word we are begotten into spiritual life and become adopted children. John i 12; Eph i 5; Gal iii 26; Gal iv 4 to 7. Also be being sinless, was never dead in trespasses and sins, so could not be regenerated, or born again.

Furthermore, if he is an adopted son, he is only one among many. Tens of thousands antedated him, in that case he would be neither the "Only Begotten Son of the Father" nor his "Firstborn" nor in any distinctive sense "His Own Son." He is also uniformly spoken of as "The Son of God." The definite article "the" signifies the only one. Not "A Son" as one among many.

Some claim that he became the Son of God at his resurrection. If so, he was not God's Son prior to that event as the Scriptures abundantly assert, and was not God's Son when he was crucified.

THE FATHER'S NAME.

The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews says, "Being made so much better [illegible] and the angels as he [illegible] by inheritance (not by adoption) obtained a more excellent name than they. Unto which of the angels said he at any time, thou are my Son, this day have I begotten thee." Heb i 4 5 and 9. It is begotten sons only who inherit the names of their fathers. The central thought of the first nine verses of this Epistle is that Jesus was a Son by begettal, God's own literal son, and therefore inherited his Father's Name, "A name that is above every Name." Phil ii 9, and "Heir of all things." Such language will not fittingly apply to any but a son generated of the substance of the Father.

Praise God.

In every life there are three regions; that of the light, where duty is clearly defined; that of the dark, where wrong is as less clearly marked; and a great borderland of twilight, where there is no certainty, where dividing lines are not distinct, and where each man must be fully persuaded for himself. It is here, however, that the temper of the soul is tested; here the decisions are come to that make us weak or strong; here that we may drift into the dark, or start a path of upward climbing that will conduct to the tablelands where the light never wanes. In threading a difficult way through these devious tracks there is no clue so helpful or certain as to ask what will conduce to the praise of God. All that would hinder this must be avoided; all that would promote and enhance it must be followed at any cost. —F. B. Meyer.

It is a great proof to me that God's truth is the truth, because it is so large that there is an angle for each one of us to see, no matter how diversely our poor blind eyes may squint at it. When the veil through which we now see darkly, is gone, and we see the whole—if we ever see the whole—how blinding the vision will be!

For every trial God sends, he gives sufficient grace for its endurance, but he promises no grace with which to bear anticipations of trial.

Subscribe for THE RESTITUTION to be sent to a friend. It will cost you but little—the result of seed sowing is safe in God's hands.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

SISTER Mary Beebe writes that since the death of her husband she has moved from Urbana to Vinton, Iowa. Let all interested make note of this change.

OUR offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

A LETTER from a lady in Hochheim, Texas, states she was led to see the truth by reading THE RESTITUTION, and now hopes that God will put it into the heart of some one to come and baptize her into the all-saving name. Who can reach this point? Let us know and name and address will be sent.

AS WINTER is coming on and no one wants war in bad weather, the Balkan trouble is likely to settle down. The past week has seen Germany and France ready to grapple each other, but cooler heads have staved that off again. The new Czar of Bulgaria is to make settlement with Turkey by the money route. Austria settles by simple exchange of territory. Germany is satisfied so long as Austria is not molested, as a large part of the Austrians are really German. Russia is content to bide her time. She wants free passage through the Dardanelles, but to force that issue now would not be policy. However, she sees that it is perfectly easy to break a treaty—even the great Berlin treaty—and if one of the signatory powers can break it at will, another can do likewise when she gets ready. Russia does not want the Berlin treaty smashed just yet. She will get more by waiting.

AGAIN we ask correspondents to be careful. When sending a money order see that is made out properly. One came this week without the post master's signature. Then a request for samples of tracts came, saying to forward with bill, etc. No name is given so we can do nothing. Then another brother gets some sheets of cardboard and writes an article, mails it with a two cent stamp—we had four more to pay. Then again many ask for address to be changed, give the new address, supposing we know the old. Brother if we had but one to remember we could do it, but not thousands, so give the old one too. Then again, street numbers in cities should be given carefully. We have case just now, where a brother in Cleveland, O. sent a change, stating he had moved. We made the change on list exactly as given, and forwarded papers—the post master says Stop it, no such person at above number. A little more care to little details will help very much.

Communicated.

Editor Restitution:

Sisters Mary Knowles, Ida Buckmaster and myself left Salem, Ohio, October 14th, to visit with the brethren at Cleveland, Ohio. Sisters Hattie Sanford and Ora Thompson met us at the train, taking us to their homes, and helping to make our stay in their city one of pleasure and interest.

Each day of our visit was spent in visiting at the homes of the brethren, and meeting with them at their Wednesday evening Bible Class, and also at the Sister's meeting which is interesting and instructive. At the Sunday Service we had the pleasure of meeting with a number of brothers and Sisters that we could not visit during our short stay.

We missed the voice of Brother Joblin, as he had always preached the Word of Truth, when we visited the Cleveland Church, but we know he is just sleeping and soon he will awake.

Brother B. F. Laug read a lesson and after breaking bread the brethren exhorted each other to continue in the faith of our Lord and Savior.

Our visit was one to be remembered with pleasure.

On Saturday, October 24th, Brother Stanley Sanford and wife accompanied us to Barberton, Ohio, to meet with the church there on Sunday. The brethren there number three; but the meeting was one that we will long remember. Brother Juergenson and wife, and Brother Earle are earnestly contending for the faith; they are not discouraged because of numbers. Their Motto is, 'Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." Brother Juergenson read a paper which I send to THE RESTITUTION that others may be benefitted by it. Sister Juergenson had a lesson on "The Blessed Hope." After a short Praise Service and the breaking of bread, the meeting closed. After attending this meeting where sometimes there are only the brother and his wife, I would say to the isolated brethren, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together" if only two or three. Remember the promise "it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

While at Barberton we all enjoyed a drive through the country to Turkey Foot Lakes, about seven miles from town. It was a beautiful sight as the lakes spread out over the country, and from the hills we had a fine view.

Sister Juergenson went with us to Akron, where we took the electric car for Canton, stopping to visit Brother Heacock and wife, where we remained for a short time. They too, are alone in the faith; but rejoicing in hope. We feel strengthened and encouraged by meeting with those of like precious faith, and will remember our visit with pleasure.

ELLA KNOWLES.

"FOR YE ARE BOUGHT WITH A PRICE."

In picking or selecting a lesson for this Sunday morning I do not think I could find a more valuable,—more interesting and more precious subject than that which we are about to consider. It is a part of the 20th verse of the 6th chapter of 1st Corinthians, and reads as follows: "For ye are bought with a price."

Every word in this text is of great importance to us. In this 6th chapter Paul addresses the church at Corinth against going to law, and he starts the chapter with just such strong language as he closes it with namely: "Dare any of you having a matter against another go to law before the saints?" and then he tells the church what the saints shall do, and then winds up with the question: "Why do ye rather not take wrong?" The old man would like to do that would he? But Paul answers this question himself, saying: "But ye are washed; but ye are sanctified; but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." "Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body. What! know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" And now Paul sums up the whole matter and tells us why we should not do this or why we should do that, by saying: "For ye are bought with a price," and adds to this, to the praise of Jehovah: "Therefore, glorify God in your body, and in your Spirit which are God's," and Paul confirms it in the next chapter, vii. 23, by saying, "Ye are bought with a price; be not ye servants of men." As I have said before, every word is of great value and I will try to shew you who Paul addresses with "ye." Does he only mean the church at Corinth, or are more included in this word? Surely there are more included with "ye." Paul means for as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God; for the promise is to you and your children and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call brethren, but each one of us, wherein he was called therein abide with God, and we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose; for whom he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son; that he might be the first-born among many brethren, moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called, and whom he called them he also justified, and whom he justified them he also glorified."

The called ones are all they who are brought into the fold by the preaching of the Word, and effectual operation of the Spirit to know, believe and to obey the gospel, if we brethren answer to this description, then we are classified with the called ones, and Paul tells us, that we are not our own; "for we are bought with a price."

"For we are bought with a price." The word "for" is to prove something, it is a conjunction, and is a word by which—a reason is introduced for something advanced before, namely: to prove that we are "not our own," and if we are "not our own," whose are we? or to whom do we belong?

Our text says, "Ye are bought." To "buy" means here not that an exchange has taken place, but "are bought" means here have been redeemed, so that our text would read "For ye have been redeemed with a price." Buy or redeem signifies to deliver sinners from sin and its penalty from death, for the wages of sin are death. Paul to the Romans wrote as follows:—"Know ye not that so many of us (mark this us) as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life; for if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall also be in the likeness of his resurrection."

The proclamation which Jesus [illegible] his disciples after his resurrection [illegible] "Go ye into all the world [illegible] the gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." To explain in few words would be as follows: By baptism we enter into the covenant with God, through Christ. By baptism our sins are washed away, and (right here) "we are bought with a price." "With a price!" What precious words, "With a price!" With the price; the only price. Are these not precious words? Brethren, ye, or we are "bought with a price;" we are redeemed by the precious blood of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, whereby Christ has an everlasting dominion over us. A ransom means a price paid, or the redeeming of a sinner, or procuring a pardon for some offender.

God giving directions to his prophets or ministers how to behave toward penitent sinners says, in Job xxxiii. 24, "Deliver him from going down to the pit. I have found a ransom." Declare to him, (the sinner) that I have pardoned him and I will heal him; for I have provided a way of ransoming and redeeming sinners from death, which they by their sins have deserved, which way is by the death of my Son, the Redeemer and Savior, hence Christ is called a Ransom. And as we read, 1. Tim. ii. 6, "Who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." Man being in a lost and most deplorable condition, and liable to eternal death on account of his sins, the eternal God, moved by his divine love sent his only begotten and beloved Son to restore fallen man to the favor of God and Christ, who voluntarily endured punishment due to our sins, gave his most precious life and blood as the price of our redemption, and therefore such, as Christ, redeemed from the bondage of sin and death are called the "ransomed of the Lord," Isa. xxxv. 10. Christ delivered sinners from sin and death by the purchase of his precious blood and the power of his grace, thus is Christ both the Ransomer and the Ransom. Looking for "that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the Great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

In 1 Peter i. 18, to the end, we read, "For as much as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot; who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you, who by him do believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God. Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently; being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever; for all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away; but the Word of the Lord endureth forever; and this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

In Gal. iii. 13, we find the reason why it was necessary for Christ to die, namely, "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law," which is, "Thou shalt surely die;" but now after bearing and obeying the gospel, we can say with 1st John iii. "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God." Farther on we read, "But we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is," and when we shall see him, brethren, then the lambs shall sing a new song, saying, thou art worthy to take the Book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred and tongue and people, and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth."

"For ye are bought with a price." Say friends, can you afford to neglect so great an offer and close your ears to the pleading Savior who standeth at the door knocking; if any man hear my voice and open the door; I will come in [illegible] him, and [illegible] sup with [illegible] him that overcometh [illegible] sit with [illegible] in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

Our Lord [illegible] of our weekly [illegible] that happy day of [illegible] our crucified Lord conquered the great enemy, "death" on its own ground. While preaching throughout Galilee, this Jesus of Nazareth told the multitude on one occasion "I am the Bread of life, he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."

"I am the Bread of Life." What precious words they are to us, brethren. Jesus Christ compared himself to bread, and well he may, as he is the true food, and both the author and matter of eternal life. The Wise Man of Old has told us, "Come eat ye of my bread and drink ye of the wine which I have mingled." Who are they which shall come to eat of that bread and to drink of that wine?" Every body is invited; but few are coming, and the Psalmist answers this question thus: "The meek shall eat and be satisfied; they shall praise Jehovah that seek after him, let your heart live forever—all the ends of the earth shall remember and turn unto Jehovah, and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee."

For the kingdom is Jehovah's, and he is the Ruler over the nations. As it is Jehovah's will which is to be done on earth as it is in heaven, the human race can never do this except through Christ, who calls himself the Bridegroom, and those who have been bought, the Bride, and now listen to the beautiful words of the Bridegroom: I am come into the garden my Sister my Bride; I have gathered my myrrh with my spice. I have eaten my honeycomb with my honey, I have drank my wine with my milk. Eat, oh Brethren! drink ye, drink ye abundantly, oh beloved!

The Savior is here represented as blessing his church, and conferring upon her special gospel privileges and consolation. Happy the saint and happy the fellowship that is prepared to receive him. The saints are too frequently asleep and their lamps all but out, while they ought to be looking, watching and longing for the appearance of their Divine Benefactor.

Now let us listen for a few moments to the prophet Isaiah—Ho, every one that thirsteth. Come ye to the waters; and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat. Yea come buy wine and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread; and your labor for that which satisfieth not! Hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness; incline your ear and come unto me; hear and your soul shall live. And I will make an everlasting covenant with you; even the sure mercies of David.

The prophet invites both Jews and Gentiles desirous of eternal life, to come and participate in the blessings of the gospel which are exhibited to them under the emblems of temporal things. The term thirst is particularly expressive. The sensation it implies is one of great uneasiness, representing the painful solicitude of the soul, and the deep conviction, crying out What shall I do to be saved? The Savior may have had this in view when he pronounced the blessing on those who hunger and thirst after righteousness.

Christ is the Bread of Life, and Paul taking up the question says: The Bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ. Seeing that we who are many are one bread, one body; for we are all partakers of the one bread.

Brethren we are one bread, as we are joined together into one mystical body, and declare ourselves to be so by our fellowship together, in the ordinance which Paul says he had received of the Lord; which also he delivered unto us, that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread; and when he had given thanks, he broke it and said, Take eat; this is my body which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup when he had supped, saying This cup is the New Testament in my blood. This do ye as oft as ye drink it in remembrance of me; for as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.

May the dear Lord in his great mercy grant that all those who partake of the bread of life this morning may be found among those who have been [illegible] with a Price.

[illegible] and Amen.

Trip to Oklahoma.

Dear Bro Underwood:

Every thing is so uncertain if planning ahead, that I am almost resolved at times to leave all planning to Providence and to work as work comes to hand. My desire to continue my work in a more southern climate is placed in the balance, which I think comes largely from my having stated in THE RESTITUTION that my means was almost exhausted, and I would have to depend on brethren for traveling expenses.

This placed the brother at Avery in such uncertain position that the time of meeting at that place is postponed till Nov. 20, or later by his special request.

In the meantime I am reminded again that "man proposes but God disposes." I went to Scholls, Oregon and gave old neighbors and brethren a good by discourse on Oct. 18, and at Felida, Nov. 1. The officers of the Northwest Conference voluntarily offered me the amount in the treasury, $92.80, toward defraying expense of past work and assisting in further labor. As this had accumulated during the years in which I alone had filled the office of evangelist, there could be no question of misappropriation of funds pending. With thanks I accept the escape from the uncertainty I was placed under.

I wish to inform the brethren that it is not my purpose to locate in Oklahoma or any other state (unless it should be Arizona), but to continue to carry the good news from place to place, while life and strength is sufficient, and brethren have means, not in any one place, but all along the line, to defray traveling expenses.

I give this letter not only to inform the brethren in the south and southwest of my delay, but as the strongest argument I can make for a united, systematic plan of work in supporting those that are willing and anxious to work for the Master's cause

I still hope to start for Oklahoma at an early date.

W. L. SKEELS.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Obituary.

Elder C. C. Ramsay was born at Lowell, Mass. Dec 13, 1830, departed this life Sept. 15th, 1908, at Mason City, Iowa, at the home of his son Charles. He died suddenly from the infirmities of age, and was buried at Floyd, Iowa, where he long had lived and labored as an evangelist for the Church of God.

He was twice married, his first wife having died in Iowa many years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss a devoted wife, a daughter and two sons.

For several years he has been in failing health. In the summer of 1907 he was extremely ill at his home in Philadelphia, where he was nursed to a degree of health and strength by his devoted companion, and other relatives and friends. As soon as sufficiently recovered he with his wife visited his children in Iowa, after which they returned to their home, where he passed through the winter in fairly good health.

This summer he again visited his children, while Sister Ramsay came to Virginia to build up her health and visit friends. Seventeen years ago he first came from Philadelphia to Virginia, visiting brethren and proclaiming the truth he so much loved. Since then they together made seven visits to the Valley of Virginia, and the love and esteem we all feel for him prompts me to write this, not so much as an obituary, as an abler hand than mine is doubtless preparing a suitable one, but I cannot refrain from expressing our sorrow over his death, and our appreciation of his labors when here among us.

With a noble character, embellished as it was with so many Christian graces, it is but meet he should hold a warm place in the hearts of those he labored with. None more worthy of love, nor better able to proclaim the Glad Tidings has come amongst us. Truly can we say a beloved brother has fallen asleep.

But our sorrow is tempered with the firm hope which inspired our dear brother with love and with confidence in the promise of the greatest of gifts—Eternal Life in the Kingdom of our God.

E. R. BOYER.

Catherine Hittle was born in Pennsylvania, June 17, 1828, and died at Plymouth, Indiana, Nov. 6, 1908, at the age of 80 years.

When but eight years old she came with her parents to Rush County, Indiana, and in 1840 the family came to Marshall County, where the greater part of her long life was passed.

On Sept. 2, 1847 she was married to William Smith, and to this union were born six children who survive her—Perry W., George W., Joseph H. A. A., and Milton Smith, and Mrs. Mary E. Shuffer.

Her husband died Jan. 17, 1873, and she afterward married Miram Henderson of Kewanna, Indiana, who died some years ago.

Sister Henderson has been a member of the Church of God for many years, being among the pioneers in faith. She was always quiet and undemonstrative, yet firm in her convictions. She bought a little home in Plymouth a few years ago so that she might be near her children, and also attend Church services. She was made a member of this local organization on May 27, 1900, and when health would permit was always in her place, the last time being Sunday, Oct. 25.

The funeral was held on Sunday, Nov. 8, at Poplar Grove Church, about fourteen miles southwest of this city, where she was laid to rest in the quiet grave, to await the call of the heavenly messenger who will soon summon the faithful ones to come forth to a life that will not end. May we each so live that we will hear the trumpet call, and with our Sister enter into the joy of our Lord.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Let Us Pray.

Great and Adorable Lord, our God: Another day of Wonderful privileges has dawned upon us. And the memory of Thy gracious invitation to come boldly to the throne of grace to obtain mercy and find help for every time of need, encourages us to come. We need mercy now, gracious Father. We all, like the apostles, and much more, offend in many things, and we confess all our shortcomings and remissness, and beseech Thee in Jesus' name to forgive us, that we may still be Thy adopted children, and praise and magnify thy holy name together.

And now, our heavenly Father, help us to shut out the world with all its cares and anxieties, and worship Thee without distraction, and in strong expectant faith, await the promised blessing. May each number of this little flock gaze on him who once was slain for us, till the whole being is opened up for his reception,—so that on leaving these hallowed precincts, each may indeed be a temple full of Holy Spirit. Oh, God, we realize to some extent, this morning, that there are heights and depths and breadths and lengths of Thy love that we have never explored; but we desire to live in closer communion with Thee,—we want to more implicitly obey the commandments of Jesus,—and walk in his steps. Father of love and mercy, help us to rise to a higher plain in the divine life, and grow continually in thy favor and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Oh Father, do thou help us to attain that point where we can praise Thee for every disappointment, and loss, and vexation, because it has caused us to take hold of Thy strength.

Bless all of thy waiting children today, wherever they may be—especially the scattered and lonely members of thy Household. Remember all the afflicted ones in body, mind and estate—Bless Israel according to the flesh. We pray, too, for those in authority over us. In Jesus' name.

1 Cor. xv. 44.

Brother Huggins:

Please give an exposition of 1 Cor xv 44. Give the Greek words for "raised", "spiritual", and "body", and their meanings. A man here says that the original word for "raised" means dissolution or separation. You can see at a glance what he is trying to do—do away with the resurrection. Is Young's Concordance standard authority? In hope of eternal life when Jesus comes

E. F. RANDOLPH

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The Greek word translated "raised" in 1 Cor xv 44, is egeiro, and means, according to Young who is authority the world over, "to raise up". The word "spiritual" is from pneumatikos: and "body" is soma in the Greek, and means the physical organism always, unless it is used in a secondary sense. Your friend's suggestion that "raised" means separation, the separation of an immortal soul from this "mortal coil", is a prevalent theological saying, but is as destitute of foundation as an air castle. If he would only note that Paul's statement is about "the dead", that "the dead shall be raised incorruptible" (v 52), instead of an immortal entity being separated from the mortal body at death, he would surely see his mistake and the truth too.

Pillars.

Brother Huggins:

Your active work in the church prompts me to ask you for light on several questions. One I now submit: Would it be proper to call James, Cephas, and John (Gal. ii 9) a first presidency or first presidents of the church? Were they not an earthly head of the church after the Lord's ascension?—J. H. Byerly.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The text referred to, Gal ii 9, does not say that James, Cephas, and John were pillars in the church, but they "seemed to be pillars", says the apostle. Whether these men were what they "seemed" to be or not, is a matter of small importance; the important thing to recognize is, that God has "set some in the church" (1 Cor xii 28) with authority to oversee and feed the church of God (Acts xx 28); and the ecclesia is so solemnly charged to obey and submit obediently to those who thus rule in the assembly of the saints. Heb xiii 17; Matt xviii 17. The boastful claims made by some brethren that they have no leader, that they follow no man, etc., is both unscriptural and sinful. Paul is declared to be "a pattern to them which should hereafter believe" (1 Tim i 16); and Timothy, though only a young man, was "an example" to the brethren "in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." iv 12. We are exhorted to "be followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises," (Heb vi 12), to walk in the "steps" of Abraham, etc. Rom iv 12. We are to "walk in the way of good men." Prov ii 20. And these "good men" are not only patterns and examples, but their "steps" are to be "walked" in. The church of Christ has human "pillars" under it; its "foundation" is not Christ alone, as some Protestants would have us believe. He is the "chief corner stone", but the "apostles and prophets" are part of its "foundation", popish as it may sound to some who are restive under church authority and discipline. Eph ii 20.

Good Reasoning

Sister Highfly.—The Bible condemns pride, not gold, silver, and finery. Really now, can't a person indulge in these things, and yet not be proud?

Minister.—Well, Sister Highfly, I reason that when you can see the tale of a fox, the fox himself cannot be far off.

"The Whole World."

These words occur in 1 John ii 2. The apostle affirms that Christ "is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but for the sins of the whole world". It is claimed by some that "the whole world" means the entire race of Adam without exception. But the word here translated "world" is cosmos, and means "arrangement of things". As the word only means an arrangement or constitution of things, we have come to classify it in a specific sense; we talk about the "religious world", the "political world", the "social world", etc., etc. The "religious world", for instance, comes short of embracing every being on the globe. And while we do not specially state that John means for our sins only (meaning the apostles and the church to whom he was writing), but also for the sins of the entire religious world", we suggest that this paraphrase perhaps expresses the apostles' meaning.

If one thing we are certain; he did not mean the whole race of Adam as a totality, both dead and living, by "the whole world". Christ says in humble petition to his Father, "I have manifested thy name to the men which thou gavest me out of the world" (Jno xvii 6); "the whole world" cannot, therefore, include these "men", because they were taken "out" of it. Before the apostle says a thing about "the whole world" he informs us that Christ "is the propitiation for our sins; and not for our's only"; after these remarks he goes on to talk about the "whole world", showing conclusively that, unless we charge him with redundancy, himself and other saints formed no part of the "world" of which he is speaking. Then "the whole world" is not universal. This conclusion may make Universalists feel uncomfortable, but it is good news to us who believe the inspired record. Do you ask why? Then you shall have the reason. "The whole world," says the same writer, "lieth in wickedness". 1 John v 19. If "the whole world" is universal, to what a strange conclusion must we come! "The whole world", that is, the entire posterity of Adam, dead and living, "lieth", in the present tense, "lieth in wickedness"! If God old Abraham, Noah, Job and the rest "of whom the world was not worthy"—all lying in wickedness. And since the world is to pass away (1 John ii 17), and since the "world" means all without exception, all the saints of God will have to pass away! But the phrase: "the whole world" and "all the world", does not in a single instance in all the Book of God mean the whole human family in the sense of totality. In the days of Cæsar Augustus "all the world" was taxed. Luke ii 1. Did the dead of past ages have to pay taxes? Did this decree embrace the antediluvians? Was Abraham, Lot, and the Sodomites raised from the dead, so that Augustus could tax them? Did our modern Universalist pay taxes during the reign of Augustus? No.

Was the Church Organized Before Pentecost?

Is it correct to say that the church was partly or possibly fully organized before Pentecost? I judge that it was from the calling of the Twelve, the Seventy, Judas the Treasurer, and from the Master's statement in Matt xviii 15 18.—D. A. Holcomb.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

We share your views, Brother Holcomb. The apostles were appointed before Pentecost, were "set in the church" (1 Cor xii 28) by the Master himself; hence in case of offenses that could not be reconciled privately among members, the crime was to be told "to the church." Matt xviii 17. If no church existed then, it would have been impossible to tell it to the church, and unless the church was then properly organized it would have been powerless to exercise the prerogative of adjudication. That the church existed prior to Pentecost day finds invincible corroboration in the language of Acts ii, where and when it is said of the converts made, "And the Lord added to the church daily such as were saved." v 47. See Matthew Henry's commentary on this text. Instead of the church being organized or set up on the day of Pentecost, the converts then made were just "added" to the church already in existence. And I submit that there is a vast deal of difference in setting up the church and "adding" to the church. After a church has been built, after it is in existence, you may "add" to it; not before.

Gold Dust.

The best monument is the good we have done for others.

Neither enemies or difficulties should keep us from obeying God.

Conceit may puff a man up, but can never prop him up.

Learn to say kind and pleasant things whenever opportunity presents itself.

One of the manifestations of narrowness in human nature is the disposition to criticise other people.

All man[illegible] over-[illegible]

[illegible] to fear, so long as you are faithful, earnest, and discriminating in your work—liberal, but not loose; considerate, but not truckling to human prejudice or vain philosophising of speculative dreamers. I am not a lover of strife or endless controversy. I do not believe in debating every thing and setting nothing; ever seeking but never finding. I am not particularly anxious about what this or that party thinks of my convictions—nevertheless, not insensible to the good and bad opinions of those with whom I come in contact. They may curse or they may bless; the latter is, of course, preferable, but not worth obtaining if it has to be done by sacrificing one or more of the fundamentals of the truth. What saith the Word is the all important matter! If all would submit to the testimony there would be no factions, no strife of tongues, no bickering. We must cut loose from what seemeth to be right to us if we wish to get a proper and just apprehension of what the Word teaches. What seemeth just to us may be all wrong and lead us to sympathize with what is hateful in the sight of Deity. Jehovah's dealings with nations and individuals in times past is regarded as very arbitrary and unjust by many of the reputed wisdom seekers of the world. They judge of things divine after their own feelings and sympathize with those whom God has punished with the death of the uncircumcised. This mode of reasoning lands them in confusion, and all manner of speculation follows, as the result of substituting their own thoughts in the place of revealed testimony as the rule of right. Yes; there are many ways that "seemeth right unto man but the end thereof are the ways of death."

A misapplication of testimony is virtually equivalent to unbelief. It is the result of trying to harmonize revealed testimony with our own erroneous conception as to what is good and just. If it were possible for a man to know what is good in the sight of his Maker apart from the Creator's revealed will—the natural man would certainly have something whereof to boast, and flatter his vanity. He has his vanity and pride all the same, but is absolutely a blank in the knowledge of God and spiritual perception. True wisdom is from above—pure and peaceable. Belief of the revealed Word is the Spiritual breath of life, and generates an understanding heart; the only treasure worthy of human ambition.

GEO. MOYER.

Brother Huggins:

I enclose with this a few references relating to chronology which I ran into when looking over the time from the departure of the Sceptre from Judah in the 11th of Zedekiah, to its return to the "Lion of the tribe of Judah" in the epoch of the regeneration; when Gentile times come to an end. I am surprised at the outcome of the figures found in the texts referred to, because being so much different from what I had expected, and as has been generally accepted.

I submit these figures for your inspection, and any errors found, to make a note in the direction of correction. The things written are for our instruction, and our study is to learn and to rightly divide the Word of Truth.

Fraternally as ever,

Comforting Thoughts About Death.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, a celebrated physician, in the American Magazine, on the subject of the painlessness of death, says:

"Sleep and death are both painless, and cause neither fear nor anxiety by their approach. It is one of the most merciful things in nature that the overwhelming majority of the poisons which destroy life, whether they be those which are elaborated from the body's own waste products, acts as narcotics and abolish consciousness long before the end comes. While death is not in any sense analogous to sleep, it resembles it to the extent that it is in the vast majority of instances not only painful, but welcome. Pain-racked and fever-scorched patients long for death as the wearied traveller longs for sleep. The fear of death which has been so enormously exploited in dramatic literature, and otherwise, is almost without existence in sickness. Most of our patients have lost it completely by the time they become seriously ill.

"While many of the processes which lead to death are painful, death itself is painless, natural, like the fading of a flower or the falling of a leaf. Our dear ones drift out on the ebbing tide of life without fear, without pain, without regret, save for those they leave behind. When death comes close enough so that we can see the eyes behind the mask, his face becomes as welcome as that of his 'twin brother,' Sleep."

"By Which"

These words are found in 1 Peter iii 19. The reader will remember that some time since Brother Tomkins wrote a very thoughtful article on this difficult text of Scripture, stating that Christ personally did the preaching, and then to introduce a similar proclamation in ancient times, the word "as" was inserted. At Brother Tomkin's solicitation we now offer a few thoughts on this text, and will give a few reasons why we cannot agree with our brother's exegesis.

Instead of "quickened by the spirit" (v. 18), some Greek MSS read "in the Holy Spirit". The Latin Bible reads, "by which he came spiritually, and preached to them that were in prison". The Complutensian Polyglot, also two ancient MS. of the Vulgate read, "in which, coming by the spirit, he preached to those who were in prison." "In my old MS Bible," says Adam Clarke, "which contains the first translation into English ever made, reads, 'in which thing, and to them that were closed together in prison, he coming in spirit preached.'" In all these various and authenticated renderings of the text, we have unanimity on the thought of Christ's activity as a preacher, but making his proclamation "in the spirit." "By his spirit," it is said here "he preached." We ask the reader to read carefully an article on this subject which will soon appear in our columns written by our beloved Brother Almus Adams.

"Temptation is not sin. Good men are tempted; children are tempted; angels are tempted; Jesus was tempted. It is not a sign that you are bad that you have temptation."

Report of Labor.

On October 18th, we went to District No. 9, Mecosta County for a few meetings. The interest was good from the beginning; the numbers increasing each evening. Brother Huggins came over from the Decker neighborhood and helped in the meetings until Friday evening, leaving there Saturday morning for Dutton, where many were anxious to hear him again. I came home Saturday evening, leaving the Elder to finish the meeting at No. 9, for the present. At their earnest request we expect to go back there November 14th and try to build up the work at that point.

October 30th we both went to Raisin Center, and on Saturday Sister L. U. Chase and I went to Adrian, where I spoke to a good congregation gathered in Sister Lulu Miller's parlors. Several young ladies of Sister Miller's Bible class desired further instruction in Bible doctrine, before committing themselves to the cause of truth in the act of baptism. Two of the candidates for baptism were unavoidably detained from the meeting, for which we were very sorry, and trust that when we go back in four weeks, as we have promised (D. V.) they will be able to get there. On Sunday at the request of the young ladies, the Elder spoke at Raisin Center, on the subject of the kingdom, after which two, Miss Berta Smith a very intelligent young lady, and Sister Peleg Chase, who felt that her former baptism was not performed with a sufficient understanding of the Scriptures were led into the waters of Raisin River, and baptized by Elder Woodward.

Sister Miller is untiring in her efforts to instruct and interest all who will help her in the Bible School work in Adrian. May she not become discouraged, but remember, God hath promised wisdom to those who ask and search for it, so may she patiently work and be rewarded by seeing the interest increase and others inquiring the way to be saved.

Yours in the work,

B. W. & M. A. WOODWARD.

Brother Underwood,

I was at Scholls, Oregon, last Sunday, where I gave the neighbors and brethren a good bye sermon. I am to meet with them for the same purpose at the church at Fulda, Washington, and the Lord willing, shall start to Avery from Portland, Nov. 2. Any that want meetings within reach of Avery, Oklahoma, will address me at that place. I expect to hold meetings as may be arranged from that end at that place. I expect to go via Denver.

Yours for the cause for life,

W. L. SKEELS.

What Is Faith?

What is faith? It is a belief in things which we do not see. It is very difficult to believe in what one cannot see, you say. Well, whether it be difficult or not, you do so every day of your life. You purchase a packet of seeds. There are a number of little dry, hard, dark atoms—not in the least like the bright blossoms you want. But you are told, by the man who knows, that these are seeds of the flowers which you desire to grow; so you take them and put them into the ground. That is faith. Then after a few weeks, you see a little bit of green appear above the earth, and you are happy. You say—I see my flower is coming up all right. But it is not a flower; it is only a little bit, as it were, of green grass, and has not a single one of the colors which you are looking for in your flower. Yet you feel quite certain that it is all right. That is faith again. Then at last, after more weeks of sunshine and shower, the full glorious flower bursts forth in all variety of its color and the glory of its form. Then you need no more faith in this matter, for you see the flower itself.—T. Teignmouth Shore.

Religion is not a fenced-off enclosure, within which all is sacred, and outside of which all is secular and profane. There is no such distinction to be drawn. Religion is life, character, conduct; it reaches up to God and down into the smallest details of daily duty; it covers everything.

Sin builds your hospitals, and sin builds the cities of the dead; sin is the undertaker at every funeral, and sin is the spade that digs the grave; and if sin could climb in the steps and get through the gates of life and take up its abode on God's fair fields of light, they would have to build a graveyard in glory.—Uipsy Smith.

THOUGHTS.

While there are many paths to go in, there is only one right one.

God points out, leads, guides, directs, us to the right path.

If we go in wrong paths it is because of some fault in ourselves.

As we are willing to obey God's law, to put aside self and selfishness, and seek to do right, we shall surely be led in the paths and places that are best for us—even Paths of Righteousness.

As we disregard God's law, seek to gratify self, walk in forbidden paths, we will be without God's guidance, without hope, and have no one to blame but self.

We know we need a guide, and rest, and food, and shelter—constant care. Jesus promises all this, and then so much more that we cannot even imagine, is yet in store of the Father for his loving children.

Diary of a Rumseller.

Monday.—Took ragged Bill's last dime for whiskey.

Tuesday. Had a visit from Charlie Piper, who swore off three months ago and signed the pledge; gave him three drinks on tick.

Wednesday. That poor nervous fool, Dick Plaster, who gets wild and nervous after one drink, came in today; sold him a quart. P. S. Hear he killed his wife in a drunken rage.

Thursday. Johnny Slogan's wife begged me never to sell another drop to him. She cried till I promised. P. S. Sold him enough this very day to make him smash furniture and beat his children—ha! ha! ha! Business is business.

Friday. Phil Carter had no money; took his wife's wedding ring and silk dress for an old bill; sent him home gloriously drunk.

Saturday. Young Sam Chap took his third drink today. I know he likes it, and will make a speedy drunkard, but I gave him the value of his money. His father implored me to help break up the practice before it became a habit, but I told him if I didn't sell it some one else would.

Sunday. Pretended to keep the Sunday law today, but kept open my back door. Sold beer and wine to some boys, but they'll be ashamed to tell of it. But my till is fuller tonight than the church baskets are.

N. B. My business must be respectable, for real gentlemen patronize my bar—and yet, I guess I won't keep a diary, for these facts look very queer on paper.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 15.

THE LORD OUR SHEPHERD. PSA. XXIII.

Golden Text. "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." Psa. xxiii. 1.

Who is the Lord that is called The Lord? He is the Jehovah Lord, or the Lord Jehovah. The One who said to Moses "I am that I am." Exo. iii. 14, or according to Leeser, "I will be that I will be" and again "I am the Lord—Jehovah—I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob by the name of God Almighty, but by my name Jehovah was I not known to them." Exo. vi. 2, 3.

The Lord—Jehovah—does not call himself a shepherd, neither does David call him a shepherd. The lesson title is also wrong. It is not the Lord our Shepherd. It is "The Lord is my Shepherd."

The Psalm might—in a way—be a declaration of David of the goodness of the Lord to him; but if we carefully consider it as an expression of the Messiah—the Christ—we will find it fit in every point. Many of the Psalms, and especially parts of them, can only apply to David's Lord—the Messiah. David was a prophet, one of the holy men of God, and spoke as he was moved by the Holy Spirit." 2 Peter i. 21. He was moved by the Holy Spirit to prophesy of and for Christ to say "The Lord is my shepherd." Every true believer knows that Jesus was "A Man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief" Isa. liii. 3. Every true believer knows that his Father, the Lord Jehovah was with him—was his shepherd—from his birth to his death on the cross. He was a true Son, he was full of the Holy Spirit, iv. 1. It descended upon him like a dove. And God testified from heaven, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Matt. iii. 16, 17. This was the voice of his Shepherd. It gave him a joy that his sorrows could not drive away, a joy that he desired to leave with his chosen ones a rare legacy. "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, that your joy might be full." John xv. 11. The valley of the shadow of death brought no fear of evil. He knew he could not be held in the grave because his Shepherd was caring for him. "The Son of Man shall be betrayed into the hands of men, and they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again." Matt. xvii. 22, 23. For thou—my Shepherd—art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Although the Lord forsook him on the cross, Mark xv. 34, it was only for a short time. The apostle Peter preaching at the time of Pentecost said, "This Jesus hath God raised up" Acts ii. 32.

The whole psalm might be followed in every detail to suit the life and purpose of the Christ. Shepherds are those to take care of sheep. They watch over their flock by night, Luke ii. 8. The Lord Jehovah—the Shepherd of Jesus the Christ—having led his Son to a seat at his right hand in the heavens, Heb. viii. 1, said to him, "Sit thou at my right hand until I make thine enemies thy footstool," Psa. cx. 1, 2. These words may account for part of the fifth verse.

Jesus is now a Shepherd himself. As he heard only his Father's—Shepherd's—voice, so he says his sheep hear only his voice, and they know his voice. A stranger,—false shepherd—they will not follow; but will flee from him, they do not know his voice. Jno. x. 1-5.

There is no other shepherd that will, or can, lead us to the kingdom and glory. The Lord Jesus, the Chief Shepherd, 1 Peter v. 4, has warned his sheep that many would come in his name, and deceive many. Behold I have told you before. Believe them not, Matt. xxiv. 5, 25, 26, and in the fourth verse, he says, "Take heed that no man deceive you."—That no false shepherd lead you astray. How are the sheep to know for sure? By the doctrine of Christ. "He went through every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, Luke viii. 1. "If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed."

Next lesson, Solomon Anointed King. 1 Kings, i. 32-40; 50 53.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff loaned these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even per e money is easily detected and is at the of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent at 4 registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp, and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his masters work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

I've Been Thinking.

I've been thinking, I've been thinking,
What a glorious world were this,
Did folks mind their business more,
And mind their neighbor's less.
For instance, you and I, my friend,
Are sadly prone to talk
Of matters that concern us not,
And others' foibles mock.

I've been thinking if we begin
To mind our own affairs,
That possibly our neighbors might
Contrive to manage theirs.
We've faults enough at home to mind—
It may seem of others;
It would seem strange if it were not,
Since all mankind are brothers.

Oh would that we had charity,
For every man and woman;
Forgiveness is the mark of those
We know "to err is human;"
Then let us banish jealousy—
Let's lift our fallen brother;
And as we journey down life's road,
Be good to one another.

Communicated.

The Divine Sonship.

This letter was written to a very dear brother who was inclined to Josephism, in an endeavor to win him back into the light of the Sonship.

My Dear Brother:

From our present view point, the doctrine that Jesus was begotten of Joseph seems cold and sordid in comparison with the beautiful faith, hope and love inspiring belief in the Divine Paternity. A relationship which alone makes possible that all-transcending example of Divine love expressed in the sacrificial offering of the "Only Begotten Son of God," to insure the salvation of those that believe.

It is true, we should keep our minds open for the reception of truth, at the same time it is equally important to exercise the judicial faculty to "Prove all things and hold fast that which is good," so that we do not become "Unstable souls," "Wafted about by every wind of doctrine."

Before we can reject the view that Jesus was begotten of God, as told in

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 11, 1908. NUMBER 42.

the 1st chapters of Matthew and Luke, many seemingly insurmountable obstacles must be removed.

We can find no authentic evidence that Joseph was the natural father of Jesus. Outside of the first two chapters of Matthew and of Luke, which those who believe in the Josephite paternity of necessity reject, the information concerning Joseph is very meager. Four times only is he mentioned in the remaining Scriptures, then only as Jesus "supposed" fa- [illegible] i 45 and vi 42. Whereas Mary is frequently authoritatively mentioned as his mother and the Scriptures abound in relerences attributing his fatherhood to God. The Fatherhood of God and Motherhood of Mary are conspicuous while the fatherhood of Joseph is nowhere asserted. We maintain that if Joseph was indeed Jesus' natural father that fact would have been told in plain words.

HIS SONSHIP NOT PUBLICLY KNOWN.

No one questions that the Jews, including his disciples till they were better informed, supposed Joseph to be Jesus' father. He was a member of Joseph's family and undoubtedly was adopted by him and thus became his legal son. For prudential reasons, sufficiently apparent, the knowledge of his Divine begettal was kept secret, (even Mary "kept those things in her heart," Luke ii 51) till God himself was ready to make an authorative announcement of his Sonship. Luke iii 22, etc.

Jesus himself said: "No man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father." Matt. xi: 27.

At another time he raised and seemingly settled the question of the Sonship, when he asked Peter, "Who say ye that I am."

"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God" was Peter's answer, to which Jesus responded:

"Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." Matt. xvi: 15-18. A statement that further proves that till the Father revealed it, the secret of his Sonship was not publicly known.

The importance of a belief in the Divine Sonship appears in Christ's further words. "On this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Thus he made a belief in his Messiahship and his Sonship a basic principle of Christian faith. As the heir of David—the Christ—he is heir to the throne of Israel. As the Son of God, "He is heir of all things," Heb. 1-2, and "shall have the heathen for his inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession." Psa. ii; Dan. vii; Rev. xi: 15. A thought that aptly keys in and becomes the underlying principle of the Gospel, which Paul says was before preached unto Abraham, "saying, In thy seed shall all families of the earth be blessed." The seed being the Christ, the Son of God, under whose righteous reign, Israel and the nations will be blessed. This also supplies the reason why the Apostolic and early Christian confession of faith embodied a belief in the Divine Sonship. Matt. xiv; 33 and xvi: 16, John ii 49 and vi: 69 and xi: 27, Acts viii: 37, etc

"Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God" says John, "God dwelleth in Him and He in God." 1 John iv: 15, see also 1 John iii: 23 and iv: 9 and 10 and v, 5, 9 to 14.

SON OF MAN.

It is true Jesus also called himself the Son of Man and is frequently called the "Son of David." To claim that the expression Son of Man, means that he is the son of Joseph, does not appeal to us as reasonable. The two terms, Son of Man and Son of David are synonmous in their import, signifying that he is the descendant of David, in other words, the Messiah—the Christ.

Jesus said: "When the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels, then shall he reward every man according to his works." Matt. xvi: 27. From the viewpoint that he is both a descendant of David and the Son of God, the significance of the expression, "Glory of his Father" is plain. But if the term Son of Man, signifies the son of Joseph, it remains for those who so claim to explain the nature of the glory possessed by Joseph, that shall attach to Christ when he comes.

JESUS RAISES THE SONSHIP QUESTION.

The question of the Sonship was again directly raised by Jesus in conversation with the Pharisees, "What think ye of Christ, whose son is he?" he asked. They answer, "The son of David." Jesus then [illegible] in which David in spirit calls him Lord and asks "If David then call him Lord, how is he his son." Matt. xlii: 46. From the viewpoint that Christ was begotten of God and born of, or as the Apostle Paul says: "made of a woman," (Gal. iv: 4) of the House of David, (Luke i: 27), the answer to the question is plain. The Jews in their ignorance could not supply it, but it was revealed of God to Peter, who answered the same question in the words above quoted "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." If he was Joseph's son, as well as Mary's, and not God's Son, there is no reason why David should call him Lord. On the contrary, if he was begotten of God, as God is greater than David, God's Son, even though a descendant of David, on his mother's side, would be entitled to precedence. The question itself implies the Divine Paternity, and was evidently propounded by Christ as an argument to sustain his claim to the Sonship.

TITLE TO THE THRONE OF ISRAEL.

The claim that Joseph must be the natural son of Joseph in order to be heir to the throne of Israel, is not seemingly well founded. The title could as legitimately descend through Mary, his mother. It is not uncommon for a king to inherit his crown through a woman. History abounds in such examples. King Edward of England received his crown through his mother, Victoria. Also the crown descended to Alphonso, the present King of Spain, through his mother. The thought that Jesus inherited the crown of Israel, through Mary, his mother, and the title to the throne of the world, as the "Only begotten of the Father," (John i: 14) is therefore legitimate, and from our present view point, very satisfying.

If Jesus was wholly of earthly parents he would have been born a Jew with inherited instincts, prejudices and characteristics of that race, whereas he possessed but few of the characteristics of the people with whom he mingled. Begotten of God he was a Cosmopolite, belonging to no particular race but to all races. There is therefore a universality in His character. He not only belongs to no particular race but to no century or age, but to all ages. Translate His words into the language of any people and He might have been the offspring of that people. Date them by any century and they belong to that century as fittingly as to any other. His words are timely always and never out of place. His was a life and example age lasting and world wide. His heart pulsated with love for the whole human race. God-like in his instincts, knowledge and love. He is therefore eminently fitted to be the Savior of the World and the world's King.

THE MEASURE OF GOD'S LOVE.

In view of the foregoing, we believe we are justified in asking that the evidence of the Josephite paternity to be acceptable must be of the most direct and positive character, especially so as it involves a the uprooting of what we esteem a most precious and vital principle of Christian faith. A doctrine which the Scriptures as they have come down to us unquestionably teach. A beautiful love inspiring thought which is lost if it was not "God's Own Son," not the "Only Begotten Son of the Father," but Joseph's son who was sacrificed.

Witness the immeasurable love embodied in the words of Jesus, "God so loved the world that he gave his Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life." John iii: 16.

Any one who has an only son, especially a good, faithful, loving son, can in a measure appreciate the boundless love that inspired so noble a gift, the most precious the mind can conceive.

Paul says, (Rom. v: 10): "If when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son, much more being reconciled we shall be saved by His life."

It is clear the death of Jesus meant more and accomplished something which the death of no other person could [illegible] and the words "His Own Son" are used in relation to Jesus than the term sons as applied in the plural form to others.

Also witness the pathetic tenderness of these hope inspiring words. "He that spared not His own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall He not with him also freely give us all things." Rom. viii: 32.

The phrase "His Own Son" expressing all the wealth of a father's love, who was yielding his most precious treasure in giving up His Own Son, His beloved One to die. In verse 29 we are told of the arrangement for others. They were "to be conformed to the image of His Son." To be brought about as Paul further says, (Gal. iv: 4) through the agony of God's Own Son.

"God sent forth his Son made of a woman under the law that he might redeem them that are under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons, and because ye are sons God hath sent forth the spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying Abba Father (our Father)."

This adoption is the medium brought about through the agency of his own Son, by which others become God's spiritual children, but the Medium, Jesus himself, was God's only Son begotten of his Divine substance. Paul then attempts to express the boundless magnitude of the love thus manifested:

He says "For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Rom. viii. 38, 39.

Manifestly if Jesus was Joseph's son, his sacrifice involved no great manifestation of Divine love. It is no sacrifice—requires no stretching of heart-strings—is no example of love to give that which belongs to another. It is considered the height of patriotic devotion for a man to give his son for his country, but to send a son of another as a substitute and sacrifice him on the country's alter suggests but little patriotism.

Why should any one want to exchange the sublime manifestation of the Father's love in giving up "his own," "his only Son" for the altogether unsatisfactory thought of a sacrifice of Joseph's son?

Or exchange our splendid Savior, commingling as he does in his person in a harmonious, lovely and not unnatural way the majesty and love of the Divine with the mortal weakness of the human that he might taste [illegible] for our behalf?

Or the beautiful conception of our "Christ, the Son of the Living God" with His God inherited spirit of holiness, His God-like knowledge, penetration, mercy and power, the heir through His Almighty Father to all things, for a son of Joseph.

The thought possess not a single redeeming feature, while the conception of the Divine Paternity expresses the measure of inconceivable love. Not the blood of the son of Joseph, but the blood of Jesus the Christ, God's Son cleanses from sin.

If indeed it is possible to muster cold facts sufficient to conclusively demonstrate that Jesus was begotten of Joseph, and consequently is not the Only Begotten of the Father, so that we shall be compelled to give up the doctrine of the Divine Paternity, it will be like tearing the very heart strings out of Christianity.

NO STREAM CAN RISE ABOVE ITS FOUNTAIN.

Paul says "The first man (Adam) is of the earth, earthy. The second man (Jesus) is the Lord from heaven." (1 Cor. xv: 47). Also (John iii: 13) and "God sent forth His Own Son made of a woman," Gal. iv: 4. From the viewpoint of the Divine Paternity it is plain in what sense he was the ["Lord from heaven," "came down from heaven," was "sent forth" and crucified. From the viewpoint of a Josephite paternity, however, these expressions are inexplicable. If he originated [from earthly parents, he must also have been of this earth earthy," and in no sense came from heaven.

It is impossible for a stream to rise above its fountain. The doctrine of the evolution of species from a lower to a higher form is impossible in nature and unsupported by fact or experience. It is uniformly under the guiding and uplifting hand of higher intelligence that upward progress is made. A mere man born of human parents could not become the spiritually perfect and sinless Christ the Saviour of the world.

Begotten of the substance of the Father and born of the purest type of woman in all Israel, Our Saviour came into the world occupying a higher plane than it is possible for the natural man of himself to attain to, the plane from which Adam fell. Tempted as Adam was, he conquered. As Adam was given dominion over the forces of nature and all animate creation, (Gen. i: 26) so "He put all things in subjection under him." Heb. ii: 7, 8. He ceases, the winds and waves, evil spirits and all forces of nature were obedient to his will. Even death itself yielded its dominion to his power. As Adam left his high estate that he might share the punishment and sorrow of his beloved bride that God had given him, so Jesus, the second Adam became "Sin for us," his bride, and leaving the higher plane,—his "high estate," descended to our level to become our sacrificial offering, that he might "bear our sins," and redeem us and lift us up to the still higher plane to which God exalted him, the plane of immortal life. Occupying a higher plane he is able to reach down and lift up Adam's fallen posterity. No man born of human parents, weighted with the imperfections of a degenerate ancestry, could have accomplished so noble a mission and work of love.

A CREDIBLE MIRACLE.

It is true the Divine begettal involves a miracle. Christians, however, should not stumble over such examples of Divine Power. The begettal of the Savior is no greater miracle than the creation of Adam, the resurrection of Christ, the blooming of a rose, or the growth of an oak from an acorn.

Some in contending for and against this doctrine have clouded the issue by asking an explanation, or in trying to explain the method of the miracle, just how and through what means and agency it was brought about. Such discussion is as sensible and profitable as it would be to discuss whether, in the miracle of the resurrection, it is essential that God should gather into the new body all the particles of dust that composed the old one, or what chemical changes must take place in the transformation of a corruptible into an incorruptible body.

IN WHAT SENSE IS JESUS THE SON OF GOD?

As before said, the Scriptures as they have come to us unquestionably teach the Divine Paternity. The Sonship is conspicuous throughout the New Testament. Before those who exercise the judicial faculty to "Prove all things" can accept the doctrine of the Josephite paternity, it will be necessary to show if Jesus was not God-begotten, in what sense he is the Son of God, and when and in what way he came into that relationship. Also, as all who are "led by the spirit of God are the children of God," (Rom. viii. 14) in what distinctive sense different from the other sons Jesus is the Son of God, that he should be preferred above the others and called the "Only begotten Son of the Father," (John i 14-18, 34, John iii 16 and 18; Psa ii; Acts xiii 33; Heb i 5; 1 John iv 9. His "firstborn." (Psa lxxxix 27) "His Own Son," (Rom viii 3 and 32; Gal iv 4 and 6 and other testimony)

We become the children of God by the regenerating influence of the "Word of Truth" operating in us, followed by the "Washing of regeneration." In other words, we are converted and baptized for the remission of sins and having reformed our lives, are spiritually made into a "new creation in Christ Jesus." "Born again," into the spiritual family of God. Re- [illegible] We were spiritually "dead in trespasses and sins." Eph ii 1.

Manifestly Jesus did not become the Son of God in that way. He is the embodiment of the Word (John i 14) and therefore could not have been begotten of it. Indeed it is through his Word we are begotten into spiritual life and become adopted children. John i 12; Eph i 5; Gal iii 26; Gal iv 4 to 7. Also he being sinless, was never dead in trespasses and sins, so could not be regenerated, or born again.

Furthermore, if he is an adopted son, he is only one among many. Tens of thousands antedated him, in that case he would be neither the "Only Begotten Son of the Father" nor his "Firstborn" nor in any distinctive sense "His Own Son." He is also uniformly spoken of as "The Son of God." The definite article "the" signifies the only one. Not "A Son" as one among many.

Some claim that he became the Son of God at his resurrection. If so, he was not God's Son prior to that event as the Scriptures abundantly assert, and was not God's Son when he was crucified.

THE FATHER'S NAME.

The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrew says, "Being made so much better than the angels as he had by inheritance (not by adoption) obtained a more excellent name than they. Unto which of the angels said he at any time, thou are my Son, this day have I begotten thee." Heb i 4 5 and 9. It is begotten sons only who inherit the names of their fathers. The central thought of the first nine verses of this Epistle is that Jesus was a Son by begottal, God's own literal son, and therefore inherited his Father's Name, "A name that is above every Name." Phil ii 9, and "Heir of all things." Such language will not fittingly apply to any but a son generated of the substance of the Father.

Praise God.

In every life there are three regions; that of the light, where duty is clearly defined; that of the dark, where wrong is no less clearly marked; and a great borderland of twilight, where there is no certainty, where dividing lines are not distinct, and where each man must be fully persuaded for himself. It is here, however, that the temper of the soul is tested; here the decisions are come to that make us weak or strong; here that we may drift into the dark, or start a path of upward climbing that will conduct to the tablelands where the light never wanes. In threading a difficult way through these devious tracks there is no clue so helpful or certain as to ask what will conduce to the praise of God. All that would hinder this must be avoided; all that would promote and enhance it must be followed at any cost. —F. B. Meyer.

It is a great proof to me that God's truth is the truth, because it is so large that there is an angle for each one of us to see, no matter how diversely our poor blind eyes may squint at it. When the veil through which we now see darkly, is gone, and we see the whole—if we ever see the whole—how blinding the vision will be!

For every trial God sends, he gives sufficient grace for its endurance, but he promises no grace with which to bear anticipations of trial.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, Nov. 11, 1908.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

SISTER Mary Beebe writes that since the death of her husband she has moved from Urbana to Vinton, Iowa. Let all interested make note of this change.

Our offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

A LETTER from a lady in Hochheim, Texas, states she was led to see the truth by reading THE RESTITUTION, and now hopes that God will put it into the heart of some one to come and baptize her into the all-saving name. Who can reach this point? Let us know and name and address will be sent.

AS WINTER is coming on and no one wants war in bad weather, the Balkan trouble is likely to settle down. The past week has seen Germany and France ready to grapple each other, but cooler heads have staved that off again. The new Czar of Bulgaria is to make settlement with Turkey by the money route. Austria settles by simple exchange of territory. Germany is satisfied so long as Austria is not molested, as a large part of the Austrians are really German. Russia is content to bide her time. She wants free passage through the Dardanelles, but to force that issue now would not be policy. However, she sees that it is perfectly easy to break a treaty—even the great Berlin treaty—and if one of the signatory powers can break it at will, another can do likewise when she gets ready. Russia does not want the Berlin treaty smashed just yet. She will get more by waiting.

AGAIN we ask correspondents to be careful. When sending a money order see that is made out properly. One came this week without the post master's signature. Then a request for samples of tracts came, saying to forward with bill, etc. No name is given so we can do nothing. Then another brother gets some sheets of cardboard and writes an article, mails it with a two cent stamp—we had four more to pay. Then again many ask for address to be changed, give the new address, supposing we know the old. Brother if we had but one to remember we could do it, but not thousands, so give the old one too. Then again, street numbers in cities should be given carefully. We have case just now, where a brother in Cleveland, O. sent a change, stating he had moved. We made the change on list exactly as given, and forwarded papers—the post master says Stop it, no such person at above number. A little more care to little details will help very much.

Communicated.

Editor Restitution:

Sisters Mary Knowles, Ida Buckman and myself left Salem, Ohio, October 14th, to visit with the brethren at Cleveland, Ohio. Sisters Hattie Sanford and Ora Thompson met us at the train, taking us to their homes, and helping to make our stay in their city one of pleasure and interest.

Each day of our visit was spent in visiting at the homes of the brethren, and meeting with them at their Wednesday evening Bible Class, and also at the Sister's meeting which is interesting and instructive. At the Sunday Service we had the pleasure of meeting with a number of brothers and Sisters that we could not visit during our short stay.

We missed the voice of Brother Jobelin, as he had always preached the Word of Truth, when we visited the Cleveland Church; but we know he is just sleeping and soon he will awake.

Brother B. F. Laug read a lesson and after breaking bread, the brethren exhorted each [illegible] in the faith, of our Lord and Savior.

Our visit was one to be remembered with pleasure.

On Saturday, October 24th, Brother Stanley Sanford and wife accompanied us to Barberton, Ohio, to meet with the church there on Sunday. The brethren there number three; but the meeting was one that we will long remember. Brother Juergenson and wife, and Brother Earle are earnestly contending for the faith; they are not discouraged because of numbers. Their Motto is, "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." Brother Juergenson read a paper which I send to THE RESTITUTION that others may be benefitted by it. Sister Juergenson had a lesson on "The Blessed Hope." After a short Praise Service and the breaking of bread, the meeting closed. After attending this meeting where sometimes there are only the brother and his wife, I would say to the isolated brethren, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together" if only two or three. Remember the promise "it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

While at Barberton we all enjoyed a drive through the country to Turkey Foot Lakes, about seven miles from the town. It was a beautiful sight as the lakes spread out over the country, and from the hills we had a fine view.

Sister Juergenson went with us to Akron, where we took the electric car for Canton, stopping to visit Brother Hancock and wife, where we remained for a short time. They too, are alone in the faith; but rejoicing in hope. We feel strengthened and encouraged by meeting with those of like precious faith, and will remember our visit with pleasure.

ELLA KNOWLES.

"FOR YE ARE BOUGHT WITH A PRICE."

In picking or selecting a lesson for this Sunday morning I do not think I could find a more valuable,—more interesting and more precious subject than that which we are about to consider. It is a part of the 20th verse of the 6th chapter of 1st Corinthians, and reads as follows: "For ye are bought with a price."

Every word in this text is of great importance to us. In this 6th chapter Paul addresses the church at Corinth against going to law, and he starts the chapter with just such strong language as he closes it with namely: "Dare any of you having a matter against another go to law before the saints?" and then he tells the church what the saints shall do, and then winds up with the question: "Why do ye rather not take wrong?" The old man would like to do that would he? But Paul answers this question himself, saying: "But ye are washed; but ye are sanctified; but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." "Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body. What! know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" And now Paul sums up the whole matter and tells us why we should not do this or why we should do that, by saying: "For ye are bought with a price," and adds to this, to the praise of Jehovah: "Therefore, glorify God in your body, and in your Spirit which are God's," and Paul confirms it in the next chapter, vii. 23, by saying, "Ye are bought with a price; be not ye servants of men." As I have said before, every word is of great value and I will try to show you who Paul addresses with "ye." Does he only mean the church at Corinth, or are more included in this word? Surely there are more included with "ye." Paul means ye as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God; for the promise is to you and your children and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call brethren, but each one of us, wherein he was called therein abide with God, and we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose; for whom he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son; that he might be the first-born among many brethren, moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called, and whom he called them he also justified, and whom he justified them he also glorified."

The called ones are all they who are brought into the fold by the preaching of the Word, and effectual operation of the Spirit to obey the gospel, if we were to this description, then we are classified with the called ones, and Paul tells us, that we are not our own; "for we are bought with a price."

"For we are bought with a price." The word "for" is to prove something, it is a conjunction, and is a word by which—a reason is introduced for something advanced before, namely: to prove that we are "not our own," and if we are "not our own," whose are we? or to whom do we belong?

Our text says, "Ye are bought." To "buy" means here not that an exchange has taken place, but "are bought" means here have been redeemed, so that our text would read "For ye have been redeemed with a price." Buy or redeem signifies to deliver sinners from sin and its penalty from death, for the wages of sin are death. Paul to the Romans wrote as follows:—"Know ye not that so many of us (mark this us) as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life; for if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall also be in the likeness of his resurrection."

The proclamation which Jesus gave his disciples after his resurrection was, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature; he that believeth and is baptised shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." To explain in few words would be as follows: By baptism we enter into the covenant with God, through Christ. By baptism our sins are washed away, and (right here) "we are bought with a price." "With a price!" What precious words. "With a price!" With the price; the only price. Are these not precious words? Brethren, ye, or we are "bought with a price;" we are redeemed by the precious blood of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, whereby Christ has an everlasting dominion over us. A ransom means a price paid, or the redeeming of a sinner, or procuring a pardon for some offender.

God giving directions to his prophets or ministers how to behave toward penitent sinners says, in Job xxxiii. 24, "Deliver him from going down to the pit, I have found a ransom." Declare to him, (the sinner) that I have pardoned him and I will heal him; for I have provided a way of ransoming and redeeming sinners from death, which they by their sins have deserved, which way is by the death of my Son, the Redeemer and Savior, hence Christ is called a Ransom. And as we read, 1. Tim. ii. 6, "Who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." Man being in a lost and most deplorable condition, and liable to eternal death on account of his sins, the eternal God, moved by his divine love sent his only begotten and beloved Son to restore fallen man to the favor of God and Christ, who voluntarily endured punishment due to our sins, gave his most precious life and blood as the price of our redemption, and therefore such, as Christ, redeemed from the bondage of sin and death are called the "ransomed of the Lord," Isa. xxxv. 10. Christ delivered sinners from sin and death by the purchase of his precious blood and the power of his grace, thus is Christ both the Ransomer and the Ransom. Looking for "that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the Great God and our Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

In 1 Peter i. 18, to the end, we read, "For as much as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot; who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you, who by him do believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God. Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently; being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever; for all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away; but the Word of the Lord endureth forever; and this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

In Gal. iii. 13, we find the reason why it was necessary for Christ to die, namely, "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law," which is, "Thou shalt surely die;" but now after hearing and obeying the gospel, we can say with 1st John iii. "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God." Further on we read, "But we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is," and when we shall see him, brethren, then the lambs shall sing a new song, saying, thou art worthy to take the Book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred and tongue and people, and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth."

"For ye are bought with a price." Say friends, can you afford to neglect so great an offer and close your ears to the pleading Savior who standeth at the door knocking; if any man hear my voice and open the door; I will come in to him, and will sup with him and he with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcome and am set down with my Father on his throne. He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches." But also to you dear brethren, bring I also a message while we are permitted to once more assemble on this first day of another week to remember the death of our Lord, and to celebrate that happy day on which our crucified Lord conquered the great enemy, "death" on its own ground. While preaching throughout Galilee, this Jesus of Nazareth told the multitude on one occasion "I am the Bread of life, he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."

"I am the Bread of Life." What precious words they are to us, brethren. Jesus Christ compared himself to bread, and well he may, as he is the true food, and both the author and matter of eternal life. The Wise Man of Old has told us, "Come eat ye of my bread and drink ye of the wine which I have mingled." Who are they which shall come to eat of that bread and to drink of that wine?" Every body is invited; but few are coming, and the Psalmist answers this question thus: "The meek shall eat and be satisfied; they shall praise Jehovah that seek after him, let your heart live forever—all the ends of the earth shall remember and turn unto Jehovah, and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee."

For the kingdom is Jehovah's, and he is the Ruler over the nations. As it is Jehovah's will which is to be done on earth as it is in heaven, the human race can never do this except through Christ, who calls himself the Bridegroom, and those who have been bought, the Bride, and now listen to the beautiful words of the Bridegroom: I am come into the garden my sister my Bride; I have gathered my myrrh with my spice. I have eaten my honeycomb with my honey, I have drank my wine with my milk. Eat, oh Brethren! drink ye, drink ye abundantly, oh beloved!

The Savior is here represented as blessing his church, and conferring upon her special gospel privileges and consolation. Happy the saint and happy the fellowship that is prepared to receive him. The saints are too frequently asleep and their lamps all but out, while they ought to be looking, watching and longing for the appearance of their Divine Benefactor.

Now let us listen for a few moments to the prophet Isaiah—Ho, every one that thirsteth. Come ye to the waters; and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat. Yea come buy wine and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread; and your labor for that which satisfieth not? Hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness; incline your ear and come unto me; hear and your soul shall live. And I will make an everlasting covenant with you; even the sure mercies of David.

The prophet invites both Jews and Gentiles desirous of eternal life, to come and participate in the blessings of the gospel which are exhibited to them under the emblems of temporal things. The term thirst is particularly expressive. The sensation it implies is one of great uneasiness, representing the painful solicitude of the soul, and the deep conviction, crying out What shall I do to be saved? The Savior may have had this in view when he pronounced the blessing on those who hunger and thirst after righteous[illegible]

Christ is the Bread of Life, and Paul taking up the question says: The Bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ. Seeing that we who are many are one bread, one body; for we are all partakers of the one bread.

Brethren we are one bread, as we are joined together into one mystical body, and declare ourselves to be so by our fellowship together, in the ordinance which Paul says he had received of the Lord; which also he delivered unto us, that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread; and when he had given thanks, he broke it and said, Take eat; this is my body which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup when he had supped, saying This cup is the New Testament in my blood. This do ye as oft as ye drink it in remembrance of me; for as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.

May the dear Lord in his great mercy grant that all those who partake of the bread of life this morning may be found among those who have been Bought with a Price.

Amen and Amen.

Trip to Oklahoma.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Every thing is so uncertain in planning ahead, that I am almost resolved at times to leave all planning to Providence and to work as work comes to hand. My desire to continue my work in a more southern climate is placed in the balance, which I think comes largely from my having stated in THE RESTITUTION that my means was almost exhausted, and I would have to depend on brethren for traveling expenses.

This placed the brother at Avery in such uncertain position that the time of meeting at that place is postponed till Nov. 20, or later by his special request.

In the meantime I am reminded again that "man proposes but God disposes." I went to Scholls, Oregon and gave old neighbors and brethren a good by discourse on Oct. 18, and at Felidu, Nov. 1. The officers of the Northwest Conference voluntarily offered me the amount in the treasury, $92.80, toward defraying expense of past work and assisting in further labor. As this had accumulated during the years in which I alone had filled the office of evangelist, there could be no question of misappropriation of funds pending. With thanks I accept the escape from the uncertainty I was placed under.

I wish to inform the brethren that it is not my purpose to locate in Oklahoma or any other state (unless it should be Arizona), but to continue to carry the good news from place to place, while life and strength is sufficient, and brethren have means, not in any one place, but all along the line, to defray traveling expenses.

I give this letter not only to inform the brethren in the south and southwest of my delay, but as the strongest argument I can make for a united, systematic plan of work in supporting those that are willing and anxious to work for the Master's cause.

I still hope to start for Oklahoma at an early date.

W. L. SKEELS.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Obituary.

Elder C. C. Ramsay was born at Lowell, Mass. Dec 18, 1830, departed this life Sept. 15th, 1908, at Mason City, Iowa, at the home of his son Charles. He died suddenly from the infirmities of age, and was buried at Floyd, Iowa, where he long had lived and labored as an evangelist for the Church of God.

He was twice married, his first wife having died in Iowa many years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss a devoted wife, a daughter and two sons.

For several years he has been in failing health. In the summer of 1907 he was extremely ill at his home in Philadelphia, where he was nursed to a degree of health and strength by his devoted companion, and other relatives and friends. As soon as sufficiently recovered he with his wife visited his children in Iowa, after which they returned to their home, where he passed through the winter in fairly good health.

This summer he again visited his children, while Sister Ramsay [illegible] to Virginia to build up her health, visit friends. Seventeen years ago he first came from Philadelphia to Virginia, visiting brethren and proclaiming the truth he so much loved. Since then they together made seven visits to the Valley of Virginia, and the love and esteem we all feel for him prompts me to write this, not so much as an obituary, as an abler hand than mine is doubtless preparing a suitable one, but I cannot refrain from expressing our sorrow over his death, and our appreciation of his labors when here among us.

With a noble character, embellished as it was with so many Christian graces, it is but meet he should hold a warm place in the hearts of those he labored with. None more worthy of love, nor better able to proclaim the Glad Tidings has come amongst us. Truly can we say a beloved brother has fallen asleep.

But our sorrow is tempered with the firm hope which inspired our dear brother with love and with confidence in the promise of the greatest of gifts—Eternal Life in the Kingdom of our God.

E. R. BOYER.

Catherine Hittle was born in Pennsylvania, June 17, 1828, and died at Plymouth, Indiana, Nov. 6, 1908, at the age of 80 years.

When but eight years old she came with her parents to Rush County, Indiana, and in 1840 the family came to Marshall County, where the greater part of her long life was passed.

On Sept. 2, 1847 she was married to William Smith, and to this union were born six children who survive her—Perry W., George W., Joseph B. A. A., and Milton Smith, and Mrs. Mary E. Shaffer.

Her husband died Jan. 17, 1873, and she afterward married Miram Henderson of Kewanna, Indiana, who died some years ago.

Sister Henderson has been a member of the Church of God for many years, being among the pioneers in faith. She was always quiet and undemonstrative, yet firm in her convictions. She bought a little home in Plymouth a few years ago so that she might be near her children, and also attend Church services. She was made a member of this local organization on May 27, 1900, and when health would permit was always in her place, the last time being Sunday, Oct. 25.

The funeral was held on Sunday, Nov. 8, at Poplar Grove Church some fourteen miles southwest of this city, where she was laid to rest in the quiet grave, to await the call of the heavenly messenger who will soon summon the faithful ones to come forth to a life that will not end. May we each so live that we will hear the trumpet call, and with our Sister enter into the joy of our Lord.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Let Us Pray.

Great and Adorable Lord, our God: Another day of Wonderful privileges has dawned upon us. And the memory of Thy gracious invitation to come boldly to the throne of grace to obtain mercy and find help for every time of need, encourages us to come. We need mercy now, gracious Father. We all, like the apostles, and much more, offend in many things, and we confess all our shortcomings and remissness, and beseech Thee in Jesus' name to forgive us, that we may still be Thy adopted children, and praise and magnify thy holy name together.

And now, our heavenly Father, help us to shut out the world with all its cares and anxieties, and worship Thee without distraction, and in strong expectant faith, await the promised blessing. May each member of this little Body gaze on him who once was slain for us, till the whole being is opened up for his reception,—so that on leaving these hallowed precincts, each may indeed be a temple full of Holy Spirit. Oh, God, we realize to some extent, this morning, that there are heights and depths and breadths and lengths of Thy love that we have never explored; but we desire to live in closer communion with Thee,—we want to more implicitly obey the commandments of Jesus,—and walk in his steps. Father of love and mercy, help us to rise to a higher plain in the divine life, and grow continually in thy favor and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Oh Father, do thou help us to attain that point where we can praise Thee for every disappointment, and loss, and vexation, because it has caused us to take hold of Thy strength.

Bless all of thy waiting children today, wherever they may be—especially the scattered and lonely members of thy Household. Remember all the afflicted ones in body, mind and estate—Bless Israel according to the flesh. We pray, too, for those in authority over us. In Jesus' name.

1 Cor. xv. 44.

Brother Huggins:

Please give an exposition of 1 Cor xv 44. Give the Greek words for "raised", "spiritual", and "body", and their meanings. A man here says that the original word for "raised" means dissolution or separation. You can see at a glance what he is trying to do—do away with the resurrection. Is Young's Concordance standard authority? In hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

E. F. RANDOLPH

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The Greek word translated "raised" in 1 Cor xv 44, is ageiro, and means, according to Young who is authority the world over, "to raise up". The word "spiritual" is from pneumatikos; and "body" is soma in the Greek, and means the physical organism always, unless it is used in a secondary sense. Your friend's suggestion that "raised" means separation, the separation of an immortal soul from this "mortal coil", is a prevalent theological saying, but is as destitute of foundation as an air castle. If he would only note that Paul's statement is about "the dead", that "the dead shall be raised incorruptible" (v 52), instead of an immortal entity being separated from the mortal body at death, he would surely see his mistake and the truth too.

Pillars.

Brother Huggins:

Your native work in the church prompts me to ask you for light on several questions. One I now submit: Would it be proper to call James, Cephas, and John (Gal. ii 9) a first presidency or first presidents of the church? Were they not an earthly head of the church after the Lord's ascension?—J. H. Byerly.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The text referred to, Gal ii 9, does not say that James, Cephas, and John were pillars in the church, but they "seemed to be pillars", says the apostle. Whether these men were what they "seemed" to be or not, is a matter of small importance; the important thing to recognize is, that God has "set some in the church" (1 Cor xii 28) with authority to oversee and feed the church of God (Acts xx 28); and the ecclesia is so solemnly charged to obey and submit obediently to those who thus rule in the assembly of the saints. Heb xiii 17; Matt xviii 17. The boastful claims made by some brethren that they have no leader, that they follow no man, etc., is both unscriptural and sinful. Paul is declared to be "a pattern to them which should hereafter believe" (1 Tim i 16); and Timothy, though only a young man, was "an example" to the brethren "in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." iv 12. We are exhorted to "be followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises," (Heb vi 12), to walk in the "steps" of Abraham, etc. Rom iv 12. We are to "walk in the way of good men." Prov ii 20. And these "good men" are not only patterns and examples, but their "steps" are to be "walked" in. The church of Christ has human "pillars" under it; its "foundation" is not Christ alone, as some Protestants would have us believe. He is the "chief corner stone", but the "apostles and prophets" are part of its "foundation", popish as it may sound to some who are restive under church authority and discipline. Eph ii 20.

Good Reasoning

Sister Highfly.—The Bible condemns pride, not gold, silver, and finery. Really now, can't a person indulge in these things, and yet not be proud?

Minister.—Well, Sister Highfly, I reason that when you can see the tale of a fox, the fox himself cannot be far off.

"The Whole World."

These words occur in 1 John ii 2. The apostle affirms that Christ "is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but for the sins of the whole world". It is claimed by some that "the whole world" means the entire race of Adam without exception. But the word here translated "world" is cosmos, and means "arrangement of things". As the word only means an arrangement or constitution of things, we have come to classify it in a specific sense; we talk about the "religious world", the "political world", the "social world", etc., etc. The "religious world", for instance, comes far short of embracing every being on the globe. And while we do not dogmatically state that John means, "Not for our sins only (meaning the writer and the church to whom he is writing), but also for the sins of the entire religious world", we suggest that this paraphrase perhaps expresses the apostles' meaning.

Of one thing we are certain; he did not mean the whole race of Adam as a totality, both dead and living, by "the whole world". Christ says in humble petition to his Father, "I have manifested thy name to the men which thou gavest me out of the world" (Jno xvii 6); "the whole world" cannot, therefore, include these "men", because they were taken "out" of it. Before the apostle says a thing about "the whol world" he informs us that Christ "is the propitiation for our sins; and not for our's only"; after these remarks he goes on to talk about the "whole world", showing conclusively that, unless we charge him with redundancy, himself and other saints formed no part of the "world" of which he is speaking. Then "the whole world" is not universal. The conclusion may make Universalists feel uncomfortable, but it is good news to us who believe the inspired record. Do you ask why? Then you shall have the reason. "The whole world," says the same writer, "lieth in wickedness". 1 John v 19. If "the whole world" is universal, to what a strange conclusion must we come! "The whole world", that is, the entire posterity of Adam, dead and living, "lieth", in the present tense, "lieth in wickedness"!! Good old Abraham, Noah, Job and the rest "of whom the world was not worthy"—all lying in wickedness. And since the world is to pass away (1 Jno ii 17), and since the "world" means all without exception, all the saints of God will have to pass away"! But the phrase: "the whole world" and "all the world", does not in a single instance in all the Book of God mean the whole human family in the sense of totality. In the days of Cæsar Augustus "all the world" was taxed. Luke ii 1. Did the dead of past ages have to pay taxes? Did this decree embrace the antediluvians? Was Abraham, Lot, and the Sodomites raised from the dead, so that Augustus could tax them? Did our modern Universalist pay taxes during the reign of Augustus? No.

Was the Church Organized Before Pentecost?

Is it correct to say that the church was partly or possibly fully organized before Pentecost? I judge that it was from the calling of the Twelve, the Seventy, Judas the Treasurer, and from the Master's statement in Matt xviii 15-18.—D. A. Holcomb.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

We share your views, Brother Holcomb. The apostles were appointed before Pentecost, were "set in the church" (1 Cor xii 28) by the Master himself; hence in case of offence that could not be reconciled privately among members, the crime was to be told "to the church." Matt xviii 17. If no church existed then, it would have been impossible to tell it to the church, and unless the church was then properly organized it would have been powerless to exercise the prerogative of adjudication. That the church existed prior to Pentecost day finds indubible corroboration in the language of Acts ii. where and when it is said of the converts made, "And the Lord added to the church daily such as were saved." v 47. See Matthew Henry's commentary on this text. Instead of the church being organized or set up on the day of Pentecost, the converts then made were just "added" to the church already in existence. And I submit that there is a vast deal of difference in setting up the church and "adding" to the church. After a church has been built, after it is in existence, you may "add" to it, not before.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

I am glad to see you are conducting your editorial part of THE RESTITUTION so frankly and ably in defense of the truth. You have nothing to fear, so long as you are faithful, earnest, and discriminating in your work—liberal, but not loose; considerate, but not truckling to human prejudice or vain philosophising of speculative dreamers. I am not a lover of strife or endless controversy. I do not believe in debating every thing and setting nothing; ever seeking but never finding. I am not particularly anxious about what this or that party thinks of my convictions—nevertheless, not insensible to the good and bad opinions of those with whom I come in contact. They may curse or they may bless; the latter is, of course, preferable, but not worth obtaining if it has to be done by sacrificing one or more of the fundamentals of the truth. What saith the Word is the all important matter? If all would submit to the testimony there would be no factions, no strife of tongues, no bickering. We must cut loose from what seemeth to be right to us if we wish to get a proper and just apprehension of what the Word teaches. What seemeth just to us may be all wrong and lead us to sympathize with what is hateful in the sight of Deity. Jehovah's dealings with nations and individuals in times past is regarded as very arbitrary and unjust by many of the reputed wisdom seekers of the world. They judge of things divine after their own feelings and sympathize with those whom God has punished with the death of the uncircumcised. This mode of reasoning lands them in confusion, and all manner of speculation follows, as the result of substituting their own thoughts in the place of revealed testimony as the rule of right. Yes; there are many ways that "seemeth right unto man but the end thereof are the ways of death."

A misapplication of testimony is virtually equivalent to unbelief. It is the result of trying to harmonize revealed testimony with our own erroneous conception as to what is good and just. If it were possible for a man to know what is good in the sight of his Maker apart from the Creator's revealed will—the natural man would certainly have something whereof to boast, and flatter his vanity. He has his vanity and pride all the same, but is absolutely a blank in the knowledge of God and spiritual perception. True wisdom is from above—pure and peaceable. Belief of the revealed Word is the Spiritual breath of life, and generates an understanding heart; the only treasure worthy of human ambition.

GEO MOYER.

Brother Huggins:

I enclose with this a few references relating to chronology which I ran into when looking over the time from the departure of the Scepter from Judah in the 11th of Zedekiah, to its return to the "Lion of the tribe of Judah" in the epoch of the re-generation; when Gentile times come to an end. I am surprised at the outcome of the figures found in the texts referred to, because being so much different from what I had expected, and as has been generally accepted.

I submit these figures for your inspection, and any errors found, to ... to the unerring of correction. The things written are for our instruction, and our study is to learn and to rightly divide the Word of Truth.

Fraternally as ever,

Comforting Thoughts About Death

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, a celebrated physician, in the American Magazine, on the subject of the painlessness of death, says:

"Sleep and death are both painless, and cause neither fear nor anxiety by their approach. It is one of the most merciful things in nature that the overwhelming majority of the poisons which destroy life, whether they be those which are elaborated from the body's own waste products, acts as narcotics and abolish consciousness long before the end comes. While death is not in any sense analogous to sleep, it resembles it to the extent that it is in the vast majority of instances not only painful, but welcome. Pain-racked and fever-scorched patients long for death as the wearied toiler longs for sleep. The fear of death which has been so enormously exploited in dramatic literature, sacred and otherwise, is almost without existence in sickness. Most of our patients have lost it completely by the time they become seriously ill.

"While many of the processes which lead to death are painful, death itself is painless, natural, like the fading of a flower or the falling of a leaf. Our dear ones drift out on the ebbing tide of life without fear, without pain, without regret, save for those they leave behind. When death comes close enough so that we can see the eyes behind the mask, his face becomes as welcome as that of his 'twin brother,' Sleep."

"By Which"

These words are found in 1 Peter iii 19. The reader will remember that some time since Brother Tomkins wrote a very thoughtful article on this difficult text of Scripture, stating that Christ personally did the preaching, and then to introduce a similar proclamation in ancient times, the word "ne" was inserted. At Brother Tomkin's solicitation we now offer a few thoughts on this text, and will give a few reasons why we cannot agree with our brother's exegesis.

Instead of "quickened by the spirit" (v. 18), some Greek MSS read "in the Holy Spirit". The Latin Bible reads, "by which he came spiritually, and preached to them that were in prison". The Complutensian Polyglot, also two ancient MS. of the Vulgate read, "in which, coming by the spirit, he preached to those who were in prison." "In my old MS Bible," says Adam Parke, "which contains the first translation into English ever made, reads, 'In which thing, and to them that were closed together in prison, he coming in spirit preached.'" In all these various and authenticated renderings of the text, we have unanimity on the thought of Christ's activity as a preacher, but making his proclamation "in the spirit." "By his spirit," it is said here "he preached." We ask the reader to read carefully an article on this subject which will soon appear in our columns written by our beloved Brother Almus Adams.

"Temptation is not sin. Good men are tempted; children are tempted; angels are tempted; Jesus was tempted. It is not a sign that you are bad that you have temptation."

Report of Labor.

On October 18th, we went to District No. 9, Macosta County for a few meetings. The interest was good from the beginning; the numbers increasing each evening. Brother Huggins came over from the Decker neighborhood and helped in the meetings until Friday evening, leaving there Saturday morning for Dunton, where many were anxious to hear him again. I came home Saturday evening, leaving the Elder to finish the meeting at No. 9, for the present. At their earnest request we expect to go back there November 14th and try to build up the work at that point.

October 30th we both went to Italia Center, and on Saturday Sister L. C. Chase and I went to Adrian, where I spoke to a good congregation gathered in Sister Lulu Miller's parlors. Several young ladies of Sister Miller's Bible class desired further instruction in Bible doctrine, before committing themselves to the cause of truth in the act of baptism. Two of the candidates for baptism were unavoidably detained from the meeting, for which we were very sorry, and trust that when we go back in four weeks, as we have promised (D. V.) they will be able to get there. On Sunday at the request of the young ladies, the Elder spoke at Italia Center, on the subject of the kingdom, after which two, Miss Berta Smith a very intelligent young lady, and Sister Peleg Chase, who felt that her former baptism was not performed with a sufficient understanding of the Scriptures were led into the waters of Italia River, and baptised by Elder Woodward.

Sister Miller is untiring in her efforts to instruct and interest all who will help her in the Bible School work in Adrian. May she not become discouraged, but remember, God hath promised wisdom to those who ask and search for it, so may she patiently work and be rewarded by seeing the interest increase and others inquiring the way to be saved.

Yours in the work,

B. W. & M. A. WOODWARD.

Brother Underwood,

I was at Scholls, Oregon, last Sunday, where I gave the neighbors and brethren a good bye sermon. I am to meet with them for the same purpose at the church at Fields, Washington, and the Lord willing, shall start to Avery from Portland, Nov. 2. Any that want meetings within reach of Avery, Oklahoma, will address me at that place. I expect to hold meetings as may be arranged from that end at that place. I expect to go via Denver.

Yours for the cause for life,

W. L. SESSLS.

What Is Faith?

What is faith? It is a belief in things which we do not see. It is very difficult to believe in what one cannot see, you say. Well, whether it be difficult or not, you do so every day of your life. You purchase a packet of seeds. There are a number of little dry, hard, dark atoms—not in the least like the bright blossoms you want. But you are told, by the man who knows, that these are seeds of the flowers which you desire to grow; so you take them and put them into the ground. That is faith. Then after a few weeks, you see a little bit of green appear above the earth, and you are happy. You say—I see my flower is coming up all right. But it is not a flower; it is only a little bit, as it were, of green grass, and has not a single one of the colors which you are looking for in your flower. Yet you feel quite certain that it is all right. That is faith again. Then at last, after more weeks of sunshine and shower, the full glorious flower bursts forth in all variety of its color and the glory of its form. Then you need no more faith in this matter, for you see the flower itself.—T. Tolgumouth Shore.

Religion is not a fenced-off enclosure, within which all is sacred, and outside of which all is secular and profane. There is no such distinction to be drawn. Religion is life, character, conduct; it reaches up to God and down into the smallest details of daily duty; it covers everything.

Sin builds your hospitals, and sin builds the cities of the dead; sin is the undertaker at every funeral, and sin is the spade that digs the grave; and if sin could climb in the steps and get through the gates of life and take up its abode on God's fair fields of light, they would have to build a graveyard in glory.—Gipsy Smith.

THE LORD OUR SHEPHERD. PSA. XXIII.

Golden Text.—"The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want. Verse 1.

QUESTIONS.

1. Who wrote this Psalm?
2. What experiences in David's life would cause him to liken the Lord to a shepherd? 1 Sam. xvi. 11; xvii. 15.

9. What is meant by green pastures?
10. What by still waters?

12. What does "restoreth my soul" mean?
13. Why do we need to be led?

21. If our cup is full of the blessings of God, and we are assured he has much more in store for us; if his "loving kindness" encircles us, and we are in his household, accepted as members of his family, need we have any fears for the future?

THOUGHTS.

While there are many paths to go in, there is only one right one.

God points out, leads, guides, directs, us to the right path.

If we go in wrong path it is because of some fault in ourselves.

As we are willing to obey God's law, to put aside self and selfishness, and seek to do right, we shall surely be led in the paths and places that are best for us—even Paths of Righteousness.

As we disregard God's law, seek to gratify self, walk in forbidden paths, we will be without God's guidance, without hope, and have no one to blame but self.

We know we need a guide, and rest, and food, and shelter—constant care. Jesus promises all this, and then so much more that we cannot even imagine, in yet in store of the Father for his loving children.

Diary of a Rumseller.

Monday.—Took ragged Bill's last dime for whiskey.

Tuesday. Had a visit from Charlie Piper, who swore off three months ago and signed the pledge; gave him three drinks on tick.

Wednesday. That poor nervous fool, Dick Plaster, who gets wild and nervous after one drink, came in today; sold him a quart. P. S. Hear he killed his wife in a drunken rage.

Thursday. Johnny Slogan's wife begged me never to sell another drop to him. She cried till I promised. P. S. Sold him enough this very day to make him smash furniture and beat his children—ha! ha! ha! Business is business.

Friday. Phil Carter had no money; took his wife's wedding ring and silk dress for an old bill; sent him home gloriously drunk.

Saturday. Young Sam Chap took his third drink today. I know he likes it, and will make a speedy drunkard, but I grovel in the value of his money. His father implored me to help break up the practice before it became a habit, but I told him if I didn't sell it some one else would.

Sunday. Pretended to keep the Sunday law today, but kept open my back door. Sold beer and wine to some boys, but they'll be ashamed to tell of it. But my till is fuller tonight than the church baskets are.

N. B. My business must be respectable, for real gentlemen patronize my bar—and yet, I guess I won't keep a diary, for these facts look very queer on paper.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 15.

THE LORD OUR SHEPHERD. PSA. XXIII.

Golden Text. "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." Psa. xxiii. 1.

Who is the Lord that is called The Lord? He is the Jehovah Lord, or the Lord Jehovah. The One who said to Moses "I am that I am." Exo. iii. 14, or according to Leeser, "I will be that I will be" and again "I am the Lord—Jehovah—I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob by the name of God Almighty, but by my name Jehovah was I not known to them." Exo. vi. 2, 3.

The Lord—Jehovah—does not call himself a shepherd, neither does David call him a shepherd. The lesson title is also wrong. It is not the Lord our Shepherd. It is "The Lord is my Shepherd."

The Psalm might—in a way—be a declaration of David of the goodness of the Lord to him; but if we carefully consider it as an expression of the Messiah—the Christ—we will find it fit in every point. Many of the Psalms, and especially parts of them, can only apply to David's Lord—the Messiah. David was a prophet, one of the holy men of God, and spoke as he was moved by the Holy Spirit." 2 Peter i. 21. He was moved by the Holy Spirit to prophesy of and for Christ to say "The Lord is my Shepherd." Every true believer knows that Jesus was "A Man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief" Isa. liii. 3. Every true believer knows that his Father, the Lord Jehovah was with him—was his shepherd—from his birth to his death on the cross. He was a true Son, he was full of the Holy Spirit, iv. 1. It descended upon him like a dove. And God testified from heaven, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Matt. iii. 16, 17. This was the voice of his Shepherd. It gave him a joy that his sorrows could not drive away, a joy that he desired to leave with his chosen ones a rare legacy. "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, that your joy might be full." John xv. 11. The valley of the shadow of death brought no fear of evil. He knew he could not be held in the grave because his Shepherd was caring for him. "The Son of Man shall be betrayed into the hands of men, and they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again." Matt. xvii. 22, 23. For thou—my Shepherd—art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Although the Lord forsook him on the cross, Mark xv. 34, it was only for a short time. The apostle Peter preaching at the time of Pentecost said, "This Jesus hath God raised up" Acts ii 32.

The whole psalm might be followed in every detail to suit the life and purpose of the Christ. Shepherds are those to take care of sheep. They watch over their flock by night, Luke ii. 8. The Lord Jehovah—the Shepherd of Jesus the Christ—having led his Son to a seat at his right hand in the heavens, Heb. viii. 1, said to him, "Sit thou at my right hand until I make thine enemies thy footstool." Psa. cx. 1, 2. These words may account for part of the fifth verse.

Jesus is now a Shepherd himself. As he heard only his Father's—Shepherd's—voice, so he says his sheep hear only his voice, and they know his voice. A stranger,—false shepherd—they will not follow; but will flee from him, they do not know his voice. Jno. x. 1-5.

There is no other shepherd that will, or can, lead us to the kingdom and glory. The Lord Jesus, the Chief Shepherd, 1 Peter v. 4, has warned his sheep that many would come in his name, and deceive many. Behold I have told you before. Believe them not, Matt. xxiv. 5, 25, 26, and in the fourth verse he says, "Take heed that no man deceive you."—That no false shepherd lead you astray. How are the sheep to know for sure? By the doctrine of Christ. "He went through every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, Luke viii. 1. "If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed."

Next lesson. Solomon Anointed King. 1 Kings, i. 32-40; 50 53.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map, which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wines wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wines, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post-office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his doubtful work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Be True.

Thou must be true to thyself,
If thou the truth wouldst teach.
Thy soul must overflow if thou
Another's soul wouldst reach.
It needs the overflow of heart
To give the lips full speech.

Think truly, and thy thoughts
Shall the world's famished feed;
Speak truly, and each word of thine
Shall be a fruitful seed;
Live truly, and thy life shall be
A great and noble creed.

The Divine Sonship.

(Concluded from last week.)

THE STORY OF HIS BEGETTAL.

The prophets also foretold that Christ would be the Son of God as well as the descendant of David. 2 Sam. vii 14; Psa. ii and lxxxix 26 and 27. In harmony with their predictions, two of his biographers, Matthew and Luke, tell of his begettal, birth and the scenes and incidents of his early childhood. It is reasonable that one or more of the writers of the gospels should embody such information. It is such as Christians are entitled to and without which the New Testament Scriptures would be incomplete.

It forms the link between the predictions of the prophets and the record of his work and mission, showing that he is indeed the Christ, the Son of the living God. To leave this information out, would be like cutting out the first act of a play or the first two chapters of a story in which the characters are introduced.

While the story as related by the two different writers differs widely in detail and incident as do other portions of these two gospels, they do not conflict. Both agree as to the Divine begettal. The story they relate is as credible and well authenticated as any other miracle of the Bible including the resurrection.

That the two writers should tell the story each in his own way and that they should relate differing incidents associated with Jesus' early childhood is natural. That they have done so, affords strong evidence of the credibility of the record. If indeed the first two chapters of each of these gospels are apocryphal, as the advocates of Josephism maintain, and were written and attached by some one at a subsequent period, they would, in all probability, have been identical in detail and in literary style, but would have differed materially in style from the gospels of which they now form a part. Every writer has a literary style of his own as closely identified with his personality as his signature. As witness the difference in style between Matthew and Luke and John, or Paul's literary style as compared with that of the writers of the other epistles.

We maintain that if some other brain had dictated these introductory chapters, the difference in the literary style would be conspicuous, whereas, as is apparent to the most superficial observer they were written by the same hand that wrote the remainder of the gospels of which they form a part. The one is written in Matthew's style and the other in Luke's style.

The question also arises, how could such important additions to the gospels be made and such a vital change in the accepted doctrines of the church be adopted without stirring up a fierce controversy. Every departure from the primitive faith has been marked by discussion, as witness the trinitarian controversy. The annals of church history, however, contain no account of such a controversy in relation to the Divine Paternity. The nearest approach to it is found in the denunciation of the Ebionites by Irenæus, not for adding to but for "mutilating the Scriptures." He charged them with cutting out the first two chapters of Matthew, all of Luke and the epistles of Paul, because they contained the story of the Divine begettal, and the latter opposed circumcision and the keeping of the law of Moses.

HISTORICAL EVIDENCE.

Furthermore, before we can accept the Josephite view, it will also be necessary to show us when this important change took place and when these chapters were added. The most ancient manuscripts of the Scriptures we now have contain these introductory chapters. Irenæus was a disciple of Polycarp, who was a companion of John. The Scriptures at that early period when he wrote contained these chapters including the story of the Divine begettal. He mentions all four gospels by name calling them the "four pillars of the church," and quotes freely from the first two chapters of Matthew without suggestion or intimation that their authenticity was in question.

After quoting the account of the Divine begettal as in Matthew's gospel (verses 18 to 22) including verse 23, he comments as follows: "Evidently meaning both that the promise made to the fathers is fulfilled—the Son of God born of a virgin and that this is the very Savior Christ, whom the prophets foretold."

Again he says, showing that he knew Mary to be of the lineage of David: "But Matthew likewise, knowing but one and the same Jesus Christ when he (Matthew) is relating his human birth of the virgin according to God's promises to David that out of the fruit of his loins he would raise up an eternal king."

He also refers to all the incidents related by Matthew, such as the visit of the wise men, flight to Egypt, etc.

Justin, who was born about the year 100, in his first apology to Cæsar (13 Page 64) wrote:

"The power of God came upon and overshadowed the virgin and caused her, though a virgin, to conceive; and the angel of God who was sent to this virgin at that time announced to her glad tidings, saying, 'Behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb by the Holy Ghost and shalt bring forth a Son and he shall be called the Son of the Most High and thou shalt call his name Jesus for he shall save his people from their sins'."

Again, in his debate with the Jew, Tryphon, (78 Page 175) he says:

"Now Joseph who was espoused to Mary, wished at first to put away his betrothed, thinking that she had become pregnant by intercourse with a man; that is to say, by fornication. But he was commanded in a dream not to put her away; and the angel who appeared to him told him that what she had conceived was by the Holy Ghost. Struck with awe therefore he did not put her away."

He then tells of the enrollment when Cyrenius was governor, the birth of Jesus at Bethlehem, the manger, the visit of the Magi and their failure to return to Herod, the flight to Egypt, the slaughter of the children, the death of Herod and succession of his son Archelaus, etc., as related by both Matthew and Luke. Showing conclusively that at that time those introductory chapters were accepted as authentic parts of the gospel.

"It was necessary," he further wrote, "that (the sacrifices) should be done according to the will of the Father at the coming of his Son Jesus Christ who was born of a virgin of the race of Abraham, and the tribe of Judah and family of David." Dod—43 P. 139.

We have still another important witness whose testimony completely establishes that the Divine Paternity was an accepted doctrine of the church at a still earlier period, Ignatius, who was one of the eye witnesses of the resurrected Christ. ("For I saw him in the flesh even after his resurrection and I believe he still exists." He wrote) testifies.

"For Jesus was born of Mary according to the appointment of God, of the seed of David, but of the Holy Spirit." Ibid XVIII pp. 209 298.

Again in an epistle to the church at Smyrna, he wrote:

"Our Lord was truly born of a virgin, baptized by John that all right-eousness might be fulfilled by him, and was truly nailed to the cross in the flesh, for us, under Pontius Pilate and Herod the Tetarch. Ep. to Smyrnæ p 416.

He also further says that among the "three mysteries hid from the Prince of this world" was the "Virginity of Mary." Ibid xix P. 208

We are aware that the advocates of the Josephite paternity also discredit the testimony of these early Christian writers. Unjustly so, we believe. In considering the credibility of their testimony, it should be borne in mind that each sealed it with his blood, each of the above three suffered martyrdom for the cause of Christianity. Whether they rise true on the Divine Paternity question or otherwise, their testimony must be received as authentic historical evidence, as to what the church believed and taught at that time, also as proving that the introductory chapters to Matthew and Luke containing the story of Jesus' Divine begettal, was at that early time accepted as authentic and unquestioned.

TESTIMONY OF THE SCRIPTURES.

Aside from this early historical evidence, the Scriptures abundantly corroborate the narrative of the begettal and birth of our Savior as related by Matthew and Luke. On an other hypothesis than that of the Divine Paternity can the intimate relationship between Father and Son so often revealed, and the Divine knowledge and Godlike powers which he inherited, be explained.

In addition to the many testimonies already referred to, wherein he is called the "Only Begotten Son," "His Own Son," etc. Mark begins his Gospel with a declaration of the Sonship. "The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus the Christ, the Son of God." Mark i. 1. Also John in the first chapter of his Gospel, asserts the Divine Paternity in these words, "And we beheld his glory, the glory as of the Only Begotten of the Father" (Verse 13) and "No man had seen God at any time, the Only Begotten Son who is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him." (Verse 18) Also in the same chapter Nathaniel in his confession, expressed the prophetic thought regarding the Sonship as combined with the kingship of Israel. "Rabbi thou art the Son of God, thou art the king of Israel." (Verse 49)

A later translation of John i. 13, reads: "It was not by natural conception, nor by human instincts, nor by any man's choice. But by God himself that we owe the life." (John i. 13, Rotherham N. T.)

This translation is upheld by other of the latest authorities. In a foot note referring to this text the author of the Diaglott says:

"Dr. Griesbach gives a different reading of this verse—Who was not begotten of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God," thus referring to the physical generation of the Messiah by the Spirit of God rather than to the moral regeneration of believers."

Thus this text becomes a positive confirmation of the narrative of Matthew, and Luke, with which John no doubt was familiar. It also explains that John had the Divine Paternity in his mind when he called Jesus the Only Begotten Son of the Father. Also note the many references to the Sonship in the epistles of John. Indeed John wrote his Gospel "That we might believe Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God." John xx. 31.

Twice in a voice from heaven God himself acknowledged he was Jesus' Father. "This is my Beloved Son," he said, "in whom I am well pleased, hear ye him," [Matt. iii. 17; xvii. 5; 2 Pet. i. 17] thus verifying the declaration of the angel as found in the 1st chapter of Luke—"He shall be called the Son of the Highest." (Luke i. 32)

Jesus also claimed that he was God's Son in a multitude of instances, some of which I have already noted. Thus show an intimate relationship which can only be explained on the hypothesis that they were indeed Father and Son in the real sense. When he was brought before the Council, for example, the High Priest said: "I adjure thee by the Living God that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ the Son of God." When Jesus acknowledged that he was, the High Priest rent his clothes and accused him of blasphemy, and adjudged him worthy of death. Matt. xxvi. 64.

Also when he was nailed to the cross they reviled him and said: "If thou be the Son of God come down from the cross." Matt. xxvii 40.

If he was only a son in the same sense that all who are led by the Spirit of God are the children of God, there would be no reason for accusing him of blasphemy, or sense in assuming that he possessed the power to come down from the cross.

The Jews demanded his crucifixion, because they said: "We have a law and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God." (John xix. 7.) Manifestly both the Jews and Pilate understood the claim to be that he was the Son in a literal sense by generation and not by adoption, otherwise they could not accuse him of blasphemy nor would Pilate have been afraid.

It was the manifestation of his Godlike powers which it would naturally be expected the Son of God would possess that led his disciples to believe in his Son-ship. When they beheld him walking on the water they exclaimed "Of a truth thou art the Son of God." Matt. xiv. 33.

The parable of the vineyard clearly teaches the Divine Sonship. The husbandman (God) after sending his servants the (Prophets) only to be rejected and killed sent his Own Son the Heir (Jesus,) whom they also killed. "Having yet therefore One Son, his well beloved he sent him last unto them saying: They will reverence my Son." Mark xii. 6.

Language could not be framed to more plainly corroborate the story related by Matthew and Luke as narrated in the first two chapters of their Gospels. As the prophets were sons of God in the spiritual sense, the difference in relationship is apparent, the one sent was "His One Son, his well-beloved." This also fully corroborates the testimony of John, who repeatedly calls him God's Only Begotten Son.

THE DEVIL KNEW HIM TO BE THE SON OF GOD.

Whoever or whatever the devil may be, both he and his satellites the evil spirits are represented as recognizing Jesus as God's Son and as possessing those God like powers such as it is expected God's Son would inherit from his Father.

"If Thou be the Son of God" the devil said: "Command that these stones be made bread," also "if thou be the Son of God cast thyself down." Matt. iv. 3, 6.

Witness also the cry of the unclean spirit. "What have I to do with thee, Jesus thou Son of the Most High God." Mark v. 7; Luke viii. 28.

And the devils also came out of many crying out: "Thou art Christ, the Son of God." Luke iv. 41.

But why multiply testimony. My letter is already over-long. "These things have I written that ye might believe on the name of the Son of God." I John v. 13.

"Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him and he in God." I John iv. 5.

"Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God."

"He that believeth in the Son of God hath the witness in himself, he that believeth not God hath made him a liar, because he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son." 1 John v. 5, 10.

Let us, beloved brother, believe this record which seems to be supported with abundant testimony and not be led astray by the "traditions of men" to substitute a fleshly son begotten of Joseph, therefore "of the earth, earthy" for the "Only Begotten of the Father." "The Lord from heaven."

Very truly your Brother in Christ.

Nuggets of Gold.

"Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep."

"The well is deep!" "Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern."

Who can drink or carry to the famishing multitudes? Is there hope? The broken pitcher is only a model in potter's clay of the receptacle that yet shall be.

He that moulded shall re-create. "Behold I make all things new." Lay the broken fragments in a sacred place. A golden pitcher may yet carry living water to famishing nations. "In Christ all nations shall be blessed." The fountain shall flow with an inexhaustible supply "in the ages to come."

"The water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

"And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb . . . And the Spirit and the Bride say Come! and let him that heareth say Come! and let him that is athirst come! and whosoever will let him take of the water of life freely."

I would rather do the work of a golden pitcher, in the age to come, in quenching the thirst of the perishing, than to wear the crown of a king.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOVEMBER 18, 1908. NUMBER 43.

The Restitution.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

THOUGHTS.

Anointing in olden times was "setting apart" for special work.

God has something special for every one to do. We are set apart for that purpose.

David promised Solomon success if he gave God his whole-hearted service, and this is the measure of success for us now.

The poorest man may have a throne, not bought by shedding the blood of another, but gained by obedience to God's Word.

"Many an earnest servant of God loses precious time in planning great things and costly sacrifices for the future. If we would 'do the little things' within our reach now, the greater things would come to us the sooner. Besides, should the Lord come, we would not be found idle."

"There is a peculiarity which distinguishes those who are Christ's. It is this: His sheep hear his voice, and it is just as true of them that they know not the voice of strangers, hence the stranger will they not follow."

A Valuable Library at a Bargain.

A very carefully selected library left by a scholarly brother, will be sold cheap for the benefit of the dear sister who survives him. These books are not suitable for the general market, as they pertain especially to themes studied by believers in the Blessed Hope. Therefore the books will be sold cheaply to those who would appreciate them. They will go either together, forming a medium sized library, or in smaller lots, or even singly. A list with prices will be sent on application. Address Mrs. Elizabeth A. Reed, 1538 Kenmore ave, Chicago, Illinois.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they were understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result may put stars in your crown.

TAKE special note of the article on the "Name" by Brother D. C. Robison. It is just our mind exactly.

BROTHER John L. Wine was with the Church at Plymouth last Sunday, and gave his two discourses as usual.

WE have just received a letter from Brother John Foore telling of his 55th wedding anniversary, which we will give next issue.

OUR offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

THE Emperor of China died Nov. 14 and the Dowager Empress died the next day. A young prince is on the throne, and there is no unsettled condition throughout the empire, which may develop into serious internal disturbance.

WORD from Brother W. H. Wilson informs that he starts on his winter trip this week. He goes first to hold Berean installation meeting at Morse Mill, Mo., and afterward to Hammond, La., then on north through Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, and Illinois.

WE wish to call special attention to the article on the "Soulship" question written by Brother James W. Wilson, part of which was given last week and finished this issue. It is worth preserving, and ought to convince any one. Keep it, so when you come in contact with this question you will have something at hand to answer with.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 65.

Brother Jacob French, one among the very earliest of our Northern Indiana preachers, a prized and intimate friend of Brother and Sister Willard, was born in the state of Pennsylvania, Dec. 12, 1808, and was therefore but six months older than my father. His parents emigrated to Miami County, Ohio, when he was quite young, and as there were some twenty children in the family, it kept them all scratching to make a living. Brother French remained in Ohio until he had grown up, had married and had a family of his own, when in company with his brothers Ezekiel and David, he moved to Kosciusko Co., Ind, his brother Ezekiel being a partner with Dr. Willard laying out the town of Oswego.

In early life he became a member of the Baptist Church, but when the Advent message came to Oswego, in the year 1843, he embraced it, and throughout the remainder of his life, was confidently waiting "for the return of earth's Immaculate King." A short time before the day set by William Miller for the appearance of the Savior, a friend offered Brother French a large roll of bank bills, telling him "he might need some of it to use before the end."

He promptly refused the proffered sum, saying "he had enough to last him through," but never found out what his friend did with the money. He was a fine looking man, with large forehead, and strong regular features. In character "he was humble, mild, genial, earnest, zealous and tenderly emotional, with child-like confiding faith. The children loved to hear him talk, and kept his words in memory until they were gray haired men and women.

Patient, kind and forbearing when dealing with those of opposite views, he won the good will and esteem of his adversaries wherever he went. We were sorry to have him move away when he left the little Oswego Church to locate in McLeansboro, Hamilton County, Illinois, and later on in Kansas, in both of which places he constantly proclaimed the doctrine of a soon coming King and kingdom. His life was an eventful one, says Brother Overman, who wrote his obituary. "At one time he was proclaiming the gospel of the kingdom in the mines of California, at another time scattering the pearls of truth to the perishing multitudes on the shores of Cuba." We cannot follow him in all his wanderings.

We know not how many he brought into the fold, but this we know that his influence and means were used for God. His exhortations touched the heart. His familiar talks on Bible topics in his visits from house to house, were a fruitful source of good. Few are better gifted in conversation, and he perhaps won more converts by the fireside than he did in the pulpit. In Kansas he filled "three appointments each month, travelling fifteen and thirty miles respectively to two of them."

He died of pneumonia, near Arkansas City, Kansas, Dec. 14, 1880.

The Yahweh Name.

The religious world has surely gone astray on the name as recorded in the Word of God. One human name is as effectual as another. If the name of the church (ecclesia) is of a human origin one is as weak as another. The presence of the Yahweh dwelt in the cherubims made by Moses. Would he have dwelt where other hands had constructed? Let those who have relied upon themselves a human name answer this question. It matters not if it be Catholic, Methodist or Christadelphian. The names are all of human origin, and not divine. Because there is divisions in the Yahweh body is no reason why a new name should be substituted. The grossest error of the last days is the substitution of worldly names for the one name. How can the Yahweh name be magnified by the substitution of the Babel names? Surely it cannot. In Exod xxiii 20, 21 we find the importance of the name. Behold I send an angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared. Beware of him, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgressions; for my NAME is in him. The Yahweh name being in his angel it protected those who obeyed the messenger. It is a fearful thing to disregard the words of the living God.

Early in the history of the race men began to call upon the name of the Lord. Gen iv 26. The marginal rendering gives it. To call themselves by the name of the Lord. (The Elohah). This distinguished them as the sons of God, (Yahweh). There is no record that the Cain seed called themselves by this name. When the sons of God "took them wives of the daughters of men" there was developed a class who disregarded the name, and became so wicked that God determined to destroy them. Gen vi. In the marginal rendering of the 5th verse we read "not only the imagination but also the purposes and the desires of the heart was only evil continually." In Exod iii 6 we have written that the God (the Yahweh) of Abraham of Isaac and of Jacob appeared unto Moses at the burning bush. God appeared unto Abraham by the name of All, the powerful one. To Moses he was not known by this name. But sent him in the name of I AM. The Hebrew of this being Yahweh, the all powerful one. The Hebrew expresses it "The Eternal is one."

The Yahweh name is one. When the people of God departed from the true worship they took upon themselves another name but retaining their form of worship. The prophets of Baal worshiped in the same form as did the old prophet. The God upon whom they called did not hear them. When Elijah called upon the Eternal One by invoking his name his sacrifice was consumed. This should be a lesson to all who have taken upon themselves the Yahweh name. This same Eternal One sent his angel to Mary to announce that she was to bring forth a son and call his name Jesus. He being the Son of God would be called by his name, Yahweh. Jesus being a corruption of Yahweh, we note in this the importance of the name. The Eternal one is known by the single name Yahweh. Jesus is known by the name Yahweh—Eloah. He is the only begotten Son of Yahweh. Those who take upon themselves the Yahweh name become the Yahweh—Elohim the adopted sons of God. We know that we invoke that name by faith, repentance and baptism. How can we take his name by fellowshiping those who have abandoned his name. The Psalmist says Psa cxi 9 Holy and reverend is his name. Prov x 9. The NAME of the Lord (Yahweh) is a strong tower; the righteous runneth into it, and is safe. Zech x 12. They shall walk up and down in my name, saith the Lord. Zech xiv 9. The Lord shall be king over all the earth; in that day there shall be one Lord and his Name Yahweh—Eloah) one. Mal. But unto you that fear my Name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; and ye shall go forth and grow up as calves of a stall. The above Scriptures show how important is the Yahweh name. In John xvii 3 we read, This is life eternal to know thee the only true God (Yahweh) and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.

We can only know the true God and Jesus Christ whom he has sent by recognising his name and its protecting power. Jesus said, "If ye see me you see the Father also." Now did Jesus mean that if his disciples beheld him personally that they would see the Father? Certainly not. They must see him as the Messiah of the eternal One. They must see him as Emmanuel the power of God. He is the All of the Eternal One. This is knowing God and Jesus the Christ. In John iii 18 we read, He that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the Name of the only begotten Son of God. There is much importance attached to this name and if we are enabled to stand in the judgment it must be through the power of his name. Peter stated Acts iii 16 that through faith in his name that this man was made strong. The apostle had been given power through this name to perform this miracle. Acts iv 12 we read, Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other Name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. This is the Yahweh—Eloah Name. We have salvation through his name. His name is placed above all names, not only in this world but in the world to come. Wherefore God hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow of things in heaven, and in earth and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father. Phil ii 9, 10. It is also stated that this same Jesus is the head of the body—the church; by this we learn that there is but one body, and that is the Yahweh body or ecclesia. Paul calls this the house of God which is the church of the living God. If we substitute for the Yahweh church, one of human origin, do we not profane his name? Has the Eternal One placed his Name in another body than the Yahweh body?

The above is written in the interest of the truth, hoping that all may see the importance of the Name we profess to bear.

At Breaking of Bread.

ROM. VIII 12, 13.

Therefore brethren we are debtors, bound not to the flesh that we should live after the flesh, but to the Spirit, for all who are led by the Spirit, and they alone, are the sons of God.

He has called us to be his sons and daughters. We are no longer strangers but have been reconciled, and we have been adopted into his family, and he permits us to call him our Father.

We ought, dear brothers and sisters, to value very highly the position in which we are found this morning. We have been exalted far above that occupied by the thoughtless throng we meet on every hand around us. I trust that all of us assembled here this morning may be able to more fully realize the grandeur of our relationship and the advantages of our position. He is now our Father, our councellor. When all earthly friends fail us we can go to him whose ear is always open to us. We are exhorted to go boldly unto the throne of grace that we may find favor to help in time of need. Our hearts should be full of gratitude and love in return.

Paul says, I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, not the every day blessings of this life which we receive, but blessing of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. The mercy of pardon, hope and peace, and the promise of life forever more, I beseech you by these mercies of God, that ye present yourselves a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto God which is your reasonable service. We must present ourselves freely and cheerfully. What ever you do, do it heartily as unto the Lord. God does not compel us to do or not to do, but he has given us the experience of others for example and warning, and we are earnestly exhorted to walk in a certain direction, with glory and honor and incorruptibility held out before us to induce us to act rightly, to do good and not evil, be kindly affectionate one toward another with brotherly love, for he says "love covereth a multitude of sins." What beautiful characters we all would be, if the precepts of this chapter ruled our whole life. It is surely a high state to attain unto, but let us try, and when he shall return those who have been waiting for him shall say, Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation.

Obituary.

Another one of the old veterans has fallen. Sister Amy Johnson, sends a clipping from a local paper from which we learn as follows:

Seaber A. Guild, a well known old resident of Pleasant Valley (near Stockton, Ill.) and a veteran of the civil war, passed away at about four o'clock Sunday evening. He was always a ragged man, and the news of his death came as a surprise to the community. He was confined to his bed but a few days, with typhoid and complications. He had been ailing for a few weeks but kept up till Wednesday, when he took to his bed and was unconscious most of the time till he died. Friday he became paralyzed on one side. He has been afflicted with heart disease for some years, and this doubtless contributed to his sudden death.

Mr. Guild was born in Oswego Co., N. Y. Sept. 28, 1839, and died in his sixty-ninth year. In 1853 he moved with his parents to Corona, Mich., and five years later came to Pleasant Valley, which has been his home almost continuously until his death.

He was married in 1860 to Miss Margaret Vandelinder, and one child, now Mrs. Alice Willson, was born of this union. Besides the widow and daughter he leaves six grandchildren, a brother George of Nebraska, and three sisters, Mrs. A. A. Simmons, Mrs. Schofield and Mrs. Chapman.

Brother Guild was united with the Church of God, being baptized by our lamented Brother J. M. Stephenson some forty years ago, and remained a faithful member till death. He was a good citizen, a kind husband and father, and leaves a host of friends to mourn his death.

Words of Cheer.

Words of cheer are words of help. Words of gloom are words of harm. There is a bright side and a dark side to every phase of life and to every hour of time. If we speak of the bright side, we bring the bright side into prominence; if we speak of the dark side we deepen its shadows. It is in our power to help or to hinder by a word any and every person whom we are with. If we see a look of health or of hope in the face of an acquaintance whom we casually meet, and we tell him so, he goes on his way with new life in his veins. If we see looks of failing strength and heaviness of heart in one to whom we speak, and we emphasize the fact that he looks poorly, we give him a push downward as our contribution to the forces which affect his course. A look or a word can help or harm our fellows. It is for us to give cheer or gloom as we pass on our way in life, and we are responsible for the results of our influence accordingly.

On Going to Church

In the British Weekly, a writer named T. H. Darlow, has said some good things on the subject of church attendance from which we take the following:

Some Christians will confess they hardly feel the need for public worship. At any rate, they 'get no good' from attending their own church. Well, the question arises whether this is due to defects in the service, or to a more perilous defect in the critic of the service. That man is in deadly danger who considers himself a spiritually superior person, shelved from the common needs and duties of ordinary Christians. One great blessing of common worship is that it puts us all on the same level before our Father—the simplest and the saintliest, the wisest and the poorest, the aged pilgrim and the little child. There is no difference; we all alike need God's forgiveness, we all alike have our place in God's love.

The central symbol of Christian faith is a common meal—to teach us perpetually that we, being many, are one body in Christ. Even the Eucharistic Congress of the Roman Church which is about to meet in London, may remind us how, that underneath strange corruptions and superstitions, the central idea of Christianity is fellowship—and not isolation. Nothing can be more un-Christian than the spirit which says, "I have eaten my morsel alone." One great ground and reason why a Christian must cleave to the outward worship of his church is surely this. It is not that he always feels inclined to attend, or always enjoys the service, or appears sensibly to profit by going, but that his presence, his prayer, his praise, his faith, are literally needed by his companions in Christian fellowship. They form so many links in that golden chain which binds the gathered company together at the feet of God. A casual Christian, who takes church-going as he might take theatre going, because he feels in the humor, simply with reference to his personal pleasure and profit, is only half a Christian. He is no better than a camp-follower in Christ's army. When believers meet Sunday after Sunday as fellow worshippers they are necessary to one another for the grace and fulness of their common sacrifice of praise. There is a glorious and awful blessing which visits and crowns the united confessions and petitions of faithful Christians. That blessing is marred and weakened by every absentee. If the band of fellowship is not very numerous, any gaps and blanks in its circle are all the more conspicuous and disheartening. If only for the sake of our brothers and sisters, we are bound in loyalty to do our utmost to be there.

The New Jewish Colonization Scheme.

The following is from the Jewish World, of 16th October, 1908:—

We have received the confidential statement, when the Provincial Committee had sent to those invited to the Conference, which took place in Berlin, on September 20th.

This document points out, that, by the accumulation of dense Jewish masses in trans-oceanic countries, there is a danger of creating a Jewish Question in those lands. It is, therefore, necessary to institute a co-ordination of Jewish relief work, tending to bring about an improvement in the condition of the Jewish masses at home, in the regulation of the stream of emigration, and in the systematic colonization of Jewish emigrants, especially in thinly peopled parts of the world. It is claimed, that the question of Jewish colonization has now arrived at such a stage, that its success is no longer in doubt. The proposed new Colonization Association will, therefore, have to co-operate with the existing organizations. While the Ica (Jewish Colonization Association) may be left to look after the work in America, it is necessary to direct Jewish colonizing activities to the Orient; for instance, to the north-eastern part of Egypt, and Mesopotamia, and an industrial colonization may be considered to be the best means of dealing with the problem. This could be done on purely business lines. It should be the task of the new organization to act as a medium for bringing Jewish capital to the assistance of Jewish colonization.

Notice.

The Chicago Bereans will again this year make their distribution of Christmas dinners to the poor. We have other Bereans who join in this work, and we take this means of notifying you.

We are sure that there are many readers of THE RESTITUTION who will gladly help in bringing Christmas cheer to the widowed and fatherless. In a great City like ours we do not have to look far to find them.

If you wish to help in this work, please send money by Dec. 15. to Gertrude Ellis, 1290 Washington Blvd. Chicago, Ill. If money is sent after Dec. 15, please send to Leila E. Whitehead, 5198 Ontario St. Austin Sta., Chicago, Ill.

These are the kind of people we remember: A family of seven, father an epileptic, taken to Dunning, mother supports them by washing. Widow with seven children, cleans for living. Widow with five children, one an invalid, washes, etc. If we had money enough we could remember them by the score.

May the Lord touch your hearts and open your pocket books for the needy.

Developing the Holy Land.

The great transformation of affairs in the Turkish Empire has naturally interested the leaders of Anglo-Judaism in this country, and they are anxious to use it for the commercial development of Palestine. Some small industries have been established in the Holy Land, mainly for benevolent purposes, by Jewish capitalists, but the idea now is that under the new regime the industrial life of Palestine might be greatly extended. Though the Zionist Societies have nothing to do with the matter, they will look on the project favorably.—Dundee Advertiser.

Nothing will make us so charitable and tender to the faults of others as by self-examination thoughly to know our own.—Fenelon.

"It makes the mind very free when we give up wishing and only think of bearing what is laid upon us, and doing what is given us to do."

BRETHREN, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Let Us Pray.

Oh God, our Creator, Preserver and Redeemer: For the hallowed privilege of assembling as a part of the Body of Christ on this another First day of the week, we praise and adore Thee. For life we are profoundly grateful, because we are where all that is wrong can be made right. We bless Thee because our temporal wants have been supplied, while thousands are destitute. We know not how to adequately praise Thee because we are not found where devastating armies are threatening to pounce on each other with all the fury of flesh and blood. We thank Thee for the inestimable blessing of religious liberty; for the precious Volume thou hast writ to make us wise unto salvation, every word of which is pure. More and more may we prize it. Never for a moment may we forget that he who despises it shall be destroyed. For thy prophets Word by which we are enabled to see Thee marshalling the nations into position to contend for the world's supremacy; little knowing that Thy glorious Son will smash them to pieces like potter's vessels. Hasten it in thine own good time, we beseech Thee.

And now Lord, we ask forgiveness of all thy pure eyes have seen amiss in us. We pray for sustaining grace. In Jesus' name.

The "Promise" of Acts ii. 39.

Brother Huggins:

What is the "promise" spoken of in Acts ii 39? Notice how universal it is: "to you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, as many as the Lord our God shall call". Does it not reach you and me? Was it the Holy Spirit; if not, what was it? I want to get this spirit business settled, so I can understandingly tell it to others. With Christian love,

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The context, always invaluable in ascertaining the meaning of any passage of Scripture, in this instance unerringly guides us in our answer. Sinners had been "pricked in the heart" by Peter's sermon which they had "heard". v. 37 With penitence they enquired what they, as convicted sinners, guilty of murder in the first degree, should do; if there was any thing they could "do" to escape the impending doom which Peter had preached was to be their final destiny. The apostle then explained what they could do and must do "for the remission of sins"; "repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ". Discharge these two duties, fulfill these two conditions, "and ye shall", says the apostle, "receive the gift of the Holy Spirit". This "promise is to you", sinners though you be, upon the conditions stated; and it is a "promise" reaching down from you "unto your children, and to all that are afar off, even to as many as the Lord shall call" by the gospel message. 2 Thes ii 13, 14. As our Sister clearly intimates, the "promise" was not limited to the hearers then addressed, but was universal, just as universal as repentance and baptism. And what is the promise unlimited in time and to persons? Why, "the gift of the Holy Spirit".

Now, dear Sister, note that the "promise" is not, "And you shall receive a gift" nor yet "the gifts". There were many "gifts" of the Spirit, "diversities of gifts," and "diversities of operations", wrought by "the same Spirit". 1 Cor xii. These "gifts" and their miraculous "operations" were bestowed "without repentance". Rom xi 29. They are distinct from, and independent of, man's power, or even his "holiness". Acts iii 12.-"John did no miracle" (Jno x 41), yet he was the greatest prophet ever born of a woman. Luke vii 28. No trouble then to see that these gifts were not universal; they were only given as "gifts" to some in the church. 1 Cor xii 28; Eph iv 8, 11. They cannot, for this reason, if there were no other, be meant by "the promise" in Acts ii 39, for that promise is as universal as obedience to the conditions of salvation.

The promise is not "a gift"; nor "the gifts;" it is THE GIFT; not the Holy Spirit itself, but "the gift OF the Holy Spirit". God is a Spirit. Jno iv 24 Hence God and Holy Spirit often are used interchangeably. A case which will illustrate this is in Acts v where, in one verse it is said that Ananias lied to the Holy Spirit, and in another, that he lied "unto God". Verses 3, 4. Lying to God and lying to the Holy Spirit are plainly equivalents. Therefore "the gift of the Holy Spirit" is the gift of God. And what is the gift of God? "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ". Rom vi 23. Now if a man repents and is baptized, he shall "receive the gift of the "Holy Spirit" that is, he shall receive eternal life. Thank God, "this promise" is for every one who will accept it. Dear reader, have you a claim upon "this promise" of God?

Matthew's Generation.

Matthew does not set out to give forty-two generations from Abraham to Christ. He only sets out to give three sets of fourteens, which is not the same as three fourteen, or 42. His words are: "So all the generations from Abraham unto David are 14 generations.

Note that in this group Abraham is the beginning, and David the end. Accordingly, the 14 generations are Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Judah, Perez, Hezron, Aram, Amminadab, Nahshon, Salmon, Boaz, Obed, Jesse, David. (2) "And from David to the Babylon Removal 14 generations." The first in this set is David, just as he was last in the preceding set; and the end of this set, observe, is not a person at all, but a period; "from David to the Babylon Removal." In verse 11 Matthew tells us the person whom he considered as reigning up to the period of the Captivity: "Josiah begat Jechoniah and his brethren at the time of the Babylon Removal." From David then to the Captivity is from David to Josiah; and the 14 generations accordingly are: David, Solomon, Rehoboam, Abijah, Asaph, Jehoshaphat, Joram, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, Amon, Josiah. (3.) "And from the Babylon Removal unto Christ are 14 generations." Here the beginning of the set is not a person but a period. "To the Removal" reached down to Josiah, who was at the limit of the previous period. "From the Removal" then means the next in line to Josiah, or Jechoniah. Accordingly the 14 generations here are: Jechoniah, Salathiel, Zerubbabel, Abiud, Eliakim, Azor, Sadoc, Achim, Eliud, Eleazar, Matthan, Jacob, Joseph, Christ.

Thus an adherance to just what Matthew actually says proves him to do what he sets out to do, namely, to give three sets of fourteens. While an adherence to what men only think Matthew says, namely, three 14, or 42 generations, obliges them to confuse what is now clear, and in their attempts to save a man who needs no saving, they almost choke him.

But even if the difficulty of the 41 generations were real (instead of the supposedly required 42,) the remedy of counting Joseph as Mary's father is worse than the assumed disease. The difficulties attending this "explanation" are ten fold greater than the supposed difficulty of a missing generation.—I. Panin, in Bible Numerics.

Covenants.

In order to meet the demands of the various covenants placed on record in the Holy Scriptures, the affirmation in Gen viii 22, compared with Is xlv 18 and Psa cxv 16, gives assurance that in the Divine Purpose, provision is made for fulfilling every "jot and tittle" of all covenants limited and unlimited; and apart from the eternal perpetuity of the earth, as the everlasting abode of mankind, all is chaos and confusion.

Consult Gen ix 9-16. "My covenant with you.....with your seed, with every living creature." Emphasize verses 12 and 16, "Token" pledge for time unlimited: "Perpetual generations." Everlasting covenant, with the rainbow as a pledge affirming God's trustworthiness. The Noahic covenant arrangement was fully thought out on the part of God as affirmed in Gen vi 6. I give Prof. Gardner's translation as I remember it: And God pondered deeply [thought from the heart, lit.] because he made man to be upon the earth; and he thought it through," from first to last, from the beginning. This purpose he revealed at "sundry times and divers manners" unto the Israelitish peoples by the prophets, so as to produce that faith that justifies, as in the case of father Abraham. Note the place assigned to the rainbow. Its significance as a divine pledge running the whole course of the divine unfoldings of the purpose announced in many ways. Universal in its application to every living thing. The authoritative and Sovereign seal of the Almighty Creator and spoiler of all things. In this connection, consult Rev iv 2, 3 "A throne," symbol of sovereignty, and a rainbow encircling the throne that is endlessness—similar to that affirmed of the Almighty himself—the "Alpha and Omega." God said: I will remember the covenant. And here is evidence that he has remembered it in larger measure as time passes along into the age, and beyond. Compare chap x 1, "Clothed with a cloud, and a rainbow over his head." Another announcement as to the prominent place assigned, and reminder of the original contract. See chap i 13, 14, 15. The contents of the "little book" to be fully announced, being perfectly adapted to the time referred to, "Prophesy again."

The description of the Son of Man, chap i harmonizes with that of chap x 1; that mighty Messenger with the open book—a revelation for the immediate future. Compare Mal iii 1, with Mark i 2, 3. "Without my messenger before thy face." "The Lord whom you seek shall suddenly come to his temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, whom you delight in."

The Baptist was sent with a message as to prepare the way of the Lord, and John finished his mission. And Malachi looks away beyond John's time into the age, as noted verses 2 to 4 inclusive. Then the "Messenger of the Covenant" will have a message to the dwellers upon the earth." See Rev xiv 6, 7. A time of discrimination, a trial set on in the testing of metals so as to demonstrate the character tested—and the smoke of this trial test ascendeth unto the ages—"He, like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap." The spurious metal being consumed by the Refiner's fire into smoke, while the genuine is made the brighter. A further proof that prophet referred to the age-period of time—"He shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord, an offering in righteousness"—verse 3. The terminology too, agrees with the age-period; "Suddenly come to his temple"—"whom you delight in." "Then" verse 4 shall the offerings of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord as in the days of old." The result of the proclamation of Rev. xiv 6, 7 may be found recorded verse 4 chap xv. "Temple" indicates, worship and a priesthood, the term "offering" affirms the restoration of the sacerdotal service as in the days of old. See Ezek xl-48, and xliv 6, 10, and 15, 16. This, in relation to the messenger of the covenant, whom John saw in vision coming down from the apocalyptic heaven, "Clothed with a cloud and the rainbow over his head." The time from primitive Eden up to the establishment of the kingdom of God—a time of pain, of sorrow, of hopes and fears of the reign of death and hades. The coming of "the desire of all nations," Will turn the world upside down and right side up, and the favored nations worship him according to the demands of Rev xiv 6 7. Then the nation of Israel, as the first fruits of the national ingathering will be sanctified unto the Lord the first fruits of his increase." Jer ii 3. For this Mediatorial position the twelve tribes of Israel's sons were separated from the mass of mankind. In the epoch of the regeneration, they belong not to the heavens but below them (officially) not to the earth, but above it—a mid heaven position. Not of the Royalties (The "Israel" in the case, from Abraham) not from the subject nations but mediatorially related to both, a priestly kingdom, a sanctified nation for a purpose. Consult Isa lxvi 22. Not "the new heaven," not "the new earth" but as aforesaid. Note the relation of the twelve tribes, symbolically represented as the twelve gates of the New Jerusalem, that holy Corporation, the great Council, the governing power of "the world—to come." One would infer that the successful candidates for a seat in this council would have to pass through or by way of Israel as the mediatorial nation.

Letter from England.

Brother Huggins:

I have not had the pleasure of meeting you in the flesh, and yet I feel quite acquainted with you faith-wise, so that I make bold to address you as above.

I have been a reader of THE RESTITUTION for nearly half a century, and have seen it pass through many hands and stages to its present existence. Through my son-in-law, Brother C. A. Rose, of Cleveland, I learned of our taking the oversight of the Ecclesia—Church of God at 8502 Woodland av, and having been invited and accepted the position as pastor of the body of believers meeting at the above place for worship, since the death of our dear Brother Joblin, who so many years ministered to that people. His work is finished for this life, and he with about sixty others of the same body faith and hope that I have known to be laid away to await the coming of the Life-giver. They have fallen asleep in him, and are now with Paul, waiting to receive that crown of glory that is to be given to all those that love his appearing.

Of what an outlook for the faithful ones that remain steadfast unto the end. To whom the promise is made that he shall be saved. No guess-work here. A thus saith the Lord is back of it. What better guarantee can we wish for. It is the Word of God that liveth and abideth forever.

So dear Brother Huggins, I hope and pray that you may prove to be the right man in the right place, and well approved of our Heavenly Father, to carry on the work so ably begun by those who are now sleeping at rest from all the turmoil and strife of this day and generation in which we now live. Yea those that have contended hard and long, to these many years, for the faith once delivered to the saints, whom I may mention as among the first ones to proclaim the truth to a mortal, dying race in the city of Cleveland, commencing about 1853. Brother McLauchlan, Brother Joblin as leader, Brother S. Bond, Brother Cherry, Brother Day, Brother Underwood, Sister Joblin, Sister McLauchlan, Sister Bond—these are the most prominent names that I now remember. Then followed with myself the Elton family of Collinwood, most of them still living.

Oh, what a change in the past 40 years. Having passed through many changing scenes, and moving from place to place, having no settled abiding place, until dear Brother McLauchlan, who lost his dear wife while in North Carolina, and being lonely, and in grief at his loss of so faithful a companion, he decided to return to Cleveland and further carry on the work he with others had so faithfully begun many years before.

To that dear brother I feel very grateful, because he was the one that quietly approached me with something to read, if I would do so. Oh, yes sir, bring it along; I am not at all afraid to read any thing you may have to offer. He gave it to me, and I read it, and behold, it was the gospel, good news, such as I had not received before, although I was then a baptized member of the Baptist Church, with J. D. Rockefeller, the great multimillionaire. But after I met with dear Brother McLauchlan and Brother Joblin, I left that body of people. It took me two years to pull away finally for good. I was then a teacher in their Sunday School telling some things to the big boys, that I found was not according to truth.

The minister preached a sermon against me, and I was accused of having gone to sit in the seat of the scornful. I am rejoicing because I left them and became one with a despised band of believers of God's eternal truth. Yes, truth that saves, if lived up to

I most sincerely hope and pray that it may be your privilege to continue telling the story of God's scheme and plan, (if believed and obeyed,) to redeem poor mortals back from the death state. It is quite a task to cause people to unlearn what has been instilled into their minds by a sectarian world of false teachers, and thereby deceiving the people, and not wishing them to look into the matter for themselves.

Our Lord's words seem to be more true every day, as in Matt. vii. 14,—"Strait is the gate and narrow is the way, and few there be that find it," so if the multitude found the narrow way, our Lord's words would fall to the ground. We well know that the sectarian teachers much admire a fine building, and a tall spire or tower, as I once heard a man call them, as finger points to heaven. He was a good speaker too, and drew a large congregation at the Rockefeller (2d Baptist) Church in Cleveland.

This man was J. Hyatt Smith, who after he left Cleveland went to Brooklyn, N. Y. He also went to Congress at Washington. He is now gone the way of all the earth.

I hope the brethren continue to appreciate the kindness and the love for the truth that existed in the breast of our Brother Robert McLauchlan, for after his return from the south, he called on me to assist him to find a location, which we did, and then got up the plan for the building the Cleveland Church now occupy. I put him up the building, and house and Sunday School rooms, and got all the fittings put in for him that I did not do myself, all in the best of style and quality. He spared no expense, and when it was all ready to occupy, he further wished me to negotiate with dear Brother Joblin, then farming in Tennessee. He came and took charge, and the house was opened for worship on Nov. 14, 1888, twenty years ago next month.

Many now can rejoice that they ever entered its doors. I am thankful to state that I faithfully stood shoulder to shoulder with that dear Brother McLauchlan as long as his life lasted. He placed confidence in me which I never betrayed, and I am sorry that the enemy of all flesh has taken him from us and laid him in the tomb. He is now in a waiting attitude, for the Life-giver to call him forth to receive a crown of glory—Immortality—to be made like unto the angels, never to die any more.

Well Brother Huggins, when the buildings and all fittings and equipment was ready, just as you find it, he just handed it over to the trustees for the Cleveland Church, free of all incumberance or debt of any kind. I hope it is well appreciated by all who still worship there.

What is your membership now, if I may ask the question? Of course we must not look for a multitude to seek after truth. They do not want it, but rather traditions of men. It is about as Paul told his son Timothy, to preach the Word, for the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine. There is every sign now extant that we are right there, and the true follower of him who spake as never man spake, has a good reason to lift up the head and rejoice, for redemption draweth nigh. The signs of the times in general go to show us that the end of Gentile times is upon us.

I feel quite lonely here, as I know of no one of like precious faith, and often wish myself back in Cleveland. I meet with only here and there one that will listen to the truth as we find it recorded in the Word of God. I often think of our Lord's statement Matt. vii 14, and as it was in Noah's days so shall it be in the last days. He the preacher of righteousness proclaimed to the people 120 years, but gained no converts. Surely the way is narrow.

It fully becomes us to set our house in order, and find out just how we stand.

But I must close this feast I weary you, but I wish you good success in your new field of labor, and that a few more will learn the way of life ere it be too late. With kind love and good wishes to yourself and all the Household of Faith.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

Gold Dust.

Walk wisely; one does not know whose life he is influencing.

No one is useless in the world who lightens the burden of it for anyone else.—Dickens.

In our daily life we are sowing the seeds of actions. To a certain extent we prepare the ground on which this seed falls, and, as we sow, so shall we reap the harvest of consequences grown from our acts.

Little things come daily, hourly, within our reach, and they are not less calculated to set forward our growth in holiness than are the greater occasions which occur but rarely.

The great thought which should control our actions and adjust our relations to every question of morals, is presented in this verse—"Be ye therefore imitators of God as beloved children."

God will take care of our troubles; we can rest in him. He will settle all accounts and right all wrongs when he comes.—W. G. Carr.

ANNA DREW.

Three Plans of Giving.

There are three plans by which the house of God may be supported.

First, the Old Testament plan, viz. by tithes; secondly, the New Testament plan, viz., laying by on the first day of the week as the Lord has prospered us; thirdly, the modern plan, viz., after having ministered to the lusts of the flesh, the lusts of the eye and the pride of life after paying off the baker's, butcher's, and lawyer's bills, we dole out at the end of the year such a pittance as our feelings prompt as an "Alms" to the house of God.—Christian Index.

Back to Dark Ages.

If the vagaries of Christian Science were really accepted and acted out it would drive the world back into the dark ages and increase the sufferings of humanity a hundred fold. Blot out all knowledge of sanitation, of anesthetics, of surgical skill, of the human body, and you have multiplied the pain which humanity would be compelled to endure. Pundita Ramabai, in the article from which I quoted, asks: "What has this philosophy done for the people of India? A tree is judged by its fruits. Americans are a people of some sympathy. Everything is real. You feel that when other people are starving you ought to give them something to eat. But in India they do not feel any sympathy for others. In our late famine our philosophers had no feeling for the sufferers; they did not help the needy. Why should they be, when they claimed that the sufferings were not real? The first result of this philosophy is the basest brutality, for sufferers no compassion, but supreme egoism.

As seen by its fruits, Christian Science is a cult of supreme selfishness. Its founder has been noted through life for grasping greed with occasional spurts of spectacular charity. It fosters the spirit that seeks wealth for the purpose of spending it in self-indulgence. If the sick want to be cured they must come with the cash, for poverty is an illusion of mortal mind which cannot move hearts to pity. Christian Scientists lavish their wealth upon buildings of stone and adorn them that they may gratify their own aesthetic tastes. And why not? Squalid poverty, with its cry of sick children in fetid atmospheres, dying for the lack of an outing in the country, has no existence. The sickness, the pain, the impure atmosphere and the dying child are illusions of mortal mind. Can you think of a system better calculated to dry up the fountain of human kindness? If it had full sway would it not change the garden of a Christian country into the desert of paganized India?—A. C. Dixon.

Chilly Toggery.

The Sun's Born makes a new application of an old story. A Quaker, riding with a fashionable woman thinly dressed but with a profusion of jewelry, heard her complain of the cold. Shivering, she exclaimed, "What shall I do to get warm?" "I really don't know," replied the Quaker, "I see three pins on another breast." Some who are searching for religious fads, expecting them to bring joy and comfort into their lives, are likewise shivering in their chilly toggery. Doubtless the Quaker would advise them to bedeck themselves with one more delusion, in order to show the utter absurdity of their search. "There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

Premium Upon Ignorance.

Christian Science, while it claims to be progressive, really sets a premium upon ignorance. Diet and exercise are declared to be of no importance. Knowledge is power simply for evil. Boards of health are unnecessary, and are recognized by Christian Science only as a concession to public sentiments. A city, if the thought of Christian Science prevails, need pay no attention to sewerage or cleansing the streets. Filth would be as healthy as flowers. The advance which the world has made in knowledge of sanitary science is really retrogression. The microbes which produce cholera, yellow fever and the bubonic plague are illusions of mortal mind. The sewers that germinate these microbes are also illusions. Pay no attention to filth or microbes.—A. C. Dixon.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Sunday School Lesson.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, Nov. 22.

SOLOMON ANOINTED KING. 1 KINGS i. 32-40, 50-53.

Golden Text. "Know thou the God of thy Father, and serve him with a perfect heart, and with a willing mind." 1 Chron. xxviii. 9.

To obtain a position of power, whether the petty or the supreme, has ever been a ruling ambition among men. Some have dared, and done every thing they had the power to do, to get supreme authority. It is a great pity that our boasted civilization, education, and religious profession has not wiped out this ruling passion. This great country, in high standing before, and among all nations, has lately been the scene of an unmanly struggle for the highest office. The candidates spent days and nights, weeks and months, lauding and praising themselves, and in inglorious boasting before the public, and pouring unlimited abuse, and unjust censure upon others trying for the same high position. Each aspirant unblushingly, without sense of shame, declaring hundreds of times, that he, and he only was worthy of the favor and confidence of the people. Truly manhood is greatly lacking among the mighty.

David, after being anointed of God King of Israel, 1 Sam. xvi. 13, had to wait, and did wait patiently, amid great persecution for about fifteen years before he was made King over all Israel. 2 Sam. v. 3

When David was old, and supposed to be dying, his fourth son, Adonijah, 2 Sam iii 4, full of presumption and lawless desire and determination to be the King of Israel, could not, would not, and did not wait for his father to die, or vacate the throne. He either forgot or scorned the fate of Absalom, 2 Sam. xviii. 14 He said, "I will be King." 1 Kings i. 5.

Nathan the prophet said to Bathsheba the mother of Solomon, Have you not heard that Adonijah reigns? Go to King David and remind him that he swore to you that your son Solomon would sit on his throne. She told the king the story of Adonijah. The king said, As the Lord liveth..... assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, 1 Kings i. 30. He then gave particulars to Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada how to proceed to make and proclaim Solomon King.

Zadok took a horn of oil out of the tabernacle and anointed Solomon, and they blew the trumpet and all the people said, God Save King Solomon. And all the people piped and rejoiced with great joy so that the earth rent with the sound of them.

There is a very great difference between doing a thing right and doing it wrong, between doing a thing with the proper authority, and doing it without, or against authority. Compared with the conspiracy of Absalom, the usurpation of Adonijah was a very small outburst He and his helpers were eating the coronation feast when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet that announced Solomon to be the King. Adonijah and his company were taken by surprise. Adonijah welcomed Jonathan the son of Abaithar the priest. Jonathan said, "Verily our lord king David hath made Solomon king." "Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon, they are come up from hence rejoicing..... this is the voice you have heard. And Solomon sitteth on the throne of the kingdom. King David has received the blessing of his servants." "God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne." Also the king has praised the Lord God of Israel, because he has given him a son to sit on his throne, and he has lived to see it. This information completely upset the "good time" and terrified Adonijah. 1 Kings i. 5 49. He went to the tabernacle and took hold of the horns of the altar. There he acknowledged Solomon to be King, and himself his servant. He petitioned for mercy. Solomon pardoned him on condition that he behave as a man should.

In connection with the Golden Text we read, "Of all my sons—the Lord hath given me many sons—he hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel.....Moreover I will establish his kingdom forever, IF he be constant to do my commandments, and my judgments, as at this day."

King David then solemnly exhorted his son Solomon in the words of the Golden Text, with instruction that the Lord knew all about him, even to his thoughts, made him a grand promise and closed with a serious warning. "Take heed now, for the Lord hath chosen thee to build a house for the sanctuary; be strong, and do it." 1 Chron. xxviii. 5-10

"And they did eat and drink before thee on that day with great gladness, and they made Solomon the son of David king the second time, and anointed him unto the Lord to be the chief governor. Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. And all the princes and all the mighty men, and all the sons likewise of David submitted themselves unto Solomon the king." 1 Chron. xxix. 22-24.

No king before nor since ever had a better beginning than Solomon had as king of Israel. Saul was objected to, "How shall this man save us?" said his opposers. 1 Sam. x. 27. David was strongly opposed by the son and servants of Saul. "There was long war between the house of Saul, and the house of David." Solomon was hailed with delight as the King of Israel.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs. Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations; a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1 00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of these small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, And so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Thanksgiving.

To Heaven, which smiled above us,
Our grateful praises rise,
For all of God's rich blessings,
His love which never dies.

Our God, so kind and tender,
Deserves our loving praise,
And as in glad thanksgiving
Our happy songs we raise.

To Him who loves us ever,
Who gives the harvest store,
We keep the glad Thanksgiving,
The best day in the year.

We keep the day with feasting,
And song and praise and prayer;
We know God's love is o'er us,
And o'er our land so fair.

His bounty doth provide us,
With whatso'er we need;
We feel that we shall harvest
When we sow the precious seed.

We see it ever growing,
Under God's tender care,
Till the land with grain is covered,
Growing bright and full and fair.

Each day it groweth taller,
Until at last 'tis grown;
Until God's promise is fulfilled—
Harvest follows what we've sown.

When in the golden autumn,
We glean the precious store,
Let us render thanks to Heaven,
Praising God forevermore.

And as our praise we offer,
With hearts so full of love,
May we be ever guided
By Him who reigns above.

Then in the glad forever,
When we are freed from sin,
The pearly gates will open,
And we shall enter in.

To be with Christ forever,
A life of endless joy;
No cloud shall ever darken
That day without alloy.

BENJAMIN DAGGETT.

Our offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

Lots of preachers seem to mistake coddling the world's head for comforting its heart.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 13.

SOLOMON DEDICATES THE TEMPLE.

1 KINGS VIII.

Golden Text. I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord. Psa cxxii 1.

To dedicate is to set apart for a special and particular purpose. The temple built as a special place for the ark of God. "And they shall make an ark. Thou shalt put into the ark the testimony which I shall give thee. And thou shalt make two cherubim of gold. And the cherubim shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy seat. And thou shalt put the mercy seat above upon the ark. And there will I meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubim which are upon the ark of the testimony. Ex xxv.

On the first day of the first month shalt thou set up the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation. And thou shalt put therein the ark of the testimony, and cover the ark with the vail. Ex xl 1, 2. And Moses brought the ark into the tabernacle. And the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle. Ex xl 21, 34.

King David said. See now. I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth within curtains." 2 Sam vii 2. When David, the king, was old and infirm, he said, I had in mine heart to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the Lord. But God said unto me, Thou shalt not build a house for my name, because thou hast been a man of war, and hast shed blood. Solomon thy son, he shall build my house and my courts. 1 Chron xxviii 2, 3, 6.

Four hundred and eighty years after the Israelites left Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign—in month of Zif—April and May—he began to build the house of the Lord—and in the eleventh year, in the month Bul—October, November—was the house finished. So was he seven years in building it. 1 King vi 1, 38.

Solomon said, I have surely built thee a house to dwell in, a settled place for thee to abide in forever. Lesson chapter 13. And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord unto his place, unto the oracle of the house, to the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubim. Verse 6. Solomon stood before the altar of the Lord, in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands towards heaven. First he magnified the Lord, then acknowledged his mercy and faithfulness. James also testifies in the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. Jas i 17. Solomon then prays, O Lord, my God, hear my cry and prayer. That thine eyes may be open towards this house night and day, towards the place of which thou hast said, "My name shall be there." Verses 28, 29. The Lord testified his approval and acceptance of the temple as his house, "for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lord." Verse 11. And the Lord said, I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, that thou hast made before me. I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built, to put my name there forever; and mine eyes and mine heart shall be there perpetually. If you will walk before me, as David thy father walked. Then I will establish the throne of the kingdom upon Israel forever. But if ye will at all turn from following me, then I will cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them; and this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast out of my sight. 1 Kings ix 3-7. To be dedicated is to be set apart, consecrated for a certain purpose or work. Moses dedicated himself to the Lord. He refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter. Esteeming the reproach for Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt. Heb xi 24 26.

Aaron and his sons were dedicated—set apart, consecrated to minister unto the Lord. Ex xxviii 1.

The Lord Jesus dedicated the apostles. I have chosen you and ordained—appointed—you. John xv 16.

The house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth 1 Tim iii 15. Built of living stones, a spiritual house. 1 Peter ii 5 Built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets. Eph ii 20. The story of the kingdom and the Christ, the story of salvation is found in Moses and the Prophets, and expounded by the apostles. Those who believe and are immersed are the temple of God. 1 Cor. iii 16.

Next lesson. Luke ii 8 20

P. NEILL.

Brother Underwood.

My letters published in THE RESTITUTION, November 11th, will place the brethren, (especially of Oklahoma) in the same condition of uncertainty concerning evangelistic work that I have been in for a period of time.

I received a letter this evening from Brother Diffenbaugh enclosing another from Sister Rhorback, both show that Oklahoma brethren are interested in my getting back to that state. So, with no farther space, I have decided to go to Portland tomorrow, go through the old Willamette valley, visiting some of the brethren on my way to Sacramento, California, and wait at that city till I hear farther about a systematic plan of work in Oklahoma, if the brethren in that state will plan it and write me. I also wish to hear from any part of California, and work, if called, and from Arizona brethren. My friends and friends of the cause need give themselves no uneasiness, I will have what money I will need till they have the opportunity to help and be receipted for their donation for the cause. The liberal advancement from the Northwest Conference, as reported heretofore makes this possible. I hope this is a sure plan under providence.

From Sacramento I hope to respond to any work in or within reach of that city, and will be at center of communication from Oklahoma, Arizona and California. Write without delay brethren, I only wish to stop till work is planned.

Address me at 2018 I. St. Sacramento, California.

W. L. SKEELS.

LATER.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I am a hundred miles on my trip south from Etna, Washington) at Albany, Oregon. Please Providence, I have this plan in view for the Sundays of dates and time between dates to be devoted to plans to be given to the work under arrangement by the brethren—Eugene, Oregon, Nov. 29, Central Point, Southern Oregon, Dec. 13, Sacramento, Dec. 20. From Sacramento I wish to evangelize any locality I may reach in that State through the advice and help of those interested in California.

From that city I wish to go to Oklahoma or Arizona as may be determined by health and through correspondence. My latest from Oklahoma indicates zeal and vigor on the plan, which is being discussed there of having and sustaining evangelistic work. All souls are of equal value to me, wherever I may benefit them, for "all souls are mine," the Lord says in Ezek. xviii. 4, "as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; the soul that sinneth it shall die."

The money advanced by the Northwest Conference shall be used as far as possible to help localities that can not help themselves. It is to be determined at Sacramento whether I go over in response to the call in Oklahoma, move on to Arizona, or remain at the city of Sacramento to respond to calls that may reach me there. So I shall look for letters from all quarters when I reach that city. Address me, care of B. F. Cook, 2018 I street, Sacramento, Cal.

Of course the brethren should understand that the Northwest Conference is not financially responsible one penny from the time I leave its territory in quest of better health. I will say in the interest of my work that I have had no attack of heart failure since the one I suffered under a year ago in Texas. My physician informed me recently that there was no dangerous derangement of the functions of the heart, but that the nervous system had been affected. I think my health is sufficient to do all the work the brethren can furnish.

At Breaking of Bread.

2 Cor v 17.

Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. According to this then we were something which was not pleasing in the sight of God, and there must be some change take place to make us acceptable in his sight and also to cause us to want to change, and try to be Christ's. The knowledge of the gospel, by personal searching especially, then repentance and baptism followed by a desire for the sincere milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby, will cause this change to take place in our lives, and will cause us to seek and add to our faith virtue; add to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance and to temperance patience; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. As Peter says, For if these things be in you and abound, they will make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall; for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly unto the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Thus we see that when we have put away the old things of our lives, the pleasures and follies, and idols of things worldly, and obeyed the form of doctrine, that we are not through, but have just gotten started, and will now have to resist the temptations within and without, but we have the assurance of Paul in Cor. x 13, There hath no temptation overtaken you but such as is come to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.

Then again in Paul's letter to the Philippians iv 13, I can do all things through Christ which strengthened me, that is a comfort to those who are walking in the path of Christian grace as revealed unto us through his Word, and is surely cause for us to do as Paul says, Rejoice in the Lord always; and again say, Rejoice.

Let your moderation be known unto all men. Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God.

Finally, brethren, what soever things are true, whatsoever things are honest or venerable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise think on these things. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

The Church.

When was the church first started, and by whom?

I understand by searching the Scriptures that the visible church commenced when Abram was called or ordered out of Ur of Chaldees to go into a land which he and his seed should after inherit. The word "Church" is from the Greek work "Ecclesia" which means called out, a separate people, or a class peculiar and zealous of good works, and Abram was the first one and from him through natural growth the present day church grew. We find by carefully reading from the tenth to the twenty-third chapters of Genesis the history of and of the numerous promises made to Abraham, which includes the two classes, one through Isaac and Jacob, the other through Ishmael and Esau, one representing the natural seed the other the spiritual, and these two classes are mentioned in various ways through the different dispensations down to Christ. It is spoken of as a nation governed by judges and ruled by kings until the kingdom was overturned during the reign of Zedekiah the last one, and to remain overturned until he comes whose right it is to reign. Ezekiel xxi. 26.

During the kingdom age and on till Christ came it took the nature of a nation held together for a certain purpose supposed to be to keep a correct lineage of the seed, and after Christ's advent and the Gentiles were admitted they were scattered all over the earth and it made no more pretentions of a kingdom. The apostles supposed that he would restore the kingdom to Israel, Acts i. 6, 7, but he informed them that it was not for them to know the time; it would be reserved.

The word kingdom, from the Greek word "Basileia" means to rule as a nation over territory, and the time had not come for the King of all kings to begin to reign. That the church has existed in its different forms from the calling out of Abraham is evident from the fact that it existed in the wilderness, Acts vii. 37, 38. We are members of that same church if we have complied with the rules laid down by Christ, the Seed spoken of in Gal. iii. 14, to end of chapter, and it makes us members of the same church and heirs with Abraham though the ordinances were changed to fit the present age.

Paul tells us in Romans xi. 13, to 21, under the head of grafting that we Gentiles were made partakers of the root which was the old Jewish church, and again he tells us in Eph. ii. 12, that to be strangers from the covenants of promise we are aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and are without God, and no hope in the world. So it is well for all claiming to be Christians to become acquainted with the covenants of promise lest they be found without oil in their vessels at the last hour.

Report of Labor.

Brother S. J. Lindsay has been in our midst again, holding a series of meetings lasting one week at the Hale Ridge School House, a point about ten miles east of Camden, Ill.

While this was Brother Lindsay's first visit at this place, many were eager to hear the truth expounded. Hence each evening the room was filled with earnest intelligent listeners.

As a result of this meeting two became obedient to the faith, putting on the all-saving name of Christ Jesus by being buried in baptism on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 22, at Crooked Creek. The obedient ones were Bro. Charles Vincent and Sister Katherine Campbell.

As our number of honest believers is increasing rapidly, great enthusiasm has been aroused in favor of a Church of God house being built at this place in the near future. So great is the talk that the members each are planning what they may give or do to encourage this undertaking, that the good work may begin, and that we may have a Church at this place, as it is certainly needed. We sincerely hope this is not mere idle gossip, but that all may be earnest and ready to take hold and make this a success, as we know it can be done if once started the right way.

Brother Lindsay returned to his home at Oregon, Illinois, on Monday for a few days' visit with home folks, after which he will go to different points in Indiana.

The Restitution.

The Restitution advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead—the immortalization of the right—and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief in the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Hindering the Gospel.

The apostle Paul sacrificed his rights and endured many wrongs, lest he should "hinder the gospel of Christ." 1 Cor. ix. 12. He had a right to live of the gospel; and he had a right to exercise authority in the church; but he forebore to exercise his rights, in order that the gospel might have no reproach, and the word of God might have free course. Many times the servant of God is called to imitate his example. He has his rights which he might claim and insist upon; there are wrongs for which he might demand redress: but to do this would bring reproach upon the cause of God, and so this might hinder the gospel, and as the preaching of the gospel is the great thing which engages his heart, he rejoices even if Christ be preached through strife and contention; he is willing to decrease, if Christ may increase, and he is willing to forego his rights, and sink into insignificance, if Christ may be exalted Lord of all.

Are we helping or hindering the gospel? Are we seeking our own rights, our own will, and our own way, or are we laboring with heart and soul, and enduring with patient hope, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ? "Therefore," said the apostle, "I endure all things for the elect's sake that they may obtain salvation, which is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory."—The Christian.

The shepherds when they had found Jesus, made known aloud the things which had been told them concerning him. Have we told others that we know about Jesus and what he has done for us? The wise men went along long way out of their ordinary paths that they might worship and honor Christ. How far out of our way have we gone that we might worship him; how many hardships have we faced and overcome that we might honor him.

Saved sinners can best help unsaved sinners. Those who, though in Christ, are still weak and faulty, who find no hope or encouragement or worthiness within themselves, and who have learned that Christ is their only hope, are the best messengers of his gospel to their brothers who have not yet laid hold on Christ. The effectiveness of their message lies, not in their worthiness, but in Christ's willingness to save them in spite of their unworthiness.

We cannot explain fully the use of temptation and trial. But we do know this, that the strongest and sweetest Christian characters have come to be what they are through great tribulations. The oak tree, when storms come, only clings the tighter to the earth—sends its roots down deeper and lifts up itself to a larger growth. The storms did not make the tree do this, but the tree did it to resist the storms.

Bible promises are like the beams of the sun, which shines as freely in at the window of the poor man's Cottage as the rich man's palace.

The Word of God must be nearer to us than our lives, sweeter to us than our liberty, and pleasanter to us than all earthly comforts.

Every word of God will fulfill its mission. All we have to do is to help send it on its mission.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take The Restitution, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take The Restitution on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

There is still considerable agitation in Germany, and the kaiser is defiant.

There is no abatement of the Asiatic cholera at St. Petersburg, forty-three new cases in two days.

A mining disaster in Pennsylvania killed some 200 men, and a collision of Japanese steamships off Chefo, China cost 700 lives.

Francis Joseph, the old Emperor of Austria-Hungary, has relinquished the throne to Francis Ferdinand, who has been attending to the business of late.

An agreement has been reached by the United States and Japan by which trouble in the Pacific is put far off, and the commerce of all nations is benefitted.

To all who have enquired, we will say that the injured foot is getting better, and we hope to be able to get out in a few days. It is still quite painful, and prevents doing much work, but is healing in fair shape, and a little time will make it all right. We thank all for their expressions of sympathy.

We hope all our friends will remember that this is the time to send in renewals. We need all that is owing to us, as our expenses are quite heavy just now, due to the season of the year and other causes, including our accident. The Helping Fund" is still back. We are doing the best we can, and trusting that all will come right.

Selections.

Making Sacrifices.

The thought of making sacrifices is often in the minds of some Christian people. They have given up this thing or the other thing for the work and service of the Lord, and they take great credit to themselves for the sacrifices which they have made. And yet the things which they claim to have sacrificed are frequently things which they have never had, and which it is by no means certain they ever could have had.

The man who thinks he has left a lucrative occupation for the work of the Lord, might, had he continued in it, have been a bankrupt and a wreck. The man who believes that he might have had honors had he chosen a worldly path, it is very possible might have missed those honors, and have gone to his grave a defeated, disheartened, disappointed man. The man who talks of his pecuniary interests which have suffered by his devotion to God, might, had he refused the service of the Lord, have had no pecuniary interests. He might have drifted into darkness, he might have been a homeless beggar, a drunken tramp, a friendless outcast, a lost and forsaken criminal.

There is no real loss in the service of the heavenly Master, and when the apostle inquired what they who had "forsaken all" to follow Christ, should have, the Saviour told them that so far from being impoverished from the change, they should have even in this world "a hundred fold" more than they had forsaken, and "in the world to come everlasting life." Peter left his fishing boat on the shores of the Sea of Galilee, and in place of being a poor despised fisherman, he came to be known throughout the church, and reverenced in the world through many ages and centuries; and many a man who was born and lived in insignificance, penury, and poverty, has by the grace of God and the Gospel of Christ been lifted to a position which he could never have hoped to occupy had he not linked his fortunes with the Son of God.

It is told I think of Samuel Bradburn, who left the shoe maker's bench to preach the Gospel of Christ, that he was once listening to two young preachers who, descanting on the sacrifices they had made, took occasion to tell how they had "forsaken all" to follow Christ; when Samuel sympathetically remarked that he had forsaken two as good awls as could be found in the United Kingdom, to become a minister of Christ, and a gentleman in society!

Many a man has himself to thank for most of the troubles and many of the losses and crosses which he endures, and few men who really follow Christ will claim that the change they have made in turning from Satan to God has been injurious to their legitimate temporal interests.—H. L. Hastings.

God Chooses our Opportunities.

God has brought us into this time; he and not ourselves or some dark demon. If we are not fit to cope with that which he has prepared for us, we should have been utterly unfit for any condition that we imagine ourselves. In this time we are to live and wrestle, and in no other.

Let us humbly, tremblingly, manfully look at it, and we shall not wish that the sun could go back ite ten degrees, or that we could go back with it. If easy times are departed, it is that the difficult times may make us more in earnest; that they may teach us not to depend upon ourselves. If easy belief is impossible, it is that we may learn what belief is, and in whom it is to be placed.—F. D. Maurice.

Homes Desired For Children.

The agents of the Board of State Charities have in the past year been very successful in securing a large number of good homes for dependent children who are public wards. There are still a large number of desirable children available for placing in suitable homes. Doubtless there are many families that would make a home for a child. An important part of the Board's work is to bring the homeless child and the childless home together. The Board solicits the co-operation of all who are interested in securing proper homes in families for children. Honor the Lord with Thy Substance.

"Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the firstfruits of all thine increase, so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine." Prov iii 9, 10.

Our possessions are God's gifts, and all we give to him is simply a return of a portion of that which we receive from him, as an acknowledgement of our obligation to him. And this acknowledgement must be prompt, hearty, willing and joyous. The Lord abhors the sacrifice where the heart is not found. He accepts no inferior gift. The offering brought to him must be without blemish, it must be the best. It must also be the first. His claim is second to none, and must not be put aside for any other.

The Lord tries our faith by this requirement. When Elijah came to the home of the widow of Zarephath, and found she had only meal enough to make one little cake, which she was going to cook for herself and her son and then die, the prophet bade her to bake him a cake first, and afterwards assured her of provision for herself and her son till the time of famine should be past. She might have objected that his demand to have the first cake baked for him had a sinister aspect; but she obeyed the word, baked the prophet's cake first, and instead of starving to death herself, lived and supported her son by entertaining one of the Lord's free boarders. Had she refused to use the handful of meal as directed by the prophet, she with her son might have perished in the famine.

The Lord stands in no need of our gifts, but he knows that we need to be called out of ourselves, and to have our thoughts, sympathies and affections broadened and strengthened, and in kindness to us he calls our attention from the gifts to the Giver, and bids us remember him, and honor him with our substance and the firstfruits of all our increase; and he promised Israel that if they did this their barns should be filled with plenty, and their wine vats should overflow, while if they refused to give to him, the result would be poverty, wretchedness, and distress. For when people are poor in their souls they are very likely soon to become poor in their purses.

The open acknowledgement to the Lord by giving to him and honoring him with our substance, and with the best of all we have, is but a reasonable requirement, not to be neglected nor deferred. The land is full of godlessness and impiety. Men mock at providence and deride faith. But storm, and flood, and blight, and desolation may teach the thoughtful that the Lord still reigns, and that instead of swearing about weather, and rain, and drouth, and insects, and worms, it is safer to turn to the Lord, and honor him with our substance; and we shall find that it is an easy thing with him to cause the earth to bloom and smile, and to restore that which locusts have eaten, and cause peace and plenty to abound. Joel ii 21-26. Let us see to it that we do not incur the reproof of him who said to ancient Israel, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me in tenths and in offerings." Let us rather bring all the tenths and offerings into the Lord's store-house, and prove the Lord herewith, if he will not open the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing which there will not be room to receive. Mal iii 8, 11.—The Christian.

The best exposition of truth is its exhibition.

He who spreads himself is not likely to rise in it.

Sublime victories are first won in common-place days.

People who practice duplicity naturally label it diplomacy.

Thinking bitterly of others strikes a blow at my own heart.

Many believe they are sanctified because they feel so self-satisfied.

The great life expects to fall often, but it determines never to stay in failure.

Seeing the way that others should go is not equivalent to going in the way we see.

It is always easy to make difficulties in doctrine a hiding place from the demands of duty.

No amount of poetic feeling for the human family will make up for lack of practical provision for your own.

Many a man who prides himself on being a law abiding person would be surprised to see himself in the light of the law of love.

More Problems.

Is it proper to speak of having a narrow escape from being called home to glory?

If we go to heaven at death, why say that "God was merciful to us when he spared our lives to praise him?"

If death is "the wages of sin" how can it be "the gate to endless bliss?"

If death is the penalty for breaking God's law how can it be "the voice of Jesus that calls us to his arms?"

If "death is man's best friend" why treat this friend so ill?

If "sudden death means sudden glory" why take all sorts of ill-tasting decoctions to keep from dying?

If our loved ones are safe in glory why weep over their graves?

If Christ comes "the second time" when we die, is it right to go to some more congenial clime to prolong our lives?

Why say that to "die and not to live" means "live and not die?"

Why say that the angels and devils and men are immortal beings, when "God only hath immortality?"

Why teach that "The soul is immortal and can never die," when God plainly says: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die?"

When the beast dies, the body only of the beast dies; when man dies the body only of the man dies; but all either lack, is life.

A Wasted Life.

The New York Sun printed not long ago a tragic letter which, though anonymous, bore every mark of being a genuine leaf torn out of a man's heart-book. The writer said he came to New York a very poor boy, and having now made a large fortune, had retired from business "But," says the confessing millionaire "when I think it over day by day, I can only be ashamed of it all. I suppose that I was no worse than the others; I know that some were worse than I. But I forgot that there was such a thing as a square deal. If I could get the better of an associate or a customer or an employee I did. Anything that I could do to attain my own success was good business, and I did it. I have given to charity, but it doesn't satisfy me. I know what I have done wasn't manly. The modern success is rank failure. I would give all I possess tonight, if I could say 'I gave every man a square deal—I have done no man wrong!' Think it over; it will mean a lot to you in some day."

It ought to mean a lot to every young man right now. Let him ask himself whether he ever heard a man talk that way in his old age who in youth had deliberately turned away from money-making and devoted his life to doing good. Did he, in fact, ever hear any poor man speak with such cold, shivering disgust of life? Any young fellow with horse sense ought to be able to see that starting out to get rich is just the same as writing "Fool" in capital letters on his forehead.—Interior.

The Still, Small Voice.

Alas, there are so few that have "ears to hear the still, small voice of God," and eyes to see the glorious goal toward which we are bidden to run. Their ears are open to every other voice, and their feet run in every other way, but the narrow way of self-renunciation, which ever leads onward toward Calvary. All men seem to seek their own, instead of the things of Jesus Christ.

These things are cause for mourning on our part. Nevertheless, they become sources of blessing to those whose hearts are fixed toward God. They make us all the more watchful and prayerful against the enemy, lest he should corrupt our own hearts from the simplicity of Christ, by turning our feet into the paths of error and darkness.—A. Mc D., in Words of Faith.

20. On what conditions was he to live long and enjoy this?
21. Does our Lord love to give abundantly? Luke vi. 35; xi. 13; Eph. ii. 4 7

THOUGHTS.

God says to every man "Ask what I shall give thee."

God wants us to choose,—we can have our choice,—we must make a choice.

Not what we get, but what we desire, shows what we really are.

God is able to give, and he wants to be asked to give.

The Wise man said "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." True wisdom demands that we do the right. Unless our actions are right, we show no real wisdom.

My first concern should be to get right with God, and the second to stay so.

23. What was the condition of acceptance? Verse 61
24. How can we lead others to see God? Matt. v. 16

THOUGHTS.

The total estimated cost of the temple was $2,000,000 000. This may be high—it may be low. If after all this outlay, God had refused to manifest himself there, all would have been for nought.

The small tabernacle with God, is better than the costly temple without him.

Some people go to church in these days to hear a fine preacher "lecture," or to hear the choir give a "concert," or to see their friends, or see the fine clothes, and some because "it helps in a business way" to belong to church. God's temple was a holy place—God was there. The people came to worship God. All who came for other purposes were hypocrites.

If God is dwelling in us, and purifying our hearts by his presence, we are his temple. If he is not, then something is wrong with us.

We are in the quarry being prepared. Trials, temptations, disappointments, sorrow, trouble, even our joys and blessings, are but the means by which we are being fashioned so we may fit into the temple of God.

Obituary.

It is with great sorrow that I write announcing the death of our dear brother, James Calderwood, who fell asleep in Jesus at his home in St. Louis, Oct. 6, 1908. The deceased was born in Kilmarnock Air Share, Scotland, Feb. 20, 1849; aged 59 years, 6 months and 16 days at the time of his death. He leaves to mourn his loss six children, three boys and three girls, all of whom are grown up, four grand children, one brother and two sisters. He was a kind father and faithful husband. He and his wife embraced the one faith and were baptized into the all saving name of Jesus May 15, 1870, at Lone Cone, Md., by Brother Hector Cochron. Halived a consistent Christian life ever afterward, true to the trust our heavenly Father had laid on him. He was a patient sufferer in his illness and when the end came expressed a willingness to go if it was our Master's will, and was looking forward for a glorious resurrection, when our dear Savior comes to receive his children unto himself. Funeral services were conducted at his home by the Methodist minister, after which the remains were laid away at Bathania cemetery to await a glorious awakening.

From his sister.
Mrs. Mary C. Smith.

With sadness of heart we have to communicate the death of Brother John F. Pierson of White Cloud, Kan. Nov. 28, 1908, caused by a running sore on his foot. He suffered very much for nearly five months.

He was a very devoted brother, and had built up quite a congregation, most of whom have moved west. He will be much lamented by those who were personally acquainted with him. He leaves a wife and four grown up children to mourn his loss. His age was almost 79 years.

Funeral sermon by the writer from Acts xxvi. 8. I never attended a funeral where I heard so many expressions of sympathy and praise. He died without an enemy. His peculiar kind way both in the pulpit and out, made every body respect him.

The Church has lost an able defender of the Truth.

J. P. Bitner.

Died near Eugene, Oregon, August 6, 1908, Miss Della Fisher, aged 26 years.

Now our Sister sweetly sleeps,
And her rest will be unbroken
By winter cold or summer heat,
Till the blessed words are spoken
That will bring her from the dead.
Then among the throng immortal,
Rise to greet the wondrous Head
Of the glorious Church Triumphant,
Blessings on the worthy dead.
May her grave be over-shadowed
By the flowers we're planted, where
The evening dew on leaf and blade
The shifting waves of light and shade,
Play round her sleeping there.

By request of Sister C. H. Belshaw.

John Carl, son of Clarence and Mary Gockler, was born in Clark County, Illinois, July 9, 1905, and died Nov. 20, 1908, of scarlet fever, after an illness of only three days

Always sweet and pleasant, little Carl won the hearts of all who knew him, and brightened a place in the home that will ever be cherished in memory. May our Father's richest blessing rest on the sorrowing parents and brother, and give them the strength to say "Thy will, not mine, be done," for this little one is sleeping in God's tender care, waiting for the sunshine of his love.

Let Us Pray.

Oh, God, thy mercies toward us are very great. Thou hast graciously brought us to this day of hallowed privileges. Oh God, after the struggles and the perplexities of another week, we thank thee for the atmosphere of calm; for the release from toil; and the comparative silence in the world around us. We praise thee that the house of prayer is open, and a number of waiting ones have gathered to commune with thee.

May this be a precious day to each of thy children. Again and again hast thou blessed us here. Oh, bless us again today, according to the need of each. May every exercise bring to us a fresh token of thy presence. May every hymn be fragrant with the name of Jesus; and every prayer and every utterance be full of his Spirit; so that at the close, every soul may be able to say: Oh, God, my heart is fixed; we will praise thee; we will be wholly thine.

We pray for a blessing, too, upon all whose seats are lawfully vacant. If detained by sickness or distressing cares, be gracious to them, we beseech thee. May the aged and infirm, and the afflicted in mind or body and estate, experience thy Fatherly care, —and if any are growing careless and indifferent through the adverse influence around them,—may they be aroused to their imminent danger, and while mercy lingers, revive the things that remain. In Jesus' name.

The Bible.

Within this awful volume lies
The mystery of mysteries!
Happiest they of human race,
To whom God has granted grace
To read, to fear, to hope, to pray,
To lift the latch and force the way.
And better had they ne'er been born,
Who read to doubt, or read to scorn.
—Sir Walter Scott.

A brother in this issue objects to the devotional feature of "Ebenezer". Let readers express themselves freely to the Editor on this matter; and if the general sense of our readers is adverse to the publication of a prayer for opening our page, we shall omit it in future.

"The world itself could not contain the books that should be written." John xxi: 25. We are informed by our esteemed brother, E. F. Gesin, of Forreston, Ill. that this passage of scripture in the German Bible reads, "The world itself could not comprehend the books that should be written." This bit of information is worth remembering as it clears up this hitherto dark text, and makes it a statement of fact, consistent and true.

Ministers, Attention.

We hope our brethren in the ministry will read this exhortation, and take the hint:

"We do not believe in limiting the time of preaching and exhortation by inflexible rules, but there is one rule which is of universal application. When you get through, stop; and if there is no likelihood of your ever getting through, stop before you begin. The priestesses of heathen oracles, like spiritual mediums of these days, were sometimes the subjects of an uncontrollable frenzy; but not so the servants of the Lord. "The spirits of prophets are subject to the prophets;" that is, to the man whom God has given the ability to speak words of instruction, exhortation and comfort; he has also granted the ability to hold his tongue, and to allow it to run away with him. And we are of the opinion that if a good many who are famed for long-winded prayers and exhortations could be induced to get their tongues under control, and stop, there would be plenty of people ready to give them boquets, compliments, or anything else in reason, as a reward for their brevity.—H. L. Hastings.

Flesh from Flesh; Spirit from Spirit.

"The thing which has been begotten from the flesh is flesh, and the thing which has been begotten from the Spirit is spirit." John iii: 6.

The false teachers we are replying to use this text to prove that, when we are begotten of the Spirit in the resurrection, we shall be spirit beings, not having bodies of flesh and bones; for nothing but spirit can be begotten of Spirit, they affirm, even as nothing but flesh can be begotten of flesh.

But this is shallow thinking. A man before the resurrection, and even before conversion, is composed of more than flesh—he has a spirit, soul and body, as the Scriptures say, and as we all know. So the word flesh here means something more than flesh—it stands for a complete human being, a living soul—having spirit, soul and body. If our objectors can prove that we, by the begettal in the flesh, are nothing, absolutely nothing, but flesh, without spirit or soul, then we will admit that, when we are begotten of the Spirit in the resurrection, we shall be nothing but spirit, having no soul, nor tangible body of flesh and bones. We therefore pluck this text from their hands. The true meaning of the text is obvious to those who would not pervert the Scriptures to support their own prophecies. The word flesh is here used as in many other Scriptures, to denote the Adam man, the soulish man. What is begotten of this carnal man (carnal, is flesh—stands for what is of flesh; but what is begotten of God's Holy Spirit, is spirit, hence it is spiritual.—E. D. Gifford.

Deserved All They Got.

"Do you know what we think is the best story in the Bible?" asked a neighboring exchange. "It may surprise you, but it's that one about Noah and the flood. We say this even in the face of the educated folks who turn up their noses and declare this flood story a fake. You remember Noah worked a long time on the ark. It was uphill business, too, at best, to go on sawing and toiling day after day, in the hot sun, building a boat away out there upon dry land, while the local hammer and anvil club sat around, spitting tobacco jules upon the boards, whittling up his soft pine with their old jack knives and telling what a fool he was to expect a big rain in a country that was too dry to raise alfalfa. But he kept at it; finally the flood came and every mother's son of the croakers was drowned. This is the only instance that we know of either in sacred or profane history where a bunch of knockers got exactly what was coming to them."—Gleaned.

The Editor Rebuked.

THE RESTITUTION came to hand today, and I have carefully perused it. Now I want to find fault. I think that Joblin's prayer on the third page is simply a return to Romanism and the Lutheran church. Prayer, as I understand it, is the sincere desire of the heart—your own, of course. I am not dictating, nor attempting to, but here raise my voice of condemnation. "Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God". Rom. xiv; 22. I am not much on public prayer. I feel a great many times that it is entirely out of place. What does Jesus say? Print your prayers so all can see them? No; "enter into thy closet". Your brother,.....

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Above letter is from a brother whom we love dearly. His letter is the first we have received which expresses dislike for Bro. Joblin's prayers, and which would discourage the children of God (Gal. iii. 27) in addressing their Heavenly Parent as "Abba, Father" (Gal. iv: 6). If God is not ashamed to be called our God (Heb. ii: 11, xi: 16), his children certainly should not be ashamed to call Him "Our Father" (Matt. vi: 9) in public (Exo. xx: 24, 2 Chron. vii: 14, 16; Isa. lvi: 7; Matt. xii: 9; 18 19, 20; Lk. iv: 16; xi: 2) as well as in private. Psa. lv: 17; lxxxviii: 1; Dan. vi: 10; 1 Thess. v: 17. If our dear Master is a safe pattern to copy, and he prayed, remember, on the cross, right in the presence of, and for, the motley crowd who murdered him (Lk. xxiii: 24), surely it is proper and right for the "spirit of his Son" in our hearts to utter supplications, entreaties, and prayers, in the same way and manner. Gal. iv: 6. There are numerous instances of public prayer recorded in the Bible; we cannot refer to them all, but here are a few: Joshua (Jos. vii: 4 9;) David, (1 Chron. xxix: 10, 12;) Solomon, (2 Chron. vi: 12); the Primitive Church, (Acts ii: 46; iv: 24; xii: 5, 12); Peter and John, (Acts iii: 1); church at Antioch, (Acts xiii: 3;) Paul and Silas, (Acts xvi: 16); and Paul with the Elders at Ephesus, Acts xx. 36; xxi: 5.

To quote Rom. xiv: 22 against public prayer, is to widely miss the mark aimed at. What is the "it" we are to have to "thyself"? Prayer? No; "faith". Then if this text means to enforce the idea of holding faith in a private way, then it is wrong for my brother to preach the faith, as I understand he does almost constantly! If you want to throw sand in the eyes of some people, just mutter something about "Romanism" and "creeds", and you have successfully blinded them. The Editor once heard a brother give a splendid sermon on the kingdom of God. After the meeting an interested person in the audience came to the minister and requested him to write the salient points in his sermon, and put down all the texts he had used, so that he could study the subject calmly and quietly at home. To this the brother replied, "Indeed no; never; it would look too much like a creed"!! He would preach the truths about the kingdom of God; he dare not write them out; that would be a creed!! Such simplicity as this, such down right foolishness, is enough to make a man sweat great drops of blood. Some say: pray if you must, but go into your closet; be sure that no one knows that you pray; never let anybody hear you pray! Dear Brother, can you pray if you do not know how? No. Then before you pray in your closet or anywhere else, you will have to learn how. Unless we learn this much we are sure to ask "amiss. Jas. iv: 3. "Ye know not what ye ask". Matt. xx: 22. "We know not what we should pray for as we ought" (Rom. viii:) John understood this, and so taught his converts to pray. Referring to this, Christ's followers entreated the Master and prayerfully beseeched him, saying, "Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples" Lk. xi: 1. Our brethren have need of rebuke in the way of prayer. Many of our people can stand on the street corners and "argue"; they will hang around the postoffice for hours busily engaged in chewing a cud of tobacco, or puffing a cigar, trying to beat some neighbor in debate on some doctrinal issue, generally "baptism"; but call on them to talk with God, to exercise the privilege of making known their requests to God (Phil. iv: 6), like a child will innocently converse with its father, and then feel so unholy in the presence of God who is so holy, that they are dumbin the face of the Almighty. Our brother does not belong to the class here described; but ashamed as we are to confess it, such kind of brethren are the ones who usually talk about the closet; but even there they do not pray; if they did, they would know how and would take delight in, prayer in public. Let each unit saying, "Lord, teach us about baptism, so we can defeat the Methodist on its mode"; rather they should say, "Lord, teach us to pray". It is because our people so sorely need instruction in this matter, that we open "EBENEZER" with prayer. The prayer is not meant for readers to copy the words, but the thoughts. May the loving entreaties which will appear from time to time, so elegantly expressed, melt the heart, soften the affections, enlarge the mind, broaden the understanding, and enrich the life of our readers by leading them to, and inspiring them with, the spirit of prayer. Amen.

Some Thought on Psalm lxix.

We are here assembled this morning that we may remember Jesus. Our remembrance of him to be truly effectual, ought to comprehend all the Scriptural aspect that pertain to him. We have in this lxix Psalm one aspect which is scarcely found elsewhere, viz: the personal experience of the Lord in the days of his flesh. It is true we find in the gospel narratives some reference to it, but they deal more particularly with the external relations of his life. We see him traveling over Galilee and Judea, followed by crowds of people, working miracles, speaking the words of God; and occasionally we get a glimpse of the thought of his mind. It is said that he was exceedingly sorrowful on one occasion. We know he frequently went to the mountain to pray. This is sufficient for us to understand that he felt keenly the trials he was called upon to bear. But when it says, He was "tempted and tried in all points like as we are," we naturally desire more explicit revelations of the mental experiences of him. It is supplied to us in the Psalm we are considering. If we had to think that Jesus passed through this life without experiencing any of its sadness and sorrow and weariness of waiting for the salvation of God—we would be deprived of much of the comfort that belong to us. Let us then be thankful for those Scriptures which tell us of the suffering of Christ and the glory that should follow.

While this Psalm was written by David and the primary reference is to him, nevertheless, it has a wider application in David's Son. Jesus has said, "I am the root and offspring of David." Then David was caused to exist because of Christ, through the Spirit, and Jesus was the offspring of David according to the flesh. Without the Christ there would have been no David. It was the Spirit in David that foretold the suffering of Christ. The Psalm begins: "Save me, O my God." Jesus had to be saved, and he made it a subject of prayer. Paul affirms the same when he says in Heb v 71, "He was heard in that he feared when with strong crying and tears he made supplication to him that was able to save him from death" or what I think is a better rendering, "save him out of death." He did not want to be saved from death, as that would provide no means of redemption for others, but he did supremely desire to be saved out of death. He was made in all points like unto his brethren, that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death. It is also written "that God sent forth his Son made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law." Plainly, then, the only way in which Jesus could be redeemed from the law (of sin and death) was by fulfilling it, which required his death. Having freed himself from the law he could then ask to be saved "out of death." And he did "with strong crying and tears," or as expressed in this Psalm, "The waters are come in unto my soul." They threaten my life. Hear him pray, "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." But not to this end was I born. I sink in deep mire where there is no standing, I am come into deep waters, where the floods overflow me. I am weary of my crying, my throat is dried, mine eyes fail while I wait for my God. Jesus felt utter helplessness apart from God. He knew that God alone was able to save him "out of death." He "waited" for the salvation of God, and in his waiting his energies were consumed. He had his sense of what we are now passing through and his waiting for God was the same trying, wearisome experience that we find it to be. It means separation from the world with all its respectable ungodliness. What does it matter if it causes the finger of scorn to be pointed at us? Jesus had the same trial, "They that hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of my head; they that would destroy me being my enemies wrongfully, are mighty." Then I restored that which I took not away. Christ had many enemies; the reason for it is found in his words, "The world hated me because I testify of it that the works thereof are evil." John vii 7. It is but a few principle, for we read that Noah by faith in God and righteous works "condemned the world, and became the heir of righteousness which is by faith." This condemnation is what the world dislikes; they want to be let alone in the following of their evil ways which please the flesh. To live a life of godliness is to condemn the world and incur its displeasure. Jesus was an object of this hatred. It cost John the Baptist his life, and is the portion of all who follow the footsteps of the Master. Let us not seek to avoid it. It is a trying position but is necessary to produce that holiness of character in which God delights.

O God, thou knowest my foolishness; and my sins are not hid from thee." The application of this to Christ is only intelligible on the principle that he partook of the common nature of Adamic stock, in which Paul says there dwelleth no good thing—a nature whose tendencies are to foolishness and sin. Christ felt these tendencies as no other man can do, because of the indwelling of the Father by the Spirit. This made him sensible to his weakness. His natural desire was to follow the flesh, but "He pleased not himself." Rom xv 3 This caused great suffering on his part inasmuch as Peter says, He suffered in the flesh, and hath ceased from sin." Jesus had our sinful nature, he was tempted and tried in all points like as we are, yet without sin. He felt the burden of a sinful nature He triumphed over it, and left us an example that we should follow in his footsteps.

"Let not them that wait on thee, O Lord God of Hosts, be ashamed for my sake; let not those that seek thee be confounded for my sake, O God of Israel." The Spirit in David here not only prays for David and Christ, but for all those who have believed on Christ. Jesus offered this prayer as recorded in the 17th chapter of John's gospel, "I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world.....I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me.....and they have believed. I pray for them—I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil of the world. What tender regard Jesus had for those who believe on him for his sake. He prays, Let them not be confounded or put to shame. This shows us that he knew what trials would await us, what reproaches would be heaped upon us, what scoffing and mocking we would have to bear, but out of it all he asks the Father to deliver us.

Chronological References.

The scepter did depart from Judah in the eleventh year of Zedekiah's reign, and "it shall be no more until he comes whose right it is, and I will give it him." Ezek. xxi 25 27. The interval from the removal of the scepter, the diadem, the crown, to the point of time of his coming to restore the rulership, is marked by numerous events in the world's history.

The question "How long the vision concerning the daily.....to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot," Dan. viii. 13, and the answer, verse 14, is conspicuous. The answer, Unto 2400 days is from the LXX, and acknowledged for good reasons to be the correct number. A day represents a year.

The downtreading of host and sanctuary on the part of the people and prince of chapter ix. 26, 27, commenced B. C. 70 72, and to continue for the 2400 days aforesaid, less 490 as placed on record verse 24. Seventy sevens cut off—shortened (Douay)—from the 2400 for the purposes mentioned concerning "thy people, thy holy city," closing with the anointing of the "holy one of holies."

It takes the 490 years to accomplish the things set forth in verse 24, and we may safely place emphasis on the succeeding context, 25. From the going forth of Cyrus' proclamation to rebuild Jerusalem, unto the anointed prince seven sevens, and seven sixty-two equal 69 times seven make 483; after the 62 sevens the Messiah cut off three and one-half, born the 4th year before the A. D. three and one-half, makes 490. Isa. lii. 8 and context. 490 from 2400 leaves 1910 from A. D. 72, which added makes 1982, the end of the treading down. See Luke xxi. 22, 24, "The times of the Gentiles" must synchronize with the treading down.

A transition period of 40 years in which the nations will recognize divine intervention. This is from 1942 to 1982, a period of 40 years, in which conditions will be produced which will attract the attention of the nations; and their statesmen will be at their wit's end to devise means for the perpetuation of their rulership as before time. But a settlement must be made on the basis of absolute submission on the one hand and utter destruction on the other; according to the attitude maintained toward Jesus' brethren during their dispersion.

The forty years of the coming out from Egyptian bondage is made as an example and comparison of the 40 years mentioned by the prophets. Consult Amos ii. 10; Micah vii. 15, 16 and emphasize the latter, and compare Psalm lxxvii. 13 and context. Marvelous things will be associated with the divine intervention.

The "many days" of Hosea covers the ground—synchronizes with the time of down treading. "Without a king, without a prince, without a priesthood, without an altar, without sacrifices, and without Urim and Thummim. See also Jeremiah xxx. 7, 8, 9.

Valuable Receipts.

Many preachers suffer more or less with laryngitis, and some times get hoarse while preaching or singing. Get the following prescription filled, and take it; it will not only relieve you, but will cure if you will persist in taking it:

Specific tincture of Collinsonia, one ounce. Simple Syrup, enough to make four ounces. Mix, and take a teaspoonful four times a day. If you will take a dose just before beginning to preach, it will help you wonderfully.

If you are suffering with constipation, take one drop of nux vomica in a glass of cold water just as soon as you get up of a morning. This is a good tonic and aids digestion, and if persisted in, will relieve constipation. The best preparation is the specific tincture, or Parke Davis' Fluid Extract.

If you should spill carbolic acid on you, pour pure alcohol on the place at once. Should a child swallow it, or any one else for that matter, give them weakened apple vinegar at once.

If your baby is suffering with the colic, give it a drop of the specific tincture of Lobelia. If it is very young, a half drop will be sufficient, but if three or four months old, it will take from one to four drops to relieve it. Always begin with a small dose and increase. If you give too much it will cause the child to vomit. Never give your baby paregoric or laudnum. Such remedies constipate the bowels, and interferes with digestion. Never feed your babies until they get eight or ten months old. If God had wanted them to eat he would have given them teeth.—Dr. Daniel.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

What have we to do with a man's standing before his Maker and Master?

We went to the "Torrey Gospel Meetings" on Sunday afternoon. A large building had been erected, holding five thousand people. We stood outside for about half an hour waiting for the doors to open; a large crowd had collected, which the Y. M. C. A. endeavored in vain to interest by their speeches. The U. A. R. came along with a drum corps and an extra flag, they were given the right of way to raise their flag over the building; this was made a dedication service. The crowd becoming impatient yelled, "Open the doors! open the doors"! Then one of the Y. M. C. A. preachers stepped to the front and called for order, saying, we would now sing, "America;" and after prayer, "Old Glory" would go in first. Miles Grant was standing to my left and two brothers to the right, who have seen light. I opened my Bible to Heb xi 13 16, and read, "Having confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth. For they that say such things make it manifest that they are seeking after a country of their own. But now they desire a better country, that is a heavenly, wherefore God is not ashamed of them, to be called their God; for he hath prepared for them a city." Can such professors who do such things have the truth? Will they wake up to the resurrection in the spirit or in the flesh? "If I still preach 'orthodoxy' why am I still persecuted? then is the offence of the cross ceased." There was nothing to the sermon but story telling, and his unbounded love for immortal souls, at perhaps $100 per week. A form of godliness with no power. From such turn away.

Brother Huggins:

I would add a few words with reference to the imprisoned spirits, viewed in the light of the general, or uniform teaching of the Scriptures. The mental impression would be—as far as my observation goes, apply to men in the flesh—particularly to the official class, such as "wicked spirits in the heavenlies"—ecclesiastical and secular, and therefore the injunction, Try the spirits whether they are of God or not, by the proof in context.

The parallel assertion is that "Many false prophets are gone out into the world," etc.....

By keeping the connection of that from verse 17 it will be noted that the context is harmonious and intelligible with the particle of comparison "E" taking its place connecting the parts of the context in harmony with the whole, philogical as well as doctrinal. I quote (17), Because it is better that you suffer for doing good than for doing wrong." Because the Anointed One also once suffered on account of sins"—for a purpose. Being put to death in flesh, but made alive in Spirit, and in which, having gone forth, he preached to imprisoned spirits; who sometime, when—(at the time that) God's longsuffering waited as (just as it was) in the days of Noah while an ark was being prepared, in which a few, that is, eight persons were safely carried through the water"—and "corresponding with this; baptism now saves us, by means of the resurrection of Jesus. Only a few saved by baptism, as compared with the mass of the population.

With fraternal greeting, I remain respectfully in the One hope.

Just Like You.

A son nearing manhood, once said to his mother about some bygone failing, "Do you remember?"

"No, indeed!"

"Just like you, mother! How you have helped me all my life by forgetting all that has been bad in me!"

"Perhaps you have made me forget by so many dear things in you."

How expressive was the quiet kiss that rested for a moment on her forehead!—The Fireside.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Brother John Foore of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 70 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract

The Great Divine Healer vs. Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2013 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in The Restitution some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of these small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Il. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, sets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be stamped to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

I Will Not Doubt.

I will not doubt, though all my ships at sea
Come drifting home, with broken masts and sails;
I will believe the Hand which never fails,
From seeming evil, worketh good for me;
And though I weep because those sails are tattered,
Still will I cry, while my best hopes lie shattered,
"I trust in Thee."

I will not doubt, though all my prayers return
Unanswered from the still, white realm above;
I will believe it is an all-wise love
Which has refused these things for which I yearn;
And though at times I cannot keep from grieving,
Yet the pure ardor of my fixed believing
Undimmed shall burn.

I will not doubt, though sorrow fall like rain,
And troubles swarm like bees about to hive,
I will believe the heights for which I strive
Are only reached by anguish and by pain;
And though I groan and writhe beneath my crosses,
I shall see new through my bitterest losses
The greater gain.

Communicated.

The Manifestation of the Sons of God.

Deity has been manifested through his purpose. In the beginning he manifested himself through the angels (Elohim), later on through the prophets, to us specially through Jesus the Christ. To Abraham he was known as the All or the Mighty One. To Moses he became the Yehwah. In Deut. he declares, "The Lord thy God is one Lord." This same Eternal One is discovered to our understanding through the Scriptures. This discovery can only be made as our intellect becomes receptive. He that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the Word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit and bringeth forth, some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty. Those who bear fruit are the ones to whom our heavenly Father makes himself known. We read from the beloved disciple 1 John iii 1, 2, Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God; therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. In this Scripture the apostle contrasts the sons of God with the world or the sons of men. If we become the children of the Eternal One we are then his heirs and joint heirs of the Lord Jesus Christ. Paul in Heb xi 1 calls them holy brethren. One of the Hebrew prophets calls them "my jewels;" (marg. special treasure) Mal iii 17. There is a very wide difference between those who have Yahweh for their Father, and those who have another father. We must realize that there are two fathers and two families. Jesus said to a class of the Jews, "Ye are of your father the devil whose work ye do." It is evident that these two families existed very early in the history of the race. Adam through his disobedience merited condemnation. If God had have left the race thus there could have been no eternal life. Therefore the whole race was shut up unto sin. In Gal iii 22 we read: The Scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe.

Again Paul says, We have before proved both Jews and Gentiles that they are all under sin. Rom iii 9. These declare that all were under the condemnation of death and can only be liberated through the promise by faith of Jesus Christ. The two sons of Adam, Cain and Abel represent the heads of these two families. Both were shut up. Abel was liberated by offering an acceptable service. The apostle says, "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained a witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts. Heb xi 1. Abel became the first of God's adopted sons. Cain's opportunity to receive the excellency was equal to that of Abel, but his offering was not made in faith. There has been the same marked difference since the day of their sacrifice. By the faith Noah prepared the ark to the saving of his house. He also condemned the world and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith. "Now are we children of God, and the world knoweth us not." Therefore the terms children or sons of God does not apply to all men alike, for as I have stated it is put in contrast with the world. There is a class who do not receive the sonship. It is evident that this sonship is bestowed and not an inherited right. Our first parent became alienated from our heavenly Father through disobedience. In order to become his adopted sons we must remove this alienation. We must remember that God counted all under sin, and also now will count those righteous who believe the message sent through the prophets, apostles and Jesus Christ, his only begotten son. Abraham believed God and it was counted to him for righteousness. When the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. And because we are sons God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into our hearts crying, Abba Father, wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son, and if a son, then an heir of God through Jesus Christ.

Thus we see that the sons and daughters of the living God are a special class to whom he has promised eternal life. Those who belong to the Cain family are counted as dross and will receive their wages which is death. All theories which prove more is what flesh and blood has revealed. It is plainly stated: If God were your Father, ye would love me. Jesus spoke this to his disciples and not to the multitude. Those who do the will of God sustain the relationship of sons. Whosoever believeth that Jesus Christ is the Son of God is begotten of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh, that which is born of the spirit is spirit. If we shall ever become spirit born through the resurrection we must be begotten by the incorruptible seed as spoken of in 1 Peter i 22, 23. Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently. Being begotten again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever. We now have revealed to us the means by which we become the sons of God, by a begettal, a growth and a birth. The first man Adam was made a living soul, the last Adam was made a quickening or vivifying spirit. In order to be vivified we must eliminate ourselves from the first Adam and become through obedience to the gospel attached to the last Adam. Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature. Christ through his resurrection has become the head of a new creation. He is the image of the invisible God, the first born of every creature. For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible whether they be thrones or dominions, or principalities, or powers. He is before all things and for him all things consist. He is the head of the body, the church; who is the beginning, the first born from the dead, that in all things he might have pre-eminence. For it pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell. Col i 15 to 20. The apostle is here speaking of the resurrection and not the work of the spirit in Romans, chapter [illegible] days in the grave, [illegible] by to be con[illegible] which shall be raised [illegible] the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. The old creation will wax old as a vesture. The new will abide for ever, for Jesus and his immortality is and will be its head. This subject of the new creation is which Yahweh will manifest himself mightily through Yahweh—Elohim. Yet we Elohim, that is Jesus his only begotten Son and his numerous adopted sons and daughters whom he is calling out from among all nations is not accepted by many to this age. Jesus through his blood has obtained eternal redemption and now we through his perfect obedience have the privilege of obtaining the same through the sacrifice of our life by crucifying ourselves through being baptized into his (Christ's) death. Rom vi 1 to 7. Beware of the doctrine that teaches you, that Jesus paid it all. We must have honesty and courage to pay our own debts. When we have submitted to baptism we have ourselves paid the penalty of the Edenic law, otherwise we would remain shut up unto sin. The doctrine of the universal resurrection is a snare of the wicked, one the blighting influence of it is seen every where it is preached and believed. The corn of wheat spoken of in John xii 24 has been made a perfect spirit. This is the seed that will produce the harvest of mighty ones through the resurrection. "Like can only produce like" so can this spirit seed (quickening spirit) only produce spirit ones. If the spirit of him that raised Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken (make alive) your mortal bodies because of his Spirit dwelling in you. There are two classes that come forth. Those that have done good to the resurrection of life. Those who have done evil to the resurrection of condemnation.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 9, 1908. NUMBER 46.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 66.

Some of my friends are saying, "Why not let dead people rest? Why rehearse the story of their lives? To all such, I would answer, I tell these stories because they are worth telling, and because Biography is one of the best of teachers. It has an influence over us that the best of sermons cannot have, we sit at the feet of Abraham, Joseph, Moses, David, Paul and Jesus and grow strong in faith, and in power to conquer, because these heroes of God all believed and conquered. And just as all victorious lives have their influence for good.

Stedman Atherton Chaplin, was born of English parentage in the town of Baltimore, Windsor County, Vermont, June 2d, 1809—just 100 years ago next June, tow-headed and very timid, no one suspected what was in the little fellow, until he had learned to read. He had drowned his mother's gosslings, bitten all the heads from the pictures in his primer, and had poisoned himself nearly to death drinking from a harvest field jug, just like any other young New Englander, but when he had once grasped the key to books, he was in another world, a world of joy and of golden treasures.

He was but six years old when he received a prize for reading Smith and Jone's Christian hymn book through, his parents having joined a church of the Christian Connection in Essex Co., New York, said church having been organized by Stephen Chaindell. But there were few books in the little home-library beside the Bible and the hymnal.

There was of course, a Life of Washington, The Lives of the Twelve Cæsars, a Lorenzo Dow's Journal, with a few other books, but that was all [illegible] young student had to borrow [illegible] works he wanted to read.

When but two or twelve he was poring over Telemachus, the Works of Flavius Josephus, Chateaubriand's Travels, The Life of Bonaparte, and Hervey's Meditations.

The seriousness of his nature was deepened not only by his course of reading, but by the grandeur of the scenery that surrounded him. Before the mountains, day after day when at leisure he climbed their steeps[illegible], and hiding in their enchanted solitudes mused of the mysterious and untried future that lay before him; for young as he was, he was already seeking the pearl of a great price, his longing "desire being to so apprehend the plan of salvation as to become experimentally acquainted with the peace of God that passes all understanding." So much did he enjoy these seasons of solitary musing that he counted the time thus spent as one of the most blissful periods of his life. But it was not until 1831 when living in Cayuga County, New York, that he made a public profession of religion and was baptized. "To become a disciple and follower of Jesus, was to him a matter of joy and a crown of rejoicing, and the responsibilities growing out of his new relationship were fully realized." He had made no reservations, his all was on the altar.

The Bible became his daily study, and its inspired pages, gave him the greatest delight, he walked and talked with God, in as close and confidential companionship as a man walks and talks with his dearest friend, there was no shamming about it, No one could be with him long and not feel that he possessed something that had made him different from other men, something that had given him a purity and loftiness of character, far about that of the non-professing crowd around him. There is a beauty, a holiness about such a life that speaks to the hearts of men and stirs them into admiration, even if they are not led by its light to glorify our Father which is in heaven. His parents had moved to Cayuga County in 1824, when he was but fifteen years of age.

Here it was that he extended his course of reading, Instead of wasting his time in playing foot-ball and base-ball as do the young men of the present day. An old physician, named Beeson loaned him Euclid's Elements of Geometry, another friend, a work on Mensuration, and still another, Flint's Plane Trigonometry and Surveying. When eighteen he began teaching school, and continued that occupation during the winter season, while he remained in the State of New York, missing only one term. In this way, though wages were very low, he managed to save money enough to buy some mathematical works for himself, together with books to commence the study of Latin and Greek, and also a Hebrew Bible, grammar and lexicon. The nearest book-stores were at Auburn the county seat, and the only way to get there was to walk. The distance was 22 miles and he went and returned the same day. But before it slow work plodding along without a teacher, and with no help save that given him by Dr. Beeson. Any one who has wrestled with the vowel system of the oriental languages, and who has tried to untangle the radical words from their affixes and suffixes, can readily understand how hard this must have been for a poor schooled country boy.

The text books of those early days, gave us no insight as to how to learn; everything was left for stern patience to conquer.

It was not until the autumn of 1829, when he had reached the age of twenty, that he was permitted to attend school at the Methodist Seminary in Cazenovia; Augustus Smith being Principal. Here he studied Geometry, dug deeper into the Latin Grammar, and began reading the Encid. Some of the best young people of the States and of Canada attended this school, the most of them being pious, devoted and prayerful members of the M. E., and other churches. The Principal urged him to stay longer, but this was not possible with no money, a purse as he possessed.

But the uplift that he received here was very helpful, both in an educational and in a spiritual way. He was brought nearer to God in the student's prayer-meetings and was more strongly impressed with the supreme importance of religious things, for this was two years before he joined the Christian Connexion and took Aldes for the Lord. At this later date there was a widespread revival through the country, and all classes were brought under the influence of God's Holy Word, as at that time read and understood.

The Church of the Christian Connexion took the Bible as their only rule of faith and practice, and Elias Smith—one of its founders—held to the mortality of man and to millenarian views, and boldly proclaimed these doctrines both from pulpit and press despite the opposition of his coadjutor, Abner Jones. Elias Smith it was who started The Herald of Gospel Liberty, the first religious newspaper published in America, and in its columns, the glorious truths that we as a people hold so dear, found a place.

S. A. Chaplain, came out under the preaching of Obadiah E. Morrill, afterward Chaplain of Auburn State Prison, three others were baptized at the same time, one of whom, Mrs. Nancy Royce—his oldest sister—is still living at Warsaw, Indiana, at the advanced age of 95 years.

A new church was organized on the afternoon of the same day.

S. A., attended several of the large conferences held by the Christians, during the two remaining years of his stay in Cayuga County, and met and became acquainted with David Millard, Joseph Badger, Simon Clough, and Barzillai H. Miles, all of them noted preachers, and reformers, the first mentioned, a traveler and writer, and the last named from the West, and known to some of the older settlers of Marshall County, Indiana. He died in Arkansas of Cholera.

tution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Dear Restitution:

Please say to my brothers and sisters scattered through many states, especially my old Indiana brethren, when few are left of them, many have fallen asleep, that Uncle John Foore and his wife Mabala were married 55 years ago November 8, 1908, and he was 76 years old November 8, and on that day we celebrated the two occasions, with all our children present.

Our oldest daughter, Mrs. U. P. Clough, lives at Buffalo, Kansas, and they have had three bright girls all of whom are dead. Emma P. died of diptheria. Maude was drowned, and Ida May was married to Marshall James, and died six hours after the birth of little Marshall James, who was the idol of our anniversary, but it brought sorrow to our hearts to see this once happy family now bereft of all their children. They hope to meet their girls again in the kingdom of God, so are cheerful at the prospect.

The next oldest was James S. Foore and wife, with their daughter Maude and her husband Charles Gribbon.

The next was Ida M. Womeldorf and her husband John, and their three children, Mabel Blanche, John Franklin and Don A.

Our daughter Sarah E. who married C. D. Herod, was not with us. Her husband and all her children died, and a few years ago she went to San Diego California, and is now married to Ed. McKinley.

With all that we had to sadden our hearts, we had a very pleasant time, but whether we live to see another anniversary God only knows. In the afternoon we took a ride out to the State Hospital, around the cemetery and home again to supper, after that we had a good Scripture lesson, and at ten o'clock our anniversary broke up, all well pleased and hoping to live to see another.

May God's blessings go with all the dear children, and may we all live in such a way that whether we see 77 or not, we may meet in the general assembly, and church of the first-born, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, is my prayer for Christ's sake, Amen.

JOHN FOORE.

Six Cents for One.

"Give me a cent, and you may pitch one of the rings, and if it catches over a nail, I'll give you six cents," said a man.

That seemed fair enough, so the boy handed him a cent and took a ring. He stepped back to the stake, tossed his ring, and it caught on one of the nails that was fastened on a board.

"Will you take six rings to pitch again or six cents?"

"Six cents," was the answer, and three two-cent pieces were put into his hand. He stepped off well satisfied with what he had done, and probably not having an idea that he had done wrong. A gentleman standing near had watched him, and now, before he had time to look about and rejoin his companions, laid his hand on his shoulder.

"My lad, this is your first lesson in gambling!"

"Gambling, sir?"

"You staked your penny and won six, did you not?"

"Yes, I did."

"You did not earn them, and they were not given to you. You won them just as gamblers win money. You have taken the first step in the path. That man has gone through it, and you can see the end. Now, I advise you to go and give the six cents back and ask him for the penny, and then stand square with the world, an honest boy again."

He had hung his head, but raised it quickly, and his bright, open look as he said, I'll do it!" will not be forgotten. He ran back, and soon emerged from the ring, looking happier than ever. That was an honest boy.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would live to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

BROTHER R G. Huggins has an encouraging word concerning his meetings with the Hillsburg Church. May the Lord sustain him and favor his labors.

A LETTER from Brother W. B. Wilson tells that good meetings are in progress at Hammond, La., also that they have a very successful Sunday School at that place, fifty-one being present last Sunday. This is surely encouraging, and gives hope for all that good will be done. May God bless all efforts.

As we stated last week we are very greatly in need of some money just now, and so ask all who can do so to hasten in their renewals. Our injury makes our work much harder, and we have not been able to send out statements. We hope a generous response will make this unnecessary. Please do not forget the Helping Fund.

ON last Monday afternoon we had the pleasure of a call from Brother S. J. Lindsay. He is engaged in a series of meetings at Argos, eight miles from here, and reports good attendance and attention. He goes next week to Rensselaer, Indiana, for some days. May the Father's blessing attend him, and may he be granted fruit from his labor.

MANY of the friends who attended the Illinois and Indiana Conferences a few years ago, will remember Sister A. L. Tichenor. At that time she was living with her brother, Killian Van Rensselaer Lansingh, at Chicago. A number of years ago they moved to Pasadena, California, on account of his health, where he died October 5, 1908, at the age of 84 years and 9 months. Sister Tichenor went with the body to Albany, New York, where he was buried, and has now returned to Pasadena, where she will remain for the present. The sympathy and Christian love of all who knew her is assured our Sister in this hour of bereavement, and may the Father sustain her ever.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, DEC. 20.

CHRISTMAS LESSON. LUKE ii 8 20.

Golden Text. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. Luke ii. 11.

Christmas. What a rush of feeling, and in some what strong emotion the word stirs up. Christmas brings a general joy to the most of people, especially to the children, and the joy of the young is the pleasure of the old. Like all earthy gladness, it is only good for a time, and has some disagreeable, and even serious features. These are mostly confined to large towns and cities, country rejoicing is more simple and sincere.

In cyclopedias, and other books we read that "Christmas is a festival of the Christian church." Festival, we are informed is a time of rejoicing, a joyous, gay occasion, a time of social or religious joy, a feast day, with regard to festival the statements are acceptable and satisfactory, but we must object to the full expression, that "Christmas is a festival of the Christian church." There is no mention, not even a hint of such a festival by any of the apostles, neither is there any mention of a "Christian church." This may sound as if some one was trying to be critical. Let us never forget that we cannot be too critical, too exact, too part cular when comparing the words of men with the words of God. We have the example of the prophets. They spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. 1 Pet i 21. We have also the example of the apostles, they spoke only according to "Moses and the prophets." Luke xvi 29 31; Act xxviii 23. Judging from the Scripture—Bible—standpoint we can, and must, truly say that the Christmas festival as observed, and the gifts as given have no connection with Christ. There can be no objections—no reasonable objection, to people setting aside a certain day on which to give gifts, but the day should have a name in accordance with the celebration, and not the name that is above every name. Phil ii 9.

Let us now consider the lesson verses.

In the same country—not far from Bethlehem, shepherds—why the announcement to shepherds? Why not to the chief priests? Why not to the Pharisees and scribes? Because by their explanations they had made the Word of God useless. Mark vii 13 They did not believe what Moses wrote about the Messiah, the Christ. John v 45 47. There were always a few that did believe, that the seed of the woman would bruise the serpent's head. Gen iii 15. And the seed of Abraham would bless all the nations of the earth. Gen xxii 18. And that he would be born in Bethlehem. Micah v 1. The shepherds were some of the few that did believe, and were watching for the advent of the promised one.

The circumstances were such that there could be no possible mistake about the truth and value of the message. It was not, in this case, through a prophet or seer, but direct from heaven by the angel of the Lord. The glad tidings was further made sure by the shining glory of the Lord. This occurring at night would of course cause wonder and fear. Their fear was soon turned to joy, their faith was bearing fruit, their prayers being answered. The good tidings of great joy was first to them, then to all people. Have ALL people, since that memorable night, been filled with great joy? If not, why not? because all do not believe that a Savior which is "Christ the Lord" was born in Bethlehem. Thousands upon thousands believe there was a babe born in Bethlehem according to the declaration by the angel. Many profess to believe that the child was Jesus. This is about as far as the multitude will go. When he comes again. John xiv 3, he will be "King of the Jews." Matt ii 2. He will sit on David's throne. Luke i 31-33. On Zion's holy hill. Psa ii 6. He will reign until he has put all enemies under his feet. 1 Cor xv 25. He will then be in FULL, the Savior, Christ the Lord. And instead of just a few faithful here and there, all will know him from the least to the greatest. Heb viii 11. All nations shall call him blessed. Psa lxxii 17. And there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor pain; for former things will have passed away. Rev xxi 4. All that, and much more, was contained in the proclamation, I bring you is born this day, in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. Luke ii. 11.

Forever carried by the multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men. The Scriptures quoted prove that this grand anthem began on the hills near Bethlehem will be taken up by the hosts of earth when, "Every thing that has breath will praise the Lord." Psa cl 6.

P. NEILL.

Notes by the Way.

I started from home on my winters Evangelical trip, on Thursday morning Nov. 19. My first point was Morse Mill, Missouri. The object of my visit was to conduct an installation service of a society of young Bereans, which has just been organized at Morse Mill, Missouri.

After leaving home Thursday morning, I arrived at St. Louis, at about 6:30 P. M. Sister Logan of the Sanitarium, met me at the station. I then went with her to the Sanitarium, and remained over night. During the evening, I was pleasantly surprised by a visit from three of our young Sisters, Kathryn and Jennie Townsend and their neice from Lebanon, Ill. Hearing that I would be at St. Louis, they came to see me. I certainly did appreciate their visit, and kindly words. These three young ladies are also Bereans.

On Friday morning I took the Iron Mountain flood for Victoria, Mo., on arriving at that point, I took the Mail Stage for Hillsboro, where Sister Eva Wilson met me, and conveyed me to Morse Mill. A portion of the time I made my home with Sister Miner, and afterward with Bro. and Sister John Williams.

On Saturday night I gave an address to the young people on the very important subject of "Thought"—"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

On Sunday morning, I gave a drill service to the young Bereans. I gave them what I found from personal experience to be the best methods of study in order to obtain an accurate and satisfactory knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, and illustrated this method of study, from the Student's Text Book. After this I gave a brief review from Lesson 1, of the Uniform Lesson Book.

This was followed by an installation sermon, on the topic of "Love," based on 1 Cor. xiii.

"Thought," and "Love," are the two things which are eternal, neither one of them never had a beginning, and never will end, they are as everlasting as the Great Eternal.

During the service, three popular were rendered, composed by three of the Berean. I want to call the especial attention of the readers of THE RESTITUTION to these papers.

"FOLLOW RIGHTEOUSNESS, FAITH, CHARITY AND PEACE."

Let us as young Bereans daily search the Scriptures and show ourselves approved workmen unto God, "rightly dividing the Word of Truth." We must avoid all profanity, and the evils of youth; we cannot serve two masters, if we have chosen the narrow way, which leads to life eternal. While still living in the world we cannot be of the world. Something must be sacrificed in the service of our loving Master.

2 Tim. ii. 22. We are bidden to "Follow righteousness, faith, charity, and peace." If a man deplaith these he shall be a vessel of dishonor in the house of his Master.

Prov. xvii. 8. "Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues without right." Dear friends, we must seek not after the riches of the world but for the righteousness which is of faith. Beloved, we wish to seek salvation, and by diligence through faith and patience we inherit the promises. Heb. x. 36, "For ye have need of patience, that, after the will of God, ye might receive the promise."

This society of Bereans was first organized by a number of interested ones, who hoped to open the eyes of others, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of satan unto God, that they might receive forgiveness of sins and inheritance among them of which are sanctified by faith. So let not our faith fail, but continue unto the end.

1 Cor. xiii. Charity rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth, and though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity it profiteth me nothing, and though I have all faith so that I must say, that I feel proud of them, and predict success from their efforts.

All Christian workers at times have to meet discouraging circumstances, and should they come to you my dear young Bereans, never give up, but meet them with a bold front, and a lot of stick-to-it-iveness, and you will be sure to succeed.

We have a whole lot of young people at Bluff, I am anxiously waiting to hear that they have organized. Don't delay it, my dear young people.

I am now on a long trip through Louisana, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. While I am in these states preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom, I should be pleased to help any body of young people to organize Berean Associations. I have seen their good work, and heartily approve of them.

I was with the Pine Woods Bible Class, at Hammond, Louisana, on Thanksgiving day, and will give notes soon.

Address letters to me, at my home address and they will be forwarded to wherever I may be. Orders for books and stacks will be filled by my folks.

Yours in the blessed hope,
W. B. WILSON.

Religious Barrenness. Luke xiii 6-9.

Barrenness is unfruitfulness, unproductiveness, not producing fruit. Then religious barrenness is a religion that is unfruitful, has no increase. A church organization is called a religious body, and if there is no addition to the membership, then that church is barren. A church may have additions, and still be a barren church, for the additions may be those that move from some other church organization, to the one they move too, and it makes an addition to that church by removal from another locality, but to have a religious organization fruitful, it must have those join that have never belonged to that body.

God commanded Adam to be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth. The earth increased to population and also increased to religious barrenness, until God was so angry at the wickedness of the inhabitants of the earth, that he commanded Noah to build an Ark to save him and his family, and God destroyed all those people that were religiously barren, and saved eight persons, all the people that were truly religious. Then he commanded Noah to multiply and replenish the earth, and today we see the earth peopled with a vast multitude of people, and religiously divided in two classes, the saved and the unsaved, the fruitful and the barren. To be fruitful in religion, we must be led by the Spirit, and we read the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, against such there is no law, and if we are led by the Spirit we will do those things that there is no law against.

Christ said either make the tree good and his fruit good, or else make the tree corrupt; for the tree is known by his fruit. He was here speaking to the Pharisees, Matt. xii: 33, and he called them a generation of vipers, and said how can ye, being evil, speak good things? He was teaching them that they were unfruitful in good deeds, and until they changed their ways they had no hope of salvation.

Paul told the Colossians that if they would walk worthy of the Lord they would be fruitful in every good work. Col. i: 10. There is danger of religious barrenness in an individual.

One must do those things that are pleasing to God, or he will displease him and become barren toward God. Let us not be weary in well doing, but ever be found hopeful and trusting in the Lord Jesus, so we may not become barren in religious work.

Yours in the Blessed Hope,
E. W. KNAPP.

Obituary.

Rowena Wolcott was born at Wadsworth, Medina County Ohio, August 16, 1834. When she was a small girl her parents came to Lagrange County Indiana, settling in the place now called Wolcottville. After her father's death in 1857, she went to Tennessee to teach school, but resigned in favor of her cousin and came home and assisted Miss Griggs in the Wolcottville Seminary until she came to Middlebury, where she taught the summer of 1861.

She was united in marriage to John F. Cooper October 17, 1861, he died October 19, 1898 To this union were born four daughters, Mrs. Chas. [illegible]

Although isolated from those of like precious faith, Sister Cooper was a firm believer in future life only through the Christ. She was a member of the Church of God for many years, and much of the time THE RESTITUTION and her Bible was the guide that kept her willing feet in the narrow way.

She was truly a Daughter of the King. A bright and shining light in the beautiful little town of Middlebury, Elkhart County, Indiana, where she lived. She will be missed, but the fragrance of her pure life will linger in the memory of those who knew her. Truly, blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, that they may rest from their labor, for their works do follow them.

The writer spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family and friends who sorrow not as others who have no hope. Sorrowfully, yet with a confidence anchored in the sure Word of God, we laid her to rest till the Lord shall come.

The funeral was held on Thursday, December 3, 1908, at her late residence.

THOUGHTS.

He that thinketh he standeth is admonished to take heed lest he fall. If Solomon, with all his wisdom fell, who can stand?

Solomon did not fall from his high position all at once. It was a giving way to the little desires—one by one—till the fall was complete, and God's anger kindled.

Riches, pleasures, and worldly honors, are not real happiness.

Gifts of wealth and position should not become temptations to do evil, but rather steps to climb upward toward God.

Solomon had wealth, power, wisdom; careful training, large responsibilities, high ideals. He was a king, judge, philosopher, poet; all honor was done to him, courtiers bowed the knee before him. He needed nothing. What was wrong? Self-sacrifice was foreign to him—selfishness ruled his heart.

Many men, like Solomon, lack the courage to say "No" to temptations, and consequently cannot say "Yes" to the call of God.

...TION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Hagstad, of 3502 Woodland Ave. Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Let Us Pray.

Gracious and loving Father,—we thank and praise thee for the evidence that the gospel of Christ is still the power of God unto salvation. Our hearts are gladdened because another has determined to forsake the traditions of men which subvert the truth of God,—determined to turn her back upon all the vanities of the world, the pleasures of sin, yea, forsake all and follow Christ, in the ordinance of baptism,—that blessed adopting ordinance in which she becomes a child of God, being justified of all past sin, and obtains the sin-covering name of Jesus, and a co-heir with him. In the most eventful act of her life,—the very crisis of her existence,—may she be deeply sensible of the awful importance of dying to sin, and rising out of the grave of water to walk in newness of life,—and that without this all will be in vain.

We commend this dear soul to thy care and keeping wherever her lot may be cast, may thy presence go with her and give her rest. And when the glorious Lord of life may call for his own, may she hear him say, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." We ask all in Jesus' dear name. Amen, and Amen.

We began a two weeks meeting at Hillsburg, Ind., Dec. 3. The weather thus far has been good, and the attendance splendid. Sunday, the 6th., at three o'clock in the afternoon, while the white, pure, beautiful snow fell, we helped Mr. John Hampton to put on Christ, by baptism.

Eliseus—Elijah.

Does Eliseus and Elijah, mean the same person?—John H. Byerly.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Yes, Eliseus is merely the Greek form of Elijah. Lk. iv: 27. In the Old Testament names that end in, ah, are ended in the Greek (New Testament) with us, as the following instances will suffice to show: Jeremiah, Jeremias Matt. xvi: 14; (the shortened English form of Jeremiah occurs once, Jeremy Matt. ii: 17;) Elijah, Elias, (Luke iv: 25;) Joshua, Jesus, Heb. iv: 8. The same persons are meant, and the same names are used, only they are differently spelt, owing to the differences of the languages in which they are rendered.

Preaching by Actions.

Brother Huggins:

I have just finished reading Brother Tomkin's article on the "Spirits in Prison." Like you, I do not agree with him; and as I have never seen an article on this text that was clear, I make this my apology for writing now. It is strange that as much as our brethren have had to meet this Scripture, that they have never discovered its real meaning. In a recent discussion with a Latter Day Saint (this passage is a favorite text with them), I challenged him on the real reading and grammatical construction of the text, and he simply let it alone. I will refer only to that part of the text that seems to me to settle the whole thing. The object of Christ's sufferings (see verse 18), was to bring us to God; and when we are brought to God, our nature will be changed to spiritual. Now keep this in mind? Then listen to the reading: "Being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the spirit, which," Here we pause and ask, By what? The answer is that by being put to death in flesh, and quickened by the spirit, he did the preaching. Quickened by the spirit means, of course, to be made alive. I told my opponent they had the preaching done while Jesus was put death or in the death state and before he was made alive by the spirit; while Peter says it was done by both. It was here that he was stumped. Peter does not say he preached to the spirits in prison by being put to death in the flesh alone, but by being put to death in the flesh and quickened by the Spirit, he did the preaching. Therefore the preaching could not have been done by Jesus until after his resurrection. This you will see as we proceed. We will affirm that in this preaching by the Savior not a word was spoken so far as he was concerned. Peter says it was by the act of being put to death in the flesh and quickened by the Spirit that he did the preaching. Two acts here, but no discourse hinted at. To illustrate: be baptised. Some respond; live faithful lives, and die. On the other hand some reject the offer of a future life, live on in wickedness and die. Now what effect will the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus have on these two classes? It holds the one and releases the other, does it not? Noah being a preacher of righteousness, preached right things to the people of his time, but they were disobedient, eight only obeying. Who were saved from the effects of the flood? A figure of our believing and being baptized now. The death of Christ and his resurrection reached back to the world that then was; affects also the one that now is, and that which is to come. Hence, in the grave three days, one for each age. Those that die in the faith, (and Noah is one according to Heb xi 7) are to be born of the Spirit. Such go down natural; come up spiritual. 1 Cor xv 44. Heb xi 7, informs us that Noah by faith condemned the people of his time. Death holds the believer captive, but the resurrection of Jesus sets them free. There were two classes in Noah's day: where the gospel is preached, two classes today, the obedient and disobedient. Jesus being put to death in the flesh but quickened by the Spirit. Like Noah's preaching, in order to harmonize, condemns one class; releases the other.

In the next chapter Peter tells us the gospel was preached to them that are dead. But what for? Why? so they could be "judged according to men in the flesh but live according to God in the Spirit." We see the preaching was necessary to this judgment. This Noah did; as do we. Noah said there is a flood coming; do you believe it? They said, no; then condemned. We say there is a kingdom coming; do you believe it? They say, no. Condemned again. It is the gospel of faith in both instances. Those who believed Noah were saved; those who believe now will be saved in like manner; but being held captive by death and in the prison house (the grave), Jesus went and preached, showed, or gave hope to them of a future spiritual life and nature. "By being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit." As the faithful are destined to come forth to the spiritual nature, Peter here refers to them as spirits in prison. Jesus when put to death in the flesh, was just as those faithful ones that are now in that state. When he came forth to the spiritual nature he is just as they will be when they come forth. Hence, what a great sermon he preached to them, in this act, showing them how to escape the prison and reach the spiritual nature. I believe a good many have wished this text was out of the way, but when rightly understood it teaches a beautiful truth and I am glad it is on record. We hear it said sometimes that actions speak louder than words, so in this act Jesus preached the loudest sermon ever yet delivered. Noah preached long and no doubt loud enough to be heard and understood. But here pause and ask yourself, what good would it be to him if Jesus had never been quickened by the Spirit? You say none whatever. Then the resurrection of Jesus confirmed their faith. The Spirit of Christ dwelt in them as it must in us; and that Spirit that raised him will also raise the faithful of all ages. By faith they died; the substance will be to live again in the Spirit. We can, therefore, very properly refer to them as "spirits in prison." What we preach by word of mouth, Jesus preached or proclaimed in action and our preaching of their future hope of the spiritual nature is based on his first coming up from the dead. In this act Jesus did preach to the "spirits in prison." What a glorious hope, then, did Jesus proclaim to the faithful dead, in being "put to death in the flesh but quickened by the Spirit."

Yours in love.

Life in The Spirit.

In the Epistle to the Galatians the Holy Spirit presents to us eight phases of the divine life.

1. We are "born after the Spirit," or rather "begotten according to the Spirit." iv: 29. We are not "adopted," as so many falsely think; for then we could not be "partakers of the divine nature." 2 Pet. i:4. Then also the expression "begotten" is far preferable to the word "born." 1 John v: 1, 1 Pet. i: 23, R. V. Both are translations of the same Greek word, "gennao"; the begettal being the act of a father, and the giving birth the act of God;" but as God is always represented as "Father," we should always read and say "begotten of God," as rendered oftentimes in the margin of the Revised Version. Dear readers, are you sure that you have received Jesus as your Savior and thus had right or authority to be called children of God (techuoi, not yet sons), being "begotten of God"? (John i: 12, 13, R. V., margin.) Then rejoice that your names are written in heaven (Luke x: 20), and seek and obtain grace to overcome, that they may not be blotted out. Rev. iii: 5.

2. Having been begotten from above, according to the Spirit," by the entrance of the good seed, the Word of God, into the honest and good heart, where it is understood, accepted, obeyed, held fast, and matured (John ii.: 3, 5; Matt. xiii: 19, 20, 22, 23; Mark iv: 20; Luke viii: 11, 15) we now enter by faith on a new life altogether, a divine life, and we Live in, or Live By Spirit (v. 25). This life is not only wholly from God, but is maintained and preserved by God. Yet we are only babes, new-born babes, and need the sincere, unadulterated milk of the Word, which is without guile (it. V.), that we may grow thereby unto salvation (from the enemies that will soon beset us,—the world, the flesh, and the devil, 1 Pet. ii: 2). What need there is that young converts shall be led to eagerly crave (Roth.) for God's Word! While so many are left entirely, or set to work on some committee before they have strength to stand.—H. Veysey.

1 Peter iii. 18 20 Again.

Brother Huggins:

A few more words with reference to 1 Peter iii. 18 20. Have noticed the several translations and MS. readings mentioned, and see a substantial agreement in one particular at least; and that is that Christ himself did the preaching, and thus far agrees with the prophetic and historic teaching of the records, as referred to already.

The affirmation of Isa. lxi. 1, is quite intelligible and believable; being reaffirmed by Christ in Luke iv. 16-18, and confirmed in verse 21. Christ went about from place to place under the direct influence of the Spirit of God—being officially anointed for his mission to [illegible] the Kingdom of God [illegible] Luke 43. He went in this Spirit, preaching and performed works of ability. An illustration—Luke ii. 27, "And he (Simeon) came by the Spirit." Christ "went" (or "having gone" a prior action on his part) by the same Spirit which quickened him from the "being put to death," and preached unto the "Spirits in prison" with whom he came in contact during the time of his missionary labors among those whose minds were controlled by the traditions current.

We have the fact affirmed that Christ did the preaching—that he was anointed officially for that very purpose. The various places where he preached are matters of record. That he was sent to preach to "the lost sheep of the house of Israel" in all the cities and villages teaching in their synagogues—and to those whom he preached were the imprisoned Spirits of the text considered. The conclusion is as obvious as that the effect follows the cause that produced it.

When we consider the current belief of the times of this so-called, translation and MSS readings mentioned, we might see the "ear marks" of ecclesiasticism which sent "the Spirit of Christ on the circuit of God's universal grace, to announce future salvation to those confined in hades"—the abode of departed spirits—and in this way create a hope of salvation..... Strange that the scholarly authors of certain translations differ so much in regard to particles of language; en, men, de, and such. Dr. Young, Barnes, Dr. Clark, A. Campbell, Diaglott, Revised A. B. H., and so forth. 'Put to death" "indeed"—What has "indeed" to do with the passage? Nothing. Altho (men) being put to death in flesh, yet (de) quickened by the Spirit—by which also he having gone, preached.

"He came spiritually" is a commentary rather than a translation, and may be turned and twisted to suit the pre-conceptions of the Scribe. "He went and preached," differs materially from "He came," "Having gone" harmonizes the context. "Put to death indeed," etc., occurs frequently in modern versions. "Being put to death," affirms a fact independent of "indeed." Hence the inference may be drawn that it takes more than scholarship to translate New Testament in this epistle; chapter ii. 4; iii. 18; iv. 6. Though (men) condemned to death by the human court of the times of martyrdom, yet (de) according to the Supreme Court, the judgment of the lower court will be reversed, and those referred to live again—He was enveloped in Holy Spirit clear through from his baptism to the cross; when he said with bowed head—"It is finished." May as well stop right here as to continue. Will see what Brother Adams has to offer.

With Fraternal Greeting.

C. W. TOMKINS.

While not convinced that Brother Tomkins' interpretation of 1 Pet. iii. 18-20 is contextually and constructively true, yet we must confess that we think more of his views after reading carefully above article. The reader is urged to read the past articles which have appeared in THE RESTITUTION by Brother Tomkins and Adams. Their writings on this passage are thoughtful, and will be helpful to you if you will study them, and this whether you agree with them in entirety of details or not.—EDITOR.

Gold Dust.

Obedience to the truth is the one test of discipleship.

Example is wonderful in its power; you put others straight by walking straight yourself.

No man is so lacking in eloquence that he cannot speak the fine language of kindness.

Walk in honesty before men and in purity before God.

It is not by regretting what is irreparable that true work is to be done, but by making the best of what we are. It is not by complaining that we have not the right tools, but by using well the tools we have.—F. W. Robertson.

It is just as necessary to feed the mind and soul as it is to feed the body. Spiritual food, plenty of it, and time always to partake of it, should be the plan of every Christian. No one wastes any time that is given to prayerful study of God's Word.

Thoughts on Baptism.

Else what shall they do that are baptized for the dead? If the dead are not raised at all why are they baptized for them?" 1 Cor xv 29.

Baptism here seems to be used in a double sense. If those who die are never raised why submit to it; for it figures forth not only our death to this world, (age), but a resurrection into the age to come. If we remained in the water we would die, but we are spared that death, the second death, and so rise to walk in newness of life in the spirit of the next age, having been buried with Christ and raised with him. The gospel also is preached to the dead; they having now the promise of a resurrection. The old world died without hope, there being no salvation except the ark.

Peter's language abounds in metaphor, as does all Scripture, and in spirit he speaks of those things that are not as though they were. When Christ died, he went and preached to the spirits in prison. The Spirit of Christ is the Word of God in the prophets, and when Noah, a preacher of righteousness, preached the Word, he preached in the Spirit of Christ, but Noah could save but eight persons, while Christ preaching by the act of righteousness in his death and resurrection will save many. "As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive," but not all saved. Now the "Body of Christ" are partakers of Christ's sufferings, so it can be said they are baptized for the dead, which is figured by going down into the death element of water, and rising again, receiving the Spirit of Christ by the obedience to this act of faith. "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?" The judgment is just and is reformatory in its character except for the death penalty, so that deprivation from what might have been, will be a cause of pain. Many will hear and believe in that day; and if they are obedient to the law that shall go forth from Jerusalem, they will live. We have no message today for any one, except a call to sonship. May God help us to heed the injunction, "Let no man take your crown." Judas will see Mathias with his crown on, and it were better for Judas had he never been born. Felix trembled when Paul preached the gospel to him which he rejected. The Pharisees, scribes, etc., will see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom and they themselves cast teachers today: it is principally for Israel. Those who believe not are condemned already. How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? We have no authority to promise life to those who reject the gospel. While there are some who do, and speak of what they term tribulation saints, who they say go through great troubles and are saved by it. The tribulation saints are Israel. God is then through with the Gentiles, and punishes the lost generation severely, so that there are few left among the nations, while those who are slain by the brightness of his presence can never be raised. It is the time of Jacob's trouble, yet he shall be saved out of it. It is the controversy of Zion; the nations coming against Jerusalem, resisting the return of Israel.

Teachableness. 1 Sam. ii: 1-19

Children are naturally teachable. They learn something every day. Their minds, like their bodies, grow, and they need mind-food as well as body-food. Parents are often neglectful of the minds of their children. They provide plenty of good wholesome food for their bodies, but manifest little or no concern about the kind of instruction their teachable children are receiving, or from whom they are receiving it. Parents should teach their children the beauties of nature, which is a museum filled with rare and splendid curiosities. It is very unkind for a parent, or teacher, not to take the teachable, inquisitive child to visit this great museum, all full and crowded with wonders and beauties and glories. Children should be taken into God's great university of divine truth—the Holy Bible. There is very much in the Bible that children relish and will be greatly pleased and helped by it. All parents and teachers should take advantage of the teachableness of childhood.—G. W. Arnold. Review.

Selections.

Divine Care and Knowledge.

"Even the hairs of your head are all numbered."

Thus spake the Master to his chosen. What a wonderful care! The dearest friend, the tenderest wife, the most affectionate sister, never did this for us. In every square inch of the human scalp, it is ascertained by actual counting, nearly one thousand hairs exist, or about one hundred and twenty thousand, on the average, on the whole, well-covered head. These Scriptures should strengthen our faith. God looks after his saints in everything, and the minuteness of his supervision in their affairs is astonishing. And while condescending to notice even the little things and unnoticed particulars of our well being, it is also said: "He numbereth the stars in so."

The number of stars seen in a clear winter's night, with the naked eye, is one thousand. But the telescope reveals millions. The astronomer Herschel saw fifty thousand in the "milky way" pass across the field of his telescope in seven minutes. With a powerful glass over eighty millions are visible, but the real number of stars is estimated in scientific circles at two billions, four hundred millions of worlds! But the Scriptures inform us that while with man the stars are countless, yet God enumerates them all. What a wonderful being is this, who counts the hairs upon the heads of his saints, and the stars in the vast and measureless spaces of the blue heavens! "Great and marvelous are thy works, O Lord God Almighty! Who shall not fear thee, O Lord!"—D. T. Taylor.

Would Vote Out the Business.

If you leave it to the people they will vote out the liquor business. The worst thing that anti liquor people have to contend with to-day is the federal law which permits the liquor men to come in and do exactly what the people have voted they cannot do. The question in the minds of the people of the United States to-day is the liquor business. Wherever you go throughout the whole country you find the people talking, not of tariff, insurance or corporation matters, but of the liquor business. I don't believe any one will deny that the saloon is an influence for evil, a breeder for crime, just as race-track betting is, and this general moral movement in the land, what I call the Era of Conscience, is bringing out clearly the people's opposition to the liquor traffic.—Gov. Joseph B. Folk.

eetium discovery at Elephantine, at the fords of the First Cataract. A letter, in good Aramaic, written on papyrus, has recently been found, addressed by the high priest of the temple of Jehovah in Elephantine, to the Persian governor in Palestine, in the fourteenth year of Darius (410 B. C.), complaining that, during a revolt, the Egyptian high priest had destroyed the Jewish temple which the Egyptians had allowed to be built before the Persians conquered Egypt in 525 B. C. Sanballat is also mentioned. The astounding thing is, that although it was contrary to the established rules in Palestine, to worship in any temple outside of Jerusalem, here, in the generation immediately succeeding Jeremiah, a temple, with priests in attendance, was built for the Jews in the extreme south of Egypt, that there they might worship Jehovah according to the usage of their fathers. Isa xix: 18, gives the prophecy that in five places in Egypt Jehovah should be worshipped. Here, no doubt, was one of these places, and the temple may yet be excavated. The word of the prophet of old will yet be verified in startling clearness, in the Lord's own good time.

Self-lifting Not Yet Possible.

No man can get higher than himself by depending upon himself alone. And the man not yet lived who is, or who ever could be in this world, satisfied with himself at his best, Yet some still preach the gospel of "ethical culture," and urge that we offer to the "other half," in city and neighborhood settlement work, the opportunity simply to do their best, helping them to be clean and thrifty, but rigorously keeping from them any suggestion of religion or of a Christ who is a Savior. Such effort is like attempting to lift ourselves by our boot straps. The art of self-lifting has not yet been discovered. Men want some one who will lift them out of themselves. Christ is the only one who enables men to do better than their best.—Sunday School Times.

Our Accountability.

There are people who flatter themselves that they can avoid the hearing of the gospel, or hide from God himself, and then they will not be accountable. One man whom the writer knew, said: "I will not go to church, and then I shall not hear anything about being a Christian, so I shall get clear of any accountability to God." Then the thought came into his mind like a flash, "I shall be accountable for the opportunities which I have, even if I do not accept them."

Put it whichever way you choose, no person can escape from God, or their accountability to him.

"As I live saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me and every tongue shall confess to God. So, then, every one of us shall give account of himself to God."—C. H. Shepherd.

A Small Boy's Reasoning.

A bright boy, who had been taught the nature of strong drink and promised to shun it, one day visited a rich uncle who was not a teetotaler. The uncle offered the boy a glass of wine, which he declined. Wishing to see how far he could be tempted, he urged the boy to drink and finally offered him the gift of a watch if he would drink. The boy declined, saying: "Please, don't tempt me. If I keep a teetotaler, I can some day buy a watch of my own, but if I drink and take your watch I may later have to pawn it to get bread."—Bluestone Messenger.

Reverence for the Law.

Let reverence for the laws be taught in schools, in seminaries and in colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling-books and almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice; and in short, let it become the political religion of the nation; and let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay, of all sexes and tongues, and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.—Lincoln.

Whining and complaining over one's misfortunes will bring only misery and complaining in response to any future appeal for sympathy. A cheery word to a downcast brother will be returned with interest some day when one's own spirits are drooping, and the seed sown, the bread cast on the waters is found after many days.

We need what is due us on subscriptions and trust all who know themselves to be in arrears will remember us. We appreciate the favor,

Try to Be.

If I were a boy, says Bishop Vincent, I should put no unclean thoughts, pictures, sights or stories, in my imagination, and no foul words on my tongue. I would treat little folks kindly, and not tease them; show respect to servants; be tender to the unfortunate—all this I should strive to do for the sake of being a comfort to people, a joy to my parents and a help to the next century.

If I were a boy, I should play and romp, sing and shout, climb trees, explore caves, swim rivers and be able to do all the manly things that belong to the manly sports: love and study nature; travel as widely and observe as wisely as I could; study hard and with a will when the time came for study; read the best literature—works of the imagination, history, science and art, according to my taste and need; get a good knowledge of English, try to speak accurately and distinctly; go to college, even if I expected to be a clerk, a farmer or a mechanic; spend my Sundays reverently; try to be a practical, every day Christian; help on every good cause; never make sport of sacred things; be "about my Father's business," like the Boy of Nazareth; "use the world and not abuse it;" treat old men as fathers, "the young men as brethren," the elder women as mothers, the younger as sisters, with all purity; and thus I would try to be a Christian, wholesome, sensible, cheerful, independent, courteous.

Homes Desired For Children.

The agents of the Board of State Charities have in the past year been very successful in securing a large number of good homes for dependent children who are public wards. There are still a large number of desirable children available for placing in suitable homes. Doubtless there are many families that would make a home for a child. An important part of the Board's work is to bring the homeless child and the childless home together. The Board solicits the co-operation of all who are interested in securing proper homes in families for children. For further information address the Board of State Charities, State House, Indianapolis, Ind.

May the Lord touch your hearts and open your pocket books for the needy.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to the word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

BROTHER John Foors of Parsons, Kansas, realizing that his preaching days are getting short, as he is nearly 70 years old, has issued a series of 10 tracts. They have cost him a considerable sum, and he offers to supply them to the brethren on most liberal terms. The average cost of these tracts is about 10 cents each, and he offers to send them at cost. Also he says that where people are too poor to pay for them he will send them to such free if they will send name and address. The subjects treated are as follows: The Great Divine Healer vs. last day healers, The stature of Christ The restitution, The kingdom of God, Law and testimony, The judgment, Is baptism essential to salvation, Life and death, Signs of the end, Through the second vail, Three days and three nights, Election and predestination. Let any one wishing these tracts send direct to John Foore, Parsons, Kan

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleading and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foors.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we prophesied in thy name, and in thy name cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in this way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 16, 1908. NUMBER 47.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and Immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisite of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

same doctrines as found place in the Herald of Gospel Liberty, I do not know, but think not. It was to this paper that S. A's., first literary productions were sent, one of these began

"Ye vain, terrestrial things adieu!
No more you fill my longing mind;
I an eternal treasure view
Worth more than India's wealth combined."

It was quite a lengthy poem but the remaining verses have faded from memory.

He was very fortunate in having for friends the best and most intelligent of the people among whom his lot was cast, and especially was this the case in Cayuga County. The friendships formed there were held in sacred remembrance while life endured, and the names of these dear ones were so often spoken, that they became to me as household words in my youthful years, and even now they come to me "like sound of sabbath bells."

In his boyhood, none of his young companions and school-mates shared with him in his solemn convictions. It was the biographies that he had read, that made him long to walk in the footsteps of Jesus. He wanted to follow the example of these pious young people, to "live as they lived, and die as they died."

At this time, he was attending church at The Ashgrove Meeting House, seven miles from Camden, Washington County, New York.

Philip Embury, the first Methodist minister in America had organized a society here in 1760, or thereabouts. It was the first within the limits of what afterward became the Troy Conference. So S. A's., first religious impressions came from the Methodists, and through a society organized by their first minister over here. But he was too young then to form friendships with noted preachers, or with the older people in the neighborhood, so we know nothing of these.

In Cayuga County it was different. He was now counted among the children of God, and met with them in the weekly prayer-meetings from house to house. It was in these prayer-meetings that he saw and became acquainted with the dear, Christian woman who afterward became his wife, she had come up from Tioga County, to visit her mother, and not long afterward went to Tennessee, with a younger brother, to see an older one who had settled there.

The farm owned by my grandfather James Chaplin was too small to support a family of eleven persons, even though the older sons taught school and made barrels, it contained but 42 acres, so in the fall of 1833, they moved to Wayne County, Ohio, and from there to Wood Co., where they remained until the spring of 1835, and then came on through "the terrible wilderness" to Eel River, in the south-west corner of Whitley County Indiana, S. A., having gone to Tennessee in the fall of 1834, where he was married, Sept. 28th, to Miss Sarah Mc Quigg, his New York friend.

His stay in Tennessee lasted until the beginning of 1836, when he and his wife also moved to Eel River, and entered a farm, two children were born to them here, a son and a daughter, the latter being myself. In the fall of 1838, the Eel River farms were sold, and both my parents and grandparents located on heavily timbered places in Kos. Co. Up to this time all the preaching they had heard in their new homes had come from the lips of Methodist ministers; there was no church of the Christians, anywhere in their vicinity. But the dear Lord was leading them in a way they knew not. It was now 1841, and Elder James Martin—a Baptist minister,—began preaching in the neighborhood and on Eel River, and organized a church, called "The Eel River Baptist Church," the Christians had come out of the Baptist church, but these pioneers united with them because it seemed at the time the only right thing to do. They were getting just where God wanted them to be, that they might learn the truth as to the near approach of Jesus, and also that relating to the nature and destiny of man.

Father now felt that it was his duty to enter the ministry, and after making several efforts in public, he was licensed Feb. 19, 1842, and was formally ordained, Aug. 20th., of the same year, Sylamon Wedge and James Martin, being the ordaining Elders, and Dr. Rowland Willard, the Secretary of the Council.

It was a beautiful day and its scenes were indelibly impressed on his memory. The tears rolled down his cheeks as he knelt to receive the hands of his consecrators. He felt the responsibilities assumed and his spirit seemed to diffuse itself upon all present. From a distance of 8, 10 and 12 miles around the people had come to witness the unusual sight and to enjoy the meeting. The double log cabin was packed to its utmost capacity, and many had to remain out of doors. How the fond old father and the dear pious mother, rejoiced over their child! Thus given to God in answer to their prayers!

And how many others rejoiced in the hope of future guidance and light. Near the close of services, the Communion supper was eaten and they sang a hymn and went out.

Christmas Lesson. Luke ii 8-20. What is the meaning of the word Christmas? Is the word found in the Bible? Was Christmas kept by the apostles or disciples? Who began Christmas keeping? Were they Christ's—Christians?

A careful study of these twelve lessons show us that the most important thing in this life is to obey the Word of God. Obey it just as it is written, not as men explain it.

These lessons tells us of the kingdom of God, and the first three kings Saul, David and Solomon. Saul and Solomon failed to observe strictly the Word of God, and they did not repent. David sinned, but his heart was right and he deeply repented. Because God has not literally—actually—fulfilled his words to David. Because Christ is not yet—even now—sitting on David's throne on Mount Zion. Men tell us that God means a spiritual kingdom, and Christ is reigning over the hearts of men. Isa ix 6, 7; Dan vii 13, 14 and 27, and the angel Gabriel, Luke i 32, 33, tell us the truth.

Next lesson "The Ascension of our Lord. Acts i. 1 14.

Royal Relationship.

It is considered a great honor to be connected to one of the royal houses of Europe, or even to the president of our own country; but all such ties of blood pale into nothingness when we consider the high and lofty state of a true child of God. Can it be that we have the right to claim divine relationship? It is even so. "Hence, "For which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren, saying, I will declare thy name unto my brethren," Heb ii 11-12. And again, "Behold, my mother and my brethren; for whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother." Matt xii 46-50. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. 1 John iii 2. It fills my heart with deep adoration and awe when I meditate on such precious promises, no wonder the apostle styles them "exceeding great and precious." What greater glory can finite mind conceive of than this, to be partakers with Christ of the divine nature? But let us not forget that there is something for us to do; it will not answer to say, Lord, Lord, and expect to drift into the kingdom somehow: for it is not enough to believe and obey the gospel and expect God to do all thereat; it is not for nothing that we are exhorted to put on the whole armor of God, we need it every hour of our warfare against foes from without, but much more from within. Evils from without cannot touch our inner life, but evil from within if not purged out will soon kill the divine life that has sprung up in our hearts when we believed. How many make a start for the kingdom but fail to go on to perfection; oh, what a pity; only think, to be so near and fail at last for lack of heart purity; for nothing short of heart purity will prevail in the day of judgment. I am afraid when the great King appears some of us will be found wanting. Brothers and sisters, let us wake up and put forth every effort to gain the great prize, exceeding great and precious, partakers of the divine nature; surely this is worth striving for even unto death. To be acceptable Christ must be formed in us, or in other words we must build up a Christ-like character; have the spirit of Christ or we are none of his. When John the Revelator had a vision of that glorious city, "The bride of the Lamb" it was said, and there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth. Do we expect to get in and not be robed in the spotless linen? Dear reader, if Christ is not enthroned in your heart it is because something else is seated there, cast it out and let Jesus the lover of your soul reign there alone. It is not enough to shut the lips tight and swear inwardly when things go wrong, the very desire must be overcome, the cup and the platter made clean inside that the outside may be clean also. Let us study the 6th chapter of Galatians and see what kind of fruit we bear, whether it is of the flesh unto death or of the spirit unto life eternal, and while we are studying and searching for more light, let us not forget to walk in the light that we already have, and not neglect the things more essential, for speculating on things that are not clearly revealed. One cannot swim in shallow water, so likewise it is hard to serve God with only enough religion to make some kind of profession like the foolish virgins. Let us plunge deep into the river of salvation, that the stream may carry us along to the haven of eternal life.

MRS. W. B. WOLFE.

Report of Labor.

We began our year's work at the Millville School House, four miles east of Salem, Ohio. We had very good audiences here and were invited to return and hold another meeting which we promised to do, the Lord willing.

We left home October 10th for Brother Smith's living near Mourowville. We remained with Brother Smith and family for one week. We found his home a very pleasant place to stop. Brother Smith is sound in the faith. Our audiences were rather small here. The M. E. Minister spoke to a small audience on Sunday, P. M., although he lives six miles from the School House where preaching is held. The audience was very small. The people in this neighborhood care little for Bible truths.

We met Mrs. Robison at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and we went to Springfield where we spoke to the "little flock" there. This is one of the model churches. Brother Holman is now past eighty years of age, but as interested in the truth as it he had heard it just a short time ago. He has been one of the main stays of this ecclesia for many years. Dr. John Thomas and Robert Roberts visited here years ago. Brother and Sister Beck and five children are members of this ecclesia. Brother David Beck is their leader. He is an earnest student of the Scriptures.

We began a meeting with the Brush Creek ecclesia the 1st of November, which lasted over three Sundays. Our meetings were very well attended with few exceptions. This is a farming community and while our meeting lasted they were very busy, yet they found time to attend. Brother Rufus Curtis and Brother John Lehman have been the leaders here for some years. This church has had as teachers some of our best speakers, such as Brothers J. F. Wagoner, J. M. Stephenson, D. T. Halstead and others. Our young Brother Ashford Lehman is an active worker in this ecclesia. Mrs. Robinson and myself delivered eighteen discourses here beside holding several social meetings. We had Sister Jessie Kauffman of Springfield, with us during part of this meeting. She led a social meeting much to her credit. Sister Kauffman was immersed into Christ last May. May our young brothers and sisters continue as they have begun serving the Lord with a singleness of heart.

After we bid the brothers and sisters of Brush Creek goodby we were taken to Troy, Ohio, by Brother Daniel Lehman where we were met by Sister Westfall who took us to her home where we began a meeting at their school house.

Brother and Sister Westfall are earnest workers for the Lord's cause. Their home is truly a "Pilgrim's Rest." This is our third visit with them. Their family consists of two daughters, Florence and May. Florence is in her third year in the Troy High School and stands well in her classes. May, the younger, is attending the home school, she ranks first in her studies. Edwin Lehman their nephew, makes his home here and is a model boy. Our meeting was the best we have held here. Our audiences were very good and attentive.

After closing our meeting here we began our four miles west of this place in the neighborhood of Sister Annie Eidemiller, who is a very earnest worker. Sisters Eidemiller and Westfall are sisters in the flesh. Brother Henry Lehman, now deceased, was their father and one of the first to obey the gospel at Brush Creek. He stood for the whole truth.

Our meetings with Sister Eidemiller were very well attended and the best attention given to the subjects discussed. On the last evening Mrs. Robison spoke on the subject, "In My Father's House are Many Mansions." The audience listened attentively to the Scriptural proofs given, that the "House" here spoken of was not heaven.

During the month of November we delivered thirty discourses and held several social meeting, besides visiting in a number of the homes of the brothers and sisters. Our labors thus far have been very pleasant. We found very pleasant homes wherever we have gone. May our Heavenly Father bless our brothers and sisters for the care they have taken of us while with them. We wish that all homes might be as those are where we have stopped.

Tomorrow, December 2, we start for Delta, the home of Brother Samuel Elton, to begin a meeting.

The above report embraces the first quarter of the year.

H. C. ROBISON, State Evangelist.

Brother Underwood,

I am writing at the Post Office in the beautiful city of Salonia, Eugene, Oregon. It is my first place of meeting after having resolved to leave the climate that has become rugged to me, and starting to the sunny southland. Although it is southward when I am on the move, it is, and ever will be with new experiences, which would always be interesting to others as well as ourself if well recorded. If we could look at the bright scenes with as much confidence as we view the dark spots with dread we would always sing "He Leadeth Me."

I held my first meeting in Brother and Sister Palmer's spacious double room—there was too much room for the number of people.

Arrangement was made to begin at the Presbyterian church Monday night. There I left it to a vote of the people whether I should give a series "On the Coming of Christ and the purpose of his return." Almost a unanimous vote said "yes." The minister did not vote. Immediately after the meeting Brother Belshaw went to the janitor and assumed the cost which the minister had stated in the meeting would be 75 cts per night.

Today I had a talk with a newly found "Campbellite" friend concerning the advisability of moving my work from Eugene to Springfield a few miles away. He said "No, there is an interest you had better stay with it." That he would look up the question of expense among the people. Have spoken four times here.

I have been receiving letters from Oklahoma, some encouraging and some discouraging about sustaining the work. From Arizona, all encouraging me to come and make my home there, but not encouraging as to evangelistic prospects.

So it is left till I reach Sacramento, California. Whether I shall find work in one of those fields or establish work in California, or return to the northwest. I may throw the question of health into the balance to determine the question of duty.

I am due at Central Point, Oregon, December 18, and at Sacramento, California, December 20th.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

BRETHREN, subscriptions are not coming in to us as fast as they should just now. We really need money this moment. Our expenses are necessarily heavier at this season, and the past few months have not seen as much come to us as has in other like periods. Please hurry your renewals in brethren, and you who have a surplus, do not forget the Helping Fund that supplies the poor. This is falling back, and we simply cannot sustain it alone.

A BROTHER writes asking for an explanation of Matt. xi. 11, and Luke vii. 28. Who is it that is greater than John the Baptist? Some one give our brother this information.

Thanksgiving.

Agreeable to the proclamation by Pres. Roosevelt, Thursday, Nov. 26, was set aside as a day of national thanksgiving. The day was observed in Salem, Ohio, after what may be called the usual manner. It was kept by the Church of God somewhat after the manner and intention of Governor Bradford at Plymouth, in 1621.

Services appropriate to the occasion were held by the church at 10 30 A. M. There was a goodly gathering, Bro. and Sister Juergenson came from Barberton, and Bro. and Sis. Moore from Cleveland to rejoice with us in giving thanks. The following Scriptures were selected and read.

By Sister Baker; How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that published salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth. Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem; for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem. Isa. lii: 7, 9.

By Sister Farmer: Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein; then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the Lord. for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth; he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth. So we thy people and sheep of thy pastures will give thee thanks forever, we will show forth thy praise to all generations. Psa. xcvi: 12, 13 and lxxix: 13.

By Sister Morron: Sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving; sing praise upon the harp unto our God. Psa. cxlvii: 7.

By Sister Crawford: Give unto the Lord, O ye mighty, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. The Lord will give strength unto his people; the Lord will bless his people with peace. Psa. xxix: 1, 2, 11.

By Sister Esther Burton: For the Lord shall comfort Zion; he will comfort all her waste places; he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody. Therefore the redeemed of the Lord shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy upon their head; they shall obtain gladness and joy; and sorrow and mourning shall flee away. Isa. li: 3, 11.

By Sister Buckman: Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him, and bless his name. Psa. c: 1, 4.

By Bro. Townsend: O come, let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with Psalms. Psa. lcv: 1, 2.

By Bro. Morrow: God hath created meats which should be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth. Nor every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving. For it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer. 1 Tim. iv: 3, 5.

By Sister Annie Burton: Know ye that the Lord he is God; it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture. Enter into his gates with praise; be thankful unto him; and bless his name. Psa. c: 3, 4.

By Sister Ella Knowles: Behold, God is my salvation. I will trust and not be afraid; for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation. And in that day shall ye say, Praise the Lord, call upon his name, declare his doings among the people, and make mention that his name is exalted. Isa xii: 2, 4.

By Sister Moore: At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee because of thy righteous judgments, I am a companion of all them that fear thee, and of them that keep thy precepts. The earth, O Lord, is full of thy mercy: teach me thy statutes. Psa. cxix: 62-65.

By Sister Ida Buckman: Let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankfull. And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him. Col: iii: 15, 17.

By Bro. Neill. O give thanks unto the Lord; call upon his name; make known his deeds among the people. Glory ye in his holy name; let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord. Psa. cv: 1, 3.

By Bro. Barber: Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Eph. v: 20.

By Sister Buckman: Praise ye the Lord. O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endureth forever. By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name. Psa. cvi: 1, Heb. xiii: 15

By Sister McCave: Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy. That they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate. Laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.

By Sister Mary Knowles: Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. Both riches and honor come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might, and in thine hand it is to make great, and give strength unto all. Now therefore, our God, we thank thee, and praise thy glorious name. 1 Chro. xxix: 11 13.

By Bro. Pottorf: The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. 1 Cor. xv; 56, 57.

By Sister Townsend: It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High; To show forth thy loving kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night Psa. xcii: 1, 2.

By Sister Robison: Dear Bros. and Sisters—We have many things to be thankful for, but that which is uppermost in my mind is the privilege of worshipping the God of Israel. We are no longer aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world, no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God. We belong to the commonwealth of Israel, and can say with the psalmist. Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, who's hope is in him.

By Sister Neill: I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men; for kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty. 1 Tim. ii: 1, 2.

By Bro. Robison: Therefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus; who was faithful to him that appointed him.

Dearly beloved it is a great honor to be called holy brethren, the world is greatly pleased to have the titles of honor conferred upon them; such as M. D., D. D., L. L. D, and so forth. These titles distinguish them from the less favored. They are for a season. Ours for all time, the world does not recognize us, but our heavenly Father does, so let us bear this title of honor as we bear the name of the One who has so blessed us, let us be truly thankful for this thought. The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some ing to usward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. Heb. ii: 1, 2: 2 Peter iii: 9.

Bro. and Sister Robison kindly sent their selections from Troy O. They are out carrying the message of salvation to perishing men and women. May the Lord find honest hearts, so that he may give the increase.

By Bro. Juergenson: Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come before him: worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good; for his mercy endureth forever. 1 Chro. xvi. 29, 34.

These are a few words from a fine address delivered by Bro. Juergensen, and enjoyed by all present.

Sister Juergensen gave a short talk that warmed the hearts of all the hearers. They have the church at Barberton in their home. This is commended to all the isolated brethren.

We have much pleasure in adding a few choice words from Bro. and Sister Moore of Cleveland.

By Sister Moore: The Lord is good to all; and his tender mercies are over all his works. All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee. The trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ. Psa. cxiv: 9, 10; 1 Pet. i: 7

By Bro. Moore: Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. For the Lord is a great God, and a great king above all gods. Thanks be unto him for his unspeakable gift. Psa. xcv: 2, 3; 2 Cor. ix: 15

It may be truly said of this meeting that all rejoiced together before the Lord. It is for her befitting the occasion to quote. Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. Psa. cxxxiii: 1.

After service all dined together at the home of Sister E V. Baker, the afternoon was spent in talking of things past, present, and to come, the evening coming on, parting began, reluctantly bidding good night, or good bye, but each rejoicing in the hope of meeting in the Kingdom of God.

P. NEILL.

Notes from the Diary of a Wandering Evangelist.

I left work in the northwest to seek work in a more southern climate and am working (still in a northern climate) as I progress toward the Sunny South.

Eugene, Oregon, November 28th, I spoke to about a dozen in Brother Palmer's spacious double rooms at 3. P. M.

Monday night, November 30th, had a fairly good hearing and excellent attention in the Presbyterian church. I had felt one of my "blue spells" over my financial prospects because I could quote the words of my Master and apply it to self, "The foxes have dens and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." Oh, how often I have quoted that in sympathy and love for Jesus, with tears in my eyes as I thought he placed himself in that homeless condition for me—for us. Today a brother in Christ said "Brother Skeels, if you should reach the place that you have no home, come to me, and I will give you a home." I will not record the name. I believe the angels are keeping a diary in heaven for earth. I am cheered by cheerfulness thus freely offered.

If any one of my readers are cranky, forgive me if this leaf from my diary should be too sympathetic or open-hearted to meet your approval.

On this night the minister offered the use of his church on condition that we would pay 75cts a night. This brother of sympathy and means assumed payment. During the years of my labor I have always found those that would give me lodging places, and help to supply my present wants.

December 1st the church was occupied by the Presbyterians for prayer meeting. I rested at Brother Palmers instead of going.

December 3rd and 4th I continued to preach to from twenty-five to thirty persons.

On the 4th I went to the home of a "Campbellite" friend for supper. He was anxious, as is usual with that people that I should give a number of discourses on "baptism for the remission of sins." I told him I first gave the things to be believed and finished my work with that subject. He assured me that a place would be furnished and expense met if I would give prominence to that subject. A opportunity for questions. The nature of man was developed in answer to questions from Brother and Sister Palmer, with that in view. The Christian minister took the floor. Eccl. xii. was quoted to prove that man's spirit returns to God. I freely admitted that we believe and teach it; but it is the principle of life that the beast has as well as man, Eccl. iii. 21, and I showed by reading from the 9th chapter that man is unconscious in death. As the beast will not be resurrected his spirit goeth downward, but because man will have life restored his spirit goeth upward, or the principle of life returns to God to be restored.

This little investigation was carried on without any show of feeling or combativeness. I announced that I would speak on baptism the next night.

Saturday, December 5th. Last night proved to be the advertising night for our meeting. Tonight the Presbyterian minister was present for the first time for several evenings; but his flock seemed to have taken refuge largely in their homes, but there were enough others to increase the attendance to about forty. I spoke on baptism, but first stated that this evening would be the last (as the house had only been secured for the week) if the people did not have interest to furnish a house and see after the expense. I dwelt on the importance of faith preceding baptism. Gave opportunity for questions. None seemed ready to ask any till I called the people to their feet for dismissal, before they had succeeded in rising up, the minister was up with the question "Do you believe that the Presbyterian church is a church of Christ" I answered, "I do not judge churches." He insisted. I answered, "I have spoken during the week and have named no church in judgment. If I failed every night for a year I would not." As we reached the final of this catechism, I could see as well as be that an outside party, our good "Campbellite" was engaged in gathering from the congregation help to defray the expense of the meeting. The minister exclaimed: "As you acknowledged that Presbyterians are a church you can continue to use the house." I went right to the stand and stated that "Through the courtesy of the minister, I would have meeting on Monday night."

As I am due at Central Point next Sunday, December 13th, and at Sacramento the 20th, my meeting must close near the close of the week, unless this meeting should unintentionally crowd my other work.

W. L. SKEELS.

When death, the great reconciler, comes, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity.

The man who saved his sandwiches and took them back to be refilled, was a prince of generosity beside the man who voted to put a saloon in the town for the sake of the revenue.

High license does not lessen the number of open saloons. It does not lessen the drinks or the curse, but really increases them. It is a whiskey devil in temperance garb.—H W. Hardy.

No matter how high money may be for legitimate purposes, there always seems to be plenty of it for wrongful indulgence. The stream of men into the saloons keeps steadily up.—Pittsburg Christian.

He hath not dealt with us after our sins, nor rewarded us according to our iniquities. For as the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him. As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. Psa. ciii: 10 12.

"Our neighbor," says Dean Stanley, "is every one with whom we are brought in contact." First our family; then our companions, acquaintances, townspeople: then the stranger—they are all neighbors, in Christ's sense of the word To love our neighbor as ourselves is not an abstract command; it is a pratical, every day business, never ceasing for an hour.

Our offer of the next two months for 10 cents is meeting with response in some directions. Will all make a little effort and put our paper in several thousand new homes.

The Sunday School teacher will of course understand that questions on a Review are only suggestive. He can elaborate where the desires and needs of the class demands it.

No man lives wholly to himself—every one has a duty to his fellowmen.

David, the father, yearned for Absalom. Absalom, the son, never returned the affection.

A pertinent question. "Is the young man safe?"

If we are in the wrong path God is not to blame; it is a fault of our own.

Solomon was assured of success if he gave God a whole-hearted service, and that is the measure of success in this day.

Solomon failed because of a selfish heart. He lacked self-sacrifice.

...Yes; all that de... ...on of God. ...Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." Their inspired writers have recorded several times that they heard a voice from heaven, "saying, this is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." That was surely not Joseph. Again, the unclean spirits knew he was the Son of God. We could go on multiplying evidence but it is useless, as the Scriptures call him the Son of God, forty times; and they represent God as speaking and calling Christ his Son over twenty times. Nowhere in the Scriptures do inspired writers record Christ as saying that Joseph was his father; but he acknowledged Mary as his mother. "It is impossible for those who were once enlightened and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good Word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame." Heb. vi. 4-6.

What class does this? All those that deny God the power to bring forth a Son from the Virgin Mary. Christ himself said that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham. Matt. iii. 9. If God was able to create a full grown man out of the dust of the ground, why deny the power of the Holy Spirit and commit the unpardonable sin? "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?" Acts xxvi. 8. No more so than the thought that he raised his Son of the Virgin Mary.

Yours, in hope.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

At your request I write you a few lines in regard to Brother Joblin's prayers. I am surprised to learn that any brother or sister of the One Faith should object to the printing of these prayers, as is being done. For myself, I enjoy the perusal of them very much. He was a deep thinker and a good writer, and I have always enjoyed his writings very much. We first met him at his Church in Cleveland, and again at the first Conference at Salem, Ohio. We became pretty well acquainted, both being of the same age, and both afflicted with asthma. I enjoyed our chats very much.

Oh how I wanted to attend the last Conference held at Salem, but the health of myself and wife would not permit it. I am isolated from all of like precious faith, none nearer than Cleveland or Barberton. My health will not permit me to visit them very often, so all the preaching I have is my Bible and THE RESTITUTION. Continue to print those prayers, and oblige a brother that believes it is right to pray to God in the spirit and in the truth.

Hastily from a brother waiting for the kingdom, and may God bless you and prosper your work in the truth.

J. M. THORP.

Brother Huggins:

Your call for an expression regarding "Ebenezer," prompts me to encourage you in your good work. There can be no mistake that the Scriptures teach the propriety of some public prayer. Most of all the communion of spirit with God from a mind ever responsive to his will; then the closet next in importance, then in a gathering of the brethren, but also before even a world of sinners.

Our brethren need to exercise good sense and judgment, lest we be fanatical, and forbearance lest we condemn ourselves while we censure others. My prayer is for our enlightenment, and a close union in fraternal love.

I am returning from an absence at Moriah, Illinois, and some preaching in Iowa, and so have stopped to edify the brethren here over Sunday. Have had good meetings at all places. Two young men were baptized at Sac City, Iowa, by Brother Allard.

May he who hears prayer grant you according to your own heart, and fulfill all you petitions. How I would like to see you.

Yours in the same old way.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

Brother Huggins:

I was sorry to see the rebuke you received on account of Brother Joblin's prayers. We think they are beautiful. He always appealed to me as a brother who could pray in secret—one that knew God. We look every week for his prayer, and would be very sorry to miss it. I did not know Brother Joblin personally, but I feel in him a brother beloved. I like public prayer. To my mind it is the most vital part of Divine service. There are plenty who can preach, but they never seem able to pray.

I fail to see anything that savors of Romanism. It is short, and worded beautifully, and makes me feel I want to be better. The reply you made was splendid—we would not have had that from you only for the critic. I enjoyed reading your answer very much; it was helpful to me. I am sure you would not put anything in our paper that would tend to Romanism. It is most helpful in its teachings.

Our dear Brother Ramsay is now gone. He was a brother that could pray like Brother Joblin. His petitions bore you on the wings of faith and hope, until God became very real and precious. God give us more real prayers and less vain repetitions.

Hoping that many will write and cheer you and thank for the good you are trying to do, and hoping to see the prayers still on your page to help and strengthen our faith, we remain,

Yours in hope of eternal life.

When I Behold Thy Heavens.

It seems to me that the mental element most sadly lacking in the modern generation is that of wonder. The modern youth growing up, surrounded by the rush of the trolly and the bellow of the automobile, is so much "on the jump" in the hustle that his whole mind is cramped in the near and the narrow with the roar and the glare and he wonders at nothing.

The hustle and the rush has even invaded the back-woods. The antiquated yokel is rapidly becoming extinct; the country lad at his best entails spurts to the county-seat high school, trying to keep up with the times and so much has to be learned! Yet, methinks, that wonder is one of the elements that is essential to give that mental repose and intellectual poise, necessary for a broad view of things—all kinds of things—the things that have been—the things that are—the things that will be. Wonder is the basis of inquiry, the reaching backward to think out the why and the wherefore, the individual attempt to grasp or at least to feel for the universal, the finite attempting to conceive the infinite, to come in sympathy with the eternal. Wonder associates with imagination and is related to it as analyses to synthesis. Wonder lends the enquiry, imagination attempts to frame the results together in some sort of a unity.

In the matter of religion, wonder is a first principle, in fact religion is the highest development of pure wonder, the highest reaching out of humanity toward the accounting for our environment in creation as a universal display of an intelligence—a unit of intelligence that distinctly resembles our own, but on a scale so inconceivably magnificent, yet holding us in sympathy. So wonder becomes the mother of Adoration. "When I behold thy heavens" is the germinating thought of the Psalmist. There is such a heightening and broadening in the calm contemplation of the magnificent handiwork of the Creator, "Our Father who art in heaven."

J. F. GELLATLY.

Sister Williams:

How are you this morning? Well, I hope. No doubt you have been looking for a response to your letter, which I received in good time. How much I would enjoy being with you this morning and go with you to Church. Don't you think we would enjoy it? I know I would very much.

But I must tell you that two weeks ago today we had services in our parlors in the morning, and at John's at night. Brother and Sister Oliver and Brother and Sister Reed visited with us a few days, and we enjoyed it so much. Brother Oliver preached so good. He is a deep thinker, studies much, and advanced some ideas for us to study upon. Much of our visiting was on Bible topics, and concerning the future, which all should be interested in, and see that no one take our crown. I enjoy reading and studying my Bible so much this fall, it seems more than usual. In fact I just get hungry to sit down and study. I am reading the Acts of the Apostles for the second time recently, and when one is led by the Spirit it certainly raises us to a higher plane of life, and prompts to look forward with expectant joy for the return of the Nobleman who has gone into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return, invested with power from the Father in heaven to rule and reign on the earth until he has put down all rule, all power, all authority and all are subjected to his righteous reign.

Let us keep this in view, and pray the Father to keep us from falling, as it will be a glorious time if you and I are among the called out ones, to meet the Lord in the air, when the cry comes to the saints, Behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him. Yes, dear Sister, that will be a time of rejoicing when we shall go forth clad in immortality, with the promise of everlasting life. As John the Revelator says, There shall be no more sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain. Oh blessed thought! Therefore look up, lift up your head, for redemption draweth nigh, and we will no more be tempted as now because the flesh is weak. We will then have been born of the Spirit, and be spiritual beings with Christ as our head. All our troubles in this life are but for a short time, but joy cometh in the morning.

Let us be like Paul, and know that here we have no abiding city, but look for one to come, whose builder and maker is God—that great city which Jesus has gone to prepare with many mansions bright and glorious; yes a city that needs not the light of the sun, for the Lamb shall be the light thereof. This city is represented as having the glory of God, and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal, and was pure gold, like unto clear glass. This is not a home for those who work abominations or maketh a lie, but they who have their names written in the Lamb's book of life.

Can our feeble minds make attempt to know what the glories of that occasion will be to those who are overcomers. Jesus himself says, He that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, as I have overcome and am set down with my Father in his throne. There is so much to think of along these lines that we should not find much time to worry over the cares of this life, yet such is life now. Whom God loveth he chasteneth, and bringeth us out as gold tried in a furnace. Let us be careful that we may be among the number that shall inherit all things with one Head, in Jesus, when he comes is my prayer.

Your sister in the Blessed Hope.

ELIZA A. RAMS.

[The foregoing is a private letter written to Sister Williams of Los Angeles, California, and by her sent for publication, hoping it will encourage others as it did her to press forward in the study of God's Word and so be fitted to reign with our exalted Lord when he comes and sets up his kingdom.—ED.]

Dear Restitution:

I see that my subscription is past due so I will inclose $1 50 for renewal. Our little band here in Blair, Neb., is lively and are trying to serve the Lord more than we ever have before, realizing that the time is short in which to work. We sisters have organized a sewing circle and meet once a week, and have the money for any emergency that may come up. We also have Bible school every Sunday so we are trying to keep alive. We have preaching once in awhile by Elder Adams. Closing with best wishes for the household of faith and for THE RESTITUTION.

MRS. LIZZIE JOHNSON.

Editor Restitution:

You are so kind as to send me the dear old paper just the same that I cannot find words to thank you, but the dear Lord will remember you for it. Enclosed find $1 50, and when I get the money will try to do more for the good paper.

Yours in the love of Christ.

MRS. H. E. PARMORE.

Brother Underwood,

I thank you for the grand old paper as free to me. It has been of great value to me in proclaiming the good news to a dying world. I am in Pittsburg, Kansas, 78 years old, wife 72 and quite feeble. I have three neighbors who said they would take it two months on trial.

C. W. HENDON.

Where Are the Nine?

The Savior performed a miracle for the good of the lepers. Astonished that but one returned to give glory to God, he asked, "Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?"

One of the noblest traits of the soul is gratitude—the spontaneous response of the beneficiary to the benefactor. It touches the highest qualities of one's being.

Jesus knew the value of expression. He would have us not only cultivate the habit of being grateful, but make it practical by expression. Express gratitude to man in thought, word, deed; to God in song, prayer, service.

The most certain expression of gratitude is in service—the patriot for his country, the servant for his master, the Christian for his Savior. Limiting to a Christian meaning, the highest possible expression of gratitude is in service, which is not the rendering of duty or obligation, but the outflow of a liberated soul finding the natural channel for the expression of gratitude to God for his benefits and blessings.—Kirbey McChesney.

The Real Touchstone.

The highest achievement of charity is to love our enemies; but to bear cheerfully with our neighbor's failings is scarcely an inferior grace. It is easy enough to love those who are agreeable and obliging—what fly is not attracted by sugar or honey? But to love one who is cross, perverse, tiresome, is not pleasant. Nevertheless, this is the real touchstone of brotherly love. The best way of practising it is to put ourselves in the place of him who tries us, and to see how we would wish him to treat us if we had his defects. We must put ourselves in the place of the buyer when we sell, and the seller when we buy, if we want to deal fairly.—Francis de Sales.

God's Love; Not Ours.

When the physician says, "Go out of doors, live in the sunshine," we know what he means. We have not to create the sunshine, we have only to step out into it; it is already here with its beauty and warmth, and we have only to let it do its life giving work. But when the Great Physician bids us live in his love, we somehow feel that the love is some flame we are to kindle in our own hearts and keep burning, and we are filled with anxious watchfulness.

It is his love—the great comforting, warming sunlight—in which we are to live without doubt or fear. It is not of our making, it is beyond our measuring or quenching. It is here now, flooding the world around us, and we have only to open our hearts and lives to its joy, instead of turning our steps into the shadows.—Scottish Reformer.

Danger of Riches.

The danger and deceitful influences of riches, their tendency to draw our thoughts away from another world, and drown such concern for the soul as providences or preachers may have awakened, in the cup of pleasure, is awfully expressed in the saying of the Lord: "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." Dr. Johnson put the point well when, on Garrick showing him his beautiful mansion and grounds, the great man and moralist laid his hand gently on the player's shoulder, and said, "Ah, David, David, these are the things that make a death-bed terrible!"—Guthrie.

Higher Criticism.

No truer words were ever uttered than the following from the well known Baptist minister, George Lorimer: "The so-called higher criticism tends inevitably, whether its teachers realize the fact or not, to absolute rationalism and the discrediting of inspiration. If dates are erroneous, if scientific statements are wrong, if historical representations are misleading, if Jesus only fell in with popular views when he seemed to attribute the Pentateuch to Moses, is it possible to believe that the Almighty had much to do with the preparation of such a book?"

If you want to stand in with the sinners of to-day, occupy yourself in jumping on those of yesterday.

Those are the best Christians who are more careful to reform themselves than to censure others.—Fuller.

God presents us with many mercies we never brought him for, that our praises may exceed our prayers.—John Trapp.

Obituary.

Miss Flossie Winifred Logan was born in Lapaz, Indiana, March 14, 1887, and died Monday, November 30, 1908, aged 21 years, 8 months and 16 days. In the spring of 1903 she came to Williston, North Dakota, with her parents. She was graduated from the High School here in the spring of 1906, and on account of failing health she returned to Indiana the following fall. She remained there one year, and underwent an operation in the Epworth Hospital at South Bend. She did not regain her health, so returned to Williston in August of 1907.

September 5, 1908, she underwent a second operation in the Williston Hospital. She was then taken to the home of her parents, where she remained a patient sufferer to the end.

She was a member of the Church of God. The funeral sermon was preached by Mr. Christian, at her home, from John xi 25, 26. Her remains were laid to rest in the Williston cemetery.

Her pleasant winning disposition made her many friends, who with her parents, brothers and sisters mourn her untimely death, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope.

The foregoing is taken from the Williston Herald. Sister Flossie Logan was immersed by Brother J. L. Wiese at the North Salem Church near this city during her last visit to the home of her childhood, and was by her request formally taken into the Plymouth Church, and her name recorded in the roll of members here. Her young life is ended, but the prospect is that soon the Life-Giver will come, and she will be given a life that will not end, when sickness and suffering will never come. We long for the glad day to come, and admonish all to be ready, for in an hour when ye think not He will come. May God bless the bereaved family, is our earnest prayer.

Peter Franklin Sullivan was born August 26, A. D. 1826, in Davidson County, North Carolina, being one of a family of nine children, six boys and three girls.

Mr. Sullivan moved to the state of Indiana in the year of 1850 and was married to Lydia M. Thrift, November 12th 1856. To this union was born ten children, eight sons and two daughters.

In the year 1867 he moved with his family to Lawrence County, Missouri, and in 1885 moved to the state of Kansas. Moved from Kansas near to Ashley, Oklahoma in the year 1904, the place of his home at the time of his death—the 15th day of November 1908. He leaves a wife, ten children, twenty-three grand-children, three brothers, one sister and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

He had been a great Bible student for over thirty years, united with the Church of God and was baptized in October, 1907.

He was 82 years, 2 months, and 10 days old at the time of his death. The funeral was held at Hazelton, Kansas, on November 16th.

The writer tried to speak words of comfort to the bereaved and a number of sympathizing friends, showing from the Sacred Scripture that there will be a reliving of the dead, and then there will be no more sorrow or death—all tears will be wiped from our eyes—there will be no more pain or suffering.

So another one has fallen and is now sleeping in his silent resting place in the dust to await the coming of Him who said "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold, I am alive forevermore, and have the keys of hell and of death."

The writer became acquainted with Brother Sullivan in the spring of 1872 and has been intimately acquainted with him ever since, and has known him to be a kind husband and a loving father, a good neighbor and a good citizen, strictly upright in all his business transactions.

He first heard the truth as taught by the Church of God through the preaching of Brother A. F. Barvis, James Butt, and the writer, and embraced it as being true, but never became obedient to it until a little over a year ago, when the writer buried him in the watery grave, and we trust that he rose to walk in a new life. He was at that time in very poor health and gradually failed until he fell asleep we trust, in Christ.

We sorrow not as those that have no hope for we believe that when Jesus comes he will live again in that world where sorrow and sickness never come.

Obituary.

Martha W. Huffman died at Boeworth, Missouri, of that dreadful disease cancer. Her maiden name was Martha W. Yaunhu, and she was born October 22, 1838, was married to Samuel Huffman March 29, 1855, and fell asleep in Jesus November 30, 1908.

To them were born twelve children, nine of whom survive their mother—Bettie Willeford, Lefe Folts, Laura Kirker, Ruth Taggart, Lucy B Groat David, George, William and James Huffman. All were at the funeral except David and Lucy. The funeral was conducted by writer. It was a large funeral, as she was one among the old pioneers of Missouri. She saw a great deal of hardship during the rebellion while Brother Huffman was away helping to protect the union.

Forty years ago she with her husband and some others, was baptized by our beloved Brother Benjamin Wilson. She had previously baptized by the Campbellites, now called by the name of Christian, but when she heard the gospel of the kingdom as preached, she found herself out of Christ, and was baptised into the all-saving name of Jesus Christ. She lived a devoted Christian life until her last breath, and now sleeps in Jesus. She leaves a dear lovely husband 76 years of age, nine children, thirty-two grand children, and eleven great grand children, and one brother. The church has lost one of its best posted members. However we all feel to rejoice that her suffering time is now over.

John said in Rev. xiv. 13, "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, write, Blessed are they which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." Yes, dear children, your mother is done with her suffering, she is asleep in Jesus, from which none ever wake to weep. She is now silent, and knows nothing that now passes. Her "sons may come to honor, and she knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but she perceiveth it not of them." Read Job xvii. 13-16; Col. iii. 4; 1 Cor. xiii. 12; Job xix. 23-27; Psalms xc. 10; Job xiv. 1; James iv. 14.

I have been acquainted with Brother and Sister Huffman for some fourteen years, and have preached at their School house for them. They were always at the post of duty, though they lived four miles away. They were readers of THE RESTITUTION ever since they embraced the faith.

Now to the dear children and all, let us take warning by this, and consider, for we know not who will be the next to go.

Yours in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

JOHN FOORE.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works. And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Goodrich Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map, which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Wilson has fortunately become possessed of a limited number of copies, and will dispose of them at 40 cents each. In view of the important changes that are to take place so long in the countries adjacent to Russia, this book is a valuable aid to the earnest watcher of the signs. Secure one before the supply is exhausted. The book contains what is called "The Will of Peter the Great," which we have been asked recently to print, but have delayed for want of space. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scriptures, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Christmas.

At Christmas tide, O, be thou tender, true;
Thy friends make glad, and all thy foes forgive;
With its sweet light begin to live anew,
Ungrudging give, and giving, much receive.

Make thy glad life grow large, thy soul expand;
Let there be one full day within the year
When love shall open wide thy waiting hand,
To keep a want and dry some bitter tear.

Give wisely, freely, of thy bounty give.
And, most of all, do not forget, give love,
Since giving is the truest way to live,
And richest treasure laying up above.

Make glad thy home let sunshine reign within
Bless every heartstone with thy largess fair;
Share with pale want thine overflowing bin,
By kindness save some brother from despair.

Be saviors, O, my brethren, every one;
Let the true Christ in your own soul be born;
Thus thou can't be God's well-beloved son,
And make each dawn a joyous Christmas morn.

Selections.

The Character of Christ.

Character was first associated with the art of engraving, the term denoting the mark or sign made by the engraver on wood. The Scriptures corroborate this conclusion, for, in Acts xvii: 29, the expression "graven" represents the sense of our word character, and, in the Apocalyptic phrase, "the mark of the beast," the same sense is to be discerned. Hence, as applied to man, character is a distinguishing mark or sign by, which he is distinguished or discriminated from his fellows. In fine, it is that which constitutes individuality. Thus, Abraham was characterised by his faith, Moses by his meekness, Job by his patience, Joshua by his courage and promptitude in executing the divine commands, the prophets by their holy zeal. These spiritual qualities were the imprint of the divine stylus on those eminent men—the Father's name written on their forehead—and as such constituted their character.

Notwithstanding, in the popular sense of the term, strictly speaking, Jesus had no character. For who shall say that Jesus' distinctive characteristic was love or meekness, goodness or truth, zeal or devotion, long-suffering or faith? Rather is it not the case that all these fruits of the Spirit were present in His character in due proportion or harmonious combination? That, as colours are found in sunlight, even so the excellences, moral and spiritual, of the Father of Lights are found in the Sun of Righteousness, who, therefore, is appropriately designated the "effulgence of His glory, and the express image of His substance" (Heb. i: 3; R. V.) Such a character as the embodiment, not of a partial, but of a perfect righteousness, is necessarily without rival or equal among the sons of men, and stands alone in a lofty pre eminence. "As one approaching Zermatt by the valley of St. Nicholas is surprised and awed by the unique and lofty grandeur of the Matterhorn cleaving the bl tegull of heaven," even so the student of biography must bow in reverence before the unparalled greatness of Jesus. A full delineation of such a character is, from the nature of the case, impossible. We might as well try to paint the sun as portray Jesus in His glorious perfection.

Nevertheless, with open face beholding, as in a glass; the glory of the Lord, let us try to discern a few of His lineaments. Jesus is perfect wisdom. Alike in childhood, youth, and manhood, error is unknown to Him. He retracts nothing; He corrects nothing. His works and ways are perfect. His compassion never degenerates into indulgence; His sympathy into softness. His zeal never outruns His discretion, nor does His meekness descend to servility. Neither in word nor work is Jesus susceptible of improvement. Wisdom in such full-orbed completness has been seen in none but Him.

Again, what dignity is associated with the meekness of Jesus! As I have said, His was not the craven spirit, for, although He was more homeless than the foxes, and the fowls of heaven, yet He walked upon the earth with a consciousness of His unique preeminence.

Said He, "I am the light of the world, he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness." "I am a king; for that end have I come into the world, that I may testify to the truth." How majestic are these words! How all human dignity fades when confronted with the greatness they disclose! Once more. Behold the union of small and great things in Jesus' character. He not only walks the high path of miraculous power; not only performs great and shining acts of mercy; not only speaks words such as no man spake; but He condescends to a life of self-effacement and sacrifice. Perhaps this feature is His singular charm. This great One—destined, as He Himself knew, to receive the homage of the whole earth—yet stoops to wash His disciples' feet. This mighty One, whose mind is so competent to grasp the great plan of the ages, yet condescends to take little children in His arms, and bless them. This mighty One—destined to be earth's universal Sovereign Lord, yet lives as the poorest of the poor, having nowhere to lay His head. He who, of all the race, because of His sinlessness, was worthy to enter the presence of the Eternal Father, humbles Himself to be the friend of publicans and sinners.

Besides, He is patient under every form of suffering. Hunger and thirst, the infidelity of friends, and the malignity of foes extorted from Him no murmur or complaint, whilst in pity and love He raised up the bruised reed, and fanned into flame the smoking flax; and finally suffered the shame and agony of the Cross (also as a propitiation for sin—Rom. iii: 25) rather than turn from the divinely appointed path of love and duty. Surely such a character is the pattern of all obedience, the model of all self sacrifice, and the perfection of loveliness.

Finally, the character of Jesus, in its comprehensiveness, overstepps the barriers of nationality or of race. All other characters have a national or local stamp. Moses we associate with the nation whose constitution he framed and established: whilst David and Solomon, in like manner, are characteristically Israelitish. But Jesus cannot be compressed within limits so narrow. Undoubtedly, Jesus was a Jew, and loved his nation and land. But while a national benefactor in the highest sense of the word, yet the streams of His beneficence flowed to people of every colour and clime. Thus the conditions and spirit of Jewish society do not explain Him. The truths He enunciated, the faith He taught, were not found in the schools of the Rabbis. Pharisee and Sadducee alike disowned Him.

The truth is, Jesus' character had no human model, inasmuch as perfection could not come from imperfection. Jesus' character, therefore, must have been framed on that of His Divine Father, whose revelation He was, and is. Hence, Jesus and the Father are one. Beholding Christ, we behold the Father, as it is written: "He that hath seen Me, hath seen the Father." Thus, what mere language could not accomplish, has been achieved by Jesus, viz., a living, adequate manifestation of the Eternal God.

For this reason Jesus spoke not to one nation, but to all nations; He lived not for one people, but for all people; and His perfection anticipates all progress. Higher than Him the race cannot rise. In Him, therefore, must be found the true philosophy of life. All life's mysteries must be, and are, solved in Him, who is the Revealer of God. Jesus' sinlessness solves the problem of moral evil; and His immortality the mystery of death; whilst His perfect wisdom and invincible power are the panacea for the miseries, the oppression, and tyranny under which men have so long groaned. Thus, in the truest sense, Jesus is the world's hope. Its every need is met in Him. To His sinlessness it shall yet rise; of His divine nature it shall yet partake. How great, beyond all greatness, is this work in its benevolence, its universality and spiritual grandeur! Well may He be called "Wonderful." Once a babe, now the Saviour of a multitude no man can number; once treated as a felon, now the Monarch of nations, and Lord of the armies of the heavens. Then—behold! The Lamb! Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world!" Behold:

"Heaven and earth with all their regions
At His supernatural presence fall;
Heaven and earth with all their legions
Crown Emmanuel Lord of all."

The Mother of Marcia.

There are no few opportunities for doing good in a small place," thought Marcia, discontentedly. "I wonder if my life is going to be one terrible and confined as mother's has been. I don't see how she stands it. One longs so to do the big things of life, the things that count. Oh, dear, I suppose I must go to work and make those beds. If there's anything I hate to do, it is to make beds. How I'd like to really be somebody. Some one like Florence Nightingale or Elizabeth Barrett Browning or Frances Willard. Some one who could help humanity a little and lift them up."

Below, Mrs. Judkins was washing in the kitchen. She had only scantily breakfast, and had walked over a mile hurriedly so as to be at her place on time.

A few minutes later, Marcia went down to the kitchen. Mother was skimming off the edges of a large pie. Mrs. Judkins was out hanging on the clothes.

"What! making a pie Mo[illegible]ing?" exclaimed Marcia.

"Yes," smiled mother. "I thought to get Mrs. Judkins a piece extra for dinner, and comes so [illegible]

Marcia did not [illegible] went into the cool, [illegible] pile up her music, she said [illegible]

"Isn't mother foolish [illegible] to see myself make a lemon pie a hot morning like this for a washwoman."

But at noon, Mrs. Judkins saw the tempting meal, her tired eyes brightened. Good steak nicely broiled, mashed potatoes, fragrant coffee with cream and the lemon pie. And after it was over, she went back to her washing refreshed and strengthened.

Marcia heard her singing over her suds as she cleared away the dishes.

"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in his excellent word.
What more can he say than to you he hath said,
To you who for refuge to Jesus have fled?"

A second after that, the bell rang. Mother answered it. A moment later, she came to the table, poured out a glass of milk and went to the door again.

When she came back into the room, she had a magazine in her hand with the empty glass.

"What is that?" demanded Marcia.

"Oh, a poor fellow out of health was at the door trying to sell a few magazines. I thought it might help a little."

"So that was who the milk was for," thought Marcia.

A few minutes later, Marcia, who had gone upstairs, heard the bell again.

"I wonder if it's Florence," she thought. Florence was her best friend.

She went to the head of the stairway and peeped over, but it wasn't Florence at all. A shabby, faded looking young woman was standing in the door.

"No," mother was explaining, "I can't buy the lace, but you do look so weary. My coffee is still hot. Just take that chair and I'll bring you a cup."

The young woman sank into a chair. There were quick tears in her eyes.

"I am tired. Nobody has bought anything or said a kind word to me to-day. I had almost lost faith in everything and everybody."

Mother came back in just a moment with a cup of good, hot, coffee, a warm roll and sugar and cream.

The young woman drank every drop of the coffee, and ate the roll, too.

"Thank you," she said gratefully. "You don't know what you've done for me. My husband is sick, and I've two little children. It's an old story, but a true one."

"I don't doubt it," said mother, quietly. "You have a good face, but don't forget to trust in God, and remember it's a long lane that has no turning. Take this quarter; I wish it were more."

Marcia went back.

"If that isn't just like mother," she thought.

An hour after that, a man with only one leg hobbled in at the gate.

"Got any pots or pans that need fixing, ma'am?" he said. "My luck is a dull day."

Mother looked sympathetic. The worn face was haggard. His clothes were dusty and patched.

"Yes, my favorite saucepan has sprung a leak, and the handle is off my teakettle. I'll get them."

The next moment, the man was busily at work, whistling. Somehow the pleasant meal, the kind words had changed the atmosphere of this dull day. Life wasn't so hard after all.

He went away out of the gate when his task was done, with the change mother gave him rattling in his pocket, and eating a tempting doughnut.

Marcia saw him.

"Did you give him that doughnut, mother?" Marcia asked.

"Yes," was the reply. "He looked discouraged, poor man."

And then Marcia, the girl who hoped she wouldn't have a life so narrow and confined as her mother's, who wanted to do larger things, went away to ponder whether or not mother's life was so narrow after all. Perhaps she had been mistaken, and there was a satisfaction, aye, and a reward, too, [illegible] Anyhow mother was always happy. Well, she would try and be more contented anyway, and do her work better.

And if she had only known it, mother, whose life she had characterized, only that morning, as being narrow, small, obscure, unbeautiful, was remembered in four prayers that night by four different people for what she had done for them that day—Mrs. Judkins the washerwoman, the sick boy with the magazine, the young woman with the lace, and the man who had mended the saucepan.

And, somehow, from that day, Marcia ceased her complaints, catching a larger vision of what one may do, without the environment, without the opportunity, without the fame she had longed for, just by being kind.—Susan Hubbard Martin.

Who Is the True Gentleman?

"I beg your pardon," and with a smile and a touch of his hat, Harry Edmond handed to an old man against whom he accidently stumbled, the cane which he had knocked from his hand. "I hope I did not hurt you. We were playing too roughly."

"Not a bit!" said the old man, cheerily. "Boys will be boys, and it's best they should be. You didn't harm me."

"I'm glad to hear it;" and lifting his hat again, Harry turned to join his playmates, with whom he had been frolicking at the time of the accident.

"What do you raise your hat to that old fellow for?" asked his companion, Charles Gray. "He's only Giles, the huckster."

"That makes no difference," said Harry. "The question is not whether he is a gentleman, but whether I am one."

Whatever is done by those around you, be yourself fully determined to walk in the most excellent way.—Wesley.

The Revelation of Jesus Christ.

It is a drama of seven acts, each act revealing Jesus Christ in a distinct character and aspect. This drama was seen and recorded by John who received it from an angel, who received it from Jesus Christ, who received it from God its Author. Its purpose and structure seems to be to reveal Jesus Christ to his servants, also the things which must shortly come to pass. The acts are topical rather than consecutive. In each act Christ is the hero, and is shown in a special character or office, and with him the persons, places and events belonging to the character and topic under consideration. Almost every character and scene in this revelation are foreshadowed in type and prophecy in the Old Testament, and are here shown and learned, focused and magnified with divine ingenuity.

The reader is presumed to be familiar with the Old Testament histories, characters and predictions, and indeed he must be if he succeeds in reading the words of this prophecy, and hence a quoted name or phrase is deemed sufficient to direct the earnest seeker into instructive and far reaching vistas of types and prophecies. He who reads this unveiling will be blessed with a larger view and fuller appreciation of Christ.

It is the best commentary on what has been written concerning him. It is the Christian's armory of truth. The Apocalypse, viewed simply as literature, is above all others. After blessing him who reads and hears, and invoking grace and peace on the churches, John introduces and outlines the theme of the drama.

The faithful witness, the first, begotten of the dead, the Prince of the kings of the earth. Him that loveth us washed us from our sins in his blood, made us kings and priests unto God and his Father. To him be glory and dominion forever. Amen. Behold he cometh. I am the alpha and omega.

The things that are. Consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ is revealed as the High Priest walking in the midst of the churches, he rebukes, exhorts, praises, encourages, threatens and promises. The overcomers are promised the things lost by the fall, in the order of their loss. As the churches fall lower the promises rise higher, till the climax, "shall sit with me in my throne."

In chapter 1, Christ's relation to the churches is shown; in chapters 2 and 3, the condition of the churches as seen by him. In Thyatira Jezebel appears, a born idolater, lawless, unholy. It harks back to an old tragedy in the backsliding kingdom of Israel, in which many typical characters figure, whose antitypes now come upon the stage, Ahab, Jezebel, Naboth, Elijah, Martyrs, Jehoram, Jehu, all typical of this condition and time of political tyranny and bloody persecution, so the reward of loyalty to God is "power over the nations," and the morning star.

Gold Nuggets.

In the sweet spiritual kinship of love the Eternal One is our Father, the only Begotten is our elder Brother; as workmen we are all the servants of our elder Brother—all "bought with a price."

The servant must not judge the field and become indolent over what he may condemn as sterile soil.

Plow deep "by the wayside." The busy tread of wickedness has baked and deadened the soil. Let the plowshare of contrition cut deeper. There may be moisture and rich productiveness below the hardened crust.

Plow deep at "stony places." The bacteria of God's love may find responsive productiveness if the stony heart be broken up to the showers of his grace, and to the invigorating sun of his salvation.

Plow deep where the ground has produced thorns and burn them. There may be a harvest here for the Master! Even here where vice and wickedness once flourished.

Plow deep where the "soil is good." A hundred fold will be gathered if the rootlets of the Word find a deep abiding place.

Servants must sow the Word of the kingdom abundantly. Every seed will bring its own kind.

If a plant grows crooked, make no haste to "chop it out," but with careful hands and loving heart train it up! Stake it up straight with stakes of love and faith! Water it with thy tears! It cost the tears and the blood of God's own Son.

If the willing seat of persecution and anger, shade the tender plants by the shadow of his love! and may the evening dew revive them!

Servants must guard against all storms of contention in the field. He that sows the wind must reap the whirlwind.

Cultivate the field with careful diligence!

"Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and all evil speaking be put away from you with all malice." Eph iv 31. In humility dig it up with its first germination "lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you and thereby many be defiled." Heb xii 15.

"One may plant and another water but God giveth the increase." Trust God.

Random Thoughts.

The rich man and Lazarus must be a parable. At any rate it is certainly mostly figurative language. Parable or not, our Lord speaks nothing that is not consistent with facts. The inference is clear that Lazarus arose from the dead. Luke xvii 30, 31 "as Lazarus among the [illegible] spoken of, neither party speaks of him as going while dead, but going from the dead, or as "One risen from the dead."

This agrees strictly with Paul's teachings. "If the dead rise not," preaching and hope are all in vain. If the righteous man must rise from the dead to resume life's activities, can the rich man get around God's laws of life, death, resurrection and judgment? Therefore when death and hell (grave) delivers up the dead which are in them (Rev xx 13), will the rich man be an exception? I suppose he would be classed with the unjust or evil, therefore would come forth in that class. John v 28, 29. If death had not delivered up this rich man, it would be inconsistent for Abraham to say, "You remember," when the Scriptures say, "In death there is no remembrance of thee." There is no love or hatred in the grave whither thou goest.

A good reason for his being cast into this flame, is because his name was not found written in the book of life. Rev xx 15.

No doubt this fire would devour the rich man just as it would its other victims. Rev xx 9.

The result would be just the same with the rich man as with other sinners. His final end, ashes under the feet of the righteous. Mal iv 1, 2, 3.

The rich man need not have given any thought to his wretched place, for God will leave no place in his glorious universe for the wicked, abominable and disobedient. His place will pass away with his own sinful existence. "For yet a little while and the wicked shall not be. Yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be." Psa xxxvii 10.

"Then will be brought to pass the saying that is written, O death, where is thy sting, O grave, where is thy victory."

The Restitution.

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Office Editor

Editorial Committee:
J. H. WILLEY,
W. D. THOMPSON,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, Dec. 23, 1908.

Brethren, subscriptions are not coming in to us as fast as they should just now. We really need money this moment. Our expenses are necessarily heavier at this season, and the past few months have not seen as much come to us as has in other like periods. Please hurry your renewals in brethren, and you who have a surplus, do not forget the Helping Fund that supplies the poor. This is falling back, and we simply cannot sustain it alone.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their names, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money sent in paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

We wish for all our subscribers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

We are sorry that Brother P. Nell's Sunday School Lesson Notes have so far failed to reach us.

Brother J. L. Wines was with the Plymouth Church last Sunday and gave us two excellent discourses, as he always does.

As this issue is the fourth one for this month, and there being five Wednesdays in December, this completes the year, and our next issue will bear date of January 6, 1909.

Sister Boice has favored us with a copy of her "Home Department Visitor," which is neat in appearance and full of good things for both old and young. She prepared copy for a page in this issue of The Restitution on Christmas subjects, but delayed till too late, as our paper was practically made up when it arrived.

For the information of interested ones, we want to say that we are informed that on Saturday, November 28, 1908, C. M. Myers, well known to many of our older brethren, died at his home in Atchison, Kansas, aged 70 years and 6 months. He was buried in Mt. Vernon Cemetery, Atchison, on Monday following, the services being conducted by A. J. Eychaner, W. L. Crowe and S. C. Oliver.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

Pine woods Bible Class.

The following questions have been sent to us from Lincoln, Neb., with this remark: "I am not settled about the resurrection and judgment. If not too much trouble, would like to have you explain these questions:

1st Will you please state when the judgment takes place? The Bible says we all have to stand before the judgment seat; and if the saints are raised immortal, when do they come before the judgment seat?"

2nd "Who are the portion judged worthy to suffer the second death?" I feel assured that the class will gladly comply with our correspondent's request. These are not difficult questions to settle. The Word of God needs only to be honestly stated without special twisting to force it to teach that which it does not teach. Now, Arlon, will you please give some straight Bible quotations, showing "when the judgment takes place?"

Arlon It will be a pleasure to do so, the Scripture being so explicit, as to time. I will first call attention to Acts x 42: "And he commanded us to preach to the people, and to testify that it is he (Christ) which was ordained of God to be the judge of (whom?) the quick and the dead."

Q Are the subjects of the judgment, all "quick" when they are judged?

A No, sir; that could not be, because the Scripture says, he judges the "dead," as well as the "quick."

Q Are "dead" people "quick"?

A No, sir: when the "dead," are made alive, what is their condition?

A They are "quick."

Q If all the subjects of the judgment who are "dead" are made alive, or "quick" before they are judged, where does the judgment of the "dead" come in?

A No where.

Q Well, then; if Jesus never judges the "dead," as this Scripture says he was "ordained" to do, what must we conclude?

A That the Holy Spirit made a grievous mistake when it put the statement on record, that Jesus "was ordained of God to be the judge of the quick and the dead."

Q Who do you think made a mistake?

A Man, in saying the "dead" are all made "quick" before they are judged.

Teacher Well, Lud, let us hear from you; please give a Scripture showing the exact time when both the quick and the dead are judged?

Lud See 2 Tim iv 1. "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom."

Here we find the time to be "at his appearing and kingdom," and the subjects of the judgment, are part of them "quick," and part of them "dead."

Teacher Now Ella, have you a Scripture in mind, which speaks of people being judged while they are yet dead?

Ella Yes, sir; I have. See Rev xi 18: "And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged."

Q Then some people are judged while they are dead, according to this Scripture?

A That is just what it says, and we must be honest enough to accept it, in preference to man's word, which says the dead must all be made "quick," before they are judged.

Q Can dead men give an oral account?

A No, sir.

Q Why not?

A Because the dead "know not anything."

Q Well, then; what kind of an account will be given?

A The Bible says: "The dead were judged out of those things which were written in books."

Teacher Does not the Bible say "that we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ?"

A It certainly does.

Q Is that the judgment to determine whether we are worthy of eternal life, or not?

A No, sir; that is determined at the judgment of the quick and the dead. Eternal life is not the reward of works but the "gift of God, through Jesus Christ," by faith and obedience. The reward comes by works, performed by the obedient; which reward will be given when we appear at the judgment seat of Christ, "to receive the things done in body." If a person has done poor work, his reward will be according to his work "whether good or bad."

1 Cor iii 13, 15, draws a picture of the judgment of rewards being at the judgment seat of Christ: "Every man's work is made manifest; (at this judgment) for the day shall declare it; because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. If a man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward. If a man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss; (done bad work) but he himself shall be saved (get eternal life); alone (without reward through faith and obedience) yet so as by fire."

Teacher The next question is: "Who are the portion judged worthy to suffer the second death?" I will ask George to give a Scripture answer to the above question?

George See Rev xx 14, 15: "And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This (lake of fire) is the second death, and whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." No name can appear in the "Book of Life," except by faith and obedience. This text speaks of the final judgment, at the close of the Millennial Age, and those not found written in the Book of Life, will experience the second death.

Our time has expired, so we must now adjourn for tonight.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.—No. 68.

Father had during the who'e course of his religious life been interested in prophetical themes. God had been preparing him to take part in the great and mighty cry that was to herald the approaching advent of His Son. This cry had started in the east and had moved to the west. Works on the subject had fallen into his hands and he had read and believed. The light had also found its way into his father's home, and into the home of his brother, who lived about two miles away. All had embraced it and were rejoicing in "the blessed hope." Father even before his ordination, was arming himself to the teeth for the attack on the cherished fables held by the church. Plainly dressed in coarse homespun, he like David went out on foot, with the dangerous missiles of truth in his sling, to meet and slay the boasting giant of Error.

Crossing pathless swamps, [illegible] blizzard, entering cold, he trav[illegible] a distance on foot that would nearly encircle the globe, so anxious was he to save his fellow men. In private houses, in barns, in school-houses, in groves and in churches, the solemn message of a soon-coming Savior, was sounded out. No such interest can be awakened now as was awakened then. The nights might be as dark as Egypt, and the mud deep and miry, but still the people came and listened as for eternity. I remember those nights, though I was only four years old; so dark so fearfully dark they were. My uncle had to carry me home, I could not see to walk. I also distinctly remember the crowded house, the awed faces of the people, and the conversation on the way home about the strange sights that had been seen in the heavens. Instinctively I turned my eyes to the east, expecting to see there the wonderful pillar of fire, of Israel's earlier days. But that warning cry has been almost forgotten. The houses of worship are deserted and crumbling to ruin, while thousands rush on the Lord's day to see a game of base-ball played, and the church sits down to feast with the arch-enemy of her Lord, forgetful that that same enemy is her most malignant foe; that she is "drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus," and that whoever takes a place at her table, is "eating and drinking with the drunken," and will be very likely to partake of her fornication and to share in her plagues.

About the time that father began preaching, or shortly afterward, we met and became acquainted with the dear Willard family, and both Auntie Willard and her husband were present at his ordination. Never was there a closer, more enduring friendship formed than that between my father's and grandfather's and the Willard families. It was akin to the friendships of heaven.

Brother and Sister Willard had also accepted the glad tidings of a soon-coming Kingdom, and all went on harmoniously for a time in the Strong Baptist Church at Oswego, to which they belonged, and to which father was preaching each month, nor does it appear that anything was said against the doctrine at other churches. The members of the Oswego church talked the matter over with each other, and asked from time to time, as they met at their homes, or in social meeting, "Can these things be so?" Many seemed to believe and no one dreamed that a division would come. But when the Ministerial Conference met at Oswego in Jan, 1843, and Elder Brown, the State Missionary, publicly denounced the doctrine, and others of the ministry hesitated or were indifferent, of course it had its influence in certain quarters. The Conference had made a protracted effort for the conversion of souls, but without much success. When this effort closed so eager were the masses to hear about the coming of Jesus, that father was asked to remain longer, that he might give a series of lectures on the evidences from the Word of God and the signs of the times of the Advent near. Auntie Willard says in her autobiography that "it was a perfect Caleb and Joshua defense in the face of unbelieving, modern Israel," that the King was about to return to inherit the land. These lectures were repeated through all that region, and many were called out to become a part of the elect bride of Christ.

A few mocked and talked of ascension robes, but the great majority of the people were too solemnly affected to trifle. The fearful signs that had been seen, and the great events they portended, were the absorbing topic of the people at home and abroad.

I do not know the exact date, but shortly after the removal of my parents to Indiana my mother discovered in reading the Bible for herself, that man is not immortal by nature, and that destruction and not eternal torment is the destiny of the wicked. It was an inexpressible relief to her, and in her joy she said to my father, "Steadman you will preach this doctrine yet," and so it proved. My mother loved the truth, and defended it with her latest breath. She had united with the Methodists, when but seventeen, but had strenously contended with the minister that immersion and not sprinkling was baptism, and refused to go forward unless she could be baptized. Reluctantly he consented, and buried her in accordance with the command of Jesus.

[illegible] learned this much from her study of the Bible, but was [illegible] in later life, that her [illegible] founded on faith [illegible]ield, and must [illegible] woman of pray[illegible] who came under her [illegible]ay. She was a true help[illegible] father, and greatly was [illegible]ined when she died.

Soon after mother had discovered that man in his present state is wholly mortal, father read "Dobney's Future Punishment" and George Storrs "Six Sermons," and was convinced that they had the truth on their side, and that immortality is a gift that God will bestow on the good, when they come up in the first resurrection.

An Elder Barnes was now preaching on alternate months at Oswego in connection with my father. He had taken sides with Brown, and was opposing the doctrine of the Advent. This made father's position a very difficult one, but still he dare not desert the post where God had placed him.

Brother J. B. Cook now appeared upon the scene, and mapped out before crowded houses God's wonderful plan, and the community was stirred as it had never been stirred before, but the church, as a church, following her leaders, rejected the Word of the Lord, and Auntie Willard, rising, testified that "as they had rejected the Lord so would He reject them," and passing out wrote "Ichabod" on the side post of the door, signifying that the glory of that church had departed, as indeed it had.

Elder Barnes declared that "the doctrine was false, that he could neither receive it, preach it, nor countenance it in any shape," and Auntie Willard retorted that "if that was the case, she must be excused from any longer sitting under his ministry." She believed it was the truth of God, and must go where it would be preached, and so the church was at last divided, and ties dearer than life were severed forever.

Auntie Wilcox.

The Lord is gracious and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy. The Lord is good to all and his tender mercies are over all his works.

I will govern my life and my thoughts as if the whole world were to see the one and to read the other; for what does it signify to make anything a secret to my neighbor, when to God all our privacies are open?

Christ's Return.

"Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." Matt. vi. 10.

In this prayer we are taught that the time will come when the will of God will be done in earth as it is in heaven. "When the Son of Man shall come in all his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory and before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." Matt. xxv. 31. 46 The result of which is the wicked of the nations will be destroyed, and to the righteous he will say, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

A better day is coming,
A morning promised long,
When gilded right with holy might,
Will overthrow the wrong.

When Christ the Lord will listen
To every plaintive sigh,
And stretch his hand o'er every land,
With justice by and by.

The boast of haughty error
No more will fill the air,
But age and youth will love the truth,
And spread it everywhere.

No more from want and sorrow
Will come the hopeless cry;
And strife will cease and perfect peace
Will flourish by and by.

Oh, for that holy dawning,
We watch and wait and pray.
Till o'er the height the morning light
Shall drive the gloom away.

And when the heavenly glory
Shall flood the earth and sky,
We'll bless the Lord for all his word,
And praise him by and by.

I ask you, dear Bereans, are you waiting and praying for the coming of him who is the resurrection and the life?

Emma Lindsay.

Mordecai.

When Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, carried away captives from Judah, as it had been prophesied that he would, he carried away one Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin whose home was in Jerusalem. Where this man was first taken or what his experiences were after his captivity is not known, but years after we find his great grandson, Mordecai, residing in the palace of King Ahasuerus, son of Cyrus, King of Persia.

In the first account of this Mordecai we find the love for the weak and helpless a strong trait in his character. His uncle's little daughter bereft of father and mother needed care and guidance, and Mordecai took the fair young cousin into his own household and supplied the father love and council as she ripened into attractive womanhood. From the story as it proceeds in the book of Esther it may be plainly seen that Esther as the maid was called was the light and joy of Mordecai's life.

When King Ahasuerus cast off Vashti and issued the decree by which all the fair young virgins were to be brought so that he might choose a new queen, Esther was brought among them. She found great favor both in the sight of Hegai and in the sight of the great King. Here again we find reflections of the character of Mordecai. Many of her pleasing qualities may have been due to natural sweetness of disposition and bearing, but the training which Mordecai had given her had undoubtedly performed its part in making her the splendid woman who is portrayed to us in the history of Esther.

Mordecai did not forget Esther as soon as she had left his care; but showed faithfulness and deep devotion to his ward by walking every day before the court of the women's house, that he might know how she was faring. Through this watchfulness over Esther, Mordecai learned of the plan to harm Ahasuerus and so saved him from probable death.

Mordecai showed ability to see and reprimand the evil in others by refusing to bow to Haman, even though he was in high authority. His love for his own people, the Jews, was strong within him, and when through Haman's trickery the Jews were decreed to be slain, by wise and careful judgment he planned to save them. The plan was successful because he thoroughly taught Esther the lesson of obedience.

A person who is able so firmly to implant such habits in others is usually reflecting his own traits and disposition; so that in commending Esther and approving her course, we should give to Mordecai much praise and honor. Faithfulness and righteousness seldom go unnoticed for a long space of time, and as these splendid things in Mordecai came to the king's notice he was advanced, and became a leader of his people, and according to the last verse of this Biblical romance "Mordecai the Jew, was next unto king Ahasuerus, and great among the Jews, and accepted of the multitude of his brethren, seeking the wealth of his people and speaking peace to his seed."

Dear Bereans:

"The righteous shall flourish like a palm tree." Psalm xcii 12.

The palm tree is beautiful, and it is useful. Every part of it is useful—trunk, bark, leaves, fibers, fruit. The tall, dignified palm guides travelers in the desert from afar to springs of cooling waters. Its freshness and beauty gladdens their hearts, and its fruits revive and strengthen them. Its delightful shade rests them and prepares them to go on with the weary journey.

Are we useful? Have we consecrated our all to the Master's service? Have we guided some tired traveler in the arid desert of life to the Living Waters? Have we cheered and encouraged some one by our freshness and beauty of character? Are our fruits—good fruits—in evidence?

Let's be palm-tree Christians, beautiful and useful, that we may wave victory palms in the kingdom of our God.

Dear Bereans:

What is life, and what does it mean to live? Aside from the requirements of the physical life, food, clothing and shelter, let us consider for a moment how the richer, broader life may be lived.

Environment may exert a great influence, but is not an essential factor in righteous living. The Grecians brought up amidst the ruggedness and beauty of their land, early became a great maritime and martial people, excelling also in art and literature. Again, the negro in his tropical home has become an indolent creature, caring for nothing but the barest necessities of life.

Travelers oft times in passing from place to place, gaze with admiration and envy upon the fine homes especially in the residential portions of the cities. The expression "Oh, it would seem like living to be in a place like that," has become a very common one. Yet how often the parents absorbed in the round of clubs and social events forget the children who, forced to find entertainment for themselves, frequent places where vice and crime, are daily guests.

Again for example, we may take a lake secluded perhaps by mountains from every tempest and storm that may arise to disturb its calmness. It would seem that a life of purity and blamelessness could be lived in such a spot. But wherever habitation has been established, sooner or later its vices are also made apparent. Christ says "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me." John xiv. 6. "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." John x. 10.

Let us strive to live a life of purity, so that when the Lord comes we may have life more abundantly.

Report of Labor.

Bro. D. M. Rudler came back from Muscatine, Iowa, to Tennessee, the latter part of October, and preached part of two weeks at Emery Gap and 4 were persuaded to put on Christ by baptism, but when the time came to baptize only one dear sister obeyed, the other three were hindered for the present by their husbands and church members. May the dear Lord bless and comfort Sister Mrs. O H Amphery, who came out and said I have made my choice and will stand for the Master alone if need be. May her kind husband soon follow her example is our prayer.

Bro. Rudler stayed in Tennessee about a month, and is at present at Rohgood, N. C., where he expects to remain during this winter and coming summer.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Let Us Pray.

Our Father and our God. We have abundant cause to praise thee for thy watchful care over us, and thy tender regard for us during another week. Aside from all the temporal blessings we have been the recipients of, the gratitude of our hearts is due thee for all our spiritual blessings and privileges. Oh, how rich we are in thy favor! Thou hast called us to thy kingdom and glory,—thou hast adopted us into thy family and bestowed upon us the rights and immunities of real children—made us heirs with thy only begotten Son. Oh, our Father, we will praise thee; we will magnify thy great name. And realizing that we are thine and that our service is due to thee, we have met to do thy will, to set forth thy plans and purposes, and advertize thy great promises, and to proclaim thy great love in giving thy only begotten Son to die on our account, and so bring our life and immortality to light for us. Thou hast blessed our efforts in the past,—thou art blessing them still,—Oh, continue to bless them, we beseech thee. So that we may lead many others to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world. Tenderly regard those who have arrived at the point of obedience. Oh God, may thy blessing attend them. May they submit to the Captain of their salvation in all things—grow in his favor, work in his vineyard, and finally share his glorious kingdom. Bless all thy children, Lord, far and near—especially the sick and infirm ones, the tried and tempted. In Jesus' name.

We thank brethren in different States for cordial invitations to dine with them Christmas.

The meeting at Hillsburg, Ind., closed on the 17th. We were there fourteen days, and preached 17 sermons. Three young men obeyed the truth in baptism: John Hampton, Manson Huffer, and Harry Stuart.

After Baptism, Then What?

We read that those who were baptized on the day of Pentecost, who "gladly received the Word." "Continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship (giving of their substance for the poor) and in the breaking of bread and in prayers." Acts ii 42.

To do this they gathered together in assemblies, subsequently called churches, meeting at first in private houses. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper, to observe which was the central object of such gathering, was instituted by Jesus on the night of his betrayal. The record says: "And he took bread and gave thanks and brake it, and gave it unto them saying, this is my body, which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper saying, "This cup is the New Testament (covenant) in my blood which is shed for many for the remission of sins." Luke xxii 19-20; Matt xxvi 26: Mark xiv 22; 1 Cor xi 24

After quoting the Lord's words Paul adds: "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup ye do shew the Lord's death until he comes." 1 Cor xi 26.

Again he says: "The cup of blessing which we bless is it not the communion of the blood of Christ. The bread which we break is it not the communion of the body of Christ. For we being many are one bread and one body, for we are all partakers of that one bread." 1 Cor x 16, 17.

It is apparent therefore that it is an ordinance which belongs exclusively to those who are of the body of Christ who have been baptized into him.

This ordinance and that of baptism, the one a memorial of the crucifixion of Christ as a sin offering and the other a memorial of his burial and resurrection, are the only ordinance the church is asked to observe.

While explicit directions are given as to how and in what spirit this memorial service should be observed (1 Cor xi 23 to 34), there is no direction or commandment as to when or how frequently the churches should assemble for that purpose.

The first day of the week which was called the "Lord's day" (Rev i 10) because it was the day of Christ's resurrection, was selected as the most appropriate day on which to assemble for this and other worship.

Thus we find Paul waited several days at Troas that he might be present at one of these weekly assemblages. As the record says: "And upon the first day of the week when the disciples came together to break bread Paul preached unto them." Acts xx 7.

History shows the early Christians assembled and broke bread on the Lord's Day, now called Sunday, for several hundred years after Christ until the apostate church changed the primitive ordinances.

In his first apology to Caesar, chapter 67, in telling the Emperor Marcus Aurelius Antonines of Christian life and customs, Justin Martyr says: "And on the day called Sunday, all who live in cities or in the country gather together in one place, and memoirs of the apostles or the writings of the prophets are read, as long as time permits: then when the reader has ceased, the president verbally instructs and exhorts to the imitation of these good things. Then we all rise together and pray, and as we before said, when our prayer is ended, bread and wine are brought, and the president in like manner offers prayer and thanksgiving, according to his ability and all the people assent, saying, Amen.....But Sunday is the day on which we all hold common assembly, because Jesus Christ, our Savior, on the same day rose from the dead to his apostles and disciples. He taught them these things which we have submitted to you also for your consideration."

This apology was written about fifty years after the death of John, with whom many Christians then living must have been acquainted. It is reasonable to suppose therefore that this simple service thus described by Justin was not far if any removed from that instituted by the apostles.

JAS. W. WILSON.

They Wrote Letters.

Brother Huggins:

Do all you can to teach our people to pray. There is nothing that gives so much strength to a Christian as prayer, either public or private. Prayer is praise as well as supplication. In Heb xiii 15 we read: "Let us offer the sacrifice of praise, that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name." The brother says, "Now I want to find fault." I should think he did; and if that is all he has to find fault about, he better keep still.

MRS. S. J. WHITTEN.

Brother Huggins:

The reason we have not written to you before is because we hear from you in THE RESTITUTION. We are as strong in the faith as ever. We read, talk and pray, and do all the good we can. Our heart's desire is to see people come to a knowledge of the truth. We enjoy the good things in our paper. The letter recently published from a brother in England shows that we are not strangers wherever we may be in this world.

Your sister in Christ,

VIOLA WIGGINS.

Brother Huggins:

Kindly give an exposition of 1 Pet 21. There is a class of people that claim this text teaches that baptism is for those who have previously had their sins pardoned. To what extent does the figure here used reach?

I can see no reason why Bro. Joblin's prayers should not be published. Prayers are printed in the Bible; so are epistles.

Bro. Adam's exposition of 1 Pet iii 18-20 is the best that I have seen. Let the good work go on.

Your brother in hope.

W. H. STEWART.

As to Bro. Stewart's question on 1 Pet iii 21, we have never heard modern theologians use the text to establish the doctrine of pardon prior to baptism. As our brother is doubtless familiar with their claim, and the manner of its presentation, we suggest that he turn orthodox long enough to write an interpretation of 1 Pet iii 21 according to their views. We can then reply to the real points expressed, and not to imaginary ones assumed, as necessitated by a general question.

Brother Huggins:

I am glad for the privilige of expressing myself in regard to the prayers in "Ebenezer." I have enjoyed reading them; and as I have been isolated most of the 80 years that I have been in the faith, I have considered it a long felt want. I wrote to dear sister Wince last summer and asked her to write a prayer and have it published in THE RESTITUTION. She sent one direct to me. I am so ignorant, I need all the help I can get. I cannot write anything fit for publication, but have wanted to ask a question for some time, and if you see fit to answer it through THE RESTITUTION I will be pleased. Mark xi 20. But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days. Should we not fast while the bridegroom is absent?

Yours for truth.

MRS. SARAH E. SMITH.

Brother Huggins:

I am pleased with your work in THE RESTITUTION. I think "Ebenezer" opens well—so much in harmony with the Word. Col iii 12-17; Eph v 1-20; 1 Cor xiv 26-33, and so edifying. For we are indeed, as has been shown, our brother's keeper, and we need each other's help in the Lord. And I am glad to see that noble work so ably and uncompromisingly carried on by you, and others.

With brotherly love to all of like precious faith I am, yours in hope of life when Jesus comes.

R. A. HUMPHREYS.

Gold Dust.

It is more noble by silence to avoid an injury, than by argument to overcome it.—Lord Berkley.

Repentance without amendment is like continual pumping in ship without stopping the leaks.

A Christian should have a clean body as well as a clean heart. The blood has made us clean, the Word will keep us clean.—W. G. Corr.

Kind words are like jewels in the heart, never to be forgotten, but, perhaps, to cheer, by their memory, a long, sad life.

We know of no other way by which to keep the love of the world out of our hears, than to keep in our hearts the love of God; and no other way by which to keep our hearts in the love of God, than building ourselves upon our most holy faith.—Chalmers.

Some years hence it will matter very little what we have suffered if we find this, that we have washed our robes in the Lamb's precious blood and that our righteousness is the righteousness of our Lord.—Cummings.

Questions on the Lesson.

THE ASCENSION OF CHRIST.
Acts i. 1-14.

Golden text—"And it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven." Luke xxiv. 51.

QUESTIONS.

1. Who wrote the Acts of the Apostles?
2. To what former treatise does he allude?
3. What was its subject?
4. Were Jesus' works and teachings of use to man?
5. Tell about Jesus being crucified.
6. How did this affect his disciples?
7. How did Jesus get back among his disciples?
8. How long did he stay with them before his ascension?
9. Give some of the proofs that Jesus really rose from the dead.
10. Read 1 Cor. xv. 12-20, and tell why Christ's resurrection is of importance.
11. Does the resurrection of Jesus teach that man has a soul distinct from the body—is a dual being?
12. Where had Jesus assembled his disciples?
13. What did he direct them to do?
14. Read Acts ii. 1-4, 16-18; Joel ii. 28, 29, and tell what the promise of the Father was.
15. When had Jesus told them of this? Luke xiv. 16, 17.
16. What were the disciples expecting would occur?
17. Who controls times and seasons?
18. What were the disciples to be to the world?
19. Where did Jesus ascend from? Acts i. 12.
20. What did he do last? Luke xxiv. 50, 51.
21. What became of Jesus?
22. Did his body—the person who walked, talked, and ate with the disciples—go too?
23. What is he doing for us now? John xiv. 3; Heb. vii. 25.
24. What promise did the angels make?
25. Is there any comfort in this promise?

THOUGHTS.

After Jesus went away, the few despised disciples were to be witnesses to the world; telling what had been, and what was to come.

God works directly on the hearts of men; and through them on other people.

The last sight the disciples had of Jesus was not the dismal scene on the cross, but as he ascended, attended by angels, to his Father in glory.

His coming again is to his people the triumph of his cause; their glory, their joy, their hope in all ages.

Had the disciples started out on their mission without waiting for the Holy Spirit, their work surely would have failed; human strength could not have done it.

Man can do nothing of himself even now. We must go in the power that comes from on high. We must draw strength by communion with our Father, else we shall surely fail.

Obituary.

Benjamin Franklin Hamnitt was born in Fairfield County, Ohio, June 28, 1841, and died at Gowin, Tama Co., Iowa, Dec. 7, 1908. Left fatherless at the age of 9 years, he with his mother and brothers came to Tama Co., Iowa, at the age of 18 years, where the remainder of his life was spent, with the exception of a few years, part of which were spent in the state of Nebraska, and part in the State of Alabama. Oct 14, 1866, he was united in marriage to Lucy E. Moyer of Tama Co. To this union was born 8 children, 2 of them preceding their father to the grave. Those living were all present at the funeral. In 1864 he enlisted in the 2nd Iowa Cavalry Co. I, and re enlisted in 1864, and served until the close of the War. In 1867 he united with the M. E. Church, and remained a consistent member, until the year 1898, when a copy of the Millennial Dawn falling into his hands he began comparing Scripture with Scripture, which resulted in the embracing of the doctrines of the Mortality of Man, the Coming of Christ and the Resurrection of the Dead, by himself and faithful companion, and he fell asleep in the hope of a resurrection when the Master comes. He leaves a devoted wife who has stood by his side through all the storms and battles of this life, 6 children and 11 grand children, and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn his death. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer after which we laid him away in the beautiful cemetery near his home to await the call of the Master. May God sustain his lonely companion through the journey of life, and grant us all a joyin' meeting in the kingdom of God.

O. J. ALLARD.

Clyde Raymond, son of John and Louisa Helms, was born near Tyner, Ind., June 16, 1900, and died Nov. 27, 1908, near Pomona, California. The cause of his death was diptheria. The seriousness of the case and the infectious nature of the disease, caused the family to be quarantined and to hasten the funeral and burial of the little lad on Saturday morning. The distracted parents had a private funeral, and the interment took place shortly after in Pomona cemetery. John Helms, father of the boy, was a brother of Wm. F. Helms of Plymouth, Ind., and both father and mother are members of the Church of God.

LEONA HELMS.

Thomas Hicklin Denney was born in Scott Co., Kentucky on July 1, 1817, and died near Beaverton Nov. 16, 1908, being 91 years, 4 months and 15 days old. In early boyhood he moved with his father's family to Jennings Co., Ind., on Jan. 4, 1849, he was married to Berrilla F. Dear Restitution:

Enclosed please find $1 50 for one year's subscription to Mrs M. D. Morrow and a $1 50 for someone not able to pay for the good old paper. With many wishes for the success of the good cause and prayers for those engaged in the spread of the truth and soon coming of the kingdom. I am as ever sincerely yours.

MRS M D MORROW.

Some Thoughts.

There are many strange ideas in the religious world, one of which is that if they die they go immediately to heaven, although Christ himself did not, John xx. nor David, Acts ii. 34. Asked an old gentleman today "If he was a Christian?" "Yes; sir." "Do you expect to go to heaven when you die?" "That is my aim," said he. I asked, "Where in the Bible can you find it that way?" He said "did not know just then, but thought it was there." Showed him different, that we go to the grave. Eccl. ix; Job xiv; Psa. vi; John iii. 13.

Others think the wicked are punished at death and refer you to the rich man and Lazarus, in Luke xvi., which is only a parable. The Jew is the rich man—the Gentile the poor man—the gulf fixed between the two is the times of the Gentiles—the persecution is what was to come upon the Jews in this life after their rejection of Christ. We know an earthly judge cannot—dare not punish a man till he first gives him a trial—God is more merciful than man surely. The wicked are to be punished after the reign of the saints a thousand years upon the earth, Rev. xx., not at death. They are to be burned up like the stubble, Mal. iv. 1; like chaff, Psa. xi. are like stubble fully dry, Nahum x. read also Rom. vi. 23. God help men to believe his Word.

B. E. LLOYD.

Dear Brother:

Christmas season being upon us, and all people within the influence of Christianity are manifesting the great gift or rather love, in many different ways. We who can look back by faith through the year can rejoice inasmuch as the greatest gift ever given, was manifested to the world, ushered in by angelic song, Peace on earth, good will toward men. We can rejoice, I say with a joy, which only those that know Christ as a living Savior, experience. And so brother it gives much pleasure to write to you and send with it a small mite for you to use for the Master as you see best. Taken from the fund I lay aside for the Master's work. May your Christmas be a happy one and the new year bring blessing for you and your work, are my Christmas greetings.

From your brother in Christ.

THOS. S. GLOVER.

Dear Restitution:

It is with great pleasure I renew my subscription for another year, and thanks be to almighty God, that I came across the paper. It is full of good things, and just what we needed. We look forward to its coming every Friday night, and we are disappointed if it does not reach us until Saturday. Dear brother Editor, we were sorry to hear of your accident, but we hope you will be alright by this time. May the Lord bless and keep you, is the wish of our hearts. We hope you will have a merry Christmas.

MR & MRS J A TOWNEND.

The King's Business Requires Haste.

In order to make it possible for you to put several thousand extra copies of the Home Department Visitor into the homes of the unsaved, and into the homes of our brethren, the Twin City printing Co. of Champaign, have offered to hold the type of this Visitor until January 1, 1909.

This Company ought to receive the thanks of our brethren from all parts of the states. They have worked at nights and made sacrifices of both time and money to make it possible for you to do the work of a faithful messenger of the King.

Will you do it? Will the King's daughters do it? Up to December 21 less than 100 copies of the Visitor have been ordered by the brethren. Sunday noon the 20th I received the first 200 copies from the printers. At four o'clock 800 were mailed to brethren. Monday at 7 a. m. several hundred more are ready to be mailed. At 9 o'clock Monday packages are sent by express to the messengers. This is done in order that you may have a part in the messenger service. Will you do it?

Send your offering to make it possible to have several thousand extra copies of the Visitor printed to be used in the messenger service. Be sure that your order reaches me before January 1.

The merchants of Champaign have offered to sell this Visitor without any compensation in order to help the work of the Home Department messenger service. Brethren are not you obligations greater in the messenger service than these who know not the truth of the gospel? Do not delay—send out the truth.

Yours in the work.

HARRIET F BOOTH.

About A Boy.

We all love him, and long for him to grow up to be a man the whole world will love.

That is why we wish he might remember two or three things. One of these is that the world needs good, clean men. Not men with clean faces and hands, merely, but clean all through,—heart, mind and soul.

That is the reason why we wish he never would get the idea into his head that it makes a boy more manly to go around with a pipe or cigarette in his mouth. A roll of tobacco, with fire at one end of it and a boy at the other, never yet made much of a man. It takes more than that, says the Farm Journal.

It is because we love him so that we want him to be as honest as the day is long. A man who looks you in the eye and never cheats himself nor any body else, is a man, whether he has a cent in his pocket or not.

And we want our boy to master all there is to be mastered around the farm and everywhere else, so far as may be right and true and helpful. He needs to know about horses, cows, colts, calves, hens, sheep and all the other farm friends, and how to care for them.

We are anxious, too, that he should learn to use the farm machinery to the best possible advantage.

But there is another machine we should like him to know so well that he will take care of it, no matter what may come,—and that is his own body. If that gets broken down it is not very easy to mend it.

Work a Little more than You get Pay for.

What is true of the child, holds good in the life and work of the man. It matters little however humble his position in an establishment. "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings, he shall not stand before mean men," holds as true today as it did thousands of years ago when the wise men of the past first recognized the truth and put it into the form of words.

Fulton, having the little bit more spirit, gave the steamboat. Morse, having the little bit more spirit, gave the electric telegraph. Stephenson, having the little bit more spirit, gave the locomotive. Cyrus W. Field, having the little bit more spirit, gave the Atlantic cable. Bell, Edison, Marconi, and a host of others, having the bit more spirit, have struck high chimes in the steeples of Time and sent the knowledge of larger things and better up and down the hills and dales of life. The little bit more spirit has transformed life and given to mankind a new seat, a new quest and a new field for the strength of their heart and brain.

To have more, you must do more. To achieve more, you must attempt more. To win more, you must fight more. To be more, you must think more, work more. He who is satisfied in the to-days of life will never come to the great to-morrows with the passage of the years.—Boy's World.

Everything that is a mere form, a mere habit and custom is divine things, is to be dreaded exceedingly; life, power, reality, this is what we have to aim after. Things should not result from without, but from within. —George Muller.

Righteousness is never augmented in the sermon where the preacher is anxious for his reputation.

Many a man prides himself on his uprightness who has no claim to it except his bluntness.

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

The Wandering Evangelist at Work.

I closed my meetings in the city of Eugene on Friday evening Dec. 11. I have learned long ago that we cannot measure our usefulness as the clerk would measure off cloth or ribbon. To fill our responsibility we must not turn back after having put our hand to the plow. In this day of weak faith we must work as long as God is merciful. Christ is our pattern. He worked when they would have made him king—still worked when under the greatest distress. Though misunderstood and cast down he acted as mediator before the sacrifice was completed. "Father forgive them for they know not what they do"! You may be tested on the line of faith and love. Never remove the offering after placing it on the altar though it should consume your body—"A living sacrifice"! God would not have his children offer a dead sacrifice. There is no prospect for immediate results. We never can determine that, not even after they start. My first meeting was held in a private residence—Brother Palmers. Eight more meetings were held in the Presbyterian church. I spoke during the time concerning the literal coming of Christ—still future, and the object of his return. I was glad that I could be understood sufficient to make sharp public opposition from both Presbyterians and "Campbellites" if their prejudice must remain so strong as to hold them. This was proven to be true and that the spirit of investigation is awakened as well as of opposition by the announcement on the last evening that Professor Anderson, dean of the university, will undertake to prove the immortality of the soul next Sunday—I must go on to Central Point tonight and tomorrow. The difficulty of getting a church on Sunday at Central Point has postponed my work beyond Sunday Dec. 13th, into the week work. I still hope to reach Sacramento, Cal., by the 20th of Dec., as Bro. Cook may plan.

The Root of Spirituality.

Spirituality issues from God-consciousness. God is with us.

God is here because he wants to be with his children.

God is not here as a detective, but as our deliverer.

God calls no man to a solitary discipleship. The God whom he follows is always with him.

God's being predicates his omnipresence, and his omnipresence is the pledge of his help.

God is not the great critic, but the great Companion, the Comforter.

God's omnipresence is our constant opportunity to get help.—London S. S. Times.

Notice.

The Chicago Bereans will again this year make their distribution of Christmas dinners to the poor. We have other Bereans who join in this work, and we take this means of notifying you.

We are sure that there are many readers of THE RESTITUTION who will gladly help in bringing Christmas cheer to the widowed and fatherless. In a great City like ours we do not have to look far to find them.

If you wish to help in this work, please send money by Dec. 15, to Gertrude Ellis, 1290 Washington B'lvd. Chicago, Ill. If money is sent after Dec. 15, please send to Leila E Whitehead, 5428 Ontario St. Austin Sta., Chicago, Ill.

These are the kind of people we remember: A family of seven, father an epileptic, taken to Dunning, mother supports them by washing. Widow with seven children, cleans for living. Widow with five children, one an invalid, washes, etc. If we had money enough we could remember them by the score.

May the Lord touch your hearts and open your pocket books for the needy.

LEILA E. WHITEHEAD.

Homes Desired For Children.

The agents of the Board of State Charities have in the past year been very successful in securing a large number of good homes for dependent children who are public wards. There are still a large number of desirable children available for placing in suitable homes. Doubtless there are many families that would make a home for a child. An important part of the Board's work is to bring the homeless child and the childless home together. The Board solicits the co operation of all who are interested in securing proper homes in families for children. For further information address the Board of State Charities, State House, Indianapolis, Ind.

BROTHER, If you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

We have received a new edition of the tract A Letter to a Friend, from Brother Woodruff, and we can supply them at five cents each postpaid. No tract ever issued by our people has done the good this has, and the pleasing and convincing style in which it is written makes it worth much as a medium for advancing the truth of the gospel. Get a number of them and give to friends. You never can tell how much good a few nickels will do used in this manner. Try it.

A New Tract.

The Great Divine Healer vs Latter-Day Healers, by Uncle John Foore.

A Tract for the last days. Should be read by every thinking Christian.

Paul 2 Tim. iii. 13. "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Matt. vii. 21. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Brethren, these tracts have gone into many families, both to brethren and people of other denominations, a few infidels, and one Christian Scientist, and all seem to be well pleased with it; but only a few of the brethren have sent to me any help in the way of paying for the tracts, and tracts are very expensive. We are anxious to have more published on different subjects. Please help to send these Pearls out among the people.

Send orders to John Foore, at 2012 W. Corning Ave. Parsons, Kan. The price is 10 cents each.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

"The Destiny of Russia," is the title of a paper covered book of 118 pages, with a map, which is sold by Bro. W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill. This work was published some years ago, and has been out of print for a long time, but Bro. Wilson has fortunately become possessed of a limited number of copies, and will dispose of them at 40 cents each. In view of the important changes that are to take place ere long in the countries adjacent to Russia, this book is a valuable aid to the earnest watcher of the signs. Before one before the supply is exhausted. The book contains what is called "The Will of Peter the Great," which we have been asked recently to print, but have delayed for want of space. Send orders to Bro. Wilson.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

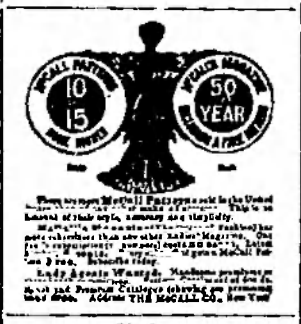
Brother D. C. Robison has issued a new edition of his tract on the subject "Man is Mortal." It is of convenient size to enclose in an envelope, and can be had for two cents each, or 15 cents for 12 copies. Brother Robison is so well known as a clear and lucid writer that nothing we can say will commend his work, more than the mere announcement of his name. Send to the Author at 806 West Main Street, Salem, Ohio, and get a supply of this tract.



Notice.

All who are interested in the dance question, and wish to know the workings of the ball room and dance house will get a full understanding of the matter by getting and reading carefully the little tract on the "Evils of the Ball room Unveiled." It will cost but ten cents post paid. Send to the author L. S. Bronson, Niles, Mich.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever?
